The copy filmed here has been reproduced thanks to the generosity of:

Douglas Library
Queen's University

The images appearing here are the best quality possible considering the condition and legibility of the original copy and in keeping with the filming contract specifications.

Original copies in printed paper covers are filmed beginning with the front cover and ending on the last page with a printed or illustrated impression, or the back cover when appropriate. All other original copies are filmed beginning on the first page with a printed or illustrated impression, and ending on the last page with a printed or illustrated impression.

The last recorded frame on each microfiche shall contain the symbol  $\rightarrow$  (meaning "CONTINUED"), or the symbol  $\nabla$  (meaning "END"), whichever applies.

Maps, plates, charts, etc., may be filmed at different reduction ratios. Those too large to be entirely included in one exposure are filmed beginning in the upper left hand corner, left to right and top to bottom, as many frames as required. The following diagrams illustrate the method:

L'exemplaire filmé fut reproduit grâce à la générosité de:

Douglas Library
Queen's University

Les images suivantes ont été reproduites avec le plus grand soin, compte tenu de la condition et de la netteté de l'exemplaire filmé, et en conformité avec les conditions du contrat de filmage.

Les exemplaires originaux dont la couverture en papier est imprimée sont filmés en commençant par le premier plat et en terminant soit par la dernière page qui comporte une empreinte d'impression ou d'illustration, soit par le second plat, selon le cas. Tous les autres exemplaires originaux sont filmés en commençant par la première page qui comporte une empreinte d'impression ou d'illustration et en terminant par la dernière page qui comporte une telle empreinte.

Un des symboles suivants apparaîtra sur la dernière image de chaque microfiche, selon le cas: le symbole  $\rightarrow$  signifie "A SUIVRE", le symbole  $\nabla$  signifie "FIN".

Les cartes, planches, tableaux, etc., peuvent être filmés à des taux de réduction différents. Lorsque le document est trop grand pour être reproduit en un seul cliché, il est filmé à partir de l'angle supérieur gauche, de gauche à droite, et de haut en bas, en prenant le nombre d'images nécessaire. Les diagrammes suivants illustrent la méthode.

In October, 1880, a meeting of the profession was held at the Canadian Institute, Richmond Street, Toronto, at which a committee, consisting of Drs. C. W. Covernton, J. E. Graham, Jos. Workman, J. E. White, J. H. Burns, and A. H. Wright, was appointed to take the necessary steps towards the formation of a Provincial Association. As a result of the labours of this committee, in June of the following year the Inaugural Meeting of the Ontario Medical Association was held, when 132 physicians from all parts of the Province signed the By-laws of the Association.

CONSTITUTION AND BY-LAWS OF THE
ONTARIO MEDICAL ASSOCIATION.

CONSTITUTION.

ARTICLE I.

This Association shall be called the Ontario Medical Association, and shall consist of Ordinary, Corresponding, and Honorary members, Members by Invitation, and Delegates.

SECTION 1.—Ordinary members shall be legally qualified practitioners of Medicine and Surgery, in the Province of Ontario, in good standing.

SECTION 2.—Corresponding members shall be men of eminence in their profession, and actively engaged in the cultivation of medical science.

SECTION 3.—Honorary members shall include :

(a) Members of the Medical Profession who have distinguished themselves in any special department of Medicine.

(b) Members of the Medical Profession who have distinguished themselves in other departments of science.

(c) Members of the Medical Profession whose contributions to scientific literature have met with approbation.

(d) Members of other scientific bodies, whose researches or literary contributions have assisted in advancing the science of Medicine.

Corresponding and Honorary members shall have the privilege of participating in the discussions, and presenting papers. They shall not be entitled to vote, or be eligible for any office. Their number shall not exceed sixteen.

SECTION 4.—Every application for membership, either as Ordinary, Corresponding, or Honorary members, must be signed by two members of the Association in good standing, and placed in the hands of the General Secretary. These applications shall be referred to the Committee on Credentials, and the report of this Committee shall decide the question of membership, unless a member of the Association demand a ballot, in which case a three-fourths vote shall be necessary for election.

SECTION 5.—Members by Invitation shall be such members of the Medical Profession as the President may be pleased to invite to the meeting. They shall be non-residents of the Province, and shall be entitled to participate in the discussions.

SECTION 6.—Delegates shall comprise representatives from all other Provincial Medical Associations in the Dominion of Canada, as well as from City or County Medical Societies in other provinces, or from State, County or City Medical Societies in the United States. Delegates shall present their credentials to the Secretary for the inspection of the Committee on Credentials, upon the favorable report of which committee each delegate shall be introduced by the Chairman to the President. They shall be entitled to seats and participation in the discussions.

ARTICLE II.

OBJECTS.

The objects of this Association shall be :

1. The cultivation of the Science of Medicine and Surgery.
2. The advancement of the character and honor of the Medical Profession.
3. The elevation of the standard of Medical Education.
4. The promotion of Public Health.
5. The furtherance of unity and harmony among its members ; and
6. The forming of a connecting link between the various City and County Societies and the Canada Medical Association.

ARTICLE III.

OFFICERS.

SECTION 1.—There shall be a President, four Vice-Presidents, a General Secretary, an Assistant Secretary, and a Treasurer. These officers shall be elected and shall enter upon their several duties as laid down in the By-laws, at the close of the meeting at which they have been elected ; hold their offices for the term specified, and until others are appointed in their places. Nominations for any of the above offices are to come before the Association in the report of the Committee on Nominations.

SECTION 2.—The officers of the Association shall be elected annually.

ARTICLE IV.

COMMITTEES—STANDING.

The following committees shall be elected for the term of three years, and shall consist of six members, two of whom shall retire annually ; the vacancy thus made shall be filled from such list of members as the Committee on Nominations shall recommend in their report. One of the retiring members shall be chairman, and read the report for that year. They shall perform such duties as are laid down in the By-laws for their guidance, and such other duties as the President may constitutionally direct.

1. Committee on Credentials.
2. Committee on Public Health, Medical and Vital Statistics, and Climatology.
3. Committee on Legislation.
4. Committee on Publication.
5. Committee on By-laws.
6. Committee on Medical Ethics.

ARTICLE V.

COMMITTEES—TEMPORARY.

SECTION 1.—The following Temporary Committees shall be annually appointed by the President, and shall consist of five members each, with power to add to their numbers, and shall perform the duties specified in the By-laws, with such other business as the President may constitutionally direct :

1. Committee on Necrology.
2. Committee on Audit.
3. Committee on Papers and Business.
4. Committee on Arrangements.

SECTION 2.—The Committee on Nominations shall be elected by ballot on the evening of the first day of the annual meeting of the Association, and shall contain one member for every fifteen members registered at the time the ballot is taken.

ARTICLE VI.

AMENDMENTS.

All proposals for amendments or additions to Constitution or By-laws must be read and handed to the General Secretary at the annual meeting preceding the one at which such amendments or additions shall be voted upon. All such proposals shall be reported upon by the Committee on By-laws, and shall require a three-fourths vote to be adopted.

ARTICLE VII.

SECTIONS.

At every annual meeting the business of the Association shall be transacted in sections, unless it is decided otherwise by a three-fourths vote. The division shall be as follows, namely :

1. Medicine, including Therapeutics, Materia Medica, Physiology and Jurisprudence, Medical Diseases of Women, and Diseases of Children.

2. Surgery, including Ophthalmology, Otology and Laryngology, Anatomy, General Pathology and Syphilis, Surgical Diseases of Women.

Each section shall elect a Chairman and a Secretary. The sections shall meet in the afternoons of the first and second day of the annual meeting, and also on the morning of the second day.

ARTICLE VIII.

FUNDS.

Funds for the ordinary expenses of the Association shall be raised by the annual payment by every Ordinary member of the sum of two dollars, payable to the Treasurer before registration at the beginning of the annual meeting.

ARTICLE IX.

No member shall be entitled to a vote on any question, or participate in the discussions or transactions of the Association, who has not paid his annual dues.

ARTICLE X.

CODE OF ETHICS.

This Association endorses, and shall be guided by the Code of Ethics of the Canada Medical Association.

ARTICLE XI.

This Association reserves the right of punishing any member by reprimand, suspension, or expulsion, for violation of its regulations, or its Code of Ethics. Such expelled member not to be recognized as a regular practitioner in good standing by any member of the Association.

ARTICLE XII.

Any member having been expelled from the Association, and seeking re-admittance, cannot be proposed and balloted for at the same meeting, and must receive a three-fourths vote of those present entitled to vote, at the meeting next following that of his proposal, to entitle him to membership.

---

BY-LAWS.

ARTICLE I.

The annual meeting of this Association shall be held on the first Wednesday of the month of June in each and every year, and continue two days, unless otherwise determined by a three-fourths vote at any regular meeting.

Special meetings may be called at any time upon a requisition signed by ten members being presented to the President. The time and place of such special meeting to be determined by the President.

Fifteen members shall constitute a quorum.

ARTICLE II.

PRESIDENT.

A.—The President shall preside over all meetings; enforce a due observance of the Constitution and By-laws; preserve order and decorum; call for reports, and see that all committees perform their respective duties; call special meetings on urgent occasions; sign all documents requiring his signature; give the casting vote only;

announce the result of the votes ; introduce all members, other than Ordinary, to the meeting ; be ex officio a member of all standing committees ; appoint representatives of the Association to any meeting of any medical society or association when he thinks the interests of the Association may be enhanced by so doing ; and shall, upon opening each regular meeting, deliver an address, setting forth the condition of the profession in the Province, with such suggestions as he may deem it proper to make ; he may during the meeting give a dissertation on some subject kindred to the objects of the Association, and perform such other duties as by usage appertain to his office. The first duty after installation shall be the appointing of temporary committees.

VICE-PRESIDENTS.

B.—The Vice-Presidents shall assist the President in the performance of his duties, and in his absence, or at his request, preside over the meeting. They shall preside in the order of seniority of election.

GENERAL SECRETARY.

C.—The Secretary shall give notice of the meetings of the Association to all members ; attend with the records and documents of the Association at all the meetings ; keep a record of the proceedings of each ; take charge of all manuscripts, printed books, and all other property of the Association, except money ; read all papers by “title” or “extract” which the Committee on Papers decide should be read in that manner ; superintend the printing of the Transactions, and their distribution to every member of the Association ; provide a register for the Committee on Credentials and the Committee on Nominations ; receive reports from all committees and file them with other Transactions ; notify all members of their appointments, either as officers or on committees ; transact by correspondence any business between this Association and any other body or individual ; attend meetings of all committees when requested, with records, etc., and transact such other business as may arise in his department ; and bring in an annual report of business transactions since last meeting.

ASSISTANT SECRETARY.

D.—The Assistant Secretary shall assist the General Secretary in the performance of his duties ; and shall advise with him as to suitable places for calling meetings ; assist the Committee on Arrangements, and other committees when requested, in their duties, and transact such other duties as usually apply to local secretaries.

TREASURER.

E.—The Treasurer shall receive all moneys due the Association, and be accountable for the safe-keeping of all funds derived from whatever source, belonging to the Association; pay all bills or moneys directed by vote of the Association; give a verbal statement of all moneys in his care at any time when requested by the presiding officer. He shall make all payments of any kind whatsoever by cheque, and shall, on the last day of the meeting, give a detailed report, accompanied by vouchers for all his disbursements; he shall also pay such orders as may be drawn on him by the Secretary, countersigned by the President, and shall hand over, when called upon by the Association, all moneys, papers, books, etc., whatsoever in his possession, which are claimed as belonging to it, to his successor in office, or any one appointed by the Association to receive them.

ARTICLE III.

DUTIES OF STANDING COMMITTEES.

The Chairman of a Standing Committee for the year is one of the members who retire from the Committee that year. He shall read the report for that year; keep a record of the proceedings of that committee, as well as a copy of report or reports made to the Association, which shall be written on ONE SIDE OF RULED FOOLSCAP PAPER, WITH MARGIN, and handed to the Secretary to be filed with the other Transactions of the Association.

COMMITTEE ON CREDENTIALS.

A.—It shall be the duty of the Committee on Credentials to make due inquiry concerning each applicant for membership, and the authenticity of the credentials of delegates, and report on each one favorably or unfavorably, to keep a register classifying each individual, and introduce all those on whom they report favorably to the President. The Chairman to make a final report to the President before the close of the meeting of the state of the register, and other business of his committee, which shall be filed with the Secretary for the use of the Committee at the next meeting.

COMMITTEE ON NOMINATIONS.

B.—All nominations shall be made in writing and handed to the General Secretary (and addressed to the Committee on Nominations) not later than 9 p.m. of the first day of the annual meeting of the Association. These nominations are to be referred to the Committee on Nominations, who shall select from the list thus submitted, names for the several offices of the Association. In case there shall be no nomination for a particular vacancy, the Committee shall make the nomination. On the reception of the report the members shall proceed by ballot to fill vacancies for which there is more than one candidate. The President shall restrain the ballot in any case where there is but one candidate for a particular vacancy, and shall declare said candidate duly elected. This committee shall meet not later than 11 a.m. on the second day of the annual meeting, and shall present their report at least two hours before the election of officers.

COMMITTEE ON PUBLIC HEALTH, MEDICAL AND VITAL STATISTICS AND CLIMATOLOGY.

C.—It shall be the duty of this committee to place itself in communication with the Provincial Board of Health, and with the various County and City Societies, and, where none exist, with prominent men in the profession, seeking information regarding the above-named subjects; and to present a report embodying anything in regard thereto that will be of interest to the Association or that will be of benefit to the Province.

COMMITTEE ON LEGISLATION.

D.—It shall be the duty of this committee to watch the course of Legislation, so far as it affects public health, or the interests of the profession of this province. All proposed legislation offered by any member shall be referred to this committee to report thereon. It shall report at each meeting of the Association any new legislation affecting the profession.

COMMITTEE ON PUBLICATION.

E.—It shall be the duty of this committee, which shall permanently include the General Secretary and Treasurer, to superintend the publication of all Transactions and supply the officers with such printed matter or other materials as their offices shall require, or shall be required by the Association. This committee shall hold a copy of each paper presented, which shall be deposited by the author with the Secretary at the time of presentation, and of all Transactions, which shall be at their disposal, subject to the instructions of the Association.

COMMITTEE ON BY-LAWS.

F.—It shall be the duty of this committee to examine and report on any changes connected with the Constitution or By-laws they may think necessary. All proposed alterations or additions shall be referred to the Committee.

COMMITTEE ON MEDICAL ETHICS.

G.—To this committee all questions connected with Ethics shall be referred. They shall investigate all cases referred to them, and shall report the result of their inquiries to the Association; they shall also report each year any violation of the Code of Ethics by its members, which attracts their attention as affecting the Association.

ARTICLE IV.

DUTIES OF TEMPORARY COMMITTEES.

All Temporary Committees shall be annually appointed by the President. The first member appointed shall act as Chairman, and read the report for that year. Their duties shall commence immediately upon their appointment, and terminate at the conclusion of the next meeting.

COMMITTEE ON NECROLOGY.

A.—It shall be the duty of this committee to make a full report upon all deaths which have taken place among the members of this Association during the year, for publication in the Transactions.

AUDIT COMMITTEE.

B.—This committee shall, after the presentation of the report of the Treasurer, examine and compare each item with its corresponding voucher, and submit the result in their report to the Association.

COMMITTEE ON PAPERS AND BUSINESS.

D.—It shall be the duty of this committee to undertake all business not coming within the duties of the other committees, or referred to them by the President.

To this committee shall be referred all papers to be read or presented to the meeting; they shall recommend the manner in which these shall be read, classifying them under the following heads: To be read, 1st, By Extract; 2nd, In extenso—those only to be read in extenso which are of immediate importance and interest, or sufficiently practical and concise to make their reading advisable.

Those papers which the Committee decide shall be read "By extract," are to be read by the General Secretary, unless the writer names the reader.

They shall prepare a list, classifying the papers by their titles only, which is to be handed to the President, who shall call for the reading of them in the order and manner determined.

COMMITTEE ON ARRANGEMENTS.

E.—It shall be the duty of this committee to provide a suitable place for holding the meetings of the Association, to attend to the reception of all members and invited guests exert themselves with a view to having the members upon the most social footing, and to attend to all matters connected with the proper inception of the meeting.

ARTICLE V.

ANNUAL REPORTS.

The General Secretary and the Treasurer shall each present an annual report of their work to the Association.

All Special Committees, as well as all Standing and Temporary Committees, shall present their reports at the earliest meeting subsequent to their appointment.

ARTICLE VI.

RULES OF ORDER.

The following shall be the order of business at the regular meetings of the Association. The ordinary parliamentary rules shall govern the transaction of business during the meeting. A quorum being present:

1. The President shall take the chair and call the meeting to order.
2. Reading of minutes of last meeting.
3. Reception of Honorary and Corresponding members and delegates.
4. Communications.
5. Report of Committee on Arrangements.
6. Report of Committee on Credentials.
7. Election of members and admission of the same to seats.

8. President's Address.
9. Report of Committee on Papers and Business.
10. Reading of Papers.
11. Discussion thereon.
12. Reports of Temporary Committees in their order.
13. Reports of Standing Committees not already mentioned.
14. Discussion on Reports.
15. Unfinished and Miscellaneous Business.
16. Resolutions. Notices of Motion.
17. Report of Nomination Committee of Officers and Committees for ensuing year, with place of next meeting.
18. Election of Officers and filling vacancies in committees.
19. Installation of President for the ensuing year.
20. Nomination by President of Temporary Committees for the following year.
21. Adjournment.

ARTICLE VII.

Any vacancy occurring ad interim shall be filled, ad interim, by the President.

ARTICLE VIII.

Each member, upon being admitted, shall sign the Constitution and By-laws.

ARTICLE IX.

Any By-law may be suspended by a three-fourths vote at any regular meeting, for that meeting only.

ARTICLE X.

No person shall be permitted to occupy the time or engage the attention of the meeting but members, delegates, and invited guests, and no member is to occupy the floor in any discussion for a longer period than ten minutes, and no member shall have the privilege of speaking more than once on any question under consideration, except for explanation.

ARTICLE XI.

In case of the absence of the President and Vice-Presidents, the Association shall appoint a President pro tem.

ARTICLE XII.

This Association does not require members to pay the annual fee except during those years they are present at the meetings, except in the case of officers and members of committees.

Members, in good standing in the Province, will have the privilege of being enrolled on the register upon remitting the annual fee to the Treasurer, when unable to be present at the meeting.

Members, whether present or absent, who are elected officers, or appointed on committees, must pay the annual fee, unless they decline acting in the position to which they are elected or appointed.

CODE OF MEDICAL ETHICS.

The Code of Ethics sanctioned and adopted by the Ontario Medical Association.

ARTICLE I.

OF THE DUTIES OF PHYSICIANS TO THEIR PATIENTS.

1. A physician should not only be ever ready to obey the calls of the sick, but his mind ought also to be imbued with the greatness of his mission, and the responsibility he habitually incurs in its discharge. These obligations are the more deep and enduring because there is no tribunal other than his own conscience to adjudge penalties for carelessness or neglect. Physicians should, therefore, minister to the sick with due impressions of the importance of their office; reflecting that the ease, the health, and the lives of those committed to their charge depend on their skill, attention, and fidelity. They should study, also, in their deportment, so to unite tenderness with firmness, and condescension with authority, as to inspire the minds of their patients with gratitude, respect, and confidence.

2. Every case committed to the charge of a physician should be treated with attention, steadiness, and humanity. Reasonable indulgence should be granted to the mental imbecility and caprices of the sick. Secrecy and delicacy, when required by peculiar circumstances, should be strictly observed; and the familiar and confidential intercourse to which physicians are admitted in their professional visits should be used with discretion and with the most scrupulous regard to fidelity and honor. The obligation of secrecy extends beyond the period of professional services;—none of the privacies of personal and domestic life, no infirmity of disposition or flaw of character observed during professional attendance, should ever be divulged by the physician except when he is imperatively required to do so. The force and necessity of this obligation are indeed so great that professional men have, under certain circumstances, been protected in their observance of secrecy by courts of justice.

3. Frequent visits to the sick are in general requisite, since they enable the physician to arrive at a more perfect knowledge of the disease—to meet promptly every change which may occur, and also tend to preserve the confidence of the patient. But unnecessary visits are to be avoided, as they give useless anxiety to the patient, tend to diminish the authority of the physician, and render him liable to be suspected of interested motives.

4. A physician should not be forward to make gloomy prognostications because they savor of empiricism, by magnifying the importance of his services in the treatment or cure of the disease. But he should not fail, on proper occasions, to give to the friends of the patient timely notice of danger when it really occurs; and even to the patient himself, if absolutely necessary. This office, however, is so peculiarly alarming when executed by him that it ought to be declined whenever it can be assigned to any other person of sufficient judgment and delicacy. For the physician should be the minister of hope and comfort to the sick; that, by such cordials to the drooping spirit, he may smooth the bed of death, revive expiring life, and counteract the depressing influence of those maladies which often disturb the tranquility of the most resigned in their last moments. The life of a sick person can be shortened, not only by the acts, but also by the words or the manner of a physician. It is, therefore, a sacred duty to guard himself carefully in this respect, and to avoid all things which have a tendency to discourage the patient and to depress his spirits.

5. A physician ought not to abandon a patient because the case is deemed incurable; for his attendance may continue to be highly useful to the patient and comforting to the relatives around him, even in the last period of a fatal malady, by alleviating pain and other symptoms, and by soothing mental anguish. To decline attendance, under such circumstances, would be sacrificing to fanciful delicacy and mistaken liberality that moral duty which is independent of, and far superior to, all pecuniary consideration.

6. Consultations should be promoted in difficult or protracted cases, as they give rise to confidence, energy, and more enlarged views in practice.

7. The opportunity which a physician not infrequently enjoys of promoting and strengthening the good resolutions of his patients, suffering under the consequences of vicious conduct, ought never to be neglected. His counsels, or even remonstrances, will give satisfaction, not offence, if they be proffered with politeness and evince a genuine love of virtue, accompanied by a sincere interest in the welfare of the person to whom they are addressed.

ARTICLE II.

OF THE DUTIES OF PHYSICIANS TO EACH OTHER, AND TO THE PROFESSION AT LARGE.

Section 1.—Duties for the support of professional character.

1. Every individual on entering the profession, as he becomes thereby entitled to all its privileges and immunities, incurs an obligation to exert his best abilities to maintain its dignity and honor, to exalt its standing, and to extend the bounds of its usefulness. He should, therefore, observe strictly such laws as are instituted for the government of its members;—should avoid all contumelious and sarcastic remarks relative to the faculty as a body; and while, by unwearied diligence, he resorts to every honorable means of enriching the science, he should entertain a due respect for his seniors, who have by their labors brought it to the elevated condition in which he finds it.

2. There is no profession from the members of which greater purity of character and a higher standard of moral excellence is required than the medical; and to attain such eminence is a duty every physician owes alike to his profession and to his patients. It is due to the latter, as without it he cannot command their respect and confidence, and to both because no scientific attainments can compensate for the want of correct moral principles. It is also incumbent upon the faculty to be temperate in all things, for the practice of physic requires the unremitting exercise of a clear and vigorous understanding; and on emergencies, for which no professional man should be unprepared, a steady hand, an acute eye, and an unclouded head may be essentials to the well-being, and even to the life, of a fellow-creature.

3. It is derogatory to the dignity of the profession to resort to public advertisements, or private cards, or handbills, inviting the attention of individuals affected with particular diseases, or diseases of special organs, publicly offering advice and medicine to the poor gratis, or promising radical cures ; or to publish cases and operations in the public prints, or suffer such publications to be made ; to invite laymen to be present as spectators at operations, to boast of cures and remedies, to present certificates of skill and success to the general public, or to perform any other similar act. It is further highly improper for medical men to display their names outside public charities, or public buildings ; also that the posting of bills or circulating of dodgers under any circumstances be prohibited. These are the ordinary practices of empirics, and are highly reprehensible in a regular physician. In case, however, of a physician or surgeon commencing the practice of his profession, or removing to another locality, a simple announcement by an unobtrusive card in the public prints is unobjectionable. Also, that specialists come under the same rules regarding advertising as general practitioners.

4. Equally derogatory to professional character is it for a physician to hold a patent for any surgical instrument or medicine ; or to dispense a secret NOSTRUM, whether it be the composition or exclusive property of himself or of others. For if such nostrum be of real efficacy, any concealment regarding it is inconsistent with beneficence and professional liberality ; and if mystery alone give it value and importance, such craft implies either disgraceful ignorance or fraudulent avarice. It is also reprehensible for physicians to give certificates attesting the efficacy of patent or secret or proprietary medicines.

Section 2.—Professional Services of Physicians to each other.

1. All practitioners of medicine, their wives, and their children while under the paternal care, are entitled to the gratuitous services of any one or more of the faculty residing near them, whose assistance may be desired. A physician afflicted with disease is usually an incompetent judge of his own case ; and the natural anxiety and solicitude which he experiences at the sickness of a wife, a child, or any one who, by the ties of consanguinity, is rendered peculiarly dear to him, tend to obscure his judgment, and produce timidity and irresolution in his practice. Under such circumstances medical men are peculiarly dependent upon each other, and kind offices and professional aid should always be cheerfully and gratuitously afforded. Visits ought not, however, to be obtruded officiously ; as such unmasked civility may give rise to embarrassment, or interfere with that choice on which confidence depends. But if a member of the profession, whose circumstances are affluent, request attendance, and an honorarium be offered, it need not be declined ; for no pecuniary obligations ought to be imposed which the party receiving it would not wish to incur.

ARTICLE III.

OF THE DUTIES OF PHYSICIANS AS RESPECTS VICARIOUS OFFICES.

1. When a member of the profession shall officiate for another he shall receive regular fees for such attendance, subject to any arrangement which may exist between them.

ARTICLE IV.

OF THE DUTIES OF PHYSICIANS IN REGARD TO CONSULTATIONS.

1. A regular medical education furnishes the only presumptive evidence of professional abilities and requirements, and ought to be the only acknowledged right of an individual to the exercise and honors of his profession. Nevertheless, as in consultations the good of the patient is the sole object in view, and this is often dependent on personal confidence, no intelligent regular practitioner who has a license to practise from some medical board of known and acknowledged respectability, recognized by this Association, and who is in good moral and professional standing in the place in which he resides, should be fastidiously excluded from fellowship, or his aid refused in consultation, when it is requested by the patient. But no one can be considered as a regular practitioner or a fit associate in consultation whose practice is based upon an exclusive dogma, to the rejection of the accumulated experience of the profession, and of the aids actually furnished by anatomy, physiology, pathology and organic chemistry. No member or members of this Association shall be permitted to meet in consultation or take charge of any case conjointly with any one who publicly announces himself as an Allopath, a Homeopath, an Eclectic, an Electro-Therapist, Physico-Medicalist, or by any such distinctive title which would limit him to a particular line of treatment, to the exclusion of all others.

2. In consultations no rivalry or jealousy should be indulged ; candor, probity and all due respect should be exercised towards the physician having charge of the case.

3. In consultations the attending physician should be the first to propose the necessary questions to the sick ; after which the consulting physician should have the opportunity to make such further inquiries of the patient as may be necessary to satisfy him of the true character of the case. Both physicians should then retire to a private place for deliberation; and the one first in attendance should communicate the directions agreed upon to the patient or his friends, as well as any opinion which it may be thought proper to express. But no statement or discussion of it should take place before the patient or his friends, except in the presence of all the faculty attending, and by their common consent; and no opinions or prognostications should be delivered which are not the result of previous deliberation and concurrence.

4. In consultations the physician in attendance should deliver his opinion first; and, when there are several consulting, they should deliver their opinions in the order in which they have been called in. No decision, however, should restrain the attending physician from making such variations in the mode of treatment as any subsequent unexpected change in the character of the case may demand. But such variation, and the reason for it, ought to be carefully detailed at the next meeting for consultation. The same privilege also belongs to the consulting physician if he is sent for in an emergency, when the regular attendant is out of the way, and similar explanations must be made by him at the next consultation.

5. The utmost punctuality should be observed in the visits of physicians when they are to hold consultation together, and this is generally practicable, for society has been considerate enough to allow the plea of a professional engagement to take precedence of all others, and to be an ample reason for the relinquishment of any present occupation. But as professional engagements may sometimes interfere, and delay one of the parties, the physician who first arrives should wait for his associate a reasonable period, after which the consultation should be considered as postponed to a new appointment. If it be the attending physician who is present, he will of course see the patient and prescribe: but if it be the consulting one, he should retire, except in case of emergency, or when he has been called from a considerable distance, in which latter case he may examine the patient and give his opinion in writing, and under seal, to be delivered to his associate.

6. All discussions in consultations should be held as secret and confidential. In case one or more of the participants in a consultation cannot agree with the others in reference to any important point, either in the diagnosis of the disease or the future treatment of the patient, such difference of opinion shall be forthwith communicated by the attending physician to the patient or his responsible friends, in order that they may decide whose opinion and advice they shall accept and act upon.

7. As circumstances sometimes occur to render a special consultation desirable, when the continued attendance of two physicians might be objectionable to the patient, the member of the faculty whose assistance is required in such cases should sedulously guard against all future unsolicited attendance. As such consultations require an extraordinary portion both of time and attention, at least a double honorarium may reasonably be expected.

8. A physician who is called upon to consult should observe the most honorable and scrupulous regard for the character and standing of the practitioner in attendance; the practice of the latter, if necessary, should be justified as far as it can be consistently with a conscientious regard for truth, and no hint or insinuation should be thrown out which could impair the confidence reposed in him, or affect his reputation. The consulting physician should also carefully refrain from any of those extraordinary attentions or assiduities which are too often practised by the dishonest for the base purpose of gaining applause, or ingratiating themselves into the favor of families and individuals.

ARTICLE V.

DUTIES OF PHYSICIANS IN CASES OF INTERFERENCE.

1. A physician, in his intercourse with a patient under the care of another practitioner, should preserve the strictest caution and reserve. No meddling inquiries should be made—no disingenuous hints given relative to the nature and treatment of his disorder; nor any course of conduct pursued that may directly or indirectly tend to diminish the trust reposed in the physician employed.

2. The same circumspection and reserve should be observed when, from motives of business or friendship, a physician is prompted to visit an individual who is under the direction of another practitioner. Indeed, such visits should be avoided, except under peculiar circumstances; and when they are made no particular inquiries should be instituted relative to the nature of the disease, or the remedies employed, but the topics of conversation should be as foreign to the case as circumstances will admit.

3. A physician ought not to take charge of, or prescribe for, a patient who has recently been under the care of another member of the faculty in the same illness, except in cases of sudden emergency or in consultation with the physician previously in attendance, or when the latter has relinquished the case, or been regularly notified that his services are no longer desired. Under such circumstances no unjust or illiberal insinuations should be thrown out in relation to the conduct or practice previously pursued, which should be justified as far as candor and regard for truth and probity will permit.

4. When a physician is called to an urgent case because the family attendant is not at hand, he ought, unless his assistance in consultation be desired, to resign the care of the patient to the latter immediately on his arrival.

5. It often happens in cases of sudden illness, or of recent accidents and injuries, owing to the alarm and anxiety of friends, that a number of physicians are simultaneously sent for. Under these circumstances courtesy should assign the patient to the first who arrives (unless the patient or some responsible friends express a preference for another), who should select from those present any additional assistance that he may deem necessary. In all such cases, however, the practitioner who officiates should request the family physician, if there be one, to be called, and, unless his further attendance be requested, should resign the case to the latter on his arrival.

6. When a physician is called to the patient of another practitioner, in consequence of the sickness or absence of the latter, he ought, on the return or recovery of the regular attendant, and with the consent of the patient, to surrender the case.

[The expression, "patient of another practitioner," is understood to mean a patient who may have been under the charge of another practitioner at the time of the attack of sickness, or departure from home of the latter, or who may have called for his attendance during his absence or sickness, or in any other manner given it to be understood that he regarded the said physician as his regular medical attendant.]

7. A physician, when visiting a sick person in the country, may be desired to see a neighboring patient who is under the regular direction of another physician, in consequence of some sudden change or aggravation of symptoms. The conduct to be pursued on such an occasion is to give advice adapted to present circumstances; to interfere no further than is absolutely necessary with the general plan of treatment; to assume no further directions unless it be expressly desired; and, in that case, to request an immediate consultation with the practitioner previously employed.

8. A physician should not give advice gratis to the well-to-do, either in private or hospital practice, because his doing so is an injury to his professional brethren. The office of a physician can never be supported as an exclusively beneficent one; and it is defrauding, in some degree, the common funds for its support, when fees are dispensed with which might justly be claimed.

9. When a physician who has been engaged to attend a case of midwifery is absent, and another is sent for, if delivery is accomplished during the attendance of the latter, he is entitled to the fee, but should resign the patient to the practitioner first engaged.

10. No physician or surgeon shall perform a post-mortem on the patients of any other physician or surgeon, without making a reasonable effort to have the attending physician or surgeon, or the physician or surgeon whose professional reputation is likely to be influenced by the post-mortem examination, or his chosen representative present; and further, if the presence of such physician or surgeon, or his chosen representative, be objected to by the friends of the deceased, the physician or surgeon requested to make the post-mortem shall refuse to make it, unless instructed to do so by a coroner acting as such.

ARTICLE VI.

OF DIFFERENCES BETWEEN PHYSICIANS.

1. Diversity of opinion and opposition of interest may, in the medical as in other professions, sometimes occasion controversy and even contention. Whenever such cases unfortunately occur, and cannot be immediately terminated, they should be referred to the arbitration of a sufficient number of physicians or a court-medical.

2. A peculiar reserve must be maintained by physicians towards the public in regard to professional matters, and as there exists numerous points in medical ethics and etiquette through which the feelings of medical men may be painfully assailed in their intercourse with each other, and which cannot be understood or appreciated by general society, neither the subject-matter of such differences nor the adjudication of the arbitrators should be made public, as publicity in a case of this nature may be personally injurious to the individuals concerned, and can hardly fail to bring discredit on the faculty.

ARTICLE VII.

OF PECUNIARY ACKNOWLEDGMENTS.

Some general rules should be adopted by the faculty in every town or district relative to pecuniary acknowledgments from their patients ; and it should be deemed a point of honor to adhere to these rules with as much uniformity as varying circumstances will admit. With regard to club practice, physicians should be remunerated in proportion to the work done at regular tariff rates.

ARTICLE VIII.

OF THE DUTIES OF THE PROFESSION TO THE PUBLIC.

1. As good citizens, it is the duty of physicians to be ever vigilant for the welfare of the community, and to bear their part in sustaining its institutions and burdens ; they should also be ever ready to give counsel to the public in relation to matters especially appertaining to their profession, as on subjects of medical police, public hygiene, and legal medicine. It is their province to enlighten the public in regard to quarantine regulations ; the location, arrangement and dietaries of hospitals, asylums, schools, prisons, and similar institutions ; in relation to the medical police of towns, as drainage, ventilation, etc. ; and in regard to measures for the prevention of epidemic and contagious diseases ; and when pestilence prevails, it is their duty to face the danger, and to continue their labors for the alleviation of the suffering, even at the jeopardy of their own lives.

2. Medical men should also be always ready, when called on by the legally constituted authorities, to enlighten coroners' inquests and courts of justice on subjects strictly medical—such as involve questions relating to sanity, legitimacy, murder by poisons or other violent means, and in regard to various other questions embraced in the science of medical jurisprudence. But in these cases, and especially where they are required to make a post-mortem examination, it is just, in consequence of the time, labor and skill required, and the responsibility and risk they incur, that the public should award them a proper honorarium.

3. There is no profession by the members of which eleemosynary services are more liberally dispensed than the medical, but justice requires that some limits should be placed to the performance of such good offices. Poverty, professional brotherhood, and certain of the public duties referred to in the first section of this article, should always be recognized as presenting valid claims for gratuitous services : but neither societies for mutual benefit, for the insurance of lives or for analogous purposes, nor any profession or occupation, can be admitted to possess such privilege. Nor can it be justly expected of physicians to furnish certificates of inability to serve on juries, to perform militia duty, or to testify to the state of health of persons wishing to insure their lives, obtain pensions, or the like, without a pecuniary acknowledgment. But to individuals in indigent circumstances such professional services should always be cheerfully and freely accorded.

4. It is the duty of physicians, who are frequent witnesses of the enormities committed by quackery, and the injury to health and even destruction of life caused by the use of quack medicines, to enlighten the public on these subjects, to expose the injuries sustained by the unwary from the devices and pretensions of artful empirics and impostors. Physicians ought to use all the influence which they may possess as professors in colleges of pharmacy, and by exercising their option in regard to the shops to which their prescriptions shall be sent, to discourage druggists and apothecaries from vending quack or secret medicines, or from being in any way engaged in their manufacture and sale.
