T. P. O'Connor, M. P. and Home Rule.

Toronto, Oct. 1.—Mr. T. P. O'Connor, Irish Nationalist and journalist, addressed a crowd of 2,500 people last evening at Massey Hall, and stirred the vast audience to great enthusiasm as he told of Ireland's needs, and raised the sum of $2,500 for the aid of the Home Rule cause.

Mr. O'Connor expressed the opinion that Ireland would have Home Rule in two years. "The logical and adequate settlement of the question" he said, "is not one local parliament in the British Isles, but four, with a great Imperial Parliament, in which all sections are represented, to attend the matters of imperial importance."

Mr. O'Connor expressed great pleasure that it had fallen to him to come to Canada, because he felt the movement for which he stood before them had reached a phase where it would be of great interest to Canadians, and where Canadian influence and Canadian opinion could have a profound influence on their struggle. He referred to the wonderful progress that had taken place in Irish conditions during the thirty years since he had entered into public life. "Thirty years ago," he said, "Ireland was a land of paupers and slaves, while now it has become a land of prosperous and free men."—Exchange.

Lord Eldon's Great Grandson.

Although the new judge, Mr. Bankers' is a favorite of fortune physically and socially, he will have to travel farther in order to equal the record of his great grandfather, Lord Eldon. Mr. Scott, the name of which he modestly began his career, was made Solicitor-General in 1788, Attorney-General in 1798, and Lord Chief Justice (with a percentage) six years later. "I do not know," he once said, "what made George III. so fond of me, but he was fond of me. When I went to him for the seals he drew the seals he had his coat buttoned at the lower part, and putting his right hand within, he drew the seals out from the left side, saying, 'I give them out from my heart.'" Lord Eldon held the office of Lord Chancellor for nearly 25 years, a longer period than any of his predecessors had held it since the Norman Conquest.

Marconi Claims to Have Es- tablished Communication Between Glace Bay and the Argentine

New York, Oct. 3.—A new long distance record for wireless transmission is claimed by the Marconi Wireless Telegraph Co., which announced today that the officials were informed in a despatch from London that Mr. Marconi, who is now in the Argentine Republic, has succeeded in reading signals direct from Glace Bay, N. S., and from Chifden, Ireland, at the high power station now almost completed in the Argentine Republic. The distance covered is estimated at 5,600 miles.

A very pretty, but quiet wedding was celebrated at Second Falls on Thursday last when Miss Bertha May Stewart, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward I. Stewart, became the bride of Mr. Thomas Ross McIntyre. The bride and groom entered the room to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, which was beautifully rendered by Miss Tripp and Mr. Justin Stewart. The bride looked charming in a gown of white silk and carried a shower bouquet of sweet peas and asparagus, and was attended by the bridesmaids, Misses Williams. The room was prettily decorated with potted plants and autumn-leaves. Rev. Edward Thorpe performed the ceremony in the presence of only the immediate relatives and friends of the contracting parties. After the conclusion of the ceremony luncheon was served, and the happy couple left on the morning train for a tour of New Brunswick, followed by the best wishes of their many friends. The brides going away dress, was of beautiful green cloth and a green velvet hat, with green feathers and Persian trimming.

Murder and Rioting in Georgia Sunday.

Augusta, Ga., Oct. 3.—Following serious rioting on Sunday aboard the first section of a circus train en route from Columbia, S. C. to Augusta, in which a white man was shot to death, a negro was forced to jump from the rapidly moving car, and an attempt was made to rob employees of the circus. Wholesale arrests were made by the August police on the arrival of the train here. Three negroes, one of whom confessed a part in the trouble on the train, are in jail charged with murder and rioting. Paul Williams, a Southern Railway shipping clerk at Columbia, was shot to death, his body robbed and then thrown from the train. A negro who was forced to jump from the train is believed to have been killed, and J. C. Weekly, a companion of Williams, saved himself from the negroes by concealing himself beneath a canvas. Following this, the negroes are said to have started through the train to rob other employees, when they were arrested by circus detectives.

Unusual Wireless Case.

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 29.—Ernest E. Goodwin, an operator in the employ of the Continental Wireless Telegraph Company, was in city court yesterday, charged with violation of the penal code. It is alleged that he wilfully prevented the transmission of a message from the Steamer Western States, on September 21st, when she was disabled on Lake Erie, off Long Point. The operator on the Western States tried for several hours to communicate with the Buffalo and Erie stations. As soon as began a message asking for assistance it is said the opposition company for which Goodwin worked would interfere, and, having a more powerful plant, would smother his waves. The maximum penalty for the offence is four years' imprisonment. It is the first arrest in the Great Lakes for alleged violation of this section of the code. The case was adjourned.

Human Sacrifices In Voodoo Rites

London, Sept. 31.—A secret religious sect, worshipping a god known as Voodoo the snake-God, and who offer up human sacrifices, is again showing signs of vitality in Haiti. The matter has been brought to the notice of the German authorities by the Inspector of Police, who had made a thorough investigation.

The following summary of the report is published in the Cologne Gazette, and from this it would appear that a woman, who is now in prison in the capital awaiting trial was directly responsible for the killing and eating of five children. In her house I found a barrel containing pickled human flesh, the remains of a child aged about twelve. It is, unfortunately, well known that the Voodoo faith has still many adherents.

The priests of the cult are all-powerful and the sacrifices are usually animals, but occasionally, as in the present instance, young children are immolated. The god himself takes the form of a snake, and his mouthpiece is a priest, who is assisted by a priestess.

Estes Liberis, the young woman concerned in the present affair was at the time high priestess of the cult. At a great ceremony in honor of the snake-god the high priest and priestess sit on a double throne, the woman being clothed in nothing but a gorgeous girde. Worshipers of both sexes attend with red clothes round their loins. On an altar stands a wooden box containing the snake, which is brought from its box and worshipped by all present, gifts being placed on the altar while the populace prays for the fulfillment of some great public desire.

Then begins a wild dance, headed by the chief priestess, who discards her girde as the dancing grows more furious, and a halt is not called until the people begin to fall exhausted to the ground. If any misfortune has befallen the people a sacrifice is offered to the god.

It was on one of these occasions that Estes Liberis insisted on the sacrifice of a human victim, and, in concert with a man named Conzo Pelle, decided to kidnap a girl, a niece of Conzo. The child's mother was enticed away, and on her return was informed that the chief priestess had called for her daughter. The mother seemed greatly honored and a special ceremony was immediately arranged.

When all were assembled the girl was fetched from her hiding place, laid in front of the altar, and strangled by her uncle. Her head was cut off, and all those present drank some of the blood, which was collected in a bowl. The flesh was subsequently cooked at Conzo's house and instead of being eaten as had formerly been customary, was preserved.

Two girls who had overlooked the cooking of the flesh were declared to have offended the god, and these, too were then similarly sacrificed, their deaths being followed by two more a few days later.

A strippling in the rear seized with a happy thought, shouted:
'Professor, would a pane in the stomach do?'

Are Your Children Properly Fed?

LET us talk about the right feeding of children. Of course, you want your children to grow up strong and healthy; you want to equip them for the battle of life with rugged constitutions and good red blood. Now, the first step is to see that they are properly fed. And these words "properly fed" mean much in the diet of children. For it isn't quantity that counts, but quality.

There is no better food under Heaven for growing children than plenty of first class bread and butter. They thrive on it, grow strong and fat and rugged. Their systems crave it because it is a complete, well-balanced food.

But the bread must be good—the very best, and the best is made from ROYAL HOUSEHOLD FLOUR which contains the full nutrition of Manitoba Red Fife wheat—for only wheat of this character contains enough of the right quality gluten to balance the starch. Gluten makes bone and muscle, starch makes fat. It takes the right combination of both to make properly balanced bread.

Bread made from OGLIVIE'S ROYAL HOUSEHOLD FLOUR is richest in blood building, muscle building, health building gluten. Children like it better and thrive better on it.

With "Royal Household" you need never have anything but the very best results for it is always the same, absolutely uniform, year in and year out and is just as good for Pastry as it is for Bread.

If parents knew this important difference between ROYAL HOUSEHOLD FLOUR and other flours they would never use any but "ROYAL HOUSEHOLD".

Send in your name and address also the name of your dealer to The Ogilvie Flour Mills Co. Limited, and get that splendid book of tried recipes called "Ogilvie's Book for a Cook".

Pumpkin Pie.

Some poets sing of mighty deeds While others sing of love, Not insubstantial human needs Nor yet the stars above Will ever inspire me to mount My Pegasus and fly;

I sing a thing of some account I sing the pumpkin pie!

Oh, how it sets me all a-thrill With joy to be exact! I feel my spirit surge until It pours, a cataract, Thou ecstasy! Thou crusted bliss!

Though source of rapture high! I know no greater theme than this I sing the pumpkin pie!

I rise to height undreamed before, I faint with sheer delight, Away with vaunted classic lore! I soar and at memory's beck, I range the farther sky, Until to save my mind from wreck I eat the pumpkin pie!

Not Coughing Today?

Yet you may cough tomorrow! Better be prepared for it when it comes. Ask your doctor about keeping Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in the house. She Told Him All.

A good story is going the rounds about a drummer and a waitress. Here is what happened according to the report.

The dapper little traveling man glanced at the menu and then looked at the pretty waitress 'Nice day, little one,' he began.

'Yes, it is,' she answered, and so was yesterday, and my name is Ella, and I know I'm a little peach, and have pretty blue eyes, and I've been here quite a while waiting on table and like the place and I don't think I'm too nice a girl to be working in a hotel; if I did I'd quit my job; and my wages are satisfactory, and I don't know whether there is a show or dance in town tonight, and if there is I shall not go with you, and I'm from the country and I'm a respectable girl, and my brother is cook in this hotel, and he weighs 290 pounds, and last week he wiped up this dining-room floor with a fresh fifty-dollar a month travelling man who tried to make a date with me. Now, what'll you have?'

The dapper little traveling man said he was very hungry and a cup of coffee and some hot cakes would do.—Cleveland Leader.

Swallowed a Frog.

Toledo—Mrs. Guy Weaver recovering her illness of many months, during which she was suffering from a stomach trouble the nature of which baffled her physicians. It was caused, it is now said, by the presence of a frog in her stomach. It was removed by a local doctor.

The intruder was a brownish yellow in color and was about two inches long; it was a lively specimen, and demonstrated its kinship with its brothers and sisters of ponds and puddles by a series of lively leaps.

It is thought that Mrs. Weaver swallowed a frog egg while drinking at a spring on a farm of her parents, Mr. and Smalley, in Freedom, and that it hatched and developed to nearly normal size in her stomach.

Hundreds have seen the frog, which is now on exhibition in the Weaver home in South Chestnut street. Exchange.

Sentence Drunks to Attend Church

Past Liverpool, O., Sept. 17.—An experiment that has for its purpose the reformation of men convicted of drunkenness is being tried by Mayor Samuel Crawford, who compels them to make a daily report to him or his officers and also to attend church services on Sunday.

Refusal results in the carrying out of the jailor workhouse sentence imposed. A register has been placed in the city hall in which the sentenced person must set forth his condition at 7 o'clock each night.

William Carpenter and James Carroll who entered pleas of guilty of intoxication were the first to receive the sentence. They agreed to the terms rather than receive a heavier penalty.

Respect for the Dead.

A big Yorkshireman had come all the way to London to see the British Museum. Unfortunately it was a day when the Museum was closed. The indignant Yorkshireman refused to take no for an answer from the policeman at the gate. 'Ain't this public property?' he cried.

'Yes,' admitted the policeman; 'but,' he added, struck by a bright idea, 'one of the mummies died on Tuesday, and do you begrudge us one day to bury him in?'

'Oh, excuse me,' said the Yorkshireman in a husky voice. 'In that case I won't intrude.'—Universalist Leader.

Went 2496 Times to Sunday School.

Keypoint, N. J.: In the little First Baptist Church Sunday school, Samuel Winterton, champion "good boy" of Keypoint, rose proudly to his feet to answer present for the 2496th consecutive time.

When Samuel was five years old his mother's sister, now the wife of the Rev. Francis Callhopper of Flatbush, carried her young nephew to the little church and placed him in the infant class, of which she had charge. From that day he became a regular attendant and has an unbroken record of 48 years.

When the first Christmas came around the youngster was called to the pulpit to receive a book as a reward for faithful attendance. He still treasures the volume. That moment was one of the proudest the boy had ever experienced, and then and there he resolved that unless physical disability interfered he would win a book every year.

Ministers and teachers came and passed to other fields or to another world but Samuel Winterton was never missing from his accustomed place.

Twelve years ago Mr. Winterton fell from a wagon and fractured an arm. That broken bone meant a broken record also, and the neighbors, but they had reckoned without Mr. Winterton. The following Sunday he appeared in his usual place with the injured limb done up neatly in splints.

In 1897 the late Dr. Louis Klopsch offered a fine indexed and illustrated Bible as a prize for the person who could show the authenticated record for attendance at Sunday School. That Bible was a suitable inscription on its fly leaf, occupies a position on the centre table in the Winterton parlor.

Couldn't Understand Plain English.

By the extraordinary contortions of her neck, he concluded that she was trying to get a glimpse of her new blouse; by the tense line and scintillating flash about her lips he concluded that her mouth was full of pins.

'Umph-goo-suff-wuff-sh-Hispog?' she asked.

'Quite so, my dear,' he agreed. 'It looks very nice.'

'Ouff-wuff-so-gs-ph-uf-ugh-light?' was her next remark.

'Perhaps it would look better if you did that,' he nodded; but it fits very nicely as it is.'

She gasped and emptied the pins into her hands.

'I've asked you twice to raise the blinds so that I can get more light, James,' she exclaimed. 'Can't you understand plain English?'—Chicago Record Herald.

A Few Remarks by Way of Explanation

The Greetings under its various managements has again come to a change, and in such occasion it is almost imperative to make some statements as to the course of action etc., in many cases such remarks partake largely of a Biographical nature. In taking over the paper in the past, I would state the fact that the Greetings Publishing Co. has ceased to exist and I only am responsible for all the short comings as well as those of better kind the latter of which I trust will predominate and assure all that I will use my best endeavors to make the Greetings an all round newspaper of the district first and always while not altogether forgetting some few outside interests and undertakings of general advantage.

Our aims first will be the interest of this section of Charlotte county, and to do this effectually we would remind the initial tants generally that the assistance is needed, and ask them to give the paper a good generous support in subscriptions and paying for same promptly as after all the money is sineas of all kinds of war peaceful or otherwise.

While on this subject we will ask every family in this section to send in their subscription, and do their part for a fair start.

The next item we come to is the support of the business men which after all is the principle motor of power to the Editor's elbow as without that he however good is but a poor engine of efficiency, therefore we ask the business men one and all to come to the front with a generous patronage of their paper's columns.

The next cog on the wheel of newspaper efficiency is a good staff of Correspondents the Greetings has now a number who have done good service and who we trust will continue in the good work but there is still room for more as we want every place represented and would ask for a response from all unrepresented points, and would also ask all Correspondents to refrain from all slurring, or personal spite in their items, but to send us in the news of their district both personal and general, remembering that while an item may not be of much interest to themselves, it will interest some of the readers of the paper.

Another point we would impress on the people of the section is the importance of a good live newspaper in their community, and remind them that there is nothing capable of doing so much good to Town, village or county and therefore ask for a hearty support in the work, from all interested in the good or advancement of the place remembering that the Editor is only a part of the machine and wants good assistance.

The columns of the Greetings will be open for all good fair minded controversy or items of public interest and all such will be heartily welcomed, so bring them along and air subjects be they grievances or otherwise, talk up the advantages of St. George and other parts of the section, or the wider points of provincial and dominion interests.

In Politics which is always an important point in newspaper work we will while under the present management as far as the Greetings is concerned be strictly Independent, the columns being open to both sides to air their views, while we retain the right to refuse all matter of too personal or bitter nature. During election periods while space is available it can be purchased by politicians of either side, the same as by business men as newspaper space is the goods we have to sell and the funds received from them are what oils the cogs of the machinery.

MI-O-NA

Relieves Stomach Misery Almost Immediately

If the food you ate at your last meal did not digest, but laid for a long time like lead on your stomach, then you have indigestion and quick action should be taken.

Of course there are many other symptoms of indigestion, such as belching up of sour food, heartburn, dizziness, shortness of breath and foul breath, and if you have any of them, your stomach is out of order and should be corrected.

MI-O-NA tablets have cured thousands of cases of indigestion and stomach trouble. If you have any stomach distress, MI-O-NA will relieve instantly. But MI-O-NA unlike most so-called dyspepsia remedies, does more than relieve; it permanently cures dyspepsia or any stomach trouble by putting energy and strength into the walls of the stomach, where the gastric juices are produced.

A large box of MI-O-NA tablets costs but 50 cents at J. Sutton Clark's and are guaranteed to cure or money back. When others fail, MI-O-NA cures. It is a producer of flesh when the body is thin; it cleanses the stomach and bowels; purifies the blood and makes rich red blood.

THE GRANITE TOWN GREETINGS

THE WEEK IN ST. GEORGE

The schr. Francis Goodnow is loading pulp at the public wharf for Norwalk, Conn.

The Ladies of St. George's R. C. Church contemplate holding a chicken supper on October 20th.

Lieutenant Governor Fraser of Nova Scotia, died at Guysboro, N. S., Tuesday, Sept. 27, aged 65 years.

All persons having laundry in store occupied by Han Wing must call for the same this week.

F. M. Young.

If you see a bargain advertised in The "Greetings," tell your dealer, and if you DON'T see it, tell him just the same.

A. G. Brown has recently been appointed agent for Wm. Tinsman & Co. of St. John, in the place of R. A. Cross who has been transferred. The clients of the former agent will find their interests as well looked after by Mr. Brown as they have been in the past.

The Greetings "This week" comes two days later to our readers and will continue to do so, Friday being our publishing day for the future. Our correspondents will kindly take notice of this change and send in their items as early in the week as possible, while remembering that items received up to Thursday will as far as possible have our best attention.

The officers of Red Granite Division for this quarter are:

W. P. E. D. Harvey; W. A., Mrs. A. Goss; R. S., Earl Dow; Asst. R. S., Miss Knight; F. S., James Watt; Treas., Everett McKay; Chap., Frank Gamble; Con., Allan Messenett; Asst. Con., Alta McKenzie; I. S., Stephen Kent; O. S., Joseph Spear, F. G. W. P., H. V. Dewar.

The Sixth Annual Convention and Fruit Exhibition of the New Brunswick Fruit Growers Association to be held in the St. Andrews Curling Rink, St. John, October 31st, November 1st, 2nd, and 3rd, 1910. Over 300 boxes, 100 barrels and 1000 plates of apples on exhibition. Demonstrations and addresses on all phases of fruit growing by leading horticulturists of the Dominion. Single fare return trips on Intercolonial and Canadian Pacific Railways. For further information write to A. G. Turner, Secretary, Fredericton, N. B.

A good position can be had by ambitious young men and ladies in the field of "Wireless" or Railway telegraphy. Since the 8 hour law became effective, and since the wireless companies are establishing stations throughout the country there is a great storage of telegraphers. Positions pay beginners from $70 to $90 per month, with good chance of advancement. The National Telegraph Institute operates six official institutes in America, under supervision of R. K. and wireless officials and places all graduates into positions. It will pay you to write them for full details at Cincinnati, Ohio, or Philadelphia.

Since it was taken over by the State, the Western Railway of France has had a terrible record of accident. Last week another item was added to the account when the boat express from Dieppe crashed into the buffers at the Gare St. Lazare. Twenty-five passengers, the majority of them English, were injured, but fortunately nobody was killed. At the official investigation the driver of the engine is stated to have said that he did not apply his emergency brakes because he knew they were out of order. This accident is likely to be the culmination of an agitation in France amid which the gravest allegations have been made. It has been stated that the knowledge that the State was to take over the line led to a complete neglect of the rolling stock and the permanent way of the railway. Certainly the number of accidents in which some recent persons have been killed in a very brief time, suggests that there is something seriously wrong. Government operation of railways has its drawbacks everywhere, it seems.—Exchange.

The Los Angeles horror in which a newspaper plant was wrecked by a Dynamite friend of the Labor Union simply because the paper would not allow the society to carry on their business preparing to flo that themselves, is an instance of the extent to which the Labor Unions will bring men of a depraved nature, and under the influence such societies such nations crap out in very unsuspected people. In this case as well as the distraction of much valuable property it is expected that 19 or more lives have been sacrificed to the rapidity of this as their finish ghasts or ghoul. The deed has awakened a horror in the minds of all who have the least particle of fairness in their nature, and even the societies who are primarily responsible for such wars, are temporarily awakened to the horrible results of their policies. Rewards have been offered by such societies as well as by the authorities which in all may amount to over $18,000, and it is hoped that some of the friends acquaintances will be led to give some ones exhumely the perpetrated will be brought to justice and an example made of him or it.

A man who has spent his life thus far in the fishing business, and who has seen it develop for over fifty years, from the crude early methods of catching herring to the present business like way, said to the Herald representative the other day that he felt sure that the motor boats are helping to scatter the herring and make them change their location each year, when coming on the coast. He pointed out the fact that the least noise, the dropping of an oar in a seine boat, or other disturbance was always avoided when seining a weir, and that a jar or noise causes the fish to scurry away from the sound. Contrasting the former quiet methods, when the boats were propelled by the wind, with the racket that is now going on from Kittery to Calais, from the explosions of gasoline in the thousands of power boats, he gives it as his candid opinion that the herring are frightened away by the bombardment. In support of his position he points out that the fish are hardly found twice in the same place, and attributes their change of base to a desire for quietness in the pursuit of feed, or whatever brings them annually on the shore. His argument seems to have something in it, and we would like to hear from others on the subject.—Lube Herald.

From the result of borings already made it appears that the wreck has settled comparatively little since the night of the great disaster.

THE GRANITE TOWN GREETINGS

Roses and Love Lies Bleeding

Great Aunt Eunice's garden is one of the dearest places in the world. There is nothing modern about it, not even the faintest blade of grass—everything is so delightfully old-fashioned. The flowers and shrubs are like pretty, demure babies and always make my up-to-date frocks look out of place. That is why when I want to spend an hour among the hellebores and primroses, I always go first to that other dearest place, great-aunt's old room, and don one of the pretty old-time frocks from the cedar chest. Then I feel quite at home among the dainty flowers, as though I had inherited not her name alone, but her personality as well.

There is a fragrance from these roses such as no modern flower, however fair, can boast. The mignonette and sweet lemon-verbena scent the air, while the tiny ladies' delight and the marigolds turn their faces up in such friendly fashion.

Though the garden is crowded with these and many others, there are two which never grow in this enchanted spot until after the tragedy of Aunt Eunice's life. Then she planted the love-lies-bleeding and the morning bride. But before they bloomed a second time, Great Aunt Eunice left them to the care of others and carried her sorrow to an early grave. It seems a cruel thing that when the Hedgeson and Withrows had lived for generations side by side like one loving family, their first disagreement should have come just in time to wreck the happiness of two young lives. Such an accidental quarrel for such a petty cause—a few rods of ground—everbody says there must have been a deeper cause behind so flimsy an excuse, but no one seems able to make it.

The "debatable ground" really enough, was the garden, the favorite trysting place of the lovers, sweet Rose Hedgeson and Great Aunt Rose Eunice was once called, and I hardly David Withrow. As they laughed at the trouble that when David Withrow sternly ordered her to break his engagement to Hedgeson's girl, and great-grandfather told his only daughter—with head averted that he might not see the pain in the eyes he loved—that she might consider the proposal at an end, then and there they realize that the quarrel went too deep for laughter.

Aunt Eunice made her only protest. "Father, you have no right!" and, unable to say more, fled to her room. There was the next meeting among the roses, where they vowed eternal fidelity and unity, but it was their last. For within the week David Withrow pulled for England on business for his father. For a year he stayed, then came word that he was setting out for home, but hard upon this news came other, "the Dorothy had at sea and all on board went down."

It was then that great-aunt planted the love-lies-bleeding and the morning bride, then quietly asked that she be called Eunice and not Rose.

Perhaps you'll think from all this that I am a mope sort of person, rather inclined to sulk and melancholy; but I'm not. On the contrary, I love to train and turn out just splendid, besides, I can row and swim and fence, and—well, I think I am just an ordinary, modern girl, healthy in body and mind. And it does not prove me less so that I love the dear "old garden, now Joseph's den, for the strangest thing has happened.

One evening just at early twilight, I stole in to the tiny sweet-scented garden to spend an hour with the dear, old-fashioned flowers. I was wearing great-aunt's rose-sprigged gown, and an impulse had pulled loose a thick brown curl that now lay on my shoulder. I stepped slowly, bending often to touch and smell some favorite blossom, and at last stepped to tuck among the leaves in my throat a few shy rosebuds, when a slight sound caught my ear. I turned quickly and faced a figure which I recognized at once, I had seen too often, the portrait of David Withrow in Great Aunt Eunice's room not to know that this was her—her spirit from the past. For a moment I stood speechless at the sight of that face, and then I said to myself, that in the same garden, fifteen years ago, him, and panic caught me. For, as he strode forward with outstretched hands, I stepped back into the shrubbery and fled.

When, that night at dinner, daddy quietly remarked that "Old David Withrow's grand-nephew and namesake is back after all these years of schooling," sudden warmth flooded my face and neck.

For a week I dreamed, in spite of severe self-scoldings, such dreams as I had ridiculed other girls for entertaining. Then I deliberately passed by the gorgeous costume which had been prepared for me to wear to the Hedgeson's ball. In its place I donned the little rose-sprigged gown with its modest laces, pulled out a curl to fall on my shoulder, and tucked tiny rosebuds in those laces and in my hair.

Only one form I saw that night, the form of David Withrow in his ancient dress and powdered hair. And I know now there was only one whom he saw. For me—for us—there was one most memorable moment of that never-to-be-forgotten night; the moment when he took my hand and drew me into the rose room. There in the midst of their beauty and fragrance he undid my tiny mask and cast it aside, as he had already discarded his own. For an instant he stood and gazed into my eyes with reverent love in his.

Then, ah, then—Rose Eunice was in her lover's arms, and his lips were on mine in a first long kiss.

Horses Leg swelled Animal was Too Sore and Lame to Work—Quickly Cured by Nerviline.

I had a long experience in treating horses, and I can safely say that I know of no treatment for strains, sprains, and swellings that is so useful around the stable as Nerviline. Tom writes Mr. Joshua E. Marchison, from his home, across the line, "I had a fine young horse that wrenched her right leg, and from the shoulder down she was stiff, sore and swollen. I applied Nerviline and it worked like charm; in fact, that mare was in shape to work a day after I used Nerviline."

We have used Nerviline on our farm for twenty-five years and never found it wanting. For man or beast it is a wonderful treatment. We have received nearly five thousand letters recommending Nerviline as a general household liniment, as an all-around cure for aches and pains. One million bottles used each year. Try it yourself. In two sizes 50 cents and 25 cents a dozen or The Cotterbourne Company, Kingston, Ont.

The Impres. The artist was of the impresario school. He had just given the last touches of a purple and blue canvas when his wife came into the studio.

"My dear," said he, "this is the handkerchief I wanted you to suggest a title for."

"Why not call it 'Home'?" she said after a long look.

"Home? Why?"

"Because there's no place like it," she replied meekly.

The Previso. A country convert, full of zeal, in his first prayer meeting offered himself for service. "I am ready to do anything the Lord asks of me," said he, so long as it's honorable.

The Marks. Bacon: "And does your son show any signs of his college training?" Robert: "Oh, yes; he's quite lame from an injury he received on the football team."

Remembrance. "Did your uncle remember you in his will?" "No, but he's executor to collect the estate."

Fortune Telling

Does not take into consideration the one essential to woman's happiness—womanly health. The woman who neglects her health is neglecting the very foundation of all good fortune. For without health love loses its lustre and gold is but dross. Womanly health when lost or impaired may generally be regained by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

This Prescription has, for over 40 years, been curing delicate, weak, pain-wracked women, by the hundreds of thousands and this too in the privacy of their homes without their having to submit to indelicate questionings and offensive repugnant examinations.

Sick women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce by letter free. All correspondence held as strictly confidential. Address World's Dispensary Medical Association, R. V. Pierce, M. HOME READING COLUMNS

A crust of bread, a pitcher of water a log cabin and perfect love—there is happiness for you, whether the day be rainy or shiny. It is the heart that makes the home, whether the eye rests on a potato patch or flower garden. The heart makes home precious, and it is the only thing that can. Home is where the heart is.

The gentle grace of the mother lives in the daughter long after her heart is pillowed in the dust of death; and the fatherly kindness finds its echo in the nobility and courtesy of sons, who come to wear this mantle and to fill his places; while on the other hand, from an unhappy, misgoverned and disordered home, go forth persons who shall make other homes miserable and perpetuate the sourness and sadness, the contentions, strifes and railings, which have made their own early lives so wretched and distorted.

The bitterest tears shed over graves are for words left unsaid and for deeds left undone. "She never knew that I loved her." He never knew what he was to me. "I always meant to make more of our friendship." I did not know what he was to me until he was gone.

Such words are the poisoned arrows which cruel death shoots from the door of the sepulchre. The lady who laughs heartily is a doctor without a diploma. Her face does more good in a sick room than a bushel of powders or a gallon of bitter draughts. People are always glad to see her. Their hands instinctively go half way out to meet her grasp, while they turn involuntarily from the dampy touch of the dyspeptic, who speaks in the gloomy key. She laughs you out of your faults, while you never dream of being offended with her and you never know what a pleasant world you live in until she points out the sunny streaks on her pathway.

Home Sweet Home

Stay, stay at home, my heart and rest; Homeseeking hearts are happiest. Fortunate that wonder they know not where

Are full of trouble and full of care. To stay at home is best.

Home—the name made dear by sacred associations, the place where childish feet take their first faltering steps and infant minds receive their first ideas. There lessons of love and truth, or right and wrong, of faith and hope and purity are imprinted upon the plastic heart, and all the sorrows and perplexities of after life are inefficient to quite efface these first deep true impressions. Sweet home where the mother's gentle hands prepare the little domestic comforts that a father's love provides, and filial affection is the silver link, the silken tie that binds the household band together. Trials may come and clouds may lower, but in the seclusion of home remains sweet healing for the wounds that brave and sensitive hearts hide from a disdainful world. There these hurts and distresses may be confidently revealed and a sovereign remedy found in its unquestioning faith. There a child's pure kiss, or the touch of dimpled fingers may revive a soul on the verge of despair and in the home the brightest dreams become more golden, the rarest pleasures more intense, the rarest joys more serene. And if in the varying degrees of fortune its loving shelter must be abandoned, how the exile folds about his heart, as the traveler does his cloak the memory of its light and flowers, its loves and hopes and kindnesses.

There the noblest influences exist, the holiest impulses find expression and there have been born the chaste and lofty sentiments that have made a whole world better.

Comfort Dresses

"Comfort dresses, that is the new name the up-to-date girl calls her tub dresses this year and she plans them in every particular so that they will be a credit to her name," says Grace Margaret Gould in the Woman's Home Companion for July.

"They are smart in style, she wouldn't own them if they were not. They are most simple in design, yet they carry distinction. And they are sure to be coming for their colorings are specially charming.

"There is no doubt that extravagance is running riot this season as far as one's afternoon and evening frocks go. But fashion makes up for this recklessness by looking with favor upon many materials for simple morning dresses which are extremely inexpensive and extremely good looking.

The fancy cottons, the ginghams, the percales and piques, and the plain and novelty linens were never before seen in such an array of lovely colorings. The blue tints seem to lead and their different shades are many, the old blue and gentle blue tones being more to the fore than the turquoise and blue green tints. Then there are the tans and yellows and buffs which vie with one another in their soft, becoming shades. The lavenders are also in favor and very many grays and clever black and white mixtures are seen in these wash fabrics. It is easy to see from this that the comfort dresses are pretty to look at and apt to be becoming to about every woman.

"They have no high stiff collars, but are cut low in the neck in various ways. Some show the Dutch neck, others are a little higher in the neck and finished with a soft turn-down embroidered collar, and then for the girl who does not look well in either of these styles there is the waist with the round neck, finished with some attractive trimming-band"

Grains of Gold

Tomorrow is the fool's seed time, Today is the time to do.

Fear to die until you have done some good that will always live.

It is a risky thing to get mad and stay that way until after sunset.

Many people fail to accomplish anything because they try to do too much. When the character of any one is discussed silence in the good-natured is censure.

The extreme sense of perfection in some men is the greatest obstacle to their success.

You may be moral without being religious, but you cannot be religious without being moral.

There is a Swiss proverb which says that "it takes a good many shovelfuls of earth to make the truth."

Many people who pray for a "deeper work of grace," do not want it to come deep enough to reach the pocket.

No man has come to true greatness who has not left in some degree that his life belongs to his race, and that what God gives him he gives him for mankind.

Economy is the parent of integrity, and of liberty, and of ease, and the sister of temperance, of cheerfulness and of health. Profuseness is a cruel and crafty demon that generally involves her followers in dependence and debts.

Philosophy of the Day

Great men outgrow nicknames. Worry kills more men than wars. Experience gets there every time. Wisdom wants to be asked for advice. Some men discipline themselves to death.

Vanity produces corns and vexations of spirit.

A woman tired of hearing of love is tired of loving.

Many a man lives on the reputation others make for him.

A wise gentleman, who wished to obtain more wisdom, was doing special work at Harvard College, and had his room at the house of little Helen's mamma, who was a widow. Helen liked to meet the wise gentleman every evening and walk home with him. One evening, as they were walking along, her little hand clasped in his big one, little Helen remarked: "Any one seeing us walking along this way would think you was my papa, wouldn't they?" And the wise gentleman said:

"Where is your papa?"

"Oh," said Helen, "my papa's in heaven; I think he's in heaven; I hope he's in heaven; anyhow, he's dead!"

Needed a Blanket

Screams early one morning this week aroused the tenants of a New York city apartment house. Persons searched the halls and the roof, but they could not locate the screams. They were sure it was a woman. Finally the screams took the form of words.

"I'm here—here," they came. "Here between the fence."

The yard has two fences, about two and a half feet apart. Wedged fast between them was Mrs. Emma Wick, a widow who lives on the second floor. She had gone to bed early. Unable to sleep she went to a window for air. Loosing her balance she fell and landed between the fences. She was unconscious for a brief time, then, recovering, started screaming. She was also blushing, for her night dress was gone. It was hanging on a nail at the top of the fence.

A policeman sent in an ambulance call and then borrowed an ax. He made short work of the fence and called comfortingly: "Be brave. There will be a doctor here in a minute."

"I don't need a doctor half as much as I need a blanket," cried the distressed woman. "Please drive that crowd away."

He showed the curious ones away and brought a blanket. An ambulance surgeon made the same diagnosis Mrs. Wick had made. He prescribed the blanket, congratulated her on her good fortune and saw her walk without as much as a limp back to her rooms.

FATHER MORRISSEY'S WAY

Of Saving Outcasts to Simple and Effective.

In treating snark, some doctors recommend internal remedies, while others pin their faith to external applications. Internal remedies do not produce immediate relief, while external ones do not reach the seat of the trouble.

Father Morrissey's method was to supplement one treatment with the other. His famous prescription, "No. 26," consists of tablets and salve, each skillfully compounded of Nature's own remedial agents. The learned priest did not believe in using dangerous and powerful drugs, when simpler and better remedies were available.

The tablets, to be taken three times a day, invigorate the system, purify the blood, and restore the health and vitality. The antiseptic salve, applied inside the nostrils, soothes and heals the passages and destroys the germs therein.

Attacking the disease from within and without, and working together, the two treatments known as No. 26 quickly cure catarrh and prevent future trouble. For this tried and true combined remedy, 50c. at your dealer's or from Father Morrissey Medicine Co., Ltd., Chatham, N.B.

The Slaughter of Birds to Make Hats

The havoc that is being wrought among birds to satisfy demands of modern millinery was pressed home by Mr. James Buckland in a striking speech at the recent annual meeting of the S. B. Society, London, England.

"The whole volume of the bird life of the world is being reduced at an alarming rate," he said, and then he gave the reason—that to obtain the feathers the birds had to be killed in the breeding season.

At that time bird's natural fear of man disappears under the stress of providing for and protecting their young, and it is under conditions such as these that the old birds are shot and killed of their plumes, and the young left to die of starvation in the nest.

Thirty years ago there were heronries in the United States which were estimated to contain about 3,000,000 white herons. At the same period these birds roamed widely over China in prodigious multitudes. But even these vast herds could not withstand slaughter during the breeding season, and now the white heron is practically exterminated both in North America and in China. Now the same havoc is being wrought in South America—in every country of the world, indeed, where the white heron is still found.

The feeding grounds of the America heron, the largest but one of living birds, are also the scenes of slaughter during the very period when the bird should have respite. Thirty thousand quills of these herons are sold annually in London alone, and as the species was never very numerous, it will soon be wiped out.

So wary is this bird that it keeps beyond the range of a following-piece; but is shot to-day with a soft-nosed bullet from a mauler rifle, a dreadful missile, which often tears away a great piece from the body of the bird. Even in this sickening condition, unless the mutilation be such as to prevent flight, the majestic creature will take wing in one last effort to escape. Of a sudden it falls lifeless to the earth—and the fashion's wish is gratified.

So far this year but three plume sales have taken place in London, yet in those three sales alone there were catalogued the skins of over 25,000 humming birds.

The law is set at defiance by gangs of men who make a livelihood by the slaughter of the birds. Not long ago a gang was surprised in one of the islands which the United States had decreed to be a bird reservation, and these men had in their possession the plumage of 300,000 birds.

There is no bird in the world toward which the eyes of zoologists are turned in more admiring wonder than that of Australia, the lyre bird. Yet the rarer the bird became the fiercer grew the competition to secure its tail feathers, and not long ago a party of plume-hunters surrounded a patch of scrub in which the birds were known to be breeding, and setting fire to it, shot down the birds as they struggled through one pitiless ring of fire to meet death in another. Then the tail feathers were cut off and the bodies left to rot.

OPPOSITION TO BURIAL AT SEA.

Philadelphia. A movement has been started here to have steamship companies discontinue the practice of burying at sea the bodies of persons who die at shipboard. Last week the Rev. William McLaughlin, a prominent clergyman of this city, died at sea, and notwithstanding that a wireless message had been sent to the captain of the liner requesting that the body be landed, the clergyman's body was consigned to the waves. Sunday the Holy Name Society of the Roman Catholic Church of Our Lady at Mercy adopted resolutions protesting against the custom. The society authorized several clergymen to correspond with steamship companies with a view to ascertaining the opinions of their officers on the subject. It is understood that leading steamship companies have already taken this subject under consideration.

The truth about some men is not told until after they are dead.

THE GRANITE TOWN GREETINGS

Parliament Will Meet in November.

The date of the opening of the parliamentary session has not yet been considered in the cabinet council, but there is little disposition in the best informed circles to place any credence in the report that the House will not meet till January. The estimates are now being prepared by the various departments, and these can all be dealt with by council in the course of a month.

While there are a variety of important matters to be dealt with this session, the legislation to be introduced will not involve such lengthy consideration as did the Insurance and Anti-Gambling bills of last session, when interests from the Atlantic to the Pacific were heard. The bill which will involve the most consideration will be the act to amend the Bankers' Act.

Another reason why the House should meet in November is that it must rise early in the summer in order that the premier may attend the coronation of King George. The decoration of the Senate chamber may cause a short delay, but the House is almost certain to meet not later than November 17.

Mind Wandered Away.

Washington, The Post Office Department reports the following instance of absent-mindedness. A Georgetown woman left her home to shut a letter and buy a loaf of bread. After getting a stamp in a drug store, she bought the bread. On her way home she began to think of a new gown or something equally as absorbing, and opened one of the large mail boxes intended for packages, and dropped her bread in it. Then she continued on her way with the stamped letter still in her hand.

At dinner time she went to the bread box and discovered her mistake. It was too late to get another loaf and she hurried to the Georgetown post office, where she told the post master what had happened, and demanded the return of her loaf of bread.

Beautiful Girl has a sea Burial

New Orleans, La., Sept. 29.—Carrying out a promise to their daughter who died last week, Professor Miller, dean of the academic faculty at Tulane University, and his wife yesterday took the body of their beautiful daughter, Margorie, and consigned it to a grave in the Gulf of Mexico. The young girl always loved the sea, and said that when she died she wished to be buried in the sea.

Two weeks ago while visiting friends at Tallulah Falls, Ga., she was drowned. The body was recovered and brought here. Professor Miller was in Europe. Mrs. Miller, desiring to carry out the wishes of her daughter, hesitated to do so on her own responsibility, and awaited the return of Professor Miller. Exchange.

A surgeon in a Western town engaged to perform an operation of a minor character upon a somewhat unsophisticated patient, asked him if he were willing to have only a local anesthetic. "Sure," he replied, "I believe in patronizing home industry whenever you can." And he meant it.—Lippincott.

PROBATE COURT

To the Sheriff of the County of Charlotte or any Constable within the said County.

GREETINGS:—

Any person who is the sole head of a family or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the district. Entry by proxy may be made at any agency, on certain conditions, by father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of intending homesteader.

Duties—Six months residence and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, solely owned and occupied by him or by his father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter-section along side his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties—must reside upon the homestead or pre-emption six months in each of six years from date of homestead entry (including the time required to earn homestead patent) and cultivate fifty acres extra.

A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may enter for a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties—must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate fifty acres, erect a house worth $500.00.
