MISS LAURA JANE MCPHEDRAN, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John McPhedran, of the second concession of Plympton, passed peacefully to rest on Monday after a long and trying illness with tuberculosis, in her 26th year. Miss McPhedran was well known in Watford, having lived for many years with her aunt, Mrs. D. Alexander. She was educated in the Watford public and high schools, and after gaining her certificate taught school in this neighborhood for three years. She followed her chosen profession until about two years ago, when failing health compelled her to give up teaching. Miss Laura had many warm friends in Watford and vicinity who deeply sympathize with the bereaved family. The funeral was held on Wednesday afternoon from family residence, lot 30, con. 2, Plympton, to Wyoming cemetery.

It costs more than to sprinkle with water, but gives far better satis. water. It costs more than to sprinkle with water, but gives far better satisfaction, as the dust is down day and night, Sundays included. We gave our streets two applications last year and in all probability they will require two this year. I do not know the exact cost per mile; some of the councillors figured up what we oiled last year and they told up it amounted to short two wiles. up what we oiled last year and they told me it amounted to about two miles. Nearly all of this had two applications. Some of the streets were residential ones and not very wide, while others, such as the main street, were very wide. The total outlay for oil last year was a little over $900, and it does not cost very much to put it on. It helps to keep the roads in repair and gives it a hard surface. I think the probability is we will be oiling more this year than we did last year."

TWO WOMEN SAVED FROM OPERATIONS

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound-Their Own Stories Here Told.

Edmonton, Alberta, Can. — "I think it is no more than right for me to thank you for what your kind advice and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound have done for me. "When I wrote to you some time ago I was a very sick woman suffering from female troubles. I had organic inflammation and could not stand or walk any distance. At last I was confined to my bed, and the doctor said I would have to go through an operation, but this I refused to do. A friend advised Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and now, after using three bottles of it. I feel like a new woman. I most heartily recommend your medicine to all women who suffer with female troubles. I have also taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills, and think they are fine. I will never be without the medicine in the house."—Mrs. Frank Emsley, 903 Col-umbia Avenue, Edmonton, Alberta.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Six perfectly good submarines are said to be awaiting a purchaser in San Francisco. It is expressly under stood, however, that the buyer must come from a country which, for the moment at least, is not at war.

Farmers' co-operative associations will not be needed when the farmers drop party politics and vote together for their own interests, as the combines have been doing for years. It is in this way that the autocracy controls our legislation.

It pays to ground the wire fence to protect stock from lightning, actual that it would have been utterly imcording to Frank M. White, of the possible to raise armies running into University of Wisconsin.

ments the London Daily News for not by themselves have produced keeping as carefully secret as possible armies on anything approaching the the details of methods designed to scale that we now have at our dismeet the menace of the submarine ; posal. That ultimately governs the they may be more numerous and industrial situation. What the war has made clear to the least initiated in these matters is that it is essential to the future of this country to discover some more or less complete reply to the submarine—not so much to the submarine of to day, which is a grave nuisance, but not a serious peril to our sea power, as to the sub-marine. effective than is at present suspected.

as it would seem certain to become at no very distant time when its present defects of relative unseaworthiness, slow speed, and almost exclusive reliance on the torpedo for offensive action (not to mention others equally obvious) have been effectually overcome.

New York Herald :- Germany's pologists have been profuse with explanations that "kultur" does not mean culture. Events have proved their case. There is no place in "kultur" for culture, for humanity or for civilization-if civilization is what the Christian world has believed it to be. Germany's submarine warfare is a reversion to barbar Piracy in its worst days never indulged itself in such inhuman nethods as those resorted to by the German navy, acting under the instruction of the kaiser.

William Dean Howells, the novelst, has written a most satirical letter to the New York Sun, on the question of American neutrality. His final question is: "Suppose the Allies should triumph in the battle which they believe they are fighting for free men and free minds, for justice and honor among the nations for peace and good-will on earth, will not it be a good thing for us to remember that once we did our worst to embarrass them, since nothing could discourage them?"

Conan Doyle in a letter to the London Times on the subject of German barbarities towards British prisoners says that retaliation is impossible. He points out that the Germans have evidently no more understanding of chivalry than a cow has of mathematics. He suggests that the narratives of torture of prisoners be printed and distributed to the soldiers and so rouse them to fury against the Huns. He thinks that this will result in a practical advantage which the Germans will be not slow to recognize.

John Sleicher writing in Leslie's says: One mischievous boy will break up a school. One false alarm will create a panic. One hasty word will lead to a divorce. One false step will cost a life or ruin a character. One broken wheel will ditch a train. One quarrelsome worker will create a strike of 10,000 men. One undiplomatic word will provoke a war involving thousands of lives and the destruction of millions of property. One hasty act of legislation will entail untold hardships. One muckraker will bankrupt many a big business. One vote will decide an election. Let the People Think!

BATHROOM LINEN.

Elegance In Fittings Matched by Luxurious Towels and Mats. Elegance in bathroom appointments has been followed by luxury in bath-room linen. While styles do not vary much from season to season, there are novelties that may please the taste of those who are replenishing their linen.

The latest bathroom towels and the matching bath mat are of thick soft white Turkish toweling, the bath mat having on the plain linen woven edges a raised Greek fret border in the toweling. The towels have plain ends cross. ed by a Turkish weave stripe and hemstitched ends. The novelty is the inand towel, embroidered in terry stitch in contrasting color-blue or red-and from six to eight inches in size. Terry stitch resembles the loop of the Turkish toweling, and the effect is artistic 30 38 38 The monograms—usually scroll letters or old English—are, with the addi tion of a couple of little design motifs made into diamond shaped monograms, making the monogram extremely orna mental on account of their contrasting color. Where the terry stitch is not used a two inch diamond linen embroidered monogram is appliqued on to the towel, also done in colors.

28 26 28 For hand towels some prefer those having scalloped edges with a spray embroidered scroll motif in a raised pattern. The scallops are not uniform in size, three or four of them making a deep, leaflike shape, which is repeated across the towel edge from seven to ten times. The pattern of the scallops is made up of rather fine leaves and small dowers in a widening spiral shape. The toweling is of the same weave as those with the colored em-broidery, but is used in white only.

26 28 28 The wash cloths are like the pieces, and the hand toweling is of the hucka-back or diaper weave, with the ap-plied monogram, usually the same used on the household napery.

Profanity In the Early Centuries Was a Capital Offense. Relieving one's mind in a profane way used to be a costly proposition. In the ninth century Justinian punished swearing by death. By the statutes of Donald VI. and Kenneth II. the north Briton had the offending member cut out when the tongue ran riot, Philip II. of France ordered those guilty drowned in the Seine, and the council of Constantinople excommunicated any one that swore heathen

In 1551 a man could swear in Scot land for 12 pennies per cuss. The higher you were in rank the more you had to pay for the privilege of oaths. Perhaps it was figured that the common people should be given wholesale

By an act of the sixth and seventh years of the reign of William and Mary servants, day laborers, common soldiers and common sailors were fined 1 shilling a swear; others were taxed 2 shillings. The swearing schedule in the household of Henry I. was 40 shillings fine for a swear word by a duke, 20 for a lord, 10 for a squire, 3s. 4d. for a yeoman and "a page to be whipt."

The law that provided fines if swearing led Jonathan Swift to his prospectus of the "bank of swearing" during the speculative craze at the time of the south sea bubble. This bank was to have a monopoly of collecting the fines of those who swore, and Swift said: "It is said there are 2,000,000 in the kingdom (Ireland), of which 1,000,000 are swearing souls. There are an estimated 5,000 gentlemen, and every gentleman can afford to swear one oath a day, which will produce 1,825,000 oaths a year, or £91,-

In 1592 at Aberdeen the council naively told the head of the house to have a box placed for the collection of the fines imposed upon the household for swearing.-Chicago Tribune

HOW TO START A CANCER.

Some Very Common Practices It Would Be Well to Avoid.

An English scientist, interested in the attempts to conquer cancer, suggests the following methods by which a cancer may be produced: "It is not easy to produce a cancer artificially; nevertheless, if you try enough you will succeed sometimes. Encourage your patients to smoke clay pipes with the varnished ends broken off or to retain sharp edged stumps of teeth in their jaws, and you may fairly expect now and then to witness the de novo production of cancer. The same end may be attained with yet more certainty should you have it in your power to select cases for the experiment in which there already exists ome local evidence of chronic irrita tion. For instance, you may tell a patient who has a little wart or an irritable crack in his lip that he may go on smoking and amuse himself by picking off the crust whenever he has a little spare time and come to you again in six months. This is a very certain method. In another instance you may assure a man with a little pimple near the angle of the eye that it is of no consequence, not worth an operation, and advise him to apply cold cream. In a year or two's time he will probably be able to show you a very interesting example of rodent ulcer (a form of so called skin cancer). It is obvious that the Englishman who suggests these methods does not offer them in the hope that they will be followed, but quite the contrary. He might have added that although "it is not easy to produce cancer artificially," it is still less easy to cure it, artificially or otherwise. Indeed, the fight against cancer has been one of the least successful in the whole category of medical battles. It is also one of the oldest -Los Angeles Times.

Amphibious Forces.

The use of naval forces on land is, of course, by no means novel, but not every one knows that it is a direct reversal of the policy adopted in the early days of the navy. Under Cromwell's rule army officers were placed in command of war vessels, and the great Admiral Blake was a colonel in the new model army before he went to sea. Another notable soldier to be placed in command at sea was General Monk, first duke of Albemarle, who justified the transference by winning two great sea fights against the Dutch.-Dundee

India's Share in the War

During the debate on the budget in the Legislative Council of India, the vicerory, Lord Hardinge, made the gratifying announcement that all signs pointed to an unusually large surplus of wheat this year available for export. In order to prevent any interference with prices through gambling operations the Indian Government has fixed minimum prices in the dependency, and has further assumed control of the export trade, which is expected to yield a considerable margin of profit. That profit will probably be devoted to the development of agriculture and the benefit of the agricultural classes.

The conduct of the Indian troops, who have been employed not only in Europe, but in Africa, Egypt and Mesopotamia, has been everywhere excellent, and the loyalty displayed throughout the whole Indian Empire has been wonderful beyond expectation. India will certainly participate in the changes that will attend the close of the war. That these will mark another stage in the development of the imperial ideal is as certain as is the fact that it will be a movement towards greater self-government and closer co-operation. In his speech the viceroy threw out an indication that the rich region of Mesopotamia would form an admirable field for Indian colonization. Its climate is very like that of the northern Punjab, and its potentialities are very great.

If one be troubled with corns and warts, he will find in Holloway's Corn Cure an application that will entirely relieve suffering.

Get a Move on

These are the days when the lie abeds are getting the axe. In good times one is prepared to offer excuses for laziness, but to-day the least a fellow can do to hold down his job is to make a show of bustle. John D. Rockefeller was asked one evening by his eldest son, then at school, who was studying Shakespeare, what the expression meant, "There is a tide in the affairs of men which, taken at the flood, leads to fortune." "What tide, father?" asked the youth. "Tied-to-business," replied the financier without looking up from the papers he was studying. Get the right start and the race will come out all right. No man fond of his bed has ever set anything going. "How long will thou sleep, O Sluggard," should be megaphoned into your ear if you are inclined these days to take things easy in the morning. Dr. Boyd's Experiment

It Prevented a Rupture Between Man and Wife

By DWIGHT NORWOOD

"Doctor, I wish to consult you about my wife. She has acted strangely ever since our child was born." The words were spoken by Stephen Hapgood, and he was addressing Dr. Howard Boyd.

"Be seated, Mr. Hapgood, and give your wife's symptoms. We have a great many cases of women acting strangely after child birth. What form does it take in Mrs. Hapgood's

"An antagonism to me. It was a love match between us, and we have been devoted to each other ever since our marriage until this strange freak came upon her. She has taken it into her head that I am ill treating her. I am fearful lest at any day she may apply for a divorce."

"Um!" said the doctor thoughtfully. "Will you visit her?" asked Mr.

"Does she consider herself ill?" "Not in the least. She supposes herself to be in the best of health.' "In that case what reason shall I give for my visit?"

Mr. Hapgood was unable to suggest reason, and Dr. Boyd continued: would like to try in this case what I admit is an experiment. Suppose we give your wife a shock?"
"What kind of a shock?"

"It might be reported to her that you had met with an accident, had deserted her for another woman or had been killed."

"I see," replied Mr. Hapgood, musing. Then he replied: "To impose on her by pretending to be injured would not work. If I should pretend to desert her she would surely get a divorce. The only one of the ways you have mentioned of shocking her that seems to me to be practicable is for me to pretend to be dead. And even that would be difficult." "Try it."

"But suppose the shock should injure my wife physically still further?" "If she is not in her right mind the announcement will not affect her un-ess to restore her reason. If it has this effect we can disabuse her at "Very well, doctor; on your respon sibility I will make the trial," and Mr. Hapgood left the doctor's office. While this dialogue was going on another was taking place between Mrs.

Hapgood and an attorney. 'Mr. Stanley," she said, "I desire that you procure a divorce for me from my husband." "On what grounds, madam?"

"Cruelty." The attorney took a pen and propounded a series of questions as to Mr. Hapgood's cruel acts. When the catalogue was finished, he drew up a legal document which he presented to her for signature. She put her name to it without a quiver and, returning to her home, met her husband the same evening at dinner with a cold stare.

Fortune favored the plan for shocking Mrs. Hangood. Not long after her in his office he heard a newsboy crying "Extra! Big railroad accident!" and buying the paper he discovered that the trouble had occurred on the road by which he was accustomed to go to his suburban home. Stepping to a telephone, he called up Dr. Boyd, and the result of the interview was that the doctor went to the Hapgood home and announced to Mrs. Hapgood that her husband had been reported badly injured on his way home from the city.

The doctor's eyes while imparting the news were on Mrs. Hapgood's. He saw a slight quiver pass over her, but not being satisfied with it in a medical point of view pushed on, saying that he had not told her the worst. Mr. Hapgood had been killed. The lady looked at him as though she did not quite understand him.

"Your husband is dead, Mrs. Hap-good," the doctor added; "he has been killed on his way home on the train from the city."

"My husband dead?" "Yes, madam-killed in a railroad accident."

The lady seemed to be struggling with her feelings for awhile, then remarked:

"I'm sorry, but he deserved it; he treated me shamefully." The doctor, disappointed, turned away and, on returning to his home, called up Mr. Hapgood and reported that the experiment had failed. However, he suggested that Hapgood keep dark for awhile. It was possible that the desired effect might come later. Hapgood promised to abide by the suggestion and remained in hiding in the city.

A couple of days after Mr. Hapgood's supposed death his wife called again on Mr. Stanley, her attorney. She was dressed in mourning and wore a widow's cap of exuberant proportions. "Mr. Stanley," she said, "have you filed the papers in my case?" "I have not as yet, madam; in these ases we never act hastily; we hope for a reconciliation, or at least an amicable "Destroy them."

"I see you are in mourning. Has anything happened?"
"My husband has been killed in a railroad accident." "Indeed?"

"Yes. I wish your opinion as to the mount of damages I can recover." "That is a matter for compromise with the railroad company. If you cannot come to an agreement with it you more than we expect we will make it more than that. There is a loss, you know, beyond a pecuniary loss. You would value your damage in being de prived of a loving husband at how much?"

"A hundred thousand dollars is the least sum I would name. My husband was devoted to me."

"Very well. We will sue for $200,-000. If we get $20,000 it will be more than is usual in such cases."
"Twenty thousand dollars," exclaimed the lady, "for such a husband, one so good, so tender, so kind! You don't mean to tell me that I will receive no more than that!" The lawyer explained that such claims were hard to make good. There were many delays to be expected; the railroad would doubtless fight the case to the bitter end, and it was difficult to say what a judge or a jury would so. The lady was obliged to be satisfied with this explanation, but left the office declaring that the oss of her husband was irreparable. Mr. Hapgood by Dr. Boyd's advice and as a matter of precaution had hired a shadower for his wife, and within an hour after her visit to her attorney he had been advised of the fact. He visited Mr. Stanley and took him into his confidence, informing him of the device that had been practiced on his wife with a view to restoring her to health. Mr. Stanley promised to take no action in Mrs. Hapgood's case until hearing from her hu and the latter departed for Dr. Boyd's office. "Doctor," he said, "it is as I feared. My wife has been to an attorney." "For a divorce?"

"First for a divorce, but since her supposed bereavement she has been there to secure damages from the railroad company for the loss of her husband. What do you suppose she claims for me?"

"I give it up." "Two hundred thousand dollars." A faint smile passed over the doctor's features, but it disappeared at once. He was deeply interested in the case, as it pertained to his profession. "You have prevented any action, I

"I have. There is no danger of the matter getting out at present. What The doctor pondered a long while before replying, "I fear," he said, "the experiment has failed. The only hope left for us is for you to return to life. The shock did not produce the desired effect. It is barely possible that on seeing you alive and well your wife may experience a joy which will serve the purpose we hoped for in giv-ing her a sudden distress." "But"- commenced Hapgood lugubriously and stopped.

"But what?" asked the doctor. "I'm afraid that when my wife sees me alive she'll be disappointed that she must forego that $200,000 claim against the railroad company."

Hangood walked the streets for an hour pondering on the situation, then went to Mr. Stanley's office.
"Send for my wife," he said.

The lawyer took up a telephone receiver, called up Mrs. Hapgood and asked if she could conveniently come to his office. She replied that she could and would. Hapgood withdrew to an adjoining room and waited. When his wife arrived Mr. Stanley had laid two documents on a table, the one for a divorce, the other her application for damages against the railroad company. She had been in the office but a few ments when in walked her husband in perfect condition. He stood for a moment regarding her, she looking at Mm as one dazed. Going to the table on which rested the two documents, he took up one and read aloud, "And the said Stephen Hapgood has made the deponent's life intolerable;" taking up the other he read. "And the said Stephen Hapgood was a faithful, true and loving husband and contributed so far as a husband could to deponent's comfort and happiness." Looking at his wife tenderly, he said to "Tell me, sweetheart, which of these statements is true?"

Mrs. Hapgood sat like one coming out of a trance. Seeing that she was about to collapse, her husband took her in his arms, and she sobbed on Ms breast. That was the end of Dr. Boyd's ex periment. Mrs. Hapgood had returned to her former condition, and when questioned later declared that she had remembrance whatever of having visited a lawyer's office or of having signed any papers. She became, as before, a loving wife, and avowed that she had never had any cause whatever to complain of her husband's treatment.

However, since the spring was coming on her physician recommended a change of scene, and in order to get a considerable one he advised an ocean vovage. It was not too late in the season for a voyage in southern waters, and the invalid in the tropics experienced not only a sedative in the air, but in the luxurious foliage and flowers on the islands they visited.

music due? Darwin, who never rested until he could explain a thing, if it were explainable, could nevertheless no more explain why musical tones in a certain order and rhythm afford pleasure than we can account for the pleasantness of certain odors and tastes. "We know that sounds more or less melodious are produced during the season of courtship by many in-sects, spiders, fishes, amphibians and

After all, says the Journal of the American Medical Association, we need go no deeper for an adequate explanation than that influences, such as mu-sic, which are agreeable are therefore salutary, and music is agreeable because its component tones are regular, periodic vibrations, even auditory waves, precisely so many to each note, being in this regard unlike noises, which are irregular, dissonant, conflicting vibrations. Sound waves impinge on the hearing sense, whence the perception is conveyed to the brain.

The benignant influence of music physically is by the transmission of its influence from the cerebrum through the sympathetic system, which directs the various organs. Thus not only is music physic for the soul, dissipating mental depression, soothing psychic perturbations, but this influence may also enhance nutrition, further diges tion (as by the "liver music" of the French) and restore organic equilibrium. Indeed, the entire working of the human mechanism, physical and mental alike, may be lubricated by a stream of music, which art and science should therefore have a place in the medical armamentarium.

BRILLIANT CHARGE BY CANADIAN TROOPS

Twenty-two Officers Killed, 58 Wounded in Battle on Western Front. Canadian Casualties Will Probably Total 1,000.

Ottawa, April 25.—Canada has received her first great casualty list from the fighting at the front. It records the death in action of twenty-two officers, including three Lieutenant-Colonels. In addition, fifty-eight officers have shed their blood, and are on the list of wounded. This, it is to be noted, is not a complete list, and there is no record so far of ed. Inis, it is to be noted, is not a complete list, and there is no record so far of non-commissioned officers killed or wounded in the heavy fighting of Thursday, Friday and Saturday, which is still going on. The British estimate is ten men to every officer. This would bring the total of Canadian casualties up to 800.

DUST AND MUD OR OILED STREETS The Latter Far Superior, Costing Less and More Sanitary

Evidence showing the superiority of oiled over sprinkled streets accumulates, and leaves no room for doubt as to the wisdom of the Council in making a change from the heretofore inefficient system of street sprinkling. A gentle-man who has had experience with oiled man who has had experience with oiled streets in Kansas City. Toronto, Barrie and other places, and whose judgment in the matter may be thoroughly relied on, gives the following cogent reasons for oiling the streets as a result of what he saw in the places named. He says:—

1. Macadam pavements, if oiled, are better and less dusty than asphalt.

2. Are also less costly to keep tree from dust, as asphalt must be frequently flushed at considerable cost.

3. Oiled roads save the roadbed, the

3. Oiled roads save the roadbed, the oiled dust serving as a cushion.

4. In watered roads it is always dust or mud, and crossings are dirty.

5. And every time the road is scraped. it is part of the original roadbed material which is carted away and will have to be again replaced later, at a cost which is farely thought of.

6. Oil should not be put on the crossings, so that for pedestrians there are always good, clean crossings with oiled

9. Oiled roads save considerable also from saving of wear and tear on clothes, carpets, household effects, upholstery, and considerable from damage to merchants' goods.

10. Oiled roads are cleaner, too, for the person, as the dust of ordinary roads penetrates to the skin.

11. Then the feeling of cleanliness, with oiled roads, as compared with watered ones, is worth considerable and saves the irritation caused by uncomfortable clouds of dust,

with little trouble when roads are oiled, but are always dusty or muddygotherwise. 13. Whenever steadily tried out the

13. Whenever steadily tried out, the people will not consider any return to watered roads, as the slight smell caused during the first few days after oiling is not bad and soon passes off.

14. Places, such as the lake shore road between Toronto and Mimico, where a superb water front was a curse because of the dust, and where automo-

Sergt.-Major Owens Writes His Colonel

Watford, April 22.—The following is a letter received by Lieut.-Col. R. G. C. Kelly, 27th St. Clair Borderers, Watford, from Sergt.-Major Arthur Owens, 1st Battalion, 1st Brigade, late instructor in the Scots Guards :

April 6, 1915.

Dear Colonel: Still alive to tell the tale. The boys from Watford are very fortunate up to the present, no casualties amongst them. I have never been away from the battalion since its formation, and I can assure you, that stories told in Toronto papers, with reference to the charges we made and the trenches we took are false. This does not refer to the Princess Pats, who are with another division, and we don't know what they are doing. Our casualties are caused by snipers, and going to and from the trenches, which, of course, is done in the dark.

With reference to the battle at Neuve Chapelle, we were in the supports and were very heavily shelled, but the imwere very heavily shelled, but the improvements we made in our trenches and dug-outs made us safe. Of course you know the idea of this heavy shelling was to prevent us from reinforcing the firing line, but I can assure you the British casualties were very heavy.

Colonel, I had a very close call the other day, after leaving the trenches we go back a few miles for four days, which comes under the heading of rest, but in reality consists of route marching, trench digging, bayonet fighting, etc. I went digging, bayonet fighting, etc. I went out of the barn to shake my blanket and a shell dropped about six yawds from me, as luck happened it did not explode; it went into the ground about 10 feet. We dug it out and found it to be a shrapnel; it must have been defective.

I am afraid when the hot weather sets in instead of fighting Germans we will be fighting disease. Already the mosquitoes are beginning to swarm the trenches and at times the smell of dead bodies, which are just merely covered, is very offensive.

Mr. Galaugher, who was selected to gallant manner. All day long messages come to the front in place of Mr. Swift. was killed. Our casualties are about 22 killed and 30 wounded in this battalion. At Neuve Chapelle we got orders to hold ourselves in readiness to charge and In ever saw men so eager for the fray, but of course, we were not required, so I can assure you when the time comes the boys will give a good account of themselves. Believe me to be, yours truly,

A. OWENS.

NEW STRENGTH

IN THE SPRING

Nature Needs Aid in Making New Health-Giving Blood

In the spring the system needs a tonic. To be healthy you must have new blood, just as the trees must have new sap to renew their vitality. Nature demands it, and without this new blood you will feel weak and languid. You may have feel weak and languid. You may have twinges of rheumatism or the sharp stabbing pains of neuralgia. Often there are disfiguring pimples or eruptions on the skin. In other cases there is merely a teeling of tiredness and a variable appetite. Any of these are signs that the blood is out of order—that the indoor life of winter has lessened your vitality. What you need in spring is a tonic medicine to put you right, and in all the world of medicine there is no tonic can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills actually make new rich, red blood—your greatest need in spring. This new your greatest need in spring. This new blood drives out the seeds of disease and makes easily tired men, women and children bright, active and strong. Miss Edith Brousseau, Savona, B. C., says:—
"I was as pale as a ghost, suffered from headaches, severe palpitation of the heart at the slightest exertion. I had rarely thought of.
6. Oil should not be put on the crossings, so that for pedestrians there are always good, clean crossings with oiled roads.
7. Oiled roads only require oiling two or three times annually and the cost as against well-watered roads is very little greater than the water process. If time of men and teams, and the cost of upkeep saving is figured, the oiled road is cheaper.
8. Then with oiled streets we do not breathe dust and manure into our lungs!
