GLIMPSE AT THE WORLD OF SPORT

Sport Letter From Across Pond

GENEVA, July 2.—Arrangements for subsequent Olympic games are expected to be greatly simplified as a result of the creation of an Olympic "Information Bureau" at the recent meeting of the Athletic Congress here. The bureau, to be reorganized every four years, will be composed of athletic officials of the country in which the following games are to be held.

An executive committee, appointed on the recommendation of Baron Pierre de Coubertin, president of the Olympic International Committee, will start work on October 1. Godofroy de Blomay, Switzerland; J. S. Eldstrom, Sweden; Marquis de Polignac, France; and Dr. Jarkovsky, Czechoslovakia, were nominated for the body.

Another committee, composed of Paul Rousseau, France; Frank Retchel, France; and Allan Muhr, an American resident in Paris, under the direction of Count Clary, will harmonize the decisions of the Paris Congress in 1914 with the complimentary decisions taken at Lausanne this year.

The Olympic Alpine Advisory Committee, at its recent session, voted to present an Olympic prize for the most remarkable Alpine achievement between Olympiads. The award will be made on the basis of the sporting and scientific character of the feat and its usefulness to the world.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

PARIS, July 2.—Andre Gobert, who held the French tennis championship for several years until defeated by Jean Samazeulh of Bordeaux last May, served during the war as an aviator and was recuperating at Vichy from shock received in a fall of over 1,000 feet altitude in 1917 when some of the neutrals enjoying the cure organized a tennis tournament. Gobert entered under the name of Dubois. Not being in the best of shape he had a hectic time in reaching the semi-finals where he had to meet a youthful Dane who was going great guns. Gobert lost the first set six to two and was in a fair way of closing the second when some one in the crowd recognized the French champion and commenced shouting encouragement to him calling him by his own name.

The Dane, realizing that he was playing against the champion of France, seem bewildered, making fault after fault, missing easy returns, netting. Gobert won the next three sets.

Public Baths A Sanitary Necessity

Something About Famous English and American Institutions.

THE following article which appeared in the Montreal Witness as far back as May, 1908, will be read with interest by Belleville people at the present time in view of the awakened interest in public bathing places that has been aroused by the action of the "Better Belleville" committee of the Chamber of Commerce in its recent attempt to solve a most difficult problem.

The witness said:—Pliny tells us that for six hundred years Rome needed no medicines but the public baths. Allowing for a certain exaggeration in the statement, modern experience has shown that there is enough truth in it to warrant considerable thought and endeavor. Among the sanitary betterments of our day, not even vaccination itself has done more for public health than the re-discovery of the value of public and personal cleanliness, which is gaining ground on this side of the Atlantic, but is much more to the fore in the United Kingdom and in many cities of continental Europe. One of the most remarkable evidences of the working of this spirit is the rapid multiplication of public baths. The movement had its first official recognition when in 1846 the British Parliament passed an Act to encourage the establishment of baths and wash houses. The Parish of St. James, Westchester, shortly afterwards installed a splendid bath at the cost of a hundred thousand dollars, which since its erection has been used by more than eight million bathers and washers. The Hornsey Road Baths in Islington, London, are the largest and best equipped in Europe, comprising four private baths for men, thirty-four for women, besides a complete laundry establishment. The private baths are divided into first and second class, the fee for the former being twelve cents, hot, and six cents cold, with use of soap and two towels. The number of bathers who patronized the first class private department of the establishment during the year ending March 31, 1901, was 34,479. The charge for the second class baths are four cents, hot, and two cents, cold, and the patronage is proportionally greater, no less than 87,434 persons having taken advantage of the privilege in 1901. The swimming baths are also a popular institution as may be gathered from the fact that the first class baths were used by 56,540 men, 7,747 women, 118,548 boys and 39,941 girls in 1901. Each bathing establishment has competent men and women instructors in swimming, and special encouragement is given to schools by furnishing the children with tickets at reduced prices. These parishes furnish types of what is being done in every quarter of London, the British metropolis having no less than thirty-eight baths in active operation, besides several others in course of construction. In them upwards of five million were taken during the past year, and additional accommodation is in increasing demand. The country has already spent $6,375,000 upon this municipal enterprise and every one considers the benefit of public health a simple return on the investment. Liverpool is even better equipped than London, having baths in almost endless variety—tub, shower, neopole, swimming, vapor, sea water, hot and cold, for both sexes—and these are patronized by about half a million people during the year. Manchester has nine sets of baths, at six of which there are women's swimming baths and two Turkish baths. Birmingham has five splendidly appointed baths, and Glasgow seven, patronized by about 200,000 persons per day, and giving accommodation free to school children at certain hours.

It has been noticed with regret by many Americans that the cities on this side of the Atlantic are as yet far behind their sisters in other lands. London, with a population of 4,538,000 in 1901, has thirty-eight baths, the first built in 1847. New York, with 3,437,202 inhabitants, has only one built in 1898, and three QUEBEC, July 20.—On the eve of departure from Canada the Duchess of Devonshire was the recipient of a set of beautiful black fox furs, the gift of some Montreal friends. Kindly messages were received by their Excellencies from many parts of Canada and a wealth of beautiful flowers adorned their table and cabins, all sent by well-wishing friends.

An Oil of Merit.—Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil is not a jumble of medicinal substances thrown together and pushed by advertising, but the result of the careful investigation of the curative qualities of certain oils as applied to the human body. It is a rare combination and it won and kept public favor from the first. A trial of it will carry conviction to any who doubt its power to repair and heal.

UNEMPLOYMENT HERE NOTICEABLE JUST NOW

Daily Men go the Rounds Asking Work—Gov't. Office Also Approached

The unemployment situation in Belleville is a little more acute at the present than usual. Daily a number of men anxious for work go the rounds of the various plants around the city and call at the employment bureau on Campbell St. Belleville industrial plants are giving about the usual amount of employment, but they are not taking on much new help.

Official word has been received here of the organization of a number of British societies into "The Society for the Overseas Settlement of British Women." The British Government gives a grant of 27,500 per annum to this society.

As far as known no one has yet arrived in Belleville under their auspices.

COUNTRY CLUB HERE NOW ASSURED SPLENDID SITE FRONTS ON THE BAY

"Bay of Quinte Country Club, Limited" is its Name—Has Option on Knox Farm and Has Received Its Charter—Property Runs from C.N.R. to Bay Shore—$20,000 in Subscriptions Signed up.

IT NOW appears certain that Belleville is to have a Country Club. The Bay of Quinte Country Club, Limited, which was organized and received its charter some little time ago has now got under way and its future success is assured.

The company has secured an option on the Knox farm, about four miles west of the city limits and this will provide an admirable location for the headquarters of the club.

It is the intention of the Company to lay out on the farm an extensive golf course, a number of tennis courts and to erect a club house where meals will be served and accommodation provided for guests.

When the majority of the stock subscriptions have been signed up in Belleville a number have been taken from Trenton, Madoc and Marmora, and other towns are expected also to have representatives upon the list of subscribers.

"MAKE IT A PARK"

Editor Ontario.—I see that the city is advertising for tenders for the purchase of that piece of property adjacent to the Kyle House, the tenders to remove the second-hand store at present standing on the property.

Considering also his pension of $75 a month and an allowance of some $300 a year on account of helplessness, which is to secure him attendance, the blind returned soldier has thus achieved a notable standard of independence.

Under Captain A. E. Baker, who lost both eyes, the Canadian Institute for the Blind, largely supported by Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment Department, has become the centre for the blind Canadian veteran. Club arrangements, including a library, methods of keeping in touch with the blind throughout Canada, and schemes for starting them in business are among the activities.

The Department has on the strength 53 incurables outside of insanity and tuberculosis. There are 300 psychopathic cases. A large number of the balance are cases of rheumatism, heart disease and a variety of ills, of which 75 per cent. are for short treatment, who stay in hospital an average of 3 weeks.

Trusting that this suggestion may find some support from those in authority, I remain, Yours truly, "OBSERVER."

GUNSIGHT PASS

by the man whom he wanted to see. Two hours had been spent riding to the little valley where the nestor had built his corrals and his log house, and when Crawford arrived neither he nor his wife was at home. He returned to the road, without having met a soul since he had left it, and from there jogged back to town. On the way he had fired twice at a rattlesnake. "You never reached the Bend, then, at all," said Dave. "No, but I can't prove I didn't. The old cattleman looked at the end of his cigar thoughtfully. "Nor I can't prove I went out to Dick Grein's place in that three-four hours not accounted for."

Buy a couple hundred shovels and send 'em out to Number Three. Get Robinson to move his tent-restaurant out there. "What about this job at the Bend?" he asked in a low voice. "Dave and I'll attend to that. You hump on the Jackpot job. Sons, we're rich, all three of us. Point is to keep from losin' that crude on the prairie. Keep three shifts goin' till they're under control." "We can't do anything at the Bend till morning," said Dave. "We'd better put the night in helping Bob."

work till the gusher is under control, please meet Bob Hart in front of the fire-house. I'll see any cooks and restaurant men alive to a chance to make money fast. Right here at the steps. "Good medicine, son," boomed Emerson Crawford, slapping him on the shoulder. "Didn't know you was an orator, but you sure got this crowd goin'. Bob here yet?" "Yes, I saw him a minute ago in the crowd. Sorry I had to make promises for you, but the fire chief wouldn't let me keep the crowd waiting. Some one had to talk."

Many legitimate incorporations appeared on the books of the Secretary of State, and along with these were scores of frauds intended only to gull the small investor and separate him from his money. Saloons and gambling-houses, which did business with such childlike candor and stridency, became offices for the sale and exchange of stock. The boom at Malapi got its second wind. Workmen, investors, capitalists, and crooks poured in to take advantage of the inflation brought about by the new strike in a hitherto unknown field. For the fame of Jackpot Number Three had spread. The production guesses ranged all the way from ten to fifty thousand barrels a day, most of which was still going to waste on the desert.

WILSON'S FLY PADS. There is only one way to kill all the Flies. This is it—Darken the room as much as possible, close the windows, raise one of the blinds where the sun shines in, about eight inches, place as many Wilson's Fly Pads as possible on the window ledge where the light is strong, leave the room closed for two or three hours, then sweep up the flies and burn them. See illustration below. Put the plates away out of the reach of children until required in another room.

The right way to use Wilson's Fly Pads. broke records. He was a short barrel of a man, with small eyes set close together, and he made a figure of fun perch'd high up in the saddle. But he permitted no difficulties of travel to interfere with his monologues. "The boss hold-up wasn't no glad-hand artist," he explained. "He was a sure-enough sulky devil, though of course we couldn't see his face behind the mask. Blue mask it was, made out of a handanna handkerchief. Well, rightaway I knew some thing was liable to pop, for old Harrigan, scared to death, kep' a-goin' just the same. Maybe he hadn't sense enough to stop, as the fellow says. Maybe he didn't want to. Bang-bang! I reckon Tim was dead before he hit the ground. They lined us up, but they didn't take a thing except the gold and one Chicago fellow's watch. Then they got the harness and p'nt for the hills."

Left their horses farther up the hill and walked back to them," Dave hazarded. "No-o, son. This job was planned careful. Now the hold-ups didn't know whether they'd have to make a quick getaway or not. They would have their horses handy, but out of sight." "Why not in the dry ditch back of the cottonwoods?" asked Dave with a flash. Crawford stared at him, but at last shook his head. "I reckon not. In the sand and clay there the hoofs would show too plain." "What if the hold-ups knew the ditch was going to be filled before the pursuit got started?" "You mean—?" "I mean they might have arranged to have the water turned into the lateral to wipe out their tracks." "I'll be dawg'd if you ain't on a warm trail, son," murmured Crawford. "And if they knew that, why wouldn't they ride either up or down the ditch and leave no tracks at all?" "They would—for a way, anyhow. Up or down, which?" "Down, so as to reach Malapi and get into the Gusher before word came of the hold-up," guessed Crawford. "Up, because in the hills there's less chance of being seen," differed Dave. "Crooks like them fix up an alibi when they need one. They had to get away unseen, in a hurry, and to get rid of the gold soon in case they should be seen."
