The New Song of the Shirt.

(With apologies to Thomas Hood.)
With hearts that are anxious and sad,
Though fingers and brains are alert,
While we wait for news from the battle's front,
We sing the "Song of the Shirt":
Head, and gullet and brain,
Seam and gullet and hand;
For each shirt we make for a hero's sake
Must be made with a loving hand.
Knit, knit, knit!
At sock, and helmet and belt;
That the piercing wind, and the winter's cold,
By "Tommy" may not be felt.
And it's oh! that the battle were o'er!
Oh that the fight were done!
But the strife may be fierce and long, perhaps,
Before the victory's won.

Who Will Repay?

By REV. J. W. O'NEILL.
They huddled together a forlorn little group on the quay at Oatland waiting for the dawn and for the steamer that was to take them to the haven of heaven across the North Sea—England, whose doors like the gate of Heaven, are not shut at all by night or day to the call of the needy and the oppressed.

There was Aunt Martha, Madam Saliste from Roulers, where the murderous fire was booming, Clare, Yvonne, Marie, Berbe and little Leon, also Auguste, tall and shadowy, whose health did not permit him to enlist in the army; but where was Mathilde?

No one spoke her name or dared to ask, for Mathilde was the flower of the flock and had been last seen standing in the doorway of their house in the village looking defiance at the approaching foe. Where was Mathilde? God in Heaven alone knew, but they knew what had happened to maidens in other villages. Were the stories not seared upon their brain and heart?

All night they had huddled together in the bitter cold, the chill wet mist clinging to them as if it would find hide from dangers unknown. A little, stumpy stranger came to them at moments when they could dawn found them alert, wide-eyed, ever edging nearer to the place where the boat was lying, waiting for the signal to set sail for England.

The last boat and after that only God knew! And the boom of the guns was coming nearer. A red streak across the sea heralded the dawn, which stole over the waiting earth softly, as it had done all through the centuries before this frightful carnival of blood and terror had run riot among the nations.

With the dawn came fresh crowds to swell the waiting throng, and when at last the men of the ship began to make ready for starting, the excitement and the struggle became pitiful. Who shall describe it? None dare try. Desperation lent strength to feeble women, to crying children, and the men stood back and gave them their chance.

At last, an appalling hour Madame Saliste wedged tightly in one corner of the deck counted her little brood mechanically, as she had counted them a hundred times in the last frightful days.

Clare, Yvonne, Marie, Berbe, little Leon and Auguste!

A faint smile of expressive sweetness curved her sad, proud mouth as she counted them all, none missing—but only Mathilde.

They were not her own, but she could answer in prayer now to her sister, Gabrielle, whom the war had killed, and who had left them in her care.

As the shores of Belgium receded from their view they had no sorrow but only ineffable relief. Love of country had not died in these pitiful, loyal hearts, and you who would blame them have never known the agony of unnamable fear and horror, beside which death itself would have been honey-sweet. The kindly sea, though it tossed under them was dear as the cradle of the first-born, and the deepening distance filled them with unspeakable gratitude. Madam Saliste, with her proud old head bent, gave thanks to God for so much mercy vouchsafed.

What was going to happen to them in England they did not know. A mother-heart would doubtless enlighten them there, since England is the land of all their worldly goods combined in the few personal articles which could be crated on the fingers of one hand. The chateau and the vineyards which had yielded so handsomely a sum for the maintenance of a large family in comfort were all destroyed. Madame herself had watched the collapse of the last wall of the chateau, and had bewailed in her heart her tapestries and her old Flemish glass and the silver she had not had time to hide or bring away.

But at that time she cared nothing; all that mattered was that the fair heads grouped about her knee were unscathed, all but Mathilde. Up to the grey skies of the North Sea winged a voiceless prayer that God had been merciful and taken Mathilde quickly to Himself. The long hours at last brought them to the grey shores of England where kindly hands welcomed and fed them, and after various delays and much waiting under the sky they found themselves in a train speeding towards London.

They were country people and the size of the city terrified them. In all the world it did there be anything so vast?

"Surely here, men enfants," observed Aunt Martha, "a whole world could hide."

Arriving at a great terminus they were driven on a motor car to the clearing house for the refugees. Under the kindly roof, forlorn and tortured Belgium met in one great convention of woe. As Madame Saliste looked about her and realized the vastness, the completeness of her country's devastation, she exclaimed:

"Mad Dieu, who is to repay?"

Presently a kindly quick Scotch woman, speaking excellent French and wearing the badge of the recognized worker, came to them and heard their story. Her deep grey eyes were pitiful, her wide, kind mouth quivered as Madame Saliste's voice broke on the name of Mathilde.

But none must give way too much for when there is stern work to be done as well as pitiful, the emotions must be kept under strict control.

All details were taken down in a book, and then, after consultation with others, Madame Saliste was informed that they would be passed on for a few days to a pension until a home in the country could be found for them.

"A home, mademoiselle?" said Madame Saliste, wistfully, "what kind of a home?"

"In the country people are giving or preparing houses where groups such as you can live together in some semblance of family life. We find that it is better so."

"And one will be found for us," cried Madame Saliste eagerly, "where all my children can be about me while we wait!"

"While we wait for what?" asked the worker on the spur of the moment, tempted by the significance of the English words.

"While we wait the great return, mademoiselle, and the compensation which the good God will arrange when the day comes of their just punishment to be meted out."

"God speed that day, madame," said the Scotch woman fervently, and Madame Saliste answered "Amen!"

More journeyings across London, a few inexpressible dreary days in a boarding house where not a word of French was understood, and where all, even the food, was strange and unpalatable, then another change.

Two French-speaking, bright faced English girls came one afternoon to inform Madame Saliste that the home in the country was ready and they would take them to it. Another railway journey, a short drive through the falling rain, and they drew up before a house where the windows were all slight like so many smiling eyes and from the roof of which flew the Belgian flag.

With what eagerness did Madame Saliste hurry across the threshold with her brood, followed last by tall Auguste, in whose track blue eyes dwelt great sadness. For the man who he rejected and who has to stay beside the women in war times loathed himself.

It was a little house but most complete. Kindly hands had planned it, capable hands had put it in fair order.

From nearly every house in the little town something had been brought, so that nothing might lack in that shelter for the homeless.

Into the eyes of Madame Saliste as she noted the evidence of kindly forethought and loving welcome, welled tears of unsutterable thankfulness.

Little Pierre, overjoyed, for some mysterious reason—perhaps because the child beyond all others feels a home to be an intimate necessity—suddenly threw up his hands and exclaimed, "Vive l'Angleterre!"

But when the Scotchwoman closed the door of the little home on that forlorn body of exiles, she lifted her eyes, tear-filled, to inscrutable skies, and voiced the question:

"Who will repay?"

The Need of Greater Production.

Great Britain has invested more money in this country than in any other country in the world, outside of the United States. The sum total is no less than $2,800,000,000, being equal to $4.6 for every man, woman and child.

This money has gone largely to provide railway and other facilities for the maintenance of our armed forces and twenty millions of dollars interest annually. That interest must be met. It can be met only by exporting surplus products. There is a ready market for all the farm products we can produce over and above our own requirements. A twenty per cent. increase in farm production will cover our interest payments and maintain the country's credit.

This is one answer to the question, "Why is it necessary that Canada at this particular time should increase the output of the farm?"

It is neither asked nor expected that the farmer should bear the whole burden. The railways and other organizations engaged in the transportation of products must bear their share. The financial institutions of the country must be asked to assist in financing the farmer's business as well as the manufacturer's. The farmers of almost every country in Europe enjoy the advantages of rural credit. Similar facilities are urgently needed here.

The need of supplying the farmer with information that will enable him to distribute and market his products to the best advantage, is becoming more and more urgent. The Canadian Minister of Agriculture recently put the matter in this form:

"It is not, therefore, only greater production, but better production and cheapened production, more accurate knowledge of markets and better facilities for reaching them. All these things are tied up together, and it is to these things that not only farmers but Governments, bankers and transportation men have to address themselves."

A clearer understanding of some of the hand-caps retarding production will be one of the good results that must grow out of the present campaign.

But let not the farmer stay his hand because these and other defects in the economic system have not yet been remedied. Your country needs you, and needs you now.

The loyalty and patriotism of the farmer has never been called into question. He has the opportunity before him to give expression to his patriotism by helping to keep up the food supply of Britain and her Allies.

There is a higher motive than that of the pocket merely, and it should be a stronger one.

At the same time the business aspect must be recognized. With a food shortage staring it in the face, the world is ready to absorb at good prices all we can produce.

The main object of the campaign is to make clear the situation.

There is no more reasonable body to deal with than the farmers. Lay the facts before them clearly and fully and they may be relied on to reach a correct decision.

There is no necessity for calling upon the farmer to work harder or strongest liniment in 100 years

Best For Either Man or Beast

Nothing for Family Use can Compare with It.
RUB ON NERVINE

When you have been exposed to wet and cold and your muscles are full of pain, nerves are jumping with neuralgia, then you should have ready at hand a bottle of Nervine. It rubs pain of its bones, gives relief to aching suffering, brings ease and comfort wherever used.

No care or expense has been spared to secure for Nervine the purest and best materials. It is prepared with a single aim: to restore the sick to health. This cannot be said of the preparation that an unscrupulous dealer may ask you to accept instead of Nervine, so we warn you it is the extra profit made on inferior goods that tempts the substituter. Of him beware.

Get Nervine when you ask for it, then you are sure of a remedy that will cure all aches, strains, swellings, and the pains of rheumatism, neuralgia and lumbago.

In the last hundred years no liniment has been produced that can compare with Nervine in strength, in penetrating power, or in curative ability. For nearly forty years it has been Canada's household remedy, and mothers will do well to follow the advice of Mrs. Jessie Higgins of St. E. O. O. I., who says: "Very frequently there are ailments in the family that can be cut short if Nervine is handy. When my children come in from play, with a cough or a bad cold, I rub them well with Nervine, and they are almost well at once. Nervine is fine for earache, toothache, chest colds, lumbago, stiffness rheumatism or neuralgia. In fact there is scarcely a pain or ache in man or beast it will not cure quickly."

The large 50c family size bottle is the most economical; trial size 25c. at all dealers, or the Catarthozone Co., Kingston, Canada.

Spring Impurities in the Blood.

A TONIC MEDICINE IS A NECESSITY AT THIS SEASON.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are an all year round tonic, blood builder and nerve restorer. But they are especially valuable in the spring when the system is loaded with impurities as a result of the interior life of the winter months. There is no other season when the blood is so much in need of purifying and enriching, and every dose of these Pills helps to make new, rich, red blood.

In the spring one feels weak and tired strength. In the spring the appetite is often poor—Dr. Williams' Pink Pills develop the appetite, tone the stomach and aid weak digestion. It is in the spring that poisons in the blood find an outlet in disgusting pimples, eruptions and boils—Dr. Williams' Pink Pills speedily clear the soil the elements of fertility now lost through lack of care, and production may be increased without any appreciable increase in labor. If the facts of the case indicate it, as we believe they do, then the farmer is warranted in employing more labor, provided suitable labor can be secured; he is warranted in preparing his land better, sowing his seed better, and in this manner doing what he can to meet the Empire's needs. The man who fails in his duty in the country's crisis, will regret it all his days.

German Silver.

Since the war began English dealers in electroplated ware no longer call their base metal "German silver" but nickel silver. The change is not likely to cause inconvenience, because many of the workers, workmen and distributors have long used the more accurate term. At the present time the best quality for plating is made up of sixty per cent. of copper twenty per cent. of zinc, and fifteen per cent. of nickel. Nickel is a much more expensive metal than copper, and very much more so than zinc. In his "History of Old Sheffield Plate," Mr. Frederick Badbury says that the term "German silver" came into use in 1830, when Mr. Guitike, of Berlin, brought to Sheffield the first specimen of the compound ever seen there. The alloy originated in China, where the art of compounding it has been known from time immemorial.

Signs of Kidney Trouble.

In the early stages kidney troubles are known by backache and urinary disorders. Later come droopy, stone, rheumatic pains and, perhaps, diabetes. But don't wait for these. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills will help you in a few hours. Their thorough action on the liver, kidneys and bowels will clear away the pains and aches and make you well again.

Cured Fifteen Years Ago of Piles and Eczema

By Using Dr. Chase's Ointment—Certifies That the Cure Was Permanent.

Some people have tried so many doctors and so many treatments in their search for cure for piles and eczema that they find it difficult to believe there is an actual cure.

The strong point about Dr. Chase's Ointment is that it not only brings relief promptly, but brings about actual and lasting cure.

In 1897 Mr. Ketcheson, 33 Douro street, Peterborough, Ont., wrote as follows:—"I was troubled for thirty years with itching piles and eczema. I could not sleep at night, and when I got warm the itching was terrible. Eczema covered my legs down to the knees, perfectly raw. I have tried every preparation I could hear of. Seeing Dr. Chase's Ointment advertised, I procured a box, and this ointment effected a complete cure."

On Sept. 28, 1912, Mr. Ketcheson writes as follows:—"I received a letter from you to-day, saying that you found on file a statement made by me 15 years ago. I have always given Dr. Chase's Ointment a good name since it cured me, and shall tell you how I came to use it."

"I had suffered for many years from eczema and piles, and had tried doctors and everything I could hear of in vain. Reading about Dr. Chase's Ointment, I purchased it at once, and was soon completely cured. That was fifteen years ago, so there can be no doubt of the cure being a permanent one. I have met a great many people who have been cured by Dr. Chase's Ointment."

Dr. Chase's Ointment, 85 cents a box, all dealers or Edmanston, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

It is so beautifully modulated that it reaches the high notes with ease and in the lower register is rich and true. He fairly captivated his audience, bringing forth round after round of applause. Mr. Raseby will be heard in Wolfville, Tuesday evening, March 29, 1915.'

FOR SALE.—Cheap, at once, one pneumatic tired wagon, for cash. May be seen at WOLFVILLE GARAGE.

Miss Eleanor P. Sands, contralto, has already been heard in Wolfville and interested her audience by her artistic work. She possesses equal tenor musical talent and has had the best musical training. Her work is always interesting, attractive and musically intelligent. She will be heard in solo and quartette work Tuesday evening, March 29th, at the Choral rendering of the Rose Maiden.

Personal Mention. (Contributions to this department will be gladly received.) Miss Ploey Morrison, of Halifax, has been visiting in town, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Elderkin. Mrs. Dan Smith, of Truro, spent Monday in town at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Chambers.

Miss B. K. Sutton, who has been spending the winter with her sister, Miss Bennett, at Westchester, N. Y., returned home on Thursday of last week.

Red Cross "At Home."

Wolfville has been deeply interested since Thursday, the 11th inst., when Mrs. Albert D. Elderkin was hostess at the most successful and unique tea of the season. It was a Red Cross Tea, given in honor of Mrs. Elderkin's cousin, Major H. M. Jacques, of the Hospital Medical Corps, Ottawa, who will shortly leave with Col. Farberingham for France, as D. A. D. M. S. (Director Assistant Doctor of the Medical Service).

At the approach of the house was particularly attractive. The veranda was gay with flags 'en groups' and flying from its columns, while within the house the same decorative scheme was carried out, the effect enhanced by candles and lamps with crimson shades. The hostess and her efficient corps of assistants wore the white garb and badge of the Crimson Cross. Prominent among these were the well trained girls of the 'Camp Fire' who ably assisted in all the arrangements for the day. Little Misses Laurette Benjamin and Pauline Miller were ushers. Misses Violet Black, Annie Stewart and Hilda Johnson checked the wraps.

Mrs. Elderkin was assisted in receiving her guests by Mrs. Charles S. Fitch and Mrs. W. Marshall Black. Miss Ellen Burgess, of Ottawa, and Miss Florence Morrison, of Halifax, were the home gasses. The decorative effect of the spacious dining room was wonderfully charming. The table, at which Mrs. Chambers (tea) and Mrs. Miller, relieved by Mrs. Murray (coffee) presided, was a dream of beauty, with its Red Cross symbol through the entire centre of the white hand embroidered center, under candlesticks which were topped with the daintiest crimson shades. Tall vases of golden daffodils completed the color scheme.

The ice-cream table, under the care of Mrs. Clarence Borden, was a most attractive feature. While delicious refreshments, suggestive of the underlying intent of the tea, were served by the competent, graceful and indefatigable assistants, Miss Gertrude Borden, at intervals, rendered in a most excellent style suitable selections of music. But behind all this was the patriotic idea of the hostess for furthering the Red Cross movement. The invitations, about two hundred and seventy in number, daintily decorated with the Red Cross, contained a request that the guests, who represented Wolfville and vicinities adjoining, would each furnish five tested receipts with signature, about 800 of which were taken at the door towards furnishing a part of the subject matter of a Red Cross Cook Book.

Arrangements towards this end are already in a formative stage of which the public will be informed later. The guests as a whole were most enthusiastic and in full sympathy with the scheme and about one hundred copies of the proposed cook book were engaged on the spot. Each guest was asked to consider herself a committee of one to further and promote the success of 'The Red Cross Cook Book for Kings County.'

Vesper Service.

The following musical selections will be rendered at the vesper service in the Baptist church Sunday evening, March 21st, at 7 p. m., with Mrs. Richmond director and Miss Rockwell organist: 'Hark, Hark, my Soul—Shelley; Misses Spidell, Nelly and Chloir. Father, in Thy Mysterious Presence—Scott; Messrs. Manning, Welton, Misses Curry, Nelly and Chloir. The Day is Ruddy—Bartlett; with violin, Misses Sands, D. Wolfe and Chloir. Contralto Solo, Crossing the Bar—Cowley; Miss Eunice Curry. Resting Bye and Bye; Choir unaccompanied. Trio, Twilight; Misses MacLean, Curry, MacLean.

The March To The Battle Field; OR, CANADA'S MEN ON THE WAY. The above in the title given a picture that will for many years to come be a highly prized treasure. It is a photographic reproduction showing 35,000 men of Canada's first contingent breaking camp and on the march to join the Continental forces. It shows miles and miles of the white tents and the marching men. It is a most inspiring sight. The size is 20x46 inches all ready for framing. This picture is sure to be a popular souvenir of the war as far as Canada is concerned, and will be in great demand. It is owned by The Family Herald and Weekly Star, of Montreal, and a copy is being presented to all subscribers to that great national weekly newspaper. The Family Herald, Montreal, whose subscription of one dollar a year is received from this date for a limited period.

At Mr. Gerald McIlhenny the Halifax Chronicle says: 'To Mr. McIlhenny is due full credit for having crowned the success of the concert. His singing of 'Eve's Bravest Heart,' from Faust was exceptionally good. In quality of voice and excellence of dramatic interpretation this singer's work is really worth while.' The Halifax Herald says, 'Gerald McIlhenny is a wonderfully good baritone. His technique is admirable and he sings with the style of a finished vocalist.' Mr. McIlhenny will be here both Monday and Tuesday evenings, March 29 and 30, at the Music Festival in Wolfville.

Opera House.

On Monday evening, March 22nd, The Academy Players, of Halifax, will present for one performance only 'Wm. H. Crane's greatest comedy success, 'The Senator Keeps House', at the Opera House. The action of the play takes place in Washington, D. C., and tells the story of a senator working against an unknown woman who is trying to get a certain bill passed by congress. During the course of the play the woman becomes the senator's housekeeper and gradually brings him around to her way of thinking without either party knowing it. When the actual state of affairs becomes known to them, the housekeeper wants to leave but the senator has fallen in love and persuades her to remain and become his wife. Mr. Wm. H. Crane considers 'The Senator Keeps House' as a great success as 'Father and the Boys.' Some time during the performance at the Opera House next Monday evening, by special request, Mr. John Junior will render the great international song success, 'Sister Susie's Sewing Shirts for Soldiers.'

Three Boxes Cured His Rheumatism. I could not move a finger just 31, 50 to be cured of chronic rheumatism from which he had suffered for years. Just three boxes of GIN PILLS at 50c a box, completely cured him and today he has not a sign of rheumatism.

GIN PILLS FOR THE KIDNEYS. My father has been troubled with Rheumatism for a number of years, having tried all kinds of medicine without relief. He was finally advised by a friend to try GIN PILLS. He purchased a box and after taking three for a week, found that they gave him relief. He then purchased three more boxes which were the means of curing him. He is now a well man and is able to attend to his daily work. For the great change, all the credit is due to GIN PILLS. ALEX. MOORE. Every box of GIN PILLS is sold with our positive guarantee of satisfaction or money back.
