The full extent of the German retirement in the Somme area has not yet developed. Outpost fighting continued today between strong British patrols pressing forward over the newly yielded ground and the German rear guards, who fell back under the fire of their heaviest calibred guns.

There has been comparatively little light artillery fire, the Germans evidently depending on their heavies mounted on railway trucks, which could be rushed away at the last moment in case of necessity.

The British continued to move forward all along the line from just south of Gommecourt to Le Transloy, the latter point apparently being the pivot from which the German retreat swings backward. The line has been carried well to the northeast of Serre, while Irles and Warlencourt are in British possession. Serre, Pys, Warlencourt and Miraumont, like other famous points in the Somme battlefield, such as Pozieres, Courcelette and Contalmaison, long ago ceased to have form as villages. The artillery fire they endured for months pulverized them to bits of stone and brick, the remnants of which will now be used by the British in restoring the roads to a passable condition.

CREEPING NEARER BAPAUME.

The weather cleared today and the airplanes, quick to take advantage of flying opportunities, were up, closely observing the German movements. The British line today was creeping nearer Bapaume, the famous German stronghold, in regard to which there were reports that the garrison had blown up what had been proclaimed as impregnable fortified cellars and other various underground works, on which they had labored for the greater part of two years. The roads leading into Bapaume were also reported to be obstructed by giant trees, mine craters and other barriers. No official hint as to the probable line the Germans propose taking up could be obtained tonight from any member of the British staff. There have been many conjectures during the past week, however, that when the Germans began to fall back under pressure they would probably make no real resistance until they reached a line approximating Arras and Cambrai. It is known that the Germans have been preparing defenses that far back for some time, where they hope to hold against the expected allied offensive.

FIRE AT GOMMECOURT.

A fire was observed at Gommecourt today, a heavy artillery action going on, and this may be the next salient to give way. One of the German trenches, which has passed into British hands, had the official name of "heaven trench," altho its condition suggested anything but that. The German retirement, coming so closely on the heels of unrestricted submarine war, forms one of the most interesting phases of the great war. The Germans gave the first intimation of the near approach of their retirement when they evacuated Grandcourt three weeks ago. This was evidence of new German tactics, for thruout all the bitter fighting of 1916 they never yielded an inch of ground until they were driven out at the point of the bayonet. The backward movement inaugurated at Grandcourt now becomes the greatest retreat on this front since the battle of the Marne. The events of the past two days have sent a thrill thru the entire British 140 army, a thrill which seems to forecast the end of the "stationary" warfare.

STEAM VS. HYDRO What is Going on Behind the Scenes in Respect to Railway Nationalization?

The government is not taking the assistance or financial handouts wou public into its confidence respecting its clean up the situation. To quote : allway policy. We are assured that here will be no railway legislation when parliament reconvenes in April, and that t will follow the lines laid down in the eport of the special commission ap cointed nearly a year ago, That commission, it will be remembered, consisted of President Smith of the New York Cenral Railway, Sir George Paish and our wn Sir Harry Drayton, chairman of the Dominion Board of Railway Commissioners. Sir Harry Drayton, as the only Canadian on the commission, and the only one in close touch with the government, will, no doubt, have much to do with framing the report of the commis sion, and it is rumored that he will be come minister of railways and carry into execution the recommendations that he may make to the government.

This is as it may be, but we take it for granted that the government has dicy in respect to the railways, and hat it knows perfectly well at this whether it does or does not intend to nationalize the old Grand Trunk. But is that policy to be kept secret until the return of the prime minister? Does the government propose to sit down and widdle its thumbs for another two nonths in view of the terrible coal famine and the horrible breakdown of our transportation service in Ontario?

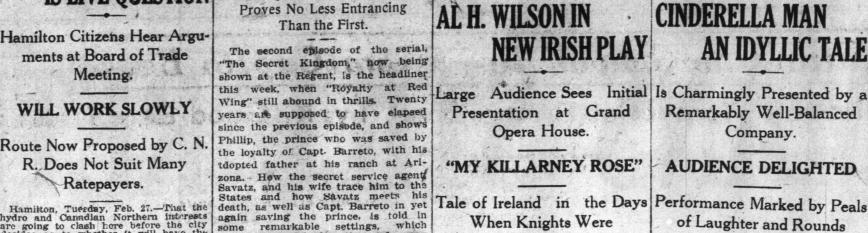

Sir George Foster, acting-premier seems to think that the scarcity of coal in Tor onto is largely imaginary, and assures people that they will feel all right as oon as the warm weather comes. In his etter to Mayor Church he goes out of his way to say that Taking all the factors into consider-ation the congestion on the other side of the line, the exceedingly steady cold weather and the scarcity of labor in our own country, it would appear that the situation has been more successfully handled than if the Dominion Govern-ment had undertaken to take over the railways and manage them for this particular purpose.

The discussion principally centred on the fact that the route now being pro-posed by the C.N.R. officials thru the city was not the official map of the railway thru this city and was not the one possed upon by the city some time ago. Mr. Henne claimed that it was the route map which had been in the hands of the city clerk and that it had already been approved by the minister of railways, but not by the city. He said that the route now being proposed was the old one, but the C.N.R. wanted it approved under the nem name of the Toronto, Niagara and North Western Railway. as required. Irish mirth and Irish melodies were the happy combination which drew enthusi-astice applause from a splendid audience at the Grand last night, when Al H. Wil-son, the irresistible comedian and singer, opened a week's engagement with "My Killarney Rose." This delightful little song-play in three acts is replete with rare flashes of humor and soft music. Besides being a comedian of rare abil-ity and a delightful singer, Mr. Wilson is also a composer of no mean merit, and many of his own compositions won re-peated/ encores at the initial perform-ance. wistful chasm that yawns between ex-treme, wealth and utter penury could be crossed at need. "My Killarney Rose" tells the story of a young Irish peer, who chose to roam his native country as a mere vagabond, in-stead of living in England with his father, Sir Richard Carey. He was the friend of the simple gipsy folk and Irish peasantry, who loved him for his kindly personality and sweet sing-ing voice. He offers to save Rose Langley (Laura Lemmers) from a forced marriage with her guardian's son, by giv-ing her his own name on the condition that they never meet again after they leave the church in which they are se-cretly married. The plan does not turn out just as they expected, for the schem-ing and plotting of the self-interested guardian (Edward F. Settle) only tends to convince Rose that the man she has married, before she ever knew his name, is not a vagabond, but a gentleman, and later, when his identity is disclosed, all her dreams come true and they live hap-pily ever after in Ireland. Mrs. Caner had left him and gone to her father, when the fur is coming home to her father, when the curtain rises. He is a grumpy old srouch, and his friends, Dr. Thayer (Lloyd Bacon), Albert Sewell (Charles Angelo) and Romney Evans (Frank Gli-more), await with him the girl's arrival. He is not prepared to be civil, to say nothing of affectionate. He doesn't want a woman in his house. Phoebe Foster, who takes the part of Marjorie Caner, managed the arrival scene particularly well. She is presently found with Walter Nicolls (Reginald Mason), who proposes to her, but it is her father's money at-tracts him, and she dismisses him. Rom-ney comes in with a story of a young poet who lives in an attic next door in dire poverty, writing an opera for a prize of $10,000, and fills her mind with visions of the lonely genius. The second act takes one to the garret of the genius, and it recalls delightfully the garret scenes of "The Music Master." There is much in the pathetic but humorous figure of Primrose, excellently played by Frank Bacon, to suggest Dayid Warfield. An-thony Quintard, the genius, is well acted by Alexander Onslow. After visits from Rommey and Primrose, Quintard goes out, and presently, across the roof, thru the attic window, comes Marjorie, with a bas-ket. It is Christmas Day, and she makes things seasonable, but Quintard returns before she can escape. She is discovered, and says she is a companion to Caner's daughter. In the third act this innocent frendship has thickened considerably, and she has imparted an atmosphere of the hussy out of the house. How it all came right is reserved for the fourth act, which is so charmingly acted by every-body that the curtain fell before anyone had achance to di numbers.

There are three comedians with the show, Frank Hunter, Eddie Swartz and George Hickman. Elsie Lavedeau, Virginia Ware and Julia Clifford are a trio of winsome leading women, who have a way of singing their songs that soon wins approval. Swartz and Hickman are Hebrew and Irish comedians, while Hunter impersonates an Italian in the first act and in the last half of the show does a black face specialty. The Isabella sisters are gifted violinists, and offer a very good program of whirlwind ragtime selections. The costumes of the principals and the chorus are excellent. The stage settings and scenic effects of burlettas are good. "FOLLIES OF PLEASURE"

One of the brightest burlesque en ertainments touring the Columbia circuit is given by the "Globe Trotters" company, which opened a week's engagement in Toronto at the Gavet Theatre yesterday. Sir George Foster also wrote the Reail Coal Dealers' Association the other day that speaking for himself personally, he did not think this was a good time to load up the government with any more railway ownership. We submit the government has no choice but to take over the Grand Trunk Pacific. We say without the slightest foar of contradiction that the Grand Trunk Pacific will be taken over by the national government within the next ninety days. That being the case we are brought face to face with the question, what is to be done with the old Grand Trunk?

On Dec. 10, 1915, Chairman Smither of the Grand Trunk Board put the case squarely up to Sir Robert Borden as prime minister of Canada. Mr. Smither pointed out that the Grand Trunk Pa cific Railway was not earning operating expenses, and that it had fixed charges to meet aggregating six million dollars a year. The deficit had to be made up by annual contributions from the De minion Government and the old Grand Trunk. The old Grand Trunk's share of the burden amounted to $2,750,000 a year. That burden, he caid, the Grand Trunk could no longer carry. Indeed, he leclared that on March 1, 1916, the Grand Trunk and the Grand Trunk Pacific alike would have to default and be subject to liquidation.

Among other things, he said ;

We have done our utmost to meet the We have done our utmost to meet the heavy financing which has been necces-sary, and the difficulty of which has been immensely increased by the disas-trous war conditions. We are now "at the end of our tether" with regard to Grand Trunk Pacific financing. The first Grand Trunk Pacific pay-ments for interest after the 1st January next will become due on the 1st March, and amount to just under $1,000,000. and there is no prospect of our being able to meet that payment.

Away back in 1915 the government pro nosed lending the Grand Trunk some fifteen million dollars to tide over the situation and stave off the necessity of coming to a decision. As a matter of fact. some eight million dollars was almost some eight million dollars was almost mates ,as revised by the committee, forced upon them by way of loan at the leave the expenditure at $59,000 less next session of parliament. The Evolution of a Bottle of Milk

Day after day, year in and year out, the bottles are left on your doorstep. Just an ordinary event. Yet have you ever stopped to think just what stages the milk passes through before it reaches you in the Farmers' Dairy bottle?

The series of interesting events start at the farms of our shareholders. Healthy, inspected cows fed on the best of foods are the source of our supply. Regularly each day the cows are milked by expert milkmen. When milking time is through the milk is cooled and poured into cans steriland then elevated to a vat in the pasteurizing room at the top of the dairy. Here it is pasteurized in a battery of three modern pasteurizers. Itsnext trip is over the coolers in a glass walled room where it is cooled. The bottling room is the next place to which it is sent. Here, sterilized bottles pass in single file on a moving table to the milk tank where they are automatically filled with rich, pure, pasteurized milk, Journal. Judgment in nine cases was handed out at Osgoode Hall yesterday afternoon in the second division appellate court. Of the nine cases, five appeals were allowed by the court and the other four were dis-missed. In the action of B. F. Augustine of the Augustine Automatic Rotary En-gine Company against The Saturday Night for $50,000 damages for alleged libel over the publication of an article in The Saturday Night, on Feb. 6, 1915, at-tacking Augustine and his company, the court allowed the appeal and ordered a new trial. The case was heard by Justice Britton some time ago, and the jury dis-missed the action. Justice Clute, in giving his views of the case, stated that, in his oplinon, the detendant company acted in good faith and in the interest of the public in pub-lishing the article. He also asserted that the pleadings in both cases should be changed and both actions tried separate-by.

Parks Commissioner Chambers asks a special appropriation of $7,000 for the purpose of carrying on a campaign to extinguish the tussock moth. Last year, according to the commissioner, the insect pest worked considerable damage among the city trees, and serious results may follow if effective methods are not instituted to check its spread.

The board of control will today confer with representatives of the pro-vincial government regarding the campaign to commence production of foodstuffs on vacant properties ad-joining the city. In a telephone con-versation yesterday with C. F. Bailey, assistant deputy minister of agricul-ture, Mayor Church proposed that the city cultivate 800 acres at the jail farm for potato growing.

As a result of the operations Thirty veterans of the great war prised the positions attacked and carried by the British last year.

As to the belief that the Germans are retiring to shorten their lines, it hardly true, for their front still extends about Soissons and any withdrawal eastward while they retain the heights of Soissonais. lengthens their front. In worder to gain shorter lines they might evacuate the Lille-Solssons-Conflans triangle and gain a forty or fifty miles' shorter front, but this manoeuvre might not give them such strong positions as they now hold and it would require a greater depth of concentration for defence. If the enemy really proceeds to shorten his line by evacuating the heights of Soissonais, the allies will benefit equally, for with the forces released by the shortening of the German front they can form another mass of manoeuvre and attack the enemy at an additional vulnerable point.

Kut-el-Amara fell rather suddenly. Frightened by the successful prossing of the Tigris in the Shumran bend, upstream from Kut, the Turks, it appears, stampeded from the town and even from the Sannaiyat position and they have begun a full retreat towards Baghailah, 24 miles to the west. Since the British control the Tigris above Kut-el-Amara and since the shore road does not provide facilities for heavy traffic, the Turks cannot have removed much of their supplies and military luggage, and so they must have lost heavily in the matter of supplies and war material. The campaign in this region has suddenly reverted from trench to mobile warfare. -

The advantages gained by the British from the occupation of Kut-el-Amara include the securing of a strong base for further offensive operations against Bagdad and the opening up of a new line of supply for Russia by way of the Persian Gulf. The advantages also embrace the dealing of a strong moral blow to German prestige not only in Berlin but at Constantinople, for the Germans have entirely controlled matters in Turkey since they dragged her into the war. The loss of Kut-el-Amara and the further threat to Bagdad will exert a powerful effect on German home opinion and it may even compel the enemy to divert troops to the east from the principal theatres of the war in order to maintain his prestige in Asia Minor, for loss of Bagdad would do more to undermine Turkey and her influence in Asia than the loss of Constantinople.

Strategically considered, the fighting in Mesopotamia is the envelopment of the Turkish left wing by the British right. The British left flank confronts the left wing of the German attack in France, while Russia confronts the German right wing. The object of the advance up the Tigris is to attempt the plercing of the line of the enemy, in order that a portion of his army may be destroyed. In conjunction with the movement from Mesopotamia, a movement from Egypt is proceeding. It has lately marked time, apparently, in order to permit the other and co-operating force to capture Kut-el-Amara. It is probable that the Egyptian force will now advance on Jerusalem, provided that it has solved the problem of water supply.

The armed neutrality, which the The armed neutrality, which the president proposes, does not look to war: whether it shall become war depends upon those who infringe upon the rights it seeks to protect. There is ample historical precedent for it: Northern Europe, under the leader-ship of Russia, formed a league and wad it to protect its commerce in the used it to protect its commerce in the wars between England and France, and France and Spain. The precedents set by John Quincy Adams to protect the commerce of the United States against the "predatory violence" of France during the Na-pcieonic wars draw a striking parallel to the situation which confronts President Wilson. Now, as then, congress is asked to empower the president to act as may become necessary. Every confidence is expressed at the White House that congress ultimately will act as the president asks, taking into account his efforts of more than two years to preserve peace as sufficient evidence that he daes not desire to plunge the ountry into war. No steps toward the arming of merchantships are to be taken until con-gress acts. The convoying of meranimen is not approved by naval au thorities as an effective or desirable

Claim That Local Manufacturers Are Making Articles for Montreal Firms.

Organizer T. Black, speaking at a meeting of the Cloak Cutters' Local, No. 83, at the Labor Temple last evening, stated that the cloak makers' strike in Montreal is not yet over, and Toronto may yet be drawn into it. He stated that 400 men are now on strike in Montreal, and information has come to his notice that the manufacturers in Toronto are making articles for Montreal firms. "Committees are now investigating," he said, "and should there be any truth in the rumor, and I have every reason to be-lieve there is, it will mean that Toronto will be embroiled in a strike involving 2500 cloak makers. Up to the present the Montreal bosses have refused to negotiate with the union. altho settlements have been arranged in some of the small sheps." "Are there any women involved?"

being marched back of our lines. One of our signillers told me about it. When our infantry went over they didn't show any fight at all—just simply stuck up their hands over their heads and came along. They were ill clad and famished with hunger. "I will tell you of the first shells that I saw coming our way. We were fixing up the wagons near a big mine, when the Fritzles must have seen us working in the davime and they started. They fired 5.9 shells. The fragments were falling all over the place, but we stuck around and ducked. One hit down on a hard road— hell and corruption broke with it, but there was only one casuality in the bat-tery. A plece of shell hit a driver on the arm and face, but the damage was only slight—just enough to get him a trip to England. I was standing when the shell struck. I heard it and ducked— good thing, as a piece hit the wagon wheel right in line where I was. I was lucky to get away in the dark. A frag-ment hit Paul Harrington (a son of Dr. Harrington, Bathurst street), when he called out: 'I's got me.' I crawled around the wagon to him and found Paul more scared than hust. "We have been moved back to a peach of a quiet place now and are having some enjoyment." "Take him all round," said Isaac. "he "Take him all round," said Isaac. "he sure was." "What do you mean by 'all round'?" "T mean take his general conduct from the time we left the paddock to go to the post until the race was over. He seemed to know just what was doin' when there was anything on. And as we walked to the post, he'd size up the crowd in the stand, just as tho he was a countin' of 'em. And then he'd go to the post nice and easy, just as tho he was a savin himself and didn't want to turn a hair if he could help it. Nobody ever told me if he could help it. Nobody ever told me iness. STRUCK BY FALLING TREE Calvin Hulbert Bady Injured in Attempt ing To Save Team of Horses.

While a number of men were engaged in cutting down trees on Frank Holden's bush on the 5th concession of Uxbridge Township, a day or two ago, one of the trees in falling threatened to fall directly across a team of horses which had been thoughtlessly left standing near. Calvin Hulbert, one of the men engaged in cut-ting wood, seeing the danger to the team, attempted to reach them, seize the lines and drive out of danger, but was struck by the falling tree before he could escape and crushed to the ground. He was rushed to a neighbor's house and medical aid summoned, but his condition is re-garded as serious, his spine having been sarded as serious, his spine having been injured. Hulbert and his family had just recovered from an attack of typhold fever.
