Board of Trade Report on Strikes. LONDON, July 24 .- A report just laid pefore the Board of Trade shows that in 1892 there were no less than 692 strikes in the United Kingdom, with, in addition to these, eight lockouts. Capital amounting $95,000,000 was laid idle, and 511 establishments were closed. Wages lost to labor amounted to $2,500,000, and aid from sympathetic unions was sacrificed to the amount of $800,000. Royal Honors for a Bruiser.

DUBLIN, July 24 .- James J. Corbett, the American pugilist, paid a visit yesterday to the town of Ballinrobe, county Mayo, where his father was born. He was greeted at the station by thousands of people, who iterally carried him to his hotel. In the afternoon he gave a performance for the penefit of a chapel which his uncle, Rev. James Corbett, is building. Excursion trains were run to the town during the Afternoon to convey the crowds of people unxious to see the American champion. In the evening he was entertained at a receplion in the town hall, where he was prevented with an address of welcome and verwhelmed with bouquets.

Bounced the Reporters.

Paris, July 24 .- In the Chamber of Deputies during the debate on article 5, which imposes certain restrictions upon the press M. Denoix, Republican, made a remark which elicited a chorus of protesting "oh, ohs" from the press gallery. The expression were immediately followed by a burst of applause from the Socialists, and the confusion became general. The acting president, Vice-President M. de Mahey, ordered the press gallery to be members of the press refused to torcibly. The confusion became so prolonged that several members demanded that the sitting be suspended. A vote was taken on a motion to suspend the sitting, and it was rejected 348 to 120.

M. De Mahey said the President's authority being obeyed the members of the press would be allowed to re-enter the press gallery. The reporters, however, remained in the lobbies, where they excitedly discussed the situation with a number of deputies. Fighting in Corea.

LONDON, July 24 .- The Japanese Minlster has official information confirming the report of an engagement between Corean and Japanese troops at Seoul. There is no doubt in the minds of members of the Japanese legation that the attack upon the Japanese garrison was instigated by the SHANGHAI, July 24 .- The British Charge d'Attaires at Tokio has wired the British consul here that Japan has agreed to treat Shanghai as outside the sphere of action in any war in which she may engage with China.

Mr. Tateno, the Japenese Minister at Washington today received a telegram from his Government saying that Corean troops had made an uncalled-for attack exempted from attack, their respective squadrons combining to insure the fulfill-ment of the pledge. China has embargoed the fleet of the China Merchants Company, the vessels to be employed as transports when needed. Negotiations are proceeding with other vessel owners. The partial blockade here is aimed only against passenger and cargo steamers owned in Yokohama, Nagasaki and Kobi. Some owners propose to sail their vessels under the American flag.

LONDON, July 24.—The Standard prints a letter from Carl Siewwers, in which he says he has received advices from Norway leaving no doubt that the Wellman Arctic expedition is lost. Other advices have been received confirming the general belief divorce suit of John P. Rogers against that the members of the expedition have the band stand, where addresses were Horner, after full consideration, have deperished.

Arctic sailors report that the flow of pack ice in the Arctic Seas this summer has been so plentiful and dense that no vessel could live after being caught in it. They are unanimously of opinion that the Ragnvald Jarl has been crushed in the ice and believe that the chance of any members of the expedition having been saved is very remote. Even if they managed to get on an iceflow they would be in a dangerous position and not able to survive long.

Mr. Filden, the owner of the yacht Saide, a short time ago received news that Prof. Oyen, the geologist, who accompanied the Wellman expedition, was in distress. Mr. Filden ordered the Saide to Dane's Island, where Oyen's dog piloted the Saide's party to the professor's quarters. He was found in bed in an almost dying condition. Upon a table in the professor's quarters was found a letter containing bitter reproaches against Wellman, whom he accused of having left him in the lurch. The Saide also reported that Prof. Oyen was so badly previsioned when he was found that his early death was a matter of certainty. But in spite of his sufferings the professor refused to be taken off Dane's Island, insisting upon remaining there faith. ful to his trust, even though death was the result of his continuing at his post in his Arctic solitude. New York, July 24 .- The North Pole expedition, with Walter Wellman at its head, which is now believed to have been lost, left Tromsoe, Norway, May 24, 1894. They sailed for Spitzbergen on the steam-

the shoulders endeavored to rescue her in the Northern Sea. The expedition included Astronomer Owen B. French, of the United States coast and geodetic survey; Franklin, an American skater; Oyen, a geologist from Christania; Alme, a meteorologist, and two sportsmen and runners ing machine with which he has succeeded from the University of Christania. They were last heard of at Dane's Island, off the practicing on Sunday last the wings of the northwest coast of Spitzbergen, where Prof. Oyen remained to guard and to provision the depot established there.

The Saide is now at Granton. Filden, the naturalist, writes that there are reasons for fearing that the Ragnvald Jarl is beset with ice or that she has already come to grief. though that need not involve the loss of the explorers. He advises Wellman's friends to send supplies via Tromso to Pine's Island, where they will arrive in

The Standard this morning, referring to the fate of the Wellman expedition, says that it cannot be denied that it was an illdevised plan of inexperienced men to beat the record.

A telegraph dispatch sent out from Port Huron ends by saying: "The railway company (Chicago and Grand Trunk) will oppose organized labor from now forward." To prevent any misunderstanding, I desire to say that the Grand Trunk system has never raised the question with any of its employes as to whether they belonged or not to any organization, or as to their religious belief, whether they had any or not. I may be free to say that it might be better if we had. All I desire and will demand is that every man in the company's employ on this side of the line shall, before all things, be true and loyal to the public, to the company and to its officials. Any man who is not, or who shirks his duty under a sham plea of sickness or of cowardice during a time of trial and emergency such as we have recently passed through, is not wanted, and certainly will not be retained in the company's service any longer than he is found out. Unclaimed Money Deposited by Londoners

In Various Banks-Sums from One Cent to Many Dollars-Lock Over the List-Some Deposits Date Away Back.

In these days of financial stringency very few people are apt to leave cash lying around idle if they know it; nevertheless many have it slumbering in bank vaults, and they do not know it. Now that the summer holidays are on, quite a few Londoners may not be sorry to see that they are entitled to unexpected pocket money. A book has just been issued by the Finance Department of the Dominion Government which gives the amounts of dividends unpaid and the unclaimed balances in the banks for five years and upwards prior to Dec. 31 of last year. According to the statement the total unpaid dividends in the principal banks are as follows:

Parishioners of St. John the Evangelist in Distress.

Sent Out by an English Society-A Child Dies for Lack of Proper Nourishment of Its Mother-A Widow's Uphill Struggle and Another Woman's Charitable-

A short time ago Rev. W. T. Hill, rector of St. John the Evangelist Church, wrote to the city papers mentioning the large amount of distress existing in the parish and suggesting that the philanthropic public aid the sufferers in some way. In conversation with Mr. Hill last night an ADVERTISER reporter learned that Elliott, $8 15; Finlay & Wilder, $15; H J the distress still existed and that the news-Massey, $1 97; E Stonehouse, 2 cents; A paper appeals had brought forth but two replies. In the parish of St. John the Evangelist, which con-G Fairbairn, $8 70; H W Lancy, 38 cents; sists of about 240 families, there Wood & Kirkiand, $3 29; R R Brough, 10 are at least ten who are in absolute need. ment in the harvest field since Mr. Hill wrote to the press, but their work is only Stanley, 23 cents; H Bruce, 86 cents; Conn temporary. cents; Harriet Whately, 9 cents; W G "I found out the address of the society," B Two-Good, $16 10; M Watson, $1 46; A telling him of the condition of affairs here, grants. I also made an appeal for funds, and if it bears fruit they will be divided among the families of the parish who were sent out here by this society." Mr. Hill thought the agents of the society were to a certain extent responsible in not laying the plain facts before the home offices. Families struggling for a bare existence, but managing to live in England, were induced to come to Canada by exaggerated stories of the abundance of work, and once here they became a burden on their different parishes or the municipality. One case mentioned was that of a woman who was so impoverished and weak from lack of proper nourishment that her child died from her inability to succor it. In another family the father had struggled against fate and sickness for a number of years. He was an honest fellow and worked when he could, and often when he should not. Then he died, and left the burden of the support of a family of four young children to a sick wife, who can only get two half-days' work a week. Another Englishman of the parish has a large family to support, but is unable to work on account of a nervous trouble. Doctors say he is a fit subject for the Home for Incurables, yet he and his wife manage to eke out a living, in the summer time at least, by selling what few vegetables they can raise. There are several families the heads of which are able-bodied tradesmen who have not had two months' work in two years. Some actually came to the rector and plainly asked for bread. One woman was proferred assistance, and although she needed it badly she asked that it be given to Mrs. C-, on William street, whose husband had recently died. In one family the husband was out of work and the family was greatly excited because the landlord threatened to evict them for back rent. They went to their pastor for assistance. "But what can I do?" asked Mr.

Hill. "I can't pay rent." Mr. Hill advocates the forming of a central relief or charity committee to combat with what will no doubt be a serious condition of affairs next winter. In the summer time there is a chance of a few days work now and again, and the condition of affairs is nothing to what it will be. The parish of St. John the Evangelist does not stand alone.

JUMPED IN THE LAKE

To Escape from the Police at Toronto-

A Slippery Fellow. Toronto, July 24 -The Sunday school picuic at Victoria l'ark yesterday afternoon had a very remarkable incident at its close. It appears that a young man named MacGuire, who is known among his companions as "Swab" and has a slight familiarity with courts and cells, insulted end of the park between 5 and 6 o'clock. Some of the girl's companions gave the alarm, and County Constables Burns and the crowd and finally spotted MacGuire.

On seeing the officers MacGuire started to run in the direction of the lake. Constable McIllwaine headed him off and a struggle ensued between the officers and John Thompson," Mr. McCarthy said, their prisoner around a tree which stands at the top of one of the high sand bluffs overlooking the beach. The result was that all three men came rolling down the bluff. MacGuire was the first to regain that party, in which such gigantic frauds his feet. He at once ran out into the lake and swam toward the steamer Steinhoff, which had just left the end of the wharf. dam contract, the reversal of the Govern-He was picked up by the officers of the boat and at once made a break for the coal hole, where he hid waiting for the entry of the constables. Burns and McIliwaine, however, at once hastened to catch a street car for the city. Arriving at No. 1 police station they secured a posse of eight policemen with all haste, and hurried to Yonge street wharf to met the Steinhoff, which arrived about 7:30. Constables were placed at each gangplank to locate MacGuire among the disembarking passengers, but when the last man left the steamer not a trace of him had been seen.

The Steinhoff was then searched from keel to deck, but without success. A sharp watch had been kept on the waters of the slip, but he had evidently not escaped by swimming ashore. Finally, after a deal of fruitless search, the engineer of the boat laughingly confessed that MacGuire had jumped overboard while they were passing through the eastern gap and had swam ashore at Ward's.

Although watch was kept on the island ferries, MacGuire was not to be seen last night, and he probably discovered some new means of eluding the officers, or spent the night on the island.

Why Clarke Wallace Ran Away to Ireland.

The Curran Bridge Robbery Exposed.

Sir John Thompson's Picus Ejaculations Met and Replied To.

Not a Member of the Liberal Party, But Determined to Combat the Wrongdoing of the Men in Power.

Mr. D'Alton McCarthy, M.P., spoke at farmers' picnic in Simcoe on Monday. Mr. McCarthy, who for years was the president of the Ontario Provincial Conservative Association, and was dubbed by Sir John Macdonald "the brains of the Conservative party," was warmly received. Taking up first the Northwest school question, he accused the Dominion Government of postponing the consideration of their bill dealing with the Territories until Hon. Clarke Wallace got out of the country. It was brought on a week ago today, when some members who would have had to vote against the Govern-ment on pain of losing their seats had gone home, and after the Controller of Customs, the guardian of Protestantism, was out of the way. Mr. Wallace must have voted with the Government, as he could not, as the holder of a portfolio in the Administration, vote against it. It was an awkward situation, and it was decided to get out of it by waiting until he had left Canada to attend the Grand Orange Lodge. Mr. McCarthy admitted that his amendment had been defeated, but told his friends that their influence had not been lost. A petition signed by all the bishops and backed by the full power of the hierarchy, had been pigeon-holed by the Government from fear of the spirit manifested in Ontario, and a resolution which was to have been moved by one of their supporters, and which could have been carried, was suppressed by the Government owing to the same wholesome influence. He gave an explanation of his statement, about which the Conservative press has been making a clamor, that he would rather have separate schools than secular schools.

A SECULAR SCHOOL SYSTEM was one from which the Word of God was excluded. This was a Christian country, and it would be a scandal, he said, if there was no opportunity given to have the religion common to the whole people taught in the schools. Although there were some people in this country who did not believe in any religion, their number was small, and it would be a terrible hardship to the people generally if the Word of God was the only book excluded from the schools. Surely, he said, there were in the Bible chapters on which all west. He would let them do as they think best and make the choice as they see fit, whether it be separate or secular schools, or the Ontario system of public schools. Speaking of the Curran bridge scandal, he characterized it as

THE WORST PIECE OF ROBBERY he had ever known since he entered public life. The amount which had been stolen was not as large as in the scandals which resulted in the throwing down of Sir Hector Langevin from his high position, but he considered the culpability of Mr. Haggart's department much greater and much plainer and much more brazen. It stood confessed that the country lost over $200,000 in that one job, and all the defense the Minister had made was that he tried to detect the robbers and could not. He had promised to punish the guilty, but more than a year had already gone and nothing had been done towards it. Could there be and beat a young gir! of 16 in the northern any doubt, Mr. McCarthy asked, that Mr. Haggart knew that Contractor St. Louis made contributions to the Conservative election funds, and that Mr. Haggart McIllwaine commenced a search through knew in a general way, although not to the full extent perhaps, what was going on, and expected that some of the money would find its way to the Quebec Conservatives? "You remember the pious ejaculation of Sir when he thanked God that I was no longer a member of his party. Today I can return that pious ejaculation, and I do thank God that I am no longer a member of are carried on." (Applause.) Proceeding. he told his audience of the Sheiks' Island ment's policy, the canceling of Gilbert's contract, and the payment of $30,000 to him as damages therefore, and the giving of the new work to Davis Bros., without tender, in DIRECT VIOLATION OF THE LAW. Were the people innocent enough to suppose, he asked, that that was done without an understanding with Davis Bros. with regard to election funds? It was in this way the Government provided itself with funds to bribe the country with its own money. Then there was the Tay Canal, with its original estimated cost of $120,000, ts actual cost of upwards of $500,000, and its annual expenditure of $2,000, and its revenue of $125 76; the St. Charles branch of the Intercolonial Railway, taking between $140,000 and $160,000 a mile, or seven or eight times as much as an ordinary railway. In the face of such waste of the taxes of the country he did not wonder that the Patrons were coming to the front. When these things were brought up in Parliament they were only laughed at and called chestnuts. He would not wonder if humorous smile, and the response came from all parts of the audience, "You're good enough," and "Stay where you are." Mr. McCarthy went on to speak of the gold cure.

public debt. Then HE TURNED TO THE PREMIER and recalled his professions in 1891, that he would punish all who might be found guilty of malfeasance of office, be they high of low. "I have no great admiration for Sir John Thompson, and he has no great admiration for me, so that there is not much admiration lost between us. But I did think he was an honest man. I knew he was once a judge, and I heard his declaration in 1891. I will not say that I have changed my opinion, but I will say that I am alarmed at some things that have happened in Ottawa during the last session. No man is fit to go upon the bench unless he is above partisanship, and unless he is willing in every case to do justice between the parties in a case, no matter what their station." With this significant introduction, he briefly stated the principal points in the Turgotte case. There was no dispute as to the facts; the charges were proved in the clearest possible manthough be it said for the honor of servative party that two Mariti bers-Messrs. People who do not carefully keep receipts for money paid out by them are iable to have a second payment demanded of them. Such is the plight of some London West taxpayers. PAST AND FUTURE OF A GREAT FAMILY.

At a recent public meeting in Chicago, General Manager Spicer, of the Detroit, Grand Haven and Milwaukee Railway, formerly an officer of the Grand Trunk Railway of Canada, made a noteworthy speech. After reading an extract from the Boston Commercial including an allusion to the early struggles of the colonists against the British Government, Mr. Spicer continued:

Being the only Britisher present, I may perhaps be excused if I digress for one moment to give expression to a thought or two on that last paragraph. That allusion to the British Government inclines me to say that, had it not been for the insensate folly, the wickedly pig-headed unjustness of the king's ministers of that day there would have been no rebellion of 1776; and further we may conclude that within the century after there would have been no rebellion and no bloody war between the North and the South owing to the question of slavery, as we may conclude that the slaves of the South would have been redeemed simultaneously with the purchase and redemption by the English people of their brothers in Jamaica and all other British colonies; and although the separation was then to be, the two greatest nations of the earth are still brothers in blood and progress. "God grant that we may yet see the two glorious flags lovingly united by a federation and family reunion of all our great Anglo-Saxon peoples, for the enfranchisement and lasting good of the human race everywhere, for the advancement of civilization, liberty and freedom from intolerant despotic power; for the enforcement and maintenance of justice, law and order the world over; when all differences and wrongs shall be settled by peaceful arbitration; when war shall cease and sweet peace shall reign supreme-that will be the millennium we should strive to bring about. We shall then form the grandest, most glorious nation and company of nations, filling the whole earth for God and good and true

Had the world been as far advanced in its sentiments against war 100 years ago as it is now the race would have never been divided. That peaceful arbitration of difficulties, now agreed to by both Great Britain and the United States would have altered the whole course of history for the better and have saved thousands of lives. The fewer lines of division there says that as she traveled up and down Ireare between the sister nations the better it land last month she noted with great war over any difficulty that may arise, and race who would do anything to promote hostilities. implies.

Lady Aberdeen is now on the Atlantic Ocean on her return voyage to Canada. It seems but the other day since the good wite of the Governor-General left Government House at Ottawa, so quickly does time fly in this busy world, but in the time which has elapsed her Excellency has not only visited the family estates in England and Scotland, but has made a prolonged tour throughout Ireland, in which country both she and her husband have been beloved by the populace ever since Lord Aberdeen's term as occupant of the highest position in the gift of the British crown-the viceroyalty. Lady Aberdeen, while desirous of quietly and unostentatiously investigating the progress made by the people in hearted Irish people, and wherever she went there was one continuous welcome such as no one occupying a similar position

A resolution couched in even stronger terms of appreciation was moved and indorsed by several leading citizens of Dublin, after which the United Trades Council and Labor League of Dublin, representing 15,-000 organized workers, presented an address of thanks to her Excellency for her "untiring efforts on behalf of the industries of Lady Aberdeen feelingly referred to the warmth of her reception in Ireland, where as wife of the Vicoroy she had spent many happy months some years since. She was sincerely thankful for the co-oper. the people at home and abroad. The Irish village at the Chicago exhibition had been a splendid advertisement for the association. It was a complete success. Not only did it pay its way, but $90,000 worth of Irish goods had been purchased at it. At the end of the fair enough goods remained to start a depot in Chicago. All this was accomplished and at the same time the whole of the money advanced for the construction of the village had been repaid. A special agency for the sale of Irish goods has been established in Canada, and many sales are expected here. In the British metropolis also, the association has agents and the English now buy freely of the products of Irish skill. During the present month the association is holding a sale in London at the town house of Lady Zetland, and excellent results are promised.

With the characteristic spirit of her race, Lady Aberdeen told the great gatherings in Dublin that the new mission of the association was to make the beautiful and useful products of Irish industry known to the world. They did not desire people to buy the goods for charity or for philanthropy, but to understand that they were getting value for their money. Lady Aberdeen explained that many of the Irish ndustries which the association represents are conducted in country places, where the workers are scattered, and where it is difficult for them to get direction, or in convents where they are not in close touch with the outer world. To help these workers in crochet, embroideries and work in lace generally, the association aims in the first place to get information for them as to what will be the fashion for the coming year. The association has been able to produce some pretty new designs. As to homespuns, the association is endeavoring to introduce improved methods of weaving, patterns and other things, so that the stuff will be of a proper width. A school for technical instruction will be opened, and a depot will be established where the people can bring in their webs and leave them. Up till now the people have been compelled to trudge long weary miles to the monthly markets n Donegal, and if they failed to find a market for their products they had to take them home again. When stored, the webs will be inspected, and if found up to the standard the makers will get prizes of a half penny or a penny a yard. Hitherto a great many priestly vestments have come nounces that a workshop has been opened where Irish girls will be trained to produce these vestments better and more cheaply

The late Mr. White asserted that it was their exhibition of Irish products in Lonable, owing to their beam of 65 et, to don that suggested the idea of the Itish Woolen Company; and Lady Aberdeen will be for the human race. Great Britain pleasure the number of small enterprises and the United States cannot afford to go to that were steadily growing and attaining success. She had, for instance, seen a he is an enemy of the English-speaking Kilkenny knitting factory, opened only two years ago with two workers, and in which twenty were now not able to supply the demand made upon them. The secretary of the Clare committee has actually changed his entire district by the spirit of improvement and progress which he has instilled into the people. The association is also giving lessons in poultry raising in addition to its special endeavors to promote other domestic industries. "Help the people to help themselves-to make the most of their talents and energies,"-seems to be the motto of Lady Aberdeen and her associates, and the most gratifying results are flowing from their labors. There are Canadians who can afford to help on the good work of ameliorating the condition of the Irish people and of promoting their contentment and happiness. There are Canadians who can when looking for novelties not overlook the products of Irish industry. Lady Aberdeen has done and is doing her full share. Not long ago, murder was committed by a young man, and the atrocity of the crime was increased by the fact that the young murderer had borne in his mind for years a resentment for punishment given by the murdered man (his childhood's teacher,) while the student was a little boy.

Of course, it is all specially atrocious, and yet it is to be doubted if a child treated in the way spoken of above ever entirely forgives (and certainly never forgets) such treatment, even though the words be spoken able to disengage itself, it proceeded to swallow the rug, which was seven feedy by a mother. The mother who thus addresses her child commits two great errors -one, that of reproving her child before a third party; the second, that of setting him an example of ugly tone and manner, for following which she immediately punishes him by sending him into the corner daughter, at $35 a month, to teacithe whose opinion you value? Simply because childhood is a time of short memories for many things, is no reason that the first sting should not be bitter, or that all resentment should be immediately forgotten. If childhood is the time for short memories, it is also the time for unusual sensitiveness, and a reproof that arouses anger instead of contrition does infinitely more harm than good. Better that a child be never reproved than that its punishment be such as to cause it to cherish resentment.

What is the first mental process after such a scene as the foregoing? "Johnny" feels that his mother and her neighbor are evolving some amusement at his expense. He can but feel that his mother is likewise venting a certain feeling of anger on him. The idea of his mother feeling sorry that he is a "bad boy" never enters his head, and, indeed, it is to be doubted if it even enters her's either, as it is but too often that this sentiment is no factor in the Children are punished entirely too much and reasoned with entirely too little. How is a child to distinguish between real right and wrong when the same punishment is meted out for a torn dress as for a lie? When the same words are used in the reproof for a broken cup and a broken commandment?

Indeed, if parents would carefully sift out the punishments which they admirister for their own satisfaction from those which they administer for the child's good, entirely eliminating the former, punish ment would be much reduced, harmony would be much greater, and we would have much better, more thoughtful, more responsible children. - House and Home.

CYCLING IN JAPAN.

The fact that cycling is becoming a living institution among the native Japanese is shown by the circumstance that a native club which was formed not long since has started a monthly magazine. while only quite recently it has been thought worth while to lay a small tax on cycles. COST OF A TRIP TO EUROPE.

Less Than $2 a Day if You Follow This Man's Economical Style. A correspondent of the San Francisco

Chronicle, who, with a friend, had a six months' trip abroad, has the following to say regarding the expense incident to the It was exactly five months from the day we left New York to the day when we saw Sandy Hook light again. We went first to Glasgow, doing Scotland, England and London. Then we visited Hoiland and Belgium. followed the Rhine to Mayence, and thence by Frankfort and Leipsic to Berlin. From Berlin we went to Dresden, Munich, Innsbruck, in the Tyrol, into Italy, seeing Verona, Venice, Florence, Rome, Pisa, Genoa and Milan. Then we went over the St. Gothard to Lucerne and Switzerland, thence to Paris, London, Windsor, Oxford, Stratford, Chester and Liverpool. We tramped for several days in Scotland, for a week among the English lakes and for two weeks in the Alps. We staid at native inns and hotels, except in large cities, where we usually took lodgings. We went second cabin in steamships and second and third class on railroads. Our luggage consisted simply of a camera and two knapsacks. Our knowledge of foreign languages was confined to a limited command of German which stood us in good stead in Austria, Italy and Switzerland. Had we known Italian and French, our expenses would have been less.

Our living expenses for the whole time, not including the days on the ocean, averaged 75 cents to each of us. Railroad and steamer fares averaged 97 cents each. Thus $1 72 was the whole actual cost per diem. Careful and detailed accounts of the expenses on our trip were made and preserved. These figures showing railroad, steamer and living expenses, are actual, not estimates. The railroad ard steamship expenses from New York through England and the continent and return were $144 32 each. The living expenses, including all daily incidentals, for the two of us per week were as

It is to be noticed that the cheapest week was in London, the cost of living there being less than 50 cents each day. As a rule, the living expenses in the large cities were considerably less than elsewhere. We spent more than half the time in the great capitals -six weeks in Landon, three in Paris, two in Berlin and one in Rome. It was our plan to secure lodgings where we remained week or more. In London we had a pleasant room in Russell square, only a few minutes from the British Museum, Holborn and the city. Our rent was 8 shillings a week, or 15 cents each a day. On Holborn we found a restaurant where a substantial roast could be had for from sixpence up. Very often we took our breakfast in our room. It consisted of coffee, rolls and butter, cold meat, jam, etc. This was made possible by a small alcohol stove and supply of provisions. In Berlin we had a large and very comfortable front room containing two beds, a lounge, armchairs, grate, piano, etc., which cost us 15 marks for the two weeks, or 13 cents a day each. In Paris we paid even less for a room at a hotel. We ere nearly always fortunate in having a definite place in mind before arriving in a city. This came to us by diligence and perseverance in conversing with fellowtravelers. We always made it a rule to arrive early in a town so that we could secure rooms to advantage. We asked questions without stint and prevented ourelves from being swindled by making def-

Of address he is candid and cordial; he has to a degree that quality called personal magnetism. Five minutes with him would suffice, we think, to convince a reader of human nature that Debs is a man of high ideas, honest convictions, unswerving integrity, great intellectual vigor (or perhaps, rather zeal), exceptional simplicity of character, and consummate impracticability. His traits are those, we believe, which, taken singly, are most ad-mirable, but which, bunched, are very likely to get him into trouble .- [Chicago

HOW TO TREAT A MAN.

(By a Horse.)

When a man drops from sheer exhaustion or iliness, promptly seize an end board or cart stake and pound him on the ribs. If this does not recuperate him, kick him violently in the belly. This treatment will restore him, if persistently administered. If a man finds his load too heavy and teels that it will seriously strain him to proceed, kick off a fence board and knock him down -and hammer him thoroughly with the board. This will give him renewed energy, and he will make no more fuss. But do not on any account reduce the load. That would look too much like common sense, or humanity, and he will be likely to balk again when he is overloaded. If a man refuses to drink when you offer him water, don't give him any water for two days. That will "teach him" to be thirsty at any time you find it convenient to attend to him. It is a good plan to ply the whip frequently on a man when he is at work. No matter if he is doing his best, hit him now and then on "general principles," and o prevent any comfort. If his load is not neavy, oblige him to go enough faster to make up for it. Work him hard enough to bring down the average life of man onealf, as is done with horses. If no whip is nandy, use a club.

Tie your man's head back in an unnatural position, with his eyes up towards the sun. This will give him a "fine appear. ance" and "prevent stumbling." Of course, he will not be able to do as much work in this fix, but it makes him so wretched, so it is all right. In winter remove his clothing to "prevent his taking cold." He also will "dry quicker" when you overwork him. You must hang a blanket on his back, but have his neck and imbs exposed-when he is not at work. Men thus treated are "much healthier" than when allowed winter clothing.

If not perfectly convenient to feed a man -who is working for you-at noon, let him go without, and, by active use of the whip, secure as much work as the food would have secured. Of course, it wears out his vitality and distresses him, but that is no

Put tight shoes on your man and keep them there until he is lame with corns. To change his shoes often costs money-not much, but some-and lameness and misery are of no account if you can save a dollar's worth of shoes in a year.

When you hire a man do not be hampered by any humane notions-get all you can out of him. True nobility consists in getting money, not in decency or kindness, or what noodles term "character"; get money, if it is all blood-stained. These are correct principles, I am sure, for I learned them when a colt from my master, who treated all his horses on this plan, and don't he know what's what? - [National Harness Review.

POPULAR FEAR OF LIGHTNING. Self-Inflicted Torment-Little Cause for Fear-An Um easonable Terror.

We often hear of people, especially females, having a "fit of the nerves" during the approach and passage of a shower accompanied by lightning. Curiously these little disturbances are termed thunder storms, even by the officials of the United States weather bureau, and curiously, too, people who get disturbed seem to be frightened at the thunder and not at the vivid flashes of lightning. If they would reflect a moment they would know there is nothing to fear in a crash of thunder that is an after result altogether caused by the lightning, or electric discharge between cloud and cloud, or cloud and earth. Anyone who gets struck by lightning in a serious way does not hear the thunder. That is tantamount to saying that when you hear the thunder the danger is past.

Very many people actually suffer torments during the prevalence of one of these storms, but such torments are usually self-inflicted, though the victims will not admit this to be true. They are convinced that they are in great danger, subjectively hypnotized by their own fears and aided by the absurd treatment of so-called physicians who cater to this class of nerve patients who persist in calling them into consultation and never get cured until they discover that the remedy does not lie in pills and decoctions, but in a little common sense administered through the ear and brain. There is little cause for fear indeed. The death rate by lightning is probably far lower than by any other of the recognized accidental causes of death. Sun-stroke dees not seem to be much feared, and certainly there are no people foolish enough to run down into the cellar amid screams and tears lest a ray of sunlight should strike them. Of the many comparatively unusual causes of death all show a vastly higher death rate than lightning.

Usually this nervous dread of lightning s most senseless, amounting almost to imbecility. One standing on Broadway at the posteffice would have no ground for alarm by the falling of a brick from the cornice of the Tribune building, yet this is about a parallel case with the average nerve fright in lightning storms. The bolt strikes somewhere, and then one, two or more seconds later comes the terrific crash of thunder. But as sound travels only 1,120 feet per second, the location of the flish and consequently the danger point would be 1,120 or 2,240, or more feet distant.

Fear under such conditions is silly. Then, too, people are ordinarily near or at the surface, while in their immediate vicinity are high buildings which are sure to receive the stroke by reason of their height. Did any of these hypnotics ever know lightning to strike the street pavement in a city or town? Or a dog kennel in a farm-yard?

People who have this fear of lightning should post themselves and they will become re-assured. They have the fear either because is has been instilled from childhood by nervous mothers or nurses, or because they have allowed themselves to grow into it and have unconsciously become subjectively hypnotized, the hypnotic impression then being that lightning is a constant menace and they must go and get in a dark corner somewhere. It does no good actually, out like the frightened ostrich, which shoves its head into the sand, they cannot see the flashes, hence out of danger. It would be far better for such people and for the martyrs who have to listen to their absurd tears, if they would sit at a window watching the magnificent spectacle of light. ning and amuse themselves counting the seconds between the flash and the thunder. in fact face both the spectacle and the music. Let them drive away all fear by studying the phenomenon a little and profit by the irue old "saw" about familiarity .- [T. M., in Electrical Review.

BALATA, the product of a tree in Sumatra. threatens to become a rival of India rubber and gutta percha.

A Winning Lottery. Dairy products, poultry and fruit can be produced anywhere, and if intelligently marketed direct to consumers, bring immediate profits much in excess of those obtained by the city manufacturer for his goods. Dairying has some marked advantages over other kinds of farming, in that the soil is enriched, the cost of transportation, proportionate to value, less than other products, while the revenue is a sure and constant one every week in the year. Payment for grain or fruit is delayed until the crop is harvested, and then with failure in quantity or price expected, the disheartened farmer must wait a twelvemonth before getting even a chance in the lottery of crop raising. This is not a small matter, for no man can make a real success of a business he does not love. Fuchsias for Outdoors.

Fuchsias are fine plants for outdoors in summer. Give them partial shade, plenty of pot room and plenty of water, and there is bloom all the time. They do not like to be under the drip of trees, but such a place as the shady side of a house suits them exactly. In much the same situation, though it will take more sun than any fern I know, for fern it is, the Nephrolepis tuberosa thrives. The fronds are graceful. and beside its use on the lawn, it is an excellent house plant in winter,

A Transformation.

It is a hideous struggle.
On first mounting, the horse had refused to move, standing there with his forefeet thrust out and firmly planted in the ground his ears lying close to his neck. Then sudlenly, without a second's warning, he had

Nobody had been frightened until then. That unexpected and vicious spring forward would have unseated most riders, ward would have unseated most riders, but Trefusis kept his seat. As the brute swung round, he swung with him, and had a good hand on the rein, as he went wildly forward. Like a flash of lightning the horse tore past those standing on the hall foor steps, dashing onward toward the lawn

A lawn, of course, is as delightful a spot as one can meet with on which to try conclusion with a nasty-tempered horse; but, unfortunately. Adare's lawn, as I have lready stated, has a field lying beyond it a field divided from the great broad lovely lawn by a ha-ha. Down there on the right side of this ha-ha a light wire railing about 40 yards in length and one yard in height had been erected, to mark it dangerous—just to prevent people from jumping it, as the ha-ha has been sunk much lower upon the other side of it than on the part above it. It is towards this spot, marked dangerous, that the now infuriated animal is dashing, with its head between its forefeet, and every sinew strung. "Great heavens! I hope he will be able to turn him," says Adare, under his breath. He has changed color; he steps back a bit, and frowns nervously.

It is clear, however, to them all that Trefusis has no longer the slightest control over the animal he is riding. He is sitting him firmly enough, and is apparently doing all he can to turn him aside, without avail. There is always little or nothing to be done with a runaway.

Nearer, ever nearer, rush the horse and rider to that fateful spot in the ha-ha. Now they are are almost at it. Now—
Fanny bursts into tears. Miss Anson covers her face with her hands. Terry, with her arms cast backward and her fingers clasping convulsively the chair sehind her, is leading forward, her face like marble, her eyes wide.

She is rigid, tense; her gaze is fixed immovably upon the tragic scene below. Now indeed the tragedy is at its height. The horse had reached the wire railing, has risen to it, has cleared it badly, and, has some with a sickening crash to the ground at the other side.
"Robbie! Robbie!" cries Mrs. Adare,

rildly, "you should not have let him do it!"

"My God! what a time to reproach a man !" says Adare, with a terrible glance at her. But even as he starts forward, the other men following him, they see Trefusis stagger to his feet, seize the reins—the horse has already risen, and is standing shivering next to him-and fling himself once more into the saddle.

A wild cheer bursts from those watching

"Oh, he is hurt!" says Terry, faintly. She drops into a chair. A wave of sickness passes over her. What is his pluck, or anything, to her, beside that line of blood running down his cheek ?

They all see it new, that ugly stain, stealing from his forehead to his chin. Rut Trefusis himself appears either ignorant of t or indifferent to it. He has the brute well in hand now, and this time the victory seems to the man. The lower field makes a capital course on a small scale, and round it he takes him and then tur towards the house and thus up and over the ha-ha and past the group on the edges of the lawn, who cry to him in vain to stop. No power on earth would have stopped him then. Those looking on never quite forget his face—pale, with that streak of blood upon it, and his eyes flashing. If he never looked handsome before, he looks handsomer now than most men, and a thrill of pride in him, that she does not dare de-Ine, runs through Terry's heart. It is horrible, the way he is flogging the brute, he thinks; but she understands that, and

And now he has torn past them, down the lawn again, and has taken the horse over the ha-ha once more, but this time at his own pace and pleasure. And so on, antil he comes to them once more, and drops from the saddle to the ground, smiting, but breathing with a little difficulty. It had been a battle, but he had won. The now thoroughly cowed creature stands trembling in every limb, and almost sobbing, beside him. "Sell him!" says he to Adare, as a groom leads the horse away. "I know his kind. I had a horse like that once. I conquered him too, but I found he required reconquering once a week. It wasn't good enough. It was too fatiguing."

Untold Misery-What a Well-Known Commercial Traveler Suffered, and How He Was Cured,-Gentlemen,-About five years ago I began to be troubled with dyspepsia, and for three years suffered untold misery, from this terrible complaint. was at that time traveling for Messrs. Walter Woods & Co., Hamilton, and was treated by some of the best physicians in the country, but all to no purpose. I continued to grow worse, one day I was induced to try a bottle of Northrop & Lyman's VEGETABLE DISCOVERY, and to my great surprise and joy, I soon began to improve. I continued using this medicine, and when the third bottle was finished I found I was entirely cured; and as a year has elapsed since then, I feel confident that the cure is complete and permanent. To all afflicted with this distressing complaint I heartily recommend Northrop & Lyman's VEGETABLE DISCOVERY, believing that the persistent use of it will cure any case of Henry Laframboise, a farmer of Sandwich West, while attempting to lasso a cost on Monday, got the rope tangled around him and was dragged over the ground. His son, afther several futile attempts to catch the animal, drew a knife from his pocket, cut the rope and saved his father from an almost certain death, but not before the man was terribly bruised from the blows against trees and fallen timber. His body is covered with a countess number of wounds, but the doctors entertain hopes of his recovery.

Mrs. Chaput, wife of a Sandwich West

Lansing, Mich. LANSING, Mich., July 23 .- A dispatch to local paper from London, Ont., concerning a former resident of this city, has created a furore among our people. Mrs. Wm. Langley, of 21 Euclid avenue, South London, was, during the latter years of her residence here, constantly subject to fits, which the doctors of this city and Detroit failed to cure. The dispatch received here says that Mrs. Langley is now completely cured. Two months ago she began using Dodd's Kidney Pills. From the first she improved and now is perfectly well. The natural inference is that her fits were caused by diseased kidneys, for which there is no remedy equal to Dodd's Kidney

Origin of "Strike."

An early use of the word "strike" occurs in the London Chronicle for 1765. In the September of that year are numerous references to a great suspension of labor in the northern coalfield, and the colliers are stated to have "struck out" for a higher bounty before entering into their usual yearly "bond." In confirmation of Mr. Leaton Bienkinsopp's statement at the last reference, it may be added that the strike is twice called a "stick." (London Chronicle, October 8, 10.)

One of Harriet Martineau's earliest pamphlets was a tract entitled "The Tendency of Strikes and Sticks to Produce Low Wages," published at Durham in 1834. The time-honored illustration of profitless labor, "carrying coals to Newcastle," probably received its first slap in the face during the strike of 1765. A paragraph dated Newcastle, Sept. 28, in the London Chronicle, says: "Tis very remarkable that on Wednesday several pokes of coals were brought from Durham to this town by one of the common carriers, and sold on the sandhill for 9 pence a poke, by which he cleared 6 pence a poke."

The happy couple were made the recipients of numerous valuable presents, east as Belleville) are: Southwesterly to indicating the esteem in which they are held. Afterwards Mr. and Mrs. Poole left for their home amid showers of rice and the good wishes of their many friends. A Book by Rev. G. L. Mackay.

Addresses on "The Church at Home" and on "Mission Work in Formosa," delivered by Rev. G. L. Mackay, missionary at Tamsui, Formosa, have just been printed in pamphlet form, and will be found very interesting reading. In the story of his labors amongst the Chinese, Dr. Mackay describes the dangers to which he was exposed at the hands of the natives, who at first were bitterly hostile to his work. The pamphlet is illustrated with sketches of Dr. Mackay and his Chinese wife and children in the native costume, and views of the church and educational institutions. Drowned at Port Stanley.

A sad drowning accident occurred at Port Stanley at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon when Mr. Wm. Balkwill, son of Isaac Balkwill, aged 21 years, lost his life. He was stepping from the dock to a scow when he missed his footing and fell into the harbor between the scow and the dock and never came up. Willing hands at once dived after him, the water being twelve feet deep and muddy, but they could not locate him until grappling irons were brought into use, and it was fully 40 minutes before the body was recovered. Every means was used to resuscitate him, but they failed, and after 40 minutes Dr. Gustin, of St. Thomas, who happened to be on the heights, arrived and pronounced him dead.

On a Sand Bar. St. Thomas Journal, July 24: The Joe Milton took a party from Part Stanley to Port Burwell last evening, but did not return to Port Stanley. Her failure to return caused a great deal of alarm at the Port, and no information could be obtained from Port Burwell in regard to the vessel. It was finally learned, however, that the steamer had got fast in a sand bar, damaging her rudder, and was unable to return to Port Stanley. Messrs. J. A. Robinson, Norman McDonald and the family of, Mr. J. W. Cook were among those who were on board the Milton all night. The steamer was pulled by a tug to Port Stanley this morning, leaving Burwell at 6 a.m.

The trustees of the estate, the General Trusts Company of Ontario, are directed to invest the capital of the estate, and to accumulate one-quarter of it for twenty years. At the expiration of this time it is to be divided amongst the children of deceased. One-eighth of the residue is settled on each of deceased's children. The Water Commissioners.

At the meeting of the water commissioners held last evening the following members were present: Chairman Jones, Secretary Ellwood and R. K. Cowan. Mr. H. Grimsby appeared on behalf of a complaint of overcharge in his water rate. His meter had been examined and found to be all right, and so his complaint was filed. Mr. John Law appeared in behalf of a petition of his in regard to the will of the late man named Rodd was struck by the electric | Hon. E. Leonard, which provided for a grant of $7,000 for public baths.

Mr. Law asked that if a project site were obtained could the pipes supplying the fountains in the park be used to carry the water. It was referred to the council with the approval of the board. It will be next year before anything can be done in this matter, and then the new pumps will be able to supply all water necessary. A communication was read from Mrs. Annie Wyatt, asking for a larger water pipe, as it was not big enough for both house and lawn service. Action was deferred in the meantime, and the Education held a special meeting last number of these pipes in use will be reported on. Hobbs Hardware Company complained that their water bill was higher than it should be. No action. Chairman Jones placed his signature on the agreement between the City of London and the Board of Water Commissioners and the Board of Education for school section No. 5 of Westminster, which reads, that on account of no taxes being paid on the city property at the waterworks $75 per annum will be paid for the education of the children on that property. Mr. R. McLean complained of the smallness of his water supply pipe. The inspector will see if anything is wrong with it. The usual batch of accounts were passed.

Sweet Home. "What place is this?" asked the society woman as the coachman stopped before her own house, "This, madam," said the footman, "is your home." "Ah, indeed!" said the lady. "I'm here so little that I had quite forgotten it."

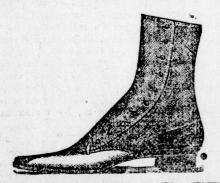

Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many, who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs. Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.
