A Heavy Cost!

CHAPTER XXVI.

THE DOCTOR'S SECRET—AND MINE

IN honor of Doctor Fuller's presence, Adelaide, who has been confined to her room for a week, and who has no suspicion of the real purpose of his visit to Deepdene, comes downstairs for the evening and makes a brave effort to appear as much like her old self as possible.

The happy light has faded from her eyes, and there is a pitiful change in the outline of the pretty face and figure that strikes me with a sense of pain as I look at her. She is doing her best to hide her trouble; but it is only too plain that her grief has struck deep, that the sensitive heart is still quivering from the wound it has received. Yet she brightens a little as the doctor, relaxing his usual stoicism, draws her into a quiet little chat on general topics, with the object, I secretly believe, of leading up to something more personal presently.

"But what have you been doing to yourself?" she asks, in his brusque way, as a little errand across the room carries me to within reach of her voice. "Have you been working too hard? or have you been ill?"

"I have been ill," she replies, "so ill that at one time I thought—"

"What—what did you think?" she asks, as she comes to a sudden pause, her hands clasped listlessly in her lap, and her hollow, hopeless eyes staring dreamily before her.

"What I was going to die," she replies, as absently as if she were talking to herself.

"Nonsense! My dear Miss Kendrick, you must not give way to such morbid fancies as that! People who take to regarding their case as hopeless merely retard their own progress. You have no need to be alarmed, believe me!"

"Alarmed!" she repeats, looking up at him in surprise. "Do you think I am afraid to die? Ah, Doctor Fuller, if you could tell me, as I have heard of doctors telling their patients, that I had but a short time to live, it would not cost me a penny! I care too little for all the future can offer me to want to drag through it!"

"You feel like that because you are unhappy," he replies, a gentle compassion softening his plain, dark face. "You have had some great sorrow, I am sure! I cannot guess what it is, of course; but try to believe me when I tell you that you will get over it if you try. One after another the things we most value slip away from us, yet we learn to do without them; to take life as we find it—such a different affair, you know, from what in the first enthusiasm of youth we hope and expect. Whatever our troubles, we get used to them in time."

"Do people ever get used to misery?" she asks, with a sound in her voice that is like a stifled sob.

"We get used to everything in time," he replies. "Time is the great healer—the merciful Lethe in which many a bitter sorrow is drowned."

Try to be patient, and all will come right."

"Patient?" she repeats. "I am patient; but it is because my heart is broken! Ah, Doctor Fuller, you are very good; but you don't know—you cannot know! For some people there may be hope, but not for me! Mine is a trouble that never can come right. Pray forgive me," she adds, with a doubtful glance at her listener; "I did not mean to be so egotistical as to speak of my troubles to you."

"Never is a very long day," he replies. "I do not know the nature of your sorrow, Miss Kendrick; but try to think with the gentle poet who wrote 'Maude Muller,' that 'angels may roll the stone from its grave away.' You cannot tell—we none of us can tell what the future holds in store for us," he gravely adds.

Sharp and quick upon his words follows a loud knock at the door that startles us all; and Len, who goes to open it, comes back almost immediately with a face full of surprise and importance.

"It is Mrs. Martin, girls," he begins. "She is in a heap of trouble, poor soul! That crazy creature over there at the cottage has been and gone and cut her own throat. Nothing very alarming, I fancy; but poor Mrs. Martin is evidently frightened to death—can't stop the blood, and all that sort of thing, you know! Not knowing what else to do, she threw a shawl over her head and rushed over to us, as her nearest neighbors, to ask me to fetch a doctor for her. What a providential thing that we happen to have the desired article in the house!"

Len continues, with a glance at our guest. "I'm going to see what can be done. You will come with me, Fuller, will you not?"

"I must go with them, Lesley," Adie exclaims, her hands shaking like a leaf. "I may be able to render some service. Will you come with me?" she asks, rising from her seat with a face as colorless as marble.

"Not you, dear," I entreat, with a frightened glance at the quivering lips and poor, little, trembling hands. "I will go if you like; but the excitement will be too much for you. Only stay quietly here, dear, while I go over to the cottage with Len and the doctor and see what can be done."

"I cannot—indeed I cannot! The suspense would be a thousand times worse than any excitement!" is the reply. "I must go! I must see this woman who has robbed me of my happiness!"

I am obliged to give way. One look into the resolute white face, and I see how worse than useless either persuasion or argument must be; and three minutes later we are on our way to Ivy Cottage.

Mrs. Martin, who has gone on in advance, opens the door on our arrival, and admits us into the tiny hall, from which, opening a second door to the right, she ushers us into the parlor beyond, where a sight meets my eyes that turns me faint and sick with horror.

Stretched on the floor, with a pillow under her head, lies the wild form that has so often haunted my thoughts since that first night that we came to Deepdene.

Her long, gray hair, all dabbled in blood, strays wildly over the pillow, while the poor, thin face looks almost ghastly in the pallor of unconscious exhaustion.

A pitiful spectacle, indeed, I think, with conflicting feelings of pity and loathing, as I remember her evil history and the heavy trouble she has brought into the lives of others.

"Why, doctor, what is up?" exclaims Len, in a tone of surprise, his voice breaking sharply in upon the silence of the room. "You don't mean to say that the sight of your patient has upset you, old fellow?"

Well may he ask, for, looking up into the dark face, I behold that same

There is a little of the Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde in all of us

ABBEY'S Effer-vescent SALT

WHEN you are WELL you tackle the day's work with vim and enthusiasm—Smiling and Optimistic. If you are bogged up internally the mental reaction corresponds. You are irritable, despondent, pessimistic, INEFFICIENT.

HEALTH is a positive business asset, and Health depends on keeping the action of the bowels regular and complete. A glass of ABBEY'S each morning is the safest and most certain laxative to use. Palatable, invigorating, beneficial. Try it.

Physicians and Druggists have recommended it for years in all cases of constipation, indigestion, kidney, liver and stomach trouble.

white, stricken look of horror that came to it that night in the garden at Deepdene when the demented inmate of Ivy Cottage stood so unexpectedly before us in the moonlight.

He does not answer; but the next moment, with an evident effort to control himself, he is bending in silence over the unconscious figure on the floor, bathing away the blood and bandaging the wound in her throat, which, ghastly as it looks, is not dangerous, he tells us.

With the assistance of Len, he lifts her to the sofa, and applies restoratives, by means of which the patient is brought back to consciousness.

"She is coming to herself quite reasonably, poor dear," Mrs. Martin remarks, in a little aside to me, as her charge opens her eyes and looks from one face to another with the expression of a person whose mind is struggling back from some long, bewildering dream. "She does have intervals of rationality at times, you know, but it never lasts."

"Robert, is that you?" the patient asks at last, as her eyes encounter the stern, dark face of the doctor—stern, and hard, and pitiless as I have never seen him before. "Good heavens! What brought you here, Robert Fuller? How did you find me? What are you going to do to me?" she asks without relaxing, that shrinking, frightened stare she has fixed on him.

"Calm yourself!" is the stern reply. "You must be very quiet, or you will make yourself ill."

"Ah, yes; and that might spoil my beauty," she replies, with what looks like the ghost of a coquettish smile, the brief interval of reason evidently at an end. "You are so proud of my beauty, are you not, Robert? And then there is the ball to-night, and I must look my best," she rambles on, her mind wandering back into the past.

But it is Doctor Fuller who absorbs my thoughts and rivets my attention, as, with that stern, inscrutable face of his turning to stone, he stands there, when everything needful has been done, looking down, stern and silent, on the pitiful wreck of womanhood before him, with an expression that defies my efforts to read it.

"What do you know of Mrs. Lennox, Doctor Fuller?" I ask, with rather strutting abruptness, a little later this evening as we stand for a few moments alone together in the lamp-lit parlor at Deepdene. "What is she to you?" I add, determined, if possible, to penetrate to the heart of this mysterious connection of his with Ernest Warden's mad wife.

"To me!" he repeats, the dark eyes flashing down at me with a start of surprise. "How do you know that she is anything to me?"

"I am sure of it!" I persist, my curiosity getting the better of my politeness. "She recognized you, and called you by name."

"Yes," he replies, as, with his back to the fern-filled fireplace, he draws himself up so far above me that I can hardly see his face; "but what do you

Fashion Plates

The Home Dressmaker should keep a Catalogue Scrap Book of our Patterns Cut. These will be found very useful to refer to from time to time.

A POPULAR MODEL

2331—Good for gingham, chambray, seersucker, linen, linene, khaki, percale and lawn. The fronts are reversible, a practical feature. The dress may have the sleeve in wrist or elbow length.

The Pattern is cut in 7 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches, bust measure. Size 38 requires 7 yards of 30-inch material. The dress measures about 2 1/4 yards at the foot.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents in silver or stamps.

JUST THE RIGHT PROCK FOR THE GROWING GIRL

2567—This is a splendid model for combination of material; a serviceable style for cotton or cloth. The foundation may be of serge, gabardine or other plain fabrics, and the overblouse of plaid or checked cutting, satin or velvet. One could make those parts that are covered by the overblouse, of lining, and so save material.

The Pattern is cut in 4 sizes: 10, 12, 14, and 16 years. Size 12 will require 3 yards of 38-inch material for the foundation. The overblouse will require 2 1/4 yards.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents in silver or stamps.

CLEMENCEAU'S ENCOURAGING MESSAGE.

PARIS, Aug. 26. (Havas Agency.)—Premier Clemenceau to-day telegraphed the Presidents of the General Councils that they could rely upon the Government and Marshal Foch and his magnificent staff and the Allied Military Commanders to turn the present success of the Allied arms into a complete and decisive collapse of the enemy. The splendid victories of recent weeks, says M. Clemenceau, in which the spirit of our Allies has so magnificently rivalled ours, have definitely settled the fortunes of the war. The enemy, bewildered, deceived himself as to his own strength, and now is finding out that he underestimated us. The results achieved are the first fruits of our harvest of rewards, the highest of which will be having delivered the world from ruthless oppression and brutality.

NEW ATTACK BY BRITISH.

LONDON, Aug. 26. At three o'clock this morning our troops attacked in the Scarpe River section and are reported to have made progress. On the southern portion of the battlefield from the Somme, and by the slightly along the Somme, and by a successful operation have made progress in the direction of Maricourt. Yesterday evening the enemy launched strong counter attacks south and north of Bapaume in the neighborhood of Eaucourt, Abbeay and Fereville. Our troops met the enemy with the bayonet, inflicting heavy casualties upon him and taking prisoners. Another attack attempted by the enemy later in this latter neighborhood was also unsuccessful. Fereville is in our hands and we have made some progress beyond the villages north of this point. We have improved our position southeast of Mory and west of Croisilles. Heavy rain is falling on the battlefield.

BRITISH ADVANCE.

LONDON, Aug. 26. This morning's attack was launched between the Scarpe River and Pampou, and the heights northeast of Neuville Vitasse. In a few hours the British made an advance of two miles on a front of four miles. According to advices received here from the battlefield, Monchy le Preux, Busnappe and Vancourt, a little less than five miles southeast of Arras, have been taken in to-day's attacks. Further south the British have taken Mory and made progress to the southeast of the village.

CLEMENCEAU'S ENCOURAGING MESSAGE.

PARIS, Aug. 25.
(Havas Agency.)—Premier Clemenceau to-day telegraphed the Presidents of the General Councils that they could rely upon the Government and Marshal Foch and his magnificent staff and the Allied Military Commanders to turn the present success of the Allied arms into a complete and decisive collapse of the enemy. The splendid victories of recent weeks, says M. Clemenceau, in which the spirit of our Allies has so magnificently rivalled ours, have definitely settled the fortunes of the war. The enemy, bewildered, deceived himself as to his own strength, and now is finding out that he underestimated us. The results achieved are the first fruits of our harvest of rewards, the highest of which will be having delivered the world from ruthless oppression and brutality.

NEW ATTACK BY BRITISH.

LONDON, Aug. 25.
At three o'clock this morning our troops attacked in the Scarpe River section and are reported to have made progress. On the southern portion of the battlefield we have advanced our line slightly along the Somme, and by a successful operation have made progress in the direction of Maricourt. Yesterday evening the enemy launched a strong counter attack south and north of Bapaume in the neighborhood of Encaourt, Abbeville and Fervillat. Our troops met the enemy with the bayonet, inflicting heavy casualties upon him and taking prisoners. Another attack attempted by the enemy later in this latter neighborhood was also unsuccessful. Fervillat is in our hands and we have made some progress beyond the villages north of this point. We have improved our position southeast of Mory and west of Croiselles. Heavy rain is falling on the battlefield.

BRITISH ADVANCE.

LONDON, Aug. 25.
This morning's attack was launched between the Scarpe River and Fampoux, and the heights northeast of Neville Vitasse. In a few hours the British made an advance of two miles on a front of four miles. According to advices received here from the battlefield, Monchy le Preux, Fampoux and Vancourt, a little less than five miles southeast of Arras, have been taken in to-day's attacks. Further south the British have taken Lory and made progress to the southwest of the village.

SUBSTANTIAL VICTORY.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES IN FRANCE, Aug. 25. (By the A.P.)—The first phase of the Battle of the Aisne has put the French in solid possession of the entire south bank of the Aisne, west of the Ailette, and also the Ailette River from the Oise to west St. Mar. As the situation is today, General Mangin has won a considerable and substantial victory. There is plenty of material on the field, besides 12,000 prisoners and three hundred cannon captured. He set out first to drive the Germans from the plateau of Aindignocourt, Nempcel and Carlepoint by a violent thrust northward, then by a quick flanking about toward the east to drive them off the heights west of Ailette, thus clearing the south bank of the Oise and lending support to the Third Army's action in the hold of Thiéscourt. The programme succeeded in every form, and so rapidly that though the enemy may say that they retired unhindered, some of his staff officers were obliged to flee in scanty attire. A German General was seen running from one of the exits of a cavern at the top of Mount Choisy without boots or suspenders, just as French soldiers appeared at the other entrance.

TOWNS TAKEN.

LONDON, Aug. 25.
(By the A.P.)—Susanne and Cappy, towns north and south of the Somme, respectively, were captured to-day by Field Marshal Haig's forces, according to reports received here this evening from the British battlefield. The British also took Avennes les Bapaumes, a suburb of the town of Bapaume. British troops also reached the western outskirts of Thillois, south of Bapaume. An unconfirmed report states that Montauban and the outskirts of Longueval also were reached by the British.

COUNTER ATTACKS REPULSED.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY ON THE OISE, Aug. 25. (By the A.P.)—Violent counter attacks launched by the Germans this morning between the River Ailette at Mont Saint Mar and Juvigny north of Soissons, were completely smashed by the French. General Mangin's army is still maintaining the German communications between the River Aisne and the Soissons and Laon regions. The French troops are still stoutly holding the positions they have won in this sector, and further gains on the plateau to the eastward in the direction of Chem-

SUCCESSFUL AIR RAID.

LONDON, Aug. 25.
Chemical factories at Mannheim and the railway station at Frankfurt were successfully attacked on Sunday night by the British independent air force, according to an official communication issued to-night. All the British machines returned safely to their bases.

FRENCH OFFICIAL.

PARIS, Aug. 25.
On both banks of the Avre we carried out two local operations which enabled us to occupy Fresnoy les Roves and St. Mar, despite spirited resistance offered by the enemy. Six hundred prisoners were counted.

TRUSTING TO HINDENBURG'S LINE.

LONDON, Aug. 25.
Full apathy is giving way to intense anxiety, according to reports from Berlin, received at the Hague, says the Daily Mail correspondent in the Dutch capital. Newspaper criticism shows an urgent demand for reassurance, and several papers pin their faith to the Hindenburg line.

CASUALTIES ON "LAKE EDEN."

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25.
Six members of the crew are believed to have been drowned or killed by the torpedo explosion, and nine members of the crew and one member of the naval armed guard are still missing, as the result of the sinking of the American steamer Lake Eden in foreign waters on August 21st.

ST. LEGER CAPTURED.

LONDON, Aug. 25.
British troops to-day captured the town of St. Leger.

REPULSE COUNTER ATTACK.

WITH THE BRITISH FORCES IN FRANCE, Aug. 25.—North of Bapaume the Germans have been driven back, according to reports from the front lines. The British have reached the Bapaume-Bougnatne road and have established themselves there. The Germans to-day attempted a counter offensive on a large scale against the right wing of General Mangin's Army in the region between Vally and Soissons. The attacks utterly failed. General Mangin's army repulsed the German onslaughts everywhere, and in some instances gained ground. The French flung back the attacking troops even beyond their starting point.

CANADIAN CASUALTIES.

OTTAWA, Aug. 25.
In Saturday night's list, 722 names appear. Of this number 331 are reported killed in action, 54 died of wounds, 2 missing, believed killed, 7 missing, six gassed, 2 died of wounds, 1 prisoner of war, 25 ill, and 293 wounded.

CUNARD CO. NOT LIABLE.

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.
The Cunard Steamship Co. cannot be held liable for loss of life and property in the torpedoing of the Lantania by a German submarine, according to a decision handed down in the Admiralty Court of the United States District Court by Judge Julius W. Mayer and made public to-day.

ADVANCE CONTINUES.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, Aug. 25. (By the A.P.)—British troops are reported to have reached the outskirts of Susanne, two miles east of Bray Sur Somme, and to be near Cappy, slightly less than two miles southeast of Bray, on the south bank of the Somme. A heavy rain fell this evening.

PRISONERS REACH 20,000.

PARIS, Aug. 25.
(Havas.)—The number of prisoners taken by the British since August 21 has reached 20,000, the Petit Parisien declares. According to the Le Journal, three new divisions have been identified opposite the British. Since August 5, nearly fifty German divisions have been fighting against the British.

PRAISE FOR BRITISH.

PARIS, Aug. 25.
The Allied high command had great hopes in the British Army and the latest news from the front shows that these hopes will not be disappointed, says Therout. It declares that the British have obliged the German staff to admit defeat. Marcel Hutin, in the Echo de Paris, points out that the British advanced by local thrusts which tore large holes in the German lines. That the enemy has been unable to thwart these manoeuvres, he says, proves the tremendous superiority that the Allies have gained over the Germans. Lieut. Col. Fabry, in Out, declares that unstinted praise must be given the manner in which the British attacks have been carried out. He declares the Allied success north of the Somme is a purely British victory.

THE FIGHTING ABOUT ROYE.

PARIS, Aug. 25.
Heavy bombardments in the region of Roze and between the Oise and Ailette Rivers are reported in an official statement issued by the War Office today. The statement follows: Very vigorous artillery actions occurred during the night in the region of Roze and Beaurains, three miles to the south of Roze. The artillery fire was also heavy between the Ailette, Oise and Aisne Rivers. Two German surprise attacks in the Voeges sector were without results and we took prisoners. The night was calm on the rest of the front.

O'CONNOR'S REPLY TO UNITED STATES.

LONDON, Aug. 25.
At the request of John Dillon, Chairman of the Irish National Party, T. P. O'Connor has sent to the United States a reply to the recent address forwarded to President Wilson by Sir Edward Carson, Ulster leader and head of the War Aims Committee. Having traversed some of the historical statements contained in the Carson address, Mr. O'Connor complains that while mentioning the alleged Sinn Fein pro-German plots, Sir Edward omits to mention that he and his assistants before the war in speeches and in newspapers declared that they would prefer the rule of the German Emperor to Home Rule, and that he and his friends were supplied from Germany with 50,000 rifles which they still hold for the purpose now as before the war of making war upon an act of the British Parliament. Mr. O'Connor further charges that it was Sir Edward Carson's rebel movement which precipitated the war by creating in the German mind the miscalculation that England would be too embarrassed by the Ulster rebellion to enter the war.

APPROACHING BRAY.

LONDON, Aug. 25.
The British lines have been advanced in the direction of Maricourt, four miles northeast of Bray.

BEYOND BAPAUME.

LONDON, Aug. 25.
British troops attacked this morning in the Scarpe sector east of Arras, and good progress is being made according to an official statement issued by the War Office to-day. The British position southeast of Mory and west of Croiselles has been improved in spite of a heavy rain which is falling on the battlefield. Strong German counter attacks north and south of Bapaume have been repulsed by the British. Favreuil, a mile and a half northeast of Bapaume has been carried, and the British have advanced beyond the village, the statement says.

CZECHO-SLOVAKS.

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 25.
Czecho-Slovak and anti-Bolshevik forces have re-occupied the town of Kazan on the River Volga, says a Moscow despatch to the Weeser Zeitung of Bremen. The Bolsheviks were forced to retreat under heavy fighting. The Bolsheviks now hold positions some distance from Kazan. A Moscow telegram giving a statement issued on August 21, says that the Soviet troops had been forced to retire in the region of Prostjak in the direction of Kadisk in the Pecheng district, south of Archangel, but had successes in the Kazan district.

W. J. HERDER, Proprietor
C. T. JAMES, Editor

TUESDAY, August 27th, 1918.

The Press Censorship.

Yesterday forenoon, the Deputy Press Censor called up the Telegram, and asked us not to publish the rumors, which were then on the street, that four fishing vessels had been sunk by a submarine off St. Pierre. An item to that effect with others concerning marine matters was later sent in for publication, but having promised the Censor's assistant that we would not give publicity to any news of a nature calculated to cause alarm, the matter in question was withheld. Judge of our surprise, when the tabooed article appeared in both the Herald and the Advocate in yesterday's issues. Here is the item from the Herald, head lines omitted:

"Official information has, we understand, been received here to the effect that four fishing vessels have been sunk off St. Pierre by the German submarine U-89. Rumor has it that the crews of one or more of them have been picked up by a local sealer, inward bound and may be brought in here. Latest information to hand gives the names of the vessels as follows: 'H. Zwicker' and 'S. M. Walters', presumably of Lipenburg; 'Morris B. Adams' and 'J. J. Flaherty', supposed to be of Gloucester, Mass. The crews of all four vessels have been landed at St. Pierre."

The black type in the above is ours. The Advocate's report differs only from the Herald's in its brevity, and it is quite patent that both these papers were officially supplied with the intelligence. The Herald clearly gives this away. The Advocate is more diplomatic. There is not a newspaper in existence which does not delight in getting a "scoop" over its contemporaries, and under other circumstances we could congratulate both our editorial brethren; but we cannot consider that in the case under discussion they have made a legitimate feat. Since the Press Censorship was established, though we protested strongly against it at the time, and do so yet, we have nevertheless done everything compatible with journalistic duty to keep prohibited matter from our columns, and will continue to do so, so long as, to use an Americanism, a "square deal" is given. But if the Press Censor's Department has merely been instituted, as alleged, to muzzle candid and open criticism of the Government and its doings, we do not feel bound any longer, by courtesy or etiquette to abide by the regulations issued. A newspaper's business is, primarily, to purvey news to its readers, and so long as that news can be furnished without giving information to the enemy, the Telegram intends in future to give it. It is startlingly clear that some department of the Government issues information of news value to the papers supporting the Government, and has been doing it. Whether or not the Censor is cognizant of this we do not know. If he is, and is afraid to act officially, then the usefulness of the office (if there ever was any usefulness attached to it) ceases and the whole thing becomes a huge joke, and what is infinitely worse a huge and utterly unproductive expense on the Dominion's revenue. In other words it is a fraud and should be instantly abolished. As a matter of fact, the delinquencies of the Government papers in the publication of forbidden items has been winked at, if not encouraged, and in this connection it has been alleged that in the case of the sinking of the sealer Erik, the news of which was first and solely published by the Herald yesterday, the intelligence was supplied that paper by a prominent Government official, who, it is further alleged, called at the Herald office and communicated the contents of the despatch from St. Pierre advising the casualty, personally. If this is correct, and we have no reason to discredit it, then the Press Censor is simply a nonentity, and must do as he is told. Therefore he is not in a position to wield his authority without fear, favor or affection for himself. We had, in the beginning, confidence that the head of that department would successfully object to any invasion of his rights, by other officials, but recent happenings have demonstrated to and convinced the public, that like a good many other appointments of the Government, the institution of the Press Censor's office has been more for show than need. We utter a further protest against the narrow, prejudiced and hostile attitude in a section of the press, which has characterized the administration of the Censor, and if this useless office is continued we demand for the whole of the newspapers of Newfoundland "equal rights to all: Special privileges to none."

The Limit.
The fact that a strange person acting in a very suspicious manner, was allowed to go scot free by some one in authority on Sunday last, is an illustration of want of judgment on the part of those responsible. An unknown man is discovered, busily writing notes and descriptions of St. John's, by a military guard, who instead of arresting and placing him in close custody, accepts the torn out leaves of the book containing the written matter and permits the possible spy to take his departure without any examination other than the taking of his name and address, both of which are undoubtedly bogus. The attention of the authorities has been continuously directed to the presence of enemy agents in this city, and it is inconceivable that having caught one in the act, no arrest was made. We are taking perilous chances, in permitting strangers the freedom of St. John's and it is now up to the authorities to take proper and necessary precautions, the first of which should be the apprehension of the stranger who put it over the military on Sunday.

Submarine Gets Erik.
The s.s. Erik, Capt. Lane, has been sunk by a German submarine off St. Pierre. The crew were all St. John's men. The Erik left here Friday last for North Sydney to load coal for this port, and it is presumed that she was sunk Saturday afternoon. The ship was shelled by the submarine on her course 70 miles off Gabley Head, St. Pierre. The crew were transferred from her to the sub. and from that to the s.s. Willis C. to the land. Messages received last evening from Capt. Lane, report that some members of the crew had been wounded. The Erik was owned by Jas. Baird, Ltd., and has been engaged in coasting service during the past three months. She was constructed in Dundee in 1865, and had given good service for the last half century. She was 383 tons gross, 461 tons nett, 181.8 feet long, 29.5 feet beam, and 18.5 deep.

It is now up to some philanthropic citizen to send in the money to pay for the replicating. The Telegram undertakes to handle any amount that may be sent in, and we will publish the names of all donors.

Big Liner Ashore.

Having struck midnight Sunday, the Leyland liner Winnifredian is ashore in the vicinity of St. John's. She was on her way to a Gulf port and was without passengers or cargo. Nos. 1 and 2 holds are filled with water and No. 3 hold and the engine room are leaking. The Seal, with pumps and saving gear, left this morning for the scene of the wreck to render any aid possible, and by her Hons. M. P. Cashin and Tasker Cook went also. The Winnifredian is a steel screw steamer of 10,423 tons gross, 8,317 tons nett, 532.5 feet long, 69.3 feet beam and 33.3 feet deep. She was built in 1899 by Harland Wolf Co. at Belfast.

LABRADOR FISHERY IMPROVING.
The S. S. Sagona, Capt. Parsons, reached port at 9 o'clock last night from the Labrador mail service, having made all the ports of call north to Hopedale. The trip which was made in almost record time was exceptionally cold for this season of the year, the temperature at times dropping down to zero. The fishery as a whole shows signs of improvement and at some places hook and line men have done remarkably well.
At Macovick Capt. Tom Dunn and crew had 550 quintals ashore for one trap.
At Iron Bound Island Mr. Hierlib's two schooners and one trap account for 1,500 qts.
At Holton, Emily Harbor, White Bears, Smoky and Indian Harbour very little doing.
There is a little improvement at Wolf Island.
Indian Tackle.—Not much doing.
At Red Point Kennedy's crews did well; average catch about 350 qts.
South of Hopedale for a considerable distance hook and line men are doing well.
From Battle Harbor to Fraser's Hr. the fish are reported numerous. At St. Peter's Bay a large number of floaters have assembled, all of which stand an excellent chance of loading.

Man Dies Suddenly.

The Deputy Minister of Justice received the following message this morning:—
"Joseph Pretty, of Norris Arm, South Dildo, Trinity Bay, aged 36 years, died suddenly on a motor boat, on Saturday at Botwood, at 10:45 p.m. Deceased had been working at Norris' Arm, where I am holding an enquiry this date."

GETTING AFTER THE TURK.
AMSTERDAM, Aug. 25.
Two hostile air squadrons attacked Constantinople Wednesday night, say Turkish official statement received here to-day.

AUSTRIAN REPORT.
VIENNA, via London, Aug. 25.
The official communique from the Austrian War Office to-day says: "Our attack is progressing successfully in Albania. After a bitter struggle yesterday, Italian bridgehead positions north of Fieri were taken during the pursuit which followed our troops crossed the Semeni. We also made progress near Berat and in the Solove mountains. The bombing attacks of our airmen against Avlona are continuing."

WITHDRAWN BY COMMAND (1).
BERLIN, via London, Aug. 25.
German headquarters to-day issued the following statement: "There have been successful forward fighting southwest of Ypres, on both sides of Belleu, and north of the Labasse Canal (Lys salient). We repulsed enemy partial attacks before our lines. Between Arras and the Somme the British continued their attacks. Strong infantry forces led by tanks were thrust forward in the early morning between Neuville, Vitasse and Stieger. They collapsed with heavy losses before our lines. Our tanks standing in Stieger withdrew according to command on their fighting lines east of the village."

DENIES STATEMENT.
ARCHANGEL, Russia, Aug. 22. (By the A. P.)—An official announcement issued to-day by the Entente Allies Governments, in the northern region of Russia, denies a statement recently made by Lenin and Trotsky, the Bolshevik Premier and War Minister respectively, that Great Britain, France and the United States were enemies of Russia. The Allied military action, the announcement adds, was aimed at the expulsion of the Germans from Russian territory and the suppression by force of arms of the Brest-Litovsk Treaty.

Kerensky is Held by British Officials.

Refused Passport Because of Strong German Tendencies—Played Double Game.

London, Aug. 13.—Kerensky's sojourn in England is likely to be longer than was originally intended, owing to his inability to obtain a passport for a private and highly profitable lecturing tour in America. He has received an offer of flattering terms from an American impresario to tour the States as a lecturer.

The contract specifies a fee of $1,500 for each lecture for a series of ten, and half that amount for a further forty or fifty lectures. The amount promised includes railway and hotel expenses and the services of a secretary and translator. Though Kerensky's credit in his own country is low and he is denounced by all parties as the author of their troubles, the Daily Chronicle evidently high in America, judging from the bait thus thrown to him from the other side of the Atlantic.

Kerensky's retention here is warmly approved by those best acquainted with his record. The charges against him are thus summed up: Kerensky is of German extraction; but took the name of his step-father. Before the revolution he was a pacifist and he did not regard the Germans as enemies; at a great meeting of the Socialist Revolutionary party he advocated immediate peace without annexations; when Minister of Justice he issued a decree which destroyed the Russian armies; robbed the Allies of victory last year; is responsible for the deaths of several hundred thousand men; he arranged a welcome for Lenin, Trotsky and Kameneff, who he knew, were sent into Russia by Germany to spread Bolshevism; he was closely associated with German spies, and especially with Stamm, their head, although warned against them.

The German consul-general at Madrid said publicly that under Kerensky Russian generals were appointed by the German general staff. That is why Kerensky dismissed patriots like Korniloff and Kaledines, whom he ordered to be arrested. He abolished the law courts and after forbidding the assembling of the Duma, he abolished it. He lived in great splendour at the winter palace, from which he fled, leaving the women's "Battalion of Death" and the young cadets to be killed by the Bolsheviks, as many were.

Allied Warships Hunting for Submarines.

London, August 14.—Interesting figures and percentages concerning Allied warships engaged in anti-submarine warfare have been prepared in London. They show that in the Eastern Atlantic eighty per cent of the vessels are British, fourteen per cent American and six per cent French.

Submarines engaged in hunting submarines in the same waters are 78 per cent British, 17 per cent French, and five per cent American. Of the miscellaneous patrol craft 86 per cent are British, 11 per cent French and three per cent American. In the Mediterranean thirty-eight per cent of the destroyers are French, 27 per cent British, 28 per cent Italian, 7 per cent Japanese, and two per cent American. Of the submarines there fifty per cent are Italian, thirty-seven per cent French, and nineteen per cent British. Miscellaneous vessels are comprised of sixty-three per cent French, twenty-three per cent British, eight per cent American and four per cent Italian.

Big Bribes in War.

The biggest war in history has been responsible for some of the biggest bribes in history. Germany, for instance, gave Turkey $10,000,000 in hard cash, and the promise of huge territorial possession, for coming in on her side. Towards the end of the Russo-Japanese War it was freely asserted that General Stoessel was bribed into surrendering Port Arthur. The accusation sounds ridiculous enough on the face of it. Yet it must not be forgotten that the same thing was said about Marshal Basaine's surrender of the fortress of Metz in the war of 1870-71.

The unhappy officer was put upon his trial, and a lot of evidence bearing upon the matter was brought forward, the actual amount paid over as a bribe by the German intelligence officer who engineered the deal being put at no less a sum than £210,000. Basaine was found guilty and sentenced to death, but he was never executed, and investigations undertaken afterwards would seem to show that he was the victim of a miscarriage of justice.

There is no doubt, though, about the surrender of Scio to the Turks in 1822 for a bribe of £170,000—a colossal crime and one that was directly responsible for one of the most frightful massacres recorded in modern history.

About Bridges.

The biggest bridge in the world is the Forth Bridge. The British Navy can pass under it, and its biggest Dreadnoughts look like a pigmy in comparison. The highest bridge in the world is the wonderful single span which crosses the gorge discovered by Livingstone, into which the mighty Zambezi leaps in a fall only matched by Niagara. This light, airy-looking structure is four hundred feet above the river-bed, so that the dome of St. Paul's could comfortably stand beneath it.

The longest single span in the world is the span of Brooklyn Bridge. It is a suspension bridge, and its supporting towers are 1,600 feet apart! Imagine the strength of the cables capable of supporting such a terrific dead weight, to which add the surging traffic of two vast cities. The most ornate bridge in the world is the Tower Bridge across the Thames. In fact, it is perhaps the most beautiful bridge in existence. It is unique, too, in that it is both a suspension bridge and a suspension bridge, and is also like the ancient draw-bridge of romance. Its cost was a million and a half sterling, which is just about half the amount the Forth Bridge cost.

Old Maids in Siam

When a Siamese girl attains the age of thirty-five without marrying she is labelled and placed in a privileged class under the special care of the King, who binds himself to find a husband for her. His method is extremely simple. A prisoner in any one of the Siamese jails may gain his pardon and release by marrying one of the mature maids. Whether he is already married or not does not matter very much, for in Siam a man is not restricted to one wife.

The Bells of Belgium.

Ten thousand bells of Belgium rang their message o'er and o'er: Five hundred years they called to prayer, now silent evermore. No more will Antwerp, Bruges, and Ghent awaken by their chimas, For the bells, like men, have suffered from the Hun's unheard-of crimes.

Ten thousand bells of Belgium have been melted up for guns; Not even altar vessels have been sacred to the Huns. Their metal, mixed with base alloy, is shot at Belgian men. With the Hun's cold smother "The Belgians shall have their bells again!"

O captive bells of Belgium, it's not your fault, we know, That you pierce the heavens and take the lives of those who loved you so.

At least you're buried with the slain, In the soil you love so well; Those saved, put back when war is done, Will ring the Huns' death knell.

Our silver, gold, and copper from America's far mines We gladly offer for new bells to voice your pined shrines. When Belgium blocked the Hun advance and said, "Halt! Here you stop!" You won our hearts' devotion to the last pulsating drop.

The plots of lying Huns shall not Walloon from Fleming cleave; Your hearts are knit so firm by love the Hun cannot deceive. As metal of ten thousand bells together now has fun, So the firm of Gorman business have fused all hearts as one.

God bless the Huguenot and Catholic, and loyal Hebrew, too; King Albert, Cardinal Mercier, we bow our hearts to you. We join with Queen "Belgians are the bravest of the brave"; You gave your all for Freedom, the whole wide world to save.

The children in all the schools have learned, and on the youngest know, How every Belgian faced the Huns and stopped five million foes; Henceforth all lands and farthest isles wherever mankind dwells, Will recall the bells of Belgium, when they hear their own church bells.

Nicknames in the Navy

In these days short names are rather favored in the Navy, and when that is the case Jack is quite content to call "a spade a spade," but when it comes to long names like Queen Elizabeth it is "Lizzie" to Jack, and sometimes "Big Lizzie."

It is generally the old names that puzzle the Tar, and he still calls the Niobe the "Nobby" and probably, if it is his own ship, considers she deserves so appropriate a name; but he can hardly think "Hairy Annie" is complimentary, as there is nothing a lady dreads more than whiskers, and a girl with abundant locks is never styled "halry," yet that is Jack's way of saying Ariadne.

He probably regards "Minnie Tar" as the name of a sailor's wife, and perhaps marvels at the strange spelling Minotour; whilst Polygorates always becomes "Polly Grates." Atlanta gets one of the strangest twists, but Jack probably thinks it quite in the nature of things when they style his ship the "Hat and Lantern," although it sounds more like an inn than a warship; but "Back Shanty" sounds more like the bush or the back blocks of the Colonies than anything so classic as Bacchante.

The Andromache is always respectfully referred to as the "Andrew Mackay," a good Scotch cognomen with which nobody can quarrel, unless he be a Hun; and no doubt the Latona deserves the name of "Let Alone," as she is very difficult to handle and apt to bite. The Agamemnon is evidently a good ship for rattlers, cracker-hash and bubble and squeak not being the only fare, unless her pet name of "Eggs and Bacon" sadly betrays her commissariat. But it is surely too bad to dub a reputable ship—and a ship is always a lady—"Polly Infamous," although "Billy Ruffian" matters less, but these are the pet names of the Polyphemus and the Bellerophon, respectively.

The story goes that we owe some of our best known names to a certain First Lord—who had a kennel of fox-hounds, and when he wanted a name borrowed one from the pack. Hence we get our Blazers, Grippers, Pickles, Pinchers, Snaps, Swingers, and Ticklers.

Household Notes.

Pickled boots or lettuce leaves make a good salad. Baked beans can be prepared with suet instead of pork. In drying vegetables, be careful not to cut them too thin. A little lemon juice should be used in bananas ice cream. A mixture of dried vegetables is excellent for winter soup. The dressing is always the most important part of a salad. Grapes juice is much improved by being sweetened with honey. Peeling potatoes wastes about 35 per cent of their food value. Green mosquito netting is better than white for the baby's canopy.

Comparative Values in Footwear!

With the majority of people, price is the chief consideration in purchasing footwear. That's why there are so many uncomfortable feet in Newfoundland to-day and so many dissatisfied shoe purchasers.

For low-priced shoes cannot be good shoes—the high cost of good materials and skilled labour won't permit. Then why experiment—at the expense of your comfort—with low-priced shoes? Why not wear and be thoroughly satisfied?

Distinctive & Pleasing in Appearance, they possess that style individuality that is the hallmark of fine footwear.

INVICTUS SHOES will outwear ordinary low-priced shoes—yet they cost little more.

INVICTUS SHOES are still made from the finest grade of imported and selected leather by men expert in the art of shoemaking.

If you have not worn INVICTUS SHOES you do not know what comfort is. Let your next shoes be INVICTUS and you will be satisfied.

Service Stars and Oil Stoves.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

My neighbor dropped over the other morning with a smile on her face that plainly indicated she was pleased with something.

"Good morning," she said, "I'm so pleased because I've made a record to-day."

"In what line?" "I don't suppose you'll think it's much," she said.

"At it please me because it's a kind of a game. I've made my five gallons of oil for the oil stove. We do most of our cooking on, last ten days. Nine was my best previous record."

"What did you do—water it?"

"Eternal Vigilance is the Price of Peace."

She laughed. "No, watch it," she said. "Turn it down the minute things have come to a boil. Then I cook two things over one flame by using a colander on top of the kettle I cook my potatoes in. If I use the oven for roasting or anything like that I bake my potatoes and perhaps some onions in with the meat and a pudding at the same time. Of course it means a lot more care and oftentimes I have to jump up from the table or come in from the piazza to tend to it. I don't think I'd bother for the money saving because that isn't large (though it's something). It's mostly to save fuel that I'm doing it. Don't you think I ought to have a service star for that record?"

And of course I said I did.

The Big Reserve Army of Housewives.

Anyone who makes conservation a game to be played with courage and cheerfulness deserves a formal service star, for she is certainly serving in the big reserve army of housewives without which the war could not be won.

There are many ways in which one can play the game. It's points are won by various achievements, small in themselves, large in their national meaning. For instance, starving ones crumbracket (one woman told me that she does not have to take her emulsion more than half as often as she used to). Making a perfect record in one's observation of the government's rising vessels whose errand of mercy is so guaranteed.

that they have been able to get more sugar than they are supposed to have, but I am thankful to say they are outnumbered by the women who would as soon steal a cup of sugar as buy one that does not belong to them. Outdoing all previous records in the canning line. Being too proud to try to impress guests by a special menu that means extra food consumption. The best bred women realize that it is not good taste to set an elaborate table these days.

These are only a few ways in which the game can be played. You doubtless know of many more. Perhaps you will pass some of them along through me to help and inspire other women.

Lachute, Que., 25 Sept., 1908. Minard's Liniment Co., Limited.

Gentlemen.—Even since coming home from the Boer War I have been bothered with running fever sores on my legs. I tried many salves and liniments; also doctored continuously for the blood, but got no permanent relief, till last winter when my mother got me to try MINARD'S LINIMENT. The effect of which was almost magical. Two bottles completely cured me and I have worked every day since. Yours gratefully,

Guaranteeing Hospital Ships.

"Most of the suggestions made for countering the German practices of piracy and murder, as applied to hospital ships, have the misfortune of being impracticable," says the London Morning Post. "To convoy hospital ships would be tantamount to treating the Geneva Convention as a dead letter, and would imply, in defiance of international law, that they need protection. The plan to which there are fewest objections is that followed in the Mediterranean, where neutral officers sail on the vessels to guarantee the legitimacy of the use to which they are put. Hospital ships with such guarantors on board have been held up and searched in the Mediterranean, and on one occasion such a vessel, after two hours' detention and search, was allowed to proceed. Even U-boats commanders cannot afford to flout neutral opinion to the extent of sinking vessels whose errand of mercy is so guaranteed."

POOR OLD GERMANY.

The Turks are growing tired, they say, of Prussian bluff and bragging; the spirits of their armed array have recently become sagging. The omentals pursue their martial track and gather in the plunder, while Turkish statesmen hold their heads up, and cuss their luck like thunder. The Bulgars now begin to wish they hadn't spread their bunting; the Germans carry off the fish while they for bait are hunting. And even Austria is sore, the way the Prussians use her; the truth comes to her o'er and o'er, she's bound to be a loser. She's learned at last that Bill the Hun is but a base deceiver, and if the war be lost or won, she's due to get the cleaver. And Russia's weary of the "peace" the Teut imposed upon her; she draws her sword with elbow grease, and would retrieve her honor. When Kaiser Wilhelm reads the news, his mind is surely reeling, and with his large all-highest shoes he kicks holes through the ceiling.

FOR WEAK BACKS AND CHESTS.

Round shoulders, hollow chests, enlarged hips and abdomen, and a generally pitiable condition of the trunk of the body characterizes the majority of women. Most matrons consider that such a necessary thing as exercise is frivolous and should be indulged in only by the young. There is no age limit for healthful exercise and if adhered to with conscientious fidelity, weak backs and chests will disappear and an improvement in the organs of the trunk will be the sure result.

Prepare for these exercises by removing the corsets, wear loose clothing, and exercise for twenty minutes night and morning. Lie flat on the floor and slowly raise the body to a sitting position. The arms may be kept close at the sides or extended on a level with the shoulders. Repeat this several times as it strengthens the muscles of the abdomen, and decreases any excess of fat about the hips and abdomen.

Drooping shoulders are the result of not making the chest muscles do their work. Stand in an erect position and place the hands on the hips. Throw your shoulders back and up as far as you possibly can. This has a tendency to raise the chest and flatten the back.

Now raise the arms above the head keeping the hands as far apart as the shoulders, palms turned inward. In this position bend the trunk low to the left and then to the right. Repeat this exercise until you feel fatigued, then rest for a few moments.

The final movement consists of stretching the arms out straight at the sides on a level with the shoulders. Rotate the trunk from the waist, first to the right then to the left. This will make the muscles of the waist and back strong and supple.

Universit' of Mount Scopus.

The ceremony of planting the foundation stones of the Hebrew University on Mount Scopus, Jerusalem, occurred on July 24, according to information reaching Reuter's Limited.

Those present included, besides the members of the Zionist Commission, the allied Commander-in-Chief, the Military Governor of Jerusalem, representatives of the French and Italian military detachments in Palestine, the Mufti (expounder of the Koran and the Law) the Anglican Bishop of Jerusalem, representatives of the Armenian and Greek Churches and the Mayor and Vice-Mayor of Jerusalem. About 5,000 persons witnessed the ceremony.

The site is on the eastern slope of Mount Scopus, overlooking the valley of the Jordan and from which the Dead Sea is visible.

Dr. Weismann, head of the Zionist Commission, stated that the Hebrew University, although intended primarily for Jews, would welcome the members of every race and creed. While trying to maintain the highest scientific level, the university would at the same time be accessible to all classes, and the workman would find there the possibility of gaining an education in his leisure hours.

Messages of congratulation were received from A. H. Balfour, British Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, and from the French Government.—The Westlayan.

The "Noble" Austrian.

It is quite likely that by this time the British people have quite got over their former opinions about Austria as being the humble catspaw of Germany in all things and at heart really friendly towards Great Britain. The history of the Hapsburgs has been a bad one, and, unlike that of the brutal Hohenzollerns, has been seldom relieved by the presence in the line of a really able man. Austria has always been duplicitous itself, a duplicity that is the more contemptible that it has not been backed up by the ruthless but unblinded force that has characterized Prussia. A recent article in the "North American Review" turns the light upon a remarkable incident which gives the Austrian character to a nicety. Ever since the Congress of Berlin in 1878 Austria has cherished the design of absorbing Serbia and Macedonia and thus expanding to the Aegean Sea.

With this in view, she annexed Bosnia and Herzegovina and prevented the Serbs from obtaining any outlet to the Adriatic. A war between England and Germany was also one of her schemes for the furtherance of her plans. While the Balfour-Chamberlain Government was still in power it was generally felt that Britain was pro-Serbian in sympathy, but the assassination of King Alexander and his Queen in 1903 sent a thrill of horror and disgust throughout the Empire and largely blunted our pro-Serbian feelings. When the Liberals came into power British official feeling was largely pro-Austrian. Secretly and quietly the Austrian diplomats started to bring about trouble between Germany and England. In 1906 the opportunity apparently came. Germany was prepared for a struggle and the Austrians attempted the precipitation thereof. The German Kaiser had a great horror of regicide, being a believer in the Divine Right, and was greatly shocked at the Serbian Royal murder in 1903. It was believed that another such tragedy would start him to declare war instanter. That murder was committed by Serbian officers but was undoubtedly planned by Austrian agents. Accordingly a plan was formed to bring about the assassination of King Peter and his family, a carefully laid scheme to compromise the British Government in the matter being one of the objects of the plotters. To further their plans they set about spreading reports that the Serbs would welcome an English Prince as their ruler, a coming visit of King Edward to Montenegro being seized upon to synchronize with the murder of King Peter, so that it would look as if the tour of the British King and the tragedy had some connection with each other. The Serbian representative got wind of the affair and informed Sir Drummond Wolff and H. R. Chamberlain, then chief European correspondent of the New York Sun. King Edward was already on the sea and could not be immediately reached, so the two men went to the Kaiser himself and told the story of the Hapsburg plot. Later, King Edward was reached and he did not proceed on his Montenegrin visit, the murder was not consummated and war was deferred for eight years. Such is the story told in the "Review" article, and it bears the ear-marks of authenticity. Can Austria be trusted any more than Germany?—Acadian Recorder.

Bazaar at Topsail.

Yesterday, the weather being everything that could be desired, there was held at Topsail, at the residence of Mrs. George Carter, under the auspices of the "Caldecote Knitting and Sewing Circle" a Grand Bazaar in aid of the Red Cross Fund. The grounds were fully festooned with flags, and flowers from the garden and conservatory of Sir Edgar Bowring were to be seen in profusion, the roses being extremely beautiful. The Bazaar was well patronized, for although a children's bazaar many ladies were to be seen making purchases, a number having come from St. John's for the purpose. Ice cream and other refreshments were served and a pleasant afternoon was spent by those participating. One of the novelties was the exhibition of Sir Douglas Haig and General Pershing, also two tin cuties which produced a lot of merriment and made considerable revenue. The receipts amounted to Seventy-five dollars, which will be sent to the Treasurer of the Red Cross Fund. Messrs. Jean and Blaikie Ayre, Phyllis Renzie, Catherine Urquhart and Doris Aldred are the young ladies who managed the Bazaar and are responsible for its carrying out to so successful a conclusion.

America's New Flag.

R. L. Quiesser, of Cleveland, Ohio, and formerly captain of a machine-gun company of the 5th Ohio Infantry, is one of the proudest men in America. Soon after his country entered into the war he had a great notion and devised a flag by which it might be known that his two sons were on active service, and which might be at the same time a comfort to their mother.

This flag, now known as the Service Flag, had as its basic idea that there should be a star to represent each person serving with the colors—two stars in his own case, one for each of his sons.

The Service Flag now flies all over America. It caught on with the people, and the United States Government has officially recognized it. At the start, however, Mr. Quiesser offered the idea to the Government. They declined to adopt it. He thereupon patented the flag, and now draws large profits from its sale, though he gives half to the American Red Cross. The Service Flag has proved a big stimulus to recruiting.

Public Ownership.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—In recent issues of your paper reference has been made editorially and by correspondent "Citizen" to the fact that Messrs. Reid are open to negotiate the sale of their Electric Plant, and use the funds resulting therefrom to improve their railroad property and build tourist hotels.

The inference seems to be that the railroad does not earn sufficient to provide maintenance and new equipment to meet the growing demands, and Messrs. Reid, to carry out their contract, are obliged to raise money, and spend same in such a manner as will make the railroad self-supporting. They, therefore, select one of their UTILITIES which is supposed to have paid handsomely, hence very valuable, and suggest to the Government that they be prepared to sell.

One would have thought that such an important question would have been stantly aroused the keenest interest. Questions of minor material importance, such as "Regatta Day," "Flag Flying," "Sunday Gun," etc., have heretofore absorbed the columns of our press and engaged the public mind for weeks. Is this condition healthy? Is our horizon circumscribed by the buying and selling of merchandise? Are there no constructive citizens amongst us? or, is there some subtle underlying cause that checks an expression of opinion on a subject of such importance and public interest? I believe, Mr. Editor, the latter is the case. I remember 20 years ago in railroad construction days, the late Robert Reid, Sr., and the organization he represented, was looked upon by the least observant and foreseeing amongst us as a coming factor in the Country's development. All of latent force and enterprise. Since then we have had an apparent era of manipulation, political intrigue, and, unfortunately, retrogression, as far as Messrs. Reid's Utilities are concerned, until the people have been fed up with it and become suspicious of all deals and contracts with the Reid Nfd. Company. There is no doubt that the interests of the Country and the interests of Messrs. Reid are interdependent and at no time in our history is there more need for capable Statesmanship and efficient management in both places than now, and recently there seems to be a disposition on the part of the Messrs. Reid to get down to "brazz tacks" and do something or give it up.

Public ownership of our Electric System is certainly popular, and in line with what has been done elsewhere. Its economic practicability here is another question, but at all events, the question should not be dismissed and is well worth looking into. Messrs. Reid's ideas of value and the Government's ideas of value, may be far apart, but frankness on both sides, and a disposition to appreciate real values, may eventually result in the public interest.

We must arouse ourselves to the fact that our water powers have a REAL VALUE if developed, and in these modern times, when power is necessary and expensive, our natural water powers have great potential value.

At present Messrs. Reid are, apparently, up against it, as far as the Electric plant is concerned. Act of Parliament forbids conceding other powers, and Petty Harbour, I understand, is carrying its maximum load. Should we be content with this situation? Would it not be best to give Messrs. Reid the power, and in consideration thereof, contract with them in the Public interest, or buy out their present plant and extend it?

One thing appears obvious; that the public will not stand any lengthy panky business on the part of the Government with Messrs. Reid or any other Corporation, but will demand of our legislators something more than their own personal and political security, and will look to them not to allow opportunities to slip, and also to conserve the Public interests.

In this connection, Mr. Editor, I consider it worth while to quote from a letter which appeared in your paper of the 21st inst., by R. E. Grosnell, of the Canadian Food Control Board. Mr. Grosnell writes:—

"If this Country has had its great ups and downs as its historians tell us, it is because of the too entire dependence in the past on its one great resource, fish, so that diversification of industry to the fullest possible extent is a most important factor of success. If one thing fails, something else is bound to make good.

I have come to the conclusion after a week in the Country, that notwithstanding that 90 per cent. of the population is native born, the people of Newfoundland have not yet waked up to their own possibilities.

The greatest future of Newfoundland, as that of all of Canada will be found, is to be bound up in cold storage, and in the standardization of fish commercially, whether dried, preserved or fresh. The possibilities of improved modern methods and co-operation are simply immense.

Capitalism and labour, notwithstanding all their acute differences will yet work together for a common purpose and a common profit.

Unfortunately for St. John's, perhaps, Sydney owns the iron deposits so far developed and on account of which that City is building up a possible Pittsburg, but the iron had to be taken to the coal, or the coal to the iron. The object lesson is, however, apparent in keeping your natural resources as much as possible at home and developing them at home."

Our local Capitalists have abundant energy in the prosecution of our STAPLE the "Salt and Cod Industry," and perhaps owing to the ups and downs of that industry, have fostered a gambling and trading instinct. Can we afford to continue thus? Must we leave it to the outsider every time to develop new enterprises? The development of natural resources, and the promotion of industrial activity is engaging the attention of all nations to-day, and is only overshadowed in importance by the prosecution of the WAR itself. What are we doing? What are our returned crippled soldiers going to do? History is being made very fast these days, and unless we display ten-fold more energy, along industrial and undeveloped lines, than we are doing to-day, we will be down and out. Let us remember the economic principle: "The more we do ourselves for ourselves the better." What are we doing? We catch our fish, and that is about all. The "other fellow" grows our produce, makes our clothes, builds our ships, mines our coal, and the "other fellow" knows what we have too many politicians and commercial parasites around us, and are badly in need of men who will do something, although they may risk bankruptcy.

The Country needs more men with imagination and enterprise, like the late Sir Robert Reid who had sufficient pluck and faith to construct the railroad; like Sir Edgar Bowring who has found time to create a beautiful park whose educative effect in orderliness and sylvan beauty is beyond all question and an asset in our national life; like Mr. Gosling who has found time to study municipal matters, and lead, at all events, a crusade for City improvements.

I do not contend, Mr. Editor, that the purchase of the Electric Plant by the Government would be a good thing, or not, but I do contend that the City of some Local Interests should investigate the matter if Messrs. Reid are prepared to sell.

Yours truly,
 INDUSTRIALIST.

Cleopatra's Pearl.

Most persons know the story told of Cleopatra to illustrate her luxurious habits of living, that she dissolved in her wine a precious pearl. No one seems yet to have questioned what must have been the effect upon the drink, but scientists scoff at the possibility of such solution.

The fact is pearls are not soluble in wine. The most powerful vinegar affects them slowly and never, entirely dissolves them; for the organic matter remains behind in the shape of a spongy mass that is larger than the original pearl.

British Hall.

Mr. Geo. W. B. Ayre has purchased the property of the Newfoundland British Society. The property, which is freehold, is quite extensive, fronting on Bond Street, Edwin Street and Gower Street, and the British Square runs through it. Besides the British Hall houses on Flavin Street and on both sides of British Square are built upon the land.

THE HOME OF OUR BOYS

INTERESTING DESCRIPTION OF THE CITY TRAINING QUARTERS OF THE REGIMENT.

Yesterday afternoon, the Telegram staff had the great pleasure of being shown throughout the entire barracks at Fort St. John's, the home of our boys in St. John's. Having received a permit of entrance from Capt. Bert Tait, Camp Commander, we were admitted by an orderly to the barracks. The commanding officer of the barracks, who was not permitted to leave his quarters, called on us to see the barracks and to see the barracks and to see the barracks.

The barracks is a long, commodious one roomed, one storied building where men on light duty may stay and read or write or play games. The barracks is a long, commodious one roomed, one storied building where men on light duty may stay and read or write or play games.

YOUR CHILD

Will not suffer with sunburn or heat rash if you use Zam-Buk.

The Superintendent of S. A. Fresh Air Camp at Clarkson's, Ont., says: "We always keep a supply of Zam-Buk at our Children's Camp. We use it constantly for sunburn, insect stings and bites, as well as for cuts, bruises and sores, and believe there is nothing to equal it."

Zam-Buk is especially suitable for a child's tender skin, owing to its purity of composition. It contains absolutely none of the coarse animal fat or harsh mineral drugs found in ordinary ointments.

All dealers, 50c. box.

the barracks singly, or in groups, but all parade out together. Any men who want-home leave may have it provided no special duty prohibits it. When this occurs provision is made for special leave afterwards.

The Privates and Lance-Corporals all eat together, the Corporals and Sergeants and the Commissioned Officers eat in their own mess. The food for all men, privates and officers alike, is the same. However, anybody may purchase anything extra, or may bring in any special food.

No intoxicating drinks are served in the barracks, a fact that will commend itself to all temperance lovers. Regular men are trained in fire-drill, so that if a fire breaks out they may be able to cope with it. However, so far no fire has occurred there, for which the men can be well complimented.

The cook-house is a large one with a giant cooking range in the centre, and with gas stoves scattered around the sides. Four trained cooks are continually working in the kitchen there being two shifts of men. The food is the best and purest that can be obtained, while the menu of the barracks exceeds that of the Grenadier Guards, the crack regiment of the world.

We trust that this short account of the barracks will be of interest to our readers. In conclusion we desire to thank Capt. O'Grady for his trouble in showing us around the barracks, and we recognize that but for him our account would necessarily be much more incomplete.

The routine work of the day is as follows:—
Reveille sounds at 6 o'clock. The men then turn out and make up their beds. An orderly goes around to see that the beds are properly made up, and also sees if there are any men not turned out. If not sick, any man in bed is turned out, otherwise he is allowed to stay in while his name is noted. Later in the day a medical orderly calls around and makes a note of men still in bed. Then the Medical Officer calls around, and if he finds that any that were reported by the medical orderly are not now in bed it is known that they merely shammed sickness, and punishment is consequently meted out to them.

The Kaiser's Preachers

When men enter the ministry of the Established Church of Prussia, they must take this solemn vow:

"I will be submissive, faithful and obedient to his Royal Majesty, and his lawful successors in the government, as my most gracious King and sovereign; promote his welfare according to my ability; prevent injury and detriment to him; and particularly endeavour carefully to cultivate in the minds of the people under my care a sense of reverence and fidelity toward the King, love for the fatherland, obedience to the laws, and all those virtues which in a Christian denote a good citizen; and I will not suffer any man to teach or act in a contrary spirit."

In particular, I vow that I will not support any society or association, either at home or abroad, which might endanger the public security, and will inform his Majesty of any proposals made, either in my diocese or elsewhere, which might prove injurious to the State.

"I will preach the Word as his gracious Majesty dictates."
The blasphemy of this closing promise of the preacher's ordination vow is unique in kind and in degree. Above one's own reason and intelligence; above conscience; above the Word itself; above the Spirit who inspired that Word; above Christ who is the centre and life of that Word; the Word incarnate; above God who gave that Word to make known to the world Himself and His love; above all else in earth or Heaven, as the preacher's authority in things spiritual and eternal, is the Kaiser—"I will preach the Word as his gracious Majesty dictates."

This vow explains in some measure the marvellous things that have been published from the prayers and sermons of German pastors; denouncing the Christian virtues of kindness and charity and love, defying Germany and its people and rulers, and lauding German "rightfulness" in language that one could scarcely believe uttered by men of moral sanity.

This vow shows that such utterances do not represent the thought of these men. They are simply echoes, as in duty bound, of what "his gracious Majesty dictates."
The fact of such a vow and its keeping makes the case of Germany more hopeless than any such utterances were the free expression of the preachers' convictions, for then there would be at least spiritual independence. Men's souls would be their own, and there would be some hope of truth finding lodgment there, for however far astray men may be in their judgments, if there be intellectual life and freedom, there is hope that light and truth may at some time find entrance.

But when intellectual life is gone, when manhood is gone, when the soul is gone, and ignorant and educated alike surrender the will, the intelligence, give themselves up, not merely to bodily but to intellectual and spiritual slavery; then is the prospect dark. Then can there be no deliverance from within. The only hope of a country or people in such a case, for deliverance from a worse than Egyptian bondage, is deliverance from without, the overthrow of the power, that claims the right to dominate not only the outward life but the soul of the world.

That overthrow is coming. God speed the day.—Presbyterian Record.
"King George's Keys."
If you stand outside the Tower of London any night at 10 o'clock you will hear the echoes in the grey old fortress suddenly awakened by the blare of bugles giving the guards' salute—part of a quaint and interesting ceremony which has been carried on continuously for the past 600 years.

In the Tower itself one can almost induce oneself to believe that one has been transported back into mediaeval times. Besides waking the slumbering echoes, the bugles have set grey shadows flitting over the flag-stones and lichened walls. Traitors' Gate, enveloped in gloom—relieved here and there by little mosaics of silver as one catches glimpses of the river beyond—has its row of traitors' heads, and although they eventually turn out to be pious roosting on the spikes, still the romance of the spot remains.

Live in a Worry

invites death in a hurry.

Worry wastes nerve force at a tremendous rate. The more exhausted the greater the tendency to worry.

Then how is one to get out of this vicious circle? By building up the nervous system with the aid of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

As the nerves are strengthened you forget to worry and find yourself resting and sleeping naturally.

Then from far down the cobbled way comes the steady tramp, tramp of heavy feet, and the beams of a centuries-old lantern dance ahead of the bearer. Nearer and nearer sound the footsteps, until there comes into view a sight which causes one to rub one's eyes and exclaim, "Can this be real?"

There, framed in the low arch of Bloody Tower (where, maybe, the ghosts of the two little Princesses look sorrowfully down on the same scene) stands a quaint old-English figure. The lantern sheds its soft ray on a long gown of vivid scarlet; a silken hood of black velvet, all sprinkled with tiny flowers. And to the right and left of the figure stand why, surely they are not halberdiers? But yes, they are—halberdiers in khaki!

Who goes there? And the answer comes from his of the solemn jowl: "The Keys!"

"Whose Keys?"

"King George's Keys!"

And the sentry cries: "Pass, King George's Keys all's well!" And as the Keys pass he presents arms.

Then the scarlet-clad figure approaches the guard that is drawn up to attention at the top of the steps near by, and there follows the modern note of the guard commander: "Guard! Present—hips!"

At once the grave-faced Yeoman of the Guard sweeps off his bonnet, flowers, and all, and with solemn emphasis cries: "God—preserve—King—George!"

And from the assembled guard and the sentry away down in the shadows there comes a fervent "Amen!" while the roofs stir sleepily in the branches high overhead.—R.F.P. in "Daily Mail."

Injured in Footer Game
During last evening's footer game a free fight took place, the opponents being W. Duggan and T. Duggan, brothers, playing on opposite sides. Many kicks were exchanged, and the former came off second best. He was so badly injured that Dr. Grieve, who was among the spectators, had to attend to him. Both men were at once ordered off the field by Referee Blagden. It would be interesting to know what action the League will take.
