THURSDAY, JULY 27th, 1911. A BAD PRECEDENT AVOIDED. Dissatisfaction with the council or with members of it, doubtless accounts for many of the votes cast against the paving bylaw on Monday.

THE VETO ALTERNATIVE. It is hinted in London despatches that the Lord may reject the veto bill in its entirety, instead of sending it back to the Commons with amendments.

TO ABYME A NUISANCE. Paris despatches assert that France, Germany, Spain and Great Britain have made up their minds to apportion the dominions of the Moroccan Sultan among themselves.

BY PACK PONY EDSON TO GRANDE PRAIRIE OVER GOVERNMENT ROAD

First Story of Bulletin Staff Reporter now in the North Country

VARIOUS ROUTES TO PROMISED LAND

Graphic Description of the New Edson to Grande Prairie Road

Bulletin Staff Correspondence.

Beaver Lodge P. O., June 22, 1911. The Grand Prairie is a magnet that is attracting settlers from the older portions of Canada, from the United States, and from across the ocean.

The Peace River in British Columbia flows eastward as far as range 21, west of the fifth meridian, then bends to the north, west of the sixth meridian. The Smoky River is joined by the Wapiti river from the east and the Simonette River from the east and south-east. The Smoky river then flows northward and north-easterly till it joins the Peace River a little upstream from Peace River Crossing.

North of the Wapiti and west of the Smoky lies a stretch of arable land known as the Grande Prairie. In order to get first hand information about this country and routes of travel the Bulletin staff correspondent is now on a tour of the Grande Prairie district.

Like any other tourist the first question confronted by the Bulletin correspondent was how to get there. After consideration it was decided to travel with a saddle pony with light camp equipment. In this way about two months will be spent in visiting the northern settlement.

Different Routes to Grande Prairie

1. The route by the G. T. P. to Edson, thence overland north to Sturgeon Lake and thence westerly across the Smoky River and the Grande Prairie.

2. The old Klondike trail to Lesser Slave Lake.

3. The stage route to Athabasca Landing, thence by steamer to Lesser Slave Lake.

4. The overland trail via Athabasca Landing along the north shore of the Athabasca river and lake to the west end of Lesser Slave Lake.

5. From Lesser Slave Lake there are two routes: (A) A south-west to Sturgeon Lake, thence westerly along to the Smoky River, along the same trail as from Edson.

(B) From Lesser Slave Lake north-westerly to Peace River Crossing, thence south-westerly to Dunvegan, then southerly past Spirit River settlement to Grande Prairie.

For many reasons it was decided to go by the Edson route. Partly because many said that that route was impossible. But when questioned every knacker admitted never having been over the Edson trail. The Bulletin correspondent made the trip from Edson to the Grande Prairie side of the Smoky River in seven days and the trip was not as bad as anticipated.

Several things were learned from the trip. The word "good" when applied to a road has a comparative use, for it means a road better than a bad road, consequently the writer will reserve judgment on the goodness of the Edson road till the badness of some of the other routes are tested. People speak in horror of muskegs, but the Bulletin pony was not afraid of a muskeg and often left the muskeg trail and got out on the mossy muskeg.

Beautiful Boulevards. Allowance must be made for this road, which is a new colonization road as well as any macadamized road, and ordinary colonization roads are not as solid as any macadamized road. It seems at that had it not been for excessive rains this season, dust would have been flying in many stretches.

Its boulevards are dotted with blossoms of strawberries and violets and the shady avenues are lined with great groves of tall timber. No lovers' lane was ever more lovely than some of the stretches lined with leafy trees or blossoming shrubs sheltering the home nests of the brooding birds and shading an underbrush of roses and honeysuckles.

It is not a railroad though the pack trains crossed some of the creeks on the temporary bridges made of rails or poles. A well balanced pack horse could almost walk on a log.

It is not a race track though the saddle ponies of the pack train enjoy the obstacle race across the bridgese creeks and over the fifth timber on the newer diversions of the trail around the bad mud holes and swamps.

Trail Follows Moose Trail. It could hardly be called the straight moose track along the low of the southeastern side of the valley of the Washkaghan river. The riders in order to save their knees, must keep in the saddle of the narrow way between the trees through which the trail twists and turns. This portion of the trail circumstances some had road and when the government road makers have completed this cut out it will be a wide wagon road, and will permit some of the stabled settlers to proceed a little further on their journey to their promised land in the Grande Prairie.

When settlers in another district were told that their road was bad, they replied: "You should have seen road when it was really bad. It is now good." The gangs of roadmakers employed by the Alberta Government have done much work. Much more will have been done, as this story is printed and many parts of the road will have become good as a result of a corduroy of brush or logs.

210 Miles in Seven Days. The fact that the stage party and the Bulletin's correspondent travelled a distance of 210 miles in seven days such a new trail in the rainy season, even through thunderstorms, speaks much for the work already done by the government crews.

In regard to Mr. Taft who drove the stage the four passengers, O. I. Thornton, John Kay, Richard McRae and James Cawland were unanimous in their praise of his energy and skill in driving, and overcoming the many difficult parts of travel. Owing to his perseverance the stage party made a record trip.

Diary of the Trip. On Tuesday, June 13th, the stage left Edson at two o'clock in the afternoon and travelled 20 miles to the stopping place kept by John Angus. A government crew was busy building a corduroy and putting earth on top of one already laid. Bridges and culverts have been put in and this road is now called good, though the automobiles had better wait till all the stumps have been cut out.

During the afternoon a thunderstorm came up and the rain fell in a heavy downpour. As the party proceeded steadily through the mud and rain an occasional flash of lightning would strike a distant hill top. One of the passengers had no raincoat and was soaking wet. A fire had been running alongside the trail, but the rain extinguished it except in some big logs or stumps which still glow even through the wet.

Some teams toting supplies of feed for man and beast to the gangs of government roadmakers also camped at the 29 Mile Creek. Crews are building roads all along the line. They have difficulty in getting supplies of hay, oats and grub.

Travelling Under Difficulties. On Wednesday morning we waited in vain for the rain to stop, but started anyway and travelled on in the rain and the mud. The pommel slicker kept the rider dry, but the passengers looked drooped and dripping when the stage wagon, stopped at Spring Creek stopping place, for dinner. A good dinner and Harry Sanders' music on an Edison phonograph, revived a spirit of cheerfulness and it was with light heart that the journey was resumed. The rains soaked the ground and the streams rose in flood. A bridge across a creek was washed out and that stream had to be forded. In the evening we reached the Athabasca river which was in flood.

In the party was a gentleman from Manitoba who was so blue that he felt like turning back in the morning. However, at the last minute he went on with the party.

On Thursday morning the swift-flowing Athabasca was crossed safely by means of a ferry installed here by the Alberta government. The four pack horses and good road there is another stretch of bad road through a country timbered with spruce, pine and tamarac. The road improved as we neared the Little Smoky river, on the southern shore of which are piled timbers for a bridge. The piers had been put in but the ice and the high water had carried away one pier. Good pasture was found for the horses a little upstream from our camp.

On Friday, June 16th, as there is yet no ferry and no bridge, our party had to ford the Little Smoky. It is not a mountain stream, so was not as high water as the Athabasca or Baptiste rivers. One of the party forded first with the camera and photographed the stage and Bulletin party as they were fording the river. The road on the river bottom was solid though the water reached the horse bellies. It is said this stream rises rapidly and falls rapidly according to the local rains.

Travellers Take to Poles. The Pony Creek was easily forded. Then the party stopped for dinner. A cook stove had been signed up under a shed of boughs and a dinner was cooked. Some of the party had their own camp outfit and cooked their own meals over a camp fire. The horses had a good feed for there was good pasture. That night the party camped at a little creek where McKay's crew of government road makers had pitched their tents. The stage wagon was left here and the passengers were taken to Sturgeon Lake by a barasare was packed on a couple of pack horses.

On Saturday, June 17th, we left McKay's camp where A. B. Smith had pitched their tents. The passengers seemed to enjoy the change to the rocking chair of a saddle and the novelty of the bridges and the clinging of the Taft was mounted on a fast walking grey horse and led the procession.

At Sturgeon Lake. Good meals are provided at the trading post of Revillon Brothers. At night the floors were covered with the beds of travelers, many of them going to or returning from Grande Prairie, as the landseekers walk or ride along the trail, the children and the older Indians come out of the tents and sit on the benches. They can not understand whence come all these people and whether they are the "white" men or the "red" men. Recently, has been an isolated outpost.

Foreman Roberts has employed a number of natives in the work of clearing and making the government road from Sturgeon Lake to the Smoky river.

The Roman Catholic Mission Church and Indian School buildings are just east of the store of Revillon Brothers, and further east is the group of buildings of the Hudson's Bay Company, where the trading post is in charge of Factor Angus McLean.

Railway Prospects. Across the lake there is a fine lot of timber, which, it is said, has been surveyed by the C.N.R. line north-westward from Edmonton and on way towards Grande Prairie. A pack train led by Edson the other day found for a camp of C.N.R. surveyors near the junction of the McLeod and Athabasca rivers. Mail arrived at Sturgeon Lake to be called for by the C.N.R. survey party.

New Trail Avoids Simonette. The old trail from Sturgeon Lake to the Big Smoky River followed the Simonette river, but the new trail is higher and drier ground and strikes the Big Smoky river a few miles further down stream. By the middle of July this will likely be cut out all the way, so that wagons with loads can travel from Sturgeon Lake to the Smoky river.

On Monday, June 19th, the pack train and saddle party of the stage party left Sturgeon Lake, and, after journeying a few miles, met the other pack train returning. Mr. Taft then returned to Edson and Theodore Walter took the lead with our pack train and led us on towards the Smoky. Pasture is plentiful and the grass luxuriant. We passed larger openings of prairie land, but the only sign of human life was at the camp of Roberts' crew of road-makers. Some day homestead and farms may be scattered thickly along this trail. If a railway comes this way, then towns will follow.

The Manitoba passenger was happy and the musician sang an impromptu parody on "There is a land that is fairer than day." The mud, the moss, the fords, the mosquitoes, the rain and the other unpleasant features of the trip were all forgotten as we neared our destination.

Reach the Promised Land. We camped for the night on the road on down the valley and after fording the Washkaghan (or House) river, camped under the pine trees on the north shore. This river was easily forded. The light was not good but it would have made a pretty picture as the single file of ponies were fording the wide, shallow stream. The water flowed rather swiftly though it only reached to about the horses' knees.

Camped at the House River. The Bulletin correspondent had suitable for handling the ponies from Manitoba had brought a couple of old cloth table covers. But two of the passengers had only their blankets, which they wrapped around them when they made their bed, and lay down to sleep under the sheltering boughs of a jackpine. The man from Oregon wrapped a spare shirt around his head to keep the mosquitoes away.

Sabbath Day's Journey. On Sunday, June 18th, the party proceeded a Sabbath Day's journey. The country was more open and the road drier and in many places quite suitable for handling the ponies. There was a good growth of grass and the wild fruit was already partly formed, so the passenger from Manitoba was more content and firmly decided to continue his journey to the Grande Prairie. The musician of the party conducted a service as our party rode along. One rainy day he had teased the Manitoba passenger by singing "Home Sweet Home." On another day, when riding through the tall timber, the strains of the Glory Song rang along the aisle in the calm silence of the forest, disturbed only by the jingling of the bridles and the clanging of the cowbells on the two pack-horses.

We stopped for noon at Grave Creek where A. B. Smith had pitched his tent on his way to Grande Prairie. Having lost a horse he had halted here a while and is making money cooking meals for travellers.

There is fine pasture here for horses and the feed is good all the way to Sturgeon Lake. The trail crosses the Indian reserve and the road is here good and well travelled.

The boys in the setting sun were gazing from the dancing waves of Sturgeon Lake, as we rounded the bend in the trail and stopped at the trading post of Revillon Brothers, on the south bank of the lake.

number of natives in the work of clearing and making the government road from Sturgeon Lake to the Smoky river.

The Roman Catholic Mission Church and Indian School buildings are just east of the store of Revillon Brothers, and further east is the group of buildings of the Hudson's Bay Company, where the trading post is in charge of Factor Angus McLean.

Railway Prospects. Across the lake there is a fine lot of timber, which, it is said, has been surveyed by the C.N.R. line north-westward from Edmonton and on way towards Grande Prairie. A pack train led by Edson the other day found for a camp of C.N.R. surveyors near the junction of the McLeod and Athabasca rivers. Mail arrived at Sturgeon Lake to be called for by the C.N.R. survey party.

New Trail Avoids Simonette. The old trail from Sturgeon Lake to the Big Smoky River followed the Simonette river, but the new trail is higher and drier ground and strikes the Big Smoky river a few miles further down stream. By the middle of July this will likely be cut out all the way, so that wagons with loads can travel from Sturgeon Lake to the Smoky river.

On Monday, June 19th, the pack train and saddle party of the stage party left Sturgeon Lake, and, after journeying a few miles, met the other pack train returning. Mr. Taft then returned to Edson and Theodore Walter took the lead with our pack train and led us on towards the Smoky. Pasture is plentiful and the grass luxuriant. We passed larger openings of prairie land, but the only sign of human life was at the camp of Roberts' crew of road-makers. Some day homestead and farms may be scattered thickly along this trail. If a railway comes this way, then towns will follow.

The Manitoba passenger was happy and the musician sang an impromptu parody on "There is a land that is fairer than day." The mud, the moss, the fords, the mosquitoes, the rain and the other unpleasant features of the trip were all forgotten as we neared our destination.

Reach the Promised Land. We camped for the night on the FORDING THE LITTLE SMOKY RIVER—Four horse stage, driven by J. Foreman McKay put in 2,200 feet of corduroy, just north of the Little Smoky river and 750 feet of corduroy four miles south of the Tony river. Foreman Johnson has put in about 2,000 feet of corduroy near Edson.

Side-hill cuts are made where the road crosses the deep valleys of the rivers.

Snow last winter was two and two and a half feet deep, thus making more difficult the clearing of the roadway. Some of the stumps will be grubbed out later.

Foreman McKay put in 2,200 feet of corduroy, just north of the Little Smoky river and 750 feet of corduroy four miles south of the Tony river. Foreman Johnson has put in about 2,000 feet of corduroy near Edson.

In 12 miles, between the Little Smoky and the Tony river, the road when complete will require about 45 culverts or bridges. All the large ones are now in, but a few of the small ones have yet to be put in place.

There are many stretches of solid road. Of the first 29 miles, about 12 miles are on high, dry ground. From the Athabasca to the Baptiste rivers there is six miles of solid road. From three miles north of the Little Smoky north to the Tony, there is a comparatively solid road, except for one long muskeg, which will be brushed and corduroyed. From the Tony river, north for eight miles, there is a good road. Given a little more time, the eight miles of road-makers will improve all the bad places by corduroy or a diversion. The road across the muskegs, mud holes and creeks can easily be improved so as to make it easier to ascend and descend the high hills.

A cable for the Big Smoky is now being laid by the roadside. A cable spans the Little Smoky above the pier of the proposed bridge. The streams will likely all be crossed either by ferry or bridge. The eight gangs are working simultaneously, and when each crew has its section completed the whole road will be in much better shape. The settlers now stabled by the roadside will then be able to continue their journey.

The Food Problem Vital. The trail is a hard one on horses, chiefly on account of the scarcity of feed on some stretches, especially in the southern half. Hay meadows are numerous west of Sturgeon Lake, but south in the forests and muskegs there is very little feed for the horses.

When used as a winter trail, it might be a wise precaution and a provision of cruelty to animals if the Government could see that sufficient supplies of horse feed were stored at convenient stopping places along the route.

Mr. Taft had cached some bales of hay, but some two-legged animals had visited the cache and, besides dragging a bale halfway up a hill, had damaged or wasted another bale. The careless camp fires, cause some feed to be burned, yet there seems to be no regular police patrol along the trail. There are a number of people in the camps and on the trail, but no doctors. Accidents would be serious.

When the stage party had crossed the Big Smoky they looked in vain for any guides or stage for Grande Prairie. The only guide was an Indian trail up the hill. From here there is a fine view of the valley, with its deep trough and its big bend. This may be a good railway crossing some day.

The state of the road is not the fault of Public Works and the crews working on the Edson trail deserve credit for the repairs already made. It is not regular police, but rather construction work. The work is under the supervision of A. H. McQuarrie, who has all the camps under supervision. He and his foreman are experienced road makers and quite understand the problems of their work.

In all their eight crews of road makers between Edson and the Big Smoky river.

1. Foreman Johnson is improving the road for 25 miles north from Edson.

2. A crew under Mr. Sides is working on a stretch as far as the Athabasca river.

3. James Fraser has a crew making road from the Baptiste river to the Marshhead creek.

4. James Leung has a crew from Marshhead Creek to the Little Smoky river.

5. M. McKay and crew work for 35 miles north of the Little Smoky river.

6. H. Woodward is working on a diversion and improving the old trail from 35 miles north of the Little Smoky on north as far as Sturgeon Lake.

7. J. Davidson and crew are putting in culvert south of Sturgeon, a new road between Sturgeon Lake and the Big Smoky river.

Difficulties of Road Making. The work of the road-makers varies according to circumstances. The road through the bush and timber has to be cut and cleared. When done, when snow is deep, the stumps may have to be left too high. The mud-holes are corduroyed with brush or poles. Bridges or culverts are put across the small streams of water. Probably, if time and money permit, the ditches may be made and the brush or corduroy covered with earth.

The next letter will deal with the experiences as told by the settlers of Grande Prairie. For no matter how much this district is attracting incoming settlers, the most important question is "How are the actual settlers progressing?" The answer to this question answers another: "Is it worth while for any farmers to come so far?"

WAS DROWNED AT WABAMUN LAKE

Earl Weller, of Bradburn Stationery Company, Lost Life by Seizing Canoe Capsizing—Mr. Bradburn's Narrow Escape.

(From Monday's Daily.) Wabamun Lake was the scene of a drowning accident yesterday afternoon, the victim being Earl Weller, aged 23, bookkeeper with the Bradburn Stationery Co. of this city. W. C. Bradburn, who has been holidaying at the lake, had a narrow escape and now lies at the home of his father, R. Bradburn, 628 Eighth street, in a prostrate condition. The accident took place shortly after one o'clock yesterday afternoon and was the result of the upsetting of a canoe in which were both young men about a mile off Coal Point.

Bradburn was seen from shore on the top of the upland in the city when rescued by James McIntyre of this city and others after he had become unconscious but was holding on with death grip. Before assistance had reached the boat, however, Weller had become exhausted and had sunk to the bottom for the last time. The body has not yet been recovered but a party of friends will go out to the lake this morning to make a thorough search.

Young Weller was a very well known and popular in the city when he went to the lake yesterday morning to spend the week end with Mr. Bradburn. Soon after arriving the two started by canoe, on which there was a sail, from Wabamun to Selva at the other end of the lake.

Loss Pipe Overboard. When about half way down, about a mile off Coal Point, Weller dropped his pipe overboard and Bradburn jumped overboard, with his clothes on, in an endeavor to secure it. "The canoe went on about fifty yards farther before Weller was able to bring it about and in doing so he upset it. Bradburn, however, managed to regain the craft and it was righted again and the two started on their way.

Shortly afterwards it upset a second time, owing largely to the wet sail and they were unable to right it on this occasion. Sank to the Bottom. They however managed to get a hold to the bottom for some time but gradually Weller weakened and finally let go his grasp and sank to the bottom. Bradburn held on with the tenacity of a dying man and resumed his position till assistance arrived from the shore and he was rescued.

The ill-fated young man who met the tragic death was a native of Peterborough, Ont., and had resided in Edmonton for about two years. He resided in Edmonton at 628 Sixth street.

85 DEGREES IN THE SHADE MONDAY.

Early yesterday, the thermometer at the Meteorological Office had climbed to 85 degrees, the highest temperature recorded so far this year. The maximum Monday was 84 degrees, reached shortly before five o'clock. By comparison with the cool weather which Edmonton has been having for the last week, the heat of the past two days seems almost tropical, but the observations records show that the air is still 20 degrees cooler than it was in Eastern Canada during the height of the recent heat wave.

Since 1883, when records were first kept of temperature and precipitation in Edmonton, the temperature has never gone above 94 degrees. This maximum was registered on June 11th of last year. In June, 1898, the same temperature was recorded. The other warm days this year have been July 23, 83 degrees; June 15th, 82 degrees; and May 6th, 83 degrees. The temperature was 85 at noon today, but may go higher before six o'clock.

DR. TORY RETURNS FROM THE EAST

Attended Conference of University Representatives from All Over Canada Held in Montreal—Preparing for Great Congress to be Held in London.

(From Monday's Daily.) A conference of university representatives from all Canada, has just concluded at Montreal, according to Dr. Tory, who returned from the east yesterday morning. The purpose of the conference was to make arrangements for a great congress of university delegates from Canada and the British Empire to be held on July 4th to the 12th, 1912, on the invitation of the University of London and with the co-operation of Oxford and Cambridge, to discuss general educational problems within the Empire.

The universities of Canada have all been asked to send representatives as well as all universities of standing within the Empire. "The discussion," said Dr. Tory, "will relate to general educational problems and will involve an exchange of views on methods of instruction in the various sciences and on the qualifications for entrance. A good deal of attention will be given to the standardization of all university education. The University of Alberta has been asked to send four delegates to the congress."

The Montreal conference," continued Dr. Tory, "dealt largely with standardization of matriculation and the establishment of a bureau of instruction in the various sciences, to be organized by the department of education at Washington. The discussion was, however, concluded but left little next meeting."

"The conference was important in this sense," said Dr. Tory, "in that it was the first time in the history of the Dominion that representatives of all the universities in Canada had come together and it is possible that a university association will be established as a result."

It was agreed to hold a meeting of the University of London at Montreal next year before starting.

(From Monday's Daily) TO CONFER WITH C. P. R. At the commissioners' meeting Saturday, Mayor Armstrong and the city engineer were appointed a committee to confer with the C. P. R. as to the requirements of the city with regard to the arrangement of street car and pedestrian tracks on the high level bridge, which is a necessary part of the disposal while accepting the full amount of the city's grant to give less than a cent interest on the terms of the agreement.

THE ELECTRICIANS MAY GO ON STRIKE

General Dissatisfaction is Expressed With Agreement With City.

(From Tuesday's Daily.) General dissatisfaction with the working of the agreement reached by the city and the electrical workers at the city night's meeting of the arbitration committee headed by His Honor Judge Taylor, appointed under the Lemieux Act, was expressed at Saturday night's meeting of the local union of the International Brotherhood of Electric Workers which met in Hourston's Hall on Jasper West. The reasons for the calling of the meeting was the trouble which broke out on Saturday last between the linemen and Superintendent Graham, which resulted in the discharge of one man and which led six others to quit.

All Men Ranked as Low. The arbitration committee's finding recommended as one measure, a sliding scale by which linemen were to be divided into three classes, wages to be determined by the class to which each individual belonged. This idea was found favor and was accepted by the union. It was found, however, when they came to be paid, that although they had been promised material increases, apparent advances had been counterbalanced by the sliding scale by which practically all of the men were ranked as third class men. On Thursday night's meeting of the union a grievance committee was named, in accordance with the finding of the arbitration committee, to meet the linemen and attempt to adjust the difference. When seen on Friday, it is said, the mayor informed the men that the matter was under advisement but on Saturday told them, they declared, that he could not interfere with a superintendent.

Telephone Men Quit. Meanwhile several of the linemen on finding that the wages they received were only those paid third class men, went to Superior and telegraphed—without effect, however, and it is said that one of the men was discharged on the spot. On Saturday night's meeting of the union, it was decided to take their grievance before the meeting of the union which met that night. The meeting was held in Hourston's Hall and was well attended. Business was suspended while a delegation of the linemen was admitted to lay their trouble before the union. After some discussion it was decided to have the grievance committee to that organized by the mayor and commissioners today and attempt to reach some satisfactory agreement. The men are determined, however, to have some concession recorded their side of the case, and if their advances are not met, more severe measures, such as a strike of the electric workers of the city, may be resorted to.

Where Trouble Rests. The whole trouble rests on the classification of the men. The latter claim that among their numbers are many who are entitled to a higher class, but the mayor has refused to accept this claim, except in the case of a few men. The mayor has expressed himself as being in sympathy with their demands.

Stewart was a member of the Swift Current, Sask., July 22—Escorted into temporary insanity by the refusal of his frightened wife to accompany him back to his farm at Brooks, Alberta. Robert H. Stewart shot his wife three times at his father's home, where he was staying, then, turning the revolver on himself, suicided by firing three bullets into his own heart, dying instantly. Stewart threatened to shoot his wife some time ago and was sent to the Brandon asylum for a time. Being discharged later, he went to Brooks, where he worked for a time, but yesterday he returned to his father's home, where his wife and children were staying. After discussing family affairs, Stewart asked his wife to accompany him back to Brooks, but being afraid of his malady, she refused, and shortly afterwards Stewart entered the house with a revolver and shot her three times, then shot himself.

CATTLE CHARGING CHARGE. Information charging cattle stealing has been said at the Mounted Police Barracks against a young Austrian, who lives in the neighborhood of Mundare. The cattle which is alleged to have been stolen are the property of two Austrian farmers who live with their father, a widower, on a homestead near Mundare. The cattle were herded from their mother and the cattle form part of the estate of which the father is trustee. The young fellow against whom the information is laid by the girls is said to have driven several head of cattle away and to have sold them.

TO REPORT TUESDAY. Recommendations regarding the preparation of plans for the erection of a new city hall are likely to be embodied in a report to be submitted to the city council at their next regular meeting. This matter came up for consideration by the council about two months ago, and was referred to a committee. Meetings of this committee have been announced several times, but all have failed to take place. The Mayor now states that he will endeavor to have the committee meet on Tuesday.

BUILDING PERMITS. Building permits were issued from the office of the city engineer Saturday as follows: After a lapse of several days since the hall storm that swept a narrow district including Edmonton, it is believed the damage to crops, especially potatoes, was much less severe than first feared. While a few dead vines may be seen here and there, the potato patches are looking up and it is thought will come through all right. This being the case the crop promises to be one of the largest ever raised in this section.
