TWO VISIONS.

Where close the curving mountains drew,
To clasp the stream in their embrace,
With every outline, curve, and hue
Reflected in its placid face—

The ploughman stopped his team to watch
The train, as swift it thundered by;
Some distant glimpse of life to catch,
He strains his eager, wistful eye.

The morning freshness lies on him
Just wakened from his balmy dream;
The travellers, begriimed and dim,
Think longingly of mountain streams.

Oh, for the joyous mountain air,
The fresh, delightful autumn day
Among the hills! The ploughman there
Must have perpetual holiday!

And he, as all day long he guides
His steady plough, with patient hand,
Thinks of the flying train that glides
Into some new, enchanted land.

Where, day by day, no plodding round
Wearies the frame and dulls the mind;
Where life thrills keen to sight and sound,
With ploughs and axe narrow left behind.

Even so, to each the untrod ways
Of life are touched by fancy's glow,
That evers sheds its brightest rays
Upon the path we do not know.

Interesting Story.

IN HASTE.

It was when postage stamps were three cents a piece, and eggs twelve and a half cents a dozen, that Mr Huggins, the proprietor of a little country store at Elkton, sat at his high desk, one dreary afternoon, his head studiously bent over his book, making out an account of sales.

"Please, sir," suddenly interrupted a thin, small voice proceeding from the space in front of the desk, "will you give me a stamp for these three eggs, and you needn't mind the change?"

Mr Huggins slowly lifted his eyes from the big book, to look for a small speaker below him.

It was a mite of a girl, not more than six years old, who held a letter in one hand and with the other tightly grasped her apron gathered together for the safe keeping of three eggs lying within.

Mr Huggins' senses had been so absorbed in the difficulties of his long sum in addition, that it was several moments before he could recall them and bring them down to a level with the little head lifting itself eagerly up to him; but reaching out his hand mechanically he took the letter and supposing he would immediately take the eggs also, the little girl incautiously opened her apron, when, alas, with a pip! pip! pip! as though kissing each other a hasty good-bye, out rolled the eggs, and, with a smash! smash! smash! lay on the floor a medley of gold and silver, and ivory shells!

For one moment the poor little messenger stood silent with dismay, and then, lifting her distressed face to that of Mr Huggins, she burst into a wail so piteful, that the heart of the store-keeper was touched with compassion.

"Why, what on earth did you open your apron for, little gal?" said he, by way of soothing her.

"To—let—you—get—the—eggs," sobbed the child. "I thought you were going to take them."

"And so I was," he answered, but you ought not to have let go your grip till I had hold of them. Well, they won't hatch now, that's certain," he continued, with a touch of philosophy in his tone, "but there's no more use in crying over spilt milk; you ought to be glad there were so few of them; and what were you asking me to do with them?"

"To give me a stamp, please sir. But oh, what will mother do now! Her letter can't go, and she said it was to start at once, and go in haste!"

The sob grew louder and the little girl seemed to realize more and more the extent of the disaster.

"To go in haste," repeated Mr Huggins with a smile of superior knowledge. "Yes, I see, she has written on it, 'In haste.' Well, that might have done some good, perhaps, fifty years ago, when letters were carried around the country on horse-back; and doubt if it will bury up the steam-car, do you stop crying!" he ejaculated suddenly, as the deepening sob smote his heart anew and brought him back to the business on hand. "Didn't I tell you there's no use crying over smashed eggs? So look up now and tell me what is the great haste about this particular letter?"

"I don't exactly know, sir," stammered the child, tearfully, "but I know it is something very particular indeed, and it will break mother's heart almost to know it hasn't gone. You see, she had been over to Miss Riley's and she came back with the tears all running down her cheeks, and hunted round till she found this paper and a pencil and wrote the letter with her hands all in a tremble. But after it was all done up, she just remembered that she hadn't a stamp and I ran as fast as I could to Miss Riley's, but she hadn't one, nor any money either, and mother just sank down and cried as if her heart would break, and then, sir—wasn't it lucky?—I knew a stamp cost three cents, and I just thought of my old hen, Bun, who was laying eggs that I wanted so to hatch, and there was just three in the nest, but I could n't see mother cry so, and run out and brought them to her, and she was so glad—well, I wish you could have seen her—and she said, 'Thank God for the eggs, and run as fast as you can, for the letter must go in haste,' that's just what she said—but oh, the eggs are all broken now, and what will mother do?"

The long story comes to an abrupt end with a wail of grief.

"Well, don't take it so to heart, child," said Mr Huggins with his gruff kindness, "there's no great harm done; the letter can't go till to-morrow anyhow, for the mail has gone these three hours."

"To-morrow!" repeated the little girl in dismay. "Oh, sir, mother won't sleep a wink to night if she knows that, and that if you would read it, you would know it must go in haste."

"But that's all nonsense, child," said Mr Huggins beginning to lose patience. "There's no such thing in these days; letters now all go one way and in one time and that's a deal quicker than they ever did. But you run home now, and if you like you needn't tell your mother anything about the waiting, nor the eggs either. I'll put a stamp on for you and send it as soon as I can."

The little eyes beamed like stars through the falling tears. "Oh, sir, if you would!" she cried, "and when my hen lays three more eggs I will be sure to bring them to you."

She turned quickly to the door, but pausing there, as with an unconquerable impulse, she looked back, saying, "And if you please, sir, do make it go fast, for that's what she said—in haste."

"That child has got more heart than head," thought Mr Huggins to himself as he silently watched her depart without further effort to explain the mail regulations.

He knew the little customer quite well as the child of Widow Carson, who had come to the neighborhood just after the first of those terrible floods that had sent so many homeless ones back from the banks of the treacherous Ohio. It was said that her husband had perished in the waves after placing his wife and child in safety, and here she had lived since in a little log-cabin not far from the store, with her small patch of corn and potatoes she supported herself and Jess and the little yellow dog. But only a few days previous to this, Mr Huggins had felt compelled to refuse her any further credit until the bill, slowly lengthening on his big book, was paid up, and it was doubtless because of this that she had not sent to him at once to get the advance of a stamp for this all-important letter.

Mediately he looked at the envelope, with the address scrawled in so tremulous and unpractised a hand that he doubted much whether it would ever reach its destination, and the words of Jessie returned to his mind—"She said if you would read it you would know that it must go in haste."

It seemed a sufficient permission to the kind thought in his heart, and opening the awkwardly sealed covering Mr Huggins was met with difficulty the words written evidently by a hand tremulous with emotion:

"I have just heard you were seen in Rockport yesterday looking for Jess and me; it seems too good and wonderful to be true, but I write at once to say that we are here, and God grant my letter may reach you in time. I will write 'in haste' on it, and I will pray day and night that He will make it go quickly, for Jess and I are in such need that unless you come to us soon, I do not know what will become of us. We have mourned for you so long as dead, that I can scarcely write now for the beating of my heart at the thought of seeing you again."

Though Mr Huggins was often called a rough, cold man, yet there was certainly a strange moisture in his eyes as he closed the letter. In a moment he had taken in the whole situation, Jessie's father, then, was not dead as he had supposed, but had been separated from his wife and child on that terrible night, and had lost sight of them. The sorrowing woman had just heard that he had been seeking those who mourned him; but it was evident that he was not long to remain in Rockport. What if the chance of reunion should be lost? These words, "I will pray night and day that God will make my letter go quickly," and the wan, anxious face of little Jess rose together before Mr Huggins' mind, and with a sudden movement he rose abruptly, saying half aloud: "And my name is not Huggins if it don't go quicker than that she thought."

Striding from the store and locking the door behind him, Mr Huggins was seen a little later riding rapidly to the nearest railway station.

"I want this telegram sent at once," he said, handing a slip of paper to the clerk, on which was written:

"To John Carson, Boatman's Tavern, Rockport."

"Jessie and I are here; come at once and inquire at the Elkton store for the house." MARY CARSON.

Rockport was only a hundred miles away, and Mr Huggins cast many an expectant glance next day along the road leading from the station. And sure enough, about half an hour after the 3 o'clock train whistled, a snub-nosed stranger with an eager, anxious face came down the road and hurriedly entered the store.

"Can any one tell me where Mary Carson lives?" he asked nervously of Mr Huggins.

"Yes, my friend, and I will lead you part of the way, myself," answered the proprietor, promptly, and without losing a moment the two were soon in sight of the little log cabin.

"That's the house," said Mr Huggins. "You can easily find the rest of the way alone," and with these words he turned back leaving the stranger to hasten onward.

He heard the little dog give its quick, yelping bark, and a backward glance showed him Jessie at the gate and the mother standing with clasped hands, motionless in the doorway; but this was all, and you and Mr Huggins both will have to imagine the rest of the story.

A Roman Circus.

Rome is astir early,—citizens and strangers, slaves and soldiers, all are hurrying toward the great pleasure-ground of Rome—the Circus Maximus.

With flutes playing merrily, with swaying standards and gleaming statues, with proud young cadets, with priests, and guards with crested helmets, skilled performers, restless horses, and glittering chariots, down the Sacred street winds a long procession, drawn by the magistrate, Marcus of Rome, the favorite of the Emperor. It passes into the great circus, and files into the arena; two hundred thousand excited people—think, boys, of a circus tent that holds two hundred thousand people—rise to their feet and welcome it with hearty hand-clapping.

The trumpets sound the prelude, the young magistrate (standing in his augustus, or state box) flings the mappa, or white flag, into the course as the signal for the start; and, as the ringing shout goes up, four glittering chariots, rich in their decorations of gold and polished ivory, and each drawn by four plunging horses, burst from their arched stalls and dash around the track. Green, blue, red, white—the colors of the drivers—stream from their tunics.

Around and around they go. Now one and now another is ahead. The people strain and cheer, and many a wager is laid as to the victor. The red chariot, turning too sharply, grates against the meta, or short pillar that stands at the upper end of the track, guarding the low central wall; the horses rear and plunge, the driver struggles manfully to control them, but all in vain; over goes the chariot, while the now-maddened horses dash wildly on until checked by mounted attendants and led off to their stalls. "Blue! blue!" "Green! green!" rise the varying shouts, as the contending chariots still struggle for the lead. White is far behind. Now comes the seventh or final round. Blue leads! No, green is ahead! Neck and neck down the home stretch they go magnificently, and then the cheer of victory is heard, as, with a final dash, the green rider strikes the white cord first and the race is won!

Now, in the interval between the races, come the athletic sports: foot-racing and wrestling, rope dancing and high leaping, quoit-throwing, and javelin matches. One man runs a race with a fleet Cappadocian horse; another expert rider drives two bar-back horses twice around the track, leaping from back to back as the horses dash around. Can you see any very great difference between the circus performance of A. D. 138 and one of A. D. 1888?

Spurgeon's Preaching.

Further, in his preaching, Mr Spurgeon is intensely practical. By that we do not mean that he indulges in "moral" preaching. We mean that his preaching exactly meets the wants of souls. It is common enough to hear and read appeals to people to concern themselves about their salvation; what people need to be told and desire to be told is what they must do to be saved. Mr Spurgeon, more minutely and more patiently than any preacher we know explains the way of peace. Then, in preaching to Christians, he deals with the actual problems of the Christian life. The chief desire among Christians is to gain an assurance of God's love, and to this subject Mr Spurgeon constantly recurs, not dismissing it with a wave of the hand, but taking it up fully and elaborately. Many excellent sermons cast merely as a mental stimulus; they instruct and even to some extent excite, but they do not meet the deep needs of the soul. It is, we are convinced, one of Mr Spurgeon's chief sources of power, that he devotes himself almost entirely to the great concern. It is this that has made his writings so dearly prized by the dying. There is no more enviable popularity than the popularity which this illustrious minister has amongst those who are in presence of the profoundest realities. When cleverness and eloquence have lost their charms, the dying often listen hungrily to Mr Spurgeon's writings, when nothing else save the very Word of God has any charm or power.

Materialism in America.

I do not ask that men of wealth shall give more money to the church, which is often more generous when it is poor than when it is rich; nor to the poor and thrifless, whom unearned money only keeps in poverty. I urge that the power to make money, like any other power, is a trust bestowed on the possessor for humanity. The preacher who preaches for his salary, not for the spiritual well-being of his parishioners, is a mercenary; the politician who enacts laws for what he can make, not for the community, is a mercenary; no less the manufacturer, the merchant, the trader, the man on 'change, who transacts his business to make money, not to give the community its meat in due season, is a mercenary. In the history of the nineteenth century, the doctrine that wealth is a trust bestowed by the side of the doctrine that labor is an honor and liberty is an obedience. The materialism that it rears the American church is not the materialism of Herbert Spencer. It is the materialism of the railroad, the factory, the shop; the materialism that puts things above manhood; that does not know that things were made for man, not man for things—! at God gives us, not Irishmen to build railroads, but railroads to build Irishmen; not Hungarians to dig our mines, but

WOLFVILLE, N. S., AUG. 24, 1888.

Baptist Convention.

The order of business of Convention will not be absolutely determined until Convention meets, but from the best information we can obtain the following outline will probably be followed:

Convention meets in College Hall on Saturday, 25th inst. at 10 o'clock, a. m. After devotional exercises the retiring President, Dr. B. V. Jones, Professor of Classics in Acadia College, will deliver an address. The subject is not announced, but the effort will no doubt be worthy of the learned Professor. The officers will then be elected for the coming year and arrangement of business be made. The Report of Committee on Obituaries will be read by Rev. Mr. Black, of Kentville. This will be followed by the Report of the State of the Denomination by Rev. Mr. Goodspeed, editor of Messenger and Visitor. The afternoon and evening meetings will be given to Reports on Finance and Home Missions. The services on Sabbath will be in College Hall and Baptist church at 11 a. m.; Convention sermon in College Hall by Rev. S. B. Kempton, M. A., of Canada, at 3 o'clock; and service in College Hall and Baptist church at 7 p. m. The sessions of Monday will be devoted to Ministerial Education, Infirm Ministers' Fund, Missions in the Northwest and Foreign Mission. In connection with Home Missions in Northwest, the Rev. J. H. Best, of Brandon, and Rev. A. A. Cameron, of Winnipeg, will speak. On Tuesday the sessions are to be held in the Baptist church, when Education will be the principal topic. The meetings are to open (except on Saturday) at 9 a. m., 2:30 p. m., and 7:30 p. m.; morning session to close at noon, the afternoon at 5:30. The first half hour of the morning and afternoon meetings to be occupied with devotional exercises. Probably, also, a Baptist church prayer meeting will be held from 6:30 a. m. to 7:30 a. m., on Sunday, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

The Maritime Baptist Publishing Company, which publishes the Messenger and Visitor, a paper said to have a larger circulation than any other paper in the Maritime Provinces, will hold its annual meeting in the vestry of the Baptist church on Friday evening at 8 o'clock. The governors of Acadia College will meet in Library of the College on Friday morning. The Women's Missionary Union will meet in the Baptist church on Monday afternoon. The Sunday-school of the church, which meets at 9:30 a. m., will probably be addressed by members of Convention.

With College Hall enlarged, we learn that the committee have been able to provide generous accommodation for visitors while at the same time reserving seats for the delegates, who will be expected to sit together.

It will be seen from our list of delegates that a number of distinguished men are expected to be present. Among them are, Rev. Dr. Hovey, President of Newton Theological Institution, Mass.; Rev. Dr. Burrage, of Portland, Me.; Hon. Geo. E. Foster, President Harrison, of New Brunswick University; Rev. Dr. Stevens, of Rochester Theological Seminary; President Inch, of Mount Allison College; Professor Elder, of Colby University; Professor Schramm, of Cornell University; and others.

The Sawdust Trouble.

The matter of allowing the sawdust and debris from the saw-mills on our rivers to fall into the streams and find lodgment on their bottoms to the injury of the fish which frequent them, has been strongly condemned by those interested in the taking of our river fish for a number of years. The mill-men on the other hand and some few others have strongly maintained that the sawdust was of no injury whatever to the fish and therefore it was with impunity allowed to fall into the various streams. To the casual observer the Gaspereau river appears to be full of sawdust. Its waters are impregnated with it, its bottom covered with it, and its shores lined with it. To the fishermen who have privileges on it, and to the anglers who frequent its shores, the sawdust appears to be an engine of destruction to the finny tribes.

Our fishery officers have hitherto maintained that the sawdust was of no injury to the fish and therefore mill-men were not troubled when they disobeyed the law which prohibited its presence in the waters of our rivers. Upon representation and investigation the Government have seen fit to order that sawdust and mill debris shall no longer be cast into our rivers, at least so far as this Province is concerned, under a penalty of $100. We hope to see this law enforced and the fish again allowed in our rivers.

A Good Suggestion.

To the Editor of the ACADIAN:

DEAR SIR,—If the Governors of the College wish to leave here a really useful souvenir of the jubilee year, I would recommend them in their next session to resolve to have a powerful electric light placed on the top of the cupola of the college building. Such a light would not only illuminate the grounds immediately around the buildings but almost the entire village from Mr. Bigelow's to Mr. Fred Brown's, and I have no doubt the inhabitants would be willing to contribute liberally to its cost, when they realize the boon it would be to them. There is ample room in the basement of the college building and Assembly Hall for necessary apparatus. I trust something will be done to lighten our darkness somewhat during the coming fall and winter. I am, Dear Sir, yours &c., LIGHT.

DOCK BLOOD PURIFIER.

I have been sick with Liver and Kidney Complaint and night sweat, for over two years, most of the time confined to my bed. A doctor attended me who failed to cure me; and after trying many patent medicines that were recommended for the above complaints, which failed also, I was advised to try Doctor Norton's Dock Blood Purifier; three bottles has entirely cured me, and I now enjoy the best health I have for twenty years. MRS. D. MACMURDER, Avondale, Hants County May 2d, 1888

The revised edition of the Jubilee programme is to go to B. G. Bishop's, and see those beautiful American lamps just in. Daily to arrive, beautiful toilet-ware, crates of crockery, glass and earthenware, &c., &c. These goods offered very low.

NOTICE!

I beg to inform the public that I have sold out the stock and goodwill of the business of Augustus Brown to Mr. Walter Brown, who will continue in the old stand. Thanking my late customers for their patronage, I would bespeak for my successor a continuance of their custom. FRED BROWN, Trustee for Estate Aug. Brown.

Kentville Letter.

Received too late for last issue. This is temperance week for Kentville. On Monday evening Rev. E. B. Keefer, of Toronto, delivered a lecture on "The Failure (?) of the Scott Act," to a good-sized audience. Having had much experience in temperance work in Ontario, where he is associated with the Dominion Alliance, he was able to present his case in a very forcible manner. He pronounced the Act a success, having fully realized the hopes and expectations of its promoters. It did not profess to prohibit, but rather aimed at making liquor-selling illegal and therefore criminal. In this it had not failed, and to-day the saloon-keeper and horse-thief can be placed in the same list as law-breakers. It had been a public agitator and educator as the increased public sentiment proves, and it has paved the way for a strictly prohibitory law. If every person could view the Act as Mr. Keefer does, there would be less moral success does not always atone for legal defeat. On Tuesday evening a public meeting was held in Chipman's Hall for the purpose of forming an Historical Society and establishing a museum. Rev. Arthur Wentworth Eaton, who takes a deep interest in antiquarian and historical research, read a valuable paper, and speeches were made by Warden King, Col. Chipman and others. The following officers were elected: President—Walter Bishop Secretary—John Woodworth. Executive Committee—Barclay Webster, R. S. Masters and Mr. Prat. Among those elected as honorary members were—Jas. Leard and Wm. Hamilton, of Horton; Prof. Chas. G. D. Roberts, of King's College; F. Blake Crofton and D. DeWolfe, of Halifax; and Samuel Longfellow, brother of the poet. The Society deserves the hearty support of all those interested in the history of the county and should receive valuable contributions from many in its eastern section, as it is in Grand Pre and vicinity that the largest number of relics will be found. Any person wishing to donate any relics of Acadian life can forward the articles to the President, who will take charge of them until a suitable building is procured for their safe-keeping. The New Star has substituted a water-motor for muscle, which is a great relief to the fellow that formerly had to run the press. Every boy that sees it at once thinks of the wood-pile and begins to plan as to how he can buy a motor. It is indeed a very ingenious piece of machinery and though small exerts a great influence. Sitting on a pin is another forcible illustration of small machines as a moving power.

in various styles of binding, with and without Patent Index.

The Latest Edition has 118,000 Words, and 8000 Engravings,—3000 more Words and nearly 2000 Engravings than found in any other American Dictionary. It also contains a Biographical Dictionary, giving brief facts concerning nearly 10,000 Noted Persons. To these features we have containing over 25,000 Titles, briefly describing the Countries, Cities, Towns, and Natural Features of every part of the World.

WEBSTER IS THE STANDARD Authority with the U. S. Supreme Court and in the U. S. Printing Office, and is recommended by the State Superintendents of Schools in 36 States, and by the leading College Presidents of the United States and Canada.

The London Times says: It is the best Dictionary of the Language.

The Quarterly Review, London, says: It is the best practical Dictionary extant.

The Ontario Educationist says: It is the most perfect work of the kind.

The Toronto Globe, Canada, says: It is placed in the very highest rank.

The New York Tribune says: It is recognized as the most useful existing "word-book" of the English language all over the world.

It is an invaluable companion in every School, and at every Private. Specimens, prices and testimonials sent prepaid on application.

Trifles. A little bit of Patience. Often makes the sunshine come.

The Need of Woman's Work. The whole Christian world now admits that, for work among the heathen, women are absolutely necessary.

Girls should Swim. An accomplishment for young girls that stands just now second only to bread-making may be found in the art of swimming.

Advantages of Farming. In stories, it is apparently only after much tribulation that the country boy discovers that he would have been happier to 'stick to the farm.'

Queen Natalie. The German Emperor, though he is the man most talked about, is not the only monarch travelling about just now.

An Old Timer. A watch with a history is owned by a man in Watertown, N. Y. It is 250 years old, and bears the name of Thomas Linhart, maker, who did business in Fleet street, London, in the year 1655.

The Rum Power. There is somewhat of a parallelism between the history of the rum power and of the slave power.

The Great Strike. Hello! Hello, there! Mr Digestion! What's the matter with you down there?

Ladies' Brass Band. An Old Fellows' excursion at Toronto, had with them a Ladies' Brass Band, and they were a grand success.

ITEMS OF INTEREST. Use Seavey's East India Liniment. 12 The P. E. Island fruit crop is reported excellent. Cherries are said to be especially excellent.

Loss from Insects. The annual loss to productive industries in the United States caused by insects is estimated at $150,000,000. Here is a fair battle between man and another sort of earth occupiers.

The Customs Department has been informed of the seizure of the steam tug Doan's, of Parrboro, N. S., for entering without reporting.

A two year old son of Mr Thomas Dexter, Brooklyn, Queens Co., was drowned in a pool near his home on Wednesday last.

The Canadian government has purchased two 40-pounder guns for the use of the battery at Charlottetown, P. E. I.

A company of mariners from one of the warships in port at Halifax produced the "Pirates of Penzance" one night last week the cost of getting up the play being $800.

The Cunard line of steamers from Halifax to Bermuda and Jamaica is to be re-established by Pickford & Black.

Both passenger and freight traffic on the Intercolonial has increased very largely during the present season.

A curious freak of nature is to be seen at the farm of George Bradshaw, Addington Forks. It is a swallow white as snow.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria. When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria. When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria. When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

While an old man named John Creighan, who lives by himself on the St. Peter's Road, near Charlottetown, was working in his field, not a hundred yards from his dwelling, some sneak thief entered the house, opened the old man's box, and made off with a bag of money, amounting to about ten dollars in all.

One morning recently as a special train was on its way from Moncton to Truro, the driver and fireman discovered a cow moose and a calf feeding alongside the track in the vicinity of Black River grade.

MEMBER C. C. RICHARDS & CO. Gentl. - I have used your MINARD'S LINIMENT in my family for some years and believe it the best medicine in the market as it does all it is recommended to do.

John Mader, Mahone Bay, informs us that he cured a very severe case of rheumatism by using MINARD'S LINIMENT.

One day last week Mr Charles Dill, of Palmouth, when driving from Hantsport home, lost his purse containing $200.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS. - Are you disturbed at night and broken up by your rest by a child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? It so, send at once and get a bottle of "Mrs Winslow's Soothing Syrup" for Children Teething.

Has in stock a very large assortment Stationery, School Books, Bibles, Poems, etc., also a choice lot of Fancy Goods.

Picture & Room Moulding. His stock of ROOM PAPER, comprising the choicest patterns ever shown here, will be complete next week.
