WHEN LOVE Came Too Late.

CHAPTER XXXIV.
The Summing Up.

"I call your attention, gentlemen of the jury, to the fact," he said, slowly and impressively, "that these initials have been recently made. Now, Browne, I ask you—and be careful how you answer—were those initials upon this revolver when you picked it up?"

Every soul in the court waited for the answer.

"They were, sir," said Browne.
Mr. Edgar drew a penknife from his pocket and handed it with the revolver to the jury.

"I ask you, gentlemen, to compare the engraving upon that pocketknife and the initials scratched upon the revolver. Further than that I cannot go, unless his lordship permits me to go into the dock and swear that the initials on that knife were engraved nine months ago."

Mr. Sewell rose.

"My learned friend cannot be witness and counsel at the same time."
"I am aware of that," said Mr. Edgar, boldly. "I simply place the knife beside the revolver for the jury's inspection."

While this little scene had been enacting, Olivia had leaned forward with parted lips and dilating eyes, her heart throbbing with a faint hope. Then she sank back, her hands tightly clasped in her lap.

Inch by inch, with terrible sequence, Mr. Sewell unfolded his case, and minute by minute the case for the prosecution looked darker and more unanswerable.

Faradeane stood apparently unmoved, his hand resting without a tremor upon the front of the dock, his eyes fixed upon the ground.

At last Mr. Sewell said: "This is our case, my lord."

Mr. Edgar rose, and squaring his shoulders as a man does who is facing a more than ordinarily difficult task, said:

"My lord and gentlemen of the jury: I know that I have no need to ask your indulgence. I know that I need not point out to you how terrible is the responsibility which rests upon my shoulders. With you lies the verdict, but with me lies the awful responsibility of so pleading for the life of the prisoner at the bar that no chance, however slight, shall escape my notice. I am aware that expressions of belief in the innocence or guilt of a client made by a counsel can have but little weight; but, gentlemen, I feel that I must tell you that if there should be any shortcomings in my pleading on this man's behalf, such shortcomings will not arise from any doubt of his innocence."

"I stand here to fight for his life, and if I needed any spur beyond that of a sense of duty, I should find it in the thorough belief which I entertain of his innocence, and that notwithstanding that he has, for reasons of which I am not afraid to state I am ignorant, seen fit in the first instance to plead guilty."

"Gentlemen of the jury, you have heard from the eloquent lips of the counsel for the prosecution the story of my client's life. You have heard how, in a moment of unreasoning passion, he, the bearer of a high and noble name, married an ignorant and low-born gypsy girl.

"Now, mark, gentlemen of the jury, this man who is accused of this crime. He did not—as, alas! too many men of his position have done—take advantage of the lowliness of this girl, use her as toy, and as a toy tired of throw her away; but, remembering his noble name and all that belonged to it, he married her."

"Is that consistent with the story, gentlemen, of the prosecution? But let me proceed. Having soon after this marriage discovered the character of the woman he had married, his wife; having found to his cost that he had committed a folly which must mar his life, what does he do?"

"Most men, as my learned friend truly said, would have rid themselves of what had become an unbearable burden. But Lord Clydesfold, the prisoner, does not do this. Rather than drag the honoured name of his forefathers in the mud, he elects to leave this woman, to drop the name which he had given her, and, providing for her every want—ay, and luxury—he separates from her, bargaining only that she shall leave him in peace.

"I ask you, gentlemen, is this consistent with the guilt which the prosecution lays to his charge? Under this assumed name my client seeks refuge in this secluded spot. He does not dash into a life of dissipation, he does not seek forgetfulness in a reckless course of living, but he comes here, and for months leads the life of a student and of a gentleman."

"The only notice that is bestowed upon him by his neighbors is that which is attracted by deeds of charity. It is impossible that such a man as my client should live, however much he might desire it, a life of seclusion. And though he shrank from making friends, friendships are, so to speak, thrust upon him. He is the honoured guest of the highest and the best known of the inhabitants."

"I think I shall not go too far when I say that I shall call witnesses who will speak of this man, not only with respect most deep and profound, but with affection. And this man you are asked to sentence to death for a crime of the most vulgar and sordid description."

"What is the story? That this unfortunate woman came to Lord Clydesfold's cottage on the night before her death, and demanded to see him. I shall not attempt to disprove the evidence of the servant or of Alford, who heard the deceased declare that her husband wished her death."

"But, gentlemen, I call upon you to draw a distinction between such words used by her, and such words used by him. All through this interview his manner to her was one of patient forbearance, while hers was one of furious taunting. Had Lord Clydesfold intended murdering her he would have committed the crime that night, and not have waited until she had time to go back to the village and spread the story of her marriage."

There was a buzz of excitement. Olivia's hands clasped each other more tightly.

"He goes to meet her in the Hawkwod Spinney at four o'clock the following day. He knows that on that day the marriage of a well-known and well-beloved young lady takes place at Hawkwod itself; that there will be an excitement attending such a marriage; that the whole of the village will be congregated in those very grounds; that persons will be roaming all over the place."

"And yet the prosecution asks you to believe that this man, who throughout has shown so much patient resignation, a man possessed of no ordinary intelligence—that this man, my client, whose demeanor you have an opportunity of witnessing at this moment—"

Here he raised his hand and pointed with a really splendid gesture to Faradeane's calm and dignified face.

"That this man was mad enough, fool enough, to go and meet this woman with the intention of murdering her, surrounded by a crowd, and murdering her not in a silent manner, but by shooting her. Do you think any man in his senses would have conceived so wildly and ridiculously foolish a plan?"

"Gentlemen, I have not to establish the innocence of the prisoner at the bar. It is sufficient for him if I convince you that his guilt is not certain. If I can show you that there is a doubt—a doubt of the faintest or slightest shadow—his lordship will tell you that I have the right to demand a verdict of 'not guilty,' and I say that such a doubt cannot but exist."

"It is not incumbent upon me to show how this woman met with her death. She may in a moment of passion and disappointment have committed suicide. She may have attempted to take the life of the husband who had put her from him, and, in the struggle which took place, the weapon may have been pointed toward her, and she may thus have received her death."

"These hypotheses are for your consideration. No one saw that woman

SUGGESTIONS TO SICK WOMEN

How Many Are Restored To Health.

First.—Almost every operation in our hospitals performed upon women becomes necessary through neglect of such symptoms as backache, irregular and painful periods, displacements, pain in the side, burning sensation in the stomach, bearing down pains, nervousness, dizziness and sleeplessness.

Second.—The medicine most successful in relieving female ills is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It regulates and strengthens the organism; it overcomes disease.

For forty years it has been making women strong and well, relieving backache, nervousness, ulceration and inflammation, weakness, displacements, irregularity and periodic pains. It has also proved invaluable in preparing for childbirth and the Change of Life.

Third.—The great number of unsolicited testimonials on file at the Pinkham Laboratory at Lynn, Mass., many of which are from time to time published by permission, are proof of the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, in the treatment of female ills.

Fourth.—Every ailing woman in the United States is cordially invited to write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass., for special advice. It is free, will bring you health and may save your life.

say that Lord Clydesfold's hand committed the deed. Therefore, no one on my behalf can come forward to say that she did not meet with her death in either of the ways I suggested. Gentlemen, there is a doubt, and that doubt, I venture to assert, will grow into certainty when you have heard the testimony of this man's character which I shall now produce."

CHAPTER XXXV. Olivia's Testimony.

It was an extraordinary trial, and the interest and excitement increased as it progressed. Of course, the judge and all the lawyers saw plainly that Mr. Edgar knew nothing of the true facts, and that he was fighting in the dark. And Olivia knew also—felt, rather than knew—that Mr. Faradeane had refused to tell the story of the murder to the counsel, as he had refused to tell it to every one else.

Mr. Edgar looked round.

"I call Lord Granville," he said; and Bertie, who had been standing as near the box as he could possibly get, stepped again into the witness-box.

"Now, my lord," said Mr. Edgar, boldly, "please tell us all you know of Lord Clydesfold. I ask you to reserve nothing. I have no fear of the truth."

Then Lord Bertie, with an earnestness which went to the hearts of all who heard him, spoke of his long knowledge of Faradeane; how they had been at Eton together—he the younger and the weaker, Faradeane (or Lord Clydesfold) the stronger and the protector; how, all through their lives, Faradeane had proved himself the truest of friends and the most upright, honorable, and lofty-minded of men. "Such a man as my friend Lord Clydesfold is simply incapable of murder!" he wound up, and there was a buzz of applause.

"You knew nothing of this secret marriage with the gypsy?" asked Mr. Edgar.

"Nothing," replied Lord Bertie. "Have you ever seen this revolver in Lord Clydesfold's possession?"

Bertie took it in his hand.

"Never. I do not believe it to be his. I feel sure that it is not his. It is quite unlike him to carry, or even possess a revolver. Why, you know, Cly," he said, turning quickly and reproachfully to the prisoner, "you know you have always ridiculed the practice of carrying a revolver."

"Silence!" cried the usher. "Do not address the prisoner."

Bertie crimsoned, and a faint, sad smile passed over Faradeane's face, as if he should say:

"It is all of no use, Bertie; give it up."

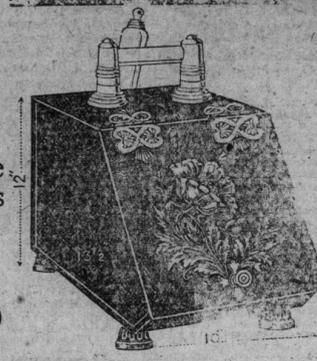

Olivia clutched her father's arm. "You hear! The revolver is not his." (To be Continued.)

Turkish Officer on His Country's Plight.

"A British soldier in Egypt has sent to friends in London the translation of a remarkable letter found on the body of a Turkish officer," says the Times. "It is signed by Mustafa Mahomet, a captain of Turkish infantry, and addressed to 'My high-born Royal wife.' The letter contains the following:

"When can it possibly end? We are bombarded by the English. No rest do we receive, and very little food, and our men are dying in hundreds from disease. Discontent is also beginning to show itself among the men. I pray Allah to bring all this to an end. I can see my lovely Constantinople in ruins, our homes burnt to the ground, and our wives and children put to the sword. Nothing but some great favor from Allah can prevent it."

"The English are very persistent, and there is no fear of death for them. They watch us like wolves in the night, and are on us like the devil. But why did we join in this wicked war? England was very partial to us in the past, and we may, therefore, expect no mercy from one who has lately injured."

Intolerable King Constantine. "King Constantine's methods may be exasperating, but they have the merit of being honest. All the same, they cannot be tolerated.

"That one man, even though he be the most influential man in the Hellenic kingdom, should be able to pin down to Salonica the armies which at this hour ought to be engaged in inflicting deserved chastisement on the enemies alike of Greece and of the Allies constitutes an unendurable situation. The Allied Governments have borne with marvellous patience the malevolent opposition which sprang into existence with their attempt to save Serbia from her enemies. The time has surely come for drastic dealing with the authors of these sinister operations. The more drastic it is the better pleased will be the peoples of all the Allied countries."

If Gladstone knew.

M. Take Jonsene says it is impossible to live with the Bulgarians upon a neighbourly footing. With regard to the Russian success at Bazardjik (Dobrich), it afforded the spectacle of Bulgarians fighting against the nation to whom they owed their deliverance from serfdom.

"History has not known such an infamy," says M. Jonsene. "In liberating Bulgaria, Russia, believed she was freeing Slavdom, but the Bulgarians have adored their Slav ancestry and proclaimed themselves Turanians. Let them, then share the fate of Turanians. The spectacle is enough to make Gladstone rise from his chair and denounce the traditional policy of England when I denounced the Turkish atrocities in Bulgaria."

If Subject to Colds Here is Good Advice.

Don't load your stomach with cough syrups. Send healing medication through the nostrils—send it into the passages that are subject to colds and Catarrh. Easy to do this with Catarrhazone, which cures a cold in ten minutes. Even to the lungs goes the healing vapor of Catarrhazone—all through the bronchial tubes, nostrils and air passages—everywhere a trace of disease remains will Catarrhazone follow. You'll not have colds, nor will you suffer from sniffles, bronchitis or throat trouble if Catarrhazone is used. Get it to-day but beware of dangerous substitutes meant to deceive you for genuine Catarrhazone. All dealers sell Catarrhazone, large size, two months treatment, costs $1.00; small size, 50c; sample size 25c.

Incandescent Gas Lighting.

Possibly the feature of incandescent gas lighting most frequently noted by casual observers is the great ease with which tasks, ordinarily arduous under artificial light may be performed under the Welsbach gas mantle. The light has a peculiarly "soft" quality, difficult to describe, but which is readily recognized by those who have had experience with the gas mantle lamp.

In its general effect upon bodily health and comfort, the use of incandescent gas lighting is decidedly favorable. The currents of air set up by the burning gas improves ventilation, tending to expel the air vitiated by respiration and draw in fresh air to replace it. Harmful or dangerous disease germs are instantly destroyed in the flame. The extent to which this effect takes place may be verified by placing a gas lamp close to a ceiling without any provision for interfering with the up-rushing air currents. The charred particles which collect immediately above the lamp are the remains of dust particles which before passing through the flames were laden with germs and microbes. Actual experiments have shown that the burning of lamps in rooms previously containing bacteria, results in absolute sterilization of the air.

Contrary to the popular notion the temperature of rooms lighted by incandescent gas lamps is seldom markedly greater than under incandescent electric light, even under unfavorable conditions of ventilation, while in rooms provided with the ventilating facilities required by the demands of hygiene, the temperature in gas-lighted rooms is frequently lower.

PARIS, Oct. 8. A lull continues on the Somme front. Today's official announcement says that the night passed quietly all along the battle line in France.

BRITISH AVIATORS TO BE TRIED BY COURT MARTIAL.
LONDON, Oct. 8. According to the Daily Express, the British Government through the American Embassy, has made representations to Germany on behalf of the two captured British aviators who are to be tried by court martial, because tracer bullets were found in their possession. The Government explained that tracer bullets are used by all belligerents as machine gun ammunition for the purpose of correcting the gunners' aim, and do not contravene the Hague convention. After saying that Great Britain told Germany that tracer bullets were found on board the Zeppelin whose crew surrendered recently in England, the Express adds it is hoped that the Government made it clear to Germany that the crew of this Zeppelin was treated in precisely the manner as our airmen.

ON THE MACEDONIAN FRONT.
PARIS, Oct. 7. French troops on the Macedonian front have joined the offensive with the British and Serbians. The war office reports the occupation by the French of the town of German on the Lake Presba. The Serbians are continuing their advance north of the Kaimakalan heights and have reached the Valley of the Kelavada tributary of the Cerna. The British troops which crossed the Struma and occupied Nevoljen have repulsed a violent counter attack of the Bulgarians.

PIEST IMPRISONED.
LONDON, Oct. 8. A New York Times despatch to the Daily Chronicle from Milan, says the Vatican communicates a despatch received from Hiere which says the celebrated Dominican Priest and Preacher Prinygens, of Ghent, was condemned by a German court martial to ten years' imprisonment with hard labor as the sequel to a patriotic discourse recently delivered in that town.

Wounded Gallipoli and France Veteran's to Arrive To-day.

As will be seen by the S. S. Kyle's passenger list the largest number of wounded soldiers to return at one time reached Port aux Basques yesterday morning, and joined the incoming express which is due about 5 p.m. to-day. The men are in charge of Captain G. Carly and Lieut. Goodyear and crossed over from Liverpool to Quebec on the S. S. Scandinavian, which left the former port on Sept. 27th.

On arrival at North Sydney the returning heroes were met by a large number of Newfoundlanders residing at the mining town who assembled at the terminus wharf to welcome the men who had done their bit. The S. S. Kyle was gallily bedecked with bunting and as she steamed out of Sydney Harbour our men who were given hearty cheers by the vast crowd responded in an equal manner. Reaching Port aux Basques they were given a like reception and at every station along the line bunting floated to the breeze. Practically all of the men took part in the big drive on July 1st, while many of them were also on active service in Gallipoli. Some are recovered so badly that they will never be fit to re-join their regiment again.

Fat Without Fear of Indigestion or Sour, Acid Stomach

Instant relief! "Pape's Diapepsin" ends your stomach trouble forever.

Wonder what upset your stomach— which portion of the food did the damage—do you? Well, don't bother. If your stomach is in a revolt; if sour, gassy and upset, and what you just ate has fermented into stubborn lumps; head dizzy and aches; belch gases and acids and eructate undigested food; breath foul, tongue coated—just take a little Pape's Diapepsin and in five minutes you wonder what became of the indigestion and distress.

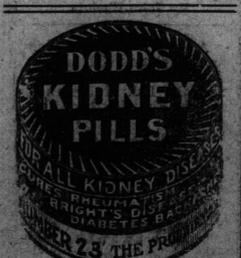

Millions of men and women to-day know that it is needless to have a bad stomach. A little Diapepsin occasionally keeps this delicate organ regulated and they eat their favorite foods without fear.

If your stomach doesn't take care of your liberal limit without rebellion; if your food is a damage instead of a help, remember the quickest, surest, most harmless relief is Pape's Diapepsin which costs only fifty cents for a large case at drug stores. It's truly wonderful—it digests food and sets things straight, so gently and easily that it is really astonishing. Please, for your sake, don't go on and on with a weak, disordered stomach; it's so unnecessary.

Nearly Every Girl Can Make Herself Pretty and Attractive.

SOME WHOLESOME TRUTHS EVERY GIRL SHOULD THINK ABOUT.

Probably you know just such a girl. Perhaps she is sixteen—good to look at, and pretty—quite interesting because she reflects the graces and charm that give promise of happiness to herself and others. But she is not strong. The color in her eyes, once so rosy, has faded away—her eyes are listless—the buoyancy of spirit and vigor she once possessed are sadly lacking. Parents, friends, this girl needs Ferrozone—needs it that her blood may be renewed—needs it to restore the nerve force that growth, study and the development of her fresh youth have exhausted. This girl will become a queen with Ferrozone—which will restore her color—bring back her old-time energy—give brightness to her eyes and vivacity to her spirits. In Ferrozone every girl finds strength—that she can do things. In Ferrozone there is endurance—that drives away morning tiredness and languor. For the girl or woman that wants to be happy, healthy, winning—who values rosy cheeks, laughing eyes and abundant good spirits, nothing can compare with Ferrozone. 50c. per box, or six for $2.50. The Torpedoing of the Stephano.

Consternation succeeded incredulity last night when it became definitely known that the Stephano, the finest ship afloat in the world, had been torpedoed near Nantucket by a German submarine. The report was almost impossible of belief, because not the slightest warning had been given of the presence of hostile submarines on this side of the Atlantic, though the exploit of the Deutschland had shown its possibility. We can now see in that adventure a significance that was too lightly regarded at the time; the full meaning of it has yet to be seen and appreciated by the United States. Fortunately, the latest report that reaches us at the time of writing is that the staunch little steamer was still afloat at 10 p.m. yesterday, and from St. John's, had been torpedoed near Nantucket by a German submarine. The report was almost impossible of belief, because not the slightest warning had been given of the presence of hostile submarines on this side of the Atlantic, though the exploit of the Deutschland had shown its possibility. We can now see in that adventure a significance that was too lightly regarded at the time; the full meaning of it has yet to be seen and appreciated by the United States. Fortunately, the latest report that reaches us at the time of writing is that the staunch little steamer was still afloat at 10 p.m. yesterday, and from St. John's, had been torpedoed near Nantucket by a German submarine.

Next to thankfulness that no lives have been lost, the predominant feeling will be one of hope that the Stephano will be saved and a loss severe both to her owners and to the country averted. It is natural that these should be the first considerations with us here, but the world outside will be affected by others of far greater importance. We can well believe the message stating that the air in New York and elsewhere along the American coast was charged with electricity. There are more chances than one that an explosion will result. We must remember, of course, that in official eyes, according to the nice theory of the matter, nothing has occurred that can be called a violation of the agreement reached between Washington and Berlin. No American ships have been sunk (though the sharp distinction against Holland and Norway must be noted); due warning seems to have been given; and no loss of life has yet been certainly reported. The submarine took the chance—in the case of the Stephano a very great one—of killing Americans, but until that chance turns against them, the Germans can apparently take it with impunity. So that, officially at least, there is no reason to look for any further straining of relations between the two countries.

But nations are not always governed altogether by the refinements of International Law, even when it has been so modified as the great controversy has modified it. Germany is playing a very bold game in bringing her piracy under the very noses of the Americans. There is a subtle audacity in the picture of the submarine dashing into an American port, getting, no doubt, important information, supplies, and assistance from its agents there, and then dashing out again to play havoc with enemy and neutral shipping, not merely trading with America but carrying American lives on board. Washington may brook this sort of thing; Americans at large will not submit to it tamely. The business cannot fail to be associated in their minds with the trip of the Deutschland, which they received with such an ovation, and they will see that they have been hoodwinked. Let one American life be lost and America will be aflame. It may not need even that spark to start the conflagration. There is not much cause for further apprehension. Such submarines as may be on this side are operating at a great distance from home, and their operations are certain to be brief. Moreover the British navy, we may be sure, is now on their track. We should not be surprised to hear something further about them that is not so much to their advantage. Meanwhile, all will unite in the hope that no lives will be lost and that the Stephano will yet reach port. Thereafter, it will be interesting to observe the demeanour of Uncle Sam.

Casualty List.

Saturday's list brought home the sad certainty that more than a score of the brave men who had been stranded as missing after the battle of July 1st had lost their lives in the serious charge. The knowledge cannot have come altogether as a shock, and those who sent them forth will bear of their death with brave resignation. It is better to know it than to continue to cherish false hopes. But this should not discourage hope for those yet unaccounted for. So huge is the scale of this war, so uncertain all but purely military information and so great the difficulties of communication, that we should take heart from the instances we hear of where hope abandoned has been revived and fulfilment. To the families of these fallen heroes sympathy deep and universal will go out and a more heartfelt sympathy be extended to those who are still torn by doubt and anxiety.

Death of Mr. Matthew Martin, Engineer.

(H. F. SHORTIS.)

I received a telegram this morning from H. F. Fitzgerald, Magistrate of Grand Falls, stating that his father-in-law, Mr. Matthew Martin, had died at Harbor Grace at 9 o'clock last night (Sunday).

Mr. Martin was born in Harbor Grace, seventy-nine years ago, and sprung from one of the most respectable, as well as pioneer families, in Conception Bay. At an early age he devoted his talents and great natural ability to scientific work, and being upright, calm and self-confident he forged straight ahead, battled steadily along the upward path until he had arrived at the summit of his profession. He was a quiet, unaffected personality of real kindness which won the affection of all. In his early years there were not many scientific workers in this country, and his scientific work as we possess to-day, as we had no such institutions as the Reid Nfld. Co.'s machine shops, and other extensive industries. Nearly sixty years ago, he became a marine engineer and inventor, and took charge of the engine of the fishing factory plant of the firm of Puntun & Munn. When required he was employed as engineer of the steamers. It was Matthew Martin who invented and patented the machine for cutting up seal fat, as well as other useful machines in connection with fishing products. He also devoted much time and attention to the manufacture of medicinal cod oil, and invented many improvements in refrigeratory processes, as well as sending frozen bait fishes to other countries.

He took the deepest interest in educational matters, and was a mathematician of a very high order. A consistent member of the Anglican Church, he was always broad-minded and tolerant towards his fellow-men upon all matters, religious, political or any other way, and his chief friends were to be counted amongst those whose views may have differed with his, but all were ready to acknowledge his sterling qualities and many dispositions. I think he was one of the founders of Lodge Harbor Grace, F. and A.M., and probably the oldest member at the time of his death. He was a most enthusiastic and lively supporter of all manly sports, and never within my remembrance, has a regatta been held on Lady Lake without Matthew Martin being either coxswain of one of the boats, or, at least, a most prominent and energetic member of the committee. These regattas were always carried on under the patronage of the Harbor Grace Volunteer Fire Brigade, but has been discontinued since the great war. For the past eight or nine years Mr. Martin held the position of light-house keeper at the Point de Beach, Harbor Grace.

He has left to mourn their sad loss a widow, five daughters, viz., Mrs. H. F. Fitzgerald (wife Magistrate Fitzgerald, Grand Falls), Mrs. Stanley Greaves, Louisville, Kentucky, U.S.A.; Mrs. John Lockyer, Bonavista; Mrs. James Cron, Harbor Grace, and Miss Belle Martin also in the old town. There are three grandsons at present serving the colors, viz., Arthur and George Fitzgerald and James Cron. Mr. Frederick Martin, Chief Engineer of the S.S. Fiona is a brother, and Mrs. George Corbin of New York is a sister of the deceased gentleman. Mr. Martin will be sorely missed, not alone by his family connections, but by the entire public of Harbor Grace and vicinity, who ever found a warm friend and wise counsellor in the veteran, who has been so lately called away from amongst them. It may be well and truly said that Matthew Martin has left all friends and not a single enemy behind him. His remains will be interred in the Church of England Cemetery in his native town, where he lived and died, tomorrow Tuesday evening.

THE SUBMARINE WARFARE.

BOSTON, To-day. German submarine warfare, brought to this side of the Atlantic on Sunday, was pursued relentlessly throughout the night, and with dawn came reports of more vessels torpedoed and sunk. The Captain of the Nantucket Lightship, off which the attacks on the passenger and freight ships were made, reported that three German submarines were operating south and southeast of Nantucket and that a total of nine vessels had been destroyed. The identity of three of this number was unknown, but ships from the American Destroyer flotilla at Newport were searching the seas for the crews that were supposed to have taken to their small boats. Rushing to give battle to the submarines three British cruisers were off Nantucket shoals at 2.40 o'clock this morning.

This was the first appearance of any warships of the British and French patrolling fleet in that vicinity since the submarines began their attacks at six o'clock yesterday morning. The passengers and crew of the steamer Stephano and the crews of the British freighters Strathdome and Westpoint, and the Dutch freighter Bloomers Dyk and the Norwegian freight steamer Chr. Knudsen, destroyed yesterday, were landed at Newport, R.I., to-day. The crew of the British freighter Kingston was missing this morning, but the men were reported to be in lifeboats 30 miles southeast of Nantucket early to-day. The submarine or submarines had not been identified, but there is no doubt in the minds of naval officers that one of the engines of destruction was the German U 53, which delivered mail for the German Ambassador, Count Bernstorff, at Newport Saturday afternoon. The belief is growing that the U 53 is only one of a flotilla of German submarines gathered for attacks on vessels of the allied nations along the Atlantic coast carrying contraband of war. Operations so far as is known have been south and southeast of Nantucket Island and from three to ten miles off the shore.

EVIDENTLY A SUBMARINE CAMPAIGN.

NEWPORT, R.I., To-day. An eyewitness' story of the torpedoing of the passenger and freight steamers by German submarines off the coast of Nantucket, was told here to-day, according to a report brought by officers of a flotilla of United States destroyers, which picked up the passengers and crew of one of the vessels destroyed. Nine merchant ships were sunk. It was pointed out that the geographical proximity of the new zone of operations to America could not in itself impair the possibility of properly conducted high seas warfare. Should the submarine flotilla develop an approved blockade outside of American ports, however, a serious issue might arise. That the attacks yesterday off Nantucket mark the opening of an organized campaign in the Western Atlantic is not denied. There are many officials who believe that at least two and possibly half a dozen more U-boats are assembled for the campaign, and that a supply ship, perhaps a submarine of the Deutschland type, also is present.

THE CHRONICLE'S COMMENTS.

LONDON, To-day. The Chronicle, an early Monday morning paper, in its comment editorially on the exploit of the German U 53, expresses the hope that the United States Government will reconsider its announced attitude toward belligerent submarines, because if Germany is allowed to wage such a war off the United States coast, we must take counter measures. Referring to peace despatches, the U boat is believed to have brought news. It adds, it is palpable that American peace intervention at this stage is not in the Allied interest. We do not require the assistance of neutrals in laying the foundation of future peace, but we should be sincerely glad in the interest of future good understanding and good feeling to see them decline to let the German submarines operate from their ports.

STORIES OF PASSENGERS.

Dr. Andrews, who is connected with the Grenfell Mission, was on the Stephano. Dr. Andrews was on his way to New York. In describing his experience, Dr. Andrews declared that the Germans gave the boat proper warning and then stood by until all of the passengers had been taken off. Capt. Ered S. Riley, connected with the Mepah touring and transportation company, of New York, was on board the Stephano and said that the submarine moved about in no apparent haste within easy sight of the destroyer Erliesen while the latter was picking up the Stephano's passengers and crew, who were adrift in four boats.

THE STEPHANO TORPEDOED.

German Submarine Believed to Be U-53 Attacked Her Last Night Near Nantucket.

Passengers and Crew Safe. Harve Among Shipping Off The American Coast.

The community was dumfounded last night when the startling news became known that the well-known and popular Red Cross passenger liner Stephano had been torpedoed by a German submarine. The first information of the occurrence was received at 9 o'clock by Hon. J. R. Bennett, Colonial Secretary, who was cabled by the New York Herald, as follows:—

"Wire passenger list steamer Stephano, Red Cross Line. Sunk by submarine."

After communicating with Hon. John Harvey, the Red Cross Line Agent, Mr. Bennett sent this reply:—

"Am sending you Stephano's Passenger List immediately. Wire full particulars of sinking ship, and if passengers and crew are safe. Rush reply."

A half an hour later Mr. Bennett again wired:—

"The following is the list of passengers, S. S. Stephano, from St. John's to New York:—Mrs. James A. E. Butler, M. Gosse, R. Driscoll, J. D. Marsh, Kain and child, M. Brian, Chas. Evans, A. Carew, J. Evans and child, H. Rowe and child, M. Gushue, Wilson, Misses Squires, H. Tremblay, D. Pelham, Anderson, Mary Boyle, J. Kane, B. Kane, Annie Hickey, Kate Lundrigan, M. Griffin, A. Likewise 29 other passengers, round-trippers, no record names here. Probably all letter American citizens.—J. R. Bennett."

The next message received by Mr. Bennett was at 11:30 p.m. and read as follows:—

"Our information is that the passengers and crew Stephano saved by a U. S. Destroyer. The vessel is sunk. Details lacking."

A message from Mr. Weir, the Colony's correspondent at Halifax, stated that the Torpedo Boat Destroyer were 33 passengers on the Stephano. Of these 69 were through passengers from St. John's Nfld. for New York and four from Halifax for New York. The fourteen passengers from Halifax were the following: Miss Sylvia Carew, Mr. Lupin, Capt. Riley, American; John Sparr, American; Miss Rilwin, British; J. E. Evans, American; J. Sancho, Spanish; F. Anqua, Spanish; E. Ferrando, Spanish; J. Johnson, Norwegian; W. J. Jeverson, American; W. E. Ellis, American; R. Fernandez, Spanish; William Biorshenk, American. The Stephano's cargo consisted principally of dry and pickled fish; her space was nearly all taken up. More than half the cargo was taken on board at St. John's, N.F., and destined to various points in the United States and a great deal of it was intended for re-shipment to Brazil and the West Indies. Miss Lupin, who was a passenger, a daughter of Frank J. Carew of the Furness Withy Staff. She is a member of the staff at the Lawrence Milling Co., and was going to New York to spend a vacation. One of the passengers from St. John's is a niece of the late Bishop Howley, Newfoundland. The list of passengers from St. John's included about 40, who left the steamer at Halifax.

THE SUBMARINE'S WORK.

BOSTON, To-day.—A submarine of the German Navy ravaged the shipping off the eastern coast of the U. S. yesterday. Four British, one Dutch and one Norwegian steamer were sent to the bottom or left helpless off the Nantucket shoals last night under the light of the Hunters moon. A destroyer flotilla of the Atlantic fleet is picking up the passengers and crews of the destroyed ships and bringing them into Newport. So far as is known there was no loss of life, though at a late hour the crew of the British steamer Kingston had not been accounted for. The submarine held up the American steamer Kanaan from New York for Genoa with steel for the Italian Government, but later on establishing its identity, allowed the American ship to proceed. The Kanaan came into Boston Har last night for her usual call here. The hostile sub. is believed to be the U-53. The steamer Strathmore, a British freighter, was torpedoed and sunk off Nantucket. The crew were taken aboard the Nantucket lightship and later removed to Newport by torpedo boat destroyers. The vessel left New York on Saturday for Bordeaux and was attacked at 5 a.m. The West Point, a British freighter, was torpedoed and sunk off Nantucket. The crew abandoned the ship after a warning shot from the submarine's gun. The steamer Strathmore, a British freighter, was torpedoed and sunk off Nantucket. As already stated there were sixty of a crew, several Newfoundlanders, namely—Chief Officer, Capt. Mitchell who was married last year to a daughter of Capt. A. Kean; 2nd Officer, Wm. James, St. John's; 2nd Officer, L. Sanson; Boatswain Philip Jackman, St. John's; Carpenter, M. Walsh, St. John's; the seamen or deck hands were J. Lamb, C. Pope, A. James and P. Walsh, of St. John's; L. Gover, M. Seaward and A. Seaward, Trinity Bay and W. Horwood, of Hr. Grace. There were 18 firemen, all sparadians.

The ship had four engineers—Chief Fernandez, and American; J. Coffee, 2nd; J. Kavanagh, 3rd and L. Barton, 4th, of St. John's. The Purser and Chief Steward F. Jones, an American, was not on board this trip, being on a holiday, and Second Steward C. Snow, of St. John's, was in charge. There were 23 waiters including 2 stewardesses.

The vessel was only 5 years old, being built in Glasgow by C. Connell & Co., Ltd., and launched in June, 1911. She was 3,449 tons gross, 2,144 net, 328 feet long, 46 feet wide and 19 feet deep; her engines were 577 h.p.

LATER.

At noon to-day Messrs. Harvey & Co., Ltd., received the following telegram from Bowring & Co., New York: "Captain Smith wires passengers and crew all saved, proceeding Newport; understand have arrived Newport, but no direct word yet."

The following messages have been received from America regarding her torpedoing and that of the other ships.

BRITISH NAVY ALERT.

All steps possible under the circumstances are being taken to deal with the situation. This message was received by the Associated Press to-night from the Commander of the British North Atlantic Station at Halifax. It was in reply to a request for information from the other ships.

NO COMPLICATIONS SO FAR.

WASHINGTON, To-day.—Bringing warfare at the very door of the U. S. with all its spectacular features, does not necessarily make a further complication with Germany coming within the limitations of International Law. That is the view of official Washington to-night on the record of one day's operations, in which none of the ships destroyed appears to have been attacked without warning or without the proper measures having been taken for the safety of those on board.

NO LIVES LOST.

NEWPORT, To-day.—So far as has been reported to the Commanding Officers of the Newport Naval district no lives were lost, a fact which is taken to signify that ample warning was given to the two hundred and fifty-six survivors, including 95 women and 10 children picked up by the U. S. torpedo boat destroyers. Three full divisions were sent racing to sea when the S. O. S. signal from the first vessel attacked, the West Point, was relayed to Newport. The survivors are expected to arrive here early this morning. The Ericsson has on board 81, among them all the women and children; the Drayton has 68, the Bonham, 38 and Jenkins, 31.

AMERICANS ON STEPHANO.

NEWPORT, To-day.—All the Americans on the Stephano, who were rescued by the destroyer Batach, were transferred last night to the destroyer Jenkins. The number of Americans on board was not stated in the radio messages received here.

DETAILS OF THE STEPHANO.

NEWPORT, To-day.—A radio message from the torpedo boat destroyer Batach at 10 o'clock last night said the steamer Stephano was still about 6 miles southeast of Nantucket shoals lightship. The destroyer reported that she was standing by, although it seemed the ship would go to the bottom. All told there

PLAYING DEAD—GREAT LOVE STORY.

There is a big feature film at the Nickel Theatre to-day—one of the most remarkable ever shown in St. John's. It is in five acts by the talented artists of the Vitagraph Co. The story is entitled "Playing Dead" and tells of a man who rather than disfigure his wife with a divorce makes out that he is dead so that she can marry her lover. It is a brilliant production. Mr. and Mrs. Drew, who are well known in comedies, are playing the leads in this beautiful social drama, and their work in it has been very favourably commented on by the Press of New York. There is a thrilling detective story to-day also entitled "A Man for All That." The comedy is entitled "Jane's Husband" and a travelogue is included in the bill as well. Wednesday "The Great Ruby" will be shown.

Each Other's Relatives.

By RUTH CAMERON.

"He takes everything that my people do for granted," a young wife said to me the other day. "But if his mother does anything for me, he expects me to positively gush over it. If I don't, he says I'm ungrateful."

Whether she exaggerated or not, I don't know. Probably there was something to be said on the other side of the case. There usually is.

But I quote it for this purpose, to illustrate the antagonism which so often exists between husbands and wives on the subject of each other's relatives.

Sometimes there is open criticism and fault finding.

A Handy Weapon To Hurt With

Underbred people are quick to pick up this handy weapon when they want to hurt each other.

Nothing could be in worse taste. And nothing could leave deeper wounds.

Any one with family feeling—and any one without it is not much good—will resent having his or her family criticised even if he knows the criticisms are well founded. He may admit these things in his own heart, but he will not permit others to say them. In some fine, blind way, he feels that would be dishonorable.

Of Course Family Feeling Should Not Make One Unjust.

Of course you understand that I do not justify the husband (or wife) who permits his relatives to treat his side partner unfairly. In a case like that, he has no right to stand up for his family, but should stand with his wife, admit her wrong and demand fair treatment for her.

I am referring now to cases where one side partner tries to hurt the other by running down his family.

Sometimes people who have too much self-restraint to do this openly will do it in a more subtle way. By veiled references, by their manner of speaking of these people, by the constructions they place on their acts, they make plain their feeling of antagonism, each to the other's relatives.

Some Antagonism Is Natural.

To some degree, I suppose this antagonism has to exist. These two people came together out of different environments, with different traditions and inheritances. They love each other, but there are things they do not feel the same about and their families are the personifications of these different points of view.

But one does not need to feed and encourage this antagonism. One can overlay it with friendship and generous feelings, and one can faithfully try not to show it in any way.

"Should I ask a caller to remove her wraps when making a formal call? If so, what should I say? When should I say it, as soon as they are seated in the living room or while in the hall?" asked the young bride.

"In making a formal call, wraps are not removed. Formal calls last from fifteen to twenty minutes," answered her mother-in-law.

Twenty Good Divisions With Good Leaders,

COULD ALTER FACE OF WORLD.

London Times Military Correspondent Cannot See Where Hindenburg Will Get Troops to Improve Position of Enemy on Any Front—Russia, With Immense Reserves, Opening Way From Sofia and Constantinople — Roumania Holding and Administering Fifteen Departments Wrung From Austria-Hungary.

London, Sept. 23.—The Times military correspondent says:—

"A correspondent of a German paper says that September is likely to prove the difficult month. He seems to have hinted that events of the later autumn would place a different complexion on affairs. The German commander naturally desires to resume the initiative which dropped from his predecessor's hands with the failure at Verdun, but for the moment he is not a free agent.

"In the west there will be probably a month of good campaigning weather. Much may happen if the Anglo-French allies continue the present rate of progress. It is impracticable that Hindenburg feigns indifference in this struggle, however much his mind is set upon the east.

"We learned from the French report the other day that the German division entrained for the east had been fetched back to the Somme and was then thrown into the fight and had been badly cut up. Since then the Anglo-French advances has been considerably evident. Hindenburg in common with the whole German press, underestimated the dangers of this attack. He might have recalled other divisions for, though Germans would gladly go back to the Meuse if they dared, they do not dare, on account of the moral effect of retreat and because the coal and iron districts which they would have to evacuate are too valuable to be given up. No success gained by Hindenburg in the east would compensate the public mind for retreat in the west, nor is it an easy matter for Hindenburg to withdraw troops from the Russian and Italian fronts for operation against Roumania.

"The whole pulse of the German official mind at present is to pretend to ignore the test where it is known that victory is unattainable.

"With Russia opening a road from Sofia to Constantinople as the winter season draws on, the main Russian front probably is safe. There are immense reserves upon which to draw. Russia was never in a better position to gratify her ambition of centuries. Twenty good divisions with a good leader could now alter the face of the world. Even if the enemy's press strives to magnify the importance of the Balkan front to distract the eyes of the world from the principal theatres of war it remains true that the final decision will take place in the west."

CAMPAIGN THUNDER.

My friends, when I'm elected, the people, now dejected, will bid farewell to grief; I'll make their sorrow bubbles, to all their tears and troubles I'll bring a prompt relief. The people now are groaning; for justice they are hounding, and hone for it in vain; but when I am elected, an end may be expected to all the stress and strain. The tyrant and the spoiler now rob the humble toiler, their feet upon his neck; but when I am elected the tree will be erected on which they'll twine, by hook! Oh, men with shades and axes! they burden you with taxes—that is the tyrant's plan! But when I am elected all laws will be rejected which tax the working man. The rich men ride in motors; on foot you go, O voters, your feet all seamed with scars; but when I am elected this sin will be corrected; you'll all have choo-choo cars. Alas, my friends and neighbors, you're wearied by your labors, your strivings fail and fail; but when I am elected, a change will be detected—no man will have to work!

WALT MASON.

Two Striking Examples.

The Spectator.—Funch recently had an amusing sketch of Napoleon reviewing his soldiers' kits, and asking one of them where his Field Marshal's baton was!—a skit on the saying that in France every private carried such a baton in his kit. The Parliamentary head of the Army, the Secretary of State, for War, and so the President of the Army Council, is Mr. Lloyd George, and he is proud to be known as the son of a poor school teacher, who has raised himself by his genius to the exalted position which he now occupies. And the military head of the Army, the Chief of the Imperial General Staff, who controls the operations of our five million men all over the world, is Sir William Robertson, who was also a poor man's son and entered the Army as private soldier. If these two cases do not prove that in England we have a career open to talent, nothing will. They are no doubt exceptional cases, but then it is really the exceptional men who rise to be Secretary of War and Chief of Staff, whatever their original birth and station.

The Real Friend In a Large Bottle.

The greatest friend to sick people is the one that helps them toward health. But nearly every human friend had heretofore suggested a different means of regaining lost health due to nervousness, overwork, debility and worry. Now there are dozens of friends right here in your own town who will agree that the best friend to their health is Zoetic—the health tonic. This already famous remedy for "nerves" and their consequent ailments is a combination of glycerophosphates—the actual elements of the human body—with Cod Liver Oil and delicious tonic wine. A short two weeks of faithful trial will put you fair and square upon the path of bounding health. We know this so absolutely that if you cannot report real progress at the end of that time we will refund the purchase price. You who suffer and suffer and suffer should not delay beyond to-day. Sold by T. McMurdo & Co., Sole Distributing Agents for Newfoundland.

Your Boys and Girls.

Very frequently mothers are confronted with the problem of placing a napkin over a child's dress when the child is partaking of a meal away from home. All children resent having a napkin about their little necks in careless fashion. There is one way of holding the bib in position. This is by means of two little clasps which are attached to the ends of the strip of braid or ribbon.

It is quite likely, however, that the mother would forget to carry this device with her away from home. In such a case she must resort to the material on hand, which after all, is a very fine test for everyone. The woman who can do well with the things on hand without having to apply outside assistance is truly clever. Such distinction should be given the mother who thought of the following: She tied two knots in one corner of the napkin and tucked the knotted end into the child's dress at the neck. The knots weighted the end of the napkin so that it was bound to stay in place.

A good color scheme for a three-piece dress is ivy-leaf green garnished with gold and brown sateen embroidery.

Cochrane St. Centennial Church.

"I am the light of the world," an old and familiar passage from St. Matthew's Gospel, was the text chosen by the Rev. H. Royle for the morning service at Cochrane Centennial Church yesterday. Mr. Royle in a short and practical sermon referred to the aggressiveness of the Christian Church of to-day, there is to be no retrenchment, but a steady pressing forward until the forces of evil are conquered.
 A grand Rally Day Service was held in the Sunday School in the afternoon, 470 officers, teachers and scholars being present, also a number of parents and visitors. The subject of the service was the "Banner of the King," as published by the Sunday School Board of Toronto. The service was in charge of the Rev. Dr. Bond and the new Superintendent, Mr. Peters. Five minute addresses were delivered by the Rev. Dr. Bond, Miss Giles and Mr. H. N. Burt. Misses Bowden and Pike rendered a duet and Master Wylie a recitation. After prayer by the Pastor for King and Country that the right may triumph, the reign of Love be ushered in, the power of Hate be overthrown and the Princes of Peace be crowned King of Kings over all the world, the meeting closed by singing the National Anthem.
 A very large congregation assembled at the evening service, when the popular new pastor delivered one of his forceful and convincing sermons on, "Denial slaying a lion in the pit in time of snow." The lions of strong drink, impurity and gambling were ably dealt with. The choir rendered the anthem "Sun of my Soul," with solo by Miss Vincent. Mr. Spry presided at the piano in the absence of Mr. Kew's Organist. An impressive sermon preached by the Rev. Canon Field who choose as his subject: "Go Forward," reminding his congregation that only by following the commands of God can we attain salvation. The Lord Bishop of Newfoundland read the Lesson and Rev. J. Brinton, Spiritual Director of the Class, conducted the service. Special hymns were chosen and sung in a hearty manner.

"Good Clothes."

We all like to wear what we call "Good Clothes". Now good clothes are costly—no doubt—but they become dear if they have to be discarded practically unworn. The French Dry-Cleaning Process meets the difficulty. We can afford to buy the best and most beautiful fabrics without being extravagant, because of their quality we can rely on being able to have them restored by this process to their pristine beauty quite often enough to enable them to be eventually discarded without a lament.
