Good Flour

Makes Good Bread

The above phrase is all truth. You can't have good flour unless the wheat is good. The wheat from which is made is a combination in the correct proportions of Ontario and Manitoba wheat. The greatest care is used in milling, with the result that it produces bread that is a joy to the housewife. For bread, biscuits, pie or cake CYCLONE Flour is ideal.

All signs point to an election in the fall. Some are of the opinion that there will be one in August or September. This however, is unlikely not only from the fact that at that particular time there is no chance for either party to stir up much election enthusiasm, but because the result of the census will not be known.

Jacob Palm's new concrete mixer arrived this week and the first job was putting in the concrete walls for the foundation of Jos. Kunkel's house. The machine works splendidly, and Mr. Palm will be able to do an enormous amount of work with it.

A Tie Game.

A great game of Football was played here last Friday evening between Walkerton and Mildmay Intermediates. The weather was splendid, and a fairly good crowd turned out to see the game, many of them coming from Walkerton. The game was fairly even in the first half, neither side scoring a goal. In the second half, however, Mildmay broke into the scoring column and tallied two goals in quick succession. But now comes the sad part of it all. The Walkerton forwards got in some great work, and came back with two goals which tied the score in short order, and the locals were unable to break through the visitors defence again to break the tie, the score at the close being 2 all. The game was clean and fast, and Referee J. A. Johnston had very little trouble. The following is the lineup of the two clubs:—Walkerton—goal Walford; backs—Aste, Fraser; halfbacks—Whitehead, Huck, Lafrance; forwards—Schnurr, Cartwright, Huether, Eidt and Oberle.

Mildmay—Goal—Carroll; Backs—S. Kunkel, Hinsperger; Halfbacks—Lethbridge, Weber, Yandt; Forwards—Berry, Pletsch, L. Kunkel, Scheffer and H. Schmidt.

Two New Bridges.

The Carrick Council has decided to erect two large new bridges this year, one on the 30th sideroad, and the other on the 8th concession, opposite lot 33. The present bridges are old fashioned wooden structures, and have served their day.

Western Excursionists.

Messrs. Conrad Hohnstein of Mildmay, Chas. Scheffer of Ambelside and Mrs. John Hundt of Formosa, left on Tuesday on the homeseekers' excursion to Edmonton. William Johnston of Teeswater left for Vegreville, Alberta, the same day.

Bigger Lambs.

Thos. H. Jasper of the 12th concession tells us that he sold a pair of lambs recently that excelled the one reported in our last issue. The lambs were six weeks and two days old, and one weighed 64 lbs. and the other 58 lbs. They were record breakers, all right.

Of Course it Pays.

Mr. Robt McNamara, tailor, has been trying to sell a second-hand buggy for the past six months, but didn't succeed until he inserted a little advert. in the GAZETTE last week, and he tells us he could have sold the vehicle several times since. A Formosa man purchased the buggy. Great is printer's ink.

Large Eggs.

Mr. A. Brohmann of this village is the possessor of a large Minorca hen which laid seven double yolked eggs in seven days, and on the eighth day laid two hard shelled eggs, larger than the common size. The largest egg measured 7x8 inches. That's a record to be proud of.

Hossfeld vs Saunders.

Henry Hossfeld of Carrick brought an action this week against Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Saunders of Walkerton, for damages for sheep, alleged to have been killed by the Saunders dog. The case was tried on Tuesday afternoon before A. W. Robb, J. P. D. Robertson appeared for plaintiff, and Messrs. Klein and Scott for defendants. Leopold Kramer of Mildmay was one of the witnesses. Judgment was reserved until Saturday.

Choked to Death.

Mr. James Brown, a painter, of Teeswater, while eating dinner at Anthony Schnurr's hotel, Formosa, on Monday, choked on a piece of meat, and died before the arrival of the doctor, fifteen minutes later. Frank Schell, clerk at F. Oberle's store, was in the dining room at the time, and noticing Mr. Brown's distress, he hastily telephoned for Dr. McCue, who lost no time in coming to the aid of the unfortunate man. He was too late, however, for the old gentleman was dead before his arrival. Deceased was about 70 years of age, and was the father of Archie Brown of Toronto, who is well known here.

Sad Drowning Accident.

A deplorable drowning accident took place at Fordwich on Monday afternoon of this week, when Mr. Peter Eckel jr., formerly of this village, and A. D. Kranick of Fordwich lost their lives. Mr. Eckel was the owner of the Fordwich grist mill, which is operated by water power, and on Monday afternoon he and Mr. Kranick were engaged in making some repairs to the mill dam. They were drawing gravel with a horse and wagon to the dam, and had driven to the upper side of the dam to unload their gravel. In turning the horse around, the animal suddenly fell into a deeper part of the river, throwing Mr. Kranick in to the water. Mr. Eckel at once jumped in and tried to lend assistance, but it is thought probable that he was struck by the horse, for after going down he never rose to the surface again. Neither men were able to swim. Peter Eckel was born and brought up in this township, and was well known and highly respected here. He was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Eckel, formerly of Balaklava. He was in the hardware business at Clifford last year, and on the first of February he took possession of the Fordwich grist mill, and was doing a big business. He leaves a widow and three children. The funeral takes place to-day at Fordwich. Mr. Kranick was a laborer, and leaves a widow and four small children.

Niagara Excursion.

The Daughters of the Empire of Harrison purpose running an excursion to Toronto and Niagara Falls, via G. T. R., on June 16th. Good going Friday, and returning Monday. Return fare to Toronto $2.80; to Niagara $3.15. Train leaves Mildmay at 6.41 a. m. See bills and posters for further particulars.

King's Birthday.

Saturday, June 3rd, is the birthday of King George, and the day has been proclaimed an official holiday. It will not be observed this year, however, although the banks are closing for the day. Coronation Day, June 22nd, will be generally observed in this province.

Model Farm Excursion.

The annual excursion to the Guelph Model Farm, under the auspices of the South and Centre Bruce Farmers Institutes, will be held on Friday, the 9th day of June. The Model Farm is especially attractive just now, and visitors will see it at its best. The return fare from Mildmay is $1.15. See bills for time table and other particulars.

The Circus.

Mildmay and Carrick were well represented at the Howe Circus held at Walkerton yesterday. The rain marred the pleasure of the day, but the circus was well worth seeing. One of the circus performers paid a visit to Mildmay in the afternoon, and laid in a stock of wet goods, and his horse properly refused to carry him back to the county town, but cantered away without him.

Coronation Day Celebration.

The program has been completed for a monster celebration in Mildmay on Coronation Day, June 22nd. The committee has spared neither pains nor expense to furnish an interesting and enjoyable program. The following will give the public an idea of the principal events:—In the forenoon at 10 o'clock a game of baseball will be played between Mildmay vs. Clifford public schools. These juveniles are fast players, and will be well worth seeing. At 12.30 a school children's parade will take place, headed by the Formosa Band. At 1.30 p. m. an exhibition game of football will be played between Mildmay and Walkerton W. F. A. league teams. This game alone will be worth the price of admission. At 3 p. m. Carrick's famous base ball nine will contest a game with Walkerton's crack team. This will be a fight to a finish game as these teams are old rivals. The Bruce County 5-mile Road Race will be run off during the afternoon. This race is open to residents of Bruce County only. The prize is a beautiful silver trophy valued $35.00. The trophy is now held by Manuel Weber of Mildmay. The time last year was 31½ minutes. Get out boys and try for this trophy. The new race track is nearly completed and the committee is offering liberal cash prizes for a farmer's trot—this race is open only to farmers' horses that have never won money in a race—get busy with your fast ones boys, and have a try for the big money. The race track will be at the disposal of those who wish to train horses. In all probability a grand concert will be held in the Town Hall in the evening. Good band music will be rendered during the afternoon and evening. Make your arrangements to come to Mildmay on June 22nd, and enjoy a good day's sport.

Milne in California.

Riverside, Cal., May 20th, 1911
Dear Mr. Johnston:—

I have received many very interesting letters from friends in Mildmay keeping me posted in happenings there and as I cannot find time to answer them, will you kindly through the columns of the Gazette convey to friends there that Mrs. Milne and myself are still in excellent health, having a pleasant time continually, and are on the move and seeing something new every day. The weather continues like our finest June days east.

A few days ago we took in the Alligator farm and Ostrich farm which were very interesting indeed. They have several thousand alligators running in age from 100 years (they claim) to a few months old. They had about 25 breeders, all over 50 or 60 years old to produce new stock, and are from 6 to 8 ft. in length. These lay from 50 to 60 eggs each once a year, and lay this full amount over night or during 24 hours in a pond of water which is their home about one half of the time. The mother covers up her eggs (which are about the size of a large hen's egg) in the mud at bottom and with water at 80 degrees will hatch out in about 60 days lively young 'gators that provide for themselves like fish. The older ones get large and lie on the banks in the sun and go to sleep most of the day, but stay in the water at night. They are fed on flesh, and are taught many tricks and the guide made some of them go through several stunts, amongst which is to climb up an incline about 20 feet high and then shoot the chutes into the water, like people do in boats. They are raised here for their hides with which the Co. makes Alligator leather valises, etc.

In the Ostrich farm they have several hundred, some of which will stand as high as a tall man, are quite strong and will run swiftly with a man on his back, or, when two are hitched to a light buggy will outrun some of the fast horses in a race. They are treacherous and often kick strangers with great force if the venture too near. They are fed on fruit, vegetables and grain and are raised for their fine plumes which ladies admire so much.

We attempted to ascend Mount Lowe but Mrs. Milne would not venture and I did not go to full summit, but went far enough to see the valley and fine scenery to the Pacific Ocean 25 miles away which repaid me well for the party trip. The ascent of Mount Lowe is called the most interesting in the world for the following reasons. The length of incline track is 3,000 feet with a 62 per cent grade, then at the top of the incline one takes the trolley car and skirts around the mountain edges which seem dangerous and makes one hold his breath in suspense while passing over parts which seem suspended in midair, two or 3,000 feet high and after a thrilling experience of several miles, finally lands one at Alpine Tavern, amid trees and snow over 5,000 ft or almost a mile above sea level 25 to 30 miles away, and one sees the whole orange valley, cities of Pasadena, Los Angeles and other towns which are stretched out like a moving panorama before him and with a glass can see great steamers going and coming from Japan and the Orient on the Pacific Ocean.

Eastern tourists take great pleasure out of the excitement of seeing all the four seasons of the year in Jan. or Feb. by going up Mount Lowe in the forenoon to Alpine Tavern and from there taking a sleigh ride with jingling sleigh bells, and a tilt at snow-balling each other which surely constitutes a winter scene. Then they descend and take a fast electric train through the orange fruit-growing valley and see the Chinese and Japs picking green peas, beans, lettuce and other vegetables as well as ripe tomatoes and strawberries which is summer indeed, and while one set of Japs are busy at last picking of peas in a tract some other Japs are plowing, harrowing, hoeing and sowing a new crop of same kind of vegetables again in same 10 or 20 acre tract, plowing under the stalks of those just picked, which is truly Spring. The same parties will likely encounter some rain with a few snowflakes, or see the farmers picking oranges, which will represent fall and thus complete the full four seasons in one day.

Then he will take a swim in the warm salt water in the Pacific, go back to Los Angeles, to the Alexandria, or to the Green Hotel in Pasadena, have a sumptuous evening dinner, then go to hear some of the finest Prima Donnas at the Opera, after which he will retire to his virtuous couch with his mind satisfied that he has seen the greatest variety of seasons and scenery that can be experienced in one day of any place in the known world.

Yours truly,
J. S. Milne.

Hints for Busy Housekeepers.

Recipes and Other Valuable Information of Particular Interest to Women Folks.

TESTED RECIPES.

Chicken Coquettes.—Roll four cups of minced chicken, one cup bread crumbs, three well beaten eggs, one tablespoonful of sherry wine, two grates of nutmeg, one-half teaspoonful of salt, dash each of cayenne and paprika, one tablespoonful each of cream and melted butter, into pear-shaped balls; dip these into beaten egg and bread crumbs and fry to a golden brown. These are delicious.

Pineapple Dessert.—One pint of shredded pineapple. Boil with one-half ounce of gelatin which has been dissolved in just enough cold water to dissolve it. When cooled, but not fully formed, stir in the stiffly beaten whites of three eggs and fold in lightly one-half pint of whipped cream; pour into a mold and set on ice to harden. If canned pineapple is used no sugar will be required. Serve with plain cream.

Cuban Dish.—Peel and slice four fine Bermuda onions into cold water. Leave them there half an hour, take them out and dry by laying them upon one cloth, covering with another. Have ready in a saucpan a dozen fine tomatoes peeled and sliced thin. Heat slowly while you fry the onions in butter to a light brown. When the tomatoes are hot and soft season with salt, sugar, and an even teaspoonful of paprika. Add four okra pods sliced thin. Bring to a boil, add the fried onions, and cook fast for fifteen minutes. Line a platter with slices of toast, well buttered, and pour the "olla" over them. Set in the oven for three minutes to soak the toast and serve.

Genoa Dish.—Stew one dozen tomatoes until soft, add a little sugar, salt, and cayenne. Put through a colander, return to fire. In a frying pan heat three large table-spoonfuls of butter, break into it rapidly six eggs, stirring all the time. As soon as eggs are broken and mixed add the tomatoes, then add quickly three table-spoonfuls of grated Parmesan cheese. Eat with brown bread.

PINEAPPLE.

Drain the slices of pineapple from the syrup in the can. Dip the slices, one at a time, in fritter batter and fry in deep fat to a delicate amber tint. Drain on soft paper. Serve at once with a hot sauce made of the syrup from the can or with powdered sugar.

Sauce for fritters.—Put the syrup from the can of pineapples and three-fourths of a cup of sugar over the fire to boil; mix a level teaspoonful of arrowroot to a smooth, thin consistency, with three or four table-spoonfuls of cold water; stir the arrowroot in boiling syrup and let simmer five or six minutes. When ready to serve add one-fourth of a teaspoonful of salt, a table-spoonful of lemon juice, and Kirsch, claret, or rum to taste. Serve as an entree with roast meat.

Pineapple Fritters.—Batter for Pineapple Fritters—Beat one egg, add one-half cup of milk, and gradually stir into one cup of sifted flour, sifted again with one level teaspoonful and a half each of baking powder and sugar and one-fourth teaspoonful of salt.

Golden Custard.—To each pint of milk allow two eggs, one-fourth cupful of sugar, or more if desired very sweet. Whip the sugar with the eggs until sugar is dissolved. Pour this into the milk and pour over a half cupful of stale cake crumbs that have been dried and rolled fine. Pour into fancy molds or cups and set in a pan of warm water which comes to one-third of the top of the cups. Bake in a moderate oven until the custards are firm. Remove from the cups by slipping a thin bladed knife about the edges of custards. Pour some sweetened pineapple juice over each one and top with a spoonful of whipped cream.

Pineapple Trifle.—Boil two-thirds cupful of sugar and one pint can of grated pineapple until a good syrup. Dissolve one-half package of gelatin in one-half pint of boiling water. Add pineapple syrup, juice of an orange, and let set. When well set add one-half cupful whipped cream and beat until well mixed. This amount will serve eight persons, and in carrying out a color scheme of red or green a decoration of maraschino cherries could be used.

TIME FOR COOKING.

Beets, from one hour to four hours. Wash and cut off tops. Cabbage, wash and soak a few minutes in salt water to remove any insects; boil for twenty minutes.

Carrots, scrape, boil from thirty to forty-five minutes. Turnips, pare, boil in water to which a table-spoonful of sugar has been added; if large, slice.

Winter squash, remove the seeds and skin and cut into pieces; boil from fifteen to twenty minutes in very little water.

Onions, peel under water; boil three-quarters of an hour to an hour.

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.

Lemon juice rubbed on the hands will easily and effectually remove stains.

To cure carache, wrap a little black pepper in cotton, moisten it with sweet oil and insert it in the ear.

Stains may be removed from tinware by scouring with common soda then washing thoroughly and drying.

Lemons hardened from long standing may be made usable by covering a few moments with boiling water.

It is said that a piece of sal ammoniac will remove a wart if dampened and rubbed on the wart several nights in succession.

When preparing a leg of lamb for roasting, pin on thin slices of bacon with whole cloves and the flavor of the meat will be fine.

Always warm the baby's bed with a hot water bottle before putting him to rest for the night. If he is restless this will make him sleep.

Having several pairs of shoes and never wearing the same pair more than one or two days at a time will rest the leather and make it last better.

Boiled potatoes should be served as soon as they are cooked. To make them drier drain off the water quickly, shake them in a strong draught of air, and do not put back the lid of pot.

Any dish that has held dough, milk, cream or eggs should be rinsed in cold water before being placed in hot water, as hot water tends to cook such things and make them more difficult to remove.

To keep the feet dry and warm and increase the durability of boots and shoes, it is best to have the soles perfectly dry, and then apply linseed oil on the outside of them till they will absorb no more.

The best way to keep a bed from becoming damp if left for a week or two, is to leave a blanket on the top of the bed after it is made. Take the blanket off before using, and then you will find it quite safe. It is seldom necessary to eat half a chicken in the middle of the night, but there are times when a plain biscuit and a glass of water will give the relief to an exhausted body which will bring soothing rest to the disturbed mind.

Wash and starch your curtains in the usual way. Pin down on the lawn with toothpicks, stretching into position as you proceed. You will find they will look as good as new and the process much easier and quicker than with frames.

White ostrich feathers can be cleaned by using gasoline and flour. Stir in enough flour to make a thin white paste. Thoroughly shake the feather in this. Dry by waving in the sunshine and air. The flour will shake out, leaving your feather white, soft, and beautiful.

If there is a strong wind and the doctor has left orders that a window in the sick room must be kept open all night, nail a piece of muslin over the aperture. This will prevent draughts, and at the same time not obstruct the ventilation. The material should be coarse.

Instead of a hot-water bag, use a bag of hot salt. Put the salt in a pie plate and heat it in the oven, then put it into a small bag or, in case of emergency tie it loosely in a thin cloth and lay it over the afflicted part. Many prefer a hot salt bag to a hot water bag. The salt may be reheated.

Save old kid gloves for ironing day. Sew a pad made from the left glove on to the palm of the right one, and you will find your hand is saved from becoming blistered while the fingers and the back of the hand will be protected from the scorching heat, which is so damaging to the skin.

OVERLOOKED.

A schoolmaster had been severely correcting a boy, and finished by saying: "Now, sit down and write a letter to your parents, telling them how much you are taught here, and how little you profit therefrom. I should be ashamed to tell them." The boy cried at first, and then wrote: "Dear Father,—I am very stupid, though there is more to be learnt here than anywhere.

Twice two's four, four boys go to one bed, six beds make one attic, and four attics made one well-ventilated and well-appointed sleeping dormitory. One round of bread and butter makes one breakfast, and every tea makes its own supper."

"This time," said the master, when he had examined the letter, "we will overlook your conduct, and you needn't send that note."

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL STUDY

INTERNATIONAL LESSON,
JUNE 4.

Lesson X.—Israel's penitence and God's pardon, Hosea 14.
Golden Text, Neh. 9. 17.

Verse 1. Return unto Jehovah thy God—Hosea has followed Amos in declaring that inevitable disaster awaits his people because of their iniquity. But now, with faith and patriotism, he turns to them with an appeal to repent and a promise of God's forgiving mercy. His doctrine of repentance, therefore, is as gracious as it is true. He realizes how low his nation has fallen in the guilt and shame of its degeneracy. But he knows there is hope in a God who is waiting to hear the cry and satisfy the hunger of the returning prodigal.

2. Take with you words—True repentance is articulate. It will not keep silent and so give no token of its sincerity, but will speak forth in praise and pure worship. Hosea saw that the entire manner in which Israel turned to God was altogether artificial and lacking in earnestness. Her burnt-offerings were cheaply rendered. They could in no wise satisfy an offended God. He wanted none of them. What he desired was a clean worship that expressed itself in heart-wrung words—bullocks of the lips. Penitent confessions, vows, abhorrence of sin—these Jehovah will gladly accept as good.

3. Assyria shall not save us—There were two political parties in Israel in these latter days of the kingdom. One courted the help of Assyria, the other favored resistance of Assyria through alliance with Egypt. The prophets regarded both these schemes as disloyalty to the God of Israel, and accordingly frowned upon foreign entanglements of every sort, whether they meant protection from the powerful Assyrian, or the reinforcement of Egypt's swift horses (cavalry). The foreign idols, also, wrought by their own hands, were equally to be eschewed as an offense to God and as a worthless superfluity. They had Jehovah, and he was more than all their allies and made unnecessary their hideous idolatries.

The fatherless—This is a touch of that personal history which colors so much of Hosea's prophecy. Like his own children—one of whom he called Unloved—one who knew not the pity which a father has for his children—so were the sons and daughters of this wicked generation. They had grown up in ignorance of the true God, and were not his. But he intends, nevertheless, to seek them out, to win them back, and prove to them—fatherless as they are—that in him is mercy.

4. I will love them freely—The love of Jehovah is nothing that can be purchased. It is as spontaneous as it is undeserved. It asks no sacrifices except those of a contrite heart, and where that is found there is a potency in the love of God which makes all things new. It is ready to forgive gratuitously, and powerful to heal absolutely, all our backsliding. So it removes the stain, as well as the guilt, of our sin. Compare Rom. 3. 24; 8. 32; Rev. 21. 6; 22. 17.

5. The dew—Scarcity of rain often made the land depend upon the dew. So the Psalmist speaks of the dews of Hermon. In the long droughts of summer there would be no living in Palestine without this gracious provision. Hermon itself is snow-capped in summer, and the moist warm wind from the Mediterranean, coming in contact with the chilled air about the snowy top, results in a drenching dew. What a picture of the gentle pity of God. Lebanon—Here, as often in the Old Testament, not the entire range now known as Lebanon is meant, but Hermon, the loftiest and southernmost summit. From almost every quarter of Galilee it is visible. "You cannot lift your eyes from any spot of northern Israel without resting them upon the vast mountain. From the unhealthy jungles of the upper Jordan, the pilgrim lifts his heart to the cool hill air above, to the ever-green cedars and firs, to the streams and waterfalls that drop like silver chains off the great breastplate of snow." Compare Isaiah 60. 13.

6. His beauty—... as the olive-tree—A promise of national prosperity and plenty.

7. They shall revive—Under the nurturing influences of the divine mercy, as expressed by the dew, and the protection of his shadow, Israel is to blossom forth in unwanted beauty, fragrance, and fertility.

8. Ephraim—Representing the people of Israel. The verse has many difficulties, owing to the confusion resulting from the use of so many undefined pronouns. This confusion is characteristic of Hosea's style. Here, it cannot certainly be determined which is speaking, Jehovah or Ephraim, or both. A good explanation makes the verse a dialogue between the two. Ephraim announces his intention to have done with idols. Jehovah re-

CONCRETE ON THE FARM.

Its Uses Have Been Largely Extended by a Series of Experiments

It is only a few years since concrete was generally accepted as a reliable building material, yet the difference which this convenient and economical form of construction has made in the outlook of the farmer in these few years, has done much to revolutionize things on the farm. The growing scarcity of lumber and its consequent rise in price, has gradually caused that commodity to assume the general aspect of a luxury. So much lumber is used on the farm for buildings and fences that its extremely high price has made it almost prohibitive to the average farmer unless he has an extra large sum of money to spend on outlay. Wire fencing partially solved the problem, but real relief did not come until concrete was proven by actual tests to be not only practicable, but to possess many advantages over wood as a building material.

The uses to which concrete can be put are practically without limit, more particularly on the farm. Already by a medical health officer, with the result that it is traced back to its cause and this cause removed.

The farmer must be his own medical health officer. He must look to the causes to be found on his own farm. A great deal is now being done along these lines, and in many places, particularly in the West, it has been found that a number of the causes of sickness can be avoided by the use of concrete.

A common sense view of the situation shows that this simply-handled material is peculiarly well adapted to measures of sanitation and in preventing germs from spreading.

Possibly the place visited more often than any other by the farmer is his well. If it is so situated that unhealthful ground streams can leak into the drinking water, there is every possibility of this unhealthfulness being communicated to the farmer and his family by the most direct route. Concrete has done much to remedy this. If a well is set into the ground—it is impossible for such leakage to occur. In the same way a concrete dairy provides but slim accommodation for disease

HOGS EATING FROM A CONCRETE FEEDING FLOOR.

The list includes forms of construction ranging from the large hip-roofed barn down to a nest-egg that deceives the wisest old lawyer in the brood. These uses have been extended largely, by a series of extensive experiments.

Already much has been accomplished on the farm by the use of concrete. Perhaps the greatest argument in its favor, and one which has developed only since concrete has actually been put into general use, is its health-promoting properties.

If sickness occurs in a city to any great extent, a searching investigation usually follows, conducted germs. These two simple precautions are a long stride in the direction of good health, as water and milk, the latter even more than the former, are the commonest of the germ-distributing agencies and both are used frequently by the farmer and his family.

Not only has the modern farmer studied out a method of guarding against sickness from sources which might, in the case of water and milk, be termed, internal. He has gone a step further and has decided that the barnyard must also be subjected to some changes if doctors' pills and doctors' bills are to be dodged.

plies that he has taken note of the penitent's prayer and will answer. That being the case Ephraim feels himself robust as a green fir-tree. But Jehovah warns him not to forget again that all the fruit of prosperity comes solely from him.

9. Who is wise, that he may understand?—To understand, in the thought of the prophet, was to lay to heart, with a good conscience, such truth as God had made known. None but the wise and prudent can so appreciate the message of this prophecy as to profit thereby. To do that requires not merely an intellectual apprehension of the ways of Jehovah, but a practical effectiveness manifest in walking in them.

CAPTAIN KIDD'S TREASURES.

Papers in Record Office Tell What He Did With the Booty.

Doomed to an infamy undeserved, his name reddened with crimes he never committed and made wildly romantic by tales of treasure which he did not bury, Captain William Kidd is fairly entitled to the sympathy of posterity and the apologies of all the ballad-makers and alleged historians who have obscured the facts in a cloud of fable. Fate has played the strangest tricks with the memory of this seventeenth century seafarer, who never cut a throat nor made a victim walk the plank; who was no more than an amateur pirate in an era when this interesting profession was in its heyday; and who was hanged at Execution Dock for the excessively unromantic crime of cracking the skull of his gunner with a wooden bucket; because, forsooth, his majesty's officers were unable to prove their charges of piracy.

As for the riches of Captain Kidd, the original documents in his case, preserved among the State papers of the Public Record Office in London, relate with much detail what booty he had and what he did with it. Alas! they reveal the futility of the searches after the stout sea-chest buried above high water mark. The only authentic Kidd treasure was dug up and inventoried more than two hundred years ago, nor has the slightest clue to any other been found since then.

WEAK HEARTS NOT FATAL.

Irregularity in Beats Need Not Alarm, Says Physician.

Dr. James Mackenzie, a distinguished physician and an authority on diseases of the heart, recently has upset all of the old-fashioned notions concerning what is known as heart failure. The results of his investigations were made known in the first of the lectures lately delivered at the Royal College of Physicians, London, England.

Dr. Mackenzie said that heart trouble due to damaged valves may persist for 50 years and not interfere with good health and long life. Again, he made an assertion that should ease the minds of millions of apprehensive persons who fear that they are in danger of death because their hearts sometimes beat irregularly—namely, that of a skip and a jump once in a while is good evidence of a healthy heart.

KING'S DURBAR TENT.

Enormous Baronial Fireplace to be Built in Canvas Structure.

Although King George is to live in a tent during his stay in Delhi for the Durbar, it may not be supposed that the tent will bear any likeness to the white canvas mushroom which are associated with the training of troops.

The London Mirror has obtained some details of how the Royal tents in India will be fitted up. In India Durbar tents are structures of wonderful splendor, and the King's tent—or, rather, range of tents—will, as is only fitting, be on a scale calculated to impress even those accustomed to the magnificence of the tabernacles of the Indian rajahs and chiefs.

A kind of temporary place or pavilion will be built, consisting of a large number of the most sumptuous Durbar tents specially made for the occasion.

The principal of these will be about forty feet in length, is being lined with native woven draperies, and will have an enormous "baronial" type of fireplace built into one side of it.

The general scheme of decoration is to follow Indian traditions, and will be carried out in a full, rich-toned orange and black—as the dominant colors. Externally, the whole group of tents will be made as strikingly gorgeous as possible in order to impress the minds of a people who, in a ages, have been associated with the most lavish display in pageantry.

In all, there will be a large number of different camps outside the walls of Delhi—the King's camp, surrounded by the camps of the higher officials of the Indian Government, those of the greater Indian chiefs, overflow camps for the suites of native princes, and, finally, camps for visitors.

FINGERS AND FORKS.

A Traveller Says Forks Were First Used in Italy.

The customs of to-day are the laughing stock of to-morrow; and, quite as often, the innovation, scorned by steady-going and respectable folks, becomes, in the course of time, an every-day necessity. It is scarcely three centuries, for example, since forks came into use.

"I observed," says a traveller of 1611, "a custom in Italian towns that is not used in any other country. The Italians do always at their meals use a little fork when they cut their meat. For while with the knife, which they hold in one hand, they cut the meat out of the dish, they fasten the fork, which they hold in the other hand, upon the same dish. So that one should unadvisedly touch the dish of meat with his fingers, from which all the table do cut, will give occasion of offense unto the company. The reason of this their curiosity is because the Italian cannot by any means endure to have his dish touched with fingers, seeing that all men's fingers are not alike clean. Hereupon, I myself thought good to imitate the Italian fashion of cutting meat since I came home."

To Queen Elizabeth were presented gold and jeweled forks at various times. But the dainty queen preferred the old habit of fingering her meat, and forks were for a long time regarded as a worthless, foppish invention. One divine, in the reign of James I., preached a sermon against forks, declaring it to be an "insult on Providence not to touch one's meat with one's fingers." And another, in 1617, advised all travellers "returning home to lay aside the spoon and fork of Italy, the affected gestures of France, and all strange apparel."

THE FINGER NAIL.

Do Marks Indicate Approaching Dissolution.

The significance of certain markings on the finger nails frequently has been the subject of discussion in medical publications. The latest contribution is a paper by Norman Flower, which appears in the British Medical Journal. It deals with the condition of the nails during and after severe illness.

"Lower brings forward several cases," says the Medical Record, commenting on his paper, "which have come under his observation in support of the contention that finger nails undergo a change during and after serious illness. The most interesting part of his paper is, however, the testimony of Sir Samuel Wilke to the same effect. Wilke was the first to notice the white markings on the nails as being indicative of death or approaching death. Wilke mentioned several cases in proof of this argument.

"Whether these finger nail markings are of any value in prognosis is doubtful. In the first place; it may be presumed that they do not always occur, and then those who have them do not always die. They are apparently simple curiosities."

When poisoned with poison ivy bathe the affected parts with 90 per cent alcohol. Government experiments have proved this to be an absolute antidote for poison ivy.

INDIGESTION RIGHTLY CURED STAYS CURED

Not by Treating the Symptoms but by Toning up the Stomach to do Nature's Work

Indigestion should not be neglected, for by depriving the body of its proper nourishment it grows steadily worse. Neither stimulating medicines, which ruin the already weak stomach by making it work beyond its strength, should be used, nor predigested foods, which do not excite a flow of the digestive fluids, and by disuse cause the stomach to grow weaker. Nowhere is the tonic treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills more clearly useful. Its principle is to enable the stomach to do its own work by building up the blood and giving tone to the nerves. When these are once more restored to their normal health indigestion disappears and the cure is permanent. In proof of these statements we give the experience of Mrs. Paul Gannon, Star City, Sask., who says: "For more than a year I suffered with all the terrible pains of indigestion, and my life was one of the greatest misery. It did not seem to make any difference whether I ate or not, the pains were always there, often accompanied by a severe bloating and a belching of wind. I did not even get relief at night, and sometimes hardly got a bit of sleep in my misery. I tried many remedies said to cure indigestion, but they did me not one particle of good and I fully expected that I would always be afflicted in this way. At this time my brother came home on a visit and he urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and get six boxes for me. By the time I had taken four boxes I began to improve and could eat with some relish. I was greatly cheered, and continued taking the Pills until all traces of the trouble had disappeared and I could once more eat all kinds of food without the smallest inconvenience. We have since used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in our family for other troubles. I am so firmly convinced of their virtue as a family medicine that I have no hesitation in recommending them to all weak, ailing people."

NEW GERMAN SHELL.

Makes Trench Protection and Shielded Batteries Impossible.

The protection of trenches and armor shielded field batteries is at an end, for, if a leading German military authority is to be believed, security hitherto enjoyed by soldiers through the protection of breastworks or similar shallow intrenchments has ceased to be with the late invention of not less than three different shells which all have the aim to kill or wound everybody thus protected. The new projectiles are a combination of the grenade-shrapnel shell with comparatively thin walls. Instead of the old arrangement of the bursting charge and the single time fuse producing explosion by concussion, and making the bullets and fragments move like a cone-like shower, the new shells are designed to produce a two-fold mission. The Krupp grenade shrapnel carries a peculiarly arranged charge of balls placed at regular intervals and angles, and depending on a certain combination of time fuses for their discharge. The old fashioned grenade was effective only when exploding among the gunners serving a battery, but since it did not possess any penetrative force it was useless against the armored shields with which field guns now are protected. The new Brisanz shrapnel Ehrhardt shell is a particularly powerful one. Its penetrating power is equal to that of a cupronickel solid shot, and through its arrangement of the charge its destructiveness from shattering is equally great.

At the recent official trial of one of these shells tore a hole a square yard in size in a two feet thick brick wall, and a number of mannikins standing behind it were destroyed. Dummy batteries protected by two inch thick armor plate were totally demolished by the new shells fired at 10,000 feet range, and the gunners, represented ed by wooden dummies, shattered by the fragments and balls. The third shell is not designed so much with a view to penetrating qualities as to scattering fire, and is in reality an aerial automatic magazine gun. The centre of the shell is filled with explosive materials and shrapnel shot, which is intended to be exploded as in an ordinary shell at a predetermined moment. In addition to this there are four partitions, in each of which there is a series of holes adapted to receive rifle cartridges. These holes form an acute angle with the axis of the shell, and are directed backward. By means of a timing device the cartridges may be detonated successively to discharge bullets in the wake of the shell.

The idea is to regulate the speed of the bullets so that they will strike backward despite the forward motion of the shell, and hit the enemy behind the trenches. The efficiency of this shell has not as yet been sufficiently illustrated. A great many bullets are wasted by the present arrangement, an account of being directed too high to strike the enemy with sufficient energy. This new weapon, it is believed, will revolutionize the present methods of defence.

THE KAISER IN PALESTINE.

Traces of His Repeated Visits Everywhere Found by the Tourist.

Wherever red roofs appear in Palestine it betokens European invasion. Red roofs are encroachments of the modern—advance guards of western "civilization."

Many streets in Haifa might almost pass as a part of a German village. The rows of prim red-roofed cottages, each with its neat garden, are in no degree Syrian. There were Germans in charge of the carriages to Nazareth; there were German hotels. Even the American consul was German.

It is impossible not to notice evidences of the Kaiser's interest in Palestine. At each visit the Kaiser pays to the Holy Land a bit of good road is built, writes Ruth Bryan Owens in the National Monthly, and after taking the drive to Nazareth we hoped for the comfort of later pilgrims that the Kaiser might pass that way.

In one place is a tablet erected by the Kaiser to the Sultan, and others thrifty German colonies; here a good road, there a fountain presented by him. When on the Mount of Ascension the guide pointed out the legendary footprint of the Master impressed in the rock and also the impress left by the prophet Mahommed, one observant traveller asked, "And now where is the footprint of the German Emperor?"

THE ONLY MEDICINE FOR THE BABY

The only medicine a mother should give her little ones is one she can give and feel absolutely safe that not the slightest harm will result—a medicine that is guaranteed strictly free from injurious drugs. Such a medicine is Baby's Own Tablets—every box is sold under such a guarantee and the mother may feel perfectly safe in giving them to even the new-born babe. Concerning them Mrs. Albert E. Wood, Loudon, Ont., says: "I have found Baby's Own Tablets all that is claimed for them. My baby has had them from birth and will take them eagerly. I am sure there is no better medicine for little ones." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

BURIED WITH HIS GOLD.

French Miser Took His Wealth to the Grave to Hide From Family.

A miser named Anglade, who died at Pau, France, recently, carried part of his fortune with him into the grave and hid the balance, in order to prevent any one else using the money. He had steadily refused to give any information about his possessions, and after his death his wife made a systematic search of the house, with the result that about $6,000 was found in gold and banknotes secreted in it. She believed that this represented all his wealth, but when a bank out-of-the-way places. A clerk presented a note for payment of a loan promised by the miser and said that Anglade had a document confirming the transaction, the widow decided that her husband must have taken the paper to the grave.

The grave was opened in the presence of a magistrate. Packets of banknotes and bonds, with a number of other documents, including the one sought for, were found under the man's armpits. Opportunity was taken to search a bamboo cane which, according to Anglade's dying wish, was buried with him. Each section of the cane was found to contain notes and gold wrapped in cotton wool.

Our past depends entirely upon our present, and changes perpetually with it.

ONE MORE OF THE PIONEER WOMEN

TELLS HER SUFFERING SISTERS TO FIND RELIEF IN DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

Mrs. Forrester had Rheumatism and other Kidney Diseases for two years, but Dodd's Kidney Pills made her well.

Dinsmore, Sask., May 22 (Special)—One more of the pioneer women of Saskatchewan, relieved of pain and suffering by Dodd's Kidney Pills, has given her statement for publication in order that other suffering women may profit by her experience. This time it is Mrs. John Forrester, well known and highly respected in this neighborhood.

"My trouble started from a severe cold," Mrs. Forrester states. "My sleep was broken and unrefreshing. I perspired freely at the slightest exertion. I had pains in my back and Rheumatism developed, from which I suffered for two years.

"I do not need to tell you that I was far from being a well woman when I started to use Dodd's Kidney Pills. But now I am thankful to say my troubles are gone. I recommend all suffering women to use Dodd's Kidney Pills."

Suffering women can learn from the experience of others that the one sure way to health is to cure their kidneys, and Dodd's Kidney Pills always cure the Kidneys.

WOMEN DISPLACE MEN.

Drive Male Employees Out of London Offices.

The most significant fact that emerges from the coronation census of the City of London, just concluded, is the startling increase in female employment offices. In the busy square mile where are concentrated the biggest commercial and financial interests, the women are steadily replacing men. The present day secretary invariably wears skirts. The typist looks a trim little figure in belted blouse; petticoats swish the legs of office girls.

Women are everywhere, men next to nowhere, in the modern business office. And according to those in a position to judge, every indication points to a still greater supersession of men by girls in city offices in the next ten years.

The head of the employment department of the London Chamber of Commerce, on being asked for his opinion on this state of affairs, explained that there is one great difference between the sexes in this question of office employment.

"The junior shorthand clerk is very difficult to get—the boy kind. If a boy is a good shorthand writer, it seems to be feared that he will be always a shorthand writer. For the girl it is a very different matter. She doesn't mind becoming just a shorthand clerk."

The manager of one of the largest and oldest commercial training colleges, indorsing this statement, added: "I should not be surprised if the census figures disclose an amazing increase in female employment. We have been placing girls at the rate of 2,000 a year for some time. And these girls do very well. They fill such situations as typists, secretaries, cashiers and bookkeepers very efficiently, and there are women in London who can command salaries running well into four figures as buyers or heads of departments, controlling a number of others. A woman is worth just as much as a man—that is, she is worth what her work brings to the firm. You can go into many big offices nowadays and see no man about the place except the managing directors or the managers; the rest are girls."

A Pleasant Purgative.—Parsley's Vegetable Pills are so compounded as to operate on both the stomach and the bowels, so that they act along the whole alimentary and excretory passage. They are not drastic in their work, but mildly purgative, and the pleasure of taking them is only equalled by the gratifying effect they produce. Compounded only of vegetable substances the curative qualities of which were fully tested, they afford relief without chance of injury.

Nothing happens to us that is not of the same nature as ourselves.

A PRETTY ROMANCE.

Stranger Well Treated Returns and Woos Cafe Keeper.

There is material for romance in an incident which has occurred at Marseilles in a little cafe kept by a young woman noted for her beauty and goodness of heart.

The cafe is close to the harbor, and is frequented by sailors, who gave the name of "Mother Marie" to the landlady. The young woman had to deal with the roughest of sailor men, but her kindness to her customers was her best protection. When they had no money, she fed them and kept them well supplied with tobacco. The sailors never imposed on her kindness, and always paid her when they received their wages.

One day a stranger of unkempt appearance entered the cafe. "Mother Marie" immediately saw to his requirements. After eating a hearty meal he was asked by the landlady whether he would smoke a cigar. His reply was that he had not any money for a cigar, nor even for the meal he had eaten. "Never mind," said the landlady, "have a cigar all the same."

A few weeks afterwards a well-dressed man appeared in the cafe and ordered food. "Mother Marie" glanced at him and recognized in him the stranger who had not paid for his entertainment.

The elegant gentleman told "Mother Marie" that he had heard of her kindness to rough sailor men and had resolved to put her to the test. He found that she was all that the sailors had represented her to be, and he added that he had returned to the cafe in order to improve his acquaintance with her.

Then he disclosed his identity. He was a count and a large manufacturer, and asked "Mother Marie" to become his wife. The "sailor friend" consented, and now the little cafe on the harbor has a new tenant.

ZAM-BUK HEALED BABY'S SORES.

Mrs. C. Parly, of 479 Seigneurs St., Montreal, writes:—"I cannot tell you how thankful I am for the cure Zam-Buk has worked in the case of my baby son. He was troubled with scalp disease and I tried everything I could think of, but in vain. Finally I tried Zam-Buk. I could see an improvement after two applications! After persevering with the Zam-Buk treatment he is now completely cured. Zam-Buk is certainly a wonderful balm, and I shall always keep it on hand."

Mothers should use Zam-Buk for all children's skin sores, ringworm, scalp sores, cuts, chafings, bruises, etc., because of its great purity. Also cures piles, eczema, bad leg, varicose sores, etc. 50c. box, all druggists and stores.

Pessimist Jones—"How is it, Smith, that you look so hale and happy and well?" Optimist Smith—"Every time I sit down to worry I fall asleep."

Very many persons die annually from cholera and kindred summer complaints, who might have been saved if proper remedies had been used. If attacked do not delay in getting a bottle of Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial, the medicine that never fails to effect a cure. Those who have used it say it acts promptly, and thoroughly subdues the pain and disease.

SOMETHING SOOTHING.

"Well, my little man," said the house-surgeon cheerily to the new patient, "how do you feel?" "He seems all right," said the nurse. "I've just taken his temperature." "Good. Have you had anything to eat, sonny?" "I had a little, sir." "What did they give you?" "This lady gimme a piece of glass to suck, sir."

NASTY BIRD.

A little four-year-old boy living in a country town disturbed and took some eggs from under a sitting hen belonging to a neighbor. The neighbor complained to the boy's mother, who later called her boy to her and began to reprove him, when he broke in with the question: "Who told you?" The mother said: "A little bird told me. Now, tell me, how many eggs did you take?" The little boy, stammering, said: "Well! Well! Why didn't the bird tell you the whole of it?"

Mrs. Mater—"Have you seen Mr. Dater's son since he got home from college?" Daughter—"Yes, ma; saw him last night." Mrs. M.—"Has he improved much?" Daughter—"Awfully. He's got a moustache."

THIN HAIR.

A LIBERAL OFFER.

When the hair thins out on the top of the head and the bald spot is getting ready to appear in public, don't get discouraged or irritable. Just go to your Druggist and ask for Parisian Sage Hair Tonic. He will charge you 50c. for a large bottle but if it does not cause hair to grow where the hair is thinning out nothing on this earth will.

And we want to say to everybody, man, woman and child, that you can have your money back if Parisian Sage isn't the best hair grower, hair saver, hair beautifier and dandruff cure on the market to-day.

It stops itching scalp and falling hair and makes the hair grow thick and abundantly. All druggists everywhere sell Parisian Sage or postpaid from The Giroux Mfg. Co., Fort Erie, Ont. See that the girl with the Auburn hair is on every bottle. Sold and guaranteed by John Coates.

Killed by drinking Lye.

A most distressing accident occurred in Godrich township last week which resulted in the death of a well-known resident of the township in the person of George Mellman. The unfortunate man drank diluted Gillett's lye in mistake for buttermilk. For years he had been troubled with a stomach ailment and had been in the habit of drinking buttermilk as a remedy. On the day of the accident the vessel containing the buttermilk had been emptied and removed from its accustomed place. When Mr. Mellman went to get a drink the only vessel to be seen was the one containing the Gillett's lye and he took two mouthfuls of the deadly liquid before he discovered his mistake. Medical aid was summoned at once, antidotes were administered, but despite all that could be done blood poisoning set in and death ensued Wednesday afternoon. The deceased was seventy one years of age.

Grabbed by Camel.

At a circus in St. Catharines on May 15 a small boy was standing watching the animals in the menagerie before the performance in the big show commenced suddenly one of the camels stepped on him. He seized the lad's shoulder in his teeth, and lifting him off his feet, proceeded to shake him vigorously. Whether the angry brute's next move would have been to put the boy under his feet and trample him to death is uncertain, for a keeper, witnessing the incident ran up and grabbed the camel's halter, shouting to him to let go. The camel seemed inclined to destroy, and in fact, hung on to the boy, who was screaming with terror, until literally forced by the keeper to let go.

Etiquette For Husbands.

The model husband should learn Esperanto. It contains no swear words. The husband of a woman with a mission should not drink more than just enough to produce semi-oblivion.

The husband of a lady doctor should not boast of what "we" know. He doesn't know anything; his wife knows it all.

The husband of a school teacher should never stay out late at night without bringing home a written excuse in the morning.

The husband of a landlady of a select boarding house should efface himself as much as possible. The guests will be more reconciled to their own condition if they believe he is worse off than they are. He should answer back to his wife, as such a conduct has a tendency to tempt the boarders to do likewise. Above all else, he should avoid being fat for that might lead them to suspect that he was getting "bites" between meals. His role should be that of the clinging vine, pure and simple—especially simple.

Jardine Careless.

The death watch placed on Edward Jardine, who will hang on June 16, report that the prisoner regards his position in the coolest manner possible. He is careless and light-hearted, spending much of his time in playing a mouth organ, which was secured for him at his own request. He has ordered several photographs which he will give to his friends before the day of his execution. The corridor where Jardine spends his days lately became infected with rats, and a trap was set for the rodents. The prisoner's greatest pleasure is to catch a rat and to each he gives a name, calling it after some official who figured in his trial. Rev. Geo. E. Ross goes to see Jardine three times each week, and is the only one who is permitted with the prisoner besides his guard. He says that the young man is troubled with his conscience, but that physically he is improving in health. It is stated that a final attempt to appeal, the case to the court of appeal made by the prisoner's counsel, L. E. Dancey, has failed.

Happy Bachelor.

The bachelor is feeling good and deems himself a lucky wight; He saws and splits no kindling wood, He has no kitchen fire to light. When day is done his cares are o'er And once in bed he takes his ease; He need not rise to walk the floor This chilly night a child to please. For him there are no household cares, No breakfast bell his slumber breaks, He dresses and descends the stairs To oatmeal, mush or buckwheat cakes. For him life's river smoothly runs; He's happy jolly and content, He has no wife and little ones. On whom his earning must be spent. Let him enjoy it while he can, When age and loneliness shall come He'll wish he were a married man With sons and daughters, wife and home.

Deal Tenderly With Her.

"Taint every feller as I'd trust my little gal to," said Farmer Skinner of Minnesota when the young man asked for her hand. The little gal was five feet eleven in her bare feet, and she hid her blushing face in her father's shoulder, as he resumed:— "You must take care of my wee birdie, Jack. Recollect, she's been raised tenderlike. Two acres a day is all I ever asked her to plough and an acre of corn is all she's been used to hoe in a day. She kin do light work sich as rail-splitting, digging postholes, and sich like; but she ain't used to rough work, and you must be gentle with her. I'll have to split my own wood and dig my own taters now! But go, my little 'un, and be happy!"

U. S. Bank Robberies.

Since last fall no less than a hundred country banks in Kansas, Oklahoma, and Nebraska have been robbed. In each instance from $1,000 to $7,000 was taken and practically the same procedure was followed in each case.

In the three States named are approximately 2,500 banks, 2,000 of them in little towns and villages with practically no police protection. This is the usual programme in the cases, reported:

Soon after midnight the residents are aroused by two or three explosions. Those daring enough to venture on the streets see an automobile standing in front of the bank and two men with guns giving orders to stand back. Inside are their companions, filling sacks with money from the safe. Having gathered all the cash possible the burglars enter the machine, fire a few intimidating shots and go racing out of town.

Then come the gathering of a posse, the cranking up of cars and a desperate attempt to follow and capture the robbers. In no instance has there been a capture, and despite offers of rich rewards for the robbers, dead or alive, the robberies continue.

Sometimes several weeks go by without a robbery; then there will be two or three in a single night.

The automobile is blamed for much of this crime.

Lengthen Public School Course.

Probably the most important move taken by the trustees section of the Ontario Educational Association at their annual convention was a resolution adopted to petition the Government to add another year to the public school course and make this final year just as compulsory as the earlier years. The change in the extent of the elementary training which the trustees propose is merely to make the graduation class general in the Public Schools of the province and require all pupils this additional year before writing examinations for entrance into high schools. The last year would include many of the subjects now taught in form one of the high schools, and a change in the grading of the latter necessary was proposed by Mr. J. H. Laughton of the Parkhill School Board, who also made a plea for a more stringent enforcement of the compulsory education and truancy acts.

Too Many Cooks.

A case where too many cooks spoiled the broth was served up here last Friday when Reeves Izzard of Port Elgin, McLean of Bruce and Dobson of Southampton, met in conjunction with Reeve Henderson here, to let the contract for the repair of the east end bridge. Tenders for the work were submitted by Jacob Palm of Mildmay and J. J. Zettler and Conrad Schnurr of Walkerton. Before the contract could be let, however, so much discussion took place over the affair and so many opinions were voiced on the matter, that it was decided to adjourn the debate to the June Session of the County Council. The matter in dispute is whether the bridge is of sufficient length to be construed as a county bridge or not. It has a span of 165 feet, and with the abutments that Reeve Henderson proposes to put on it could easily be brought up to the required 300 feet, which is the length necessary to make it a county structure. As the County Council have been distributing their favors pretty liberal elsewhere, it is up to them to humor Walkerton a little in this matter.—Bruce Times.

June Bug Pest.

The June bug pest has arrived in Midsex county. On a fine evening just after nightfall, the rustle of their wings sounds like the rush of an express train. The air seems full of them. At Clendeboye, the branches of the plum and cherry trees are loaded. Blossoms and leaves are swept clean from the plum and cherry trees and the apple blossoms are being attacked. Farmers are lighting fires and hanging out lanterns over tubs in a vain attempt to stem the invasion. The bugs flying at present are only the vanguard of the main army, which fills the ground and which will continue coming out for a month. Prospects are for an entire destruction of the fruit crop in this district. Millions of eggs will be laid to hatch out into the destructive white grub that created such havoc in this district last year. The grub pest will be due two years from this spring. So far, the only help in destroying both grubs and beetles is the blackbird. They feed on nothing else, while either grubs or beetles are obtainable.

A Hot May.

Last week was a record breaker for heat in the month of May. With the thermometer hanging around the nineties it reminds us of the sultry days of July and August. What is unusual is that after every thunderstorm the weather turned warmer instead of colder as is usually the custom in this province in the month of May. Old probs seemed to have slipped a cog and jumped into dog days with a suddenness that has made people shed their flannels with an alacrity hitherto unknown. The frequent showers and warm weather have brought on the grass and spring crops so rapidly that the meadows and sown fields look as far advanced as they usually do in the first week of June. The prospects of an abundant hay and grain harvest are excellent. There's nothing like getting a good start. But the first week in June isn't over yet. In 1896 the prospects were almost as rosy as this year when a blighting frost did thousands of dollars worth of mischief in one night. In old Ontario the June frost is almost as much dreaded as the early autumn frost in Manitoba and Saskatchewan. But there is no use losing sleep over something that may not happen in the year of grace 1911. Sufficient to the day is the evil thereof.

Peculiar Accidents.

The Hillsburg Beaver in glancing over the papers has discovered a number of cases where people have been injured in various parts of the anatomy. Here are a few of the cases: While Miss Kinsure, of Elora, was coming down stairs she bruised herself on the landing. Amos Mifflin, of Arthur, while harnessing a horse was lashed just south of the corn crib. While Harold Green, of Beulah, was escorting Miss Violet Good home from a church social on Saturday night a savage dog set upon them and bit him four times on the public square. Joe Tutt, of Hamilton climbed up on the roof of his house last week and fell striking on his back porch and causing serious injuries; Isaiah Dobbery, of Guelph, was playing with a cat on Friday when the animal scratched him on the veranda. And the Toronto Star of Saturday said the Star photographer caught Miss Wilmott just south of the armories.

The Wise old Man.

The old man sits in his figtree's shade, and fills himself with pink lemonade, and he smokes his pipe as he glances o'er the thrilling facts of the baseball score. He has no grief and he has no care, and he just leans back in his rocking chair, and views the world with a cheerful smile, for his larder's full, and he has his pile. The plan he followed you will endorse! He used to work like a bald-faced horse; he swung the axe and he plied the spade, and he knuckled down at the blacksmith's trade; wherever he worked, in the field or town, a part of his roubles he salted down. He saw the folly of spendthrift men, and took to the bank a large brass yen; they burned their money as though with fire; he took to the bank a big tin lire. And now he sits in his figtree's shade and eats ice cream with a wooden spade and people smile as they look at him; he's fat and sassy and full of vim and where are the fellows who drew their wage and blew it in, in that lonesome age? Do they lean back in the rocking chairs, serene and happy and free from cares? Have they their figtrees and stuff to eat? Oh, ask the copper who walks your beat. —Walt Mason.

WE REPAIR WEAK MEN

ONE SECRET OF OUR SUCCESS. Every case submitted to us receives the personal attention of our medical staff, who consider the symptoms, complications and chronicity, and then decide to the disease and curability. Specific remedies are then prescribed for the case and are compounded by our own chemist in our own Laboratory. Such appropriate treatment cannot fail to cure, as specific medicines are selected to cure the symptoms that trouble you. We have no cure-all medicines like most specialists use who send the same medicines to all patients alike and cure none. We have treated patients throughout Canada for over twenty years and can refer to any bank as to our responsibility. We Guarantee Cures or No Pay. We Treat all Diseases of Men and Women.

Just In Time To Save His Life.

Mr. Aylward's letter tells the story: Campbellton, N.B., Feb. 5, 1909.

Father Morrissey Med. Co.,

During the winter of 1907, while travelling on the Caspé Coast, I contracted a severe Cold which settled upon my lungs.

After returned home I wrote to Father Morrissey explaining my case. I received a letter from him with a prescription for his medicine, which could not be filled at the time here. After one week's delay I received it, just in the nick of time to save my life. After one month's use I felt like a new man.

Yours truly,
Jno. Aylward.

There is not much time to lose when a cold settles on the lungs. Pneumonia kills within a week. With Father Morrissey's "No. 10" at hand, you don't even have to wait for a doctor. WALKERTON.

Mrs. John Mosack of the station road met with an accident Monday afternoon. She was standing on the table doing some house cleaning, when in some way she overbalanced and fell to the floor. Her collar bone was broken.

The first convictions in Chesley under Local Option were made last week when Charles Such pleaded guilty of two of eight charges against him for infraction of the Liquor License Act. The fine was $200. H. R. Sellwood was also fined $100. From the evidence it would seem as if there had been plenty of booze flowing.

While wading across the river on Monday night, Victor Bell, an employee of the Bobbia Factory here, lost his footing and was carried by the current over the dam. As the youth was unable to swim he had a close call from being drowned. Happily, however, he struck a sand-bar in the middle of the river, and regaining his footing, was rescued by some boys who came to his aid in a boat.

Mr. A. Butchart, a former resident of Walkerton, who is now one of the water and power commissioners of Edmonton has been charged along with Mr. Bouillion, another commissioner for incompetence but the charges when investigated petered out and showed that the fault lay with the city council which was constantly interfering in matters with which it properly had no business. The commissioners were really trying to repair in some degree gross blunders that had been made by an incompetent city council.

Detective Boyd of Toronto was in Walkerton on Tuesday in connection with the Wellesley murder case in which an old man named Lobinski was clubbed to death at his home and his money amounting to several thousand dollars, which he kept in the house, taken. A party residing near Walkerton it seems, is suspected of knowing something about the affair and Detective Boyd and Constable Briggs consequently drove in to the country on a scouting expedition on Tuesday. Further developments in connection with the case are expected to be divulged shortly.

Formosa Man Drowned.

The Grand River at Bridgeport claimed another victim, ushering in the drowning season, last night when Henry Kraemer, aged 23, a Formosa young man, employed at the Berlin Furniture Co., and boarding at the home of Mr. and Mrs. B. Perrin, 52 Foundry Street South, met a sad death beneath its waters. His younger brother Albert and two Freiburger brothers were rescued from the waters by comrades.

The fatality is the result of a swimming party by eight Berlin young men. The party proceeded to the Grand River just above the bend, near Bridgeport, at the time keen at eight o'clock. Albert Kraemer was able to swim but not so Henry. The spot chosen is considered a treacherous one. It is believed the four bathers, the Kraemer brothers, and the Freiburger brothers were seized with an attack of cramps at about the same time. Their cries for help brought their comrades and other bathers along the river to the rescue. Joseph Freiburger fortunately was able to get out himself, John Hintz and Stanley Schwalm bravely rescued Albert Kraemer, while others gave their attention to John Freiburger. Henry Kraemer however was in the greatest danger. His body rose to the surface five times before going under for the last time. Albert had gone under twice and was rescued only after a severe struggle. It required ten minutes of first aid administration before he regained consciousness.

The search for the body of the victim was commenced immediately but when darkness set in it was given up. Help was secured from Bridgeport and a party consisting of O. Gastmeier, O. Bisch, Albert Stricker, H. Wagner, A. Reichert, P. Gebhardt, J. Koebel and G. Boettinger instituted a further search. With the aid of a boat and lantern the body was found at 11.30 o'clock lying in four feet of water. It was removed to the Lancaster Hotel, Coroner Dr. Lackner was notified and he ordered it to be

Items of Interest.

The small boy with the firecracker is quite in evidence these days, and they are very dangerous for the small boy to be handling as there is danger of setting fire to buildings or injuring themselves. Most of places are prohibiting the sale of them.

Massachusetts scientists have produced a stingless honey bee that is three times as productive as the stinging variety. That looks alright. Anything that is getting mad all the time cannot be as productive as one of the same species that is good tempered. Perhaps in process of time some one will invent the man with the stingless fist and the civil mouth—also the woman with the viperless tongue.

An amendment adopted at the last session of the Ontario Legislature came into force Saturday, April 22, by proclamation. It is especially aimed at bowie knife, dirk, dagger, stiletto, metal-knuckles, skull crackers, sling shot. Sale of these weapons which foreigners, flourish in every row, often with murderous results, is prohibited under stiff penalties. This act gives constables the right to search suspicious persons, a power not previously possessed. Any one selling a revolver, pistol or air gun without a permit and without keeping a record of a serial number of the weapon the name of the maker, and the name and address of the purchaser, is liable to a fine as high as $200 and imprisonment up to six months. When weapons are found on alien, and the case is reported to the Provincial Secretary, steps will be taken by that Minister to have the undesirable deported.

Some of The Questions.

Some time soon after to-morrow these are the questions to be asked every household in the city:

1. Dwelling house.
2. Family, household or institution.
3. Name of each person in family, household or institution.
4. Place of habitation, township or parish, city, town or village. Range or concession and lot or cadastral number in township, or parish. Street and house number if in city, town or village, or other description.
5. Sex.
6. Relationship to head of family or household.
7. Single, married, widowed, divorced or legally separated.

removed to the boat house. After viewing the remains this morning he did not consider an inquest necessary. The body this morning was taken to the Lippert undertaking parlors.

According to reports received from Bridgeport every effort was made to rescue the swimmers and great credit is due to John Hintz and others whose name could not be learned this morning for the gallant work.

Henry Kraemer, the victim, is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kraemer of Formosa. The funeral arrangements have not yet been completed.

Coroner Dr. Lackner stated to the Record this morning that he considered the swimming spot a dangerous one. He recommended the erection of a warning in the vicinity.—Walkerton Telescope.

Seed Mystery.

There is no more wonderful thing in nature than a common seed. Although it looks dead and helpless no one can tell how much is wrapped within it. Each seed has a character of its own, a character that distinguishes it from families and from its relatives of the same pod. In many cases the seed gives no clue to what will be produced either in size of plant or in color of blossom. The small elm seed produces a tall tree and the large seed of the pumpkin a short-lived creeping plant. One seed has within it that which produces a pink flower; another, to the eye precisely the same, produces a purple blossom. But it is a mystery. Some seeds live but a short time, others for centuries. The seed of the coffee berry is worthless if not planted without delay and the willow seed lives only a few days after ripening. Melon seeds have been kept for thirty years and produced fruit, and other seeds have been kept for centuries and have grown. Generally speaking it seems that seeds of wild plants live longer than cultivated varieties. When one considers the vast quantities of seeds of all kinds that are produced and the ample contrivances of nature for scattering them it is surprising to find that plants do not increase more rapidly and cover the earth. Darwin calculates that a single plant of the common wild spotted orchis is the parent of 174,000 others in one season—enough to cover an acre of ground and that the great grandchildren of this one plant would more than clothe the entire land surface of the earth were it not for the destruction of seeds that takes place from various causes. Some provide food for animals, some fall on soil not suited, some seed requires special preparation and in many cases space to grow is the principal obstacle.

Good Reason.

A young Boston lawyer who is going to be married shortly met another young lawyer who was married last year. They exchanged felicitations and enquiries.

"The only thing that bothers me," explained the about-to-be happy man, "is the subject of expense. Of course I'm not plunging into this thing with my eyes shut, but—"

"Now, look here," interrupted the experienced benedict. "I'll tell you an absolute fact. I don't spend half the money I did before I was married."

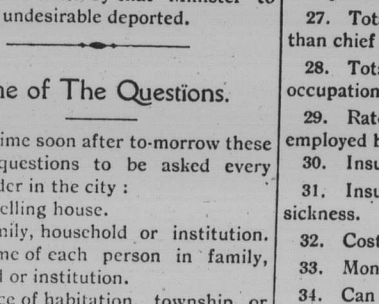

"You don't?" exclaimed the other.

"How do you work that?"

"I don't have it to spend."

THE UNQUENCHABLE FIRE:

Or, The Tragedy of the Wild.

It was the chance of his lifetime, told himself, as he hastened to deposit the chest in the sled. Now he set about obtaining his blankets and provisions. His journey would be an arduous one, and nobody knew better than he the barrenness of that north-western land while the icy grip of winter still clings. A large quantity of the foodstuffs, which had only arrived that day, was returned to the sled, and some of the new blankets. Then he shipped a rifle and ammunition.

Now was the trader to be seen in his true light. Here was emergency, when all veneer fell from him as the green coat of summer falls from the trees at the first breath of winter. His haste was not the swift movement of a man whose nerve is steady. He knew that he had at least twelve hours before any one of the three men was likely to awaken from his drunken stupor. And yet he feared. Nor did he know what he feared. And his nerves made him savage as he handled the dogs. There were living creatures and could feel, so he wantedly belted them with a lead that Jean should hesitate to obey their new master. The great wolfish creatures had more courage than he had; they took the unjust treatment without open complaint, as is the way of the husky, tacitly resenting it, and eyeing with fierce, contemptuous eyes, the cowardly wretch who so treated them. They snarled, and with down-drooped tails and bristling manes, into their places in the traces, and stood ready for the word to pull. Victor surveyed them with little satisfaction, for now that all was ready to march he was beset with moral apprehensions.

He could not throw off his dread, may have been that he feared to break four-hundred-mile journey. It may have been the loneliness which he contemplated. It may have been that he recollected the when those whom he had robbed had saved him from the storm back there in the heart of the mountains. He shivered, and at every night sound that came to his stillness.

Lead dog lay down in the snow. Victor flew into a snarl, and, running forward, dealt the poor brute a kick that would have been sufficient to break an ordinary dog's ribs. With a snarl the beast rose solemnly on its feet. Suddenly its wolfish snarl, and it stared out ahead. The man looked toward the sound of some one walking out into the darkness, but all seemed quite still. He looked at the dog again. Its ears were still pricked, but they were twitching uncertainly, as though not sure of the direction when the sound had come.

Victor cursed the brute, and moved back to the sled. The word "Mush" was hovering on his lips. Suddenly his eyes chanced upon the slumbering form of old Pierre lying in a heap where he had fallen in the doorway. It is impossible to say what made him pause to give a second thought to those he was leaving behind. He had known Pierre for years, and had always been as friendly as his selfish, cruel nature would permit. Perhaps some such feeling now made him hesitate. It might even have been his knowledge of the Wild that made him view the helpless figure with some concern. The vagaries of human nature are remarkable. Something held him, then he turned quickly from the sled, and stepping up to the old man's side stooped, and putting his arms about him, dragged him bodily into the store. Pierre did not rouse, but remained quite still where Victor left him. Then the trader went out again. His back was turned as he reached to close the door. It would not quite shut, and he pulled it hard. Then, as it still resisted his efforts, he turned away. And as he turned he reeled back with a great cry. Something large and dark faced him. A great figure. And, even in the darkness, he could make out a shining ring of metal close in front of his face.

Victor's horror-stricken cry was the only sound that came. In the twinkling of an eye the metal ring disappeared. Victor felt two bony hands seize him by the throat. The next instant he was hurled to the ground, and a knee was upon his chest. A weight compressed his chest, and he could scarcely breathe. He felt the revolver belt dragging about his waist, and his sheath knife withdrawn from its scabbard. Then, and not till then, the pressure on his chest relaxed, and the hand that had gripped his throat released its hold. The next moment he was lifted to his feet as though he were a mere puppet, and the voice of Jean Leblaud broke harshly upon his ears.

"Guess your bluff wa'n't with a cent, Victor Gagnon. I see'd this comin' the mimit you pass'd me the drink. I 'lows ye ken mostly tell a skunk by the stink. I rec'nised you awhiles back. Guess you ain't lightin' out o' here this night. Come right along."

The trader had no choice. Jean had him foul, gripping him with a clutch that was vice-like. The giant's great strength was irresistible when put forth in the deadly earnestness of passion, and just now he could hardly hold his hand from breaking the neck which was so slight beneath his sinewy fingers.

Just for one instant Victor made a faint struggle. As well attempt to resist Doom. Jean shook him like a rat, and thrust him before him in the direction of the woods behind the store.

"You'll pay for this," the trader said between his teeth. But Jean gave no heed to his impotent rage. He pushed him along in silence, nor did he pause till the secret huts were reached. He opened the door of one and dragged his captive in. There was no light within. But this seemed no embarrassment to the purposeful man. He strode straight over to one corner of the room and took a long plaited lariat from the wall. In three minutes Victor was trussed and laid upon the ground bound up like a mummy.

Now Jean lighted a lamp and looked down at his victim; there was not the faintest sign of drink about him, and as Victor beheld the spectacle he cursed himself bitterly. There was an impressive silence. Jean's words came slowly.

"You'll wait right here till Davi's gets back. She's goin' to git her ears full o' you, I guess. Say, she was sweet on you—mighty sweet. But she's that sensible as it don't worry any. Say, you ain't goin' to marry that gal; ye never meant to. You're a skunk, an' I'd as lief choke the life out o' ye as not. But I'm goin' to pay ye sorer than that. Savy? Ye'll bide here till Davi comes. I'll jest fix this wedge in your mouth till I've cleared them drivers out o' the store. I don't fancy to hear your lungs exercisin' when I'm busy."

With consummate deftness Jean gagged his prisoner. Then he glanced round the windowless shack to see if there were any weapon or other thing about that could possibly assist the trader to free himself. Having assured himself that all was safe, he put out the light and passed out, securing the door behind him.

CHAPTER XIII.

Noon, the following day, saw the dog-train depart on its homeward journey. And the way of it was curious, and said much for the simplicity of these "old hands" of the northland trail. They were giants of learning in all pertaining to their calling; infants in everything that had to do with the world of men.

Thus Jean Leblaud's task was one of no great difficulty. It was necessary that he should throw dust in their eyes. And such a dust storm he raised about their simple heads that they struck the trail utterly blinded to the events of the previous night.

While they yet slumbered Jean had freed the dogs from their traces, and unloaded the sled which restored everything to its proper place; and so he awaited the coming of the morning. He did not sleep; he watched, ready for every emergency.

When, at last, the two men stirred he was at hand. Rolling Pierre over, he shook him violently till the old man sat up, staring about him in a daze. A beaker of rum was thrust against his parched lips, and he drank greedily. The generous spirit warmed the Frenchman's chilled body and roused him. Then Jean performed the same merciful operation upon Ambrose, and the two unrepentant sinners were on their legs again, with racking heads and feeling very ill.

But Jean cared nothing for their sufferings; he wanted to be rid of them. He gave them no chance to question him; not that they had any desire to do so—in fact, it was doubtful if they fully realized anything that was happening. And he launched into his careful considered story.

"Victor's gone up to the hills 'way back ther'," he said. "Ther's been a herd o' moose come down from the moose-yard further north, an' he's after their pelts. Say, he left word for you to git right on loading the furs, and when ye hit the trail, ye're to take three bottles o' the Rye an' some o' the rum. He says he ain't like to be back for nigh on three days."

And while he was speaking the two men sipped their coffee, and, as they moistened their parched and burning throats, they nodded assent to all Jean had to say. At that moment Victor or any one else might go hang. All they thought of was the awful thirst that assailed them.

Breakfast over, the work of loading the sleds proceeded with the utmost despatch. Thus it was that at noon, without question, without the smallest suspicion of the night's doings, they set out for the weary "long trail."

Jean saw them go. He stood at the door of the store and watched them until they disappeared behind the rising ground of the great divide. Then his solemn eyes turned away indifferently, and he gazed out into the hazy distance. His gaunt face showed nothing of what was passing in the brain behind it. He rarely displayed emotion of any sort. The Indian blood in his veins preponderated, and much of the stoical calm of the Redskin was his. Now he could wait undisturbed for the return of Davia. He felt that he had mastered the situation. He could not make Victor marry the sister he had wronged, but at least he could pay off the wrong in his own way, and to his entire satisfaction. Two years he had waited for the adjustment of these matters. He was glad that he had exercised patience. He might have slain Victor a hundred times over, but he had refrained, vainly hoping to see his sister righted. Besides, he knew that Davia had loved Victor, and women are peculiar. Who might say but that she would have fled from the murderer of her lover? Jean felt well satisfied on the whole. So he stood thinking and waiting with a calm mind.

But the tragedy was working itself out in a manner little suspected, little expected, by him. And so he was soon to find.

ALL ABOUT THE KOREANS

INHABITANTS OF THE JAP'S NEW COLONY.

They Are a Quiet, Peaceful, Unprogressive, Yet Intelligent Race.

Beyond the swift, though narrow, River Yalu, which rushes from an inland sea between the two peaks of the Ever White Mountain, lies Manchuria and the "Great Nation," as the people have always called China.

Southward of this torrent is the peninsula on which Japan has so long cast longing eyes.

The natural impression of many is that this little territory, of the size of Great Britain, is peopled like the rest of the mainland. This is not so. The Korean differs from the Chinaman, and from his traditional foe across the 100 miles of sea to the southward, as much as does the Italian from the German or the Pole.

He differs in language, in custom, in dress, and in innumerable other ways, from either.

Beyond the Yalu, the Chinaman, in blue smock and flowing pig tail, guides his mule team; while, just across the river, oxen, even-tempored and slow, drag a steel-shod plough, behind which stalks the solemn faced Korean, wearing his hair in a top knot, his body swathed in

SPOTLESS WHITE GARMENTS.

Korea, now that it has become a province of the progressive Japanese, will be forced to abandon its old customs and beliefs. The old will give place to the new ideas in agriculture. The mechanical devices of the West will supersede the means of transport and traction considered by the indolent native to be quite good enough for hundreds of years.

The rich rice fields and rye fields of the valleys, planted generation after generation by father and son, will, in many cases, own new masters. Mines will develop the hidden treasures of the mountains. The silence in which the monks of Buddha have so long rejoiced in their mountain retreats will be shattered by the noise of stamps and other machinery. Amongst the bleak and barren hills, perhaps, townships will spring up. But will this strange, silent people take kindly to the new conditions?

To the present time, the uneventful life of the Korean has been the strangest contrast to the hustle of life as we know it.

As a child he may not have such a profusion of toys as may be found in an English nursery; but he has his kites, and his tops, and his own particular games, which

HE PLAYS WITH REAL ZEST.

The missionaries of the English Church have introduced football, which is played with a vigor and contempt of rules which would break the heart of a referee.

At six or seven the boy goes to school—that is to say, he attends at a place where knowledge is expected to be acquired, the knowledge consisting of learning to write with "real writing"—i.e., in Chinese characters. This having been, to some extent, mastered, together with a certain amount of

He waited. Suddenly there was a movement in the shadow. The next moment a figure stepped out into the open. A figure dressed in beaded buckskin and blanket clothing. It was Davia.

She came in haste, yet wearily. She looked slight and drooping in her mannish garments, while the pallor of her drawn face was intense. She came up to where Jean stood and would have fallen but for his support. Her journey had been rapid and long, and she was utterly weary of body.

"Quick, let's git inside," she cried, in a choking voice. Then she added hysterically: "He's on the trail!"

Without a word Jean led her into the house, and she flung herself into a seat. A little whisky put new life into her, and the color came back to her face. She was strong, and a woman bred to hardship and toil.

Mamma—"Yes, dear, the angels can hear everything; they heard four prayers last night." Elie—"That's funny; I didn't say them."

Algy—"Myrtie, what are your objections to marrying me?" Myrtie—"I have only one objection, Algy. I'd have to live with you."

"There is nothing perfect on this earth." "You forget Giley." "Well, what about Giley?" "He's a perfect idiot."

ability to read, he proceeds to study the classics of Confucius. He works now from dawn to evening, week in, week out, with no rest on Saturdays or Sundays, and with only such holidays as fall to his lot because of the occurrence of some festival or religious feast.

The monotony of his existence is relieved by the prospect of marriage. This may happen at any age from twelve to twenty, according as his parents may decree.

A gentleman whose profession is to arrange these social contracts is consulted.

The marriage broker is a man of considerable genius. He plans the alliance, and settles the terms, and saves the families immense trouble, and probably not a few unpleasant incidents.

The wedding day of a Korean boy is the one occasion when he is important. His pigtail is no longer at large. It becomes a sedate "bun" on the top of his head. He assumes a wonderful garment and headdress, similar to those worn by Court officials. Accompanied by his father, and mounted on a horse of diminutive size, he proceeds to the abode of his bride—whom he has never yet seen—and

DEMANDS HER SURRENDER.

Poor child, her life is now to begin. And such a life! Her face, for this great occasion, is hidden beneath a coat of paint and powder, her eyes are sealed by a kind of wax, and her eyebrows are pencilled.

The broker presents the parties to each other, and the bride is hurried into a litter.

Nothing is permitted to obstruct this cavalcade. Everyone makes way as for Royalty.

On reaching the house of the bridegroom's parents, the bride's party are presented, with much formality. Profound bows are made, a cup of wine is sipped by each, obsequiousness is made to the tablets of the family forefathers, and the marriage feast begins.

From this moment the child-bride is the slave of her mother-in-law. That is the great day to which a Korean mother looks—the wedding-day of her first son. It means for her an end of work; for she has now a daughter-in-law, whom she may beat and scold and put upon, just as she herself was served before her?

The bridegroom cannot assert himself to protect her. He eats the meals his child-wife cooks in solemn state alone; while she may take away what he leaves as her portion.

All old customs and traditions die hard, and the elder women of Korea, will, no doubt, sigh before long for the good old days when daughters-in-law knew their place.—London Answers.

HOW IT STARTED.

"Prisoner," said the police court magistrate, "you are charged with creating a public disturbance."

"I deny it, sir," was the prompt reply.

"Well, what is your side of the story?"

"It was my birthday, sir, and I goes into a tavern as gentle as a kitten and says to the barman, says I:—

"Will you present me wid a glass of beer on this happy occasion?"

"I won't," says he.

"For wh'?" says I.

"Because I'm not in the presenting business," says he.

"You are cold-hearted," says I.

"Yah!" says he.

"And an anarchist," says I.

"G'wan," says he.

"And an assassin," says I.

"Skate out!" says he.

"And then, your worship—then when I gently taps on the bar and softly says that if justice was done him he'd be hung up by a mob, he comes out and grabs me by the neck and yanks me out-doors and flings me off the kerbstone. Disturbing the peace, is it? Why, your worship, even when I got up and smashed in one of the windows the noise couldn't have been heard twenty feet away. I am no fognhorn to go bellowing around and make folks wonder what's broke loose."

"Five dollars or fourteen days."

"What is experience, Uncle Tom?" "Experience! It is what we learn from wanting everything we don't get, and getting everything we don't want."

$3,600

in Cash Prizes for Farmers

Your Photograph May Win a Prize

AMONG the prizes we are offering in our Big Prize Contest is one of $3,600 (Prize "C") for the farmer in each Province who furnishes us with a photograph showing the best of any particular kind of work done on his farm during 1911 with "CANADA" Cement. For this prize, work of every description is included.

Now just as soon as you finish that new silo, barn, feeding floor or dairy, that you've been thinking of building, why not photograph it and send the picture to us? The photograph doesn't necessarily have to be taken by a professional or an expert. In fact, your son's or your daughter's camera will do nicely. Or, failing this, your neighbor's camera will do nicely. In any event, don't let the idea of having a photograph made deter you from entering the competition. Particularly as we have requested your local dealer to help in cases where it is not convenient for the farmer to procure a camera in the neighborhood. By this means you are placed on an equal footing with every other contestant. Get the circular, which gives you full particulars of the conditions and of the other three prizes. Every dealer who sells "CANADA" Cement will have on hand a supply of these circulars—and he'll give you one if you just ask for it. Or if you prefer, you can use the attached coupon—or a postcard will do—send it to us and you'll receive the complete details of the contest by return mail.

If you haven't received your copy of "What the Farmer Can Do With Concrete," write for that, too. It's a finely illustrated book of 160 pages full of useful and practical information of the uses of concrete.

Write us to-night, and you'll receive the book and the circular promptly. Do not delay—sit right down—take your pen or pencil, and fill out the coupon NOW.

Please send Contest Circular and book.

QUEEN WORE APRICOT SATIN.

King George's Third Court as Brilliant as the Others.

A despatch from London says: King George's third court, held on Wednesday night, was similar in brilliance to those that had preceded it. The King appeared in the uniform of an admiral of the British Navy, while the Queen wore a gown of apricot satin, with a white satin train embroidered with gold. The Baroness Greville, who is a sister of the late Cecil Grace, the aviator killed recently, appeared in a mourning jetted gown with a train of oxidized silver. She wore a diamond tiara.

KING GEORGE'S KINDNESS.

Dismounted to Enquire Condition of Lady Thrown From Horse.

A despatch from London says: While Miss Florie Duveen, daughter of the late Sir Jos. Duveen, was riding in Hyde Park on Wednesday her horse bolted and the young lady was thrown to the ground. She sustained a serious fracture of the skull. King George, who was passing on horseback at the time, dismounted and enquired very solicitously as to Miss Duveen's condition.

MUST NOT FLY OVER LONDON.

Aviators Banned in Coronation Week For Fear of Accidents.

A despatch from London says: Notice was given in the House of Commons on Wednesday that a bill would be introduced forbidding aviators from flying over London during Coronation week. The Royal Aero Club has already given notice that any member of aero clubs who flies over the city during this period will be immediately suspended. This action was taken because of the danger of one of the machines falling on a crowd of people in some of the great public squares or rendezvous.

BRITISH MANSION BURNED.

Only Walls of Sledmere Hall Standing—Paintings Saved.

A despatch from London says: Only the bare walls of Sledmere Hall, the residence of Sir Tatton Sykes, were left standing after Wednesday's fire. Romney oil paintings of the late Sir Christopher Sykes' collection, each valued at $100,000, were cut from their frames and removed from the burning mansion.

50 YEARS ON GRAND TRUNK.

Oldest Engineer in Service of Company is Dead in Montreal.

A despatch from Montreal says: Mr. Michael Fennell, the oldest engineer on the Grand Trunk Railway System, passed away on Thursday night at his home in Point St. Charles at the age of 79. He was an engineer before the Grand Trunk was built, and for over fifty years has been employed by that company. Mr. Fennell had driven engines on twelve sections of the system and had never had an accident. He was known as far west as Sarnia, Stratford and Fort Erie, and as far east as Island Pond, Rouse's Point and Messena Springs. He had the honor of driving the engine which first brought King Edward, then Prince of Wales, into Montreal.

3-YEAR-OLD GIRL BURNED.

Destruction of Dwellings Near Fort Coulonge, Que.

A despatch from Ottawa says: In a fire near Fort Coulonge, Que., on Wednesday, which destroyed the house occupied by two families named Ladoucer and Kingsbury, a daughter of the former, aged three years, perished. The fire had made good headway when it was discovered, and all the inmates of the building save two small children, a boy and girl, made their escape. The boy was rescued by one of the men of the house, but it was impossible to reach the other child. Her charred remains were found in the ruins after the fire, which was caused by lightning.

MET DEATH IN HELEN MINE.

Workman Drilling for a Blast When Earth and Rock Fell.

A despatch from Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., says: Louis Neime, aged twenty-two years, met almost instant death in the Helen Mine on Thursday. He was drilling for a blast when a portion of earth and rock between the 60 and 70-foot levels gave way and carried him with it. He was crushed about the chest and several ribs were broken. Neime leaves a widow, who resides here. The first report received was that six or seven men had been killed in the mine by an explosion.

THIRTEEN COWS KILLED.

Mr. James Rattray, of Carleton Place, Suffers Severe Loss.

A despatch from Carleton Place says: On the farm of Mr. James Rattray, about two miles from town, thirteen fine cows were killed as they huddled together when a storm came on. Mr. Rattray has but four head left, and these were some distance from the thirteen that were killed. His loss is quite serious, as nearly all were first-class milk cows. A barn belonging to Mr. W. J. Norris was shattered by lightning and scattered by the wind over a wide area. No portion of the building caught fire, but it was wrecked irreparably.

IS 101 YEARS OLD.

Grimsby's Oldest Inhabitant Taken to Refuge in an Auto.

A despatch from St. Catharines, says: Grimsby's oldest inhabitant, John Winney, a man 101 years of age, has been brought to the Industrial Home here. Mr. Winney is in good health, and walks around like a man of 60. His memory and eyesight are good, but he is a little hard of hearing. He has a son 75 years of age, and two grandsons both over 50. He was born in England in 1810. He was brought here in an automobile, and this was his first experience with what he called a "mud-splasher."

SPRINGHILL MINES STRIKE.

Basis for a Settlement Has Been Arrived at.

A despatch from Halifax, N. S., says: No official announcement has been made, but it is pretty well known that the basis for a settlement of the Springhill coal miners' strike has been reached. It is understood to be a compromise, but the result is not materially different from that of the award of the Board of Conciliation presided over by Judge Longley more than two years ago. The strike has now continued for twenty-two months.

LINER CRASHES ON ROCK

Ivernia Lies in Queenstown Harbor in Badly Damaged Condition

A despatch from Queenstown says: The Cunard Line steamer Ivernia struck on a rock at noon on Wednesday during a fog as she was passing this port. The vessel is now resting at anchor close to the eastern bank of Kinloch Channel, in the inner harbor, with 25 feet of water in her fore compartment. No one on board the steamer was hurt.

The first that was known of the accident was when the liner passed Roche's Point, at the head of Cork harbor. The forepart of the Ivernia was sunk deep in the water, her stern was high in the air, and she had a dangerous-looking list to starboard. The great hole in the forepart of the liner and the narrow margin of free board above the water sufficiently indicated what a narrow escape the Cunarder had from disaster. The watertight compartment, however, stood the strain well, and the water was confined to the forward hold.

The captain brought his damaged vessel safely into the inner harbor, where she was anchored at the edge of the eastern bank. The passengers, who numbered 758, were quickly landed.

The liner was within a mile of a tender, which was waiting to take off the Irish contingent of passengers, when Daunt Rock suddenly loomed up in a dense fog, and before the vessel's way could be stopped the big ship struck. The passengers were at luncheon at the time of the accident, and quickly rushed on deck. The ship only hung on the rocks for a short time, and then slid off into deep water with a large aperture in her starboard bows, through which the water poured and threatened to flood the liner. Captain Potter and his officers, however, were prompt to close the bulkhead, and the inrush of water was confined to the forward hold. The Ivernia's officers were able to quickly reassure the passengers of their safety, and there was no sign of panic on board.

SUE KAISER FOR $20,000,000

Descendants of Count Munnich Lay Claim to Vast Estate

A despatch from Berlin says: Kaiser Wilhelm will shortly be the defendant in a suit in which $20,000,000 is at stake. The plaintiffs are two direct heirs of the Russian soldier-statesman, Field Marshal Count Burkhard Christoph von Munnich, upon whom Frederick the Great conferred vast estates of Bugen in return for his services in securing the Russian alliance for Prussia.

Count Munnich fell into disgrace upon the accession of the Empress Elizabeth of Prussia and was sentenced to be executed. He was actually sent to Siberia for 20 years, and was completely stripped of his estates by Elizabeth. Peter III, recalled him and he again enjoyed great power at the Russian court. On his death in 1767 Frederick the Great transferred the Bugen properties to Munnich's son, Ernst. In consequence of litigation Ernst Munnich never obtained possession of the estates, and they lapsed to the Prussian Crown.

HONOR LONG TRAIL HEROES.

Government May Erect a Monument to Their Memory.

A despatch from Ottawa says: It was learned on Wednesday that the Government has under consideration the erection of a suitable memorial to Inspector Fitzgerald and the other members of the Royal North-West Mounted Police who recently perished on the patrol from Fort Macpherson to Dawson. A movement is already under way at Edmonton to erect a monument to the dead heroes in that city. The Government may be asked to contribute to this memorial, but it is generally believed among the officials here that if any vote is asked for the construction of a memorial by the Dominion Government, probably at the Mounted Police Barracks at Regina.

SWEPT BY AVALANCHE.

Russian Village Swept Away and 128 Persons Killed.

A despatch from St. Petersburg says: Word has reached here that the Village of Oroschor, situated on Pamir Plateau, in West Central Asia, has been overwhelmed by an avalanche. One hundred and twenty-eight persons were killed.

EARTHQUAKE IN GREECE.

Many Houses Destroyed and Several Persons Injured.

A despatch from Athens says: An earthquake has occurred at Santa Maura, or Leucadia, one of the Ionian Islands. Many houses have been destroyed and a large number of persons injured.

A RECORD-BREAKING CROP

Mr. William Whyte Estimates the Western Yield at 200,000,000 Bushels

A despatch from Toronto says: According to Mr. William Whyte, Vice-President of the Canadian Pacific Railway, Winnipeg, who arrived in the city on Wednesday, given favorable weather conditions and estimating the yield at twenty bushels to the acre, this season's crop in the three Prairie Provinces will approximate two hundred millions of bushels of grain. Mr. Whyte said that the increase in acreage under crop this spring was about twenty-five per cent., and this gain was principally in Saskatchewan. He estimated the area under crop as follows: Saskatchewan, 6,000,000 acres; Alberta, 5,000,000 to 1,000,000, and Manitoba, 3,000,000. The weather conditions so far were favorable for the growing crops. Moisture was plentiful and it was not too hot.

WOMEN GET MEDALS.

One Saved Father From Angry Bull, Other Rescued Maniac.

A despatch from London says: The King has conferred the Albert medal of the second class on Amy Madeline Jacques, who seized a mad bull by the horns and saved the lives of her father and brother, who had been gored by the animal. Hilda Elizabeth Wolsev, a nurse, who climbed along a narrow gutter far above the ground and rescued an insane patient on the roof of Hanwell Asylum, has received a like reward from the King.

IMMIGRANT FELL DEAD.

Woman Expired at Quebec on Way to Friends in Toronto.

A despatch from Quebec says: Mrs. Sarah Turner, a third-class passenger on the steamer Royal George, dropped dead in the immigration sheds just after disembarking from the vessel on Wednesday afternoon at five o'clock. She was going to meet a family named Matthews in Toronto. Heart disease is supposed to have been the cause of death.

THE BIGGEST BATTLESHIP.

U. S. Warship Delaware Surpasses Britain's Crack Dreadnought.

A despatch from London says: British pride received a jar in the House of Commons on Wednesday afternoon when the Right Hon. Reginald McKenna, First Lord of the Admiralty, admitted, in reply to a question, that the United States battleship Delaware will be the largest ship at the Coronation naval review, surpassing Great Britain's show ship, the Neptune.

JAPANESE TIDBITS.

Fillet of Raw Fish, Whales, Sea Sprigs and Rice Locusts.

One of the great food delicacies of Japan is sashimi, a fillet of raw fish served with soy and condiments. This dish, though highly recommended by both Japanese and European medical authorities, is pronounced queer or unwholesome by those not born to the custom of eating it.

When these critics are reminded, however, of their eating live oysters with gusto it occurs to them, says the Oriental Review, that the one is at least more artistic in appearance than the other, though both may be equally palatable and nutritious.

It is likely that very few English people know that the fisher folk along the Devonshire coast are accustomed to eat laver, an edible seaweed, and so think it very odd that the Japanese should use certain seaweeds as an article of diet.

Ferns, burdock roots, lily bulbs, lotus roots and bamboo sprouts are among the Japanese vegetables not enjoyed by Occidental peoples, while the chrysalis of the silk worm, rice locusts, the occupus whales and sea slugs eaten in some parts of China and Japan are sure to shock their fine sensibilities.

SENTENCE SERMONS.

God is within us, we move by his movement.—Ovid.
Know ye not that your bodies are temples of God.—Saint Paul.

The voice of all nature cries to us that there is a God.—Voltaire.
God enters by a private door into every individual.—Emerson.

We have in our minds a certain inborn knowledge of God.—Cicero.
The feeling of God is in our hearts, as His works are before our eyes.—B. de Saint-Pierre.

If no God, whence duty? There remains no other source than blind, brutal, tyrannous force. Duty never issues from that.—Mazzini.

I would like to see just one sober, chaste, equitable, self-controlled man announce that there is no God; he would at least speak disinterestedly.—La Bruyere.

God is with thee, within thee. So I say, Lucilius, that the priest sits inside our souls. We carry him about, and he leads us; there is no good man without God.—Seneca.

What the pilot is in a ship, what a driver is in a chariot, what a conductor is in a choir, what a law is in a state, and what a general is in an army, God is in the world.—Aristotle.

Life and religion are one, or neither is anything. Religion is no way of life, no show of life, no observance of any sort. It is neither the food nor the medicine of being. It is life essential.—George MacDonald.

God exists. We cannot doubt, and we cannot prove it. God lives in our conscience, in the conscience of humanity in the universe which surrounds us. The conscience feels Him in its most solemn moments of sorrow and of joy; the universe manifests Him in the order, harmony, and intelligence of its notions. The first atheist was, without any doubt, a man who was concealing some crime from men, and sought by denying God to free himself from the sole witness he could not escape, and so to still his self-torment.—Mazzini.

CANADA TO AFRICA.

Marconi Station at Glace Bay is Now Actively Employed.

A despatch from Halifax, N. S., says: Communication has been established between Cape Breton and Africa, and a message sent from the Glace Bay Marconi station direct to the Eiffel Tower, Paris, has been relayed within one hour to Dakar, on the coast of western Africa. A large staff of operators are on duty handling press and commercial business sent from the old country and that transmitted from the mother country.

HUNTINGFIELD.

(Intended for last week.)

A sad accident happened at Wm Wynn's last Saturday. He was sowing with the drill, when his horses took fright and ran away, and as they neared the road fence one of the horses struck its head against a tree, and broke its back, and died a few minutes later. The animal was a valuable brood mare and the loss to Mr. Wynn will be considerable.

BORN—In Howick, on May 20, to Mr. and Mrs. James Stokes, a son. It's a boy this time.

The farmers around Huntingfield are not all through seeding yet. Some of those to the east, have a lot to do yet. One man has 35 acres to sow.

Our fiddle manufacturer has given up the got of making fiddles, just now, and has started on a fishing expedition.

Farmers Injured.

Lucknow, May 29—Thomas Kennedy, a well-known farmer of Huron Township, is lying at death's door from injuries inflicted by a runaway team on Saturday. With a load of live hogs in the wagon for market, his son prepared to drive out of the barnyard. A commotion among the hogs frightened the horses, which at once became unmanageable and dashed away. Near the house one of them stumbled and fell, and the father who was nearby ran to seize them. He was struck by the fallen animal, thrown among their feet, and was frightfully trampled. One limb was broken in several places, his breast was crushed, and he was otherwise injured internally. He is about seventy years of age.

Duncan Stewart, an employee of the Royal Hotel, was dragged for a quarter of a mile or more into Lucknow, wedged head foremost between the wheels and box of his buggy, by a runaway horsec on Saturday evening. His back was badly torn and bruised by the revolving spokes and the garments about the wound were soaked with blood. He was rescued before fatal consequences ensued.

BORN.

HOPF—In Carrick on May 24th, to Mr. and Mrs. Alex Hopf, a son.

DIETRICH—In Carrick on May 26th, to Mr. and Mrs. Jos. J. Dietrich, a daughter.
