Significance of Recent Nightly German Raids

Moonlight Raid Over London Last Night Resulted in Little Damage--Aerial Offensive May be Planned

By Courier Leased Wire.

London, Sept. 5.—The first moonlight air raid over the London district occurred about midnight last night and resulted in the dropping of bombs, but the full extent of the damage is yet unknown and no casualties have been reported.

One bomb fell just outside a hospital, another smashed through a theatre and still another hit a retail store in which a number of girls were sleeping. Notwithstanding the moonlight, nothing could be seen of the raiders, although their engines could be heard overhead. That they were invisible was perhaps due to a slight haze, which, however, was insufficient to obscure the moon. The raiders were constantly shelled by anti-aircraft guns and several British machines took the air to attack the invaders.

The streets were practically deserted at the time of the raid, it being long after theatre hours. The few late street cars that were running either put out their lights or stopped. A message from the southwestern district says that apparently the invaders crossed the North Sea in three successive groups and that all were severely shelled both arriving and returning.

London, Sept. 5.—The streets were filled with curious crowds until the early hours today inspecting the damage from last night's air raids over the London district. More bombs appear to have fallen in the streets than hit buildings. The Chronicle estimates that eight or ten raiders visited London.

There were two separate attacks over the London district, the second occurring about 1 o'clock this morning. Some people claim to have seen a half dozen airplanes, but they were quickly lost sight of in the haze. As the bombs fell, the raiders flew seaward. One machine was located by searchlights at an estimated height of 9,000 feet. It was severely shelled and onlookers declare that it was hit. At the same time British airplanes were seen manoeuvring for an attack on the raiders.

"Has Germany got her great air offensive ready for us?" is a question asked by a morning paper apropos of the invasion of England on three successive nights, and Field Marshal Haig's overnight report of aggressive enemy aircraft. Another paper, which assumes and frequently warns of Germany's intention to invade England with aircraft in very large fleets, says:

"The enemy seems to be getting on rather fast with her invasion plans. The German aircraft came, bombed and departed. Our guns fired and our aircraft went up, but without result, according to the latest official reports. This is the ninth serious raid this summer of 127 machines which have crossed our coast. Germany admits the loss of seven." The paper refers to the growing casualty list and the relative immunity of the invaders and adds:

"It cannot be said that we are getting on with our invasion plans faster than the enemy." Enemy Repulsed London, Sept. 5.—A hostile raiding party was driven off by the fire of rifles and machine guns last night in the vicinity of Armentieres," says to-day's official statement. "A raid by the enemy at a later hour against positions held by Portuguese also was unsuccessful. The German artillery was active in the neighborhood of Lens.

MONTE SAN GABRIELE FALLS TO ITALIANS

Cadorna's Forces Continue Victory March Against Demoralized Austrians; Great Offensive For Trieste Now Bearing Fruits

London, Sept. 5.—A dispatch received in London confirms the capture by the Italians of Monte San Gabriele, together with 950 prisoners, including 32 officers. The Italians now possess the entire chain of mountains which dominate Gorizia.

Udine, Italy, Tuesday, Sept. 4.—It is impossible thus far to give even an approximate idea of the immense quantity of booty which has fallen into the hands of the Italians since the beginning of their advance. The materials captured show the precipitation with which the Austrians fled along the line of attack. On the Bainsizza plateau, near Santo Spirito and Laska, whole convoys of arms and munitions were abandoned in such haste that there was no time to destroy them. At one strewn everywhere. Some of the caverns are still packed with Austrian dead lying one on another. The bodies are being buried gradually.

Mule paths and the adjacent side hills are littered with unexploded projectiles which the fugitives threw away, together with daggers, swords and iron studded maces used for despatching the wounded. On Hill 652, the Italians captured three 408-millimeter cannon. Two of them were perfectly serviceable and the Italians turned them on the fleeing enemy, firing 1,000 shots.

Italy's long years of preparation, and General Cadorna's strategy and ability as commander continues to bear fruit in the great offensive the Italian armies are now waging for Trieste.

Although official announcement is lacking, there seems little reason to question despatches from various sources that Monte San Gabriele, the last of the Austrian strongholds in the Gorizia district, has been taken by the valorous Italian troops, giving them possession of the entire chain of hills dominating the Gorizia area.

This eminence, in fact, has been virtually at the mercy of the Italians since the fall of Monte Santo, its neighboring stronghold. Now that between the Austrian northern and southern armies on the Isonzo front and severing their lines of communication with each other. With the capture of 950 prisoners, probably all the remaining Austrian garrison, with 32 officers, is reported.

On the Franco-British front, the British hall of shells being dropped upon the German lines in Flanders, is causing the Germans to contemplate abandoning a wide expanse of territory, there now being swept by General Haig's big guns and those of the French co-operating with him in the Belgian campaign. The launching of the next Entente push here is apparently imminent and as a measure of preparation the Germans are reported to be removing the civilian population of a district, extending 12 miles or more to the east of the present front in West Flanders, as far as Thourout-Courtrai line, embracing an area of some 200 square miles. One theory advanced for the reported evacuation is that the German command, dreading the effect of next drive, is preparing to flood the lands by diverting water from the River Scheldt, thus blocking allied progress. Another supposition is that the Germans, lacking the men to hold the present lines firmly enough, are preparing for another "strategic" retreat.

PLOT TO RESTORE CZAR TO THRONE DISCOVERED; GRAND DUKES ARRESTED

Michael and Paul Taken Into Custody by Provisional Government—Plan Alleged to Revive Royalist Spirit in Army—Gurko to be Exiled

Petrograd, Sept. 5.—In addition to the arrest of Grand Duke Michael Alexandrovitch, brother of the former emperor, and his wife, the Countess Phlan, the Grand Duke Paul and his magnificent wife, have also been taken into custody. The reported arrest of Grand Duke Dmitri Pavlovitch is as yet unconfirmed. The arrests are the result of suspected complicity in the counter revolutionary conspiracy concerning which the provisional government obtained evidence during the Moscow conference. Many arrests in connection with the plot previously had been made.

Last night the assistant commander of the Petrograd district with a detachment of picked soldiers at the Tsarke Selo, read the order of arrest to Grand Duke Paul, who submitted merely asking the reason. The assistant commander stated that it was by order of Premier Kerensky. Later the same officer visited his residence and arrested Grand Duke Michael and his wife. It appears that several days ago a search was made of the residence of Grand Duke Michael in Finland, which was occupied by him during his presence there. A Colonel Dietz was also arrested at Gatchina.

The minister of justice refused for the present to give out any facts concerning the arrests. According to some of the newspapers, however, the headquarters of the monarchist conspiracy is in Crimea, where other Grand Dukes and Duchesses and the dowager empress reside under surveillance.

In Crimea, according to the newspapers, there has been recently founded a society under the name of Forward for the Czar and Holy Russia, which was detected organizing and training "czarist propagandists with the design of sending to the front to revive monarchy sympathies at the front.

Banish Gurko Petrograd, Sept. 5.—General Gurko, former commander of the southwestern front, charged with treasonable conduct toward the revolution, will be exiled from Russia. General Gurko, according to reports, is the first person against whom such a measure has been taken by the revolutionary government. He will be permitted to choose the place of his residence, and will be given three days in which to arrange his affairs. Gen. Gurko has been degraded and his re-

Detailed Story of Raid Over Chatham Naval Barracks, Resulting in Death of Over a Hundred Seamen

By Courier Leased Wire.

London, Sept. 5.—The Chatham district for the first time experienced an air attack on Monday night when one or more bombs fell on a section of the Royal Naval Barracks, killing 107 blue jackets outright and wounding 86 others. Four bombs in all fell about the barracks, but two were harmless and in fact apart from those which took such a heavy toll of lives the damage in the whole area was insignificant. The barracks was fitted with sleeping hammocks and a majority of the men were asleep at the time of the attack.

The first indication of the presence of raiders was the sound of engines overhead. The presence of high powered engines overhead did not much alarm because anti-aircraft practice would be carried out that night and when the guns began firing it was assumed that the practice was in full swing. Then came the unexpected. Loud explosions were heard in one part of the district and then in another. The explosions then ceased, but after a few minutes they were heard again and judging by the sounds it seemed that the air raiders had circled the town. In all about 17 bombs were dropped and the raiders are thought to have been over the district nearly an hour. Searchlights sought out the raiders, but they failed to locate them, the visibility being low owing to a slight haze, notwithstanding the moonlight. Immediately following the explosions in the barracks rescue parties were organized and the wounded were removed to hospitals, one of which came very near being a target for a bomb.

Discipline prevailed completely over any natural tendency at alarm in the barracks. All survivors were instantly at their quarters and the greatest coolness was shown. A naval man, who was in the barracks at the time, gave the following account of the raid:

"Most of us were asleep in our hammocks in the dormitory, which was in the large drill hall. We had no warning of any kind. Two clocks, which were blown into the adjoining parade grounds, stopped at 11.12 o'clock, showing the hour of the explosions. I have been in some scraps, but I did not dream that anything so sudden could happen. Before we knew what was happening, the roof was lifted off the shop, blown into the air and fell in a thousand pieces among the men. It was flying glass which was thick and heavy, that did the damage. We were dashed out of our hammocks to the floor and all mixed up in broken glass. The men on either side of me were both killed. Officers were on the scene in a moment and worked with us the whole night, getting the wounded to hospitals and the bodies to the gymnasium, which was used as a mortuary."

Another man sleeping in a different section of the dormitory, said that he did not wait to put on his shoes and did not know that he was walking on broken glass until long afterwards, when he found that his feet were bleeding. Still another man with a piece of glass in his head, did not know it, the shock of the explosion being so great, and a man who was blown across the parade ground and who sighted on his feet declared that he did not feel any worse for his experience.

Some of the injured died during the night and the survivors complain bitterly about their companions being killed without any opportunity to strike back.

"If we have to die, we want to die fighting," one blue jacket said. "Most of us have been fighting and we want another go at the Hun."

A remarkable feature of the raid was that comparatively few people in the bombed area were aware that there had been an attack until they arose the following morning. One bomb struck a small cottage, one of a row. The tenant and his daughter who went into the garden to see what was happening escaped injury, but the wife remained in the house, and was killed.

RUSS RETREAT IS CONTINUED Berlin, Sept. 5.—Duenamunde, on the Riga front, which was evacuated yesterday by the Russians, has been captured by German forces, the War Office announced to-day. (Duenamunde lies at the mouth of the Dvina, north-west of Riga). The heavy coastal guns there fell undamaged into the hands of the Germans.

Petrograd, Sept. 5.—The Russians continuing their retreat along the course of the Gulf of Riga, toward the northeast, have crossed the Livonian River, the War Office announces. The Russian forces operating in an easterly direction from Riga, have retreated from Sagvold, Lemburg and Detresubrayd. The announcement states that the hostile ships which have been shelling the Riga Coast were submarines.

The report was ordered placed on file and the commission requested to advise council as to funds necessary for construction and extension to plants in order that debentures may be issued to provide funds for the same.

As the trunk sewer is a charge against the whole town it is probable that funds for repairs now in progress there will be paid out of the general fund.

The charity committee's report showed expenditures of $29.02.

The board of works report showed expenditures of $693.96 and a grant of $300 was made to the accounts smaller than usual was passed on recommendations of the finance committee.

Messrs. Alward and Post admitted an error in computation and were ready to do the work at 35 cents per square foot without extras. The former tender was on a square foot basis.

The strength of materials in the specifications was discussed and council determined to recommend the engineer and ask both parties to put in new tenders of any alterations were made.

Night Policeman Pepper asked for an increase of salary and recommendation as county constable.

Carter Slater, that George Pepper of Simcoe be recommended for appointment as a county constable.

It was decided to have the policeman sign agreement which shall specify duties and salary.

Will Announce Their Coming.

Guy Winter, Gordon Thompson and Ed. Hilton will be in Toronto about Friday, so Private Winter writes from Quebec, and will send word ahead as to the train they will arrive home on. Last January Mayor Williamson and the writer, made enquiries of headquarters at Toronto and Ottawa regarding the possibility of having an avenue of advice as to the time of arrival of returning soldiers, but was informed that they were not able to give the information because only the men themselves knew. His worship has been criticized because soldiers arrived home with no one to meet them. But the criticism has come from sources deserving of the contempt and silence with which the criticism has been received.

TRINITY CHURCH, WATERFORD, CONSECRATED LAST SUNDAY

Solemn Religious Ceremony Was Performed By Bishop of Huron

MANY IN ATTENDANCE
Clergy From Various Points In Norfolk County Shared In Service

HISTORY OF CHURCH
Was Erected in 1909, Costing Over $11,000; Now Debt Free

(From our own Correspondent)
Waterford, Sept. 3.—Sunday was an historic day among Anglicans here. Trinity church, erected in 1909 at a cost of more than eleven thousand dollars, and carrying a debt of $9,000, the last dollar of which has recently paid, was consecrated at the 11 o'clock morning worship by His Lordship, David Williams, Bishop of Huron, who also preached the sermon. Rev. James Ward, rector here, Trinity church, was the principal officiant. The service was attended by a large number of clergy from various points in Norfolk County. The church, which was erected in 1909, cost over $11,000, and is now debt free.

From an instrument registered in the Norfolk Registry Office, and to which I will refer more particularly hereafter, it appears that the nucleus of a congregation here prior to the year 1818, services were probably not regular but were conducted at intervals by such travelling missionaries as Archdeacon Stuart of Quebec and afterwards when the rectory of Woodhouse was constituted in 1821 occasionally by Rev. Dr. Evans, the first rector. We are told that a frame church which stood upon the site of the present church, and the church was being ground, and the church was consecrated by the Bishop of Huron, and the Presbyterian church of England and the Presbyterian church of Scotland were situated, to atoms and carrying the roof some distance. This report we had from the late Mr. Gus Loder, grandson of Job Loder, an aged resident of Simcoe, who was there at the time. Our church rector, Mr. Elias Boughner, also told me recently that he had often heard his grandfather, who was also present, and carried the marks of powder in his face till he died, tell of that occurrence. As a thank offering for the deliverance of his wife, Mr. Loder donated one acre of land for the site of the church in 1872. The Presbyterian church in another part of the town, which had since been sold and that since there has been no Presbyterian church in the village. That the Anglican congregation had spent $250 clearing the lot and grading the body of the lot.

with no need for the old time sympathy. Though very recently substantial financial aid has been lost through the departure from town of prominent supporters, others have come to take their places, and the church is well on its feet, as it were.

Historic Address by Dr. Wm. McGuire.
Dr. McGuire, who was for twenty-five years a citizen of Waterford, and a member of the building committee, spoke in substance as follows:
The early history of Trinity church in Waterford appears to be incomplete in so far as I have been able to gather data.

From an instrument registered in the Norfolk Registry Office, and to which I will refer more particularly hereafter, it appears that the nucleus of a congregation here prior to the year 1818, services were probably not regular but were conducted at intervals by such travelling missionaries as Archdeacon Stuart of Quebec and afterwards when the rectory of Woodhouse was constituted in 1821 occasionally by Rev. Dr. Evans, the first rector. We are told that a frame church which stood upon the site of the present church, and the church was being ground, and the church was consecrated by the Bishop of Huron, and the Presbyterian church of England and the Presbyterian church of Scotland were situated, to atoms and carrying the roof some distance. This report we had from the late Mr. Gus Loder, grandson of Job Loder, an aged resident of Simcoe, who was there at the time. Our church rector, Mr. Elias Boughner, also told me recently that he had often heard his grandfather, who was also present, and carried the marks of powder in his face till he died, tell of that occurrence. As a thank offering for the deliverance of his wife, Mr. Loder donated one acre of land for the site of the church in 1872. The Presbyterian church in another part of the town, which had since been sold and that since there has been no Presbyterian church in the village. That the Anglican congregation had spent $250 clearing the lot and grading the body of the lot.

at the time very few, and there seemed little hope that Church of England services, which had been hitherto so weak and intermittent, would be permanent. As an evidence of numerical weakness, it may be sufficient to state that from 10 to 20 was considered a large congregation, while from five to eight was not unusual.

The financial condition was also correspondingly weak. During the third year after the resumption of services the total income of the parish from all sources and for all purposes amounted to less than thirty dollars. But the fidelity and devotion of the little flock was not weak, and the church wardens and the members were in their places and the steady continuance of the services, faith in their perseverance grew, and slowly yet surely the congregation grew in numbers and up to the extent of their ability, and in many cases beyond what might have been expected, they were ready to work and give to the church cause.

Plans were made and a fund independent of the parish fund established. The women of the congregation entered most heartily and perseveringly into the work, and the object at first was the repair and improvement of the dilapidated church building, but which soon developed into the idea of a new church.

The rector, the church wardens and the congregation were encouraged in the hope that this was possible by the unexpected acquisition of a piece of land, the site of the present noble church which crowns the hill. For very many years nearly a century in fact the church was ignorant of its claim. Those who had known it died, and the new generation had never known that it had any interest in the matter. But when the true situation became known, action was taken by some of the Presbytery members, and the Legislature passed an Act vesting the property in the rector and church wardens as a site for a church of the Church of England.

Before applying to the Legislature the rector and wardens referred the matter of ownership to the Presbytery at Hamilton, and they in turn referred them to the congregation which was Simcoe. After consultation with the pastor, Rev. W. J. Day, D.D., and the trustees, Mr. Frank Reid, Geo. J. McKie and J. B. Jackson of the Simcoe Presbyterian church, they very kindly and graciously recommended the rector to assign all their right and the church wardens of Trinity church, which they did. This action should have been embodied in the Ontario Legislature conveying said lot to Trinity church.

The preamble to chap. 122 of the Statutes of Ontario 1907 throws much light upon the task of acquiring this old church lot which had run wild and neglected for more than a half a century. It was the only documentary evidence of the gift by Mr. Loder is there cited. The deed of the remainder of the lot dated December 10th, 1918 and registered June 6, 1926 by George Sovereign to Morris Sovereign all land described in 97 acres of land being part of the 718 1/2 acres concession of Townsend "Excepting and always reserving out of a frame church, the possession of one acre of land now in possession of the church of England and certain members of the Presbyterian Society."

residence in Waterford and as a tribute to his energies he not only fulfilled his duties in the Parish of Waterford and Woodhouse but opened services in the Parish of Woodhouse which he still continues with marked success.

Wants More Church Going.
Rev. A. B. Farney, of Simcoe, began his short address in his characteristic humorous way, but said some things too. He thought that any man in the district who called himself an Anglican and did not turn out to church regularly had neither religion nor vitality.

He thought it decadent that the good old visitation with Scripture reading and prayer was no longer desired. The people were drifting, and the electric road and automobiles, he said were making it easy for people to get into a dangerous rut of the right track, and were accountable for many empty pews. Laymen should do their Sunday visiting early in the morning and should visit and bring out those who neglect to attend church. He urged the people to prize history, and to make some who he wondered how Waterford could hold the Bishop three days while Simcoe did well to get him for one day.

Relieve With Them That Help
His Lordship rose at 10.10, and spoke for twenty minutes. He was here to rejoice; it was easy in this particular case—no envy—no jealousy. Weeping was generally more easily done, but this was an exception. Everything about him spoke of a no village envy anywhere.

Looks for Church Union.
He hoped that the harmony at Waterford was prophetic of better things and he hoped that the great world struggle may produce a glorious practical turn of mind which will carry people back to a sense of mind which will make them more of a possibility that this is so.

He gave warm personal thanks to the ability and worth of James Ward, who had steered Waterford through her days of growth. This duty now, he urged, is to make disciples. From the church, through the congregation to the individual, this is imperative, and there is something commendable about the Presbyterian elders' duty of visiting. A filled committee of laymen would be a great blessing. It ought to bring in those who attend no church.

Conditions at this turning point of history, should be guarded and ideals should be strengthened. Strange that one hundred years ago Napoleon tried to conquer earth and failed. Two hundred years ago Louis XV. tried and failed to dominate the world. Three hundred years ago Philip of Spain lost his Armada. Each century has brought its climax to humanity; Pagan vs. Christian ideas close in deadly strain. Strange that the side of truth, justice, liberty, and brotherhood, against the physical might of paganism. The churches are the chief sources of strength. Already we perceive that the stress of the struggle has produced great results.

"The Ibis 'Christianity has fallen' has been buried. The entrance of England into the war when she might have broken her pledge, stayed out and made big money; this was the triumph of Christianity and its ideals."

The war has set up a new standard by which to value man, not by wealth or power, but by service and sacrifice. War has brought the world back to a faith in the life in the world to come.

Notes.
Mr. Matchett came all the way from Toronto to be present for the social evening.

A splendid bowling green and tennis court are two adjuncts to the Trinity church grounds.

The Waterford church is modelled after Grace church, Milton.

The rector presided at the piano and assisted the choir by several numbers sang during the evening. The first selection was the "Battle Hymn of the Republic." The rector had a newspaper report of its having been sung in the Cathedral in England at the service in recognition of the entrance of the United States into the war.

It was a great love feast. The new rector expressed the hearty appreciation of himself and family for the open arms and warmth with which they had been received into such a goodly heritage prepared by stalwart souls in colossal work and heroic endeavors. He forecasted activity in ladies Aid, P. F. A. and S. S. with perhaps a Home Department.

He thought the key-note now should be parabolic expansion and this without meddling with other denominations.

Rev. James Ward, his predecessor, was the first called. He spoke of the unbroken harmony which characterized the congregation throughout all his stay in Waterford. He referred to the building committee as "strong pillars."

Dr. McGuire with other acknowledged assistance from all the congregation were assisted by Mr. Matchett from the past people of St. John's and from the pastor of the past years and his wife and family.

Rev. Caldwell (Methodist) and Rev. Fitch (Baptist) minister of the town, were both present with expressions of good will. Rev. Fitch apologized for having arrived Sunday evening.

PLOT TO RESTORE

Continued from page one. The former war minister admitted receiving a number of letters reflecting on Maslavioff, but said he would have had no assistants left if he had dismissed everybody who was mentioned.

Mme. Merkuloff, a cousin of Mme. Soukhomlinoff, testified concerning Mme. Soukhomlinoff's unhappy childhood.

The father deserted the family, she said, leaving them poor, and Mme. Soukhomlinoff finished her education with great difficulty.

She supported herself and her mother, refusing help from her father. She married a rich house owner and left him after one day, eventually returning to him and living unhappily for some years.

The witness recounted how her cousin attempted suicide after her husband had beaten her, and that she finally left him, securing a divorce and married Soukhomlinoff.

The Soukhomlinoffs, according to the witness lived simply, and she added that although Mme. Soukhomlinoff dressed well and spent much time abroad, she worked hard during the war organizing hospitals and other charities.

Mme. Merkuloff also testified concerning her relations with Mme. Chervinskaya, who was a witness earlier in the trial for the prosecution.

She said that Madame Chervinskaya was a relative of her first husband, and that she "regarded all of his relatives as secondaries."

The witness said that she lived much abroad with Mme. Chervinskaya, but broke with her because of her relations with Prince Andronikoff.

Prince Andronikoff, on being recalled as a witness, testified that he wrote to the former emperor Nicholas, early in the war recommending Soukhomlinoff's dismissal.

He admitted that he lived much abroad with Mme. Chervinskaya, but broke with her because of her relations with Prince Andronikoff.

Use Blood and Iron. Petrograd, Sep. 5.—The government general of Finland returned to Helsinki with Premier Kerensky's sanction for opposition by armed force if necessary to any act of the Finnish local government which he deems inimical to the welfare of Russia.

Fall of Riga. Petrograd, Tuesday, Sep. 4.—The first refugees from Riga arrived here to-day and gave a dramatic description of their last hours in the city before the German occupation.

The first shell was fired from the direction of Uxkull and fell early Sunday morning causing numerous fires and spreading clouds of suffocating gases.

The people rushed into the streets, many only partly dressed and there was general panic to reach the railroad station which seemed to be the enemy's chief target.

This panic resulted in heavy losses according to Vechernee Vremya, which declares that several thousand were lost.

The next night, after midnight, a Zeppelin appeared over the city and in the rays of its searchlights citizens might be seen fleeing.

The Zeppelin dropped many bombs some emitting gases. These bombs were aimed chiefly at Moscow, a suburb of Riga.

Shelling with his projectiles from the direction of Uxkull was resumed early in the evening one shell falling in a moving picture hall causing losses and another exploding in the Hotel Suvorov.

The last train which left for Petrograd was heavily shelled. A great many buildings in Riga, according to the refugees were destroyed.

Announcement is made in the current issue of the Provincial Gazette that Butcher shops, meat merchants and fish stores in Victoria from now on will be exempt from the provisions of the Weekly Half Holiday Act.

BOY INJURED. A painful accident, the aftermath of the G. W. V. A. Labor Day celebration, occurred last evening at Agricultural Park, when Norman Greenwood, a fourteen year boy, residing at 29 Brant street, west of Agricultural Park, had his left hand badly lacerated while handling one of the imitation bombs that had inadvertently been left on the ground the night previous. The unfortunate boy, in company with some friends, was playing in the Park and accidentally handled the bomb. While handling the object it exploded, inflicting severe injuries on him. He was taken to the hospital, where it was found necessary to amputate the thumb of the left hand. He is now progressing favorably toward recovery.

INDIAN EPITAPH. Half forgotten and grown over with weeds, there is an old cemetery on the Indian Road, along the river, between Onondaga and Middleport. Shrubs, weeds and grass grow over the fallen tombstones in wild confusion. Near the entrance there is one marble slab of peculiar interest. It is inscribed as follows: William, son of P. and C. Smith. Died By a Kick of a Horse On the 2nd day of December, 1849. In the 16th year of his age. Below this there is the figure of a boy lying stretched out on the ground, with a horse standing above him, its hind feet extended in the act of kicking. Below this appears the warning: "Let him that thinketh he standeth take heed lest he fall."

In view of the unsettled conditions as a result of farm, munition and other work, the number of pupils in attendance appeared very doubtful, and in consequence a full staff of teachers was not engaged.

YESTERDAY'S enrollment shows a total of 458 in attendance, however, while the blaze was easily required. The blaze was easily required. The damage was practically nil.

BRANTFORD ASKED TO SUPPLY A PLANE

Canadian Aviation Fund Requests A Donation From the City

The city of Brantford is to be requested by the Canadian Aviation Fund to donate an airplane valued at $500.00 to be used in training Canadian aviators at one of the various schools in this province.

A comprehensive plan for the manufacture of airplanes and the training of aviators in Canada is now being contemplated. One thousand planes are to be built and three thousand mechanics exclusive of officers and students in training will be required. Each machine of the type being made will be under the supervision of the Imperial Munitions Board for the British Government.

Costs $7,500 and the total expense of the aviation service both training and equipment costs is being borne at present by the British taxpayer.

To lighten this burden, the Army Council has officially notified the Canadian Aviation Fund of the gifts of planes to the government by private individuals, municipalities and other bodies in the provinces of Canada will be gratefully accepted. Other cities including Hamilton have already been approached with the object of inducing them to contribute aircraft which will be manufactured in this country and devoted exclusively to the training of Canadian lads for work in the air service.

Colonel William Hamilton Merritt, honorary secretary of the Aviation fund, has written city clerk Leonard regarding the visit of the Brantford delegates together with the representatives of other cities, to the Aerodrome at Leaside during the session of the Ontario Municipal Association in Toronto last week. On that occasion Col. Merritt addressed the gathering, pointing out the two immediate necessities of the R. F. C.—recruits and aeroplanes. Capt. Beatty recruiting officer for the R.F.C. has paid several visits to Brantford, and has been assisted materially by Chief of Police Slemin and others. In the letter that was received this morning, Col. Merritt suggests the possibility of an early visit to the city by a deputation to discuss with the city council or any other bodies that might be interested, the gift of an aeroplane.

Not only would such an aeroplane, if donated, be useful during the present war, but if the agitation for more adequate defence is widespread enough the government may be induced after the war to maintain an air service to safeguard the coast line and border.

TOWNSHIP COUNCIL THANKS FIRE DEPT.

Made Grant in Recognition of Their Services in Grandview Fire

THE PARKDALE DRAIN Report of Engineer Received and Discussed at Some Length

The thanks of the township council for the energetic efforts of the Fire Department in curbing the course of the fire in Grandview last week were expressed in a resolution passed at the regular meeting in the Court House last night, and emphasized by a grant of $25 to the firemen's fund. The report of Township Engineer R. M. Lee on the condition of the Parkdale drain and his recommendations in regard to the same were received and discussed. Various other matters of minor importance were also brought before the attention of the councillors. The following resolution unanimously passed, expressing the gratitude of the township toward Chief Lewis and the firemen:

"That the thanks of the township are hereby due to the Chief and men of the Brantford Fire Department, who so kindly assisted in controlling the fire in Grandview and were instrumental in preventing a wide-spread conflagration in this section, and that a grant of $25 be made to the firemen's fund, as a sign of the township's appreciation of the kind efforts.

The Parkdale drain is evidently in a very poor condition, according to the report of R. M. Lee, who at a previous meeting was instructed to inquire into the state of the drain and report to the council. The engineer has dug up the tile along Baldwin avenue, in four places, and from his own observations, and from the evidence gathered from others interested, Mr. Lee states that the tile is filled with roots and in some places, nearly filled up completely. The tile is of the ordinary field clay type, with open joints, and if placed near trees will eventually fill up. The drain when first constructed was satisfactory but since the ditch cutties above referred have set in and repairs must be made. In places adjacent to trees the tile must be dug up and replaced with the tiled article, and the joints cemented. At an estimate 400 feet will probably have to be repaired.

Engineer Lee places the cost at approximately $525.00, the chief item being labor.

A special meeting to consider the matter will be called when the engineer returns to the city.

Thirteen farmers residing on the Swamp road, Pleasant Ridge, petitioned the council to inquire into and effect the necessary repairs to a road running from the Mt. Vernon station through to the Burford Road. They point out in the communication that the road is in a deplorable condition, nearly impassable. In some places the ruts are two feet deep and the authors of the petition claim that the expense of repairing would not be heavy. The farmers who wish action to be taken are vitally interested.

The road affords the most convenient approach to the Mt. Vernon station, their shipping point for root crops and grain.

"Believe us to be, yours at the polls, etc., is the suggestive conclusion to the epistle.

The council will investigate the condition of the road and consider the best means of relieving the trouble.

Complaints had been made to the council by the Canal Company regarding the condition of the bridge over the canal in the vicinity of the locks some of the supporting timbers have apparently rotted away and as the structure is on a public highway the company intimated that they would hold the council responsible in event of damage.

The matter was taken up with the Western Counties Electric Company by the clerk who informed the manager that the Western Counties would be held responsible in case of an accident. The necessary work of repairing is now under progress under the direction of the Dominion Power and Transmission Company, but the general manager of that concern wrote the council stating that he was unable to find any provisions in the franchise of the Western Counties Company placing the responsibility for repairing the bridge upon the Company.

A supply of marl which he believes would be useful in building the county roads is located on the farm of Sandford Holt, Burford. He wrote the council offering it for sale, and enclosing a sample. He requests that immediate action be taken. The substance would be of no value to the township and the communication was filed.

The Hospital for Sick Children, Toronto, wrote acknowledging the receipt of $16.25 in account of the maintenance of Branislawa Lopucka patient at that institution.

An accident occurred on the Governor's Road on Monday night August 27th when an automobile thru the alleged poor state of the road was thrown into a fish pond. Mrs. Ed. Goddard of Paris, owner of the car, wrote asking what the council intended doing in connection with the matter. Her letter was filed.

A MEMORY OF EARL GREY

The famous pass in the Purcell Mountain Range. Earl Grey inset.

An interesting point has never yet been decided as to the permanent name to be given to the pass which leads over the Purcell Range between Lake Windermere and Argenta on the Upper Kootenay Lake. The late Earl Grey, who had a hunting cabin half way up the pass on Toby Creek crossed the pass on one occasion, with the result that the geographers named it after him. The original discoverer of the pass, however, was a prospector named Wells, and Earl Grey, who was always a thorough sportsman, wrote saying that he thought it a hardship to deprive Wells of the right to the old name of Wells Pass. To-day, however, the name of Earl Grey's Pass is still current, and remains in most of the maps. The British Columbia Government commenced to build a road over it, which, however, was badly damaged in the great westwinds of 1915. This summer two venturesome tourists made the crossing though at considerable hardship, owing to the condition of the trail at Hammill Creek, on the western side. The following account of the trip appeared in the "Kootenian," of Kaslo, B.C.:

"After a hurry that they will not forget in a trip, Dr. R. N. Carter of Resaland, and Henry Cody of this city arrived in town on Wednesday of last week, after a somewhat dangerous jaunt across Earl Grey's Pass, and through Hammill Creek canyon, which had been damaged in the heavy snows of the winter. They had left Wilmer, in East Kootenay, about ten days before and made their way up the Toby Creek wagon road to the summit, and yet in about one day exploring the huge Toby Creek ice field. Mr. Cody was well acquainted with the country up there, having mineral claims on the East Kootenay side, upon which he has been doing assessment work for years. The ground was not new to him, but it was very different, so the doctor. The latter stated that he had never before seen such magnificent mountain scenery, having traveled a good deal over the surface of the globe, he is in a pretty good position to judge as to what constitutes the real thing in the line of mountain scenery.

"He found the Toby Creek glacier a particularly inspiring and wonderful spectacle. They spent a day on top of this huge lake of ice, and only had a look over one corner of it. They started out in the early morning to the camp, and proceeded on the four hours' stroll arrived at the conclusion that they had not gone half way across it. So they returned to the camp. Beyond the risk of falling on a precipice or looping the loop down on this side of the pass and being not a great deal of danger to the trip, until they worked their way down on this side of the pass and began to come down Hammill Creek. The trip from the pass down where the road was made in a driving rain, so that the bushes soured with water, so that they were soaking wet in a few minutes after leaving the timber line. The trail in places was so overgrown that it could scarcely be followed. A number of new slides had come down lately and piled the bottom of the valley with various debris, so that progress was at times necessarily slow. They managed to get through the Argenta Mines compressor building and camped at that point over night. The following day was one of hardship, and extreme peril at times. Between the point on the Hammill Creek road where the trail to the St. Patrick group branches off, and the Argenta Mines compressor, all semblance of a road was wiped out entirely in places through the depths of the severely savage Hammill Creek canyon. Several times they had to improvise bridges to cross. The roaring stream, said bridges being nothing but a convenient tree, which was felled with an axe. As Hammill Creek varies all the way from forty to eighty feet wide, and as the fallen trees sometimes sagged down into the teeming torrent, the peril of such crossings can be better imagined than described, more particularly in view of the fact that both men had heavy packs on their backs, that of Cody's weighing some sixty-five pounds.

"At last, however, they gained the point on the canyon road where the trail branches off to the St. Patrick group, and from there on, comparatively speaking, the going was like unto that of a paved street. In due time they reached Argenta, and from that point were rowed over to Lardie, where they connected with the large "Empress" and came to town."

FALL OF RIGA HEAVY BLOW TO RUSSIA

Only Bright Feature of News Is Valor With Which Army Fought Before Retreating; Revolutionary Dictatorship Proposed in Petrograd

Petrograd, Sep. 4.—The Petrograd morning papers agree on the gravity of the situation created by the fall of Riga; the only bright feature in which is a report from the committee of the northern army to the Council of Deputies, which declares that the army fought valiantly, although compelled to retreat, pre-empting artillery and gases, and, although compelled to retreat, preserved its fighting spirit.

Most of the newspapers are of the opinion that the fall of Riga in itself does not threaten Petrograd. For such an operation, says the Rech von Hindenburg has on the north front only seven corps. The Rech von Hindenburg has on the north front only seven corps. The Rech von Hindenburg has on the north front only seven corps.

It is not believed that the southern section of the Dvina, front between Dvinsk and Friedrichstadt, is threatened, as this forms a salient well to the east of Riga.

Boris Savinkoff, assistant Minister of War, says that measures are being taken to have the German advance, but that it is not possible yet to state the position of the new defensive line.

INGLIS AND HENDERSON WON SCOTCH DOUBLES

Young Bowlers From Pastime Green Carried Off First Trophy In Annual Tournament—Success Well Deserved

Bill Inglis and Herb Henderson of the Pastime greens last night captured the Expositor Trophy in the Brant county Scotch doubles Bowling tournament, defeating McPhail and McPhail in the final round by a score of 20-9. MAN TO BEAT DUR-NAN NOT YET IN SIGHT

Hackett Says Toronto Man's Championship Title is Not In Danger

Big John Hackett, the defeated challenger for the sculling championship of America, returned last night to his home in Baudette, Minn., just across from Rainy River where he has a farm and a general store. He was no dispirited at all when he drew down his expense allowance yesterday, and said: "Well, I didn't do the job, just because I couldn't row a bit, but I don't blame the water conditions. There isn't anybody in America, so far as I can see, that can beat Durman, and he'll keep the championship until some new, young sculler rises up of his own class. I saw the amateurs at the National Regatta at Duluth last year and none of these scullers would have a chance with Durman, even at their own distance, to say nothing of a three-mile course. It'll have to be somebody not yet out in the open."

Hackett added that he had enjoyed the trip anyway. It was his first visit to Toronto in a good many years when he was here on his way to Halifax to row in Jake Gaudaur's four. Though he is very fit physically and looks a lot younger, Hackett is fifty-one years old, an age at which most men have retired permanently from competition in what is one of the most strenuous forms of athletic sport. He has a boy about fifteen years old who has for some time been rowing regularly in a shell. Hackett himself was born in Pennsylvania, but his father was a New Brunswicker, and he learned his rowing at Rat Portage, as Kenora was then known, and where he moved when a boy. Hackett may not be a first-class sculler, and his chance of ever getting to the front passed some time ago, but he is a good game man, who lost $500 of his own money in the attempt and took his beating like a real sportsman.

NO SUNDAY GAMES UNTIL JUDGMENT

Brooklyn's War Charity Fixtures Will Have To Stand Over

President Ebberts of the Brooklyn baseball club announced that no attempt would be made to play the Sunday games planned for last Sunday and next Sunday pending the decision of the Sunday baseball cases now before the Court of Special Sessions. It was the object of the club to play games in connection with Sunday concerts for worthy war charities, strictly in compliance with the law which permits Sunday exhibitions for charitable purposes, and the Brooklyn club feels that it is being unjustly discriminated against in its charitable efforts.

PUBLIC PATRONAGE APPROVAL OF SPORT

Enormous Crowds at Holiday Ball Games Testify

New York, Sept. 5.—Conclusive proof that sport is very much alive despite war conditions, is found in the enormous attendance at baseball games on Labor Day. It is estimated that 150,000 fans attended the games in eight major league cities. The Giants and Braves drew a total of 30,000 at the Polo Grounds, while a similar number attended the battles between the White Sox and Tigers in Chicago. More than 10,000 saw the Yankees twice defeat the Red Sox in Boston, while the attendance was about 15,000 each in Brooklyn, St. Louis, Philadelphia and Cleveland. The turnout in Pittsburgh for two games was in the neighborhood of 10,000.

Boston, Sept. 4.—New York made it three out of four from Boston to-day when it split even in the double-header and Boston's championship aspirations received another jolt, as a result. The first game, which was won by Boston, 4 to 2, is thought to have been the fastest played in the American League this season. It required only one hour and twenty minutes to complete it.

BARNES' GREAT WORK WINS FOR BRAVES

Held the Giants When Hits Meant Runs—Soldiers Attend en Masse

New York, Sept. 4.—Barnes, great pitching in the pinch enabled Boston to win the deciding game of its series from New York here to-day 3 to 1. Barnes twice turned the Giants back with the bases full. New York scored its only run in the eighth inning, when Powell fell after getting under Robertson's fly. With Burns on third and Robertson on second and none out, Barnes purposefully passed Kauff, filling the bases. Zimmerman hit into a double play, then Barnes struck Fletcher out. Sporting Comment

Outfielder Claude Cooper, the former Phillie, who couldn't win a place with the Louisville team, has been turned over to Little Rock.

Enquiries made as to the status of Eddie Hemmings, of the Houston Braves, by Branch Rickey, who wanted to buy him for the Cardinals showed that he had been sold to the New York Giants some time since and public announcement of the deal withheld.

The Dallas club took on Ed Appleton, once a Brooklyn Dodger, but brief inspection showed he was in no condition and he was told to turn in his uniform. Appleton refused to do so. Baltimore early in the season, Manager Wade Killifer, of Los Angeles, denies that Tom Seaton has been turned back to the Chicago Cubs. He declares there is a lot of good pitching in Seaton, and that he needs only work to show it. It will be a big winner as soon as he gets in shape, says Killifer.

Baltimore and Toronto are justly indignant that Providence should butt in on their plans to get the Washington American League franchise. Why not put the thing up at auction and see which of the three cities would bid highest for it?—St. Louis Sporting News.

Bob Messenger is back in baseball in New England after several years of wandering. He was playing in the Northwestern League when that circuit blew, and returned to his home in Gardner, Me., but was not allowed to rest long, for the Portland Eastern League club needed an outfielder and took him on. Messenger played for Rochester a few years ago, and also for the Leafs part of a season.

Outfielder Lee Goeh, who was released by Springfield when he served notice that he had to report to his home in North Carolina to take the examination under the draft, has been signed by Bridgeport. Evidently there was some misunderstanding elsewhere.

Nine years ago when the Red Sox were training in Texas, one of the youngsters who was trying to land a job as pitcher was A. B. Hoffman. When he was informed that he was not of big league ability he joined Uncle Sam's army. This summer when the Red Sox asked for a drill master, the man who had failed to make good as a pitcher with that team was detailed by the war department to instruct the club in military tactics.

Philadelphia won to-day's game from Washington 2 to 1, and thereby made a clean sweep of the series. Buffalo, Sept. 4.—Toronto's chances of winning the International League pennant were not injured any today in their afternoon's engagement with the Bisons. They won at both ends of the double-header, the first score being 4-3, the second 6-4. Both sections were very close for the pitchers on each side worked hard to gain the upper hand. Buffalo had Toronto 3 to 2 in the opening half of the ninth when an unexpected throw by Tom Daly placed them in front, where they remained despite the efforts of the Herd to regain lost ground.

Jack Warhop was off to a bad start, but he was a lucky twirler to extract himself with but one run scored against him. Warhop issued passes to the first pair of batters, Koppy and Gill. Carstrom beat his bunt, clogging the pathway. Then Warhop laid the ball on Jackson's wrist and a run was forced over. With things still having a black look he forced Hummel, McDonald and Daly to pop to members of his infield. That was all for the Herd until their lucky seventh.

DIDN'T CLOSE HER EYES ALL NIGHT

Mrs. Garside Says Tanlac Strengthened and Built Her up Wonderfully

"When my husband said how quickly Tanlac relieved me, we got him a bottle too, and it is doing him as much good as it did me," said Mrs. E. Garside, of 392 1/2 Richmond Street, London, whose husband employed in the munition works of the Spray Motor Company, the other day.

"I had been in a dreadfully run-down condition for a year," she explained, "and my stomach was in a terrible condition. I had no appetite and what little I had no appetite for on my stomach and filled me with gas and my heart would flutter like it would jump out of my body. I was subject to smothering spells that almost took my breath away and suffered agonies with a pain in the left side of my chest. My nerves were shattered so I would start with excitement at any sudden noise. I would roll and toss from side to side of my bed many a time I would not close my eyes all night, and when morning came I would be so tired and fagged out it was all I could do to get up and dress. I fell off eight pounds and was fast going down hill, in fact, I hadn't enough strength and energy left to do my housework.

"I think I took about every preparation there was on the market but found no relief till I began with Tanlac. The way this medicine took hold of my troubles from the first and started me up hill again was wonderful. I am now on my fourth bottle and have the finest kind of appetite. I can eat most anything and the smothering spells, and the heart fluttering have stopped. My nerves are in much better shape and I sleep better than I have in a long time. Tanlac has built me up so that I am an heavier and stronger than I was and certainly feel more like doing my housework now than I did a few weeks ago."

Pay Your Debt To Your Defenders

Turn Your Luxuries Into Comforts For Those Who Have Sacrificed Most.

"Self-sacrifice, self-denial and service lie at the basis of the highest personal and national development."

Sir Thomas White, Minister of Finance.

IS it nothing to you that men from all round you have sacrificed home and salary, safety and life, to defend your home as well as their own?

Is it nothing to you that their wives and families tremblingly scan each casualty list, and pale at the step of the postman or telegraph messenger?

Can you see others giving their dearest, without feeling that you must do something yourself? Do you wonder what to do?

You can at least save—and lend your savings to the nation. Canada needs every dollar her loyal sons and daughters can spare, to meet the growing expenses of the struggle.

Every dollar you invest in Canadian War Savings Certificates helps the nation to deal generously with those who are defending you.

Certificates in denominations of $25, $50 and $100, repayable in three years, may be purchased at any Bank or Money Order Post Office at $21.50, $43 and $86 respectively. This means over 5% interest—making them a profitable as well as a patriotic investment.

REV. W. H. WRIGHTON AT PARK BAPTIST

Pastor Occupied Pulpit After Absence of Several Weeks

The pastor, Rev. W. H. Wrighton, occupied his own pulpit, at Park Baptist Church after an absence of some six weeks. The pastor's vacation was in part, a forced one, on account of the accident he met with from an automobile some months ago. During his absence Park Baptist Church pulpit has been well supplied by some of the strongest and able preachers in the denomination, among them old friends of the church, such as Rev. J. J. Ross of James St. Baptist Church, Hamilton, the Rev. A. J. Vining of College St. Baptist Church, Toronto, and Dr. Ralph Hooper, the distinguished son of the beloved and highly esteemed of the pastor Rev. Dr. E. Hooper. Mr. Rolfe of Toronto, and Mr. Brigham, editor of the Evangelical Christian, also supplied during the absence of the pastor. All the supplies were well appreciated.

Mrs. John Schultz, with her usual well known ability, presided at the organ during the absence of Mr. Thresher, the esteemed organist of the church.

Pastor Wrighton took for his text in the morning, the words found in Daniel 12:3 "And they that be wise shall shine as the brightness of the firmament and they that turn many to righteousness as the stars forever and ever." After referring to the Book of Daniel as the prophecy of the latter times of the captivity of Israel and speaking of Daniel as one of the greatest of the prophets and one distinguished for his high sense of honor and of great principles, and his absolute purity and his determination not to follow after or partake of the manners and customs of the heathen, the preacher came at once to his text and pointed out to the congregation present, the rewards of those mentioned in it. First, The wise. There were many degrees and kinds of wisdom, but the text referred to those who were truly wise, and sought that wisdom which cometh from above, and instructed others only in the true wisdom of the Word of God, as in the Gospel of Matthew, in the testing time, "Then shall the righteous shine forth as the Sun in the kingdom of the Father," or as in the text "shall shine as the brightness of the firmament." Such will be the reward of the truly wise. Second, There were others who went further who were not only wise, or who had the wisdom given them from above, but active, earnest workers, ever working, praying for the good of others, ever anxious for the good of others, spending of their means and missions, doing what they could and all they could under God in helping others into the light—teachers and Church workers, and hands of nobles and women engaged in all kinds of Christian work for the good of hu-

LABOR CONVENTION THAT APPROVED OF STOCKHOLM DELEGATION

This is the meeting that caused one of the greatest sensations in England since the war broke out. Mr. Arthur Henderson, up to that time a member of the War Cabinet is speaking. His conduct was such that Mr. Lloyd George virtually charged him with bad faith, a rare incident in British public life. The meeting was held in Central Hall, Westminster.

manly, and of turning many to righteousness. Brantford had many such earnest workers in the churches of the city, such that gave life to the church, and the prayer service, and these would have their reward—they should be as stars forever and ever. The pastor expressed himself as being grateful for the helpfulness and encouragement given to him in the past by the members of the church and appealed to his people to unite together in the great work for God, truth and righteousness, as wise men and women, having the wisdom that cometh from above, and strive to do all they could to turn many to righteousness—such was their work in the church as pastor and people, and he looked forward through such united christian effort of usefulness and self-sacrifice, for showers of blessing.

It is to be hoped that the pastor will improve in health, and be completely restored from the effects of the accident occasioned by the automobile mishap, and in the meantime the church will, without doubt, render him all the assistance and sympathy possible in this work and labor of love among the people.

gress, another party of our men advanced eastward for a considerable distance along the enemy's communication trenches on the north of Lens.

Heavy shelling by our artillery in the Lens sector has forced the Germans to abandon their first line defenses and use shell holes instead. Several large explosions occurred in Lens last night and this morning.

In Brilliant Moonlight London, Sept. 5.—Telegraphing today from the front, Reuter's correspondent at British Army Headquarters says:

"About midnight the Canadian ones again hit in upon the outer shell of Lens. In the brilliant moonlight a raiding party went over our front opposite Cite Sainte Marie. Both sides were busy dealing with this incursion. The party moved out farther south and along a front of about 600 yards. They succeeded in establishing posts from about 250 yards forward of their front lines. A few prisoners of the 2nd Prussian Guards Reserve Regiment were brought back. The raiders found the Germans chiefly in shell holes, into which they had been driven by our artillery fire.

FAIR BUILDINGS AT BURFORD BURNED

Fire of Unknown Cause Did Much Damage Monday Night Burford, Sept. 5.—(From our own correspondent).—The South Burford Fair buildings are now a thing of the past, as they now lie in a heap of ashes. From some unknown cause fire broke out in the buildings on Monday night, about ten o'clock and burnt with such rapidity that in about 20 minutes the whole structure was consumed. It is unfortunate that the fire took place so close to fair time, but as the buildings were long since out of date, the fire, as far as the progress of the fair is concerned, is not to be much regretted. These buildings were all right years ago, when the fair was in smaller way, but with the rapid growth of past years they were the poorest thing about the show, so let no one shed any tears.

BIG REVIVAL OF FLAX INDUSTRY

Forty Mills Will be in Operation in Canada Next Winter Fifty years ago there were 100 flax mills in Canada, but at the time the war started three years ago the industry was almost extinct. At least eight or nine factories were in operation. The industry has been revived by the war, and during the coming winter there will be 30 or 40 mills in operation. Ontario farmers have planted 8,000 acres this year to this crop, the uses of which are perhaps more varied than any other known plant, its production affords opportunity for industrial as well as agricultural development. The Dominion Government has established at Ottawa an experimental mill for carrying on investigation work with flax and flax fibre, and the progress being made in the development of this most interesting industry is shown by exhibit in the Government building at the Canadian National Exhibition.

CANADIAN LINE IS NEARER LENS

Penetrate Enemy Trenches Along Front of 600 Yards TAKE OBSERVING POST Explosions Occur in City During the Night and Early Morning

By STEWART LYON Canadian Press Correspondent With the Canadian Army Headquarters, Sept. 4.—North of Lens, a most successful minor operation was carried out early this morning which resulted in the penetration of the enemy's line and communication trenches on a front of about 600 yards, and the establishing of a new outpost line well in advance of those formerly occupied and killing and wounding many of the enemy. A number of prisoners were taken belonging to the Second Guard reserve regiment, which was carried out by men of Manitoba and Alberta Battalions, with small loss, is that in the region of the north of Lens, our outpost line has been advanced some 250 yards nearer the city than before and is in a more favorable position for observation. While this operation was in progress,

HOT WINDS. A little while ago it looked as though we'd have a harvest great; the corn was standing, green, uncooked, in shining fields, in many a state. The farmers, grieved by barren years, beheld the prospect with a smile. "This year," they thought, "the golden ears will bring us in a goodly pile." And then, as from a dragon's mouth, there came a blazing, blighting breath, a fried wind stinging from the south, and all the corn was done to death. Don't talk of grief till you have seen your harvest wilt beneath the eye; till you've beheld the walls of green change in a day to dun, and die. The long hard hours in sun and rain, the heat and burden of the day, the hope of a substantial gain, all nullified and thrown away. In this sad year of 'seventeen, with all the world in war employ, uncounted farmers have seen their harvests and their hopes destroyed. And yet the farmers, brave and strong, make little moan, and shed no tear; they say to but their fields, "So long we'll hope for better luck next year!"

Has it ever occurred to you that soon after your death your estate, however large, may dwindle away owing to the inexperience of your heirs in business matters?

You need have no apprehension that your dependents will thus come to want if you make adequate provision for them by means of an Imperial Life policy.

Because every such policy contains a provision under which you may specify that the proceeds shall be paid in monthly, quarterly, half-yearly or yearly instalments for 5, 10, 15, 20, 25 or 30 years after your death, instead of in one sum.

While in the calculation of the instalments a definite rate of interest is guaranteed, such payments in the case of participating policies will be increased by sharing in the interest which the Company earns in excess of this guaranteed rate.

(From Tuesday's Daily.)
 "That's the island," he said, languidly waving his hand. "That white-pillared place there among the trees—left of the lighthouse—that's Aunt Abby's."
 Sally essayed a smile of intelligent response. Not that the island failed to enchant her; seen across a fast diminishing breadth of wind-darkened blue water, bathed in golden mid-morning light, its villas of delicious gray half buried in billows of delicious green, its lawns and terraces crowning fluted gray-stone cliffs from whose feet a broad beach shelved gently into the sea, it seemed ever so beautiful to Miss Manvers than anything she had ever dreamed of.

But what was to be her reception there, what her status, what her fortunes?
 "I've been thinking," Mrs. Standish announced when a sidelong glance had reassured her as to their practical privacy, "about Miss Manvers."

"I hope to Heaven you've doped out a good one," Savage interrupted fervently. "In the cold gray dawn it doesn't look so good to me. But then I'm only a duffer. Perhaps it's just as well; if I'd been a good har I might have married to keep my hand in. As it is, I never forgot to give thanks, in my evening prayers, for my talented little sister."

"Are you finished?" Mrs. Standish inquired frigidly.
 "I'd better be."

"Then, please pay attention. Miss Manvers. To begin with, I'm going to change your name. From now on it's Sara Manwaring—Sara without the h."

"Manwaring with the w silent, as in wrapper and wretch?" Savage asked politely.

For Sally's benefit Mrs. Standish spelled the word patiently.
 "And the record of the fair impostor?" Savage prompted.

"That's very simple. Miss Manwaring came to me yesterday with a letter of introduction from Edna English. Edna sailed for Italy last Saturday, and by the time she's back Aunt Abby will have forgotten the question Miss Manwaring's credentials."

"What did I tell you?" Mr. Savage wagged a solemn head at Sally.
 "She's art socially in a place named Massillon, Ohio. It can't be done—not in a place I never heard of before."

"Do you understand, Miss Manwaring?" the woman asked, turning an impatient shoulder to her brother.
 "Is that all?"

"Isn't it enough?"
 "Plenty. Simple, succinct, stupendous! It has only one flaw."
 "And that, if you please?" Mrs. Standish demanded, bristling with a smile.

"It ain't possible for any one to be prominent socially in a place named Massillon, Ohio. It can't be done—not in a place I never heard of before."

"Do you understand, Miss Manwaring?" the woman asked, turning an impatient shoulder to her brother.
 "Perfectly," Sally assented eagerly.

"Who is Edna English?"
 "Mrs. Cornwallis English. You must have heard of her?"
 "Oh, yes, in the newspapers—"

"Social uplift's her fad. She's done a lot of work among department-store girls."
 "To their infinite annoyance," interpolated Savage.

"At all events, that's how she came to notice you."
 "I see," said Sally humbly.

"You may fill in the outlines at your discretion," Mrs. Standish pursued sweetly. "That's all I know about you. You called at the house yesterday afternoon, and I took a fancy to you and, knowing that Aunt Abby needed a secretary, brought you along."

"Thank you," said Sally. "I hope you understand how grate—" "That's quite understood. Let us say no more about it."
 "Considerable story," Savage approved. "But what became of the letter of introduction?"

"I mislaid it," his sister explained complacently. "Don't I mislay everything?"
 For once the young man was dumb with admiration. But his look was eloquent.

Deep thought held the amateur adventures spellbound for some minutes. "There's only one thing," she said suddenly, with a puzzled frown. "And that?" Mrs. Standish prompted.

"What about the burglary? Your servants, when they came home last night, must have noticed and notified the police."
 "Oh, I say!" Savage exclaimed blankly.
 "Don't let's worry about that," Mrs. Standish interrupted. "We can easily let it be understood that what was stolen was later recovered from whatever they call the places where thieves dispose of their stealings."

"That covers everything," Savage insisted impatiently. "Do come along. There's the car waiting."

Coincident with this announcement, a series of slight jars shook the steamer, and with a start Sally discovered that, without her knowledge, in the preoccupation of being fitted with a completely new identity, the vessel had rounded a wooded headland and opened up a deep harbor dotted with pleasure craft, and was already nuzzling the town wharf of a sizable community.

She rose and followed her fellow conspirators aft and below to the gangway, her mind registering fresh impressions with the rapidity of a motion-picture camera.

The gray cliff had given place to green-clad bluffs down thick with coats of all sorts, from the quaintly hideous and the obviously inexpensive to the bewitchingly pretty and the pretentionally ornate—a haphazard arrangement that ran suddenly into a plot of streets linking a clutter of utilitarian buildings, all converging upon the focal point of the village wharf.

Upon this last a cloud of natives and summer folk swarmed and buzzed. At its head a cluster of vehicles, horse-drawn as well as motor-driven, waited. In the shadow beneath it, and upon the crescent beach that glistened on its either side, a multitude of children, young and old, paddled and splashed in shallows and the wash of the steamer.

Obviously the less decorative and exclusive side of the island, it was none the less enchanting in Sally's vision. A measure of confidence refused her mood. She surrendered absolutely to fatalistic enjoyment of the gifts the gods had sent. Half closing her eyes, she drank deep of salt-sweet air vibrant with the living warmth of a perfect summer's day.

A man whose common face was as impassive as an Indian's shouldered through the mob and burdened himself with the hand-luggage of the party. Sally gathered that he was a waiter to Mr. Savage. And then they were pushing through the gauntlet of several hundred curious eyes and making toward the head of the pier.

"Trying," Mrs. Standish observed in an aside to the girl. "I always say that everything about the island is charming but the getting here."

Sally murmured an inarticulate response and wondered. Disdain of the commonality was implicit in that speech; it was contact with the herd, subjected to its stares, that Mrs. Standish detested. The machine, however she brought herself so readily to accept association on almost equal terms with a shop-girl misdeemant—out of gratitude, or sheer goodness of heart, or something less superficial?

The shadow of an intimation that something was wrong again came between Sally and the sun, but passed as swiftly as a wind-spun cloud. The valet led to a heavy, seven-seated touring-car, put their luggage in the rear, shut the door on the side the chauffeur. The machine threaded a cautious way out of the street, turned a corner, and picked up its heels in the tune of a long, silken snore, flinging out a long, road-way with no appreciable effort whatever.

A moment or two dwellings swept by like so many telegraph poles past a car-window. Then they became more widely spaced, and were succeeded by a blurred and incoherent expanse of woods, fields, parks, hedges, glimpses of lawns surfaced like a billiard-table, flashes of white facades maculated with cool blue shadows.

Then, without warning, it without a jar, the car slowed down to a safe and sane pace and swung off being between two cobble-stone pillars into a well-kept wilderness of trees that stood as a wall of privacy between the highroad and an exquisitely parked estate bordering the cliffs.

Debouching into the open, the drive swept a gracious curve round a wonderful wide lawn of living velvet and through the pillared portico of a long, low, white-walled building with many gaily awned windows into its two, wide-spread wings.

Sentinelled by somber cypresses, relieved against a sapphire sky bending to a sea of scarcely deeper shade, banking in soft, clear sunlight, the house seemed to hug the earth very intimately, to belong most indisputably, with an effect of permanence, of orderliness and dignity that brought to mind instinctively the term estate, and caused Sally to recall (with misapprehension) the fulsome frenzy of a synoptic scribbler representing of feudal aristocracies, representative houses, and encroaching tenantry.

Is there anything any sweeter and at the same time any sadder than to be the mother of a girl of sixteen or twenty, full of energy and happiness, and trying to lead her toward the full possibilities of life.

"Perhaps you wonder why I say sadder."

"I was talking the other day with a neighbor of mine. We spoke of mistakes. She is the mother of a girl of eighteen. 'I have made a great many unnecessary mistakes in my life,' she said, 'and sometimes I have been very unhappy over them. But nothing in the world ever made me half so unhappy as to find out that my daughter can't profit by them. She says that every one must learn by their own experiences. She doesn't know what she is saying and yet I am afraid it is true.'

And never to be listened to. Another mother who has two daughters, one just entering her teens, and another just passing out of them, was present. 'It certainly is,' she affirmed vigorously. Good Night

CHEEKETA, THE LAZY FAIRY
 Once upon a time, long, long ago, there lived a little fairy, who was very lazy. She always had to be told several times before she would do as she was asked. She never liked to work, so her room was always untidy. She was so slow about doing things that her sisters would finish their work and be at play while she was still at her tasks.

One day Mother Fairy became discouraged and sought Forest Witch to ask her advice. "Cheeketa's so lazy and slow," said Mother. "We need your help."

"Send her to drink the dew from the first flower that opens in the early morning. Getting up early is the first step toward curing laziness," replied Forest Witch.

So the very next morning Cheeketa was awakened long before the sun was up and was sent into the garden. Just as soon as Cheeketa was out of sight of her mother's house she lay down under a rose bush and fell asleep. She hadn't been there long when she was awakened by a voice at her side and, opening her eyes, she saw a funny wood sprite standing at her side.

"It's very wrong for you not to mind your mother when she sends you on an errand," said the sprite. "Get up and do your work."

Cheeketa turned over and drew a nose leaf up to her chin. "None of us are wild about working, but every fairy has her share and must do her duty. Your sisters hurry and get their work finished, then they have the day to themselves. But you are so slow and lazy. There's only way to cure you and that is to give a house all your own. Then you'll have to care for it," said the sprite.

"I'll run away and leave it," cried Cheeketa.

A cloud passed over the sprite's face. "The house I'm going to give you can never run away from you, for it will be attached to your back and you shall carry it wherever you go," replied the sprite, and she touched Cheeketa with her magic wand.

Instantly Cheeketa was turned into a long, gray worm. On her back was a little house that looked just like a shell.

"Go now and never return to Fairyland. You may make your own time, but you shall always carry your house on your back for punishment because you were too lazy to take care of things when you had them," said the wood sprite, and she disappeared.

Cheeketa, very unhappy, returned to her mother's house. But her mother, not recognizing her, closed the door in her face. And Cheeketa had to return to the woods, where you may see her 'most any time with her shell house still on her back. The children call her a snail.

LADY MAUD CAVENDISH

It is over a year since the call came from the British high command for specialists and more than from any other part of the empire has been answered by the Dominion. When Lieut. General Turner, as Canadian commander in England, turned his attention to the formation of these expert battalions which are so necessary to the modern commander as are the ordinary infantry and artillery he made no mistake in his choice, even taking good fighting officers, who had won fame at railway construction from their units in the front line. There was grumbling at first but now there are no grumblers but happy-to-be-in-it officers and men.
