A Wonderful Farmer.

The Montreal papers give a description of a new and curious agricultural machine exhibited in that city recently. It is called the Romaine Modern Steam Farmer, and appears destined to inaugurate a new era in farming. The machine, it is claimed, will plough, harrow and seed the ground in the spring and reap and thrash the grain in the fall. It is supposed to do all the work of a farm, ao as not to require horse flesh and oats at all. It is intended for large and flat farms and one machine will cultivate from fifteen hundred to two thousand acres in a season. This machine when complete is thirty feet by twenty feet in dimensions and six feet high, and is run by an engine on the "Suppose, just suppose, I had confessed to Mrs. Barristow that we hadn't an heirloom of any description to loan," she said in a low voice; "we certainly wouldn't have dared "Perhaps you were right," rejoined Ger-She was interrupted by Mrs. Barristow, who came rushing up to them, her face radiant.

-THE attention which the Prince and Princess of Wales, and their son, Prince George, are just now receiving from the young Czar of Russia is excitting the jealousy of the rulers and statesmen of concinental Europe. In disposition the Czar is said to resemble his mother, who is a sister of the Princess of Wales, while in personal appearance he is the image of Prince George of Wales who is his cousin. Moreover, h is said to have a strong liking for his English relatives, and the attentions he has shown them during their present visit to ter is being seriously discussed by the cabinets of Europe. Great Britain and Russia have long been regarded as enemies, whose interests conflicted more than even those of France and Germany. If the accession of the young Czar leads to a better feeling between those two nations, or, it may even be, to a friendly alliance, it would surely be a happy men for the future peace of the world. The prospect for such a result, so greatly to be desired, will be greatly strengthened by that other event to take place in a few days, the marriage of the Czar to the Princes Alix, a grand-daughter of Queen Victoria.

-Our readers will peruse with interes the somewhat lengthy and interesting report upon the subject of Church Union which appears elsewhere in this issue. The question has lately been occupying the attention o religious bodies all over the world, and the late conference held at St. John gives the views of some of the leading clergymen of

They were sold in London on the 7th inst., bringing 22 and 20 shillings per bbl., the tree realizing within a few cents of $35.

He has also a Ribston Pippin tree standing 60 ft. from the above mentioned Blenheim which has brought him $20 this year, the fruit being sold in London on Oct. 19th last. Also a King Tompkins tree at a distance of 110 ft. from first, giving him $15 in London by same shipment; a total product of $70 for the three trees, which must be very satisfactory when fruit is ruling low as this year.

MURRAY-OAKES The marriage of Miss Amanda Corbon Oakes, daughter of Charles Oakes, of New The marriage of Miss Amanda Corbon Oakes, daughter of Charles Oakes, of New Albany, Annapolis county, to Lemnel Morton Murray, son of Wm. Murray, of Barton, Digby county, took place Thursday evening, 15th inst., at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Wm. Oliver, 87 Williams street, East Lynn, Mass. The ceremony was performed by Rev. E. A. Hainer, pastor of the East Eaptist church, in the presence of the immediate relatives of the bride and groom. The bride was most becomingly attired in ashes-of-roses henrietta, trimmed with bengaline silk, and wore a corsage boquet of white pinks. Elise Gustie Oliver, the 4-year-old niece of the bride, acted as maid of honor, prettily dressed in white and carrying a bouquet of white chrysathenums. The apartment in which the ceremony took place was tastefully decorated with chrysanthenums. The presents were numerous and costly. A reception followed during which a sumptous lunch was served by Caterer Ross, and after hearty congratulations and farewells had been said, the happy couple started on their wedding tour which will terminate in Nova Scotia. On their return they will reside in Beverly, Mass. Mr. and Mrs. Murray have the congratulations and best wishes of many friends in this vicinity in which the Montron joins.

There were, it is true, other elements in the late contest in London which largely helped to influence the election and bring about the result. But that the stand he took on the question of prohibition did the unsuccessful candidate much more harm than good, there seems little room for doubt.

The result is likewise important in a political sense, as this change of two votes gives

Either their machinery must be much more expensive than ours or the proportion of criminals is higher there than with us.

Premier Taillon is just now engaged in the task of reconciling his English supporters in the House to the terms of a new loan made in Paris a few weeks ago, at what seems a ruinously bad rate for the province. This loan was made against the advice of the treasurer of the province, Hon. Mr. Hall, who in consequence immediately resigned. In this section Mr. Hall had the sympathy and support of all the English speaking members of the House supporting the government, and the premier has thus far been unable to secure an English speak.

Earthquake In Italy.

Rome, Nov. 24. - Earthquake and rumb-Rome, Nov. 24.—Earthquake and rumbling continue in the district around Milazzo. The panic has not abated. Houses deserted several days ago remain unoccupied. Signor Galli, under secretary of the interior, visite daily the towns which suffered most severely. The scenes in the affected districts are distressing and ghastly. Many are injured and horribly mutilated. The graves were upheaved in the Milazzo cemetery and many of the bodies must be re-interred. Confidence is returning slowly. In some districts it will be a tremendous task to restore order. Fifty thousand persons are homeless and destitute.

Mr. J. Edwin Slocomb and bride arrived home on the 14th inst., after three weeks sojourn in St. John and the United States, and were warmly welcomed by the young people of the village.

Miss Nettie Covert, who has been spending the greater part of the last month with Mrs. Slocomb, has gone to Middleton on a visit, and thence will proceed to her home in Paradise. Miss Covert will be missed by her many friends here.

The knitting circle, which was organized here some weeks since for the purpose of scuring the wherewithal to repair and paint the school-house, has a very large membership, and is meeting with wonderful success. This project is a very commendable one on the part of the young people, and it is an example which might be followed to advantage in very many school sections. Taxpayers usually view with serious apprehension any measure likely to increase, no matter how imperceptibly, their annual tribute towards the school fund. They may desire to have their children educated; but they find it difficult to believe that a well-painted school-house, good blackboards, maps and general school supplies, and for a door-step anything better than a pile of stones, are necessary accessories thereof. This indirect means of raising the necessary funds for these generally recognized superfluities is the most satisfactory, besides allowing the young people a pleasant method of entertainment.

our duty to preserve it as a sacred deposit of inestimable value, and to see that it was neither increased or diminished, commuted or adulterated in any degree. Remission of sins, e. g., was not to be changed into remissability of sins. Salvation was not to be translated into sayeable position. Nor was faith to be made equivalent to faith and works as the instrumental cause, much less the ground of our justification before God. Watch against the slightest departure from the truth of the gospel, whether it was in respect to the nature of the church, or the atonement, or the sacraments of the grace of God, or any other fundamental doctrine. If, with a strange infatuation, we attempt to envelope the glorified humanity of our ascended Lord with a bare covering of material bread and wine, what better were we beither increased or diminished, commuted ascended Lord with a bare covering of material bread and wine, what better were we than the childish Israelites of old, who at the instance of Aaron worshipped—not the calf—the Lord of Sabbaoth through the golden calf and called down upon themselves in consequence the heavenly punishment. On ceremonies the prayer book instructs. "Chriat's gospel is not a ceremonial law as much as Moses' was, but it is a religion to serve God, not in bondage' of the figure or shadow, but in the freedom of the spirit. A prayer-book without the acts of uniformity prayer-book without the acts of uniformity is as incomplete as a prayer-book minus the order for morning and evening prayer. It forbids what it does not authorize. Why order for morning and evening prayer. It forbids what it does not authorize. Why should not the congregation stand when the clergy enter? The prayer book forbids it. Why should they not turn to the east in the creed? Why not repeat the Sanctus in part only? Why not adopt the eastward position? Because the prayer-book forbids what it does not authorize.

The Rev. W. P. Noble, the rector of Trinity church, Quebec, followed with a paper on the same subject. He said ritualism was almost too trilling a thing to talk about. In the face of the needs of our mission work it was folly for men to quarrel about colored stoles, crosses, candlesticks and flowers. Ritualism was Christless priestcraft, substituting another sacrifice for Christ, and presuming to bring the Creator down from heaven upon their altars. Was sacerdotalism and ritualism compatible with continued membership in the church of England?

The afternoon session of Wednesday was the meeting of the session, for this was to be the Symposum on Christian Union. The leading paper was from Rev. Canon Sheraton, D.D., the principal of Wycliff college, entitled "The Catholic Church and Christian Unity." The learned gentleman first called attention to the longing for christian unity so significant among the religious phenomena of the day. Still the obstacles to the organic union of the churches are very great, viz. so significant among the religious phenomena of the day. Still the obstacles to the organic union of the churchs are very great, viz., sectarian pride, denominational interest. In the church of England there are two opposing theories, the Secerdotal and the Evangelical, the one making the essential nature of the church of consist in what is eternal and visible and the other in what is spiritual and ethical. The writer showed how the sacerdotal theory of the church confounds unity with conformity, instancing its one complete and self-consistent embodiment the system of the church of Rome. There is secured threugh the Roman Communion a magnificent unity of purpose and of action, but in reality it is only the appearance of unity maintained by the deadly process of repression and restriction. That which is not necessary for admission into the fellowship of the saints in heaven cannot be necessary for admission into the communion of the saints on earth. We must cultivate a wise discrimination between things essential and apply the wise maxim, "In things necessary, inity, in things not necessary, inerty, in all things charity. The proper course to take to secure ultimate reunion is, first, recognition, second, co-operation, then federation. The Church of England possesses a splendid vantage ground as the unifier of Protestantism if she holds fast to the reformation settlement. Let us have the courage of our opinions, let us cherish love and brotherhood towards all Protestant and Evangelical Catholic principles, the only secure and sufficient basis of a reunited Christendom.

Rev. W. Hamlyn, of Charlottetown, followed with an interesting paper on the relation of the Church of England to other denominations. There was much going on around us at the present time to show us the sinfulness of sectarian exclusiveness, and the sinfulness of sectarian exclusiveness, and the

Thus crided one of the most important religious gatherings of the time. The writer feels, though he would like to write much on this subject, space can only permit him to say that good must surely come of this meeting. The tolerant feeling manifested by these differing sects as they met together was something new and surely wholesome. God hasten the day when more will be able to see how foolish is this strife over transitory methods, when the great principles that make for righteousness here and peace hereafter are crying out, all over the land, for after are crying out, all over the land, for the united forces of all the redeemed in their

They all find myself and balance of our family ready know a little English, and are extremely to talk about the good Dr. Williams' Pink polite. When a stranger appears on the threshold the daughters immediately surround and fan him, while the mother bustles off to make a cup of tea. The only teas which have at all the stimulating effect ascribed to alcohol are the Congou, Ceylon and India teas. Of course they are made of more than the ordinary strength. Americans do not drink tea as strong as they do in England. In China, where it is the national beverage, they drink it in smaller quantities and oftener, and without milk or sugar. Putting rum and cordials in tea is a thoroughly European and American idea, and would impress the Chinaman, if he were familiar with that flavor, of "painting the lily."

The Mud Bath Treatment.

There is nothing particularly enticing in the sound of "mud baths," and those who have tried them at Homburg and other places find them not agreeable as experiences, however efficacious they may be as a treatment. At most spas the process is simply that of pouring mud into one's bath, but at some Italian baths to which the fashionably sick are turning, a traveler who has taken them finds that they are quite different. The mud, in a very hot and almost dry form, much of the consistency of brick clay, is applied locally to those parts of the body which are affected. The patient lies on astraw bed, on which is placed a sheet The attendant having ascertained the suffering parts daubs them to the thickness of several inches with the mud. The invalid, covered with a hot sheet or blankets, lies for half an hour, prespiring freely, then gets into a hot sulphur bath, is thoroughly cleansed, rubbed dry, and returned to a bed artificially warmed, where the perspiration continues for an hour or so longer. This treatment is repeated almost every morning fo about twenty days, and is of great value in all manifestations of rheumatism. The mud is dug out of a mountain a few miles from the spa, and brought to the establishment and allowel to soak for several years in tanks of boiling sulphur water until requir ed for use.

Bilious From Childhoad.

Rev. Benjamin Hills, Pugwash, N. S. writes: "In a word I may say that K. D. C. has helped me more than anything else I have ever used. I had been bilious from childhood; for "several years had rarely passed a week without a severe attack of bilious coilc, with intense pain at the back of the head. These attacks usually follow my Sunday work. Since I began to use the K. D. C., I have scarcely had any return of biliousness and the attacks have been very light. I have had greater freedom from suffering since I began the use of K. D. C. than for years past. I believe that the occasional use of a bottle of K. D. C. will keep me cemparatively free from the old trouble. I thank you for calling my attention to K. D. C. Had I tried it long ago it might have saved me years of suffering. I am glad to recommend it to fellow sufferers."

She Knew What She Was About. Prolonged railway travelling is so tedious to most people that any little diversion is welcomed and made the most of. The Cleveland "Plain Dealer" records an instance of such a sort -an absent minded performance on the part of an elderly lady, which must have beguiled at least half an hour for the other passengers. The day was warm and dusty, and she was seized with thirst. At one end of the car was a water cooler, and to it the lady went. She took the cup in her hand, turned the faucet, and stood waiting. The ice-water filled the catch-pan and

"Lady," said he, not impolitely, "do you "Me? Certainly I do." "Well, why are you running all that wan over, and soon was cooling the cross-ties.

"Why," said she, "I'm letting it run till it gets cool."
