The improvements mini of the transcontinental lines as proposed and further that the port should be made a free port, from which the dominion would undoubtedly reap benefit. The telegrams said that the present dock accommodations at this port were inadequate and steps should be taken to construct necessary docks, sheds and other equipment to meet the increased traffic and facilitate the rapid handling of ocean vessels and their pid handling of ocean vessels and their present elevator so as to be able to accommodate two vessels at once. The government should make provision for the widening of the harbor front. Adlitional elevators will be required as the trade of the port increased, one at St. John proper and one at St. John West. The proposed bridge wiuld be used for both railway and vehicular purpeses and therefore St. John should contribute to the cost of its erection. Cattle sheds would have to be erected to meet the increased traffic in live stock. The telegrams advised the taking over by the Marine and Fisheries partment of pilotage matters at thi port, which would have the result of unifying the pilotage system and fixing the rates at a uniform figure.

Mr. Thomson thought that the telegrams spoke sufficiently for themselves and that he could add nothing to the efficiency of the pilotage service and paid a high tribute to the pilots selves. He would rather, though, with the pilots should speak. Mr. Thomson then handed over the tele-George Robertson spoke at length upon the capabilities of this port. He believed that St. John was capable of

It was the bounden duty of the do-minion government to take steps to develop this port, and he thought the most practicable solution would be to his he meant a port in which there were no harbor charges. Mr. Robert-son projected a scheme which he be-lieved could be carried out for $25,000,-000, namely, the development of the four great ports of Canada to a degree to place them in a position to handle unlimited traffic. The four ports to which he referred were Montreal, Quebec. Halifax and St. John. All these ports, Mr. Robertson thought, should be made free. There was a great commercial war going on among the navival of the fittest. Therefore immediate steps should be taken to put the osition. Mr. Robertson, in concludthat this would be the conclusion reached by the navigation commiss W. H. Thorne, being called upon to give his views, said that he did not erate what had already been so clearly expressed by previous speakers. There was nothing that should be kept so constantly in view as the fact that the HALIFAX, N. S., Jan. 10.—Corporal Artillery, pay sergeant of his section, has disappeared. The corporal obtainhas disappeared. The corporal obtained four days' leave of absence on Christmas day, but has not returned to duty. A story at the barracks is that the corporal went to Boston, became acquainted with a lady there, who took him to be an officer, and who agreed to return with him to Hallfax. She gave him her money, with which he bought tickets for home, but before the train left he disappeared, and fore the train left he disappeared, and the lady has not seen her officer since. Neither have the military officers here, who would very much like to do so.

Officer Corbet said his first name was George. This was taken down as evidence. On Friday evening last the Salvation Army marched to the corner of Mill, Main and Paradise Row, and formed in a circle. Fully four dozen people were there, the street is narrow, and traffic was blocked. Corbet spoke to members of the army, who pointed to Adjt. Wiggins, and said they could not move until he ordered them to do so. Then Corbet requested Adjt. Wiggins and said they could not move until he ordered them to do so. Then Corbet requested Adjt. Wiggins and said they could not move until he ordered them to do so. Then Corbet requested Adjt. Wiggins and said they could not move until he ordered them to do so. Then Corbet requested Adjt. Wiggins and said they could not move until he ordered them to do so. Then Corbet requested Adjt. Wiggins and said they could not move away and he refused. Said he had liberty to stay there. "What liberty?" asked Corbet. "British liberty," asked to crope the corner for three or four minutes.

So Corbet reported. After the brief conversation the Army remained on the corner for three or four minutes.

Mr. McAlpine went into details, and by a very gradual process got Corbet to admit that the army might have remained only three minutes, or two minutes, or perhaps one and a half. In the same way the four dezen people who were there shrunk to about a dozen and a half.

POLICE COURT.

On Saturday night, Dan O'Leary had a burden which it was a shame for a white man to bear. Down on North street he made an unkind remark to a girl who was passing with her brother and the brother sailed in to pulverize Daniel. The two were rolling in the snow when Officer Rankine happened along and O'Leary who had been escorted home scaller in the source of through this port. It was a matter that should engage government encouragement. The fruit trade between America and the West Indies was considerable, but Canada, though a big consumer of fruit, reaped very little from it. Continuing, Mr. Estabrooks said that the West Indien trade might be partially captured if the government would only give it the attention it deserved. Montreal and Ottawa would be the distributing points. As a matter of fact purchasers from all over America already go to Montreal and Ottawa for their fruit. The consumption at this port would only be what would be necessary.

Mr. Reford—Do you thing that St. John

Mr. Bertram said that he had person-ally exported goods through New York to the West Indies, and would have to the West Indies, and would have been delighted to have sent them through St. John. It was one of the objects of the commission, he said, to divert this West Indian trade from United States ports to Canadian ports.

H. B. Schofield, who visited Jamaica last year, said there was a strong feeling there for closer commercial rela-tions with St. John. St. John was re-garded by the people of Jamaica as the natural port for the entrance of West
