A GIANT. She Weighed 700 Pounds. Extraordinary instance connected with the death of Mrs. Lydia Lee, Bathurst. There was buried at Bathurst, N. B., last month, the remains of the most extraordinary woman nature has ever produced on this continent, and in the world. The name of the deceased lady was Mrs. Lydia Lee, nee McCallough of Montreal, whose weight was being bandaged. Her strict asceticism from side to side was thirty-three inches, the chest being forty inches wide outside measure and fully two feet deep. The undertaker at Bathurst was notified at once to order a casket from Chicago which he immediately did. The same evening the undertaker at Chicago telegraphed back there must be some mistake. The undertaker at Bathurst then drove out to Montreal, carefully taking the measure himself which resulted just the same. In order to admit the casket to the room where deceased was lying, the siding was stripped off, some scaffolding used away, and a good-sized window made larger by two feet or more. Then six stout men, by the aid of three or four stout bedsteads, lowered the remains three inches into the casket. Then six strong men, holding to the six stout bedsteads, and a man at each end of the casket, lifted all that remained of the late Mrs. McCallough, the kind mother and wife, to the platform on top and over the low bed or box on the heavy two-horse spring wagon. The sides of this special floor platform was one foot wider on either side than the box on the wagon. It was apparently a good weight for the team to pull. In preparing her for the casket it took ten men, five on a side, with clean shirt collars under her to handle, lift or move her at all, the ladies being unable to do so. A lady as strong as the ordinary woman was unable to lift up or even move one of her arms, and a stout man exerted himself in so doing. She occupied a heavy strong bedstead, made especially for her without springs. She had not been out doors since last winter, when she walked out into the yard, turning sideways and barely passing through the door that way.

She was born in Montreal about forty years ago, and was married to Mr. McCallough in 1850, and at that time weighed about one hundred and forty pounds. She was the mother of four children, three of whom are still living, the youngest, Miss Marie, aged nineteen, is a teacher in the village school. Her parents were Harrison and Mary Lee; the father only weighed one hundred and forty pounds, and mother less than one hundred and twenty pounds. Her mother is now the wife of Isaac Tompkins, of Montreal, and is the daughter of the former well known Squire Carroll—the deceased therefore being the granddaughter. Parents of her mother were ordinary sized people. On her father's side there was one quite large body woman. Her great grandfather on her mother's side, came from England and weighed two hundred pounds. Mrs. McCallough has always apparently enjoyed good health, but years ago had typhoid fever. Fourteen years ago she weighed four hundred and ninety-three pounds, and has since steadily refused to be weighed. She seems to have timidly shrank from an exposure of her size. Though her weight could not be accurately ascertained, it was the very general opinion that it would not be less than seven hundred pounds. Since the funeral a letter was received from the undertaker in Chicago saying it was the largest casket on record.

FREDERICTON, N. B. APRIL 15, 1893.

HOME RULE.

The publication of the Home Rule Bill for its second reading in the British House of Commons since the Easter holidays has renewed in all its intensity the fierce struggle in debate which created its first appearance among that body, and the indications are that very stormy times are yet in store for the bill, before it reaches the house of lords. The debate is still in progress and the opposition under the leadership of Mr. Dalrymple, ably supported by Joseph Chamberlain, has assumed a most uncompromising attitude, and will use every effort in its power and every device which its genius can suggest, to defeat or delay as long as possible the passage of the bill. On the other hand, the government is equally firm, unbending, and active, in support of the bill, and with their present majority of 41, which shows no signs of internal strife or external weakness, will carry the measure through without a doubt. It was, of course, expected by the Tories that the ultra Irish supporters of the government would not be satisfied with any measure for Home Rule which the government could safely introduce, and would, on its first introduction, immediately desert to the opposition, but since the Irish members, to a man, have declared themselves to be hearty in favor of the present bill, the hopes of the opposition have been dashed to the ground, and the success of Home Rule in the lower house is as good as certain. The trouble, of course, will come when the bill reaches the house of lords, who number a large majority of peers opposed, both by principle and education, to any measure granting local government privileges to Ireland, and who, under the leadership of Lord Salisbury, are by far the most dangerous opponents of the measure. A writer in Dunahoo's Magazine for April gives a very able review of the historical attitude assumed by the House of Lords towards great measures of popular reform in the past, and proposes their probable action regarding the Home Rule bill when it is submitted to them. On three notable occasions in the past has that body come into direct opposition with the express will of the representatives of the people in the House of Commons, and threatened to veto and defeat great measures of reform which had passed the lower house. These were in 1832, when the Reform Bill was submitted for their consent, and in 1859 upon the passing of the bill repealing the corn laws, and in 1879 when the bill for disestablishment and partial disendowment of the Irish church was before them. It is to be noted that each one of these great measures was, in a greater degree than Home Rule, abnoxious to them, as being opposed both to their prejudices and their interests. The most important of these instances was on the occasion of the Corn Laws. This measure, while it stood high in popular favor, struck directly at the prosperity of the landed and agricultural interests of Great Britain, interests directly and very largely represented in the House of Lords. Yet although their leader was a most pronounced and obstinate Tory, the Lords were compelled, as they also were on the two other occasions mentioned above, to acquiesce in the pronounced will of the people, and the measures submitted to them became law.

BATHURST SCHOOL QUESTION.

The decision of the government majority in the legislature to refer the Bathurst school question to a judge of the Supreme Court for adjudication as to the rights of all parties concerned, is probably the wisest to which any legislative body could have come. The advantage of having a trained judicial mind accustomed to the weighing of evidence according to the just and impartial rules of law, to bear and determine upon the evidence adduced by the government on the one hand, and the opposing catholic and protestant bodies on the other, and to give a decision which all parties must agree with and submit to as being above reproach, suspicion of prejudice, must be apparent to all. The judge selected will have power to proceed to Bathurst, and to hear the evidence of witnesses under oath to take depositions and examine documents relative to the question at issue, which is, we suppose, whether or not the regulations complained of by the protestant minority are opposed to the spirit of the school law, and whether or not the trustees at Bathurst have been acting illegally and outside of their jurisdiction. There will thus be ample opportunity for all parties to prepare and lay before the judge all the proof they are capable of, provided it be relevant to the question; and no one can say that the investigation has been choked off, or hurried through too rapidly. Expenses will be light and the question will be cleared up once and for all in a way that cannot but be satisfactory to catholics and protestants alike.

The new Amoskeag fire engine, recently purchased by the city of Halifax, was seized by the custom authorities for undervaluation. The engine was valued at five per cent on $3,200. The custom officials contend that the regular Amoskeag price was $3,700. The reduced price was in consequence of competition and the custom authorities say that if American engines can be entered at the reduced price, Canadian manufactures would be swamped.

A heavy thunder storm visited this section on Saturday evening last, a rather unexpected occurrence so early in the season. So vivid was the lightning that some of our neighbors, awakened out of sound sleep, thought that surely the end of all things had come, "and began to fear and tremble."

The dwelling house of Mrs. W. Gulon came nearly being destroyed by fire one day last week. The roof caught from sparks from the chimney and when discovered was under such headway that it was with difficulty extinguished. Mrs. Gulon was alone at the time and had it not been for the timely arrival of some of the neighbors her house would have soon gone up in smoke.

Mrs. Moses Moore and her son who have been spending winter with her parents returned to her home in Woodstock today accompanied by her husband.

The Provincial Board of Health for last year states that during the year the general health of the country has been good.

The secretary complains of the present an accurate report of the general condition of the public health. In some localities diphtheria and typhoid fever are prevalent, but these diseases have been kept within narrow limits. The necessity for pure drinking water and thorough sewerage systems is now as a prevalent condition that does not prevail in many localities in the province.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

What the Gossips have to Remark about

The Trend of Matters Political Parliamentary or Otherwise.

Some Teach-and-Go Notes of a Ministerial Member of the House of Commons.

The Knight of Pythias at John attend in a body, the funeral of Wm. Patchell which took place the first of the week. Victoria and Cygnets divisions appeared in full uniform led by the city coroner band.

If the proposed amount of asphalt to be done this summer by the city council is fully carried out our beautiful little city will compare favorably with any city in the Dominion as far as good sidewalks are concerned.

The Ellis contempt case which came up in the Supreme court yesterday morning was postponed until the first day of the Trinity term, owing to the official papers from the appeal court at Ottawa not coming to hand.

The government has granted $20,000 to provide for the Bathurst school investigation. The opposition who agitated this matter, must feel rather small when they take into consideration the position they have placed themselves in in the eyes of their constituents.

The Fredericton electric light bill was not short lived, it being unable to get through committee. There is not any doubt in any person's mind that our city should be properly lighted, but unfortunately we will be compelled to put up with the same poor light for at least another year. There must have surely been a nigger in the wood pile.

The time in the legislature this week has been nearly altogether taken up with passing bills and doing other solid work. Considerable discussion was caused Thursday by the leader of the opposition bringing on a long debate as the committee was going into supply and which was merely a rehearsal, and was the means of debating a lot of valuable time, as all the whetting, which was on expenditures, brought forth nothing new.

Mr. Silas Alward is counsel for Wm. Cameron of North End, St. John, who has been charged by Isaac G. Oulton, of that place, with passing spurious money. It appears that on April 18th Cameron was arrested on a charge of passing spurious money for $60 in Canadian currency, which Cameron said he wished to deposit with the bank, but that he had been refused. The reason he had been refused was because the banks would charge him discount on the American money. A few days afterwards Oulton found that he had been swindled and he reported the matter to the police.

The legislature will prorogue to-day. The government are to be congratulated on the stand they took this session with regard to the Bathurst schools. They were going into a large amount of consideration before a large number of constituents there were only two members in the house who did not express themselves as satisfied that the changes made in the school law in 1875 were made with a view to peace and harmony, and that serious results would follow the rescinding of those concessions, as proposed by Mr. Fitz. It is to be hoped the matter will be satisfactorily settled, but as long as this agitation is continued by certain parties it will be rather a difficult task.

THE JOHN C. ALLEN

Portrait Engraved in the Supreme Court Room.

It was a notable gathering and for a worthy purpose. A second of these portraits in the Supreme Court room, a short time before one o'clock on Thursday. The object was to witness the unveiling of the portrait of Sir John C. Allen, late, justice of the province. Those present included the judges of the Supreme court, viz. Hon. Justices Palmer, King, Fraser, Tuck and Huntington, Hon. Judge Hodgson of P. E. I. also occupied a seat on the right of the chief justice, and Judge Stevens was among the audience. The members of the bar present included C. W. Weldon, Q. C., president of the Barriesters society; D. Jordan, Q. C., J. D. Finney, Q. C.; George F. Gregory, Q. C., Dr. Pugsley, Q. C., Dr. Alward, Q. C., Dr. Stockton, Q. C., C. N. Skinner, Q. C., Hon. A. S. White, Hon. Jas. Mitchell, Hon. H. R. Emmerson, Hon. L. J. Tweedie, Albert Mott, M. P., P. L. A. Curry, A. S. Crockett, J. H. Barry, Geo. A. Hughes, F. St. John, Hon. J. R. Armstrong, Harvey Atkinson, John Black, J. W. McCready, H. W. Frith, John L. Carleton, H. B. Mansford, W. Woodbury, M. P., Hon. Mayor Peters, Speaker Burhill and others.

Mr. Weldon said that the portrait to be unveiled had been procured by the members of the bar in order to mark the high respect in which the chief justice was held by the profession. That respect, he said, was not confined to the members of the bar, but was universally shared by the people of the whole province. He suggested that a place be made for the portrait on one of the walls of the room beside those of Sir John's predecessors in office—Chief Justice Chipman and Parker. He expressed the earnest hope that our present honored chief justice should long live to adorn the high position he had for so many years distinguished himself in, and that a record of his proceedings be entered upon the records of the society. Upon Mr. Weldon's request the portrait was then unveiled amid the applause of the assembly. Judge Palmer replied from the bench that the record suggested by Mr. Weldon would be made and directed the secretary to enter the name.

Sir John C. Allen was completely overcome when he rose to reply, and it was some minutes before his voice found utterance in his speech. He thanked the members of the bar for this token of regard. It was the first time he had been remembered by the profession. On the fifteenth anniversary of his admission to the bar he had been presented with a handsome piece of plate. His honor here mentioned the fact that he had heard of this movement some time ago, but had thought the matter had been dropped, until the present day when he had been requested to sit for this portrait at Montreal. He had caused the picture to be examined by competent critics, and their report to him had been most satisfactory. In attempting to again thank his bar his honor broke down and was compelled to resume his seat.

Married at St. John.

The wedding of Mr. Percy C. Poyry, of this city, and Miss Susan Beverly Robinson, of St. John, was solemnized in Trinity church here at 5:30 o'clock last Wednesday evening. Rev. Canon Bridgeport being the officiating clergyman. The bride, who was handsomely dressed in white corded silk, in which she looked particularly attractive, was attended by Miss M. Robinson and Miss Eleanor Poyry. Miss Gretchen Allen was maid of honor. The groom received the necessary support from Lent, A. H. Macdonald of the C. R. I. Mr. John R. Robinson, the bride's brother, gave her away.

After the ceremony the wedding party partook of supper at the residence of Mrs. R. Robinson, on Broad street. Bride and groom went to the night register on a tour to several of the principal Atlantic coast cities.
