BALL TEAM IS NOW ASSURED

Meeting Last Evening Was Successful in Organization and Big Doings for Victoria Day

If the enthusiasm shown at a meeting of young men last night is an indication, Hartland will have a strong baseball team the present season than last year or ever.

The manager, A. W. Kyle, and Secretary-Treasurer, V. F. Noddin, who were the first officers last year resigned and F. H. Stevens was elected president of the club's meetings with G. N. Stevens as Secretary-Treasurer.

After discussion over the topic A. W. Kyle accepted re-election as manager. The amount of energy, of real hard work, which he put into the game last season, vouchsafed him for this year's endeavor and under his management a unity of spirit developed among the members of the club which closed its work last season with the best of fellowship and brought the whole crowd to the meeting last evening eager to begin again. It will be remembered that the Hartland team last year won 18 out of 23 games played. These were nearly all pitched by Walter Billings, who, it is much regretted, is not expected here this season. A financial committee consisting of C. N. Stevens and A. W. Kyle was appointed and they will at once solicit funds for carrying on the business for the team.

Whereas it is expected to play two games a week throughout the season, getting large crowds in the habit of coming to Hartland regularly, the business men will not fail to respond for so good a business project. Last year each game cost in excess of $30 a week, local expenses, and while the gate receipts were pleasing the boys themselves found it necessary to chip in at the close of the season to close up the accounts.

The Observer has heard it whispered that several local business men have hinted their willingness to contribute $25 at the start and patronize the games afterward.

The following list of names were enrolled as material available for players: George Britton, V. A. Lovo, O. Hovey, A. Hovey, I. Hovey, W. W. Baker, F. McAdam, G. L. Hatfield, A. Shaw, K. Irving, C. Rideout, G. Boyer, E. Noddin, W. Ward, V. Henshaw, C. Lewis, W. McManus, H. Bolster, A. Miller, B. Shaw, H. Taylor, George Taylor, E. B. Burpee, J. Lavigne, G. Hammond, I. B. Britton.

This is a good list from which to choose a team and their permanency will be determined, of course, by their ability, as the most important factor, and also their regular attendance at practice. They will choose their captain at the first meeting on the field.

It was arranged to have the first matched game on Victoria Day and the committee to handle affairs in connection with it are F. H. Stevens, chairman; G. Murray McLeod and Ed. Laskey. It is expected to have a game with some of the neighboring teams, probably a double header. There will be other sports and one of the finest motion picture programs possible to secure. Arrangements are being made to secure Knowles' orchestra and advertising for the event will soon be on the boards.

CREIGHTON MUSICAL INSTRUMENT CO.

A New Woodstock Corporation With a Live Hartland Branch

F. O. Creighton, who became well known to people of this vicinity as representative of J. Clarke & Son, and who later devoted his whole time to the sale of McLaughlin cars, and still later formed a co-partnership with Everett Bidley in a general garage and sales business is now president of the Creighton Musical Instrument Co. He has associated with him Everett Bidley, John H. Lee and Ralph Sprague and they will carry on a wholesale and retail business in music and musical instruments of all kinds, specializing in pianos, player pianos, phonographs, records, etc.

The new firm are distributors for Gerhard-Heintzman, Ennis, Mendell-sohn pianos and players, Brunswick and Gerhard-Heintzman phonograph records. The territory the firm will cover is all the St. John valley and Western New Brunswick.

They have fitted up a beautiful store on Main street, Woodstock. There have been record booths built, in which the records can be tested without interfering with the ordinary business of the store. The rooms are finished with oak leather upholstered chairs; the rest room is for those who wish to call, rest, and listen to the records without any obligation to buy; everybody is invited to use these rest rooms, as the management wish to have visitors feel at home; the wall is of old ivory with buff base, while the ceiling is pearl white. There is a fine private office; a perfect lighting system makes the place very attractive. It is considered to be the finest store of its kind in the province.

McQuarrie & Dickinson are the company's representatives in Hartland.

THE HARTLAND BRIDGE

B. F. Smith, on Monday brought up the subject of the Hartland bridge, two spans of which were lately carried away by the ice, and was assured by Hon. Mr. Veniot that arrangements were now being made for the establishment of a ferry service. He also said that it was proposed to erect a bridge on concrete piers with spans of hard pine covering, which later on would be replaced by steel spans.

This comprises all the information at hand, and it is believed that traffic will be restored, almost immediately. The freshet did a great deal of damage everywhere and the Department is hard put to cope with conditions.

The Simonds ferry, three miles north, is running and will convey teams and autos.

Mrs. Carrie McBurnie

Mrs. Carrie McBurnie, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Peterson, formerly of Tracey's Mills, passed away at the home of her sister, Mrs. H. G. Stackpole, of Bridgewater on Tuesday, April 6, from a serious attack of heart trouble. Having recovered somewhat from her illness, she had come to her sister's for a visit, had come to her sister's for a visit, hoping the change would tend to a speedy recovery. For two weeks it seemed that the expectation would be realized, but a relapse occurred. She was fifty-seven years of age, having spent her early childhood at Tracey's Mills. While living there she was united with the Baptist church. The latter part of her life was spent in Bangor.

She is survived by one son, Ray, of Bangor; two brothers, William and Herbert Peterson, of Tracey's Mills, and four sisters—Miss Lavinia Peterson, of Tracey's Mills; Mrs. J. A. Good, of Good Corner; Mrs. H. G. Stackpole, of Bridgewater, and Mrs. L. F. Merrill, of New Hampshire.

The funeral was held on Friday, April 9, at the Free Baptist church, Bridgewater, interment being made at Smith's cemetery. There were many floral tributes from relatives and friends.

Mrs. James Canavan

The village of Upper Kent was saddened by the sudden death of Mrs. James Canavan following pneumonia on April 9. Though but 21 years of age she was taken leaving a sorrowing husband and infant child and many relatives and friends. The funeral service took place in the United Baptist church and was largely attended. Rev. C. O. Howlett preached a very appropriate sermon and the remains were interred in the Geo cemetery.

COULDN'T WORK FOR WHOLE YEAR

Veteran Was All Run Down, But Gains Fifteen Pounds And Is In Best of Health Now.

"For one year before I began taking Tanlac I was so weak I could not do a lick of work, but now I have gained fifteen pounds in weight and am in the very best of health," said Arthur F. Ingram, of 4 George St., Halifax, N. S., a few days ago. Mr. Ingram saw four years of service in France with the Canadian Expeditionary Forces, being attached to the Fifth Artillery. He was engaged in some of the heaviest fighting of the whole war, including the battles of the Somme and Cambrai.

"I have been in miserable health ever since I got out of the Army late last Spring. In fact, my troubles started when I was gassed in France, just before the Armistice was signed," continued Mr. Ingram. "In six months I lost forty pounds and some days I was so weak that I came near collapsing. My appetite was so poor that I had to force myself to eat enough to keep alive and sometimes just the smell of food would nauseate me so that I would have to get out of the house. You can imagine how weak I was when I tell you I went for days at a time without eating a bite. I could hardly retain a thing on my stomach. Why, sometimes I would become so nauseated while seated at the table that I would have to get up and leave. The cramps and pains in my stomach would nearly draw me double and at times the agony was almost more than I could bear. I was so nervous and restless that I got but little sleep and some nights I lay awake the whole night through.

"My brother-in-law had been taking Tanlac and it had done him so much good that he advised me to try it, too. I had taken so many medicines that I had about lost faith in them, but I made up my mind to give it a trial. Well, sir, I was so surprised when I began to improve I could hardly believe it. That gave me encouragement and I kept right on taking it without missing a dose until now I have finished my fourth bottle. And today it seems almost too good to be true, but it is a fact just the same that I am in perfect health and am feeling as fine as a man could want. I have a splendid appetite and can eat anything I please, my stomach was never in better condition and I digest everything I eat without the least trouble of any kind. The cramping pains have all disappeared and it is no trouble for me to retain what I eat. I sleep like a log every night and when I get up of mornings I am ready for as big a day's work as any man. My strength and energy have come back and already I have gained fifteen pounds and am just gaining right along. In my opinion Tanlac has no equal as a medicine and I recommend it in the very highest terms."

Tanlac is sold in Hartland by Estey & Curtis Co., and by the leading druggist in every town.

Card of Thanks

Mr. and Mrs. James Bradley and family wish to express their sincere thanks to their many kind friends and neighbors, who so kindly assisted them in various ways during their recent bereavement.

Why Canadians Should Insure in a Canadian Company

BECAUSE—Experience covering a period of forty-six years has proven that the death rate of insured lives is about 15 per cent greater in the United States than in Canada.

BECAUSE—A Canadian does not need to assist in paying for this extra heavy death rate in a foreign country.

BECAUSE—A Canadian insuring in a foreign Company is sending his money out of Canada. If retained in Canada he and Canadians generally will benefit by its circulation and investment.

BECAUSE—In The Policy-Holders' Mutual Life (of Canada) he can secure his insurance at lower rates and on easier terms than in any other Company.

BECAUSE—The Policy-Holders' Mutual Life (of Canada) was organized for the express purpose of eliminating all objectionable features in Life Insurance.

BECAUSE—In The Policy-Holders' Mutual Life (of Canada) the Policyholder votes and participates in the management on equal terms with the Stockholders.

BECAUSE—By its Act of Incorporation provision is made for the Policyholder voting at his own home if convenient to attend the general meetings.

BECAUSE—By its Act of Incorporation the dividend to its Stockholders is limited and all profits above this limited dividend belong to the Policyholder.

BECAUSE—By its Act of Incorporation no "tontine" or "Gold Bond" policies or anything of a like nature can be issued.

BECAUSE—Its Policy-holders participate in the annual distribution of profits after the third of the life of each policy.

BECAUSE—The low rates and annual distribution of profits leave the money in the Policyholder's pockets or return it to him each year instead of its being retained for speculative purposes as has been charged against some Companies.

BECAUSE—Premiums may be paid monthly, quarterly, semi-annually or annually as best suits the convenience of the insured.

BECAUSE—In The Policy-Holders' Mutual Life (of Canada) he will be insured in a Canadian Company incorporated by special Act, especially safeguarding his interests, thoroughly democratic in its principles and management, with every safe-guard and security to which the strongest Stock Company can lay claim or which government deposit reserve and inspection can secure.

Let's have a concert to-night—

SWITCH on the light in the living-room! Mother, YOU get ready the programme!

We'll sit around to-night and have a real two hours' concert. All by ourselves! We'll start in the regular way with an overture. Then we'll have one of those new dances. After that we'll ALL join in, and sing two or three of the liveliest "rags" we've got. We'll play that rattling march that Jack's so keen about, and finish with Mary's favorite—"The Swing Song."

Come on! Are you ready? Let's start! Who'll do the playing?

Why, THERE'S dad at the piano—Jack and Mary perched at either side of him.

Never had a lesson in his life, can't read a note of music—but, say, doesn't he play like a regular Paderewski!

Watch him swing with the rhythm. See how keen he is about the expression—gets every little shade into it! Oh, he's proud, thrilled, completely absorbed with his playing!

Hear how easily and spontaneously he interprets every emotion—laughter or tears, care-free jollity or sighing sorrow. Truly, no ordinary "player" is this Gerhardt Heintzman Player-Piano.

Dad himself says it's the best investment of his lifetime! Brings recreation, brain rest, inspiration. He's PROUD to own it!

And mother thinks it's a fine education for the youngsters—gives them a true and wonderful appreciation of music.

Let us bring the gladness and inspiring goodness of MUSIC into your home. We'll gladly demonstrate the Gerhardt Heintzman Player-Piano to you. You'll be surprised that an instrument so good, bringing a lifetime's happiness, costs so little, can be bought so easily.

GRAND FALLS

If the Frasers are prepared to give guarantees of an actual development the legislature must be prepared to go a long way to meet their necessities in the way of hydro power. At the same time the thought must be kept fully in mind that the spirit of the age is against the alienation of public rights. The Grand Falls and the Tobique both offer exceptional opportunities for power development. Their proximity to the great timber areas of New Brunswick, Quebec and Maine give them a potential value which cannot and should not be lightly regarded. The future as well as the present must be considered by the legislature in dealing with these power prospects. In other words whatever rights are given there should be full and adequate protection for the public now and hereafter. The necessity that this protection be sufficiently clear to leave no possibility of doubt constitutes a very strong reason for public development with generous consideration of the requirements of the great industry which the Frasers and their associates plan to operate. It should be possible to work out an agreement which will meet their necessities while protecting for all time to come the rights of the communities which must grow and enlarge as a direct consequence of the establishment through power development of a great industry on the banks of the St. John or the Tobique. Present owners of the Grand Falls power privileges have no rights the legislature should scruple to exterminate in the interests of those who will actually guarantee development, but the present teaches how necessary it is to guard against letting private interests gain control of important public rights.—St. John Globe.

Two Sides of Japan.
A remarkable difference exists between the climate of western and central Japan, so much so that these districts are distinguished by the names of Sanyo—shady side—and San'yoku—sunny side, respectively. During the long and rigorous winter of western Japan the central province, bordering on the inland sea, enjoys dry and comparatively mild weather. The two regions and the factors determining their climatic conditions are distinct. A Japanese writer says that while the winter climate of central and southern Japan depends on the southwestern monsoons, that of the western coast is directly related to the barometric area of north China.

Simple Competition.

It was the first day of school and Elizabeth, who is now in the second grade, brought her little sister, Emma, to school with her to start in the first grade. The teacher said to Elizabeth, "How old is Emma?" Elizabeth answered, "I don't know, but we've had her to three fairs."

Limit in Funniness.

Harold, four years old, was on a vacation in the country. After he came back his mother asked him what he had seen. He replied: "Cows, horses, geese and chickens, but the funniest thing was a black chicken laid a white egg."

Nobility of Labor.

How, then, can we set the world to work again? It can be done only by the dread of starvation or by the acceptance of a new principle as the basis of industry. Man will work happily if he has an assurance that he is serving himself and his fellows; he will not work happily if he suspects that he is mainly serving a self-seeking master.

He is not a Utopian, who demands the establishment of a new heaven or a new earth to-morrow. He only wishes to be able to feel that his work is a contribution to something better than an employer's balance at the bank. Work is a means of escape from the ills of starvation, ignorance, dirt and general helplessness. It becomes nobler when it is done for the purpose of enabling others to escape from these ills. The commonplaces of morality tell us all this. Preachers have told us for ages that the work of a crossing sweeper done from a generous motive is as noble as the work of a Prince. It is the idea of the nobility of work into the general mind can we ever persuade men again to work as hard as they used to do. They will never work such long hours again. All the more important will it be for them—we should say for us—to work still more intensely at such work as our hands find to do.

Depends.

"A drop of ink makes million think." Well, that depends a lot—I do declare it makes more swear when it becomes a blot.

An oil useful in soap making is being obtained from grape seeds in Argentina.

Breaking Toast.

The bit of toasted bread that was deemed such an important ingredient in many an old time drink was considered a morsel of honor and fell to the one whose turn came last to sip from the common cup.

In Cromwell's time, so we read, a favorite toast of the cavaliers was to put a crumb of bread in the glass and before they drank to say, "God send this crum-well down."

The very name toast calls up a host of anecdotes that have been the very essence of many a convivial scene.

The well known one of the accomplished Judge Story at a dinner in honor of Everett's appointment as ambassador to the court of St. James is especially graceful.

"Genius—sure to be welcomed where Everett goes."

The next response to this was: "Law, equity and jurisprudence—no efforts can raise them above one Story."

Alphonse KARR, one of the daintiest of writers, once gave a toast at a dinner of physicians by proposing "the health to the sick."

When Home Seems Good

BLIZZARD OUTDOORS—warmth and comfort within. There is nothing in the home so necessary as a good furnace. Stoves and base burners are unequal to the task—they choke the air with dust and only warm parts of the house.

And buying a furnace is a matter of knowing how. The warm air heating system is the least costly. It is the most effective and healthful too. The will keep every corner of your home delightfully comfortable in all kinds of weather. It draws in the pure fresh air from the big outdoors, warms and moistens it and sends it on its way to you. Stoves and radiators can only heat the same air over and over.

ENTERPRISE
BLAZER WARM AIR FURNACE

Reward for Foresightedness

Last September a prominent farmer, near Centreville, bought a Ford one-ton Truck, equipped with fittings, etc., for $950.00.

He used it to haul five hundred (500) barrels of potatoes across the line into Bridgewater.

These he stored in Bridgewater till Saturday, April 10, when he sold the five hundred (500) barrels for $9.85 per barrel, realizing exactly $2000 more on his five hundred (500) barrels on the American side, than he realized on five hundred (500) barrels sold on the Canadian side.

Without the Truck he could not have hauled this quantity of potatoes to Bridgewater in the fall and if he had not had the potatoes stored in Bridgewater, he could not have sold them at this high price, as it would have been impossible to have moved them there in April, when roads are in present condition.

Consequently, because of his foresightedness in purchasing a Ford Truck, this farmer is in $1050.00 in cash, as well as the price of the Truck.

Not Done For if the Bridge is Gone

I want my customers to know that I am not done for yet. Of course I will not be able to handle the Town end of the business for a while, but you will find two obliging young men in charge of that at the Hartland Drug Store. Just go in and try. I think you will be satisfied to trade with them both in photographs, films, books, etc. If you have pictures to be framed, leave them there for me, and when I get them framed I will leave them there for you.

Moving the Movers

By J. L. JAMES

I was sitting in the stately little depot of a prairie town. A "norther" was growing around outside, and whistling mournfully about the eaves. A lone drummer, two or three farmers, and myself, were waiting for the local going west, a swaying combination of one rickety passenger coach, any number of freight cars, and a sputtering little hog-back engine.

The train made city trips, but on its return each afternoon, or midnight, became No. 3 instead of No. 1—its west-bound cognomen.

The road boasted of another train, subject, also, to daily change of name—No. 2 and No. 4—a real passenger train, one late in the afternoon, and likely to arrive at any time thereafter.

On this particular morning, No. 1, known by the boys as "The Great Unlimited," was also late. No one was surprised. The drummer, who had worked the whole town since breakfast, and had then defeated all the local checker champions, was trying to kill time by dozing in a corner, or slapping at some stray fly.

I had kept awake watching his antics for a while, then discovered a dirt-dauber's nest on a horseshoe over a door, and for an hour or so divided time between wondering how that loathsome bird got there, and listening to the progress of the agent and the only drayman in town.

Suddenly the outer door opened with a crash. A man, a woman, and several children entered, showing by all signs in sight or hearing that they were emigrants, or, as locally termed, "movers."

The woman was carrying, in one hand, an old umbrella, a frying-pan, and a big case with a half-grown rabbit in it. In the other hand she had a hatbox. Under one arm was a square, beaklike old clock, and from her wrist hung a bag that bulged with a conglomeration of articles.

Behind the woman came a girl of perhaps, eight years, carrying another clock of different shape, and an anxious-looking gray cat that seemed to have its attention divided between fear of falling and the desire to eat the rabbit.

The man carried nothing but a big fat, howling baby of two years, wrapped up in a red and green blanket. Other children followed, some carrying various articles, some crying, others eating peas.

The children all came into the depot readily enough, but seemed to have no further idea what was expected of them, and stood gazing at the lurid posters, maps and excursion notices, or stumbled over seats and suitcases.

"Now, set down!" commanded the mother, "and don't stand around gawping like a lot of eggheads!"

The youthful "movers" broke ranks, some to clamber into seats, others to go on a tour of inspection of everything within range. The mother pushed one clock under a seat, found a lamp bracket for the bird cage, and sat down with the baby and the other clock in her lap, having deposited the bag on the seat beside her.

Then the clock under the seat began to strike lustily. As it finished the thirty-second stroke, the alarm in the clock in her lap went off with such a bang that the baby took fright, and fell off its mother's lap onto the floor with fresh yells of terror.

I stole a look over the top of my magazine, behind which I had been trying to screen myself, and vainly tried to catch the drummer's eye, but he was gazing out of the window plucking himself to keep from disturbing the peace.

The baby, in falling, landed somewhere near the middle of the catch-all bag, and the mother made a plunge for it as if the child were on fire. Then the clock in her lap began striking some unknown hour.

"Now, hush!" she shrieked, "there you've went and done it! I bet you broke yo' paw's mishtah-uh!"

The guardian of the household effects had just rearranged the baby, the bag, and the clock, when her wandering gaze hit her first-born, a shocked-headed boy who had not remained in the waiting room long after the arrival of the family.

The baby was at once deposited upon the floor, where it howled wrathfully. The panic-stricken woman sped for a shrill:

"Hush! You B-u-b-a-e-e! Bust-a-r-r-r!" wailing up with an ear-splitting whoop.

The wind made straight in at the door for the papers on the agent's neglected desk. The freight bills flew over the office and disturbed the checker or came long enough for the agent to interpose with the remark: "Here, I'll bust you!"

Then, as he leaned over of the ticket window far enough to see that the offender was a woman, his chivalry got the better of him, and he toned down a bit, saying: "Madam, if you don't shut that door, I won't have a paper in the house, and they will be using me for scaring all the horses out of town or choking all the Brazos river."

The woman yelled on obviously for some time, then, muttering, "I bet he goes left by this time," closed the door, and started up the platform in search of her wandering boy, Buster. Things were getting so interesting that the drummer passed me the whistle and slunk out of the other door, I followed.

"You go one way," said he, "and I'll go the other."

We wanted to see the old hen when she lit, and we did. Out at the farther end of the platform, we turned opposite corners just as she sailed down on her runaway.

He had a cotton hoe by the handle, and to its neck, a cord two yards long, he had tied a flop-eared, half-breed dog. He was sitting on the platform holding the hoe handle and dog in fishing style, as if he had a bite.

"Buster!" yelled the approaching assistant. "What's the mean runnin' off an' the train about to start?"

"Why, ma'am," drawled the boy, "the train ain't come yet, and paw made me leave a d. Tige out here, while we wait for the depot, an' he's cold."

"Well, I guess you'll warm him up holdin' him here by the handle! I'll kill that fool dog!" she stormed, but aimed a blow at the boy's head. He dodged readily and sure clung to the hoe handle, while the whining dog whined again the platform with his fat safety belt on his legs.

Just then the hog-back squealed in the distance, and the warlike mother set off to gather her belongings preparatory to boarding the train.

She took down the bird cage, got an arm about one clock, seized the umbrella and bag again, gave vociferous commands to the children to "git them things and git on that train," and marched them in a long line by the track while No. 1 came clattering in.

Most of the passengers were in no hurry to get aboard, as No. 1 usually stopped an hour or two—long enough for a drummer to "work" the town and catch the same train for the next.

But today, those aboard had been there so long they were anxious to get off, and soon the family phalanx was broken up by the crowd. After the drummer and I had secured seats, we looked out and saw the woman, with the clock and caged rabbit, racing up and down the platform, calling at every jump: "Jerri-m-ah-h!"

As this was a new name, we soon figured that the husband had escaped while she had been looking for the missing Buster. The drayman emerged, and out of pure good will began to call Jeremiah also. Several boys took up the cry, till the town rang with the chorus of shouts for that namesake of the weeping prophet.

Finally, the woman collected her children, clocks, rabbit, etc., in a knot near the train, and gave out in stentorian tones that she would "stay right there till the cows or Jerry come home."

"I'm betting on the cows in that race," remarked the drummer, and then he settled for an hour's doze before the train started.

After a while we were all awakened by a jerk of the train and the renewed cries of the moving woman, who seemed to think the cows were about to win.

Jeremiah had not yet appeared, and the engine had finished its switching work and backed up to get the train for another start.

Several of the children added to the hubbub with their frantic yells for father, and just as the bell began ringing for the departure of No. 1 the missing hero came around the corner, protruding his head furiously at the uproarious family.

"Can't a feller git away long enough to have a smoke in peace?" he growled, referring to the two-for-a-nickel cigar protruding from his overgrown beard.

He went into the depot again for the tickets, and the scolding little hog-back began ranting off down the track, leaving the moving-woman the picture of wrath and despair as she clung to her clocks and rabbit, growling:

"I knowed he'd git it!" "I knowed he'd git it!" "I knowed he'd git it!"

A new disturbance at the rear of the train now attracted our attention. On investigation, we found Buster, the dog and the hoe, mixed up in a row with the brakeman. The boy and the dog had slipped onto the rear of the train, while others of the family were calling Jerry.

"I tell you, bub," declared the brakeman, "you can't bring that pup on this car!"

"Well, he's on here, ain't he?" retorted Buster.

"Well, take him to the baggage car and express him through! He can't stay on this car! Where's your ticket?" "Paw's got it, I reckon."

"Where is he? Bust him up quick!" The boy tried to leave the dog in the corner by the stove while he went to show the brakeman the holder of the ticket, but the trick failed. The dog followed, and, when assaulted by the brakeman, started howling down the aisle with the hoe catching in the seats and hitting the passengers.

Boy and brakeman tried to stop the fugitive. They caught him at the door just as a passenger who had entered and had dozed back in time to let the dog out. The hoe caught in the door.

Just then the train lurched into a stop at the water tank. Dog, boy, brakeman, and passenger finally tangled themselves, and Buster, still holding to the hoe handle, remarked: "I guess my paw's ain't here."

"Well, I guess not," snorted the brakeman, rubbing his shins. "and, bub, next time you try to take a ride, bring your dad along instead of that pup, and get a ticket, too."

"Huh," replied Buster, as he alighted with his dog and took up his march back to town. "I bet my paw this time. Must think I never moved here!"

HISTORIC RELICS

Believed to be Remains of Edward the Confessor's Habitation.

What are believed to be the remains of Edward the Confessor's palace have been discovered in Windsor Great Park by Capt. Vaughan Williams.

His attention was first drawn to the spot by seeing two moats where rabbits had unearthed some tiles like Norman bricks. On searching he found flints, sandstone and tiles.

Near this spot sixty years ago stood the remains of what was believed to be a palace. These were pulled down by the direction of Queen Victoria. The walls were twelve feet thick and were built of flint and chalk. Archaeologists put this building down as an ancient tower which Edward the Confessor built to insure more safety.

There is also what looks like the foundation of a building, which is believed to have been a chapel or a banquet hall. A number of spaces covered with tiles have been discovered.

Capt. Williams cleared up one matter by visiting the Crown Attorney's office in Windsor Park. There he saw a brick dated 1752, which exactly corresponds with the brick actually composing the wall unearthed outside the outer moat. This wall was at first thought to have been one of the piers of a drawbridge, but now it seems that it formed part of an enclosure in which George IV. kept a number of bears. This enclosure was subsequently demolished and the locality has since been known as "Bear's Ralls."

It is understood that before Windsor Castle was founded there existed a palace in Windsor Forest where certain notable events happened. It consisted of an irregular group of buildings, with a tower for the purposes of defence. In Harleian manuscripts there was an illustration in illumination, representing such a house, in which a lady was seen in the act of almsgiving and earning the title of "loaf giver."

The manor of Old Windsor belonged to the Saxon Kings, and it was certain that Edward the Confessor held land there. It was at Old Windsor that the abbot of St. Augustine's, Canterbury, was consecrated in 1065. Edward, who signed there by his nobles from going to Rome, was instructed by the Pope to spend the amount he would have expended on the trip to build a monastery here. Westminster was built, and Windsor was given to the monks. William the Conqueror revoked the gift because he found the forest, on account of its situation, so he gave other lands in lieu thereof.

Capt. Williams says that he feels almost certain that Saxon buildings once stood in the double moat, and that he is on the eve of more important discoveries.

"Watch Dogs" of the Sea. The British Admiralty's notice to mariners, that they have put down a number of hydrophones in the Bressay Sands connected by cables to the mainland of the Shetlands, which the landmen wonder what the object of such might be.

Inquiries at the Admiralty elicited the fact that this war invention is now being experimented with for commercial purposes, one idea being the greater efficiency of our coast illumination.

Hydrophones are really complex microphones on a big scale which were used during the war to detect the presence of German submarines.

The first ones used were of a very elementary kind, but ever since the Admiralty experts have been perfecting these ocean sound detectors—that being the principle upon which the enemy vessels were discovered.

By means of a high voltage an instrument of high nautical value, which can be used in foggy weather or darkness to give the first signs of the approach of unknown vessels carrying contraband, or locating in foggy weather ships in distress.

By means of this ocean watchdog the coastguard can sit ashore and tell exactly where any smuggling undersea boat is endeavoring to make a passage.

The Goat Degree

By AUGUSTUS WITFIELD

I entered Carlock's apartments and found him swinging in a hammock. He gave me a quick glance and heaved a deep sigh.

"Why so melancholy?" I inquired. "My dear Watchem," he answered, "I had hopes that your afternoon would be at my disposal, but of course, since you are going to the ball game with Emmos, I cannot look for you to assist me in the mysterious case of O. B. C. Osofat."

"Who told you I am going to the ball game?" I asked. "Why, Watchem," he answered, "the truth is self-evident. You are wearing your summer garments on a week day. You can have put them on only for the purpose of lending color to the yarn you told your chief for your grandmother to be buried this afternoon."

"Take it," he replied, "it will help you to digest the evidence." I did as he directed, and he continued to look at me.

"I also discovered that, after reaching New York on that trip, Pad had disappeared and was missing for four weeks. When he finally reported for duty he had grown considerably thinner. The cause of his falling off in weight has never been explained."

"As the case now stands, I remarked, 'what do you make of it?' By logical deduction, I arrive at the conclusion that Pad Judson is responsible for the disappearance of the case of Fat-Reducio, and I propose to fasten the crime on him."

"Precisely at three-thirty, the indicator on the wall announced that Pad Judson had entered the building, and was even then on his way to Carlock's apartments. In a minute or so the elevator stopped, and then there was a knock at the door. Carlock opened it, admitting a short, emaciated man in a railroad man's uniform."

"You sent for me?" he asked, addressing the great detective. "I summoned you," said Carlock. "Be good enough to note the distinction. A professional man never sends for any one."

Carlock surveyed Judson critically, having taken a post-graduate course in surveying at a correspondence school. Suddenly he made the startling accusation: "Judson, you are short!" Judson cowered.

"Only a matter of fifty shares or so," he asserted. "I do not refer to your petty market speculations," said Carlock severely. "I refer to your weight. You have lost about a hundred pounds. Had you lost this weight in a legitimate manner it would not have been necessary for me to summon you, but since you have usurped the loss which should have been another's, it is my duty to secure from you a statement of the facts."

"I do not know what you mean," asserted Judson. "You know that on your last run there was a case of Fat-Reducio consigned to O. B. C. Osofat of this city. You also know that when you reached here the case had disappeared."

"But why accuse me of knowing what became of it? If the case was lost, I do not see how I am to blame for it," protested Judson. "Judson," said Carlock, "a crime has been committed, and it is necessary that the criminal be found. You were in that car alone with the case of Fat-Reducio. You are known to have often expressed dissatisfaction with your excessive weight."

"In the solitude of your car, you succumbed to the temptation, and when no eye was on you, you ate up that case. Come, man, you may as well admit it. I know what I am talking about."

"I did not eat it," said Judson. "I was not in the car alone. There was a seat on board. It was occupied by a cattle show in Kentucky. I tell you I know nothing about it."

"Watchem," said Carlock, turning to me, "this is the toughest case I've ever tackled. I've got to get an admission out of him at any cost. The directors have ordered me to make a report as quickly as possible."

He turned, and, opening his safe, he took a handful of gold pieces from his cashbox. "Facing the gold on the table, he addressed Judson: 'Did you ever see this before?'"

"No," replied Judson. "It is yours," insisted Carlock. "No, no," moaned Judson. "I wish it was."

"It is yours," repeated Carlock. "Come, now, like a good fellow, admit that you ate the Fat-Reducio."

"I do not understand," wailed Judson. "But if you say the money is mine, perhaps I am mistaken. Perhaps I did eat the Fat-Reducio."

"The money is yours," Carlock assured him. "Come, now, admit that you ate the case of Fat-Reducio."

"What all mine?" exclaimed Judson joyfully. "Yes, I think I did eat it."

He picked up the gold pieces and let them flow from one hand to the other. Then he put them into his pocket.

"You did it," persisted Carlock. "You did it!"

know you did it!" "Yes; I did it," said Judson wearily. "Whew!" exclaimed Carlock. "That was a tough job. Twenty minutes by the clock. Did you photograph Watchem?" "Yes," I replied; "it is all on record."

Carlock dismissed Judson, and proceeded to transcribe a full report of the confession. He was a lightning operator on the typewriter, and I watched the sparks flying from the machine as he wrote.

"Are you not afraid of setting fire to the paper?" I asked. "No danger," he replied. "I use anbestos safety-paper."

As he finished his labors, the postman entered and handed him a letter. Carlock opened it to me and asked me to read it to him.

I broke the seal and opened it. Clearing my throat, I read: HOOP, HORN & HIDE, Goat-Reducers, Venezuela, S. A.

Mr. Carlock, Bronx, New York, U. S. A. Dear Mr. Simpson—We are addressing you as the head of the detective staff of the Pole-to-Pole railway, and beg to report to you that since last year we shipped over your road to the Kentucky Agricultural Fair, the goat was a beautiful specimen, weighing 225 pounds.

Shortly after its delivery to the Agricultural show people, it commenced to lose weight, and in the short space of one week it lost the amazing sum of 100 pounds. It is needless to note that the goat was unfit for show purposes, and was compelled to withdraw.

We determined to investigate the cause of this loss in weight, and our Mr. Arsenic Lee Ring was assigned to the job. With the greatest care he located the man who had charge of the baggage-car in which the goat had made the trip to Kentucky.

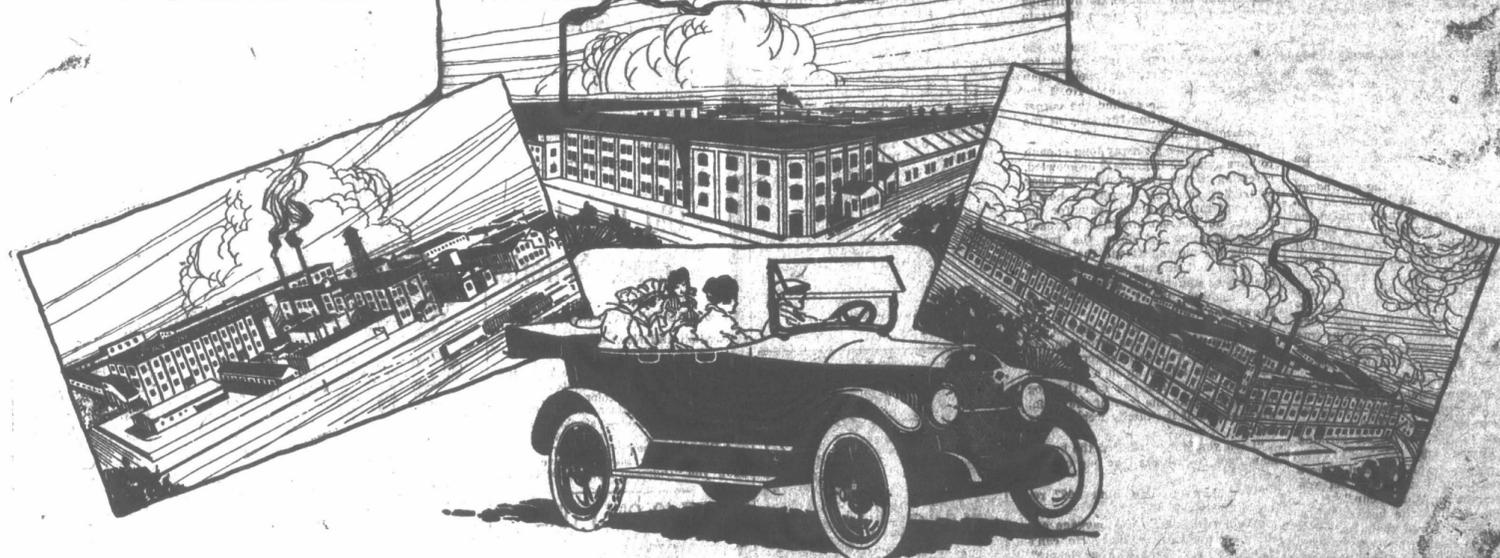

He found him in New York suffering from a mysterious malady, and admitting himself as a trained nurse, he gained admission into the sick-room. He was rewarded by learning from the delirious ravings of Pad Judson that a case of Fat-Reducio in the car had been entirely consumed by our prize fat goat.

We propose to enter suit against the Pole-to-Pole railway for damages sustained, as, through your carelessness in transporting our goat, Mr. Arsenic Lee Ring sends you his greetings, and assures you that you will have to get up early to beat him.

Very sincerely, Bloch, Horn & Hide. "Carlock," I commented, "it looks to me as though Pad Judson has the best of you. There seem to be two goats in this case."

"No," replied Carlock, bitterly. "There is only one. Fat is."

CHATHAM PLANTS OF GRAY-DORT MOTORS LIMITED

You Can Buy the Best Gray-Dort Ever Built

THE Gray-Dort which your dealer has to-day is the best Gray-Dort ever built.

More than that. It is the greatest Gray-Dort value.

For $1,365 you get a Gray-Dort with ten major improvements and a dozen refinements.

With a bigger gas tank, placed in the rear, with a new, extra-heavy, extra-safe steering gear. With the emergency brake on a lever—and with Thermoid brake linings. A more convenient Gray-Dort, the side curtains opening with the doors, with very much more leg-room in the tonneau and with more in the driving compartment because of the shorter and smarter cowl.

A Gray-Dort which has the good-looks of a smarter top, hand-tailored in our own shops, a smarter hood, with many long, narrow louvres.

There are many more refinements which you will find when you drive the new Gray-Dort.

Here you have the same powerful, finely-built motor with its big bore and long stroke. The same heavy crankshaft, many pounds heavier than on other light cars.

A rear axle built specially for us right here in Chatham. Long springs built here, too. Westinghouse starting and lighting. Improved Carter carburetor. Every unit of motor and chassis is bigger and stronger and higher quality than is usually considered for light cars.

Gray-Dort production has been doubled for this year. But our dealers tell us that this will not be sufficient to meet the demand. It would be wise to see the Gray-Dort dealer to-day.

PRICES
5-Passenger Car—$1365, f.o.b. Chatham, war tax extra.
2-Passenger Roadster in the same price.
Gray-Dort Special—$150 extra on the standard.
Gray-Dort Ace—$255 extra on the standard.

TAKING PROPOSITION

Actor—What, back so soon? Didn't the play take?

Actress—Yes, the play took, the manager took the receipts, the sheriff took the scenery, the landlord took the trunks and the author took to drink.

A Shudder.
She's fair to see,
But I always sigh,
Whenever she speaks
Of "her and I."

Expert Advice.
"I paid $100 to a specialist just to have him tell me my heart isn't right," remarked the prosperous business man.

"Rank extravagance," responded his friend "tily"; "I got the same information from a waiter and it didn't cost me a cent."

Home Sympathy.
"Does your husband tell you all about his business?"
"Yes," replied Mrs. Fetherlop. "I'm it tiresome of him when there are so many really interesting things to talk about!"

Contrary Results.
"Did the doctor you went to after that accident in which you got so many bumps fix you up all right?"
"He did in a paradoxical way, for the more he reduced the swelling, the bigger grew his bill."

The Boss.
"I want a job where I can be my own boss," remarked the young man.
"You probably will be disappointed," answered Senator Sorghum. "No real boss ever succeeded in electing himself to any conspicuous distinction."

The Infallible One.
Great Editor—Yes, sir, we employ a man in our office just to get things into the paper that are absolutely correct.
"Have you ever tried to print any of his things?"—Judge.

"I Wonder Would It Help Me?"

THIS question has been answered by many thousands of women who have found health and happiness in the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Sleeplessness, irritability, nervousness, gloomy forebodings of the future, depression and discouragement—these are some of the symptoms which tell of exhausted nerves.

In order to avoid nervous prostration or some form of paralysis it is well to get the building up process established at once by use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.
