THE ALBION HOTEL.

The business and good-will of the well-known Albion hotel has been purchased by Mr. Jonathan Miller, formerly of Benmiller. We understand improvements are in contemplation, under the new management, that will place the Albion in a position second to none in the West. Special arrangements are being made for the occasion, and special arrangements will be made for the accommodation of excursionists. One of the attractions of the day will be a sculling match between Wm. O'Connor, the champion oarsman of America, and Leo, the celebrated oarsman of New York City. A prize of $250 will be awarded the winner. This promises to be the most interesting event of the season and should be patronized by all.

THE WESTERN FAIR.

The Western Fair which opens at London today, and will continue until Friday, Sept. 23, gives promise of being one of the most successful yet held there. The exhibit of horses will be a grand one. Stabling accommodation for five hundred has been provided and is nearly all taken up; it is expected that when all entries are made every accommodation will have to be provided. The entries for cattle, sheep, and hogs are pouring in rapidly and the best herds and flocks in the country are expected. There will be one of the grandest displays of agricultural machinery ever seen at any fair on exhibition. The carriage building is already filled. The dairy hall has been given up for the collection display sent by the Manitoba Horticultural, and the Great Indian Exhibition. The hall will be so crowded that an extra annex will have to be provided. Agricultural hall will be crowded to its utmost capacity as room will have to be made for all dairy exhibits. The main building will be well filled with the displays of manufactures, as well as Natural History and Fine Arts, and will be a great source of attraction this year. The special attractions will be stronger, better and more attractive than any previous fair. The fireworks display will be grandly magnificent, and will cost nearly three times those given at any previous Exhibition.

"A JOYNEY TO EXETER"

A female enters and performs the part. The mighty golden strands the barbers' art. And three gold rings her skillful hands best. Smooth or our chin her easy fingers move. Soft as when Venus struck the beard of Jove.

WHAT THE "ROUND TOWERS" ARE MADE OF.

Our genial fellow countryman, Mr. B. McCormac, is an ardent fisherman, and the way he lifts big bass and other fish is the envy of his neighbors. The other evening he was telling of some of his catches, and a mutual friend advised him to publish the plans and specifications in THE SIGNAL, or, better still, leave a sample copy on the editor's table. Mac. did as he was told to publicity, but would think the matter over. On Tuesday THE SIGNAL was presented by the disciple of Isaac Walton with a geological formation in the shape of a series of small stones cemented together with clay which by the constant washing of the river against it had become petrified. He gave an elaborate dissertation to prove that the combination, which is in the shape of a large bunch of grapes, was joined together on the same principle that the "Round Towers" of Ireland were built. The manner in which he handled the question would have delighted the heart of anyone who wasn't hungrier after bass. But he was asked for bass, and he gave a stone.

A FRAUD.

The Seaford Expositor says: During the last spring a man, with a very Scotch name and equally Scotch accent was passing through among the farmers in the southern part of Tuckersmith, soliciting alms. The story he told was, that he was suffering from a cancer in the leg, that he was unable to work, and having no home nor friends he was soliciting funds to send him to the hospital that he might have an operation performed. He told a very pitiful tale, and the kind-hearted people with whom he met treated him most hospitably and gave him liberally, some going as high as a dollar. Constable Dunlop, of this town, happened to be in that part of the country at the time, saw the fellow several times as he was on his rounds, and gave him his name and address. Some time afterwards Mr. Dunlop was in Stratford and saw Mr. Invalid passing along the street. He seemed to have recovered from his lameness, and appeared to be in the best of health. Mr. Dunlop recognized him at once, and on making enquiries who he was, he was told his name, and that he keeps an eating saloon near the station in Stratford, does a good business, and has a large family, several of whom are grown up and doing for themselves. Mr. Dunlop visited the place and saw for himself. On making further enquiries among the neighbors he learned that the man is in the habit of being home for several weeks at a time, and when he returns he is always well supplied with funds, but what he did when away, they could not find out. Perhaps if this paragraph meets the eye of some of them it will give them an idea. He came up on the train with Mr. Dunlop and took a ticket for Clinton Falls. No doubt, he intended pursuing his vocation. He, of course, travels under an assumed name, and he will have a different story for each locality he visits. Some of those in Tuckersmith who befriended him will, no doubt, recollect his rick, and will remember the circumstances. We have the fellow's real name, but we withhold it for the present. He should be prosecuted and punished, as a more bare-faced, wicked fraud we have seldom heard of.

A HURON EDITOR IN TROUBLE.

The Toronto World, of Saturday, has the following concerning one of the latest additions to Huron's corps of editors:—Before Judge MacMahon, sitting in session yesterday, Mr. A. B. Aylesworth moved to annul A. H. Newton Jenkins, editor of the Brussels Budget, for contempt of court. The application is made at the instance of Mr. Grant, the postmaster at Brussels, who has brought an action for libel against the defendant, claiming $10,000. The defendant in his newspaper charged the plaintiff with several grave offences in his official capacity, and private character, and continued in each issue of his paper to comment upon the matter after it was a judice. An appeal was made to Judge Ross for an interim injunction to restrain the defendant from publishing comments on the case before the trial, which was granted. In defiance of the order of the court, Jenkins continued to abuse the postmaster in the columns of his paper, and the plaintiff accordingly applied to the court to punish the defendant for refusing to obey Judge Ross's injunction. The court held that the defendant was in contempt, and ordered him to pay the costs of the proceedings, and to publish an apology in the columns of his paper, and to pay the plaintiff accordingly applied to the court to punish the defendant for refusing to obey Judge Ross's injunction. The Whispering Tempter.

CHAPTER I.

"No. Every time I build up a hope you tear it down better to hope, though the hope may be in vain, than not to hope at all." "It is never better to be deceived, John." "Try me today. I swear by all that is sacred, by the love I bear you—"

CHAPTER II.

The next morning just before starting down town, I kissed Maud tenderly. She did not enclose my caresses, but she allowed her head to rest on my shoulder. "Oh, I won't drink anything today." "That's what you said yesterday."

does the gilded butterfly light upon the withered flower I don't know. "When a friend asked me to take a drink; I said 'no.' I didn't say 'I believe not.' I said 'no.' Sometimes the 'hooded' tempter would whisper in my ear, but when I turned upon him, he would apologize and retire. The sounder! The world is full of news, but there was no news of Maud. She must have heard of my book, and knowing that such a book could have only been written by a sober man, why did she not come back to me? I wondered aimlessly; I scolded without purpose. I took no delight in the attentions which literary people paid me. How could fair society smile upon such a wretch? A magazine said that I had once been a drunkard, and in encouragement to other men, held me up as an example. One day in a section of country which I had never before visited, I strolled in an almost pathless forest. I suddenly came upon a little log school house. I would have passed on but a voice held me.

"Children," said the voice, "I am glad that you love me, but I must go. My husband who has become a noble man. We have long known each other and the separation will be painful, but I must go. I told you of the author of the book which I read to you. That man is my husband—Henry's father. He does not know that Henry and I pray for him—"

A Helping Hand is most appreciated where it is most needed, and thus it is that Burdock Blood Bitters gains more favor yearly by leading the weakened system valuable assistance in removing all impurities and building up a strong, healthy body.

Putting the Baby to Bed. Last spring I spent a night with a friend. There were two children in the family—the youngest a bright, restless boy, four years old, who might stand for a 'bundle of nerves.' A lady and gentleman with their two children were visitors at the house, and after supper Mrs. Brown, a neighbor, left her little boy and girl in my friend's care while she went to make a call in the village. The evening wore on, and the children played hard, and little Frank's eyes opened wider and wider with the intoxication of the unusual excitement. After his bedtime was long past, his mother came to the room where her husband slept, and she said, "What's that noise I hear? I told Frank he could sit up until Mr. Brown came after her children, supposing she would be gone only a few minutes. How shall I break my promise to him, or risk his being cross and ill by all this excitement?"

"Where is Frank?" I wanted to know. "The child immediately left his play in the dining-room and ran to his father, who lifted him in his arms and held him from him for a moment, then, clasping him lovingly, asked in that jovial way of comradeship no child could resist:—'Where is your father?'"

One of the reasons why Scott's Emulsion has such a wide sale is, because it is the best. Dr. W. H. Cumpston, B. H. N. S., says: "I have prescribed Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, with Hypophosphites, for the past two years, and found it more agreeable to the stomach and have better results from its use than any other preparation of the kind I have ever used." Sold by all druggists, 50c. and $1.

"I Want to Vote for Pa."

"Good morning, my little man; and whom will you vote for today?" So said a neighbor to little Jimmie Lambert, a brave five year old. It was village election day, and the neighbor was on his way to the polls. Jimmie straightened himself up, and was puzzled but for a moment; a bright thought struck him. "I'm going to vote for my pa," he said, as if there could be no doubt about the propriety of that.

"I want to vote for Pa." "I'm going to vote for pa," he said, by way of apology. "I wish you would vote for him," retorted Mrs. Lambert, as she went into the pantry, after some flour, "that he wouldn't have any saloons to go to." This was taken at once by Jimmie, as his mother's permission to do the voting forthwith, and slipping out of the door he was soon on his way to the hall, carefully leading Mamie by the hand.

A Wallry Sense Ep calls vividly to mind the appalling specter of death, and yet no thought is taken of the thousands annually dying through disease caused by wrong action of the stomach, liver, kidneys or bowels, and which might be remedied by the use of B. B. B., nature's great restorative tonic and blood purifier.

Tea-Table Chat. Pearl and silver whistles for calling one's dog, if you have such a nuisance, are for sale. Undressed kid gloves embroidered on the back have taken the most eccentric turn of late.

Fashionable extravagance has a fine field in the matter of the beaded wraps of this season. A 16 year-old girl's hat on a woman of even 40 is one of the saddest sights of the season. Some new conceits in correspondence cards and fashionable stationary are already exhibited.

The best regulators for the stomach and bowels, the best cures for biliousness, sick headache, indigestion, and all affections arising from a disordered liver, are without exception Johnson's Tonic Liver Pills. THE HURON SIGNAL. Disordered liver is misery. Indigestion is a foe to good nature. The human digestive apparatus is one of the most complicated and wonderful things in existence. It is easily put out of order. Greasy food, tough food, sloppy food, bad cooking, mental worry, late hours, irregular habits, and many other things which ought not to be, have made the American people a nation of dyspeptics. But Green's August Flower has done a wonderful work in reforming this sad people so healthy that they can enjoy their meals and be happy.

ABOUT FALL SHOWS.

The Industrial Fair, which is just about closing at Toronto, has proved to be a gigantic success.

The success of the Industrial has been due, in a great measure, to the fact that the management has stepped out of the beaten track of old-time shows.

Another crank has been doing the Niagara Falls act. His name is Percy, and he undertook to go through the rapids in a specially adapted boat.

The Hamilton Spectator fails to explain why, under the benign influence of the N. P., and with exceptional railway advantages, the city of Stratford which some years since had 10,000 of a population, is shown by the last assessment to have only 9,796.

The day of the old-time branch agricultural show is about over. Time was when the beds and lasses, and the farmers and farmers' wives, and the hired girl and the hired man would quit work for an afternoon, at this time of the year, and drive to the nearest village, where a township show was held.

DEATH OF MOSES.

LESSON XIII, THIRD QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, SEPT. 23.

Text of the Lesson, Deut. xxiv, 1-13. Consult Verses 5-7—Golden Text, Prov. ix, 18—Commentary by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

Condensed from Lesson Helper Quarterly, by permission of H. S. Hoffman, Philadelphia, publisher.

"And Moses went up." Many a time had Moses gone up on a mountain to meet and talk with God, but never before had he gone up not to return. There is something so mysterious about the going out of a person from the tabernacle in which one has sojournd on earth, either for few or many years, that though one may have witnessed many such events it is ever a most solemn sight. When the one called upon to depart can cheerfully say, "Even so, Father, I am ready, and quickly arrange all earthly matters, then joyfully await the call, it is indeed a glorious sight. Blessed be God that He has taught us in His word, and by the lives of many of His saints that it is possible, and our privilege, so to walk with Him here that we may lose all fear of death and daily rejoice in the prospect of being absent from the body and present with the Lord whenever He shall see that our work here is finished. Moses had long ago forsaken all the pleasures and vanities of this world, choosing rather to suffer affliction with the people of God than to enjoy the pleasures of sin for a season; esteeming the reproach of Christ greater riches than the treasures in Egypt; and for at least eighty years he had endured, as seeing Him who is invisible (Heb. xi, 24-27). But now his work in a mortal body was finished; it was the eleventh month of the fortieth year since they left Egypt (Deut. i, 3), and he had released to them all the way by which they had been led, and all the commandments of the Lord; he had given them another song, and had blessed the tribes (Deut. xxxii, xxxiii), both song and blessing reaching to the time of their, to us, still future glory; he had appointed his successor, and laid his hands upon him, and given him a charge in the sight of all the congregation (Num. xxvii, 12-23), and now he is to be gathered into his people.

1-3. "And the Lord showed him all the land." He is now alone with God, the people all left behind, his earthly work laid down; but before he departs from earth he is permitted to see that good land which, on account of sin, he was not permitted to enter. He had besought the Lord to let him go over and see the land, but the answer was, "Let it suffice thee; speak no more unto me of this matter; thou shalt behold it with thine eyes, but thou shalt not go over it." (Deut. i, 23-27). When Paul besought the Lord for the removal of the thorn in the flesh, the Lord's answer was, "My grace is sufficient for thee." In this case, the removal of the thorn and the continuance of the infirmity was left to him; he should be exalted above measure, in the case of Moses, his request was denied, because his sin (Deut. xxxii, 19), which, although forgiven, still left a present unpleasant result. Fourteen hundred years later Moses did stand in that good land, when with Elijah he talked with Jehovah. His decease about to be accomplished.

4. "This is the land which I swore unto Abraham." The promise had been made nearly 500 years before (Gen. xii, 7), yet he had not received no inheritance in it; no, not so much as to set his foot on (Acts vii, 5). His seed, which has grown from one to millions, is now about to take possession of it, but they did not possess it fully, nor use it well when they got it, and now for more than 1,800 years they have been out of it, and yet it is their land, and God will make good to Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, personally, his personal promise to them. God lives, the persons live to whom the promise was made, Jesus lives who died and rose again, all the promises of God in him are yea and in Him amen; one day is with the Lord as a thousand years, and a thousand years as one day; he is patient, he is steadfast, he is fully persuaded, and rejoices in hope of the glory of God; the resurrection will make all plain, see that you take part in the first one.

5. "So Moses, the servant of the Lord, died." Although before the deluge people lived seven, eight and nine hundred years, yet in due time they died. "It is appointed unto men once to die" (Heb. ix, 27), and yet there is a common saying to this effect—'one thing is sure, we must all die'—which is not correct, for the Spirit says through Paul in I Cor. xv, 51, 52 that we shall not all sleep (or die), but in the twinkling of an eye be changed at the sounding of the trumpet. So says the Spirit also in I Thes. iv, 16-18. All true believers who are alive when Christ returns shall for His sake be excused from keeping their appointment, and being instantly changed, shall be caught up to meet Christ in the air. 6. "And he buried him." Most unique death and burial ever accorded to mortal; God and angels welcome him to the spirit world and the Lord buries his body. When we bury the bodies of our loved ones, though we lay away the form we have looked upon, our friends with form and features just as real have passed beyond our reach; and from the dust of the corruptible body shall come at the resurrection an immortal, incorruptible body with the same form and features, glorified, in which the spirit shall again take up its residence, be rewarded for service done in the mortal body, be at the marriage of the Lamb, and then with Christ reign over the earth. How long the body of Moses remained buried we are not told; but that he had the risen body on the Mount of Transfiguration seems evident from Jude ix, for not only does the devil hate to give up a soul to Christ, but he also hates to have to give up the body of a saint from the grave. And in the Man Child of Rev. xii, 5, includes the risen saints of Israel, we can understand something of the cause of the war in heaven there referred to between the same two parties.

8. "The children of Israel wept for Moses thirty days." If departed friends have gained by their departure we cannot mourn for them. "If you loved me—said Jesus on the night of his betrayal—ye would have rejoiced because I go unto the Father" (John xiv, 28). If we believe that our loved ones are with Christ in paradise we cannot but be glad for them. We sorrow because of our loss and because of this enemy death, which because of sin continues its fearful work with the bodies of men. But let us look up, for death itself shall be destroyed.

9. "Joshua was full of the spirit of wisdom." Joseph is spoken of as one in whom was the Spirit of God (Gen. xl, 28); when seventy were appointed to assist Moses, God took of the Spirit that was upon him and poured it upon them (Num. xi, 17); Bezaleel was filled with the Spirit to execute the work for the tabernacle (Ex. xxxi, 3); all the prophets spoke by the Spirit; the Spirit spoke and wrought all that Jesus Himself said and did; the apostles had to wait at Jerusalem until they received the baptism of the Spirit; and unless we today are filled with the same Spirit of God we shall be barren and unfruitful in His service.

ON LIFE'S THRESHOLD.

Tough Steak Was to Him a Familiar Thing.

A child may often be expected to put his or her headless little foot in it, as the phrase goes. For instance, a youngster one day begged an invitation to dinner at the house of a little friend with whom he had been playing. As the table his business anxiously inquired: "Charley, can you cut your own meat?" "Humph!" said the youngster, who was sawing away; "can't I? I've cut up quite as tough meat as this at home."—Home Journal.

Was Taking No Chances. A levy of very small boys were "playing catch" up on Mather street yesterday. In an evil moment a little lad on the curbstone, who was watching the sport, picked up the ball as it rolled toward him and threw it back to the nearest player. He missed it and it landed on his nose. "What do you think, Jimmy," he yelled at one of the other players. "Dis'kid hit me on de nose wid de ball?" "We don't 'y' smash 'im!" was Jimmy's unkind suggestion. "Naw!" "Naw!" "Den I will," and the youngster fell upon the disinterested outsider and smote him hip and thigh.—Chicago Herald.

He Couldn't Do It. Young Tommy is a very talkative boy. The other day his uncle promised him ten cents if he would go an hour without speaking a word. Tommy wanted the dime very badly and set out bravely to keep perfectly still from 5 o'clock until 6 o'clock. He watched the clock very uneasily and eagerly, however. By and by the hands pointed to half past 5. Tommy looked up and exclaimed at the top of his voice: "Well, half the time's gone, any way."—Philadelphia Times.

Complete Reformation. Shocked Mother—Oh, you had boy! I've just heard you were fighting today with that boy next door. Don't you ever quarrel with him again. Small Son—I ain't likely to. His kin lick me.—Philadelphia Record.

A High Official. "Little boy," said an old lady, "why are you not playing ball with the other little boys?" "Cos I de manager of de club," was the haughty explanation.—New York Sun.

An Effective Fence for Children. A little high street girl, whose father's orchard was recently devastated by thieving small boys, indignantly declared the next morning: "I guess we'll have to get a rubarb fence."—St. Albans Messenger.

An Unreasonable Child. "Oh! auntie," cried little Amy in the nursery yesterday, "make Freddy behave himself; very times I happen to hit him on the head with the mallet he bursts out crying."—New York World.

A Truth Teller. Mother (writing)—Bobby, how many times did I tell you to stop that noise? Bobby (reflectively)—Seven.—Time.

His First Trip. Private Secretary (to railroad official)—An old gentleman is outside, sir, who says that he has seen a railroad today for the first time in his life. Railroad Official—Show him in. (To old gentleman)—Sit down, sir. I am told that you never saw a railroad before. What do you think of it? Old Gentleman—It's the darndest sight I ever see. I've heard of 'em often, of course, but I never seen one before, and, as I'm going down to Shacketon to visit my darter, I thought I'd ask you to gimme a pass.—New York Sun.

Where the Trouble Lies. Mr. Wiggins (reading)—At the recent national congress in India all the speeches and proceedings were in English. There were gathered at Madras 700 delegates from all parts of India, Afghanistan, Nepal and Sincide. They spoke nine different languages, and the English was the only medium through which the proceedings could be satisfactorily conducted. Isn't that remarkable? Mrs. Wiggins—Why, no. It's easy enough to talk English. It's the other languages that bother a body.—Philadelphia Record.

Not Fattening. Mr. A.—After Browning, which of the English poets do you most admire? Miss B. (of Boston, thoughtfully)—The Lake school and Scott; but for enduring mental food, which gently nourishes, but does not excite, I prefer Crabbe's Tales. Mr. P. (from Chicago, who has heard the last dozen words)—Gosh! what a diet! No wonder she's thin.—Life.

Fire Versus Letters. Postman (at the front door)—Madam, there is certainly a fire in your cellar. Smoke is pouring through the grating. Madam (frightened)—Oh, dear. Fire! Fire! Oh, what shall I do? Have you any letters for me?—Texas Sittings.

He Caught on. Mr. Winks—May I have the honor of your company to the Wagner concert? Miss B. (certainly). I do not go. When is it? Mr. Winks—Voussay.—Philadelphia Record.

An Exasperated Patient. Doctor (to patient)—Have you any objection to my calling in a consulting physician? Patient—Call in as many as you please; you need to complete the assassination.—Texas Sittings.

Derrier Resort. Political Editor—I see our opponent has advanced an unanswerable argument in his last article. What shall I do about it? Experienced Editor—Call it sophistry.—Chicago Tribune.

Mistaken Identity.

There's a certain well known reporter whose writing is so bad that even his best friends do not attempt to read it. One afternoon he dropped several sheets of a well known newspaper of the surrogate's office and they were afterwards picked up by one of the attaches of the office, a violinist. He took them home and played from them, but was surprised when Sidney told him they were news notes and not violin notes. He could not be convinced, however, that they were not intended for music.—Buffalo News.

A Reasonable Time.

"You must give me time, George, to think it over. It is all so strange, so unexpected." "I will give you a year's time if you wish it. My love for you is great enough to bear that strain." "Oh, I don't want a year—give me five minutes."—Life.

The Watchword Was Distorted. The colored brother has a wonderful capacity for adapting a word to his senses. "During war," said a well known veteran, "we often had trouble in getting up a list of counteragents. I had the matter in charge, and took a list of European battles. It was a colored regiment. The counteragent for the night was 'Austerlitz.' In the evening I tried to get into the lines and was halted. I gave the counteragent, 'Austerlitz.' "Dat ain't right, sah," said the dandy, and he called the provost, who was also colored. When that officer came, I complained that the sentry didn't know the counteragent. "What is it, sah," asked the provost of me. "Austerlitz," I answered. "You are wrong, sah," said he. I was put under arrest, and it took the colonel to get me out. What do you suppose the dandy had made out of the original counteragent? 'Oyster shells.'—Washington Post.

She Was "Strictly Business." Philadelphia Aunt (secretly)—As I glanced into the parlor last evening I saw you with a young man arm around you. Chicago Niece (calmly)—Yes, auntie, I was waiting for you to pass the door and see us. Young man is very slippery nowadays, and one can't have too many witsnesses.—Philadelphia Record.

Introduced Glegly. Jones—Hello, Smith. Congratulations. I hear that you are engaged. But between friends, old fellow, I don't exactly see how you picked up courage to do it. Smith—Well, you see, we got to talking politics, trusts, rings, etc., and drifted right to the matter before we knew it.—Burlington Free Press.

Easily Managed. Mrs. Urban—Oh, I do wish I could be somebody. How I would like to be the observed of all observers, the cynosure of all eyes. Mr. Urban—Do you think you would enjoy being talked about?—As I'm going down to Shacketon to visit my darter, I thought I'd ask you to gimme a pass.—New York Sun.

Can't Be Duplicated. Mr. Hadj Hassan Kauli Khan Mohamed El Vesari, Persian knight to this country, started for the United States early in July, and has not been heard of since. It is a great pity about his name. That may be lost too, and we don't suppose there is another like it in the country.—Norristown Herald.

His Life Work. Farmer (to new hired man)—Seems to me you spend a good share of your time sitting on the fence. Hired Man—Yes; I have done something in the literary line, and am collecting material for a book to be entitled "Life on the Rail."—Burlington Free Press.

Warm Weather Enjoyment. "Where do you dine now, Brown, that your family is away?" "At home, the cook is there." "Doesn't you find it rather unpleasant without Mrs. Brown?" "Not a bit; I dine in my shirt sleeves."—The Epoch.

Doesn't Always Work. A St. Louis lady urges, in the columns of an esteemed contemporary, the use of water-matting for improving the complexion. Judging from the liberal commendation of that kind of juice by our African citizens, its effect on the complexion is not apparent.—Pittsburg Bulletin.

Easy. An electric girl in Iowa can hold a 300 pound man in a chair with all ease. Almost any pretty girl can hold a man of any size in a chair, or even on a piano stool, whether she is electric or not, and she needn't even so much as put her hands on him.—Portland Oregonian.

Sign of No Nerves. A foreign correspondent says that the Chinese have no nerves. A Chinaman, therefore, can write in a room where a small boy is drumming a tattoo on a window pane with his fingers without slaughtering the youth with a club.—Norristown Herald.

The Instincts of Trade. Naomi—My dear count, don't you think papa is adorable? Italian Count—Well, er— "Tell me truly what you think of him." Count (dreamily)—I think he needs a hair cut and a shampoo.—Detroit Free Press.

Family Pride. Elmo Van Rensselaer (sittingly) to the Miss Smiths—Is this the first time you've been to Newport? We always come here. Why, we've been here twelve years. Miss Smith—How old are you? Elmo—Seven.—Time.

True. Since bathing became unfashionable among the elite one must keep out of the water in order to be in the swim.—Time.

How a Fight Was Avoided. "Sir, you are an infernal liar!" "I see by that that you are a truthful man."—Lincoln Journal.

Want of Sleep

Is sending thousands annually to the insane asylum, and the doctors say this trouble is alarmingly on the increase. The usual remedies, while they may give temporary relief, are likely to do more harm than good. What is needed is an Alternative and Blood-purifier. Ayer's Sarsaparilla is incomparably the best. It corrects those disturbances in the circulation which cause sleeplessness, gives increased vitality, and restores the nervous system to a healthy condition.

Rev. T. G. A. Coté, agent of the Mass. Home Missionary Society, writes that his stomach was out of order, his sleep very often disturbed, and some impurity of the blood manifest; but that a perfect cure was obtained by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Frederick W. Pratt, 224 Washington street, Boston, writes: "My daughter was prostrated with nervous debility. Ayer's Sarsaparilla restored her to health."

William F. Bowker, Erie, Pa., was cured of nervousness and sleeplessness by taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla for about two months, during which time his weight increased over twenty pounds.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla, PREPARED BY Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass. Sold by all Druggists. Price $1; six bottles, $4.

NASAL BALM

OSAGEVILLE, DIXONS P.O., Ont. May 11th, 1887.

My wife suffered for five years with that distressing disease, catarrh. Her case was one of the worst known in these parts. She tried all of the catarrh remedies I ever saw advertised, but they were of no use. I finally procured a bottle of Nasal Balm. She has used only one half of it, and now feels like a new person. I feel it my duty to say that Nasal Balm cannot be TOO HIGHLY recommended for catarrh troubles, and are pleased to have all such sufferers know through its use they will receive instant relief and CURE. FARM, FIELD AND GARDEN.

OBSERVATIONS AND EXPERIENCES IN AFFAIRS OF COUNTRY LIFE.

Opinions Expressed by Prominent and Successful Growers in Widely Separated Portions of the Country on Important Points of Farm Culture.

T. B. Terry, one of Ohio's progressive farmers, recently made the statement in Rural New Yorker: "If I were asked to tell in four words the most possible as to how I had grown the largest crop of wheat, the answer would be 'closer and longer.'"

As regards the proper depth for sowing wheat, the conductor of an experiment in the course of fifteen or twenty years the aggregate of wheat from one-half the ground would be as great as from the whole of it if cultivated continuously for the same length of time in wheat alone.

Watering Hogs. The heating effects of corn are often aggravated by pouring into the over loaded stomach of the hog a mass of cold water.

Commercial Fertilizers. There are now several excellent makes of commercial fertilizers in the market, and it would hardly be desirable to try to say which is best.

One Plan for Keeping Eggs. There are numerous devices for keeping eggs in small quantities for home use. The following has succeeded so well with some farmers that they use no other plan.

Things That Are Told. America Cultivator thinks there is perhaps no place on the farm where a good dressing of manure will do greater good than in an old apple orchard where the trees seem to be running out.

The Value of Salt for Stock. According to the French government commission: 1. Salt ought to be given to domestic animals to replace the saline matter washed out of their food by boiling, steaming, etc.

Relating to Trees. Professor Sargent is authority for the following: The strongest wood in the United States is that of the nutmeg hickory of the Arkansas region, and the most elastic is the tansy maple, the white or shellback hickory standing far below it.

CHEESE MAKING FOR HOME USE.

How Small Cheeses May Be Made with Simple Apparatus. Many farmers would like to have a few cheeses for their own use, made from the milk of their own cows, but are deterred because they do not live near any cheese factory and some of their household know just how to make the cheese.

The things actually needed are a cheese tub to "set" the milk in, a good basket and strainer cloth for draining the curd, a press and hoops. When the night's milk is brought in, strain immediately into the tub and put in sufficient rennet extract to bring the curd in from ten to twelve minutes.

In the morning, the morning's milk is strained into it, and the same process is again gone through with till it is ready to drain, when it is dipped in with the night's curd and then both are treated together. The whey which runs off in the morning is carefully heated over a slow fire, not so hot as to scorch, but as warm as the hand will bear.

A successful press can be made in a few hours from a twelve foot plank and a few pieces of scantling. About a foot from either end of the plank set up two short pieces of scantling four or one-half inches apart. Fasten these firmly to the plank with bolts or pins.

English Receipt for Keeping Milk. An English journal is authority for the following: In hot weather, when it is difficult to preserve milk from becoming sour and spoiling the cream, it may be kept perfectly sweet by scalding the milk with gentle boiling.

One Plan for Keeping Eggs. There are numerous devices for keeping eggs in small quantities for home use. The following has succeeded so well with some farmers that they use no other plan.

Dry Earth in Chicken Coops. A good expedient for securing dryness within the coop is the use of dry earth scattered about under the roosts and over the floor. This acts as an absorbent of the moisture, so a disinfectant, and moreover repays all the trouble spent on it by the better preservation of the useful ingredients of the droppings, and the great comfort to the attendant.

At a strawberry meeting the point was made that by heavily sowing with a variety of seeds the season can be prolonged a week. According to L. B. Pierce, the converse of this proposition is true, and not mulling early varieties the greatest earliness can be attained.
