Poetry.

MAY.

The bright and sunny May is here,
The hours are rife with light and bloom,
Balm fills the air, the sky is clear,
The flowers revel in perfume;
The trees have donned their green attire,
And the scarlet bush is veined with fire.

The birds are singing sweet and glad,
The butterfly is on the wing;
Where dwelleth gloom and lives are sad
The welcome May will rapture bring.
Mid fields and woods the brook does stray,
Babbling of happiness and mirth;
While the golden hours of lovely May Lie mellow on the Earth.

I AND MY SWEETHEART.

BY MORTIMER COLLINS.

I and my sweetheart split together;
Our ages were together ten;
How sad to waste the sweet Spring weather
In the old Dame's fusty den!
White lilac, fragrant, graceful, cool,
Tapped at the window of the school;
Alas, too well our doom we knew—
There was a tremulous birch-tree too.

I and my sweetheart dwell together;

Many tens are our ages now;
Vanished is youth's gay violet weather,
Stays the old Dame's frowning brow.
Dame Nature keeps the eternal school,
And grows green twigs to fling the fool;
But looks away with parloining eye,
When we play truant, my love and I.

THE LITTLE BLUE JOCKEY.

BY ANNA MASON.

Early in the season the usually quiet town of W— was all alive with excitement and gaiety. Fine equipages filled its thoroughfares, while strangers crowded its hotels, keeping the proprietors and their superannuated assistants on the verge of despair with their exactions, only bearing up under them through the powerful incentive of money being lavishly squandered.

Besides all this, the war from the outer world had brought into the quiet town a style and elegance in dress usual in fashionable localities, but astonishing to the town's people, awakening them to a sense of their own deficiencies, and turning many a pretty little head with foolish longings, hitherto unmet.

For the first time, except on the most insignificant scale, horse-racing had found its way to the secluded town. Heretofore it had been confined to farmers' lads mounted on miserable grass-fed specimens of equine creation; although it must be admitted that Judge Harrie's son, seated in his light sulky behind a fast horse, had, occasionally, raced on the road against Brack Turner and his celebrated La Purcelle.

Turner was a professional trainer, employed on the estate of Mr. Tremaine, the magnate, 'par excellence' of the place on grounds purely mercenary.

As the first ray dawn prophesies the full effulgence of approaching day, so these small beginnings were premonitory signs of a mighty 'turflifer,' that rapidly increased and culminated in the grand races, stirring the great world beyond W—, and bringing surging into it men of wealth, ladies of fashion, lovers of the turf, and a host of speculators, gamblers and adventurers. The great wave swept over the little town, and it scarcely knew itself.

Mr. Tremaine, a gentleman of large means, was very fond of horses, and had always kept a number on his place. He was somewhat given to trading, and unusually fortunate in his transactions; for when he bought horses whose fine points—or, more correctly, latent possibilities of fine points—no one else seemed to appreciate, he would, after due care and training, part with them on terms extremely advantageous to himself.

There was one little mare bred on his place of pedigree that would have led to no great expectations on the part of turfmen, that early exhibited marked traits. She was difficult to break in, and rebelled so fiercely at work that she was at last turned loose, and allowed to roam about the place at her own sweet will.

Occasionally she was called into requisition by Tom Snow, the groom's son, when sent on some errand, until that worthy discovered that the small, irritable, nervous mare had remarkable speed; after which he surreptitiously led her out at night and won many trifling wagers of peanuts and grog.

It so chanced that she was seen by Brack Turner, who at once perceived her great capabilities. He demanded a private interview with Mr. Tremaine, and as its result, was at once installed as Dolly's trainer; whereupon he proceeded to break her in and bring out her fine points.

Many times did Mr. Tremaine meditate parting with her, for it seemed as if even with her patient trainer she never could be broken into a steady trot, while the expense of keeping a trainer prophesied a glorious career for Dolly, and held his faith in her unshaken, while with great earnestness he urged Mr. Tremaine not to part with her.

The event justified his confidence and recommended his penetration. Racing men came from a distance to see Dolly; fabulous prices were offered for her; and when a race course was finally laid out in the suburbs of the town, she was entered in competition with horses of famous record.

Mr. Tremaine's only daughter Mai—a pretty girl of eighteen, sharing her father's enthusiasm for horses, and herself a fine horse-woman—christened her as La Purcelle, and she was no more known as Dolly.

On the first day of the races the little town was as gay as Rome at carnival time. To be sure, there were a few good old-fashioned conservative folks who closed their blinds and remained at home in shady rooms; but the gay city people wielded a mighty influence, and their countenance seemed to lend to the whole affair an air of respectability, so that even grave and sober people were drawn into the vortex.

In one carriage, whirling rapidly through a cloud of dust, was seated Mr. Tremaine, a fat and pompous gentleman whose rufous and rather coarse-featured face was beaming cordially. His obesity rather added to than detracted from a self-important air. He wore fine broadcloth; a white silk vest, opening low over an expansive chest adorned by an emerald brooch; and on his head a diamond of exquisite lustre; a wide-spreading hat, refreshingly lined with green, and adorned with a scarf of tulle; a pair of yellow kid gloves, stitched with red, drawn tightly over his little pugy hands; and seven studs of enormous dimensions, representing with the finest touches of the goldsmith's art heads of his equine idols.

Like his friend Mr. Tracy, who was seated beside him, and who shared his faith in La Purcelle, he wore on the left breast of his coat a rosette of blue and maroon ribbons.

Opposite to these two gentlemen was a boy of some fourteen years, but small and slightly built for his age, possessing a face, however, remarkably spirited and intelligent. Sunny hair fell in curling rings over his broad forehead, and was surmounted by a jockey's hat of blue and maroon, set jauntily on to one side; a fine color lighted his thin cheek and deepened the scarlet in lips arched like Cupid's bow; and there was insinuating drollery and humor in his merry blue eyes, that changed in expression with every thought that chased through his active young brain. Now and then he slyly stretched out his limbs to admire his sleek horse, and complemented his knees-breeches of pale blue satin, slashed over linings of maroon-color silk, or his jacket of the same materials, heavy with embroidery.

This attired, he reminded one of nothing so much as one of those pretty pages of medieval days—perhaps of noble birth, the pet of some fair queen of love and beauty—learning in her courts chivalrous devotion to her sex, ere going forth into the world to learn of grim and armed knights sterner lessons of combat and warfare.

This was the boy known as "The Little Blue Jockey."

Driving out one day, with old Snow the groom seated beside him, Brack Turner had discovered him. The little urchin, with a very dirty face had crossed his path, vaulted over a fence at a single bound, turned a somersault in the grass, and sprang to his feet with a laugh of triumph; to rise upon the back of a colt free in the meadow, there to cling like a monkey, notwithstanding the colt's frantic behaviour, till they both rolled over in the grass together.

"Who in the name of mischief is that?" demanded Turner.

"O, one of them wild Irish!" was the careless reply of Snow, who prided himself to an unreasonable degree on his Yankee origin.

"Come here with you, boy!" shouted Turner.

The specimen approached.

"Now, then, what's your name?"

"That's a confoundum, and perhaps you will have to give it up," replied the boy, with a sly shake of the head. "Besides, I don't pick up acquaintances, but only associates with quality that are introduced to me by the minister, the governor, or some of my friends."

"The d—ll! Where do you live, I'd like to know?"

"Just wherever I happen to be. At present

I'm living here, you observe!" with the slightest touch of Milesian brogue in his young sweet voice.

"Who is your mother?"

"You've just said it, old cove. As near as I can make out, she is my mother."

"Now see here, have done with this fooling!" cried Turner, impatiently. "I'm talking to you for your own good. I want to know how old you are, and how much you weigh."

"The dickens, you do! Cool and salubrious! Well, I'm the same age as my twin brother that died, and weigh as much as my shadow. How is that for a trait?"

"You're a provoking cut! You'd listen to reason if you had any sense in you."

"Don't go off on your ear, old fellow!" cried the boy, putting his arms akimbo, and eyeing Turner with an innocent smile. "But are you reason?"

"He's got you there, Turner," laughed the groom.

Turner declined no reply.

"Would you like a lot of money, boy?" asked he.

"Shoot your money! You wouldn't be after giving it to me, even if you had it!"

"You could earn it."

"And spend it, too, you bet?"

"I'm a horse-racer, and you're the boy I'd like for a jockey, to ride the prettiest creature ever you ratty, for two eyes on. What do you say to that?"

"I say, bully for you, old fellow! I and now you talk like a man and a brother! Give us your paw, and it's a bargain. My mother may not like the business, but she'll find the money convenient to have."

"Then you've got a mother?"

"To be sure I have; she lives just beyond," replied the boy, nodding his head toward a small house at a little distance.

"Come and hold out your inducements to her, if you're in earnest."

In a few moments they reached the poor shanty, where they found a frail-looking woman bending over wash-tubs. The trainer explained his business, and the weary mother listened and hesitated.

"It's no horse that could throw the likes of him," said she, with a smile of motherly pride. "But it's meself don't like to throw him in the way of temptation, and the rough life he'd lead with bad men and boys."

"But mighty good pay he'd get, I guess, as all put in the groom, artfully."

"Shure it's a pay we need, sighed the overworked, underpaid woman. "Jamies is a good boy, and willing to work at every odd job that comes to hand; and when he can't get work it's help me to iron he will, no matter who laughs. But for all that, it's starving we're like to be."

"Then he may go."

"Shure there's no help for it, and luck go with him!" decided the mother, with the logic of suffering and necessity.

So the bargain was made. Jamie's face was washed, and he stepped into the buggy and drove off with the trainer.

Half an hour later he was weighed in the stables, and presented to Mr. Tremaine as the jockey who should ride La Purcelle to victory.

"Eighty-seven pounds, commented Mr. Tremaine; "that's two pounds more than the regulations require for three-year olds. But we'll have the weight all right. He'll do."

The bright pretty boy at once became a prime favorite with Miss Mai. She laughed at his slang till he dropped the use of it, encouraged him to read and study, and stirred up his ambition, till the coming races became to him, as to her, a matter of vital interest.

She entered heart and soul into the prospective triumphs of La Purcelle, and had laughingly declared that no one should excel her rider in appearance. Her dainty fingers, then had fashioned the suit in which Jamie was now apparelled. He had dressed at the house, and Miss Mai's little fingers had adjusted the ribbons and put on finishing touches ere she had stepped into the carriage, and driven off with her mamma and two young lady guests.

"We have concluded to drive out on the track, Jamie, and see the races from the carriage," had been her parting words.

"See, here are the blue ribbons I must present to the victorious horse at the home-stretch. Remember, it would break my heart should I be called on to fasten them to the headstall of any but La Purcelle."

And Miss Mai, his queen of love and beauty had actually kissed him. Ah well, he could die for that kiss!

The day had been like a day of fairyland. After exercising La Purcelle in the morning, he had dined at the great house, and been served from silver dishes, and eaten off of plates on which were painted beautiful clusters of fruit and groups of flowers.

"You mustn't get your neck broken, you monkey you!" cried Mr. Tremaine, salienly breaking in on his reverie, and playfully chucking him under the chin.

"No danger of breaking a neck that was born to wear a rope round it," laughed Jamie.

"What will the boys say, Jamie to you?"

"They'll envy me," replied the boy, complacently stroking his gay attire, "as much as Joseph's brethren did his coat of many colors, and wish they'd rolled me into a mudhole."

"Well, well, there is some difference in a toilet made in a fair lady's dressing-room and those of the stable. Jump out with you—here we are!"

Jamie o'ickly vanished, and the gentleman left the carriage to mingle in the crowd.

The seats were already filled, and the entire scene was one of the utmost gaiety. The first race was to be a handicap for all ages, one mile stretch. The horses were now brought on the track, and their appearance greeted by the crowd with excited murmurs of admiration. First came the favorite of the day, "Bold Pioneer," a powerful six-year-old, mounted by a jockey weighing one hundred and ten, wearing orange and green. Last of all came La Purcelle, mounted by her little blue jockey, his head bent in serious attention as he listened to the last earnest instructions of the trainer.

There was no end of laughing and chatting; up went opera glasses, fans were lightly waved. Ladies gayly exchanged bets with their cavaliers of smoking-caps, slippers or cigars against bouquets, bonbons, gloves, or other trifles dear to femininity, going by whim and fancy oftener than probability. More anxious gamblers registered heavier stakes, too much engrossed by their risks to enjoy the occasion in the light-hearted fashion of their fair neighbors.

At the first attempt the flag fell to a glorious start, Rowdy, a four-year-old gelding, being the first to pass the string, while the others were well up, and La Purcelle formed the rear guard. As they rounded the turn Bold Pioneer shot to the front.

So far, following the trainer's direction, Little Blue Jockey had by no means permitted La Purcelle to show her full speed; but as they neared the upper turn the beautiful little creature struck out with a speed that was simply amazing—like an arrow from the tight-drawn bow—shot past all other competitors, easily about to pass Bold Pioneer, and the race, virtually won, as all could see at a glance, when—O Heaven, what a sight! Bold Pioneer and La Purcelle were both down, kicking and struggling. The green and orange jockey, having sprung to his feet, was rubbing his shins and shaking off dust, while the little blue jockey lay under the cruel feet of the rushing horses.

The scene was one of terror. A cry of horror burst from the affrighted crowd; ladies even fainted. The horses were stopped, and their riders gazed back with curious awful eyes at the little blue jockey, who did not stir. In a moment Brack Turner sprang forward, caught the child up in his strong arms, and carried him out. To still the excitement he almost immediately reappeared to announce that the little jockey was not much hurt, but frightened, and receiving all needful attention from a skillful surgeon who had offered his services. He also announced that the races would continue, the handicap for all ages being postponed to the last, and only La Purcelle withdrawn.

A great sigh of relief from the ladies and hearty cheers from the men greeted this information. Racing men were heard complaining of the faulty construction of the course, and pronouncing the abrupt turns dangerous, till the entrance of the horses created a diversion, and the painful excitement died out.

Once more laughing voices were heard as the coming race was eagerly discussed. It was to be a handicap hurdle race over eight hurdles, two mile stretch; and in the admiration called forth by the beautiful appearance of the noble animals, and the excitement of betting, it is to be wondered that the unfortunate opening episode was all but forgotten?

But underneath the seats where the gay crowds were assembled, sight and thought engrossed by the glorious race, it was cool and shady. Here, protected from the glare of the sun, only a blanket from the stables between him and the bare ground, lay Jamie. Over him bent a surgeon, anxiously examining his condition.

One poor woman, in faded garments, whose voice had uttered a piercing shriek heard above the general confusion, had tottered out there, and was bending in an agony of grief over her only child. There he lay moaning on the ground, his bright maroon ribbons soiled with dust, his blue satin suit stained in many places with crimson blood, and his face, begrimed and bleeding, distorted in an agony of pain.

What a sight! and just overhead the gay crowds laughing, chatting and forgetting. Can she—the heartbroken mother—ever forget?

Mr. Tremaine was not a cruel man, although supremely selfish. His first anxiety had been for La Purcelle, the beautiful creature of so many of his hopes and dreams. A veterinary surgeon had pronounced her with no permanent injury, only unfit for the course to-day. His second thought was for the little jockey; and approaching the group under the steps, he, too, bent over Jamie, to start back, shocked and horrified, as he realized that the shattered little life was going out.

The surgeon shook his head. He had done nothing, but then there was nothing to be done. No need to add to the poor boy's pain by moving him. Where could he be more comfortable, with those cruel tortures of bones driven back into tender flesh and on to quivering nerves by those relentless hoofs? One could not be so cruel as to wish the young spirit to linger in the poor suffering little body.

His dying ears caught the word of the trainer, as he, too, joined the group.

"Bold Pioneer isn't hurt, nor his jockey neither. They're on the track again now."

"I've no heart to hear about it, Turner; our poor Jamie is dying."

The sound of loud cheering from without reached the dulled ears, and a light shone in the rapidly glazing eyes, while the boy even made a faint attempt to raise his body, as he muttered:

"Bold Pioneer has beat—I know he has! Dear Miss Mai sent it would break her heart! O, I'm so sorry—so sorry!"

"Hush!" sobbed a woman's voice, in a broken whisper. "Don't think about the races now, mamma's darling. You are dying, Jamie dear. O try to pray—ask Christ to receive your soul!"

But her words fell on insensate ears, for the little blue jockey was dead.

NEW ZEALAND "LADIES."—The sudden transformation of a servant-girl into a grandly-dressed lady is sometimes quite startling. "Not very long ago," says Mr. Bathurst, "I noticed a girl, who I chanced to know had come to the colony as an assisted immigrant, sitting in full splendor with cloak, bouquet and fan, beside her husband in the front row of the dress circle at the Italian Opera!" Unfortunately, it is easier to decorate the person than to cultivate the mind. In the wrong use of phrases Mrs. Malaprop is beaten hollow. A girl who had been developed into a lady was heard to speak of getting an "anti-monic" dress, meaning a dress of moire antique. "Another gave it as her opinion," that the mayor of their town should wear a scarlet robe lined with vermin, meaning, of course, ermine. Male immigrants who have come suddenly into wealth are apt to make similar mistakes. One night, at a public supper-party, an individual sat opposite to a dish of patis de foie gras, which rare and costly dish he persisted in calling "potted photographs." It is not necessary, however, to go to New Zealand to see just such "ladies" and "gentlemen."

ON WASHING HOUSE PLANTS.—Have a large pail or tub filled with soap-suds, then spreading the fingers and palm of the left hand over the soil in the pot; turn the branches topsy-turvy into the warm soap-suds, swing the plant briskly in the water, till every leaf has become completely saturated, then put it through a pail of clean water, and rub each leaf with the thumb and finger; give it a good shake, and when dry, return it to its place in the window. The leaves of a plant are its lungs, each leaf being furnished with hundreds of minute pores, whence the plants breathe in carbon and expel oxygen. The perspiration of plants is said to be seventeen times that of a human body. Many plants never bloom on account of the accumulation of dust upon their leaves. A plant too large to be laid down in a tub, as above described, may be syringed and each leaf rubbed clean with the finger and thumb, which are better for this purpose than a brush or cloth.

THE CHROMO BUSINESS.—Our impression was that only those who subscribed for papers received chromos; but we are justly informed that an enterprising young clergyman, in the West, is presenting the inducement of a seventy-five cent chromo, "himself framed," to every couple coming to him to be married.

One of the saddest things about human nature is, that a man may guide others in the path of life without walking in it himself; that he may be a pilot and yet a cast-away.

Abuse all things, learn your child to be honest and industrious; if those things don't enable him to make a figger in this world, he is only a cypher, and never will be intended for a figger.—Jack Billings.

THE MARITIME MUTUAL INSURANCE COMPANY, with Judge Skinner for President, Thomas Parks, Esq., for Vice-President, Rowland Hill, Esq., for Secretary-Treasurer and an influential Board of Directors, has commenced business at 72 Prince Wm. St., St. John, where the head office is located.

THE CARACAT TRIALS CAN NOT come on before the 20th June at the earliest. The Court will probably be held at or about that date, and it is understood that either the Chief Justice or Judge Allen will preside, probably the former.

GOVERNMENT HOUSE, OTTAWA, Friday, 7th day of May, 1875.

PRESENT: HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR GENERAL IN COUNCIL.

WHEREAS it is provided by the 58th Section of the Act 31 Victoria, Chapter 6, intituled: "An Act respecting the Customs," that the importer of any cattle or swine may slaughter and cure and pack the same in bond, under such Regulations and restrictions as the Governor in Council may from time to time make for this purpose.

And whereas it has been found expedient to give effect to the said Section 58, in so far as regards the importation of swine, and to alter the terms of the Regulations for this purpose, adopted by Order in Council of 22nd of May, 1865:— His Excellency, on the recommendation of the Honorable the Minister of Customs and under the provisions of the said Act has been pleased to order, and it is hereby ordered, that the said Order in Council of the 22nd day of May, 1865, and the Regulations thereby established be and the same are hereby repealed, and that the following Regulations be and are hereby adopted and established in lieu thereof—that is to say:

1. Upon the importation of swine for the purpose of slaughter, the Importer shall enter the same for Warehouse, upon the usual form of such entries, stating upon its face, the number and value of the herd, and also the quantity of pork, bacon, hams and lard, which the importer stated will produce when slaughtered and dressed at 13 pounds weight for each live hog so imported, and the amount of duty to which such produce is or may be liable under the rate prescribed by the tariff in force at the time being as the proper duty on meat of that kind. Such Importer shall then execute a bond to the Queen, in double the amount of such duty, the condition of which bond shall be, that upon the due exportation within one year of the said products of the swine so imported and converted into pork, bacon, hams and lard, or payment of the duty secured by the said bond, then the said bond shall be and become null and void, otherwise shall remain in full force and virtue.

2. Upon the receipt into the Bonding Warehouse, the swine shall be regarded only as meat, and it shall not be lawful to remove any of them from such Warehouse alive; nor shall any part of the produce of such swine be removed therefrom, for any purpose, without a permit from the Collector, or proper Officer of Customs, as in the case of all other bonded goods.
3. Swine imported in the carcasses to be cured and packed in bond, may be entered in the usual way for Warehouse, and be placed in the premises established as a Warehouse of this class for the special purpose of curing and packing. The weight of such carcasses to be duly ascertained by the proper Officer of Customs, and the Importer shall give bonds to the Queen in double the amount of duties accruing thereupon under the tariff then in force, conditioned for the due exportation of the same, or payment of duty within two years from the date of its entry.
4. The killing pen, curing and packing houses and all cellars, stores or other apartments included in such Warehouse, shall be accessible at all times between sunrise and sunset to the inspection and survey of the Collector or Inspector of Customs, or any officer of Customs to whom the duty of such inspection may be assigned by them or either of them.
5. The produce of swine imported alive and warehoused for slaughter, at the said rate of 13 pounds for each hog, and the meat of the swine imported in carcasses for curing and packing, at the actual ascertained weight at first entry, shall be subject while in bond to all changes in the tariff rate of duty, and when it entered out of bond for home consumption, shall pay the rate of duty in force at the date of such entry.

W. A. HIMS WORTH, Clerk, Privy Council.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1875—EIGHTH YEAR.
THE ALDINE,
THE ART JOURNAL OF AMERICA,
ISSUED MONTHLY.
"A MAGNIFICENT CONCEPTION, WONDERFULLY CARRIED OUT."

The necessity of a popular medium for the representation of the productions of our great artists, has always been recognized, and many attempts have been made to meet the want. The successive failures which so invariably followed each attempt in this country to establish an art journal, did not prove the indifference of the people of America to the claims of high art. So soon as a proper appreciation of the want and an ability to meet it were shown, the public at once rallied with enthusiasm to its support, and the result was a great artistic and commercial triumph—THE ALDINE. THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light, and graceful literature; and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimen of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it is bound up at the end of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume can not duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes for ten times its cost; and then, there is the chromo, besides!

The national feature of THE ALDINE must be taken in no narrow sense. This art is cosmopolitan. While THE ALDINE is a strictly American institution, it does not confine itself entirely to the reproduction of native art. Its mission is to cultivate a broad and appreciative art taste, one that will discriminate only on grounds of intrinsic merit. Thus, while placing before the patrons of THE ALDINE, as a leading characteristic, the productions of the most noted American artists, attention will always be given to specimens from foreign masters.

The artistic illustration of American scenery, original with THE ALDINE, is an important feature, and its magnificent plates are of a size more appropriate to the artistic treatment of details than can be afforded by any inferior page. The judicious interposition of landscape, marine, figure, and animal subjects, sustain an unabated interest, imposing where the scope of the work confines the artist too closely to a single style of subject. The literature of THE ALDINE is a light and graceful accompaniment, worthy of the artistic features, with only such technical discussions as do not interfere with the popular interest of the work.

PREMIUM FOR 1875.
Every subscriber for 1875 will receive a beautiful portrait, in all colors, of the same noble dog whose picture in a former issue attracted so much attention.

"MAN'S UNSELFISH FRIEND"
will be welcome in every home. Everybody loves such a dog, and the portrait is executed so true to the life, that it seems the veritable presence of the animal itself.

Besides the chromo, every advance subscriber to THE ALDINE for 1875 is constituted a member, and entitled to all the privileges of THE ALDINE ART UNION.

The Union owns the originals of all THE ALDINE pictures, which, with other paintings and engravings, are to be distributed among the members. To every series of 5,000 subscribers, 100 different pieces, valued at over $2,500 are distributed as soon as the series is full, and the awards of each series as made are to be published in the next succeeding issue of THE ALDINE. This feature only applies to subscribers who pay for one year in advance. Full particulars in circular sent on application enclosing a stamp.

Dr. J. Walker's California Vinegar Bitters are a purely Vegetable preparation, made chiefly from the native herbs found on the lower ranges of the Sierra Nevada mountains of California, the medicinal properties of which are extracted therefrom without the use of Alcohol. The question is almost daily asked, "What is the cause of the unparalleled success of WALKER'S BITTERS?" Our answer is, that they remove the cause of disease, and the patient recovers his health. They are the great blood purifier and a life-giving principle, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system. Never before in the history of the world has a medicine been compounded possessing the remarkable qualities of WALKER'S BITTERS in healing the sick of every disease men are heir to. They are a gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Visceral Organs, in Bilious Diseases.

If men will enjoy good health, let them use WALKER'S BITTERS as a medicine, and avoid the use of alcoholic stimulants in every form.
R. H. McDONALD & Co.,
Druggists and General Agents, San Francisco, California, and New York, Washington and Chicago, Ill., New York.
Sold by all Druggists and Dealers.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bowels are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and vital organs wasted beyond repair.

Grateful Thousands proclaim WALKER'S BITTERS the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.
Bilious, Remittent, and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others, and their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to Dr. J. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS, as they will speedily remove the dark-colored viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Congestive Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia. One bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Swelled Neck, Goitre, Scrophulous Inflammations, Indolent Inflammations, Mercurial Affections, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin, Sore Eyes, etc., etc. In these, as in all other constitutional Diseases, WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS have shown their great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys, and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood.

Mechanical Diseases.—Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Plumbers, Type-setters, Gold-beaters, and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this, take a dose of WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS occasionally.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pus-tules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ringworms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scourf, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. No system of medicine, no vermifuges, no cathartics, will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that improvement is soon perceptible.

Jaundice.—In all cases of jaundice, rest assured that your liver is not doing its work. The only sensible treatment is to promote the secretion of the bile and favor its removal. For this purpose use WALKER'S BITTERS.
