OTTAWA April 3.

THE BUDGET SPEECH, which Finance Ministers view with fear and trembling, and in which Opposition men hope to find food for argument against the powers that be, has been delivered, affording immense satisfaction to the deliverer thereof, his friends, and the Government; and causing corresponding depression to the gentlemen of the "Left."
In his own Province, no one doubted Mr. Tilley's ability to hold a prominent position in the world of figures. But financing for a little Province is quite a different thing from performing the same task for a Dominion whose ambitious borders are bounded by two oceans; and Mr. Tilley might well grasp with a tremulous hand the portfolio of the second minister of the Cabinet, particularly when he had to follow in the contesters of Six Fronts.

Tilley might well grasp with a tremulous hand the portfolio of the second minister of the Cabinet, particularly when he had to follow in the footsteps of Sir Francis Hineks, the veteran financier of 30 years standing. In view of these facts it is most gratifying to have to record that upon the testimony of both parties in the House, and all parties out of it, Mr. Tilley's first trying duty as the Finance Minister of Canada, has been satisfactorily and successfully discharged, and that when he resumed his seat, after his first budget speech, on Tuesday, he occupied a higher place in the estimation of Parliament than ever before. Before rising to speak, one could easily see that Mr. Tilley felt the importance and responsibility of the hour, and during the earlier part of his speech, the suppressed tremor in his voice showed that even his steady nerves were receiving a trying test.

Now the vote is a tie. Then the Government majority is 20; now it is 25, 28, and a cheer rings out, suppressed by the Speaker. Up it goes, and then the totals are given, yeas 76, nays 107, and such cheering has never before been heard in the Canadian House of Commons. It is repeated again and again. Fortin has pounded his desk till the lid has cracked. The Speaker rises to declare the motion lost and the cheering is resumed, louder and larger than ever. Huntington has disappeared, while, in his old position, with closed eyes, apparently careless of what is going on, sits the master of the situation, the victor of the hour.

The result has created intense feeling and my opinion is that Sir John, having the fellest investigation into the charges intitative in giving an opportunity for the fellest investigation into the charges.

The latter part of the speech was delivered with the greatest fluency and vigor. Only with the greatest fluency and vigor. Only very near the close did he emerge from An Interview with America's Great

Mr. Tilley resumed his seat amid prolonged applause which I have seidom heard given to any one except the Premier.

Mr. Mackenie's speech was in reality complimentary all through—the first of it in words, the rest of it implied in the fact that he made no attempt to controvert any of the statements made.

After Wesleyans of this city intend holding Hon. Dr. Tupper had given notice of a resolution for providing for the official inspection of gas meters and the testing of the purity of gas furnished for co sumption, Sir John Macdonald moved for a committee of inquiry into the charges contained in Mr. Huntington's motion in reference to the Pacific Railway. He explained that Mr. Huntington's motion had been treated as it had been because it was regarded as a want-of-confidence motion

It had been voted down, and now he was ready to give full opportunity for enquiry He proposed to give the committee power to sit during recess, and to examine wit nesses on oath. to distress for rent. The rest of the afternoon was taken up by the discussion of the Chatham Railway aid bill. Hon. Mr. Kelly explained the bill. There were eight miles of road to be built, and a Company had been formed with a capital of $20,000. The Government proposed to give a subsidy of $4,000 a mile and take stock to the amount of $3,000 a mile-$56,000 altogether. The bill was opposed by Lindsay, Covert, Hibbard, Hanington, Maher and Landry, and supported by Napler, Crawford, Beckwith, Coram, King and Ryan. Mr. Gillespie moved to increase the subsidy to $10,000 a mile. The motion was ruled out, as money motions must be made by the Government. Mr. Gough said he would accept the bill, and, a few minutes afterward, announced that he had decided to oppose it on account of the insufficiency of the subsidy. Mr. Adams said he was opposed to it, but did not give reasons. Mr. Hanington's motion to throw out the bill was lost by a vote of 13 to 25, and the bill was
