THE MYSTERY OF PAIN.

WHAT ARE ITS CAUSES AND WHY IS IT PERMITTED?

The Great Work That is Being Done by Bright Minds in Alleviating Human Suffering—A Case Affording a Striking Illustration.

From The Erin Advocate.

From the time when man first peopled the earth down to the present day, the mystery of pain has filled all hearts with wonder and terror. What are its causes, why is it permitted, and what its uses are in the great economy of nature? All these questions men have asked themselves and of one another, but the question has found no solution. All that can be done is to devise ways of relieving physical suffering and bright minds have assisted tender hearts in bringing aid to the afflicted. All the vast resources of nature and the laboratory have been pressed into service to the end that tortured bodies might have surcess from anguish, and know the peace that only health can bring. And what more natural than that the poor victims of disease should be released from suffering should desire to aid in the extension of the knowledge and means whereby they have been benefited?

Such a one is Miss Drucilla Shingler, of Erin, Ont., who tells a tale of pain endured through weary years, and of final relief and cure through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, the great medicine of the age. Miss Shingler says: Twelve years ago I became afflicted with rheumatism, from which I have suffered ever since. Two years later this trouble was aggravated by a growth which started in the throat, and which each year became larger and larger, until it finally became so bad that I could hardly obtain any sleep, as when I would lie down it would all my throat, causing a feeling of suffocation. What I suffered is almost beyond description, and all the medical aid I had did me no good, and I was told that I could only hope for relief through the medium of an operation. I dreaded such a course and declined undergoing the operation. All this time the rheumatism was taking a firmer hold upon my system, and I felt like giving up in despair. I lost the power of my limbs and my hands got so bad that I could scarcely hold anything. At this stage a friend, who from personal experience had strong faith in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, bought me a supply and urged me to try them. I thought I felt a little more than a box, and after using them for a few weeks there was no longer room to doubt that they were helping me. In taking the Pink Pills in the hope of finding relief from the rheumatism, but to my great joy, I found that the medicine was not only driving this painful malady from my system, but was also driving away the growth in my throat. The result was that after I had used about a dozen boxes of Pink Pills I was completely cured, and although a considerable time has now elapsed, I have not had a recurrence of either trouble and am enjoying the best of health. For the help my statement may be to others, I am only too glad to add my testimony to the long list of wonderful cures, such as mine, that have been wrought by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

This greatest of nineteenth century medicines positively cures all troubles arising from a disordered or weak state of the blood or shattered nerves. You are feeling weak or depressed, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills act as a prompt tonic, and if seriously ill no other remedy can so promptly restore you to health and strength. The genuine Pink Pills are put up in round wooden boxes with the wrapper round which bears the full trade mark, "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People." Do not be persuaded to take some substitute.

An eloquent preacher. Rev. W. L. England, of London, England, will preach in the Metropolitan Church next Sabbath, both morning and evening. He is visiting this country as the fraternal delegate of the British Conference to the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church of the United States, which meets in Cleveland next month, and has consented to take part in the 24th anniversary of the opening of this church.

Mr. Watkinson is considered one of the most eloquent and popular preachers in British Methodism, and is always greeted by large congregations. The trustees of the Metropolitan Church are therefore to be congratulated for having secured him for their next anniversary, and the church will, no doubt, be crowded. The Methodist Social Union are also arranging to tender a welcome to Mr. Watkinson in the parlors of the church on Tuesday evening the 14th inst., when those present will have an opportunity of becoming personally acquainted with him.

The County Constable's Bishop. County Constable Burns, a well-known figure about the Court House and known almost as well all through the County of York, was thrown out of his rig near the third tollgate on the Kingston-road yesterday morning while serving jurors' summonses. Mr. Burns hung on to his lines, as he does to an offender against the law, but with less success, for he was dragged for some distance, sustaining a severe shock. The rig fared worse, being smashed to pieces.

Eight candidates are taking the Ontario Society of Civil Engineers' examination being held at the Parliament buildings. The examiners are Messrs. Sanky, Kirkpatrick, Niven, Davillier, S. Gibson, M. Butler, Van Nostrand and Giesse.

WANT A REAL SCHOOL INSPECTOR

"Clergymen are so Easily Fooled"—Gleizes Wrongfully Sent to the Mercer—A New Transcript.

A meeting of the Board of Management of the Industrial Schools Association was held in the board room on Church-street yesterday afternoon, Mr. Stapleton Caldwell presiding. Other members present were Supt. Hassard, Warring Kennedy, Ald. Jolliffe and Spence, Beverly Jones, W. J. Chapman, F. Stewart, E. A. Meredith, W. J. Hendry, E. P. Roden, J. R. Starr, W. W. Hodgson, Marcon, Mrs. Caldwell, Miss Wilkes and Mrs. Marcon. Supt. Hassard reported upon the result of the waiting of a deputation upon the Hon. Mr. Gibson with reference to amending the Industrial Schools Act and appointing a regular inspector to supervise the schools. They had not latterly received many children and had begun to think that the wretched state of savinlon a dollar or two was at the bottom of it. Mr. Gibson, he said, promised to do what he could. He informed the deputation that he thought some 30 children that had been wrongfully sent to the Mercer and said he would try to get the detaining age of girls up to that of boys, i.e., 18 years.

The reason that a regular, efficient inspector, Mr. Hassard went on to say, had been asked for was that inspection by a clergyman was more or less farcical. They would be more likely to get fooling remarks. Ald. Jolliffe, amid a good deal of laughter. Here Mr. Jones instanced a case where the girls in an institution above a certain age were hidden in a room until the inspector had gone away.

The subject of the difficulty of teachers in dealing with cases of truancy was discussed. Mr. J. R. Starr thought great care should be exercised in sending pupils to an industrial school who were guilty of truancy only.

Monthly reports of the Alexandria and Victoria schools were read and adopted.

Education in Canada.

Mr. J. G. Hodgins, librarian and historiographer to the Ontario Education Department, who is preparing a documentary history of education in Upper Canada from 1791 to 1876, has issued a circular to superintendents of schools in Ontario, asking them to contribute the result of their experience in the schools during their early period of service in them. The request is for a brief sketch of the schools in which they may have taught, the condition of the buildings, the kind of fittings in the school rooms, apparatus, maps, books used and any other details which might be of interest in the work; also for copies of old newspapers, old pamphlets, old Parliamentary proceedings (bills, reports, etc.); old school records, colored calendars, examination papers, and any other documents which might throw light on the educational history of Upper Canada from the earliest times. SOUTHERN NOVA SCOTIA.

A WINTER TRIP THROUGH THE LAND OF EVANGELINE.

Many Thriving Acadia Towns and Villages on the Line of the Dominion Atlantic Railway—Towns Hard Hit by the Scott Act—Yarmouth and Digby—Fine Hotels and Excellent Steamship Services.

Let me essay, O muse, to follow the wanderer's footsteps, Not through each devious path, each changeable year of existence,

But as a traveler follows a steamer's course through "risky ways," Far from its margin at times, and seeing the gleam of its water

Here and there it opens space, and at intervals only.

Then drawing nearer its banks, through the forest, though he be blind, he can hear its continuous murmur.

Happy at length I find a spot where it reaches an outlet.

It is a noteworthy fact that two of the finest descriptive poems in the English language were entirely composed by the authors many miles away from the subjects and places that they referred to.

Longfellow's Evangeline and Moore's even more famous "Lalla Rookh," the heroine and romantic dream of both having also some slight resemblance, though miles of ocean separated their native lands.

Many a time it was at Wolfville—so vivid and true the characteristics of Acadia on the pastoral scenery and customs of Acadia, but Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, like Digby, was born and died by his Marshland in New England, and never visited or even saw the scene of his magnificent poem.

It is thought he feared to shatter his ideal by probing too deep into the reality; while Moore, wandering Irishman that he was, traveled thousands of miles.

In that delightful province of the sun, the best of everlastings, the sun.

In a vain attempt to verify the ideal of his eastern dream, and the romance of his original dream.

It is not my purpose, however, to criticize these two favorite poems—sufficient number of would-be poets and writers have already done this, for the cause it is much easier to criticize something someone else has written than to write it oneself.

My hint to you "gentle, or otherwise reader," if a desire should steal over you to play the critic with this, for the present at least, necessarily brief and incomplete little sketch of the beautiful "Evangeline's land, and Acadia—home of the happy." We will presume that the celebrated poet knew what he was writing about and that from his intimate acquaintance with the even more interesting Minnehaha, he was sufficiently well acquainted with the dialect of the Indian to correctly assign to Acadia this charming designation "Home of the Happy." Why this beautiful name of Acadia has been retained has always been a puzzle to many.

It is nicer and more appropriate in every way than the "Basin of Minas" by which it has been usurped.

I wonder if it could have been perpetuated by a hungry fisherman who planted the first thistle on this side of the Atlantic? If so, it is hoped there are thistles in his garden, and I cannot help thinking that the names of all the Maritime Provinces might be much more appropriate than they are, and the name of Acadia in particular should be perpetuated and retained by the seagull in order to the deportation of these people, who had not only ceased to be happy, but whose murmuring of discontent has been heard over the roar of the ocean, along their scented shores. They were, it appears, of French extraction, and their own race were primarily responsible to them for it, as they selfishly neglected to make any provision for them in the treaty that caused a new and a better flag to wave over them.

They themselves may have been innocent as the poet so gracefully ascribes them to have been, but political manipulators have been too busy to represent them were "the same despicable persons they are to-day, and self-interest alone guided their every move. We need only to look to the his that the very safety and the future of the nation were probably depended on them promptly and unhesitatingly perhaps, seemingly harsh, measures that were adopted by the British as the conquering power in the darkest of times, and though they do make a great grievance of it, yet it is to be considered, very little to complain of. A great many harsh things are written about it by persons who seem to me were not there at the time.

The season of the year of this present visit to the province by the sea, being midwinter, rendered it impossible for us to see to advantage the scenic "Land of Evangeline," yet it was interesting and we could easily understand what a delightful place it must be at other more favorable seasons.

That more particularly in the autumn its charms could scarcely be excelled, when the large and beautiful fruiting, it is said, they now grow in the charming Annapolis Valley better appear than were ever handled by Eve in the traditional Garden of Eden.

The Dominion Atlantic Railway, known as "The Land of Evangeline route," runs through the southwestern half of Nova Scotia, from Halifax to Yarmouth. The train starts out of the fine terminal station of the Intercolonial, and, winding around the picturesque shores of Bedford Basin, branches off from the Government Railway lines at Windsor Junction, soon afterwards passing through the rich gold mining district around Mount Unlace, where is pointed out the valuable property of the Golden Lode Mining Co.

Windsor is soon afterwards reached, but as the time at my disposal only allowed of my remaining over there one night, I had no sufficient opportunity to learn much about this progressive town, at which the formerly remote father of England's Queen.

The train was in charge of Conductor W. W. Clarke, who runs the fast express known as the "Flying Bluebonnet" and who has been connected with the D.A.R. for the past fourteen years. He is popular with both the company and the traveling public, and as polite as the lady.

Mr. Clarke, who four years ago to Miss Holmes, a member of that well-known family of Hantsport, with courteous and pleasant and visitors all the many places of historical and scenic interest along this charming Land of Evangeline route, over which he is naturally quite an enthusiast.

I must not forget to state that the representative of the Dominion Atlantic Railway in Halifax is Mr. A. D. Clarke, with offices at the Hotel Victoria, opposite the Halifax Hotel, and to his courtesy and kindness also is greatly due the information you are now receiving about the popular line he represents.

At Windsor there are two very good hotels. The largest is the Dufferin Hotel, opposite the station, of which Mr. C. A. Jordan is proprietor. The Hotel Victoria, kept by Mr. Thomas Doran, is a little further down the main street.

Mr. John Macdonald is station agent of the D.A.R. here, and from him I learned that the town has a fine electric lighting system, cotton mills, furniture factory and foundry, besides many other industries.

This town seems to have been hard hit by the useless Scott Act, which, although since done away with in other parts of Canada, is still kept in force in the lower provinces. The hotel here is beginning to think that their lines are not cast in very pleasant places, though the places are certainly very pleasant in other ways. A great many devices have been used, and no doubt always will be resorted to, in evading the liquor laws, and especially such an act as the one referred to. A one place in particular a new board partition had been put up in front of the bar in which a wicket-like opening was cut large enough to allow of a glass being passed through; over this in large letters in semicircular shape appeared the very suggestive legend, "If you don't see what you want, ask for it."

Would it not be a good idea to introduce that new license system that is said to be proving so successful in some of the Western States—that is, license the drinker as well as the place from which he draws his liquor? This would then just have to produce his license at the bar to obtain his beverage, like the common ticket office to obtain his pastebored for transportation. The fee could also limit the quantity and kind of liquor to be consumed. Fine revenue would be realized, and the wicket-like opening would be a thing of the past. Wonder this idea didn't already occur to the cute little partner. It would afford even a bigger revenue than this cunningly devised tinker's act. Soon they will have it surrounded by as many artful conditions and subterfuges as those iniquitous loan company mortgages.

To make people sober by act of Parliament is a big undertaking. The fact is, and experience has proved, that it cannot be done; then let the unique double licensing system be given a trial.

However, to proceed with my story. Fifteen miles west of Windsor nestles the little village of Grand Pré—or at least a modern little village bearing its name, but as Longfellow has it, Naught but tradition remains of the beautiful village of Grand Pré. Many a year has passed since the burning of the village of Grand Pré.

When on the falling tide the freighted vessels departed, Bearing with all its household gods into exile— Exile without end, and without an example in story.

The principal landmark of the ancient Acadia village, Evangeline's home, is the station, and can be seen from the train. For one with plenty of time to spare a pleasant and interesting stop-over could be made here, but with the limited time at my disposal for this trip, I could not tarry over at Digby, nor Kentville, which I very much desired to do, particularly at the latter place, which is the headquarters of the D.A.R. Mr. Giffkins, G.P.A., was absent, but I met Mr. W. F. Cochran, who was in charge of the station. A branch line runs from here to Ganning and Kingsport, between which port and Farnborough, the terminus of the Grand Atlantic Railway and Coal Company's line, the steamer Evangeline crosses the historical "Basin of Minas" and this, by the way, may be called the northern gateway to the former home of Evangeline. At Middleton, 102 miles west of Halifax, connection is made with the Nova Scotia Central Railway, which extends across the peninsula province to Bridgewater, Lunenburg and Mahone Bay and this we will call the south-eastern gateway.

Soon afterwards the attentive conductor imparts the pleasing thought of the second station from Middleton, bound for Paradise. We have then at least struck the right line—the Dominion Atlantic—and all aboard for Paradise. This recalls to my mind another memorable railway trip—from Colomby to St. John's.

"Ceylon's lovely Isle," where the traveler can easily imagine that he is at least nearing a veritable Eden, of Eden, the supposed location of which was in this pendant gem of India.

"Once in an ancient city, whose name I no longer remember," This Paradise is explained, however, by referring to the timetable, for we are bound for Paradise, and it is well named, if for no other reason than to herald our visit to the far-famed Annapolis Valley—once the heart and the garden of Acadia, and before long we come in view of the ruins of the old French fortifications erected at Annapolis Royal nearly 300 years ago. Under the name of Fort Royal it was formerly the capital of Acadia—and, to be precise, was established as such in 1604—being the oldest European settlement on the American Continent north of the Gulf of Mexico. What a temptation, therefore, to linger on this beautiful ground, and to write about it, too, but as this is a flying trip, and a flying sketch as well, we will not dwell on the pleasure of a better acquaintance with Annapolis and its charming valley to some future time, but before reaching Digby, "Bear River" is called out, and a shudder goes through the passenger as the train pulls up at the scene of the awful tragedy enacted here only a few hours before, being almost a parallel case to the dreadful Chateaufort crisis near Listowel, Ontario, about eighteen months ago. Both victims were girls of the same age. It is too long a story to give you here, but the accused Bear River murderer, who so strongly protests his innocence, is now awaiting trial in Digby's quaint old jail.

And now we are at Digby, on the beautiful basin of the same name, and in its moments of calm and sunshine, beautiful it certainly is, and forming a story to the Bay of Fundy, one of the famous sheets of water on the globe. It is the Bay of Fundy, rising, it is said, frequently as much as 30 to 40 feet.

This is the western gateway to "Evangeline Land," and from here one of the finest and fastest steamers, the Prince Rupert, with her consort, the Monticello, maintains a regular service across the Bay of Fundy to St. John, N.B.

SIX DOCTORS FAIL TO CURE A TORTURED LADY.

Hope and Comfort for All Who Suffer From Any Disease.

Paine's Celery Compound the Great Healer and Life-saver.

My husband and I were married in 1864, and I have since that time suffered from a nervous debility, which has been the cause of much suffering and expense.

I have consulted six of the best physicians in Toronto, and they have all failed to cure me. I have taken many different medicines, but they have all done me no good.

One day my deliverance came. A lady who had suffered just as I had told me that Paine's Celery Compound had cured her, I used the compound as a last resort, and it simply made a new woman of me.

The pain vanished, my eyesight, which was impaired, returned, and I felt myself growing well, and I never felt happier in my life. I am now well and strong, and all my health and happiness are due to Paine's Celery Compound.

I will always gratefully remember the medicine that cured me, and speak a good word for it.
