GILLETTS LYE EATS DIRT

Only a Beggar, A Queen Among Women

CHAPTER XVII.

At this point of his bitter reflections there arose before him the sad, sweet face of the girl who loved him, and of whose love he had taken advantage. Yes; there was one woman, and one woman only in the world, who would be sorry for him, who would give her life if the gift could help him to a moment's happiness. The thought of her, though it awakened no remorse, for he was steeped in selfishness to the very finger-tips, intensified his craving for sympathy, the sympathy of some human being.

He had promised to go round to Garner Street, but without any intention of keeping his promise; but now he thought wistfully of the loving welcome that would await him; and, putting on his hat and coat, he left his rooms and took a cab to the shabby little street that was like a backwater in the great London tide.

She heard and knew his step on the stairs, and came to the door to meet him. She had been at work, and the shaded lamp fell upon her half-finished drawing; one corner of the shade was raised, and the light shone upon his face; she saw its pallor, something worse than pallor, the deep lines of care in the handsome face, the hunted, desperate look in the usually brilliant and laughing eyes, and she drew back her head and scanned his countenance with tender anxiety.

"What is the matter, Desmond?" she asked. "Are you ill? Has—has anything happened?"

"Yes," he said; "something has happened. I have just had bad news."

She drew him to the shabby arm-chair and actually put a cushion at his back; then she knelt on the ground beside him, and, resting her arms on his knee, took his cold hand and pressed it between her own, lovingly, consolingly.

"My cousin, Lord Dalesford, is going to be married," he said; his voice was husky, and the forced smile simply twisted his lips into a more haggard expression. "That will cut me out of the succession. Of course I might have expected this, but it has knocked me rather hard; for it comes on top of a run of bad luck, devilish bad luck; and I am out of sorts and can't play a losing game as I used to do. I've had a shocking bad time at Hurst Park to-day; and, upon my word, taking one thing with another, I'm near stone-broke, ruined, thrown into the gutter—I, Desmond March," he laughed, a laugh that made the girl catch her breath. "Pon my soul, I've half a mind to think it a pity I didn't put a bullet through the brains that have been so little use to me, instead of coming whining here."

With a swift movement she put her hand upon his pale lips. "Ah, no, no, don't say that, Desmond!" she said, in a low voice. "When did you have anything to eat last? All those hours! Ah, yes, I thought so! Wait!"

She ran to the sideboard—ran it scarcely the word—she glided swiftly, noiselessly, as if she knew that every movement, every sound, would jar upon his strained nerves. There was only the remains of her last poor meal; she brought it out, and, swiftly and noiselessly as she had moved before, she held a tray and brought the food to him. He had sent in some whiskey many months ago; the bottle had been untouched; she found it and mixed him some spirit and water. He tried to eat, but could not; but he drank a little of the whiskey and water, and a faint tinge of color stole into his pallid cheeks.

"That's better," he said; but it is a shame to worry you with my troubles, Lucy."

"No, no," she responded, quickly and softly, with a woman's joy in the fact that the man she loved had sought her in the moment of his trouble. "Whom should you come to, but to me? And, ah, how I wish I could help you."

"Fraid you can't, my child; very much fear there is no one who can. Looks to me as if I shall have to make a bolt for it, or provide the corner with a job—"

"No, no," she interposed, with a shudder. "Why shouldn't you go away, Desmond? Why shouldn't you give up this London life; this—this—double to live, to keep up appearances? Why shouldn't you go away and—" her voice broke, the color flooded her face, then left it pale; her eyes were fixed on his with a terrible anxiety, a keen longing—"and take me with you? I'd try to make you happy, Desmond. And I could help, too. We could go to some place on the Continent, where few of our English people go, where living is so cheap. Let me give you some more whiskey. Smoke, Desmond. Where are your cigarettes?" She got the case from his pocket, opened it, and extended it to him lovingly, lit a match, and held it to the cigarette; and he leaned back and smoked and looked at her with a curious kind of hesitation; as if he were actually considering the possibility of yielding to her prayer.

"We could be very happy there in a quiet way. I am earning more money now, getting better prices for my work; and I am sure I could manage. You can't think how clever a little housekeeper I should prove. And you would have your allowance; and, of course, that would be your own to spend as you liked; I could keep the house going on my earnings quite well. Oh, Desmond, think of it, only think of it; You and I together, always, away from this horrible London, where I am always so unhappy—excepting when I am with you; and where you, too, Desmond, are unhappy, are you not? And—her voice grew lower, would have been inaudible if she had not crept still closer to him and almost laid her cheek against his—"and you would marry me, Desmond, wouldn't you? I'd make you a good wife, I'd make you happy; oh, I couldn't fail to do so, for I love you so much, so much!"

The man's heart was stirred, not so much by pity for the girl, who was almost a child, kneeling beside him and trying, like a child, to woo him to the right path, the path of restitution, atonement, honor, as by the picture of peace, of rest, which her words had painted.

His lids drooped, his mobile lips worked and twisted the cigarette to and fro and in a circle, and he let his arm drop round her waist.

"Pon my soul, Lucy, I might do worse." It was of himself only he thought, of course. "Yes; it's rather a pretty picture you've drawn, a deuced pretty little picture; you are an artist in words as well as with paint and pencil. And you think we should be happy, eh?"

He smiled down at her with the condescending smile which the man of his character bestows upon the woman who has placed herself entirely in his grasp, the woman who is at his mercy.

"Yes, yes," she said eagerly, her color coming and going, her eyes glowing with the anticipation of a happiness which seemed too great to be possible. "You're afraid that you would miss your clubs, the race-meetings, and the society of London; but see, Desmond, dear, what happiness have they ever brought you; how many times have you come to me tired and weary of all the gaities and the men and women of your set, people of rank? You told me that they always bored you, and that you were glad to get away from them! Give this new life—and—and me—a trial, Desmond; just a trial! If you grow tired of it and me, ah, well you can come back. I only ask you just to try it. Desmond, how soon could we go?"

She looked eagerly into his eyes, for she saw that he was brooding over her suggestion, that it was not unhelpful, too. We could go to some place

An Old, Family Cough Remedy, Home-Made

By making this old-time cough syrup at home you not only save about 85c, as compared with the ready-made kind, but you will also have a much more prompt and positive remedy in every way. It overcomes the usual coughs, throat and chest colds in 24 hours—relieves even whooping cough quickly—and is excellent, too, for bronchitis, bronchial asthma, hoarseness and spasmodic croup.

Get from any drug store 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth), pour it into a 16-ounce bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. Full directions with Pinex. Keeps perfectly and tastes good.

You can feel this take hold of a cough or cold in a way that means business. It quickly loosens the dry, hoarse or painful cough, and also heals the inflamed membranes. It also has a remarkable effect in overcoming the persistent looseness by stopping the formation of phlegm in the throat and bronchial tubes. The effect of pine on the membranes is known by almost every one. Pinex is most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, combined with guaiac and other natural healing pine elements.

There are many worthless imitations of this famous mixture. To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex," and do not accept anything else.

A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

"What's this?" he asked, as she pressed it into his hand and drew his fingers over it. Blushing and downcast, she raised her eyes to his imploringly.

"Take it, Desmond. I—I don't want it. I have some more—a little, but enough to go on with; and there is some owing to me I shall be able to get. Pray take it—to please me, dear!" she begged him. "And, indeed, it's as much yours as mine! Think of the money you used to spend on me!"—"before you got tired of me!"—she was going to say, but checked the words—"before you got into difficulties! Don't refuse, Desmond. It will make me so happy to think that I—I may have been of some use to you; the lion and the mouse, you know!" She laughed tremulously. "Be a good lion, and take it, dear!"

The man reddened, and he opened his hand, shaking off her fingers roughly; then he hesitated, his lids fell to cover the shame in his eyes, and with a forced laugh he said: "What! Your little savings! Well, well, if it will please you, Lucy; and upon my soul, I believe it will! I'll accept the loan for—a day or two. And I don't mind admitting, my child, that I am completely stumped! But you're sure you don't want it?"

"No, no!" she assured him eagerly. "I was only saving it for—in case—for a rainy day."

She had been saving on the happy chance of his making one day a sunny one for her.

He dropped the little box into his overcoat pocket and stayed with her for some little time; but the whiskey and her sympathy, the presence of the box in his pocket, had "buckled him up," and very soon he was anxious to be gone. And she knew him too well to attempt to keep him; indeed, as soon as she saw he was desirous of going, she told him that she wanted to get back to her work, mixed him some more whiskey and water, and kissed him with a smile in her eyes and on her lips.

"Soon, Desmond!" she whispered lovingly. "You will not break your promise—you will not change your mind?"

"Trust me!" he responded confidently, he whom man or woman had never trusted without ruing it.

The Song of The Camp.

"Give us a song!" the soldiers cried. The outer trenches guarding. When the heated guns of the camps allied Grew weary of bombarding.

There was a pause: A guardsman said, "We storm the forts to-morrow; Sing while we may, another day. Will bring enough of sorrow."

They sang of love, and not of fame; Forgot was Britain's glory; Each heart recalled a different name. But all sang Annie Laurie.

Until after voice caught up the song For a singer, dumb and gory; All the forms of all the ages, And below of the mortars!

Dear girl, her name he dare not speak, But, as the song grew louder, Something upon the soldier's cheek Washed off the stains of powder.

And once again a fire of hell Rained on the Russian quarters, With scream of shells, and burst of shell, And bellowing of the mortars!

And Irish Nora's eyes are dim For a singer, dumb and gory; All the forms of all the ages, Who sang of Annie Laurie.

Sleep, soldiers! still in honoured rest. Your truth and valor wearing: The bravest are the tenderest— The loving are the daring.

Courage.

When you find that you are stranded, And you know not what to do, Then's the time to show your courage, Faith and hope and strength renew. If you yield to your despondence, And surrender to your fears, Keen still will be your anguish, Hotter fall the scalding tears.

If the storm has wrecked your fortune, And around you left but loss, If your brightest hopes have perished, Cling the closer to the cross. Since our elder time began, On the cross have poured their fury: Still it stands, the hope of man.

So amid your desolation, All your bleak and blank despair, See the cross in glory rising, Symbol of a father's care. All the sights within your vision, All the objects you can see, Pale before this wondrous brightness, Sign of blessing still to be.

Mourn no longer for your losses— Loss may never seem to bring gain; Out of sorrow and of sadness, Find the peace that follows pain. Rise above your dark forebodings, Take the promise God has given, Think no more of all your troubles, Think of home, and hope, and heaven.

A Wall of Steel.

How the Irish Guards Repaired the German Cavalry.

This is the story, as it has been told to me, of the way in which the Irish Guards, at M—, met the charge of three German cavalry regiments and emerged from the encounter with undying glory.

In the brief interval before the crash came the watchers could see officers walking up and down the lines, cracking jokes with their men and otherwise assisting to maintain their excellent spirits.

Then they "prepared to receive cavalry." Three regiments of German cavalry, splendidly horsed, splendidly equipped and armed, charged a regiment of Irish infantry. The men who had been smoking and joking rose to meet them, a bristling bulwark of giants holding weapons of steel in steel grips.

For a few minutes there was an awful chaos of horses, soldiers grey and soldiers yellow, glittering lances and bayonets, the automatic spit of machine guns the flashes of musketry. Amid it all the men in khaki stood immobile. Grimly and without budging they threw back, at the bayonet's point, in their demoralisation, the troops of the Kaiser.

They wanted something to put on their banner, and their casualty list will show that "if blood be the pace" they achieved their aim. French soldiers tell me that, rising from the ranks of the Irish, just before the crash came, there reached them the strains of songs, they had never heard before. A French soldier, hobbling along with a bandaged face and a bullet in his back, ventured to repeat from memory the beginning of a tune which I made out to be that of "God save Ireland!" and I have gathered that "While to me, said I," was, neither of these strains.—Central News.

Fire Sale Ads—Before the Fire

A stock-out man who furnishes small merchants with cuts featuring sales, style, furniture, opening sales etc., relates the following: "I received an order for a fire sale cut about three months ago, and at the time thought little of it. The other day I chanced to read an out-of-town paper and noticed an account of a large fire occurring in a clothing store, and on another page appeared the cut I sold to the merchant."

It is said this occurs quite often. Nose veils continue in favor. In most evening wraps the sleeves are modifications of the kimono.

The Old Folks' Birthday.

By RUTH CAMERON.

"There, yesterday was mother's birthday and I forgot to send her anything. I'll get her something real nice and send it to her to-morrow."

I heard a girl say the other day with an air of great virtue in having finally remembered.

It was evident that she hadn't always remembered mother's birthday even with the lukewarm remembrance of the day after.

I wonder if her mother forgot her birthday until the day after. I doubt it, don't you?

But young folks' birthdays are different you say. I agree. Quite different. The young girl probably has so many birthdays that it wouldn't matter if one were forgotten, while her mother's birthday may be one of a few precious anniversaries that are left her daughter to make happy.

What about the old folks' birthdays in your home, reader friend? Do you make them occasions of very special rejoicing that you still have these precious presences with you? Or do you remember them the day after and get a warmed over present. Or do you remember them the week after and think "Next year I'll be more thoughtful!"

How many homes there are in which the children's birthdays are celebrated with candles and feasting and presents even after they have grown up, while the old folks' are remembered only by unnoticed or are marked by a gift or two, probably of some family necessity!

To my mind the remembrance of a gift is not alone enough for father or mother's birthday. Think of the times they, especially mother, have planned little celebrations for you. Why shouldn't you turn about and plan for them? It isn't just the gifts that make your birthday pleasant, is it? It's the good wishes and the cake and candles, the laughter and the holiday spirit, and perhaps most of all the atmosphere of special tenderness and forbearance that makes the day peculiarly sweet. It's pleasant even for the most modest of us to find ourselves in the centre of the stage now and then. And that is an opportunity that the old folks seldom have. They're generously willing to get the stage and turn on the limelights and act as stage manager and audience combined for the young folks. But don't you think, just for a change, they'd like to be in the limelights once in awhile. Somehow I feel they'd just love it.

I know of a dear little mother whose utter unselfishness has made her children careless about such things. A time when they thought they might never have another chance to be unselfish waked them up and the next anniversary was celebrated with all the pretty ceremonies they could devise, all "the sporting of fine raiment, gifting of rich meats and receipts of gifts, compliments and copies of verse, according to the manner of our ancestors." Her child-like joy and surprise were the sweetest, most poignant reproach she could have given them. Her birthdays will never go unremembered again.

And father, too, (I sometimes wonder if fathers aren't even more neglected than mothers in such respects, because the mother tenderness lies so much nearer the surface) is to be feted when his anniversary comes.

Perhaps you think your father and mother are too sensible, too busy, or too old to care for such things.

Perhaps they are. But all I have to say, reader friend, is—just try them and see.

"The Reincarnation of a Soul."

Edwin August, America's most famous actor, is featured in "The Reincarnation of a Soul," the head liner at the Crescent Picture Palace to-day. The large audiences that witnessed this picture yesterday are loud in their praise of its beautiful staging and acting.

A story of the American Civil War is told in "Comrades," a film with beautiful scenery and gripping action. All the principal and interesting world topics are depicted in a full reel of "Universal Animated Weekly." The rock steady machine used at the Crescent brings these subjects out distinctly.

Two comedies: "The Girl Reporter" and "Muchly Engaged," affords plenty of amusement, and with the heavier subjects makes up a first class picture programme.

Last night Jack McDonald sang: "Last night was the end of the world," a very fine ballad by one of the best composers. The same bill will be repeated to-night.

On Wednesday: "The Mystery of Yellowwater Mine," a two reel feature will be shown.

Minard's Liniment Co., Ltd. Gentlemen—In July 1906 I was thrown from a road machine, injuring my hip and back badly and was obliged to use a crutch for 14 months. In Sept. 1906 Mr. Wm. Britain Needs More Men for the Front.

London, Nov. 17.—In order to stimulate recruiting and to find out how many of those eligible to do so are willing to enlist, the Government has decided to send to every household whose name is on the voting list, a blank form, which he will be asked to return, with a statement of what members in his household have enlisted, or are willing to enlist. The giving of this information, however, is not mandatory.

Each form will be accompanied by a letter signed by Premier Asquith, Andrew Bonar Law and Arthur Henderson, Presidents of the Parliamentary recruiting committee, in which they state that the number of recruits thus far obtained, though large is not nearly large enough to meet the nation's requirements, and that in order to maintain complete the new armies which it is hoped to throw into the field in a few months.

"We shall need all the best the nation can give us of its youth and strength. If we are to repair, as far as may be humanly possible, the innumerable wrongs inflicted on our Allies; if we are to avoid for ourselves the ills which they have suffered, if we are to maintain for our children all that we hold dear in honor and the freedom of our life as a nation, we must fight with the courage and endurance which won for us the struggles of the past."

Doctors and Gas Fires

In an article which recently appeared in the "Evening News," Mr. W. G. Faulkner stated: "In making my inquiries I discovered one significant fact. This was that one company—the Gas Light and Coke Company—had among their consumers 2,500 doctors who had gas fires installed in their houses, some as many as ten or a dozen; that 1,500 of these doctors had become users of gas during the past three years; and that not one had ever given them up."

Professor C. V. Boys, F.R.S., says, in the "Standard": "Sentiment and inertia are the only obstacles against the general adoption of gas fires and cooking appliances. Wonderful strides have been made, in spite of deep-rooted prejudice. A gas fire, burning with a blue, is an admirable agent for heating a room; and, as a scientist, I fail to understand how such a gas fire dries the air in a room more than any other fire."—nov17/14

The Lord Bishop of Newfoundland

Opens New School at Quidi Vidi. The new Church of England School at Quidi Vidi was formally opened yesterday afternoon by His Lordship Bishop Jones. Those present at the ceremony included the Rector Rev. G. R. Godden; Rev. J. Brinton, Secretary of the Board of Education; Sir Joseph Outerbridge, an active member of the same institution; Rev. A. Clayton, Rev. W. E. R. Cracknell, A. J. Harvey, Esq., who has given monetary aid in a large measure and who is ever interested in educational matters; F. Rendell, Esq., Church Warden of St. Thomas; P. H. Knowling, Esq., and others interested in the promotion of church work and education.

At the opening Rev. G. R. Godden referred in grateful terms to those by whose assistance the erection of the new school was accomplished. He then welcomed and introduced the Lord Bishop who, in addressing the children, referred to the facilities they now had, and impressed upon them the great value of education and exhorted them to avail of every opportunity at their disposal and obtain what training they could.

Sir Jos. Outerbridge followed, pointed out the importance of a good education and advised them to begin well as their future work depended on the laying of a good foundation and their success in after life would be mainly attributed to the education received. Mr. A. J. Harvey, who was the next speaker, spoke in a similar strain, encouraging the children to strive hard and get all the knowledge they could. They would be glad they had done so in future life when success would crown their efforts.

The new school is situated at the junction of the road leading to Quidi Vidi Gut. The site for the school was donated by Mrs. E. Pynn. The new structure is wooden, though substantial, with concrete foundation, is well equipped and is a credit to the people of the settlement who gave free labor towards its erection. A gratifying fact is that the building is entirely free of debt. Miss Pynn, teacher at the old school, has been appointed to take charge of the new school and it is a safe assurance that under her tutelage good results will be achieved and a sound elementary training will be given to all the pupils.

Newfoundlander Among the Missing.

The schr. St. Anthony met disaster on Nov. 14th, off Advocate Harbor, N.S. Out of a crew of five, four were lost and the saved one was Samuel Redmond, the mate, who clung to a broken spar. Among the missing was Daniel Hanlon, brother of Mr. J. Hanlon, of Kickham Place, who left here only a few years ago for Canada and at the time of his sad ending was making a voyage from St. John, N.S. Deceased was 42 years old and unmarried. Of the four lost ones, two bodies were recovered but it is not definitely known whether Hanlon's was one of them. A nephew of the deceased man Hanlon met his death in a similar way recently.

THE GENTLE GERMAN.
From Berlin comes the explanation that the works of art looted in Belgium and France were only "removed for fear that they might be damaged."
Kind friends, all these stories are wide of the truth.
That label us roughly as Vandals; To call us an army deficient in ruth Is simply the basest of scoundrels. Our cultured endeavors have had from the start The aim of affording protection to Art.

Right swift to our minds, when we happen to see A picture in hamlet or city, Comes the thought "Were this hurt in the smallest degree The Kaiser would think it a pity; The tidings would probably bring back the pain (In his cardiac regions) produced by Louvain."

In this (and this only) the reason is seen For the zeal which our leader evinces. This makes it less hard to distinguish between Gutter thieves and Imperial Crown Princes. He wouldn't be furthering Culture's advance, Did he leave an art treasure in Belgium or France.
Through a prejudiced world with our infamy rines, Yet surely on history's pages, Our deeds will appear as delectable things
"In the judgment pronounced by the ages, Generations unborn will lament the decline Of the civilized race that was whacked on the Rhine."

Wedding Bells.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized last night at the home of Rev. George Paine, 33 King's Bridge Road, the contracting parties being Mr. Jordan Snelgrove of Lower Island Cove and Mrs. E. Snelgrove of this city. The groom was supported by Mr. R. G. Winsor, M.H.A., while the bride was attended by her cousin, Miss C. Wornell. The bride was very becomingly attired in a dress of grey silk, with hat to match. After the ceremony the wedding party repaired to the home of Miss Wornell, 81 Long's Hill, where refreshments were served and games and music indulged in until midnight. The bride was the recipient of a number of pretty as well as useful presents. The happy couple leaves to-day for their future home at Lower Island Cove, B.D.V. Their numerous friends unite in wishing them many long years of wedded happiness.

Wearing Down With Patience.

We cannot expect to be successful everywhere at the same time and all the time. Reverse but adds to British determination to win through eventually. The set-back in German East Africa will lead to other expeditions of a stronger character, which will win their way through. The report from Constantinople that Turkish troops have reached the Suez Canal is serious if true. The gravity of the move would be that it showed an invasion of 120 miles or so, through Egyptian territory, along a desert highway it is true, and that the line of communication to the East through the Suez Canal, for both the naval and mercantile marine, was cut. Such a condition would never have occurred without serious fighting and that on a large scale. It is unlikely that the Turks with a desert line to cover have succeeded in achieving such a result. There would have to be furnished much more cogent evidence than is at hand before we could believe that they have even made a demonstration in force sufficient to imperil such an important line of communication as the Suez Canal. It is more likely that there has been an outpost skirmish about 18 miles from the Canal. This is what we believe is the full extent of the incident. In Belgium and France the position is much the same as it has been for weeks. The allies are holding their own, and the desperate attacks by the Germans have at a terrible cost to them and without effecting any material advance to an objective. General Joffre's strategy for the present seems to be to wear out the Germans and so far it has been highly successful, and there are good grounds for the expectation of similar results in the future. In the Eastern theatre, the news to date points out to the failure of the German advance along the Vistula and the Warthe and on the water shed between these rivers. The German staff admits that the arrival of Russian reinforcements has postponed a decision. The Russians claim victories. Time is telling terribly against the Germans and Austrians. Time is telling favorably for ourselves and our allies. For anything more decisive we shall probably have to wait until the British French reserves and Kitchener's new army are in the field. Meanwhile it is the common duty of British citizens to aid in preparing for the Victory of Right over Might.

An Excellent Plan.

We commend to our readers the announcement elsewhere of the first of a series of public meetings which the Society of United Fishermen propose holding during the winter months. In addition to their subscription to the Patriotic Fund, the S. U. F. are intended to be of an educational value along patriotic lines, something deeper than mere flag-flapping, and by which it is hoped that a real enthusiasm for the well-being of the Empire and a realization of the seriousness of this war may lead to a more ready response to the call to arms and a desire in all hearts to do what they can, however small a service it may be, for King and Country. It is not a money-making venture in any way, admission being free, and the S. U. F. will be glad indeed if the British Hall is filled next Thursday night when the first entertainment takes place. Two speakers, Mr. A. B. Morine and Mr. W. J. Higgins, will give short addresses, and Mr. J. L. Slattery and Mr. Fred. Cornick will contribute some songs. It has been suggested that all the INSTANTANEOUS SUCCESSES. Last night Rossley's was well patronized, even the second house was better than the first, the store people flocking in after closing time. Well, Kelly and Mack were voted the finest Irish Comedians ever seen here. Their songs, dances, jokes, and Mr. Mack's cornet solo brought the house down, they had to respond to several encores, the audience were still clamoring for more; no need to state they are old timers in the business, they are finished performers and they have lots of changes. Mr. Rossley was complimented on all sides for giving his patrons so great a treat. Their wardrobe too, calls for special mention. The pictures also come in for lots of praise. It is a splendid show.

Delightful Show at the Nickel.

Hundreds of citizens were delighted with the programme at the Nickel Theatre last evening. There was a large attendance, both afternoon and evening. The pictures were all of a high class, and were even better than many of the fine shows at this popular house of entertainment of late. Mr. Arthur C. Huskins, the sweet-voiced tenor, gave an attractive rendition of his song. The programme will be repeated this evening and all our readers who were unable to attend yesterday should do so this evening. The pictures are well worth a visit.

NO IMPORTANT CHANGES. PARIS, To-Day. An official statement given out in Paris this afternoon says: Speaking generally it may be said that the situation during day of Nov. 23rd has shown no important changes. Along the greater part of the front the enemy manifested his activity, particularly by an intermittent cannonading, which, however, was less spirited than the preceding day. Nevertheless, there were here and there some infantry attacks, all of which were repulsed. We have come to expect these attacks to be more particularly violent in the Argonne. Here we gained some territory and in the region of Four de Paris. There is nothing to report between the Argonne and the Vosges, and further north a very heavy fog has interfered with operations. The health conditions of the troops are favorable.

AMSTERDAM, To-Day. The Handelsblad hears that the Germans are still insisting that Antwerp pay a war levy of $10,000,000, and Deputy Burgomaster Franck has refused until he is assured that the Germans will make no more requisitions for supplies. The situation has reached a deadlock. It is feared that Franck may suffer the same fate as Burgomaster Max of Brussels, who, because of the non-payment of the Brussels indemnity, was taken prisoner to Germany.

INVASION DISCUSSED.

LONDON, To-Day. Plans for dealing with a possible invasion were spoken of in the Commons to-night by Under-Secretary for War Pennant. W. C. Bridgeman, member for Shropshire, asked whether the wearing of brassards would insure that persons taking part in the defence of the country would be regarded as soldiers. He also asked if the Government was aware that many active men over recruiting age desire to fight in the event of an invasion, and are prepared to furnish their own arms and equipment, and if the War Office will design a uniform for such a force. Pennant replied that the War Office felt it was the first duty of the Navy to prevent a raid. In the event of its taking place he said it is our duty to drive the Germans into the sea as fast as we can, and I hope we shall be enabled to do so. In regard to the action of the civil population, if an invasion takes place, he pointed out that an emergency committee had been formed in various counties where there was any danger of an invasion and instructions were being issued to those committees. He thought it was not desirable to state at this time what these instructions were.

King Manuel Volunteer.

Queen Amelia Goes to the Front. King Manuel on the outbreak of war, says Reuter's Agency, immediately offered his services personally to the King. Since then King Manuel has again not only reaffirmed this desire, but has sought to make it effective by endeavoring through every channel to serve Britain either in a military or any other capacity.

Far from not being in sympathy with the views of the present regime in Portugal on this question, King Manuel has even declared his readiness to serve under it. Queen Amelia of Portugal, who has been working for the Red Cross in England, left for Boulogne last week, and is now proceeding to the front with the British Red Cross. A military mission comprising three officers of the Portuguese General Staff has arrived in this country to confer with the British authorities. On the outbreak of war Portugal expressed her readiness to assist Great Britain in the terms of the alliance, but at that time a further detailed consideration was postponed. At a later date an arrangement was reached between the Portuguese and British Governments, the general lines of which have now been settled. Minard's Liniment Cures Diphtheria.

Obituary.

MRS. JOHN BOWRING.

At the advanced age of 77 years, the death occurred yesterday afternoon at Terra Nova, Sefton Park, Liverpool, England, of Mary, widow of the late John Bowring, after a brief illness of pneumonia. Deceased was a native of St. John's. She was the eldest daughter of the late W. F. Rennie and sister to Mrs. E. Harvey, Mrs. J. W. Withers, W. F. Rennie and W. H. Rennie, St. John's; John Bowring Rennie, Seattle, and Archibald Rennie, Quebec.

Miss Rennie was married to the late Mr. John Bowring, brother to Messrs. C. T. Edward and Henry Bowring and who established the firm of Bowring Brothers here and in fact throughout the Empire, in 1856. The issue of the marriage was Frederick, now Director of the Liverpool Branch; Hon. Edgar of the Newfoundland Branch; the late John and Edward; Henry in the firm branch in Liverpool, William and Arthur and three daughters, Lottie, Caroline and Louise.

For many years the late Mrs. Bowring resided in Liverpool and 27 years ago visited her native land when she remained a considerable time renewing acquaintances.

Despite her long absence from the home land deceased always took a deep interest in matters of local concern, while she was a particular friend to any Newfoundlanders who happened to visit Liverpool. She was a philanthropist and many institutions and individuals both here and abroad knew of her charity.

Though she had reached such a ripe age the passing of the old lady was wholly unexpected. To the bereaved members of the family and other relatives in Newfoundland and in the Old Country general and sincere sympathy will be expressed and in which the Telegram joins.

Chubb, Mrs. Alonzo Francis, Mrs. James Eddy, Mrs. Andrew Harvey, Mrs. Jacob Hewitt, Mrs. Edgar Burton, Mrs. Richard Hooper, Mrs. Edwin Hooper, Mrs. A. Alexander, Miss Florence H. Butt, Miss Isabel Harvey, Miss Bertha Hooper. It was decided to form a branch of the "Newfoundland Women's Patriotic Association," and the following officers were then elected:—

President—Mrs. Andrew Harvey.
Vice-President—Mrs. J. J. Harvey.
Secretary—Miss Florence H. Butt.
Treasurer—Miss Bertha Hooper.

Patriotic addresses were then given by each of the officers, and a very successful meeting was brought to a close by the singing of the National Anthem.

Last evening an undesirable character named Stead, who is well known to police circles and who is a transient boarder of the "Lakeside Inn," was found on Gower Street by Detective Lawlor in an inebriated condition. The inebriate had a half quintal of dry codfish under his arm and not being able to satisfy the officer as to how he came by the fish, was taken to the station. The inebriate remonstrated and assaulted the officer, who managed, after a hard struggle, to bring the prisoner to the police station. To-day in court Stead was tried on two charges of assaulting the police, and larceny. The prisoner was remanded while the police are finding out the proper owner of the fish.

FIGHTING IN NEW SECTION.

PARIS, Nov. 24.—(Official.) Yesterday was marked by violent artillery fire. The enemy directed his attention particularly to the town of Ypres where the belfry of the Cathedral, markets, and a number of houses were set on fire. At Soissons and Rheims, and in the Argonne the day was characterized by very hot fighting. The enemy delivered very spirited attacks which were repulsed. In the Woivre and in the Vosges the situation is without change.

VIOLENT ATTACKS BY BOTH SIDES.

PARIS, Nov. 23.—(Official.) To-day, as yesterday, there was cannonading in the North. In the direction of Soissons and Rheims, and in Argonne there were violent attacks, which, however, were without results.

GERMAN FORCES IN DISTRESS.

THIELT, Belgium, Nov. 23. There are clear indications that General November will take a leading part in operations along the front by the Yser river. Ten days of cold, wet weather, have been followed by three days of frost, over the entire territory outlined by the cities of Middelweke, Thielt, Roulers and Ypres. Much of this region is covered with stubble fields, over which there are coatings of ice, making them almost impassable for man or beast. The German troops are living in the ruins of two score villages and cities. They are becoming impatient at delay, and are suffering from icy winds, penetrating the windowless buildings in which they seek some sort of shelter. They would prefer a general attack to finish the battle, but any such sudden movement is prevented by inundation along their front. The water-covered territory is now crusted with a thin coating of ice, which supports large colonies of hungry sea gulls. A thousand lives have been lost in this inundated area, without effecting any decisive changes. On the other side of this inundated country, safely entrenched behind frozen dykes, stand the British, Belgian and French guns. The soldiers there, on account of being in direct communication with France and England, are well cared for, while the Germans are handicapped being obliged to get supplies from a devastated country, where the population is dependent on American charity. The automobile supply system of the Germans is working less satisfactorily owing to scarcity of gasoline. The Germans are awaiting with great hopes the arrival of engineers whose duty will be to find some means of crossing the inundated territory, but the methods, which are to be employed if decided upon, are being kept secret.

BRITISH DESTROY ZEPPELIN FACTORY.

LONDON, Nov. 23. It is announced officially that British aviators, who on Saturday afternoon, raided Friedrichshafen on Lake Constance, report that all the bombs thrown by them reached their objective, and that serious damage was done to the sea-plane and airship factory. Details of the raid on the Zeppelin factory, which the British officers assert inflicted serious damage, were given in the House of Commons to-day by Winston Churchill. On Saturday, said Churchill, under direction of Squadron Commander Briggs, of the Naval Air Service, with Flight Commander Babington, and Lieut. Sippe, they flew from the French territory to the Zeppelin airship factory. All three pilots flew down to close range under fire from airship guns. They launched their bombs in accordance with instructions. Briggs is reported to have been shot down, and has been taken wounded to hospital as a prisoner. The other officers returned safely to French territory.

FROM COPENHAGEN.

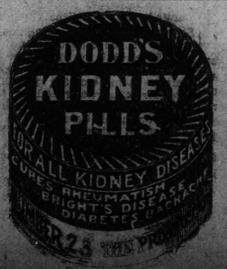

LONDON, Nov. 23. A despatch from Copenhagen says that the Danish steamer Anglo-Dane collided last night in Ore Sound with a German torpedo boat, which foundered. Two German sailors, according to the correspondent, were rescued by the steamer, seriously injured. They succumbed to their injuries. The remainder of the crew were drowned.

TURKISH TROOPS REACH SUEZ CANAL.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 23. Turkish troops have reached the Suez Canal, according to an official communication made public here on Sunday. The statement read as follows: Turkish troops have reached the Suez Canal. Fighting has occurred about 30 kilometres east of the Suez Canal. English officers and many soldiers were wounded and taken prisoners.

VICTORIES AND REVERSES.

LONDON, Nov. 24. The Official Press Bureau last night made public the following, which was issued by Earl Crewe, Secretary for India, dealing with the British military operations at the head of the Persian Gulf and East Africa: Recent operations in the Persian Gulf have been crowned with even greater and more rapid success than anticipated. After a signal defeat inflicted upon Turkish forces on Nov. 15th and 17th, the latter have abandoned all further resistance here and fled, leaving eight guns, and many wounded in our hands. Basra, a river port on the Shat-el-Arab, 60 miles from the Persian Gulf, was occupied on the 21st inst. by our naval and land forces. All the British at Basra are reported safe. In East Africa it appears from latest information that as an important German railway terminus was reported weakly held, a force was sent from British East Africa to seize it. On the evening of Nov. 2nd, one and one-half battalions landed within two miles of the place and became heavily engaged just outside the town, but as the enemy was much superior in strength, this force was compelled to fall back and await reinforcements. When within 800 yards of the position the troops engaged came under a heavy fire on their left flank, and in spite of heavy casualties the 101st Grenadiers actually entered the town and crossed bayonets with the enemy. The North Lancashire Regiment and Cashmere Rifles on the right pushed the support under heavy fire, and also reached the town. They found themselves opposed by a heavy fire from the houses and were eventually compelled to fall back 500 yards from the enemy's position. The losses were so heavy and the position so strong that it was considered useless to renew the attack and the force re-embarked and returned to its base to prepare for future operations. From recent reports just received the total casualties from this unsuccessful operation was 795, including 141 British officers and men. Wounded mostly doing well, many of whom are convalescent.

GERMAN SUBMARINE SUNK.

LONDON, Nov. 24. The German submarine U18 was rammed and sunk by a British patrolling vessel off the north coast of Scotland, yesterday. According to the British Admiralty statement, the U18 was comparatively new, built in 1912. She had been cruising in a radius of 2,000 miles.

The British submarine patrol ship rammed the German submarine U18 at 12.30 p.m., and the latter was not seen again until 1.20, when she appeared on the surface flying a white flag. Shortly after this she foundered, just as a British gally came alongside. The destroyer rescued 3 officers and 23 of the submarine's crew, only one being drowned.

BOTH SIDES CONFIDENT.

LONDON, Nov. 24. A battle which is being fought in the region between the Vistula and Wartha Rivers in Poland, appears to have turned in favor of the Russians. In fact a special despatch from Petrograd to Paris says the Russian Army already has won a decisive victory. While this may be an exaggeration, both the Russian and German official reports suggest that General Von Hindenburg's second thrust at Warsaw has been checked, Grand Duke Nicholas, Commander-in-Chief of the Russian forces, has for two days in succession recorded partial successes in this great battle. The German Government staff says the arrival of the Russian reinforcements has postponed a decision. Both sides have expressed the greatest confidence of the outcome of this battle. The German papers only yesterday morning were talking of a general Russian retirement, despite the fact that the Russians have been advancing steadily in Galicia, and have repulsed the Austro-German attack before Cracow, and hold part of the German territory in East Prussia, where it is opposing General Von Hindenburg's advance on Warsaw. In Petrograd all correspondents declare it is certain that the Russian numbers must tell when the Germans have reached the ground which Grand Duke Nicholas has chosen to give them battle. While undertaking an immense task in the East, the Germans, according to accounts, are preparing to launch another offensive movement in the West. Just where this is to be is known only of course, by the General Staff alone. It is believed here, however, they will make another effort to get through the French coast, and perhaps at the same time try to force the French line of fortresses in the Argonne region.

A Talk to Mothers.

Mothers, do you know that every time a member of your family sustains a cut, scratch, burn, or bruise, no matter how slight, you take a grave risk in neglecting the injury? The wound may start to fester, and develop into a running sore, or blood poison may set in, resulting in the loss of a limb, or even of life.

Do you know that whatever salve or ointment you apply to the wound enters into the blood and affects the entire system? Therefore in using an ointment containing coarse animal fats or poisonous minerals you are taking a further risk.

Use Zam-Buk—it is free from animal fats and mineral poisons. It is purely herbal, and its soothing, healing, and antiseptic. No germs can live where Zam-Buk has been applied. It will quickly ease the pain and heal the wound. Not only for the minor mishaps, but for the most serious accidents Zam-Buk is best; for babies as well as adults.

Teach your children to apply Zam-Buk whenever they have a mishap, and you will save them much pain and yourself a lot of worry and grief. Keep Zam-Buk always handy; unlike other ointments it will not go rancid, but will keep indefinitely.

Zam-Buk is best for piles, eczema, cuts, burns, bruises, chapped hands, cold sores, ulcers, and all injuries and skin diseases; also as an embrocation for rheumatism, sciatica, stiffened muscles, etc.

At all druggists and stores, or post-paid from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, on receipt of price, 50c. box, 3 boxes for $1.25. For free trial box, send this advertisement, name of paper, and I. C. stamp.

Woman's Sad Case.

For the third time during the past week a 75-year-old widow was arrested last night for vagrancy. The poor creature was found wandering about the streets without home, friends or money. Her case is a particularly sad one and should arouse the sympathy of the authorities, as she only quite recently her son met his death under tragic circumstances.

How to Grow Hair.

The French are now placing on the market a preparation containing the extract from Henna leaves, which is having a phenomenal sale. Sold by your druggist. A large, generous bottle for 50 cents.

Brilliant Lecture by Canon White

A large audience attended the lecture given by Rev. Canon White, Sub-Dean of the C. of E. Cathedral, at the Grenfell Hall last night. The lecture was under the patronage of His Excellency the Governor who attended, accompanied by Lady Davidson. Amongst others present were His Lordship Bishop Jones, Revs. Stamp, Barton, Britton, Rt. Hon. Sir E. P. and Lady Morris, Hon. R. Watson, Hon. J. Harvey, Messrs. Wm. Clapp, J. A. Chit and the members of the Institute Literary Committee. Mr. W. F. Lloyd, Chairman of the Committee, presided and after reading for the audience the latest message from the war, received by His Excellency the Governor, he briefly introduced the lecturer, who for more than an hour, entertained his hearers with an excellent word picture of "The Trail of the War Lord."

The intelligent recapitulation of the causes of the great European struggle was a particular feature of the discourse, and showed that the rev. lecturer was a close student of the subject.

Beginning with a reference to the principal theories advanced, by the German leaders of thought for years past, he said that the effect of these theories had made war inevitable. The struggle had not arisen because England wanted it, nor was it because France still held a grudge for the wrongs of the past; not because Russia wished to restore the prestige which she may have lost in the struggle with Japan, but solely because the German teaching was bound to bear its evil fruit, which was war. The time for war had long since been ripe, and the only thing necessary was a pretext, which, though a rather flimsy one, was furnished by the assassination of the heir to the Austrian throne. There is probably no country where education holds such sway as in Germany, and since the greatest of its teachers favored aggression, the real causes of the war are apparent to any person of ordinary intelligence. The new gospel of Germany is that of Prussian militarism, and stands on the foundation that might is right.

He then quoted from Bernhard's utterances—"War is a duty," "Might is the supreme right," "We (the Germans) must get the supreme sovereignty in trade, and as France is the first obstacle in our way, she must be crushed so completely as to never again be able to cross our path." These and similar teachings have fired the German mind with a mad ambition for world power.

Germany thought of Britain as a decadent nation, and that she could not fight with volunteers as with conscripts. Here again Germany was in error, which fact has been amply proven by the great unity of Empire that is so manifest to the world.

When France and Russia had been laid low, her plan was to turn the still bloody sword on England, and wrest from her the commercial supremacy which Germany so much coveted.

The Trail of the War Lord has been one unparadise trail of destruction. The Kaiser is but the spirit of his nation personified. The address to his soldiers in 1900, when leaving for Peking, was in all probability repeated to the troops that entrained for Belgium in 1914, since he has not changed much during the past fourteen years.

Germany had always prided herself on her culture, but to this she has lost all claims in the eyes of the world. The wanton destruction of the beautiful city of Louvain, the Oxford of Belgium, has completely obliterated that venerable culture of which the proud Germans boasted. In many other instances, in which the camera furnishes evidence, that claim has been lost, notably in the destruction of the Cathedral of Rheims, that boasted a facade of the most beautiful architecture of the middle ages. This together with the beautiful statuary and paintings that now lie in ruins point conclusively to the Trail of the War Lord, and will remain in the memory of the world as an example of the so-called "culture," whose high-priests are Brutality and Force.

Turning his attention to other parts of Belgium the lecturer graphically portrayed the heroism of that little nation, whose ruler was to-day the hero of the world. Her peaceful citizens are our heroic allies. Her Sisters of Mercy, who know no fear have in response to their duty, taken up the work of caring for the wounded and suffering, and have died rather than desert their post.

Thus was the Trail of the War Lord everywhere in this little country, and only a triumphal march to Berlin, and the complete crushing of Prussian militarism for all time will bring compensation to martyred Belgium.

He then went on to show the great task that confronted the British Empire, which was fully realized by the Motherland and the Colonies. The response of Canada and India, of Australia and New Zealand, those island nations of the Southern Seas, and of Newfoundland, all testify to the unity of the Empire. Victory for us will remove the menace of the German navy, and the money now directed towards the equipment of fighting machines will flow through the channels of commerce and result in a lasting peace.

We are but branches of the great tree of Empire, and though we may suffer and fall, our desire should be that the tree will live. Therefore we should continue to fight in the cause of honor, truth and righteousness, hoping with God's help to reach victory and peace.

At the conclusion a hearty vote of thanks was proposed by His Excellency the Governor who congratulated the rev. lecturer on his scholarly discourse, and briefly reviewed the claims of the Germans for world power. His Lordship Bishop Jones, in seconding the motion, referred to the value of such lectures and the great need of them in the outposts, where people had not the opportunities of learning the gravity of the situation. He felt that, though the recurring thus far was progressing favorably, if the gravity of the present crisis in the Empire's history was fully understood, the response would be ten times as great, for it must be said of Newfoundlanders—that there is no such word as cowardice in their vocabulary. After paying a worthy tribute to the rev. lecturer, His Lordship said that he would welcome the news of some steps being taken to have lectures conducted in the principal outposts, so as to make known to the people the need of their help in this great struggle.

The proposition was then put by the Chairman and carried with much applause. The singing of the National Anthem brought the enjoyable evening to a close.

Story of the Terrible Hardships by a Newfoundland Member of the Crew in a Letter to His Parents.

U. S. R. C. Bear, Unalaska, Alaska.

Dear Father and Mother—

I know you will be surprised to hear from me once again, as I suppose you had given me up for lost, but I happened to be one of the lucky ones, and therefore am still alive, and with the exception of a frozen heel I am as well as ever.

I received Alice's letter in Nome last year warning me not to go, but it was too late then as I had signed on for three years. Well, we got caught in the ice off Port Barrow about the middle of August, then we drifted with the ice over five hundred miles to the north west, and on Saturday, January 10th, at 7.30 p.m., we got crushed. We worked hard till midnight getting provisions and skins off her; she sank the next day at 4 p.m. We built two large igloos or snow houses where we all settled down to make skin clothes and mukluks, or boots. We were quite comfortable here as we had lots of coal and oil and plenty to eat; the only thing I did not like about this was the sewing, I would not be a tailor or a woman for

A Hundred Dollars a Week.

Somewhere about the 20th of January a party consisting of 1st Officer Anderson, 2nd Officer Barker, Seaman King, Brady and Mamen and two Eskimos left for Herald Island with three sledges loads of provisions. Mamen and the Eskimos were to return to shipwreck with the dogs and sledges, the others were to stay on the island. Williams and I started the next day to mark trail with flags. It took us about a week. Then the Captain sent us with a load of provisions which we were to cache half-way to the island. We met Mamen and the Eskimos returning. They struck open water three miles off shore where they left the other four to wait for the ice to close up. We returned two days later, had a day's rest, then myself and Eskimos started for the island again with three more loads of provisions. On the 6th day out and about three miles from the island, a breeze of wind sprung up and the ice started to open. Our dogs got in the water several times. In about ten minutes we were left in an ocean of water on a little cake of ice. We built an igloo for the night. The Eskimos were very scared and wanted me to pray. The next day was fine but very cold. We shot some seal. We spent the day looking for some trace of the Mate and his party; we had powerful glasses but could see no trace of them. My belief is that the poor fellows met with the same experience as ourselves and Perished in the Water.

The second night we did not sleep at all as the ice was cracking everywhere; one crack was right across. We emptied our sledges so as to make our escape if we had to. We managed to stick it till noon the next day, when we turned back. We had over a mile of young ice to cross over which was very weak in places. We travelled west and picked up the trail before dark. The next day we met the Doctor and his party of four. They did not agree with the captain's plans so pulled out on their own, hauling their sledges as they had no dogs. One of them had both feet badly frozen and another had a blood-poisoned hand. We gave them some seal meat and an ice pick. This was the last seen of them; it is supposed that they perished also. We arrived back at shipwreck two days later and had two days rest. Then we left with the bunch for Wrangell Island. This was on February the 18th. Ten days later when about thirty miles off the island we struck an ice ridge about fifty feet high, three miles through and over one hundred miles long. It took us six days to cut a trail through the three miles. In the meantime Mamen and I went back about ten miles for some biscuits that were cached there. We made this in one day. The next day Hadley Mackinley and I went back to shipwreck for two more loads of biscuit and pemican. We got back just as they had finished cutting the trail through the ridge. The next day Captain Bartlett, an Eskimo and I started out to make a trail to the island, the remainder of the bunch were relaying the provisions along. We arrived on the island on March the 12th after a hard trip of twenty-five days. The next day Chief Engineer Munro and I went back about fifteen miles for some provisions. Then I got sick with the grippe. On March 17th Capt. Bartlett and an Eskimo set out for Siberia. He took a note for each of us, hope you got it all right. On April the 1st I was better and Munro Williams and I set out on a long journey to shipwreck for more provisions. After spending

Seven Days Looking for the Trail

We turned back, then we struck open water and bad ice. On the 8th Williams fell through the ice with his sledge and in trying to get him out Munro and I got in also. We got out all right then got the sledge out and got under way again. But we had not got a hundred yards when the ice opened between us and left us separated. Munro and Williams left their sledge and arrived on the island the next night. I built an igloo for myself and turned in. The next day the ice closed and I got under way for the island. I spent four days trying to make the island. The fourth day I made the ridge which I mentioned in another part of this letter. This was thirty miles from the island. The next day was snowing and blowing so I decided to leave the sledge. I chained one of the dogs to my wrist and started for the island at 4 p.m. The wind was getting stronger all the time and before long it was a blizzard. I could not see where I was going as the trail was covered, but my good little dog managed to keep it for me. It is marvellous how they keep the trail when it is covered with three and four feet of snow. About 9 o'clock that night I had given up reaching the island as it was pitch dark. I was looking around for a cake of ice for shelter when I suddenly walked upon the beach and a ice broke up and drifted away, so we could not get any more birds or seal. The natives started to make a small kyak (boat) out of the seal skins we had, this was to get out to the ice which was two or three miles off. The seals and walrus keep to the ice, so that when you lose the ice you lose your food supply. During the time he was making the kyak we had to live on the seal blubber for thirteen days with an occasional sea gull in between. Managed to get a gull for tea on my birthday, July 14th, but had seal blubber for breakfast. Finished the kyak July 28th and got a walrus the next day, then we got an ugruk (a bearded seal) each day for the next three days. This was too good to last so we did not get any more. About the 20th of August we came down to the seal blubber again for ten days more. Then the birds were taking to the water with their young ones. They were so thick on the little pools of water that formed on the ice that the native killed over three hundred in two days. On the 7th of September came the big surprise. I was sitting in the tent dressing my foot when I heard the native give a yell. Then Hadley and Mackinley ran out and started to shout.

I knew what it meant so I joined them to, all hands shouting to the top of their voices. I tell you that bandage went on my foot in short time. I hauled on my mukluk and rushed out. Away in the distance I could see the rails of a little schooner in the mist. It was the finest sight of my life. Hadley fired seven shots, and the native ran off over the ice to try cut her off in case she did not hear us. We kept our eyes on her and soon she headed for us and dropped her sails. There were two miles of ice between us, so she tied up to it. Mr. Swanson and about a dozen natives came over the ice to us, also two moving picture men and a couple of other members of the crew. Mr. Swanson was first to arrive on the beach. His first words were, "The whole of Europe is in war." That did not worry us much as long as we knew we were saved. You can imagine the questions we asked him; the poor man must have been mesmerized. Then they took some moving pictures and we went aboard. They had a fine dinner ready for us; the first thing we made for was a piece of bread and butter; then we had a little whiskey and a fine dinner after which we had a wash the first for eight months. They gave us some civilized clothes and we threw our old ones overboard. We had a good tea and a drink before we turned in. We could not sleep as we were too happy so we turned out again and spent the night eating. The next day we sighted the Bear. Capt. Bartlett came aboard but could not speak for several seconds. He just shook hands, then we went aboard the Bear and spent the afternoon drinking whiskey; shame. I drunk more whiskey than I did all my life, but haven't touched it since. The doctor dressed my foot, then we had tea and turned in early. The next day we had more moving pictures taken. Arrived at Nome on Sunday, the 13th. All the business men and photographers and every one that had a camera came aboard. The doctor would not let me go ashore for several days, that was very hard for me as it was so long since I walked a street. After staying at Nome for four days we went to St. Michael's, St. Lawrence Island, King Island and Port Clarence and back to Nome. Then we left for home stopping at Unalaska for two weeks to repair boilers. We arrived here on Sunday, Oct. 25th, and put up at the Dominion Hotel where I am still stopping. The following Tuesday I went out to the rifle range not expecting to hit the target, but I surprised them all when I won the long range prize at 1,000 yards, and tied with two others for the short range prize. They said I had too much polar bear practice. When I left here we only had about eighty members, since the war started we have three hundred and fifty members including all the business men and big clubs of the city.

Appreciation.

"Oh, these pen-cakes are sublime," brightly cries Josiah Fiddle; "mother, in the olden time, thought that she could wield a griddle; she was always getting praise, and deserved it; I maintain; but she, in her palmy days, couldn't touch you, Sarah Jane. Oh, the king upon his throne for such fodder surely aches; you are in a class alone, when it comes to griddle cakes." Then upon his shining dome he adjusts his lid and goes, and his wife remains at home, making pies and things like those. She is stewing luscious prunes, in her eye a happy tear, and her heart is singing tunes such as angels like to hear. O'er and o'er she still repeats all the kindly words he said, as she fixes further treats, pumpkin pie and gingerbread. When the evening's growing gray, following the set of sun, "This has been a perfect day," murmurs she, her labors done. Perfect nearly all the days of our loved one well might be, if with words of honest praise we were generous and free.

Have You an Itchy Spot?

Somewhere on your body? If so, attend to it at once. In Eczema—and itchy spots, whether dry and scurfy, or moist and inclined to "weep," are generally eczematous—delays are foolish, allowing the disease to spread and affect more of the good skin. Your best chance for a cure is to use Zylex, which will give almost instant relief, and if used in the earlier stages of the trouble will almost certainly bring a cure, and in any event will greatly ameliorate the trouble. A Bronchial Cough, Perhaps Weak Throat Use "Catarrhozone"---Dead Sure Cure

Wonderful Success Reported in Thousands of Bad Cases.

How many thousands are there who would gladly pay any sum to be cured of bronchitis or catarrh. Many could be cured if they would just use common sense in selecting their remedy. Bronchitis of course is an inflammation of the bronchial tubes which were made for the passage of air alone, and neither the moisture of an atomiser nor the liquid of a cough syrup can get where the trouble really is. The diseased parts can only be reached by a remedy that can force its way through all the breathing organs. Doctors who have used "Catarrhozone" say it is the only rational cure for bronchitis. It cures by inhalation. You breathe in its healing balsam,

Inhale its soothing antiseptic vapor and relief is immediate. Simple to use, delightful and pleasant---nothing compares with Catarrhozone which is the cure of the day for all bronchial and throat troubles. Mr. H. B. McLaughlin, the well-known representative of Parks and Blackwell, Toronto, says: "I have used Catarrhozone for years and can honestly say it is the only remedy that relieves me from a painful attack of Bronchial Catarrh. The inhaler for Catarrhozone is always in my pocket and I simply couldn't get along without it. I firmly believe Catarrhozone is a wonderful remedy." Large size sufficient for two months' use, guaranteed $1.00; small size 50c.; sample or trial size 25c. Sold by dealers everywhere.

Jerseymen in Newfoundland.

By H. F. SHORTIS.

(Concluded.) In this connection I just wish to mention a few of the descendants of Jerseymen who hold very prominent positions in our Island Home to-day: Henry W. LeMessurier, who takes such complete charge of our Customs House, and all financial matters connected with it. Every one recognizes his able and guiding hand. His methodical grasp of statistics places the whole community under the deepest obligation to him. He comes from a sturdy and long lived family, and may have many years yet to receive further acknowledgments of gratitude from an appreciative people.

If there is one position in our Government that commands the greatest respect of all it is our Auditor General, who holds the balance of power, irrespective of party adherence. Who do we find in charge but the son of another worthy Jersey family, F. C. Berteau. He has held this position for many years with honor to himself and our country.

Now we come to the indefatigable Secretary of the Newfoundland Board of Trade, Ernest A. Payne. Any one who has much to do with our merchants knows how hard it is to get along amicably with them, and it speaks volumes for Mr. Payne to find him so popular with all, and placing the work of this institution on a higher plane than it has ever been before.

Visitors to our outports frequently state what a great many places or settlements have Jersey rooms, but there is not a dwelling house or a fishing establishment to show, perhaps there is a grassy mound on the cellar of an old house. In Placentia we have a splendid spring of water to mark the old site and nothing else. No one, not even the oldest inhabitants can tell when they were occupied by Jerseymen. In many places in the island there are private graveyards, which the oldest inhabitants will tell you are the resting places of Jersey families. The traditions cling to the old spot but the race of these fine old Jerseymen in many places have died out.

Now I must give you a few well known names of the Jersey firms doing business in Newfoundland in the early part of the last century.

Philip Nicolle, Straits of Belle Isle and West Coast.

David de Quetteville, Blanc Sablon. William Fruling & Co., Lance-au-Loup and Gaspé. To this day Morel is their agent at the present time.

Clement, Renouf & Co., on the West Coast, afterwards known as De-many descendants, one of which was Claudius Watts, another Capt. Frank Taylor, of sealing renown, and if you wish to know more about her ask the genial Capt. James Pike, now living in Carbonara.

In the John Guy controversy four years ago, old Captain Thomey gave us some interesting stories about the old Jersey foundations on which his grandfather had built their houses at Mosquito (now Bristol's Hope), over one hundred and fifty years ago.

Capt. Nicholas Peddle also told us of traditions from his forefathers about the Jersey houses in that old settlement with red brick tiles for the roofs. I mention these facts now to establish the real ancient connection of these older settlements in the country with the Jersey Islands.

We have well authenticated information of how the most of the buildings were erected in Newfoundland even one hundred years ago. Many of them were nothing better than what our fishing stages are like to-day, and many were mere mud hovels, but the "stone houses" in Harbor Grace and red tile roofs at Bristol's Hope show that the Jerseymen considered themselves far superior to the general class.

There are many disconnected stories in Jersey about trade with Newfoundland, as far back as the commencement of the 16th century, but there was no Hakluyt in Jersey to keep a proper record of the many voyages, and therefore what we do find is only a crumb here and there.

Mr. E. T. Nicholle, a celebrated lawyer of Jersey, who has been making a research, writes that in the 17th, 18th and 19th centuries up to 1850, the trade between Jersey and Newfoundland was very extensive. He has found one record in the Royal Court dating April, 1591, where a Jerseymen, who had obtained a license from the Governor to go to Newfoundland, had returned thence to St. Ma'o in France, and sold his cargo of fish there. On arriving at Jersey this fact became known, and he was fined by the Court for evading the payment of dues to the Crown, and it was also stated that the inhabitants required the fish for their own use, and should have had the first offer of it. This poor chap appears to have made the mistake of taking out a license, or he would never have immortalized himself in the Jersey annals.

In the Histories of Jersey, mention is always made that Sir Walter Raleigh was Governor there in the year 1600, and he continued Governor for three years. In some books it is stated that he established the fishing trade with Newfoundland, but Mr. E. T. Nicholle states that this is quite incorrect, what he did was to encourage the trade with Newfoundland at that time. I am also pleased to note that Mr. Nicholle quite believes that the Jerseymen were in Newfoundland before John Cabot's discovery in 1497.

There is still so much to write about on this subject that I find it hard to stop, as I could enumerate ever so many racy stories, and there are many names left out that should be mentioned, but I must say to any who may feel vexed that it is not intentional on my part, but it is impossible to say all I would like at this time.

In bringing this article to a close, let me mention two of the fair Jersey lilies of our town, who are proud of their attachment to the Channel Islands. Mrs. John Browning, formerly a Miss Hubert, had relatives at Harbor Breton, but was born in Jersey, and few there are to surpass her.

The wife of our Premier, Sir Edward Morris, was formerly Miss Le Gallis (born in Newfoundland), who still has many relatives in Jersey, where the son of our Premier is now being educated, and let us all hope he will follow in the worthy steps of his father.

Germany Must Play for a Draw.

"It is necessary that the British people should consider very clearly the true invardness of the desperate attempt of the Germans to reach Calais," says the London Times. "We have to remember that the original German plans, which were based upon the expectation of a series of overwhelming triumphs, have been shattered. The Germans cannot now hope to beat the Russians. Warsaw and the constant failure of the Austrians have shown us that. Unless something extremely unexpected happens in France, it is not at all likely that they can reach Paris. Their hopes were based upon swift successes, but they did not obtain them and they are confronted by enemies who steadily grow stronger."

GAME OF BLUFF.

"They cannot achieve their original purpose, but they can still strive for a draw, and aim at concluding a perhaps not wholly unprofitable peace. To accomplish that end, it is above all things necessary for them to weaken the moral resolution of Great Britain. This is the true object of their advance towards Calais, a secondary object being to revive the drooping spirits of their own people."

"They know very well why they want Calais. They hope in vulgar parlance, to 'establish a funk' in this country. It is our business to see that they fail, and to that end the British nation must consider the question of Calais quite calmly, and make up its mind that a dozen German army corps in Calais would leave us quite undisturbed."

Any Curable Muscular or Joint Pain is Instantly Relieved by Nerviline.

GET A TRIAL BOTTLE TO-DAY.

You don't have to wait all day to get the kink out of a stiff neck if you rub on Nerviline. And you don't need to go around complaining about lumbago any more. You can rub such things away very quickly with Nerviline. It's the grandest liniment, the quickest to penetrate, the speediest to ease muscular pain of any kind.

One twenty-five cent trial bottle of Nerviline will cure any attack of lumbago or lame back. This has been proved a thousand times, just as it was in the case of Mrs. E. J. Grayden, of Calcutta, who writes: "I wouldn't think of going to bed without knowing we had Nerviline in the house. I have used it for twenty odd years and appreciate its value as a family remedy more and more every day. If any of the children gets a stiff neck, Nerviline cures quickly. If it is earache, toothache, cold on the chest, sore throat, Nerviline is always my standby. My husband once cured himself of a frightful attack of lumbago by Nerviline, and for a hundred ailments that turn up in a large family Nerviline is by far the best thing to have about you."

Surprising News.

Then there are our ships. Dinna ve loss min' o' oor ships. There was a cruiser launched a mile or so frae this hoose a month or twa afore the war began, an' after she was launched, mackerel heart' o' her till last week. If there had been nae war, we wad hae had paragraphs about her leavin' the Clyde, an' about her trials, an' her guns, an' a' the rest. But the vera first the public kent o' that boat was when the Admiralty calmly intimat' that she an' four new destroyers had sunk four German destroyers. That's hoo we dae things noo-a-days. Nae flag-flyin', or trumpet-blowin', or talk about the big things we are to dae when we mak' a start, but just the slippin' awa' quietly, an' then the actual dashin' o' the job. An', no only the cruisers, but a' the four British destroyers were new, an' three o' them were built on the Clyde. After that who can say that we dinna live near the war?

Hearts That Stop Still.

"One's heart stops still at the thought---what if this misery were to befall our own people in the dear Fatherland!" This from a German soldier's letter telling of the plight of women and children of Belgium in the wake of Germany's army of invasion. Perhaps here is one German who will not wonder that the heart of the neutral world has "stopped still" at the spectacle of a great nation, a nation that lays claim to leadership in civilization and culture, wantonly inflicting such misery upon the people of a neighboring nation whom it had given its solemn pledge to protect.---New York Herald.

More Fires.

Mrs. provoke immediate sympathy for the sufferer and also thankfulness for personal escape. Another thought should be whether one is personally and sufficiently protected? An insurance policy with Percie Johnson would provide for you this desired security and at small expense. Have you enough insurance?

Brothers-in-Arms.

Pleasant home thoughts come to the men on the Plain. The rolling Wiltshire downs strongly remind the sons of Alberta of the western prairie. The men have little besides the maple leaf in their caps to distinguish their appearance from that of British recruits. The shoulder-straps, with the word "Canada" stamped on them, are of different colours, blue for infantry, green for riflemen, red for artillery, white for Army Service Corps, and so on. For the rest, they look just like plain British fighting men.

A smart Newfoundland contingent which has recently come in has the name of the colony similarly on its shoulder-straps. The new-comers are usually distinguished from the Canadians by their blue puttees. The type of man is the same—sturdy, strong, and unassuming. They are a splendid body of men, and had a great welcome from their brothers-in-arms.—London Times.

German Colonial Empire Crumbling.

New York, Nov. 9.—Under the headline "Germany's Shattered Dream of Colonial Empire," the New York Tribune this morning says editorially: "The loss of the Kiaochow concession in China shatters Germany's dream of a colonial empire. The acquisition of a foothold in China was one of the great strokes of past-Bismarckian diplomacy. It gave the Kaiser 'a place in the sun' in Eastern Asia, and with it the right to discuss as a principal all questions relating to the maintenance or extension of European influence in that quarter of the world.

"Germany had to be reckoned with as well as Great Britain, Russia and France, as a factor in the Far Eastern question. In itself Kiaochow was not a dependency of enormous value, but, from the point of view of those who were developing Germany's colonial policy, the Chinese concession was of more worth politically and strategically than any other German colony.

Falling to Pieces.

"Now the colonial structure, erected at such great cost and pains, is falling to pieces.

"No result of the European war now seems more certain than the disappearance of Germany's scattered dependencies.

"Reaching out for the colonies of other nations, Germany has now lost most of her own. France has not been crushed, and there is no reason to think that she will be. On the contrary, she may ultimately be in a position to take over some of Germany's outlying dependencies.

Death for French-Shepherd Traitor.

Chalons-sur-Marne, via Paris, Nov. 17.—A Frenchman, Alfred Durot by name, has been sentenced to death by court-martial for treason.

During the battle which raged around Rheims on September 9, the French artillery operating near the village of Puiselle, was subjected to a terrific bombardment by the Germans, no matter how often they changed their positions.

A careful watch was kept, and it was discovered that a mile in front of the French batteries a shepherd was feeding his flock, among which were five snow-white goats.

"The shepherd was arrested, and inquiries showed that during the German occupation of Puiselle he was the only inhabitant who had not been molested, and that he had been given the white goats, whose presence was to signal the position of the French guns.

Durot, at his trial, admitted his guilt.

Story of Highlander.

There is a story which I give with pleasure—for anything is welcome which relieves the ferocity of the battlefield. A Highlander is discovered by his comrades wearing a German helmet, and is asked for an explanation. This is the explanation: He was lying with a wounded leg which was bleeding freely, and close to him was a German soldier also severely wounded and also bleeding freely. "I managed to crawl up to him" and bound his as best I could," said the Highlander. "He did the same for me." "At this, of course, was awfully said between us, for I knew no German, and the other man no word of English. When he'd done, not seem' how else to thank him I just smiled, an' by way of token handed him my Glengarry, an' he smiled back and gave me his helmet."
