

THE SCOTT ACT.

What the Press Thinks of a Protective Association.

The Men Who Abandon the Fight are the Ones Who Get the Trade "In a Nuss" - Scope of Trouble.

At a meeting of the Dominion brewers' wine and spirit merchants' protective association on Wednesday night in this city it was decided to abandon the Scott act contest so far as they were concerned. The protective association was made up of the best men in the business, brewers, distillers, wholesale dealers in wines and liquors and dealers in the supplies of the trade who all agreed to assist them.

The Dominion association, that is the wholesale men, have withdrawn from this position and have abandoned the fight. The local men will now have to bear the burden. In Simcoe, for instance, they have collected among themselves $6000 or over. How they will fare on this line of action remains to be seen. The report in Halton has settled the case as far as the wholesale men are concerned.

The above appeared in the Toronto World of Friday. On the following day the announcement referred to above of a decision of the Dominion brewers' and wine and spirit merchants' protective association to abandon the Scott act contest, is denied by the association, though the World has the best authority for saying that such a decision was come to at the meeting on Wednesday.

But from all the World reporters could learn it was evident that there was trouble in the camp; that the protective association was not satisfied with the result in Halton nor with the methods on which it had been conducted, and that it would take a lot of "harmonizing" to bring the trade into line. It was also apparent that dissatisfaction existed among some of the agents of the association.

As for the temperance party they were more than jubilant and predicted that they were going to sweep the country. From the Toronto News.

Ever since the defeat of the anti-Scott act party in Halton there has been a weak feeling among the Licensed Victuallers. They feel somehow that the game is up, that there is no use in fighting further, that spending more money is just throwing good money after bad. Consequently they feel weary.

The whole blame of the disaster is laid upon King Doda. They claim, what is evident enough, that Halton should have been left alone, should have been quietly ignored, except as a source from whence to draw arguments against the act. They say that but for Doda that would have been done. He, however, persuaded them against their better judgment, and now they are furious at the overwhelming defeat. They say that the vote in Halton killed all Doda's influence, as well as their business.

Meanwhile King Doda is laid up in bed, a sprained knee being the ostensible cause. On Wednesday night the Dominion Brewers and Wine and Spirit Merchants' association, of which Doda is agent, decided to abandon their share of the struggle against the Scott act, and give no more money towards the contest. They are the wealthiest men and heaviest contributors of all the liquor party, and their support being withdrawn Othello's occupation would seem to be gone, as the local opponents of the act will now have to provide the sinews themselves. The success in Halton was a victory in more ways than one.

Advice to Young Mothers.

We gladly give the following advice to young mothers, that they may act intelligently in the interval which elapses before the doctor comes. We would not, however, have you misled, and think that, with the directions we here give, you can be your own physician. We distinctly warn you against falling into this error.

For "CONVULSIONS" IN A BABY.—The clothes should be at once loosened and entirely removed, and the child put in a bath of warm water for five minutes or more, seeing that the water is kept at about 98°. A little cold water may be applied to the head. After the bath, wrap the child in a warm blanket for a short time. Keep the room very quiet.

In "CROUP."—To a child two years old you may give 20 or 30 drops of Syrup of Ipecac, and repeat it in ten minutes, if the child is not relieved. The warm bath is also useful; and the foot-bath, with mustard. The room should be warm, and the atmosphere may be made moist by keeping a kettle of water boiling on the fire.

Wheeler's Tissue Phosphates, Ed. WE HAVE IN WHEELER'S PHOSPHATES AND CALISAYA a proximate principle, ready-made tissue elements, agents of cell growth, the source in the brain and spinal cord of phosphorus, the motor power of the nervous system, perpetual in their activity, and maintaining that constant impetus on nutrition so essential to the successful treatment of chronic wasting diseases. In consumption, scrofula, and all other manifestations of error in nutrition, its protracted use will demonstrate a much greater percentage of radical improvement than any other form of phosphorus compound in existence, whether in pill, solution, or hypophosphites.

CONTEMPORARY OPINION.

The Sayings of the Brethren—Wise and Otherwise—Pinned on Record.

BECOMING OF INTEREST. The price of coal is beginning to be a matter of interest again, now that the cold weather is approaching. It is predicted that the price will shortly be advanced. The coal consumed in Ontario comes from the United States. The duty imposed on it by the Dominion Government was imposed with the view of keeping it out, and thus forcing the consumption of Nova Scotia coal. But this object has not been secured, as Nova Scotia is too far away to permit of coal being sent this distance. The duty on coal is paid by the Canadian consumer. The Government should remove it, and thus leave a few dollars a year in the pocket of every family that uses a coal stove. [Ingersoll Chronicle.]

HE IS AN HONEST MAN. Mr. Mowat's party politics are a matter of no concern to the Presbyterian; but Mr. Mowat as a man, as a statesman, as a distinguished jurist, as Premier of Ontario, may well be put before the young men of Canada as an example of what industry, perseverance, integrity, frankness and a clean character all round can raise a man to. He is not by any means the only example in this country, for we have many such in both parties, but he is one of the best. Mr. Mowat is not what the world usually calls a brilliant man. He is scarcely a first-class speaker or a first-class debater. He is not a man of letters, without wealth—in fact, without anything at the start but industry, integrity, a naturally kind disposition and a fair knowledge of his profession. What he is he made himself, and made himself by those very qualities that are not considered of as much value now as they were once. This is the lesson we wish to enforce on the young men of Canada—integrity, industry, perseverance, plodding, honor, combined with a good manner and a kind heart are the qualities that tell in the end. Mr. Mowat, we have said, is not an exceptionally good speaker, but yet if he rose in any part of the Dominion today before any kind of audience, he would be well received and get a respectful hearing. Why? Because the people believe he is an honest man. His auditors might differ from his opinions, as they would have a perfect right to do, but they would respect the man, and make him what he is.—[Canada Presbyterian.]

Clinton. (Left over from last week.) The Literary and Scientific society met at the house of A. Armstrong last Tuesday evening, to give an oration in honor of W. J. Norton, one of the esteemed members of the society, previous to his departure from their midst to enter upon a higher sphere of duty. The best harmony and good humor prevailed, and the guest received high eulogiums upon his character and ability. After ample justice was done the vices, the Ladies, H. Foster, and J. C. Stevenson acting as vice, J. Scott 2d vice, the following toasts were drank: The loyal toast—"Our Queen," by the members of the society. Our Governor General, the members. Our Dominion, W. B. Manning. Our British Empire, E. Holmes. Progress, D. C. Corr. Music, J. M. Campbell. Education, Geo. Sharman. Trade and Commerce, W. D. Fair. Reminiscences of Travel, J. Taylor. The Learned Profession, J. Scott. Our Society, H. Foster. The Ladies, H. McLean. Our Guest, J. C. Stevenson and A. Armstrong. Clinton, R. Woods. Municipal Inst., A. McKenzie. Scientific Progress, D. At the close a hearty vote of thanks were tendered "Miss Hot and Hotness" the ladies who assisted in making the affair such a success.

BLAINE'S LIBEL SUIT.

Some Very Sensitive Questions Answered by the Presidential Aspirant.

Indianapolis, Sept. 20.—On Sept. 5 the Sentinel of this city filed twenty-two interrogatories addressed to James G. Blaine. This was the first step taken by the defence in the action for libel brought against the paper by Mr. Blaine. The ground for the suit was that the Sentinel published a story to the effect that Blaine had seduced his wife before marrying her. His answer is, in effect, that he married one Harriet Stanwood, a school teacher of Kentucky. They were married secretly in Millerburg, Ky., on June 30, 1850. Having subsequent doubts of the ceremony's validity under the laws of Kentucky, he was married again on March 27, 1851. His first child was born on June 18, 1851, and died July 31, 1854. An inscription to that effect was placed over the child's tombstone. Blaine says he has reason to believe that the tombstone has since been defaced, and that a photograph of the tomb was sent to the Sentinel and other papers. The figure on the date of the child's birth, 1851, has been entirely obliterated. Blaine further denies that he specially authorized the author of his life to state that he was married in March 1851, although the author may have gathered that information from him in general conversation.

A most worthy incident happened at one of Mr. Moody's Bible lessons. Mr. Moody on this occasion gave the first of a series of addresses on "Grace." The burden of this address was to show that salvation is the free gift of God through faith in the Lord Jesus Christ, and it is not to be attained by any human merit or good deeds.

THE BEAMISH TRIAL.

A Heavy Sentence Dealt the Prisoners.

Two Terms of Twenty Years and one of Five.

The trial of the Beamishes for the killing of Wm. Mains lasted four days, and attracted much attention. The case was too lengthy to report in full.

THE STORY BY THE PROSECUTION.

The first witness, John Mains, son of the deceased, swore to the following fact: Early on the morning of May 26th Wm. Mains, the deceased, and his two sons, George and John, were walking down the Guderich road to Blyth, where John wished to take the early train to his home in Tuckersmith. On their way they met three of the Beamish family, James Beamish, the father, and Henry James and Thomas Manasseh, his two sons. The sons had been quarrelling openly for a couple of days previously, and the fathers stopped when they drew near each other and Mr. Beamish asked what the row had been about, and made overtures of peace. While they talked, according to the evidence of John Mains given this afternoon, Henry James Beamish, who, with his brother, had been standing some little distance off, came up, threw off his coat with an oath, and struck old Mr. Mains in the face, then clinched with him and threw him to the ground. The Mains boys mildly expostulated, but did not attempt to violently interfere, thinking their father was capable of attending to himself. Finally, however, Thomas Manasseh Beamish and George Mains got squabbling some little distance off, during the dual fight, Wm. Beamish, a younger son, came up to the place, carrying a couple of clubs. One of these he gave to his father, who was standing by his son and old Mr. Mains. John Mains had gone to aid his brother, but when about half way there he saw his father grasping Mr. Beamish and returned to his side. Old Mr. Beamish was standing over the prostrate form with a heavy club in his hand and warned John Mains to stay away or he would dash his brains out. The other two stopped their squabble and undivided interest was given to the original conflict. The two Mains boys endeavored to help their father, but the Beamishes prevented them, and all three of the Beamishes set upon old Mr. Mains, Henry James Beamish still keeping him down and doing the principal part of the slugging. When Mr. Mains was finally kicked and bruised and in an almost insensible condition, and he died at ten o'clock that night, though two doctors were in constant attendance.

THE POST MORTEM.

After death a post-mortem examination revealed the fact that he had died of congestion of the brain, caused by a ruptured artery. The crown claims that the artery was ruptured during the fight; that the Beamishes knew that the three Mains would pass that way that morning; that the clubs brought to the place by the younger son were made expressly for the purpose of injuring the Mains, and that the Beamishes had made frequent threats to kill old Mr. Mains a day or two previous. The Beamishes were arraigned and pleaded not guilty to the charge. They were defended by B. B. Oser, Q.C., of Toronto, and Mr. Garrow, of Goderich, Mr. Lount, Q.C., of Barrie, conducted the case for the crown. Mr. Oser submitted the first witness to a long and tedious cross-examination this afternoon, but failed to break down his evidence in any important particular. It was late when his examination was concluded, and the court immediately adjourned. During the trial the three prisoners were very much agitated. Old Mr. Beamish in particular being unable to control his face or his feelings, and watched the proceedings with the closest interest.

THE JURY WERE LOCKED UP FOR THE NIGHT.

SECOND DAY OF THE TRIAL.

The trial was resumed on Friday morning and occupied the whole of the day. The evidence today was principally in corroboration of that given by the witness, John Mains, an account of which was given in yesterday's report. The evidence shows that the unfortunate occurrence was the result of a family quarrel, and that the fight between the prisoner, Henry James, and the deceased was the result of a challenge on the part of the deceased which was taken up by the prisoner. The evidence shows that the deceased was a man of violent temper. The evidence by some of the witnesses, given on the part of the crown, was somewhat weakened by cross-examination, which elicited the fact that they entertain a feeling of hostility towards the prisoners, and left it open to the defence to urge that they had given a one-sided account of the quarrel. This view was strengthened by the fact that in a great many instances the witnesses gave much stronger evidence against the prisoners in the present trial than they did before the coroner's jury.

AGAIN THE JURORS WERE LOCKED UP FOR THE NIGHT.

THIRD DAY.

The case was resumed at the Assize court on Saturday morning and occupied the whole day. The defence endeavored to establish that the deceased came to his death by apoplexy. Dr. Holmes was examined, and was of the opinion that it was probable that death was so caused.

THE STORY BY THE DEFENCE.

Willie Beamish, a young son of the oldest prisoner, was called for the defence, and gave his version of what took place at the time of the quarrel. From the evidence given it would appear that the fight was to have taken place between the two sons of Beamish and two sons of Mr. Mains, the deceased. That on the morning of May 26th, when the Mains were at the place appointed for the fight, old Mr. Beamish, the prisoner, went down to see if the quarrel could not be peaceably settled. That he was sitting on the side of the road talking to Mr. Mains, who was also sitting down, when Henry James and Thomas Beamish arrived. It might be stated here that Thomas Beamish had to pass that way on his way to work. It is claimed on the part of the defence that Henry James went with his brother as far as the corner as he was afraid the Mains would give trouble. The witness Willie Beamish stated that as soon as Henry James and Thomas got to where the Mains were, Mr. Mains got up and went to his son John and urged him to attack the Beamish boys. That Mains' two boys did not appear willing to commence the fight, whereupon Mains swore that if his two boys could not whip the two Beamish boys he would drown them. Willie Beamish states that Mains then turned and rushed at Henry James. That they clenched and had a tussle, after which the other got into what might be styled a free fight. He also states that his father did not strike Mains with a stick, nor did Henry James. Mr. Oser made an eloquent appeal to the jury on behalf of the prisoners, and was followed by Mr. Lount on behalf of the Crown. His address was lengthy, going over the evidence in detail. At 6.30 the court adjourned until Monday morning.

A REVIEW OF THE CASE.

Sifting the evidence of the case, the actual facts appear to be as follows:—A quarrel occurred on Sunday, the 25th of May, between Wm. Mains, the deceased, and the prisoner, Thomas Manasseh Beamish; Thomas got rather the worst of it on that occasion and went home and informed his brother Henry of what had happened. Henry and Thomas went down the road to nearly opposite Mains' house, whereupon Mr. Mains rushed out of the house with a stick in his hand. He was followed by his son George, who also had a stick. Mr. Mains challenged Henry James Beamish to fight. Henry replied that he would not make a blackguard out of himself by fighting on Sunday. Mains then proposed that they should meet the next morning and fight it out at 7 o'clock. George Mains suggested that they should meet at 6.30 in the morning. Mr. Mains said, "All right; if my two boys can't whip you I'll do it myself." This it appears the fight was to have taken place between the boys instead of with Mr. Mains. On the following morning the Mains were on hand at the appointed place. Mr. Beamish, the father, went to them and asked Mr. Mains if the quarrel could not be settled. Mr. Mains replied it could, and they both set off by the roadside to talk it over. At this point Henry James and Thomas Manasseh Beamish came down the road, and it is here the conflict of evidence arises. The Mains boys say that Henry James, without their knowledge, rushed at Mr. Mains and struck him a violent blow with his fist, and that in this way the fight started. Willie Beamish, a younger son of the Beamishes, says that when Henry James came to where they were all upon the road, Mr. Mains urged his son John to attack Henry; that his son did not seem disposed to commence the affray, whereupon Mr. Mains became enraged at his son's apparent unwillingness to fight, and himself rushed at Henry, and that in this way the fight began.

CONVICTED AND SENTENCED.

The trial of the Beamishes was resumed on Monday morning.
His lordship addressed the jury for 1 hour and 45 minutes in the Beamish case. The charge was against the prisoners from beginning to end. His lordship never once alluded to an extenuating feature in the case of the prisoners, neither did he impress upon the jurors to give the prisoners the benefit of any doubt that might be in their minds from conflicting testimony of witnesses. The judges' charge was the most prejudicial to the prisoners that we ever listened to.
After the jury had retired Mr. Garrow, for the prisoners, drew the attention of the learned judge to acts of omission prejudicial to the cause of the prisoners during the charge of the jury.
The jury retired, and at the end of an hour brought in a verdict of "guilty of manslaughter against Henry James Beamish, James Beamish and Thomas Manasseh Beamish," recommending the last named to the mercy of the court.
His lordship then proceeded to pass sentence as follows: Henry James Beamish and James Beamish to 20 years in
