The secret of a perfect SALAD. Add to the dressing a few drops of

LEA & PERRINS' SAUCE

A QUEEN UNCROWNED

—OR—
THE STORY IN THE LONE INN.

CHAPTER II.

Softly removing his heavy boots, he stole noiselessly down the stairs, and through the crevice in the door he could plainly see and hear all that passed in the room—himself unobserved. Three men—one stout, middle-aged and short; the other two young, and of almost gigantic stature, either of whom might have taken a premium for villainous countenances—sat around the fire, talking in low, earnest voices. The woman Grizelle, the most villainous-looking of the lot, sat beside the elder, and it was her voice he first heard.

"I tell you it's worth fifty pounds, if it's worth a farthing!" she was saying. "It was set with gems—real brilliants, too—none of your sham cheats; and he's a born aristocrat himself, if ever I saw one—nothing of the swell or humbug about him. Of course, he has more money with him than that; and you will find him the best bird you have plucked this many a day."

"But the pistols?" said the short, stout man.

"Pooh! he's asleep before this. The light's out of his room, and, even with his pistols, what can he do in the dark—against three? He thinks we will come in at the door, if he thinks of it at all, which is not likely, though he is wide awake, I can tell you! What does he know about the trap under the bed? I tell you, there's no danger, and it will be five hundred pounds, if not more, in your pocket. What makes it better, he's a stranger, too—I know he is; though he was a close as an oyster, and dodged every question I asked him."

Some strange, magnetic attraction made the young man remove his eyes from the speaker's face, and he was startled to encounter a pair of great, wild, glittering black orbs fixed full upon him—riveted to his face. It was the child, Oriole, crouched up in a corner, her great black eyes bearing full upon him.

He half raised his hand as if to warn her to be silent when the voice of one of the young men caught and fixed his attention.

"Of course, there's no danger; and that fellow's as safely done for as if his throat was slit from ear to ear this minute. When are we to settle him, mother?"

"I'll go up to his door and listen first," said the woman, rising, "and try to find out whether he's asleep, or only shamming. I'll be back in a minute."

"He'll soon sleep sound enough, I'll warrant him," said the other young man, stirring up the fire, with a laugh.

A that moment the young stranger felt a hand, icy cold, grasp his wrist from behind, with a grip of iron; and, and, with a half-repressed ejaculation, he turned around to see who had caught him.

CHAPTER III.

"Hush!" said a terrified voice, "don't make a noise—don't speak! It's only me."

I was the voice of the child, Oriole. The young man glanced in wonder to the place where he had seen her last, but it was empty now.

"Come upstairs, quick! Oh, hurry, hurry!" exclaimed the child, in an agonized whisper, as her little hand clinched his wrist for a moment, with almost supernatural strength, and then she fitted lightly and noiselessly as a shadow up the stairs.

There was no time to lose. The woman, who had stood listening while they spoke, now started to cross the room, and the stranger, taking two or three steps at a time, sprang lightly up the stairs and entered his chamber.

Little Oriole was there before him; and the moment he entered, she shot back the bolt and secured the door.

"Hush! Listen!" said the child, in the same startled whisper. "Make a noise when she comes, so she won't think you are asleep. If she hears you awake, she won't come in just yet."

The creaking sound stairs invariably persists in making when one treads them on tiptoes, warned them that the lady of the house was at hand, and the young man, acting on the child's hint, began to whistle, pausing now and then, and moving through the room as though he were preparing for bed. Oriole stood with her ear glued to the keyhole, listening with all her might, holding up one little finger warningly, and now and then giving him an approving nod. At last she raised her head, and drew a long breath.

"She's gone," she said, coming over and looking earnestly up in his face; "but she'll come back, and so will he—old Till, and Kit, and Blaise."

"My dear little girl, how in the world came you on the stairs that time?" said the young man, who at first had been inclined to distrust her; but the terror and earnestness of her face was too real to be assumed.

"I saw you, and came around the back way—there's another pair of stairs at the end of the house, that we come up sometimes, and I had to come around, or old Grizelle would have seen me. But, oh! what will you do?" she exclaimed, clasping her hands. "They'll all come up by and by, and take all your money, and then—"

"Well, and then?" said the young man, looking at the child with more curiosity than anything else.

"They'll put you down the cellar!" said Oriole, in an awe-stricken whisper, her large eyes dilating with horror.

"Will they?" said the stranger. "I'm not so sure about that. But, good heavens! what an infernal den this must be! Do they often put people down the cellar, as you call it—which, being translated, means murdering them, I suppose?"

"Oh, no—not often. I only saw them put one down; and old Grizelle said—" and the child clung to him as she spoke, and her great black eyes grew wild and horror-stricken again—"that if I ever told she would put me down with him. Oh! don't you tell her! Oh! don't tell her!" she cried, clasping her little hands in an agony of entreaty.

"Tell her, my dear little saviour!" said the young man, sitting down on a chair, and lifting her up on his knee. "Not I, indeed! What makes you live in such an accursed place?"

Oriole lifted up her black eyes, and looked at him in the greatest astonishment at such a question.

"Why, because I've got to," she said decidedly.

"What relation is this old hag of Hades to you, my child?"

"She ain't nothin' to me, as I know of, I ain't nothin' to nobody I guess."

"Then how came you to live her with her?"

"Lor! how should I know?" said the child, with an impatient jerk of her shoulders. "Where's the good of your asking about that, when you know well enough they're coming up to kill you, by and by?"

"That's true enough, by Jove!" said the young man, starting up. "We must take measures to baffle their kind intentions, my precocious little friend. I heard them mention a trapdoor under the bed when I was listening on the stairs, and here goes to look for it."

He attempted to move the bed as he spoke, but it resisted all his efforts.

"You can't move it," said Oriole, "and there ain't no use a-tryin'. Don't you see it's nailed down?"

"Well, but what about the trap? I must see after that, my little sprite." And he lifted the valance of the bed, and stooped down to examine the floor.

"Ugh!" said Oriole, with a shudder; "that's the way they go down cellar, and that's the way they'll come up here. Don't you lift up—I wouldn't go near it for the world! Oh, I forgot! You can't, anyway, 'cause it's fastened underneath."

"So, then, there's nothing to be done but to sit here and wait till they think proper to come and finish me," said the young man, rising and walking up and down the room—"mighty pleasant prospect, upon my word! I might as well deliver my last will and testament, verily at once, to this queer little dame, and then devote the remainder of the time to preparing for heaven, or—the other place! I say, my little friend, I wonder they are so imprudent as to allow you to know about these blood-chilling things, or to be in the room with them while they are plotting their hellish designs!"

Dinner Hour Arouses Animals of Jungle

HELD CAPTIVE IN ZOO.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 25.—(A. P.)—A large female dog, dispossessed of her puppies is the best friend of Sol Stephen, curator of the Cincinnati Zoological Garden. She is used quite frequently to nurture the younger members of the cat family who have been cast aside by their natural mothers.

Several of the jungle cats which inhabit the zoo have had a female dog as their adopted mother. To look at them, however, no one would suspect that they had been brought up by "foster" parents, and Mr. Stephen asserted he would not be able to tell if it were not for the fact that he brought the female dog to them.

Big, strong and healthful these cats, the offspring of ferocious jungle animals, are complacent in their new environment until feeding time. They are aware of this hour, and make deep penetrating roars. The majority of the younger cats have been nursed by a mother dog, but they are not as tranquil and decorous as the mother dog would want them to be. As soon as they are able to pull their bodies around they start acting in a manner true to the strain that runs through their veins.

They pull and tear at the old mother dog, make the hideous, wailing cry in general. While the kittens can get in to their natural mother to a certain degree, they all seem to sense the limit, according to Mr. Stephen, and stop their rough play in time to avoid a swift cuff with the paw.

Abandonment of kittens by their mothers is not a rarity. This season Mr. Stephen has had unusual good luck to have all the cats remain with their kittens. Odd as it may seem, the male of the pair pays but a mite of attention to his offspring. Seemingly to him the cubs are annoying, for in a majority of cases he will have nothing to do with them.

The zoo has one of the greatest collections of animals in the country. It has been honored by the birth of triplets to Lela, the lioness, and twins to the leopardess. Mr. Stephen said this was one of the few times that triplets have been born to any of the cat families here.

Not a Fly-by Night Product

Pearline is no new product on the market, but a tried and proven commodity of great value and service. Fifteen, twenty years ago Pearline was helping the women of St. John's to do easier washing, and at that time Pearline was practically the only washing powder used. For some years it has been unobtainable locally, but it is here again now and already getting back its old time popularity. Pearline is without doubt the most efficient washing powder. For perfect cleaning be sure to use Pearline. At your grocer's—D

French Bishop Defies Dress

WOMEN SHOULD WEAR TO CHURCH.

PARIS.—(A. P.)—The length of the sleeves of a woman's dress which is suitable wear for the observance of church services has been laid down by the Bishop of Clermont-Ferrand in a notice which he has asked the priests to bring before their flocks.

Wearers of dresses wanting in modesty, the circular states—with the explanation that decency forbids low cut necks and sleeves that do not reach the elbow—should be asked to leave the church; and if they present themselves thus attired at the Holy Communion, the priest should pass them by. Their own priest later should give them "a paternal warning" on the subject.

A tailored suit of pink alpaca is worn with a hat of natural straw, banded in black.

Herriot Has Close Call on Confidence Vote—U.S. Fliers at Ivigtut—Lipton Will Again Challenge for the Cup.

HERIOT'S CONFERENCE VOTE.
PARIS, Aug. 24. The Chamber of Deputies early this morning voted confidence in the Herriot cabinet by 336 to 304, following a long debate in the Chamber on the Government's action at the London Conference. (Note correction in later message.)

LIPTON TO CHALLENGE AGAIN.
NEW YORK, Aug. 24. Great interest has been aroused in yachting circles here by cable reports that Sir Thomas Lipton will challenge again for the America's cup in connection with the reports, it is being recalled that Sir Thomas had stated publicly a number of times he could never win the cup while Nat Herreshoff designed the United States cup defender. Herreshoff had designed the boats that defeated the various Shamrock entries of Sir Thomas. He recently sold his shipyards.

U. S. FLIERS AT IVIGTUT.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 24. The world fliers have arrived at Ivigtut, Greenland. The two planes made the jump from Frederiksdal in two hours and fifteen minutes, the Army Air Service was informed today.

NO SIGN YET OF LOCATELLI.
On Board U. S. S. Lawrence, off the Coast of Greenland, Aug. 23, (delayed)—The United States cruiser Richmond and Raleigh to-day launched 2 airplanes each with the object of making ready for brief surveys of the region round about in search for the missing Italian aviator, Lieut. Locatelli. At considerable hazard the aviators were catapulted from the ship over the ice strewn waters. The weather at the time was not propitious. A message has been broadcasted to all ships in Greenland coast harbors asking to join in the search, and an Eskimo party also is being recruited for that purpose. Lack of adequate charts and communications complicates matters, but with more favourable weather, which is expected to-morrow, more satisfactory results may be attained.

TEN KILLED BY TORNADO.
NEW ORLEANS, La., Aug. 24. Ten persons were killed and nine injured when a tornado demolished St. Phillip's Church at St. Patrick's, La., about forty miles from here, at 3:40 o'clock this afternoon.

OLIVER ELECTED.
NELSON, B.C., Aug. 24. Premier John Oliver was elected in the bye election here Saturday by a majority of 338 over Harry Houston, Independent. The vote was, Oliver, 1124; Houston, 786.

300,000,000 BUSHEL CROP.
VANCOUVER, B.C., Aug. 23. A three hundred million bushel crop is my estimate, stated W. L. Parrish, Winnipeg grain man, in the course of a discussion on the crop situation yesterday. "That is not so big as last year's record, but with the advance in prices it means the farmers who have crops will make about the same money."

OBSERVING MARS.
BERNE, Switzerland, Aug. 24. Friday night's observations of Mars at the new Jungfrau observatory, 10,000 feet above the sea level, failed owing to a heavy storm. This was a great disappointment to the astronomers, who, however, on the preceding night succeeded in obtaining some fine observations of the planet, notably of the canals and polar regions. The observations are being continued.

NOT FROM MARS.
LONDON, Aug. 23. Professor Low, who was among those present at Dulwich this morning at one o'clock when strange and unidentified signals were received on a twenty-four tube radio set, is not of opinion that they came from Mars. I think it must have been a combination of atmospheric and other influences. I think it impossible that it could be a message from any outside planet.

NOT MYSTERIOUS.
VICTORIA, Aug. 24. The so-called mysterious signals picked up by British Columbia wireless stations recently, are not mysterious at all, according to E. J. Houghton, Supt. of the Dominion Government wireless service. "The Department is somewhat annoyed that any of their staff should make public announcements of any nature concerning the operation of its stations or whatever transpires therein," Supt. Houghton said. The signals reported to be so mysterious were merely those sent from the United States radio stations on their new tonic train transmitter.

ON THE WAY.
SOUTHAMPTON, Aug. 23. In holiday attire, with flags flying and bunting waving, the giant liner Berengaria, with the Prince of Wales on board, sailed for the United States at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon.

CANADIAN SOLDIERS TO ENTER POLITICAL FIELD.
VANCOUVER, B.C., Aug. 24. Returned soldiers in Canada have definitely decided to organize a Federal political party throughout the Dominion, according to an announcement made here by the Provincial Command headquarters of the Grand Army of United Veterans.

G. W. V. A. NOT CONNECTED.
OTTAWA, Aug. 24. The G. W. V. A. has no connection with the movement of the Grand Army of United Veterans to organize a Federal political party of returned soldiers, declared Grant C. MacNeill, Dominion Secretary of the G. W. V. A., when shown the despatch from Vancouver stating that the campaign would be commenced immediately.

Belmont Man Drowns at Truro

TRURO, Mass., Aug. 1.—While his wife and three children stood on the shore frantically screaming for help Gilbert Woolfrey, 35 years old, of 36 Jeanette Avenue, Belmont, was swept into deep water at Corn Hill beach near here to-day and drowned. As he disappeared under the waters, Mrs. Woolfrey sank to the sands, her children clustering about her in terror. Two men whose names are unknown went to the assistance of the drowning man, but shortly before they reached him, their boat in attempting to come about was overturned and the rescuers had some difficulty righting their craft and getting ashore.

The Woolfrey family motored down from Boston presumably for an extended stay on the Cape. They had temporarily taken quarters at a hotel in Truro and late in the afternoon Mr. Woolfrey decided to go in swimming at the beach at Corn Hill. At this point there is a swift off-shore current and bathers are invariably warned against going out too far unless expert swimmers.

Caught in Current.
Woolfrey plunged into the waters after a few minutes of play with his children on the beach. He swam far out, occasionally shouting a message to those on shore. When he felt the clutch of the treacherous current, Woolfrey struggled to get back to smoother water. He called to his wife to get help but the two men whose boat later capsized had seen his danger and pushed out to attempt a rescue. Woolfrey's cries became weaker and weaker and his wife called frantically to the men to hurry and to her husband that he would soon be saved. When some 50 feet from the drowning man the rowing boat overturned. Woolfrey then sank from sight when the overturned boat was sighted he was nowhere in sight.

Body Recovered.
Meantime Mrs. Woolfrey had collapsed on the beach. An hour later the body, having caught in a strong eddy, was carried toward the beach. It was recovered and taken to Truro and will be removed to the family home at Belmont.

Woolfrey who was a building contractor, had lived in Belmont 10 years. In addition to his immediate family he is survived by three brothers and his father, who lives at Lewisport, Newfoundland. Robert Pride and James Pride of this city are brothers-in-law of the deceased.

Meeting to Organize Playground Association

To-morrow night a public meeting will be held in Grenfell Hall. A playground Association is going to be formed for the purpose of providing the boys and girls of our city with an opportunity for good, wholesome play under leadership. Guidance in play for children is essential, for the play time is the most important time in the life of the child. It is then that he gets the greater part of his all-round development of character, mind and body. Playtime can be wasted time or it can be spent with untold profit. Which shall it be for the boys and girls of St. John's?

There are many, many boys and girls in St. John's playing in narrow, dangerous streets or dirty alleys, who need these playgrounds badly. As one prominent speaker in the United States, when speaking on the increase of population in cities said, "There is not one city of any size in the country that is decently caring for all of its children." How about St. John's? Is it decently caring for all of its children? One doesn't have to look far to find convincing proof in the negative. But playgrounds will help the situation. Are you going to be one of those who will help support this movement which is so necessary to the best development of the children and consequently to all the citizens of St. John's?

Are you willing to aid in diminishing the chances of accident to the boys and girls of our city, and to diminish rowdyism, idleness, and juvenile delinquency? Are you willing to help develop in the children health, character and happiness? Then come to the meeting to-morrow night and join the Playground Association.

"The Hunchback of Notre Dame"

THE WORLD'S MOVING PICTURE ACHIEVEMENT.

Those who were privileged to witness yesterday afternoon the private showing of this wonderful production were nothing less than astounded at the picture, for not despite all they had heard and read, even dreamed of the massive production they were going to see.

Lon Chaney as "The Hunchback" played the part nothing short of marvelous. His make up being true to the character in the story itself. Patsy Ruth Miller, the leading lady, played her part in such a way as to bring tears to some of the audience, and Norman Kerry as the gallant captain left nothing to be desired. The different scenes are a masterpiece of architecture particularly that of the Cathedral of Notre Dame, and the underworld dugouts. As will be seen from the ad. you are going to be asked to pay an increased admission during this engagement. This is due to the fact that we, in turn had to pay a staggering sum to secure such a magnificent production, as well as the fact that it comes to Newfoundland before Canada, so that the theatrical going people will be afforded an opportunity of witnessing it as it was shipped from Universal City, California direct from the producers hands. The first performance starts sharp at 7 and all who can are asked to be in their seats for the first showing.

Have you a Suit or Overcoat to make? We make a speciality of making up customers own goods at prices that are absolutely the lowest for first class work. FARRELL THE TAILOR, 310 Water Street.—nov17.

Hiding Our Light Under a Bushel

We have plainly been told that the Newfoundland Cod Liver Oil is far superior to that of Norway or any other of the fish producing countries. Its medicinal properties have been explained and its curative effects fully demonstrated. It is to be obtained in unlimited quantities and the world is in urgent need of it.

The work of the American scientists, who have spent the greater part of two seasons in Newfoundland, has been eminently successful, and is of importance, not alone to the interests which they directly represent, but in particular to the field of medicine. To our trade it gives a stimulus and we should not be slow to take advantage of it.

It is curious that although the people in Newfoundland have always made considerable use of cod liver oil for medicinal purposes, the preparations sold in our stores are invariably made from the Norwegian product. What is more, the manufacturers have taken care to mark it as such, and although it had not been previously demonstrated that our oil was of a superior quality, we knew that it was not inferior, but no attempt was made to contest the market with our rivals. On the contrary, we were content to be customers of theirs at their price.

Now that assurances have been given that there is no longer any question of doubt as to which is the more valuable, there is no reason whatever why we should continue to import what we can produce, and even less excuse for consuming an inferior medicine when we already possess a supply of the very best quality.

A beginning should be made to let the world know all about our cod liver oil, and this can best be done by advertising. We are altogether too modest with regard to our resources, and it is quite time that there was a change in this respect. The day is over when business firms could sit down and wait for customers to come to them. Now competition in every branch is so keen that trade must be sought by every possible means and in every possible direction. This applies to the affairs of a country also. Although we do not feel disposed to quote Germany as an example to follow in many respects, it cannot be disputed that she has worked wonders in finding markets for her goods by a thorough system of advertising and by aggressive salesmanship, and we could do worse than take a page out of her book.

We have never yet really hustled to sell our wares or exploit our resources. Let us make a beginning with cod liver oil. The result will be so surprising as to tempt us to try the same methods in other directions—in securing tourists for example—in selling our fish, in finding markets for the herring which we have around our coasts, but are at all intents and purposes valueless through lack of initiative on our part. We actually import kippers, cattle feed and fertilizer!

When it is considered what opportunities awaiting development exist in Newfoundland it is not a crying shame that so many of the population should have to seek elsewhere for a living, or that there should be such a thing as unemployment in our midst? What is the matter with us? Apparently we are not lacking in energy, for we burn while hot over politics; we become keyed to the highest pitch over all kinds of questions of a controversial nature; we are earnest in religious matters and intensely patriotic. Why is it that we do not tackle our economic problems with the same commendable enthusiasm that we devote to the latter?

Denial of Rumor

It has been freely circulated in town that the Government contemplated appointing a Minister of Railways and establishing an elaborate department in connection therewith. We are glad to give authoritative denial of this story which has been issued apparently for propaganda purposes.

Death of Admiral Sir Cyprian Bridge

51 YEARS IN THE NAVY.

Some of the older generation will probably recall the distinguished Naval officer, Admiral Sir Cyprian Arthur George Bridge, whose death was recently announced. His father, the late Venerable Archdeacon Bridge came out to Nfld. in 1834 as a tutor to the sons of Governor Cochrane and was later appointed curate of the Anglican Cathedral, of which he became rector in 1839. In 1850 he was made Archdeacon. During the Cholera epidemic he worked heroically nursing and visiting the victims.

His son, we believe, was a student of the Church of England Academy, now Ep. Field College, and in 1853 entered the Navy. His brilliant career is summarized in the following clipping taken from the New York Times:—

SIR CYPRIAN BRIDGE, ADMIRAL, DIES AT 85.

In the Navy 51 Years.
 LONDON, Aug. 16.—Admiral Sir Cyprian Bridge died this afternoon at Kingston, London, aged 85. After a distinguished career he retired from the Royal Navy exactly twenty years ago, but carried out many important public duties during his retirement.

The Admiral was the son of Archdeacon Bridge. He entered the navy at the age of 14 and served for fifty-one years.

Admiral Sir Cyprian A. G. Bridge, who for more than twenty years has been accepted as one of the world's foremost authorities on maritime affairs, was born in 1839, the son of an Archdeacon. When only 14 years old he entered the navy. His progress was steady and in 1862 he was made a Rear Admiral. Six years later, in 1868, he became a Vice-Admiral, and in 1903 was promoted to an Admiral, the highest post in the navy.

The naval officer's voyages took him to almost every part of the world. He served in the White Sea in 1854, was stationed in the Bay of Bengal during the Indian Mutiny, and was later with the Naval Brigade in Burma. He was an authority on naval ballistics and served on several committees which investigated the nature of projectiles, explosives and armor under consideration by the British Government.

After a long and varied career, during which he served most conspicuously as Director of Naval Intelligence from 1899-1904; Commander-in-Chief of the Australian Station, 1895-98, and finally, as Commander-in-Chief of the China from 1901 to 1904, he retired from active service.

He presided at the North Sea Inquiry Commission in 1904, was the Admiralty representative on Royal Patriotic Fund Corporation from 1906-1912, and from 1916 to 1917 was a member of the Statutory Mesopotamia Commission.

Sir Cyprian was one of the three British Admirals who recommended, with qualifications, the proposal in 1921 of Secretary Hughes, which provided for capital ship tonnage being used as a measurement for the relative naval strength of America, Japan and England, and a ten years' holiday from naval shipbuilding being observed by the principal marine nations of the earth.

He was consulted many times during the investigation into the cause of the Titanic disaster of 1912. At this time the Admiral was quite emphatic in denouncing the modern liners as too large for safety and advocated a return to smaller passenger craft.

Motor Boat Picked up

The Deputy Minister of Customs is in receipt of a message from the Sub-Director at Bonaville Bay which is as follows:—"Fishermen from Trout River picked up a small motor boat with 6 1/2 h.p. Acadia engine. The boat contained two old mackerel nets and probably drove out of some Cape Breton port."

Fishery Voyage Estimated One-Third Short of Average

Passengers who arrived yesterday by S.S. Susu, bring very encouraging reports of the fishery in parts of Fogo District, and should the weather remain favorable a savings voyage will be secured. The Prospero, which arrived from the Cook's Harbor Service, on Saturday, reports considerable improvement since her last trip. It is estimated by those in close touch with fishery matters that the voyage on the whole will be not less than last year, when the catch was short of the average.

Prospero Reports Good Fishing Along French Shore

The Prospero which arrived from the Cook's Harbor service on Saturday night, brings word that the fishery along the French Shore has shown a decided improvement during the past week. With the prevailing winds the hook and liners have done well between St. Anthony and Harbor Deep, the average catch being 3 to 4 barrels per boat a day. On Thursday last the traw was laid a second time at St. Anthony, and the men secured from 8 to 10 barrels per haul. At Pacquet and LaSalle the fish is not so plentiful, and it is almost a blank from LaSalle south. While the ship was at Herring Neck two schooners had arrived reporting for 700 and 800 qtls. respectively. With prevailing winds and plenty of squid for bait there is every hope that the catches will be greatly augmented, and instead of the fishery being an absolute failure the voyage will turn out to be an average one.

The Pulse of a Boiler

As a doctor or nurse can tell what is wrong with a man's interior by feeling his pulse, so engineers are warned of faults in the interiors of their boilers by a mechanism known as the Lees Recorder.

The slightest flaw is diagnosed by these instruments. They tell the experienced engineer whether his boiler is scaled, whether it is taking the correct quantity of water, whether it is burning more coal than it should, and whether any of its "innards" are out of order.

Obituary.

MRS. MARY RENDELL.

With feeling of regret we chronicle the passing of an esteemed lady in the person of Mrs. Mary Rendell daughter of the late Rev. A. E. C. Bayley, Bonavista and widow of the late Fred John Woods Rendell, which occurred at her residence Military Road last night. The deceased had been indisposed during the past fortnight, but there was no warning that the end was near. Her husband who predeceased her some years ago was the eldest son of the late Hon. G. T. Rendell. A brother Hubert passed away at Edmonton about a fortnight ago. Left to mourn are three sons Lt. Col. Walter, Philip of the Eastern Trust Co. and Fred, also one daughter, Nora and two brothers Rev. Canon Baylar, Bonavista and Albert, Sec'y. of the Agricultural Board, and two sisters Mrs. White wife of the bishop of Nfld. and Mrs. (Canon) Field. To the family the Telegram extends sympathy. The funeral takes place tomorrow at 3 p.m.

Latest Revenue Returns Show Big Increase

The Customs revenue from July 1st to August 23rd this year amounts to $842,890.84. For the corresponding period last year the amount was $765,030.84. The gratifying increase of nearly $82,000 is a practical illustration of the improvement in general trade, and also of the businesslike methods which have been introduced into the Customs Department since the Honorable Administration took charge. We understand that the increase is in addition to several substantial outstanding accounts recently collected.

TO-DAY'S MESSAGES.

LOCATELLI FOUND.
 WASHINGTON, Aug. 25.
 Lieut. Locatelli, the Italian aviator, has been found. The message talking of Locatelli's rescue came from the cruiser Richmond and said "Locatelli sighted by the Richmond at 23.24 p.m. Sunday, lat. 59.56, long. 39.45. Embarked passengers all well." The position given in the despatch which was received at 7 a.m. to-day by the Navy Dept. is about 50 miles almost due east of Cape Farwell.

REPORTS FAVOURABLY RECEIVED.

BERLIN, Aug. 24.
 Chancellor Marx, Foreign Minister Stresemann, and Finance Minister Luther, the three German delegates to the London International Conference, yesterday gave the Reichstag a formal accounting of their stewardship. Germany's interests in the settlement of the Reparations problem. That the Government made out a strong case for itself was the concurring opinion of the ranks of the middle parties and Socialists, while the official declaration is believed to have had a decisively sobering effect upon Nationalists.

ON BOARD THE BERENGARIA.

LONDON, Aug. 24.
 Radio despatches received from the steamer Berengaria at 2.30 o'clock to-day said the Prince of Wales was being favored with excellent weather on the start of his holiday to United States and Canada. The Prince was astir early to-day and seemed to be in splendid spirits. He attended divine service in the lounge of the ship, where a huge congregation had gathered. Later he took a promenade along the deck of the ship and also visited the gym and went through a series of exercises.

SEARCH FOR AIRMAN CONTINUED

On Board U.S.S. Richmond off Coast Greenland, Aug. 23 (Delayed)—Planes from U.S. cruisers Richmond and Raleigh searched approximately 5000 square miles to-day in the hope of finding some trace of Lieut. Locatelli, the missing Italian aviator. Rear Admiral Thos. Garuder, in charge of the patrol, declares the search will be continued until it is certain Locatelli is not on the coast of East Greenland within measurable distance of the sea outside ice packs where ships are able to enter. Capt. West of the Danish ship Falk had organized a searching party along the east coast.

HERRIOT'S CONFIDENCE MAJORITY WAS CONSIDERABLE.

PARIS, Aug. 24.
 The Chamber Deputies has given its approval of the London Conference methods for putting the Dawes plan into execution, and has voted confidence in Premier Herriot's Government 336 to 204, some 26 more votes than its normal majority. The debate began Thursday afternoon and ended at 4.30 this morning. Thirty-five hours of time was spent in speech making.

DONE IN RUM ROW.

HALIFAX, N.S., Aug. 24.
 Seven thousand dollars worth of counterfeit United States money is now on its way to New York from Halifax. The bearer is one who sought to break into rum row. He chartered a British steamer, stocked it with choicest brands of liquors made one trip only, lost $55,000 on the venture, and received $7000 counterfeits. The unfortunate venturer in narrating his story said that upon taking his position in rum row he found business was poor. This, he declared, was due to the fact that he was not in the ring, and also because he received certain crisp fifty dollar American bills totalling in value $7000. Examination later proved the money to be a bogus type, with the result that on the second trip New York was decided on, this one not to rum row but rather for consultation with Federal officers relative to the crisp fifty dollar bills.

FATAL SHOOTING AFFRAY.

TULSA, Okla., Aug. 23.
 Three men were killed and one was wounded Sunday on the public highway 21 miles east of Tulsa in a battle which climaxed a family feud starting over an argument between children. The dead are Malcolm Young, 19, County Highway Officer; Clark Young, 21, a brother of Malcolm; and Homer McMillen, 18, living six miles east of Catoosa. Charles Young, 41, of Tulsa, father of the Young brothers, was shot in the right leg above the knee. Trouble started about a week ago over a controversy between the children of two families on Sunday. The Youngs are said to have become engaged in a quarrel in front of McMillen's house. McMillen's father is said to have told them to move along and the shooting started soon after.

DENMARK ABOLISHES MILITARY AND NAVAL FORCES.

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 25.
 Abolition of Danish Army and substitution of a police force for the present National Militia are provided for in a department Bill prepared by the Minister of Defence, M. Rasmussen, and approved by the cabinet council of the Socialist Government. The coast defence ships and cruisers will also be abolished and only five

DAILY NEWS WON.
A spirited game of football was played at St. George's Field on Saturday evening last, between teams from Daily News Publishing Company and Evening Telegram, Ltd. The Daily News boys proved to be masters of the situation and won out by a score of two goals to nil. The game was the outcome of a challenge, and it is expected that a return match will follow.

During the game Cyril Barrett (65 lbs.) of the Telegram centre forward, had a collision with Power, Daily News, (190 lbs.) Power, although receiving serious injuries, is expected to recover, we are informed by the General Hospital this morning.

ENTHUSIASTIC MEETING N.A.A.A. Championship Meet. Postponed Until September 10th—Additional Prizes Offered.

The adjourned meeting of the Newfoundland Amateur Athletic Association took place on Saturday night when further matters in connection with the annual championship sports meet were discussed. Mr. J. P. Crotty presided, in the absence of the President, before a goodly attendance of members. After the minutes of the previous meeting had been read, a discussion arose over the date fixed for the annual event at a previous meeting. Several of those present were of the opinion that contestants desirous of competing, particularly to those who wanted to take part in the Telegram Road Race, had very little time left at their disposal for training, and others agreed that if the sports were deferred to the following Wednesday, the warships of the Special Service Squadron of the British Navy, then in our waters, it would tend to make the day all the more successful. Upwards of 3,000 men comprise the crews and with arrangements made for the running of a special train from Topsail to the city, it would be an interesting attraction for some of the men. Only bona fide Newfoundlanders are eligible to compete in the Championships. This rule debar the Navy from competing with the locals. It was then suggested to include a few extra events on the programme being made to get in touch with the Commander of the monster Hood with this in view, and the matter was allowed to stand over until next meeting night. The Committee then decided unanimously to extend the date from the 3rd to the 10th of September, and entries to close Sept. 6th, instead of Aug. 30th. Due to the date decided upon falling on the last holiday of the season, the Secretary was instructed to communicate with the Importers' Association, asking if they would be kind enough to transfer the holiday to the next day, if the weather should be unfavorable. The Javelin and Discus throw will be added to the programme. These events will not include in the Club Competition for the Hayward Trophy. Besides handsome gold medals for first place honors, it was agreed to award silver and bronze medals of similar design for second and third places. In all events four or more competitors must compete to make the third award. With the additional prizes offered it was felt that a much longer list of competitors would be available and help to make competition all the more keener. Messrs. J. T. Tobin, C. Hall and C. J. Ellis, timekeepers, with S. P. Cullen as starter, were the officials appointed for the Highland Games. The matter of sending athletes to Halifax this year also came up for discussion. The Maritime Championship takes place in Halifax on Sept. 6th, and due to the fact that our sports are being conducted a little later this year, it was found impossible to single out the best competitors, until they had been seen in real championship action. With the Halifax Herald Road Race taking place in November, it would not be surprising that two or more of our local speedsters will be sent. However, this matter will be taken up wholeheartedly at a later meeting.

Mr. J. J. Bates was welcomed at this meeting and was placed on the membership list by declaration. Mr. Bates is a keen follower of games both in this city and Canada and his services will be greatly appreciated. After disposing of a few minor matters rest was taken until Friday next, when it is hoped that a full committee will be present. Entries are now being received at the office of Mr. J. A. MacKenzie, Law Chambers.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Aug. 13.—Young Bob Fitzsimmons, son of the former world's heavyweight champion defeated Soldier King, local light heavyweight, in a 10-round open air bout here last night. The Grand Rapids boxer, although badly beaten in almost every round, stayed the limit, but was on the verge of a knockout several times.

JOHNSON CITY, Tenn., Aug. 19.—"Young" Stribling, the Georgia school-boy boxer, scored a technical knockout over Jack Stone, New York light-heavyweight, in the fourth round of a scheduled eight round bout here last night, after punching his opponent almost at will. The Referee stopped the fight with Stone helpless against the ropes under a rain of blows from the Georgia "flash." During the first three rounds Stribling literally used his opponent for a punching bag, jamming rights and lefts to all part of his opponent's anatomy, while his own far foot work kept him out of reach of Stone's rushes.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Aug. 19.—Carl Tremaine, local bantamweight, and Buddy Taylor, Terre Haute, Ind., have been matched to box 10 rounds here on the night of Aug. 23.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Aug. 19.—Law Tandler, Philadelphia lightweight, earned a newspaper decision over K. O. Mars, Cincinnati, in a 10-round boxing bout here last night. Mars was knocked down in the fourth round and was being counted out when the bell saved him.

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—Kid Sullivan, of Brooklyn, still is junior lightweight champion of the United States to-day as the result of the successful defence of his title in a 15-round bout with Vincent (Pepper) Martin, of Brooklyn, at the Queensboro A.C. in Long Island City. Sullivan won on points.

Peer's Attack on Women in Politics

LONDON, Aug. 6 (A.P.)—Lord Banbury, who as Sir Frederick Banbury, was among the most consistent diehards who ever sat in the House of Commons, has lost none of his conservatism since he shifted to the House of Lords. His Lordship stirred up a hornet's nest by declaring, in opposition to Lord Astor's bill to permit peeresses in their own right to sit in the House of Lords, that the contemplated action would lower the dignity of the upper chamber. The right which the bill would confer would affect only about a dozen peeresses, but it has always elicited strenuous opposition because of its supposed revolutionary tendency. Did their lordships propose, Lord Banbury asked, that the body which for centuries had been a model of a parliamentary house should "lose dignity in order to secure efficiency by admitting women?"

But what has made women of England—in politics and out of politics—mad as March hares was Lord Banbury's accusation that women made an unfair exercise of the privilege of sex in their participation in politics. "Where are we going to stop if we begin this way?" queried Lord Banbury. "Men and women are different and you cannot prevent a woman from exercising in Parliament the privilege of her sex which she had been accustomed to exercise. Women exercise their fascination unwittingly, and men could not treat them as equals in Parliament."

"All nonsense," said Dorothy Jewson, Labor Member of Parliament from Norwich. "Lord Banbury has opposed all progressive measures all his life."

"The noble Lord's speech is most ungallant and had it come from any one else it might have been taken seriously," said Lady Terrington, another woman M.P. "There has been no loss of dignity since women came into the House of Commons," said Mrs. Wintingham, another woman member.

Lady Astor declined to make any comment on Lord Banbury's outburst. When he was in the House of Commons Lord Banbury antagonized virtually every reform measure which Lady Astor put forward and the parliamentary tilt between the venerable diehard and the vivacious American woman enlivened many sessions of the House of Commons. But they are the best of friends outside of politics, and Lady Astor asked to be excused from engaging in a controversy with an old friend.

PROPOSALS TO AVERT WAR.

GENEVA, Aug. 24. With a view to a general repudiation of the draft pact for mutual assistance, the disarmament section of the League of Nations has drawn up an outline of a new tentative project. The new project provides that any member of the League may call the attention Council to the existence of a danger of war in some designated region where the Council will meet for immediate investigation.

Music Contest at Victoria Park

A great deal of interest was shown in the music contest held at Victoria Park for the playground boys and girls. The contests for the mouth organ, singing and step dancing were the most interesting events on the programme. There were ten entries for the mouth organ and there would undoubtedly have been many more if the time and place of the contest had been more generally known. Any musical instrument which is fairly easy to master is likely to be regarded slightly by the musically literate. Such has been somewhat the fate of the harmonica, colloquially known as the mouth organ. The mouth organ, however, is coming in to its own; a harmonica virtuoso has appeared recently as a soloist with the symphony orchestra in one of New York's big movie palaces. That is but a symptom of a belated recognition of what one editorial writer recently called "the most maligned musical instrument on earth." The chief factor in this renaissance of the mouth organ in the United States has been the growth of the harmonica contest idea.

Such a contest, for instance, was included as a part of Boys' Week in Philadelphia. The instrument is often attractive to both young and old, it does, however, give especially happy self-expression to the boy. For him it is a most effective safety valve. He can literally "blow himself" to his heart's content. Moreover the mouth organ is an excellent instrument for a boy to try out his musical talent. On a month organ you can quickly see the difference between a boy who has a musical ear and a natural talent for time and rhythm and a boy who has not. And with the natural liking of boys for the mouth organ, it may become for them a guide toward musical appreciation and mastery of other more difficult instruments. In New York City the contest was under the auspices of the city government. The semi-finals were played at the Mall in Central Park. Such widely separated cities as Dallas, Texas, St. Paul, Minnesota, Wilkes-Barre, Pennsylvania, Los Angeles, California which have taken up the idea to show how popular this thing is.

Next year we hope to have an even bigger and better mouth organ contest. The winners at Victoria Park were:—
Mouth Organ—1st, Leo Maher; 2nd, Gerald Hearn and William Murphy; 3rd, Willie Lane, Consolation, Molly Lane.
Drum—1st, Cyril Cook; 2nd, William Picco.
Accordion—1st, W. Clarke, Consolation, Walter Chambers.
Tin Whistle—Hugh Vinicombe.
Singing—Special prize to Margaret Turner from the School for the Blind in Halifax, who sang a little French song.
Solo Singing—1st, Little Mercedes Vinicombe; 2nd, Eva Forrestal; 3rd, Mima Hackett, Consolation, Mary Davis, Mary Brown and Mima Moore.
Duet Singing—1st, Beulah and Olga Davis; 2nd, Mary Lane and Annie Hannaford.
Step Dancing—Mercedes Vinicombe, Eva Forrestal and Mary Davis. Prizes were donated by Mr. Cyril Duley, Professor Charles Hutton, the Hon. S. Miley, and Councillor Collier, the others being purchased from the Rotary Playground Fund.
The judges were Professor Charles Hutton, Miss Elsie Tait and Mr. Barton. The guests included Councillor and Mrs. Collier, Mrs. Stirling Fraser, Mrs. Dugald Munn, and Miss Worral.

Giant Airship Planned by British Government

CARDINGTON, England, Aug. 1 (A.P.)—To make room for the laying down of Britain's new giant airship of 61,000,000 cubic feet capacity, the old R 33 is being reconstructed for an experimental flight to India where mooring mast and gas generating plant are to be erected.
At the same time that work commences on the big ship at Cardington, another of similar size will be begun at Howden. Both of these immense airships will be approximately 760 feet long, 110 feet in diameter, and capable of carrying 200 passengers at 30 miles an hour on a non-stop flight of 3,000 miles.
It is stated that such a vessel cruising at 40 miles an hour will be able to remain in the air for nearly three weeks without alighting to replenish fuel. Steel is being considered as a possible substitute for duralumin in the structure and engines that will burn a mixture of hydrogen and kerosene are being experimented with.

The Annual Children's Picnic in aid of the R. C. School, Thornburn Road, will be held on the School Grounds on Wednesday, August 27th. Teas served. Motor Buses will leave the junction of Freshwater and Pennywell Rds. at 12 o'clock and return made at 7. Tickets will be sold on the Buses. Grand Dance in School at night. Teas and Refreshments served.—Aug 25, 21

Labor Conditions in Russia

IMPROVE SAYS GENEVA BUREAU

GENEVA—(A.P.)—The development of industrial conditions in Soviet Russia is dealt with in publication just issued by the International Labour Office. The volume brings out the fundamental differences between the present system and the regime which existed before 1921, the difference being the result of the process of transformation going on in Russia.
After taking up the functions of the Commissariat of Labor, chapters are devoted to wage policy, both before and after the establishment of the new economic policy, to an exposition of collective agreements, methods for the settlement of disputes, the regulation of the labor market, social insurance and factory inspection.
The general conclusions drawn from the report are that important modifications have taken place not only in labor conditions but in the material position of the working class in Russia. Compulsory labor has been practically abolished. The engagement and dismissal of workers has been decided by the conditions of labor as determined by free agreement between the parties, and the value of work is determined by the laws of supply and demand. That greater liberty has come to Russia, declares the authors, is shown by the fact that the central power confines itself to fixing a minimum wage, leaving to the parties concerned the duty of determining the actual remuneration of labor by collective agreements.
Despite the changes which have taken place, however, is the general policy of the Soviet government, chiefly in relation to labor legislation, it is believed that the evolution of the actual conditions of labor is only in its beginning.
Other information on Russia given out by the labor office indicates that unemployment is increasing.

Mary Miles Minter at the Majestic

Dreams of Fate A Sensational Feature.
That the modern snapper is capable of showing extreme unselfishness and courage when confronted with harrowing situations is shown in Mary Miles Minter's latest Paramount picture, "Dreams of Fate," which is offering for three days at the Majestic Theatre, beginning to-night.
In the story Mary Miles Minter has the role of a young society girl who has been besieged by proposals from various infatuated and idle males and has rejected them all in favor of an upstanding young engineer on leave from his duties in the African jungles. On their wedding day he is recalled unexpectedly to the Dark Continent, leaving his bride behind. In a few months comes word that the engineer has met death at the hands of African natives, though in reality he is wounded and held a prisoner by them. After a year the young wife yields to the urging of her guardian and friends and marries an invalid musician who has always loved her and regarded her as his sole inspiration and would die without her.
Then unexpectedly the supposed dead husband returns, but learning the state of affairs, flames into anger and rushes away. His wife has seen him, however, and the weak musician, informed of his presence, expires from shock. Following the wife's frenzied efforts to find her first love and her final success, after tremendous hardships and a most exciting climax.
In the cast supporting Miss Minter are George Fawcett, Robert Chin, Bertram Grassby, Maurice (Letty) Flynn and Casson Ferguson.

Obituary
MRS. WILLIAM GRIFFITHS.
There passed peacefully away Saturday night, fortified by the rites of the Holy Catholic Church, Mrs. William Griffiths. The deceased had been ailing for some months, but was able to be about up to a few days ago. Her husband predeceased her eleven years ago. Left to mourn the loss of a kind and loving mother are three sons and three daughters, to whom the sympathy of their many friends will go out in this sad hour of bereavement. The funeral takes place to-day at 2:30 p.m. from her late residence, 30 Power Street.

THE BOY WHO NEEDS A DOG.

When I look out the window of my study in my summer home (which I do, alas, very often when I ought not to) I see the outline of a little straggly hill against the sky.

It is a hill much beloved by the children of the neighborhood and it has some silhouetted group that makes a pleasant picture for me. This morning the picture I saw, as my eyes strayed from my typewriter, was a very simple one. And yet to me an infinitely touching one, and not so very far from beautiful.

Just a Boy and His Dog. Just a little khaki-clad, barelegged boy and his yellow dog at his heels, as close to them in fact as the dog could get without tumbling over them.

There was nothing unusual about the little silhouette. The unusual thing would have been to see that boy without his dog, or that dog without his master.

And doubtless many would think that there was nothing beautiful about it. Just a little brown-legged, freckle-faced, shaggy little boy of ten and a shaggy little dog of the purest mongrel breed.

But the beauty was in the composition, not in the units of the picture. It was in the feeling behind it, the sense of perfect love and companionship, the suggestion of a complete and satisfying relation which that silhouette gave.

Only Half A Boy. A boy without a dog is only half a boy. Sometimes he doesn't know it, and sometimes he does know it and begs in vain for the other half of him.

There's a little boy like that in our neighborhood. He wants a dog more than he wants anything else in the world. His mother doesn't care for dogs and she says it's too much bother to take care of one. "But I'd take all the care of him," he promises feverishly.

"You say that now," his mother answers coldly, "but you wouldn't. The first thing you know you would be neglecting him and I'd have to look out for him. Dogs make a lot of dirt. I have enough to do. I don't want a dog around and I won't have one, and that's all there is to it."

Yet she adores him. And yet this mother adores her boy and would do anything in the world to get him the things he wants,—that is, if they are what she wants him to want.

She complains often of her son's lack of responsibility. Could any better opportunity in the world have been offered her to develop that sense of responsibility, than to give John a dog with the proviso that he should keep him just as long as he took care of him himself? Could any more powerful stimulus have been supplied?

I wish an artist with the brush or camera could have been at my window to catch that silhouette. And I wish I could send a copy of it into every home where there is a child who needs a dog.

It doesn't seem to me the most heart-breaking parent could hold out against the effect of that picture.

Getting Joy Out of Life

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir,—in connection with the invitation to "Invest in Health and Happiness by Joining the Playground Association" it may not be out of place to quote an extract from a letter written by the late Sir William Harcourt, which appears in the recent "Life" by Mr. A. G. Gardiner, as follows:—

"After all joy is the greatest of blessings and we should welcome it, however it comes. The great mass of the people of this country has far too little amusement, not because they don't want it but because they can't get it.

"The best social reformer is the man who realizes most the best thing you can do for people is to make them jolly. The spirit of delight is like the sun which illuminates the picture and glorifies the landscape. Let us have all we can of it and especially let us get it for the young whom nature intended to be gay."

Yours truly, R. W. August 23rd.

THE HOME OF GOOD WEARING HOSIERY.

Fire Fighters Alert

TO PROTECT FORESTS FROM DESTRUCTION.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—(A. P.)—The first forest fires that have been raging this summer, especially in California, bring to mind the great national disaster that occurred in August, 1910.

Fourteen years ago this month the United States was startled by stories of gigantic forest fires in the northwest, and when on the morning of August 20 the telegraph wires carried the story of a terrible conflagration driven by high winds the colony was appalled, even though the extent of the disaster was not realized.

But within a few days the whole nation knew that the most destructive forest fires recorded in the history of the United States were being fought in the northwest, and that northern Idaho and western Montana were the scenes of the fiercest battles with the "Red Enemy of the Forests" ever fought by Uncle Sam's Forest rangers.

Conditions in the west this summer are again at the highly dangerous point, and officials of the Forest Service are anxious. At the end of July 150,000 acres of land inside the boundaries of the National Forests in California alone had been fire-swept, the worst fires ever experienced this early in the season. Large fires have also burned in Washington, Oregon, Idaho, Montana, Utah, Colorado, New Mexico and Arizona. The Forest Service is on the alert. Men and equipments have been mobilized at strategic points. The battle with the "Red Enemy" is on in earnest. Human lives and public and private property are at stake in this relentless war.

Who will win? With the co-operation of the public to prevent man-caused forest fires, which now form 80 per cent of the total, the Forest Service believes it has a good chance to cope successfully with its dangerous foe, particularly if nature will refrain from causing hurricanes and give the drought-stricken areas some relief, and that there will not be a repetition of the 1910 disaster.

Before the flames died away that year over 4,000,000 acres of national forest land was laid waste. The timber destroyed totaled over six million board feet, and the money loss for standing timber only stood at $24,000,000. The figures do not take into account the losses of privately owned forest land. Human life was also lost in the great 1920 fires. A total of 78 men perished in the battle with the flames.

The entire summer of 1910 was marked by severe droughts in most of the west. The winter snowfall and spring rains were unusually light, so that with the coming of summer the supply of surface moisture rapidly dried away and an abnormal and steadily increasing number of fires followed. Steady high winds were combined with almost complete failure of the light summer rainfall, and by the middle of August the Forest Service was training every resource to hold in check the multiplying fires.

Then on August 20 in northern Idaho a heavy wind developed into a hurricane. It was so powerful that men were unable to remain in their saddles. Smoldering fires were fanned into action and swept beyond control. Within 24 hours there was practically a continuous fire along a battle front of over 100 miles in length. Early in September the fires were subdued. If it had not been for the hard work of the forest officers the losses of public and private property would have been many times what they were, and very probably many more lives would have been lost.

What Do You Think of a Fluid

That will draw roaches and ants out of every hole, crack, or crevice before killing them and not poison food?

That will kill bugs instantly and not leave an unpleasant odor?

That will knock flies off the wall and not harm paint or paper?

That will keep the bedroom, kitchen, or verandah clear of flies, mosquitoes, etc., for several hours after a few sprays?

That will take fleas off a dog and not harm the dog?

That will destroy chicken lice without any injury to your stock?

That applied in small quantities to the exposed parts of the body will insure you from Mosquito bites?

That as a general disinfectant is stronger than the ordinary carbolic solution.

THAT FLUID IS SAN-O-SPRAY.

No insect can live where San-O-Spray is used. Yet San-O-Spray is not poisonous to human beings and can be used with perfect safety in pantry, kitchen, dining room, and cellars, moreover San-O-Spray has an agreeable and delightful odor, removing all fetid or unpleasant odors. In addition San-O-Spray is a disinfectant and germicide. Keeps the home sanitary and free from infectious diseases.

THE GREEN PAIN. I have a green pain in my side, a pain that quite at three inches wide; when I repose it is a curse, and when I walk it's nine times worse; and people come across the sea and bring hot poultices to me; my neighbors come, in mournful bands with mustard plasters in their hands, and many sympathetic gents approach with time tried liniments, and ancient dames bring healing yarbs to rob my anguish of its barbs, and hermits from their caves and hills, bring wooden boxes full of pills; they come, and will not be denied, to heal the green pain in my side. And some of those that kindness brings to me with healing in their wings, have long been held by me as foes, with them I've swapped hot words and blows; I've looked on some with high disdain, and held that others were insane. We'd meet upon the thoroughfare, and pass no words of greeting there. But ancient grudges know decay when sickness has the right of way. When it is bruited far and wide that I've a green pain in my side, my enemy forgets his grudge, and comes tip-toeing to my couch; "I bring," he says, "your ache to heal, a poultice made of flaxseed meal." And when this pea-green anguish ends all former foes will be my friends; and it is worth my while, I vow, to nurse the pain that racks me now, if that will bring the neighbors back, forgetting grudges, to my shack.

A Wireless Agreement

LONDON, Aug. 15.—(By Canadian Press)—A "White Paper" giving the text of the agreement between the Postmaster-General and the Marconi Wireless Telegraph Company for the construction of a wireless telegraph station on the "beam" system, capable of communication with Canada, and of being extended to South Africa, India and Australia has just been issued.

The company are to complete the station for communication with Canada within 26 weeks of the date on which the sites for the sending and receiving sections are placed at their disposal by the government, and they undertake to have a similar station available in Canada for communication with this country within the same period. The station is to be capable of communication at a speed of 100 five-letter words per minute each way. A "beam" station is one which has an input power of at least 20 kilowatts in the sending station and an aerial in both stations capable of concentrating the emitted waves and focusing the received waves.

Industry Again Invaded by Efficient Womenhood

BELFAST, August 20.—(A.P.)—Another woman's name has been added to the growing list of members of the weaker sex who are managing great industrial businesses. The latest addition is that of Lady Pirrie, widow of the late Lord Pirrie who died at sea while on his way from South America, and who was chairman of the great shipbuilding firm of Harland and Wolff.

Lady Pirrie will be the first president of the company, this post having been specially created for her, and has declared that she will not be simply a figurehead, but will take an active part in its administration.

Throughout her married life Lady Pirrie accompanied her husband on all his travels, and she expects that the experience she gained through coming into contact with his business associates will stand her in good stead in her new post. This experience was considerable, for Lord Pirrie was said never to have made an important business decision without first consulting Lady Pirrie.

The growing popularity of the shoulder cape shows a decidedly directoire influence on the mode. Bands of black-and-white checked chiffon are used in trimming a traveling dress of black crepe. A full-length vest of black and white plaid is delightful in a coat-dress of black crepe marocain. The blouse worn with the tailored suit is sometimes so long that only a little of the skirt is seen. Hat, gloves of black crepe marocain has a wide, low-placed leather stitche, and revers of white chiffon. The fullness of a frock of white crepe marocain is caught up at one side under a motif and tassel of gold. A huge collar of ostrich feathers is used on a cape of geranium-colored velvet worn over a white satin gown. Bands of tan broadcloth are used on a black ottoman dress worn with matching coat trimmed with Hudson seal. A very deep, double, owl collar of white chiffon is effective on a straight frock of black crepe marocain.

The Battle of Jutland.

By FORE TOP In Review of Reviews.
(Concluded.)

At about 4.45 Jellicoe received his first report that enemy battleships had been sighted, when he signalled the glorious news to his fleet and informed the Admiralty, "Fleet action imminent." Weary months of waiting, and frustrated hopes appeared to be nearing their fruition. At 5.40 Beatty and Evan Thomas were rushing north to join Jellicoe, who was coming south to meet them. Hood was on his way to join Beatty, who was being hotly pursued by Hipper and Scheer, though these latter were still in ignorance that they were being led towards the Grand Fleet and Jellicoe's battleships. As the ships converged the action between Beatty and Evan Thomas and Scheer and Hipper broke out again. Visibility was very bad and mist added to the difficulties, but Hipper began to suffer severely. At 5.56 Beatty at last sighted Jellicoe's battleships and turned so as to force the German battle cruisers away and prevent their seeing our battleships and reporting them to Scheer. A certain amount of confusion existed at this moment owing to errors in reckoning and Jellicoe was very uncertain in which direction he would meet the enemy, and, moreover, he soon found that he was going to meet them much sooner than he expected and had very little time in which to make up his mind what he would do. He was advancing southwards with his battleships in columns and had to make his ships into single line. This could be done by turning either to the eastward or to the westward, to the right or to the left; but which should he do? He did not know where the enemy was, and consequently did not know in which direction to carry out his movement so as to turn towards and not away from the enemy. A mistake would be fatal; a modern fleet action is fought at high speed. To turn away from the enemy might mean that the two fleets would be separating at the rate of 40 miles an hour, and even if only persisted in for a few minutes such an error would prevent effective contact being regained or the range so increased that no damage can be done. Which should he do in the absence of any certainty as to the enemy's exact position? Hipper, by this time, was finding the pursuit of Beatty too hot for him and had turned to run with all speed back to Scheer. Our destroyers attacked his ships furiously as they ran, and a light cruiser, Wesbaden, was badly torpedoed and rendered helpless. Admiral Arthurs, commanding the first cruiser squadron, saw her and bore down to finish her off. It was an action in consonance with the character of this intrepid sailor, but it was also an act of fatal rashness. Hipper's ships quickly concentrated their fire upon his squadron and in a few minutes his flagship, Defence, had disappeared with the total loss of all hands. Admiral Arthurs will long be remembered in the service which he loved so well and served so devotedly. He was a man of the loftiest character in whom devotion to duty burnt like a flame making him at times harsh, if not severe, to those in whom the flame burnt less strongly. He died as he would have wished, and in his failure preserved one of the great traditions of the Navy, as did the gallant Cradock in failure also.

So far matters had not gone so badly for the Germans, but now, about 6.30 p.m., for the first time Scheer came into sight of our Grand Fleet and realised the risks of his position. Jellicoe had sighted him at 6.14 and at 6.15 ordered the Grand Fleet to deploy to port (his left hand), i.e. away from the enemy. This was the vital decision upon which the fortunes of the battle turned and round which controversy is acute. It was a decision which had to be taken in the most confusing circumstances. He had not expected to sight the enemy where he did, visibility was bad, the roar of battle was all round him, thick volumes of smoke shrouded his view. In deciding to deploy to port he was undoubtedly actuated by the opinion that to deploy towards the enemy and so close the range would be to expose his fleet to severe risk from torpedoes, in which he believed the German ships to enjoy a marked superiority. Tot homines quot, sententiae. The writer is of opinion that the deployment to port was a mistake. It turned the fleet away from the enemy, so much so that sight of the enemy was actually lost. The object of deployment is to bring the greatest number of guns to bear on the enemy. Here was a deployment which took the fleet out of sight of the enemy. Let us look at the result. Out of twenty-seven ships engaged only thirteen fired on the enemy, and a few of them can have been hitting. Our superiority in gun-power could not be used; the decisive moment was missed. By 6.40 the deployment was completed and by this time Beatty, with his battle cruisers, had taken up his station ahead of the Grand Fleet, having been joined by Admiral Hood, who was hotly engaged with three or four of Hipper's ships. Again disaster came with awful swiftness; salvo after salvo struck Hood's flagship, Invincible. Again was seen the roar of flame and the huge column of smoke which had marked the passing of the other two battle cruisers. Another Hood had perished in the service of his country, and with him went all his ship's company save six. By this time in the battle were left three battle cruisers and one cruiser while the Germans had lost one light cruiser. Scheer had reason to congratulate himself, but his position was one of extreme danger to extricate himself from; it demanded the execution of a dangerous manoeuvre. Sending out his destroyers to cut up a thick smoke screen he turned away behind cover of it and was quickly out of range and out of sight of Jellicoe's ships. It was a bold effort by a bold commander and succeeded admirably; his leading ships had been badly hit and some were crippled, but all were seaworthy and he might well hope to get his fleet home intact. It was impossible for Jellicoe to tell in which direction the enemy was now steaming; he could but hazard an opinion and steam accordingly to cut off their retreat. An hour of daylight remained, and at 1.5 Beatty reported "enemy to the westward." Jellicoe at once turned to close them, at 7.8 fire was reopened, and by 7.16 our whole battle fleet was in action firing at from 9,000 to 12,000 yards on the German battle cruisers, and on the leading German battleships. Again Scheer sent out his destroyers, and again behind their smoke screen he turned away. But this time conditions were not so favourable for the manoeuvre. Something more had to be done, something had to be risked, and he ordered his battle cruisers to press home an attack, under cover of which his battleships might escape. It was a desperate enterprise for Hipper's battle cruisers, but it was carried out with the greatest gallantry and succeeded. By 7.20 Scheer had once more turned away and once more falling light prevented Jellicoe from knowing in which direction to follow. Beatty, however, was able to maintain touch with the enemy, and at 8.15 was again with them, an appalling and tremendous damage. His reports of the enemy's position enabled Jellicoe to put himself between the German fleet and its base. He then had to decide if he would fight a night action and decided against doing so, but to concentrate upon putting himself into a favourable position for renewing the fight at daybreak. Into the events of that fateful night we will not enter here. Under conditions of the utmost difficulty and uncertainty our destroyers and light cruisers displayed the greatest heroism and enterprise, but there is much room for criticism of the dispositions made. The German battleship Pommern and the light cruisers Franke, Eibing, and Rostock were sunk or abandoned during the hours of darkness, as was the battle cruiser Lutow. Day dawned, the first of June, date of immortal memory for the British Navy, and even in the midst of his pre-occupations we cannot doubt but that in Jellicoe's mind ran thoughts of Howe and his great victory. Was the day to prove another and a greater "Glorious First of June"? Alas! It was not to be. The light came but no sight of the enemy rewarded the watchers. Boldly and skillfully Scheer had shaken off the pursuit, and by 6.30 his ships were home and safe. My 10.45 Jellicoe had abandoned hope and informed the Admiralty further search was useless. At 11 o'clock he turned and shaped course for Scapa. Never again was the German battle fleet sighted until it came out to surrender.

The writer is well aware of the many deficiencies in this article. Much that is important has been omitted with a view to clarifying the issues. With a view to affording a clear outline of the events no reference has been made to the work of the destroyers and light cruisers. The narrative has been confined to the movements of the battleships and battle cruisers which form a framework into which the work of the light forces can be fitted. One example will suffice to exemplify the devotion which animated these craft. The destroyer Shark led an attack upon a German light cruiser squadron and coming under a hail of fire was disabled and had to be stopped. The German cruisers turned to chase another ship and Shark had a slight respite, but was again attacked, as she lay unable to move, by some German destroyers. Commander Loftus Jones, had his leg shot away, but urged on his men to fight the one gun which could still fire until the Shark went down with the colours flying in the midst of the greatest sea battle ever fought. An able seaman survived has told the story in language which is most moving because of its utter simplicity. The gaff on which the ensign was flying was shot away, and Captain Jones, seeing the ensign hanging down the mast, asked what was wrong with the flag, and appeared greatly upset as he lay on the deck wounded. Twice he spoke of it. Then I climbed and unbent the ensign from the gaff and hoisted it on the yard arm. Commander Jones seemed to be less worried when he saw the flag hoisted again."

What are the conclusions to be drawn from the battle? At the time the Admiralty issued a very misleading communiqué; public opinion felt something was wrong, and wounded from the fleet were met with signs of disapprobation when they landed at Rosyth. This was unfair, but public opinion was not altogether at fault; accusations as to this country is to have been sufficiently resolute, and the must be regarded as inconclusive and disappointing. Jellicoe was set one of the most supreme tasks ever set mortal man. To handle that huge fleet of enormous ships at high speed, to have vital decisions to make in a few seconds under conditions of noise, uncertainty, and baffling light, all these things must be borne in mind when commenting upon what he did. Viewing the action in the calm of the study one can see certain obvious mistakes. He had organized his fleet upon too rigid and inflexible a scheme; little scope for initiative was left to the individual commander. The destroyers, commanded and manned by men filled with ardour and daring, were condemned to act, too much upon the defensive, and were not allowed to play the part they should have in breaking up the German torpedo attacks which the Commander-in-Chief so much dreaded. Upon the whole, the German Admiral handled his destroyers more effectively. Certain beliefs which greatly affected Jellicoe's handling of the action were, in fact, unfounded. Amongst those may be mentioned his view that some of the German ships were armed with a larger gun and that others had a higher speed than was actually the case. He exaggerated also the possibility of the Germans being able to employ mines and submarines in a fleet action, and he over-estimated the range of the German torpedo. It must be agreed that he was severely hampered by the scanty and inaccurate information which he received relative to the position of the German battle fleet, but he had his own destroyers and light cruisers available and might well have made more use of them to gain intelligence. Moreover, from the anxious moment of deployment came, he had one certain piece of information available; he could see Beatty in the Lion engaging the enemy, and to march toward the sound of the cannon is no bad maxim when uncertain. The handling of the fleet during the night is open to very serious criticism indeed, but the consideration involved are extremely technical. To keep in touch with the flying enemy was no light task, but the efforts to do so do not appear to have been sufficiently resolute, and the destroyers and light cruisers were starved of the information they required. It may also be noted that at 10.41 p.m. a signal from the Admiralty gave the course along which the enemy was beating his retreat, but Jellicoe, for rather insufficient reasons, rejected this invaluable intelligence. Interest will always centre round the personalities of the two leading figures, Beatty and Jellicoe, and much talk is devoted to depreciating one at the expense of the other. The genius of the two men is completely different. Jellicoe is the born administrator, Beatty is the born battle leader. The one has the rigid, doctrinaire mind which works out beforehand all thinkable contingencies and is all the more likely to be nonplussed if an unexpected contingency arises. The other, thinking in advance along broader and more elastic lines, draws inspiration from the events as they arise, being unhampered by cut-and-dried conceptions. Jellicoe, on sighting the enemy, turned away as the result of previous meditation. Beatty, dropping out of action at the Dogger Bank, was flying the signal, "Keep closer to the enemy." Nobody but Jellicoe could have built up the least material organisation of the Grand Fleet. He found the weapon which kept these islands safe, but it may be permitted to some of us to regret that the handling of the weapon did not fall to the ardent Beatty with his genius for battle.

Market News

Corn—Cod 9H—There has been a decrease in the enquiries which will lead to further business shortly. Actual facts from the largest handlers in foreign markets state that practically nothing has been done in this respect for nearly six months and their prices today are at least seven cents per gallon (or about $20.00 per bushel) less than what they paid for the same. During the past two weeks there has been some sales at these low prices but as they still carry considerable stocks they refuse to purchase until they see more business. It is pleasing to state that our Government has now rescinded the objectionable Export Tax complained about so bitterly. Our fishermen will now get full value for their produce and with the chance of slightly better prices on foreign markets will do much better than was expected recently.

Flour—The advance in price of flour and the fluctuations in values of wheat has brought into great prominence the outstanding position that Canada now holds in supplying the world with its daily bread. Twenty years ago the United States was looked upon as the great provider and the Chicago wheat pit was the barometer for the world. The demand for wheat from the principal European countries peaked at once on the supply that America could spare for export and all other corn exchanges quickly followed the indications of advance or decline at the Windy City. Now the increasing population in the United States and the decrease of wheat growing owing to diversified farming makes the surplus of wheat over local home requirements so small that Winnipeg is now the barometer for the visible supply. It was stated that the Chicago speculators attempted to take control at Winnipeg and the Canadians were cute enough to show them to put up all the money they wanted but when it comes to a real show down it certainly looks as if the Chicago bulls are going to get left. The Canadian Northwest had an exceptionally big yield last year of 475 million bushels of wheat which Chicago stated would only be 300 million this year, but from the most reliable authorities there appears to be no doubt that Canada will show a good average yield of over 300 million bushels of wheat and as conditions have shown marked improvement and if no unfavorable weather occurs during the harvesting, which is now very close, we may yet see some larger returns. The European countries where famines were predicted for a certainty have also improved their outlook. We are not likely to see the price of flour as low as we expect but there is no need for a panic at the present time.

Molasses—Prices are creeping up and show a very strong market here. In recent reports we stated that the present duty is now eight cents per gallon. One of the largest importers informs us that we are not correct. From actual figures on recent importations he states that the duty on choice molasses including the tax, etc. comes to eight cents and the higher grade and costs more, will bring the actual Customs three to over nine and one-half cents per gallon. This is a terrific charge for the fisherman on one of the necessities. There is one indication that the quality of molasses this year is the very best we have had for a number of years. Stocks held in this city are not large and will be wanted for a certainty this autumn.

Pork & Beef—Higher prices for provisions are reported from Chicago owing to better export demand. Germany has always been one of the great factors in the demand for hog products and for several reasons not necessary to specify has been a very poor customer for several years but the settlement arrived at under the Dawes reparation and the expectation of a 200 million dollar loan, which is said to be finalized, has started a hungry feeling in Germany which must be satisfied without its influence on present prices. Don't be surprised to see a further advance on both pork and beef in the near future although we think they are sufficiently high.

Butter & Cheese—A steady advance of about 2c. per pound has occurred on both butter and cheese during the past month and there is the possibility of a still further advance in the near future as stocks are very small and firmly held.

Fads and Fashions.

One Paris note states that black, black-and-white vie with beige as the mode shade. A frock of beige kasha has a buckled elastic belt and full-length, double-back. Embroidery in red, green and gold is used on a dinner gown of black crepe satin. A tapestry cloak is embroidered in black, lined with pale blue and worn with a straight cloth frock. A vest of front of pleated frills edged with black lace is worn on a black frock of black alpaca. A very chic coat dress has large pockets in various shades of beige, and a belt of beige suede.

IN OUR DREAMS.
In our days of enchantment we dreamed
Of the conquests some time we'd achieve;
The pathway to glory that seemed too simple almost to believe.
We knew that great numbers had failed,
For we'd seen them go drifting along;
But we thought in our youth, when we dreamed,
That we should be noble and strong.

So easy life seemed to us then;
We had but to be brave and be true,
And the world should receive us as men
And cheer us and honor us, too.
Then never a danger we'd meet
We fancied should frighten us back;
We should never acknowledge defeat
Through an army of foes might attack.

We should stand on the side of the right,
Forever defending the weak,
And wherever life asked us to fight
No selfish advantage we'd seek;
We saw ourselves leading the way,
Putting tempters and bribers to shame;
In the dreams of that far yesterday
Life's joys seemed so easy to claim.

But care does not show in our dreams,
And the heart never chills with despair;
Youth sees but the hill top that gleams,
And not the discouragement there;
In our days of enchantment we think
That the fates shall not deal us one blow
Nearth which we shall falter or sink,
And 'tis well for us all this is so!

Gigantic Film at the Nickel To-Night

"THE PRODIGAL SON" ONE OF THE GREATEST RELEASES TO DATE.

Sir Hall Caine's powerful story, "A Prodigal Son," is now to be seen at the Nickel in St. John's. This film is the only picture which has ever played at an admission price of $4.00. American critics say the picture to be one of the few masterpieces of the film world surpassing "Hearts of the World," "Over the Hill," and "Way Down East."

The story concerns two brothers. The younger brother, Oscar Stephenson, a spectacular, reckless and daring figure, who knew no restraint and no law save that of indulgence. He breaks all the laws of God and man and still remains a commanding figure that wins the sympathy of all audiences. The older brother, a stoic and stalwart character, a drab figure in contrast to his brother, a man that is called upon to make sacrifices and concessions for the sake of the "Prodigal," who loses his happiness, sweet-heart, sees ruin brought upon himself and his father by his scapegrace brother. Then there comes a day when the upright figure of a man, for so many years set in the path of duty, breaks through all restraint, and is swept with a lust to kill, and a passion to exterminate a stranger that comes out of the storm on the very day that disgrace and ruin are heaping up over his head for a final overwhelming climax.

The locale of the film is laid in Iceland, England and Monte Carlo and passes from one scene of stirring action to another with force, power and lightning-like succession. It is full of surprise, climax and strong moments. The love scenes of the "Prodigal Son" add in power, depth and vastness, adding something new to the technique of filmdom.

Miss Marjorie Hurchings will be heard to-night in a complete change of high class selections, in conjunction with the marvelous screen offering.

UNUSUAL NEW YORK CHILDREN.

By DR. ALBERT LOYAL CRANE, Consulting Psychologist.
A modest result seems the most fitting term wherewith to describe Edward Lumsden of Staten Island. While my attention was first turned in young Lumsden's direction when he was declared the winner of the New York State American Legion essay contest, closer acquaintance with him proved that this honor was but one of a series of distinctions with which he has covered himself in recent years, although perhaps the most noteworthy, in view of the fact that young Lumsden chose as his theme a topic in American history, though he was born in London, England, and has been but four years a resident of this country.

The subject of the winning essay was: "The Inauguration of George Washington as First President of the United States. Its Significance and Bearing Upon the Affairs of the World To-day."

At Curtis High School, Lumsden's record gives further proof of his literary scholarly capacities. Member of the Senior Artists, he is also editor-in-chief of the school magazine. Nor is this student so absorbed in intellectual pursuits as to lose interest in the humbler tasks of life, as witness his services at the lunch counter, on the programme committee, as usher at commencement and as private secretary to a member of the faculty.

And of all his works young Lumsden has kept accurate record in a diary, for many years written in Spanish but now conducted in French. Truly such scribbling must bring success.

Attempted Burglary

AT ROTHWELL & BOWRING'S PREMISES.
During the hours of Saturday night or early Sunday morning a burglar was at work and forced an entrance into the building of Rothwell & Bowring, Water Street, East. The burglar apparently was disturbed in his designs and secured no loot. Examination of the doors leading into the offices on the second floor showed that they were intact. The lock on the door to the main entrance was cut away by some sharp instrument. The police are now working on the case.

Empires Prize Baby

Australian Girl Beats All Competitors for Empire's Prize.

Out of 60,000 white, black, brown and yellow bundles of chubby babyhood from every corner where the sun shines, a little Australian girl was proclaimed the Champion Baby of the Empire at Wembley. She is Mary Patricia Wilson, aged 3 years, 8 months, of East Malvern, Melbourne. She had previously won the championship of her native State, Victoria, and that of Australia, and by gaining the Empire Championship, during the celebration of Imperial Baby Week, she will receive £200, of which £100 will be given to her mother and £100 to her father. She is 31 1/2 inches in height, weighs 28 1/2 lbs., and has a full set of 20 teeth. Generally making overseas babies swoop the prize in the contest. Eight only of the 15 winners were British-born, although the British entries were more than one compared with those from the Dominions and Colonies. The contestants were divided into three sections—babies from three to nine months, from nine months to two years, and from two to five years, and the best child out of the three section winners was chosen as the "Empire's Bonniest Baby." The two other section winners, each of whom receives £100, are:

James Edward Rows, Whitby, Ont., Canada, 1 year 11 months.

John Angel Strang, St. John's, Newfoundland, eight months.

The other babies in each class receive £20 prizes, and among these winners are:

Peter David Reding, Clapham, London.

Henry Stuart Nelson, of Anfield, Liverpool.

James Clover, of Edinburgh.

Alan McCombie Taylor, Potters' Bar, Middlesex.

Neville Vivian Ward, Maidstone, Kent.

Derek John Marks, of North Finchley, London.

Lionel Barnett, of Setton Park, Liverpool.

A consolation prize of a safety perambulator was awarded to Sheila, Patrick and Denis Girton, triplets, of 7 1/2 months, of Row, London. The Choles Of The Champion was decided from photographs and signed forms. These latter required numerous particulars, all of which had to be certified correct by a medi-

CANADIAN INDUSTRIAL ALCOHOL UP FURTHER.

(Financial Post, August 28th, 1924.)

MONTREAL—Canadian Industrial Alcohol stock is the strongest stock on the market these days. The advance is based on earnings and expectation of an increase of 2 per cent. in the annual dividend this fall. The stock has never been widely held; in fact was almost entirely in the hands of Sir Mortimer Davis until recently, but since its listing some months ago blocks of it have been resold for stock market trading until a substantial shareholders' list has been built up.

The company is now operating its new plant at St. Boniface, Manitoba. The Western company has a number of Western men directing its affairs but is owned entirely by the parent company. No financing was done for Canadian Industrial Alcohol Company of Manitoba. It is expected that similar provincial subsidiaries will follow in due course for other provinces.

CANADIAN PACIFIC.

New York Banking Groups Negotiating for Block of Stock in Hands of Alien Property Custodian.

TORONTO—Ottawa, emphatically refuses to state the amount of Canadian Pacific stock in the hands of the alien property custodian, for which quiet attempts at disposal are being made, with several New York banking groups negotiating keenly. Ottawa is incensed at the leak, and attributes recent lagging of the stock to this cause.

A block, so large that if thrown on the market it would cause considerable depression, held by Germans and Austrians, was handed over to Canada of war account, because the securities were Canadian. Receipts will go into the treasury on separation account. As a result of the leak, sale may be withheld for a time.

Magistrates Court

Two drunks were discharged. A man pronounced as insane was sent to the Lunatic Asylum.

Two Portuguese seamen taken in for safe-keeping were provided with lodgings at the Seamen's Institute.

A 27-year-old labourer, Patrick St. given in charge by his wife for being drunk and disorderly in his house was allowed to go with a caution. His wife did not appear against him.

Two men charged with deserting the Norwegian ship Frandvang were remanded to the penitentiary. The men arrived at Grand Bank and becoming stranded, were sent on here under police surveillance. In the meantime arrangements are being made to communicate with the captain and have the deserters placed on board.

A man summoned by Jonas Barter, S.P.C.A. charged with cruelly ill-treating a horse on the 21st inst, was convicted and fined $10.00 with the option of 30 days.

An abusive language case was withdrawn.

Don't Spoil Your Child's Hair by Washing it

When you wash children's hair, be careful what you use. Do not use prepared shampoos or anything else that contains too much free alkali, for this is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is Mulised coconut oil shampoo, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It is inexpensive and beats anything else all to pieces.

Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulised is all that is required. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, sunny, wavy, and easy to manage. Besides, it loosens and takes off every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff. You can get Mulised coconut oil shampoo at any drug store, and a few ounces will last for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulised. Beware of imitations. Look for the name Watkins on the package.

Shipping

A Buick Six for the Price of a Four

MANY persons have said: "Some time I'd like to own a Buick Six."

That "Some time" is here. Those who up to now have not felt they could afford a six-cylinder Buick, can secure a new Standard Six touring car to replace the famous Buick "Four."

The Standard Six is a slightly smaller edition of the famous large Buick Six—with the Buick qualities of speed and safety, and with long years of uncomplaining service built into engine and chassis. The 1925 Standard Six Buick is now here.

Horse Backs Over Wall

About 11.30 this morning a horse and cart owned by Jas. O'Neil, the "Frackman," backed over the retaining wall at the rear of P. & M. Winter's building, upsetting ten barrels of flour which had just been loaded for delivery. The horse received slight injuries. The place where the accident occurred is not railed although dangerous.

MUNICH, Germany, Aug. 1 (A.P.)—A method of tree planting which is claimed to save six years' growth has been developed by the department of forestry. The roots of the baby trees are spread in the way nature intended instead of up and down as is usually done. German foresters also say that packing the earth about young trees is wrong, as it robs the roots of breathing space.
