ALLIES HURL BACK ENEMIES IN TWO FIERCE ATTACKS

SIR RODMOND FELT FEAR OF DISMISSAL WHEN HE RESIGNED

Says, On Witness Stand, That Lieutenant-Governor Was Believed To Be Waiting an Opportunity—He Dictated Letter of Resignation To Stenographer.

[Canadian Press.]

Winnipeg, July 5.—The commission investigating charges of a bargain between the Roblin and Norris governments resumed this morning, with Sir Rodmond Roblin on the stand for the conclusion of his evidence. He was further cross-examined by Isaac Pitblado, Liberal counsel.

Sir Rodmond said he dictated his letter of resignation himself in his own office to his own stenographer. He showed it to members of his own cabinet, but not to any Liberal. If there were changes from the wording, Mr. Pitblado suggested, he made it himself. So nearly as he could recall, he dictated the resignation from memory without the Phippen memorandum before him.

Thought This Enough.

He thought, when he stated Mr. Hudson's charges had been substantially proved, that he was complying with the promise he had made. He knew what was intended was that the Government should admit the correctness of the charges.

Mr. Pitblado read an extract from Sir Rodmond's letter of resignation to the Lautenant-Governor, that "in view of information gathered during the last few weeks by the public works department, and the statements made by ex-Judge Phippen before the royal commission, there is now no doubt that Hon. A. B. Hudson was substantially justified in his statements regarding overpayments, etc., in connection with the Parliament Buildings."

Engaged Engineer.

Sir Rodmond said that when Salt's "blackbood," containing records of the caissons which had been altered, was produced, the Government felt they must have some outside information regarding the caissons, so they engaged Engineer Sweeney to measure the caissons and gather data. He found the yardage claimed was not there. The engineer wanted access to Kelly's books, and when Sir Rodmond asked Kelly abtu this, Kelly informed him he was doing his wor kon contract, not yardage.

"Why did you not disclose this?" asked Mr. Ptiblado.

"When the commission first opened I was in hopes it would deal with this at the proper time. The commission, however, did not enter ito the business of inquiry at all, as I thought—in fact, I don't hesitate to say I don't think so yet."

Tried to Avoid Suit.

Witness said he wanted to avoid a lawsuit with Kelly; that was why he wanted Phippen to present the case to Kelly and persuade Kelly to accept payment for the caissons on a yardage basis. When this was refused by the contractor, and a lawsuit became inevitable, Sir Rodmond knew it must be fought by another Government.

Mr. Pitblado recalled the fact that the Roblin Government resigned on Wednesday, because the next day was the thirteenth day of the month, and the following day (Friday), and it was felt not to be auspicious for the new Government to take charge on either of those days.

"That was all discussed," said Sir Rodmond. "The Lieutenant-Governor was waiting for an opportunity to dismiss us. We had reason to believe that. I preferred to resign rather than be dismissed."

Feared Dismissal.

He was questioned regarding conversations with Judge Phippen. There was talk of an interim report which witness interperted as meaning his dismissal. At the Conservative caucus the night before the resignation of the Government, Sir Rodmond said, the attitude of the Lieutenant-Governor was discussed. The fourteen members who signed the petition on which were based the charges under investigation were present. "We told them," he said, "that we were going to resign, and we told them of the attitude of the Lieutenant-Governor and laid the general conditions before them."

None of the fourteen consulted him before the charges were made, nor did Mr. Fullerton. They got no information from Sir Rodmond.

"I did not kno wanything about the charge before I saw it in the newspapers," he said. "They were talking about these charges weeks ago, and I said we had had enough sensationalism."

TWO ATTEMPTS AT ATTACK BY ENEMY BEATEN

Allies Hurl Germans Back At Souchez and in Labyrinth.

FOE GAINS SOME GROUND

Succeeds in Getting Foothold in Lines Previously Lost By Him.

[Canadian Press.]

Paris, July 5—2:20 p.m.—The French war office this afternoon gave out a statement on the progress of hostilities reading as follows:

"In the region to the north of Arras two attempts at attack on the part of the enemy, preceded each by a violent bombardment, were checked by us at about 10 o'clock last night.

"One was directed particularly against our position in front of Souchez. The Germans came out several different times from their trenches, armed with grenades and bombs. We, however, compelled them to withdraw, leaving many dead on the ground. The other took place at 'The Labyrinth,' but it was stopped by our fire.

"In the course of yesterday afternoon and in the evening, the Germans assumed the offensive along a front of about three miles, stretching from Fey-En-Haye to the Moselle. To the east of Fey-En-Haye, as well as in the western section of the forest of Le Pretre, along a front of about two-thirds of a mile, they were successful, after a violent bombardment, in again gaining a footing in their oll lines recently taken by us. But in spite of the vigor of their action, they found it impossible to move beyond these lines.

"Further to the east, on a line running from La Croix-Des-Carmes to the village of Riept, on the Moselle, a German attack resulted in complete failure, and the enemy suffered very heavy losses.

"There is nothing of importance to report from the rest of the front."

SAYVILLE VERSION.

[Canadian Press.]

Berlin, July 5—By Wireless to Sayville.—The German army headquarters today gave out the following statement:

"In the western theatre, a British attack north of Ypres and a French attack against Souchez, were repulsed.

"On the western end of the forest of Le Pretre the Germans stormed 1,500 yards of the enemy position and advanced for a distance of 400 yards. We made prisoners about 100 unwounded Frenchmen, among whom were the staff officers of one battalion, and took two field guns, four machine guns and three light and four heavy mine-throwers.

Bruges Bombed.

"The bombs thrown by aviators yesterday on Bruges, Belgium, fell in the neighborhood of the most valuable monuments of the town.

"In the eastern theatre, the Teutonic allied troops under Gen. Von Linsingen have reached the whole front of the Zlota Lipa and have cleaned the west bank of Russians. In almost a fortnight of fighting against strong enemy positions we have forced a passage across the Dniester River and have driven the enemy from position to position.

"In the Bug section the enemy last night evacuated his bridgehead at Krylow.

"Between the Bug and the Vistula the Russians were repulsed near Plonka and Turobin and near Tarnawska and Krasnik."

DAILY MAIL IS FEELING BLUE OVER OUTLOOK

Says Situation Is Worse Than It Was a Few Months Ago.

DECLARES RIFLES NEEDED

Finds Fault With Authorities For Not Buying From U. S. A.

[Canadian Press.]

Montreal, July 5.—A London cable to the Gazette says:

Discussing the war situation, the Daily Mail says: "The Daily Mail warns the public that the situation is not even as satisfactory as it was a few months ago, when Lloyd George said: 'I think the situation is still grave, much too grave, very much too grave,' and Lord Curzon stated: 'The situation is one of grave anxiety, and it is not unfair to speak of this country as being in grave peril.' They were gently hinting at facts not known to one person in a thousand in this land, and not known to the majority of the members of the House of Lords or House of Commons. The story of the Dardanelles expedition, which is only one phase of a grave situation, is completely misunderstood, and its importance underestimated.

Are Preparations Sufficient.

"Members of Parliament should press for information as to certain circumstances. In connection with this vast undertaking the public ought to know, and they should not be further chloroformed."

Referring to "certain preparations against invasion" which are being carried out, the Mail asks if these preparations are sufficient. It says: "We wonder, because now that war is in its twelfth month we find that, according to statements made in the House of Commons, all sorts of things are very insufficient—the supply of rifles and machine guns for example.

"The Daily Mail frankly distrusts authorities who have not yet provided soldiers with rifles. Rifles could have been obtained over and over again from the United States had they been ordered. Offers of machine guns were made last autumn and were refused. The people who muddled the equipment of men who are marching about without weapons may be muddling in the invasion question.

JANE ADDAMS SAYS NATIONS IN MOOD TO CONSIDER PEACE TERMS

Negotiations Must, However, Come From Neutrals, the Sooner the Better.

[Canadian Press.]

New York, July 5. — Miss Jane Addams, chairman of the International Congress of Women For Peace that met at The Hague in April last, and who headed the delegations appointed at the conference to visit the various countries on a peace mission, arrived here today on the steamship St. Louis from Liverpool.

Miss Addams declared the people of the warring nations were in a that negotiations must come from neutrals, and the longer they were delayed the harder would be the task of restoring peace. Since the adjournment of the conference, with other delegates, she visited most of the countries at war, met and talked with leading civil and military officials and sounded each on the prospects of peace.

"The nations at war," said Miss Addams, "have no choice but to go on. No negotiations can now be suggested by any of them without giving the appearance of weakness, and none of the nations as yet feels in the slightest but that its cause can and must succeed."

LONDON LADS WIN HONOR AND GLORY

Captain Douglas Says They Made Immortal Name For Themselves.

Montreal, July 5.—With a tale of the heroic behavior of the London boys under his command, Capt. Douglas of the 1st Canadian Battalion, Chatham, arrived in Montreal on the Metagama last night and made his way painfully, hobbling on crutches. He will remain in Canada until July 29, or perhaps longer if his leave is extended, as seems likely, owing to his wounds.

When the company of London lads he commanded first got under fire their trenches were 200 yards away, he said, but the space was reduced to 30 yards, and they had to hold back the boches at times unsupported. Now conditions are better, and both men and ammunition are plentiful.

On June 15 the battalion in which the London boys are, made itself immortal, getting into an engagement with 750 men and coming out with about 200. It had 21 out of 23 officers killed or wounded.

WASHINGTON PUZZLED BY "IMPORTANT CHANGES" TO BE MADE IN BERLIN NOTE

Fears Armenian Episode May Be Taken As an Excuse To Reopen Whole Subject of Submarine Warfare—The President May Resent Any Evasion.

[Special to The Advertiser.]
[By John Edwin Nevin.]

Washington, July 5.—Why Germany has held up the note for "important changes" was a thing which still puzzled officialdom here today.

The opinion was universal that there would be no deviation from the conciliatory policy. What was feared was that the steamship Armenian's attempt to escape from the submarine which attacked it, even to the extent of trying to ram the undersea craft, would be made an excuse for undertaking to open the whole subject of submarine warfare to discussion, leading to interminable diplomatic exchanges, one thing President Wilson is known to be most anxious to avoid.

Latest word from Berlin indicated that the German note hardly could be expected before the latter part of this week. If it is evasive it is believed the President will ignore details and ask for a direct reply to the main demand.

MYSTERY IN BERLIN.

[By Carl W. Ackerman.]

Berlin, Via the Hague, July 5.—The sudden change in plans for the delivery of the German reply remained mystery today. The foreign office declared today that the date of delivery is now indefinite, but refused to give any hint as to the reason for postponement.

Ambassador Gerard would not throw any light on the situation, other than to repeat that he had sent an explanatory cable to Washington. He intimated that the reply might not be placed in his hands for another week.

To Ask Another Note.

Until late Saturday night conferences were held at the foreign office. It was admitted today that the German-American situation was under discussion, but officials displayed the greatest reticence regarding the conference.

Whatever nature of proposals put forward by Germany it is deemed certain here that German-American controversies will not be cleared up at once.

The German reply will invite another communication from America.

SHOT MORGAN AND ADMITS ATTEMPT TO BLOW UP U. S. SENATE

FRANK HOLT.

START ORDERED ON BREAKWATER

Engineer Brazier Instructed To Start West London Work At Once.

CEMENT WILL BE USED

Rubble Stone Would Be Cheaper But Could Not Be Secured Locally.

Alternative plans for the new West London breakwater to be constructed between Blackfriars and Oxford streets at a cost of $25,000 were submitted by Engineer Brazier to the board of control today. These plans can be carried out either in cement or rubble stone.

While rubble stone would cost $1,000 less than cement, and be easier to work in water, the objection to its use lay in the fact that it would be necessary to bring it in from outside and a great deal of outside labor would be utilized in preparing it. Controller Gammage was of the opinion that as much money as possible should be expended to employ labor in the city, a suggestion that was heartily indorsed by the other members of the board.

Engineer Brazier was authorized to go on with the work at once by day labor.

The city's contract will cover the cement supply, and the engineer will call for tenders for gravel and look after the reinforcing material.

"PATCHED UP" TO FIGHT FOR KING

Would-Be Recruits Undergo Operations To Be Taken On.

DO ANYTHING TO GO

Would Rather Lose Leg Than Be Refused, Says Doctor.

Many men, anxious to respond to the call for volunteers, have been told on applying to the recruiting officer that they were physically unfit. But these men have shown their dauntless spirit on mony occasions, as the authorities at Victoria Hospital and the physicians on the staff have good reason to know.

The other day a man applied to Lieut.-Col. W. M. Gartshore, chairman of the hospital trust, stating that he was suffering from a hernia, and that he could not be signed on until he was operated on. He also had been refused because his teeth were bad. A day or so later Col. Gartshore met the same man and asked him what he had done. The reply was that he had fourteen teeth removed, and would go into the hospital for the operation when his new set of teeth had been put in. He will be taken care of at the hospital as soon as he is ready, and it will be a matter of several weeks before he can again apply to the recruiting officer.

The staff doctors at Victoria have "patched up" many men, so that they can enter the service. "Hammer toe" has been a frequent cause of rejection, and many operations have straightened out the long digit that was to help carry a volunteer toward Berlin.

"When a man gets the determination to enlist he would almost lose a leg rather than be refused," said one of the doctors.

NORWEGIAN BARK SUNK BY GERMAN SUBMARINE

London, July 5.—The Norwegian bark Fiery Cross has been sunk by a German submarine 70 miles southwest of the Scilly Islands. Her crew of 18men, after spending twenty hours in open boats, landed at Swansea.

COL. BECKER DIED HOURS AFTER FALL

Gallant London Soldier Was Twice Wounded, Says Letter.

BOMB SHATTERED FEET

Later Bullet Struck Officer in Neck—Cheerful Until End.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Toronto, July 5.—In letters received here today from an officer of the 1st Canadian Infantry Battalion, the story of the gallant death of Lieut.-Col. Becher of London at the battle of Givenchy, is given in more detail.

The letters say that Col. Becher was first disabled by a bomb which shattered his feet, and he then received a bullet wound in his neck. At the field hospital his injuries were not at first considered dangerous, but he died some hours later. Col. Becher continued cheerful till his death, and his last utterances were those of a true British soldier.

He was sincerely mourned by his comrades, both officers and rank and file. Gen. Alderson was present at his funeral, which was given with full military honors.

REPRESENTATIVE OF RAILWAYMEN DEAD

Harvey Hall Was President of the Order of Railway Conductors.

[Canadian Press.]

Toronto, July 5.—The death of Harvey Hall, legislative representative at Ottawa of the Order of Railway Conductors, and a very well-known railroader, took place suddenly at 7 o'clock this morning at his home in the Strathcona Apartments. He had undergone a slight operation on Thursday, and was doing very well, when on Saturday he became very ill. Unconsciousness followed and he died this morning. The cause of death is said to be toxic poisoning following the operation.

He was born in Bolton, Ont., 58 years ago, and had spent most of his life in Toronto. He was a conductor with the C. P. R. for many years, and was president of the Order of Railway Conductors, a Mason and Orangeman, and connected with other fraternal organizations and well known in labor circles, in which he had been active for some years.

BLAZE UNCOVERS AN ILLICIT STILL

Montreal Plant Found When Gasoline Starts Fire.

[Canadian Press.]

Montreal, July 5.—An illicit still was found in the garret of a two-story brick house on Western avenue, Notre Dame De Grace, by members of the fire department yesterday. Some gasoline, which was used to operate an engine, became ignited and set fire to the beams of the roof. Two men and a woman tried their utmost to extinguish the outbreak, but when the flames were beyond their control they made good their escape, knowing that the still was sure to be detected. An automobile, capable of carrying five passengers, was found in the rear of the house.

BONDS ARE SAFE

$20,000,000 Worth, Reported Confiscated by Carranza, Found.

[Canadian Press.]

Galveston, Texas, July 5.—Foreign bonds valued at $20,000,000 gold which the Carranza consulate here said had been reported confiscated by Gen. Venustiano Carranza have been discovered intact after a careful check of securities in the Carranza Government treasury, according to a cablegram dated Vera Cruz made public by the consulate today. The bonds were deposited by foreign corporations doing business in Mexico as required by law, and when Gen. Carranza evacuated Mexico City were transferred to Vera Cruz along with other contents of the national treasury and the national archives to prevent them falling into the hands of Zapata.

Knew He Would "Die in a Ditch"

Last Words Heard From Pte. Whitby —Officers Returning.

[Canadian Press.]

Montreal, July 5.—A cable to the Gazette from London says:

Col. F. S. Meighen of the 14th Battalion, Montreal, and Col. J. A. Currie of the 15th Battalion (48th Highlanders), of Toronto, sailed on Friday for Canada, for the purpose of giving special instructions to the troops now in training in Canada. Major Gault McCombe of the 14th Battalion, is now recovering from his wounds received at Ypres, and expects to return to the front soon, as does also Major R. H. Jamieson of the 13th Battalion.

Major McCombe paid a tribute to Pte. C. D. B. Whitby, late of the Gazette staff, who was reported missing and is now assumed to be dead. Pte. Whitby was seen lying wounded in a ditch, and even then his characteristic humor prevailed, the last words which his comrades heard from him being: "I always knew I would die in a ditch."

PROMISED RATES ARE NOT GIVEN

30-Cent Fares On L. and P. S. To Big Parties Only.

GO VIA TRACTION LINE

Picnics Using the London and Lake Erie Because of Other Road's Terms.

An illustration of the way Londoners generally are learning to differentiate in arranging for Port Stanley picnics is found in the fact that the majority of Sunday school picnics booked for the present season are via the London and Lake Erie Railway Line.

Tomorrow the Askin Street choir goes to Port via special Traction cars. An effort was made to book the picnic via the London and Port Stanley. That road, however, demanded a guarantee of 200 tickets before the special 30-cent rate was given. The Traction line, on the other hand, gave the choir the special rate and booked a special car, though only 60 are going.

Three Big Picnics.

The difference in treatment is significant. On Wednesday three Sunday school picnics, one of which was originally booked by the London and Port Stanley, will go down on the Traction line. These will be the Askin Street Sunday School, the St. James' Anglican Sunday School and the Egerton Street Baptist Sunday School.

These facts are made public by reason of the fact that 30-cent fares were sweepingly promised by the promoters of the London and Port Stanley during the electrification campaign of two years ago. The difference between the promises then and the facts now needs no other comment.

Significant Contrast.

In contrast to the demands for at least 200 tickets before a 30-cent rate will be given, is the following, a reproduction of one of the many stories anent 30-cent fares, that appeared in the local organ of the electrificationists on October 30, 1913:

"Mayor Graham and Ald. Moore will at once prepare the details of the agreement for the lease of the London and Port Stanley Railway by the board to the city, and will submit them to the directors. The agreement will ABSOLUTELY GUARANTEE 30-CENT FARES TO PORT STANLEY DURING THE SUMMER TIME, the right of other railways to run over the London and Port Stanley into London, favorable freight rates to shippers and commutation tickets for passengers and some minor considerations.

"I EXPECT THE SUMMER FARES TO BE LESS THAN 30 CENTS WHEN THE ROAD IS RUNNING A YEAR OR TWO," said Mayor Graham. "WE ARE GOING TO MAKE IT CERTAIN THAT THE FARE IS NO HIGHER THAN THAT AMOUNT."

DATED APPOINTMENTS FROM FIRST OF YEAR

Salaries of Temporary Assessment Department Employees Therefore Held Up.

"I understood that Messrs. Grant and Burwell had been permanently appointed to the assessment staff," stated Assessment Commissioner Stephen Grant to the board of control, when the question was introduced this morning of paying amounts owing these two employees —$40 to the former and $75 to the latter.

Investigation proved that with other temporary assessors and clerks, they had been appointed for only twenty weeks, and owing to a mistake, the five months had been dated from the first of the year, instead of from the beginning of the assessment season, March 1. The recommendation was made that the salaries be paid for June and July.

ITALIANS' SHELLS HIT HENSEL FORT

Artillery Actions in Tyrol, Trentino and Carnia Districts.

ENEMY OFTEN REPULSED

Allies Capture 300 Prisoners With Field Guns and Ammunition.

[Canadian Press.]

Rome, July 4, via Paris, July 5.—The following official statement was issued tonight at the headquarters of the Italian general staff:

"In the region of the Tyrol, Trentino and Carnia, there has been a continuance of artillery actions, supported by small Italian detachments pushing toward the front. The Hensel fort was reached a number of times yesterday.

"Supported by continuous artillery fire the enemy attempted to retake last night trenches on the northern slope of Val Grande occupied by our Alpine troops on July 2. This attack, like those preceding it, was repulsed.

"Our adversary renewed yesterday with particular violence counter-attacks against several lines of positions conquered by us on the Carso Plateau. In spite of the fire of machine guns and artillery, these counter-attacks were repulsed with heavy losses. We captured 300 prisoners, two field cannon, guns and munitions. According to prisoners, the Austrian losses, especially from our artillery fire, have been serious in the last few days."

"It was for private reasons that I resigned," stated Mr. Guy yesterday to The Advertiser.

The resignation of Mr. Guy was accepted by the board at a meeting at noon today. WITNESSED BURIAL OF LT.-COL. BECHER

Major W. G. Coles of This City Present When London Officer Was Buried.

TERRIBLE TOLL OF WAR

Many Boys From City Gone in Terrible Fighting, He Writes.

In a letter received today from Major W. G. Coles of the 16th Army Service Corps, the London officer describes the universal sadness among the London officers and men at the death of Lieut.-Col. Becher. He was one of those present at the burial of the gallant second-in-command of the 1st Battalion, and writes as follows:

As I write the guns are roaring. We have had fierce fighting ahead of us, and our boys have paid the toll again. It's terrible to think of it, many London men gone this time. Poor Campbell Becher was killed June 15th. How badly I feel. He was dearly beloved by everyone. I got word at noon today (the 17th), that he was to be buried this afternoon, so took our motor car and got there in time. He was buried with five other officers, six in a row. I tell you it was a very sad sight. They were buried in the little village of Beuvry. Gen. Alderson, along with other generals and colonels, attended, also Lieut.-Col. Gordon-Hall, Lieut.-Col. McDonnell, Lieut.-Col. Lamb, Lieut. Murray and myself from London. My deepest sympathy goes out to his dear mother in her great loss.

My men are all well and in the best of spirits. As for myself, never felt better in my life. The night marches are dreary, but it's a good time to move, as the nights are cool. We enjoy our meals very much. Working and sleeping in the open makes us fine and fit.

Yesterday and today I met a few London boys who knew me and I was more than delighted to see them. Pte. Murray of the 1st Battalion, tells me that one of the boys has a postcard from Bob. Watt and Dick Whetter. Both are prisoners in Germany. I will inquire further and write you.

WEEK QUIET AT FRONT

Seemed as If Both Sides Were Taking a Holiday.

[BY FREDERICK PALMER]
(Who is at the front in France for the Canadian Press.)

BRITISH HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, July 3, via London, July 4.—10:25 a.m.—One might have gone miles along the British front this week without hearing the sound of a gun. It seemed as if both sides were taking a holiday from war out of respect for the beautiful summer weather, or else the silence was significant of preparation and accumulation of shells by one side or the other for some great effort.

Beyond the occasional explosion of a mine and routine shelling to harass the enemy's guns, to destroy new fortification works, or to keep the enemy from taking life too easily, there has been no action. The soldiers in reserve have been swimming in the canal or resting under shaded trees, playing cricket and football, and tending their flower gardens about their quarters which have been made to look like those one sees in front of rows of cottages at this season in England.

Country Transformed.

The flat and gently rolling country of Flanders and northern France which was a forbidding, gray, leafless mire under chilling winter mists, has become a pleasant land of rich crops dotted with groves, while long lines of motor trucks of the transport pass along stately avenues between poplars, which line the roads.

All fears of an epidemic of sickness in the hot months in the army thickly billetted in the heavy low land are growing less, thanks to anti-typhoid inoculation, the habitual personal cleanliness of the Englishmen and the strict enforcement of sanitary precautions by the Royal Army Medical Corps in the minutest details, the health of the army is as good as in the barracks at home. Flies are being kept down to a minimum. There are few even around the camps of the cavalry and artillery horses. The roadsides and rear yards, where the men are billetted are kept as clear of litter as a first-class golf course.

"Tommy" Helps With Harvest.

"Tommy Atkins" lends a hand to the French peasants, all of whom, from boys and girls of six or seven, to bent old men and women, are engaged in the harvest, and by the way "Tommy" uses his scythe or fork one knows whether he is city or country-bred.

The correspondent has walked through the long communication trenches safely in broad daylight to the firing trenches which, if approached in winter, except over open ground and stumbling through mud under cover of darkness, would have been worth one's life.

Siege warfare has been made comfortable. Trenches even have become a sort of sylvan paradise where meals and tea are taken "a la fresco" and flowers even have been planted on the parapets which support the trenches.

Where in winter men stood freezing in water up to their knees, mud oozed from sandbags and only continued pumping and bailing kept them from complete immersion and walls continually falling in, now the only complaint of the trench housekeepers is the want of water for washing, for the spongy subsoil is as dry as a bone and as hard as cement.

Fatalities Are Fewer.

The toll of casualties where there are only sniping and infrequent shelling has been much reduced, owing not only to the increased adaptability of the men in self-protection,—the result of experience in trench warfare—but to an immense improvement in the protective character of the works. Though a trench may be on exactly the same line as it was in December, spade work in the spring and summer has completely transformed it, affording small chance for either shrapnel shell bullets, or bullets fired by snipers from trees or buildings to hit the defenders.

You can move only a few feet in a straight line in this maze of human warrens. The zigzag traverses localize damage. On dull days in the stalemate part of the line there have been instances of not a single casualty for a distance of a mile in twenty-four hours. It is when the artillery fire is concentrated and an effort is made to get through the barbed wire and take a trench by either side that the casualty list leaps like a thermometer thrust from an icebox into an oven.

Prefer Trenches to Billets.

So used have they become to trench life that some soldiers prefer life in an average trench on an average day to that in billets, because sniping has the elements of sport and excitement. The confidence and patriotism of the fighting men at the front are shown in both officers and soldiers, even if they have only a few shillings put by, in subscribing to the war loan.

The professional opinion of officers at the front is that they are not discouraged by the German offensive in the east. They say the war must be won by the killing of Germans and that the further the Germans are drawn into the Russian quicksand the more wastage for them. This period of the war for the entente allies is compared to that for the North in 1863 at the time of Lee's and Jackson's success in Virginia and the Confederate advance in Pennsylvania before Gettysburg was won.

Riding about the British front even an expert observer is unable to guess how many troops the British have in France, so easy of concealment is the thickly settled country. He passes bodies of infantry changing station or moving to the front, without being any the wiser. Only Sir John French, commander-in-chief of the British expeditionary force, and a few staff officers really know. The average officer never asks, but attends strictly to his business.

Gains of Positive Value.

In the hard fighting in the Festubert and LaBassee region and the French offensive in the Arras region, though the changes show so little on the map, gains of a very positive tactical value for the future were made, if the opinion of a lay observer counts for anything the British army is far from making anything like a maximum effort yet.

The anger of officers and men at gas-attacks of the Germans has not yet passed. Tommy Atkins always is seen in new trenches with a respirator in a bag slung at his side.

In the trenches these days at least one hears no talk of any peace which is not gained by forcing Germany to her knees.

DALZIEL WANTS PROBE OF BRITAIN'S LACK OF GUNS

Proposes That Man Responsible be Cleared Out "Bag and Baggage."

LONDON, July 4.—Sir Henry Dalziel, Liberal member of Parliament and newspaper proprietor, whose arraignment of the ordnance department in the House of Commons last Thursday caused a sensation, yesterday announced his determination to continue on the warpath until, in his own words, the "men directly guilty for the failures of the past year are cleared out bag and baggage."

Sir Henry early this week will ask Premier Asquith to give the House of Commons facilities for full discussion on the lack of guns and American ammunition.

Sir Henry Dalziel asserts that a conflict of authority already has arisen between the ordnance department and the ministry of munitions and he declared that the only solution is to give David Lloyd George supreme authority for munition supplies.

He predicted a bumper crop.

All strangers in Cornish and Windsor are being carefully scrutinized and the entire machinery of the United States secret service has been set in motion to protect the President.

FOUR WALLACEBURG PEOPLE PERISH IN ST. CLAIR RIVER

Launch With Eight Capsizes — Bride and Groom Among Lost—Sudden Squall Cause of Disaster On Sunday Evening.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

CHATHAM, July 4.—Mr. and Mrs. C. B. McDougall, Mrs. Howard and Miss Faricoll, four of a party of eight Wallaceburg people, lost their lives early this evening, when a gasoline launch in which they were returning from Algonac capsized in the St. Clair River a short distance from the Michigan city.

The party had spent the day holidaying, and were on their way back to Wallaceburg when the fatal accident occurred. The launch was travelling at a rapid rate when a sudden squall caused it to capsize and precipitate its passengers into about 25 feet of water.

The strong current at the spot swept the struggling people almost out of reach of another boat that witnessed the mishap and at once put to the rescue. By quick work the occupants of the second craft managed to save four members of the ill-fated party. But Mr. and Mrs. McDougall, who were married only recently, Mrs. Howard and Miss Faricoll perished.

At 10 o'clock tonight the body of Mrs. Howard only had been recovered. The search for the other bodies is still being maintained.

CHICAGO MAN THINKS HOLT IS A GERMAN NAMED MUENTER WHO DISAPPEARED FROM HARVARD

He Was Known As Holt At Vanderbilt University and Cornell.

[Canadian Press.]

CHICAGO, July 4.—Information pointing to Frank Holt, the would-be assassin of J. P. Morgan, as Erich Muenter, a former student at the University of Chicago, who disappeared from Harvard following the death of his wife in 1906, was given to a newspaper here today by a college associate of Muenter during his Chicago days, who says he knew of Muenter's rehabilitating himself as Holt. The informant added that he had known of him as Holt in Vanderbilt University and Cornell.

The informer, whose anonymity was pledged by the newspaper, was quoted as saying:

"Muenter was born in Germany, but since his rehabilitation has claimed to have been born in Texas of German parentage. For a time he taught German in the Harvard school of Chicago, a private preparatory institution. He also taught German in Radcliffe College for women.

Fugitive in Mexico.

"His wife was about to give birth to their third child when her death occurred. Muenter ran away from Cambridge with the two children and brought them to Chicago, where he turned them over to Mrs. Muenter's parents. Then, still undetected by the authorities, he went to Mexico.

"While a fugitive, he issued a badly-printed review of his case, couched in sarcastic terms, and mailed it to some of his acquaintances.

"Under the name of Holt he showed up at the Agricultural and Mechanical College station, Texas, passed the examination there and was graduated. He married a class-mate in the Texas school and has three children by her.

Got Ph.D. at Cornell.

"He later taught German in Vanderbilt University at Nashville, Tenn., and attended Cornell University, where he obtained his Ph.D. degree."

Muenter's sister, Miss Bertha Muenter, a teacher in the public schools here, who lives with her aged mother, said she had never heard from her brother since his disappearance nine years ago.

Mrs. Muenter died in Boston on April 25, 1906. Only her husband was present at the time of her death, as the Muenters did not believe in doctors, it was said.

The undertaker was suspicious and the stomach and internal organs of the woman were sent to Prof. Whitney of Harvard for analysis, but Muenter was allowed to leave for Chicago with the body.

Prof. Whitney found traces of poison in the stomach, and a warrant was issued for Muenter. Before the Chicago police were notified, he disappeared. In Harvard, Muenter was instructor in three elementary German courses, and prepared a thesis on "Insanity in German Romantic Literature." He was born in Germany and came to the United States 25 years ago.

SWITZERLAND INFORCES NEUTRALITY BY FINES

Has Difficulty in Keeping Citizens From Expressing Sentiment.

PARIS, July 4.—A dispatch to the Havas Agency from Geneva, Switzerland, says:

"The Federal Council (of Switzerland), decrees six months in prison, or a fine of 5,000 francs ($1,000), or both, for anyone who publicly by speech, by writing or by illustration exposes to hatred or contempt a foreign nation, its ruler or its government. There are lesser but severe penalties for anyone selling or circulating abusive publications. Full power is given to local authorities to seize copies of material.

"The Federal Council and local authorities are finding great difficulty in keeping down strong expressions of sympathy with one or another of the four belligerents hemming in this country. The Government is the object of almost daily protests from diplomatic representatives of belligerents, concerning some real or fancied violation of neutrality by verbal or written expressions."

FIVE BRITISH SHIPS AND ONE BELGIAN SUNK BY GERMANS

Raiders Torpedo Vessels But Spare Crews—Lifeboat Picked Up.

LONDON, July 4.—Five British steamers and one Belgian vessel were sunk by German submarines on Saturday. The British boats were the Larchmore, Renfrew, Richmond, Craigard and Gadsby. The Belgian boat was the Boduognat.

The British steamship Craigard, of 3,286 tons gross, was sunk by a torpedo fired by a German submarine. The crew was landed at Plymouth.

Lifeboat Found.

The Craigard sailed from Galveston June 3 and Newport News June 11 for Havre and the first suggestion that she had met with some mishap was when an empty lifeboat and another boat marked "Graigard, Leith," were towed into Penzance.

The steamer Craigard was 325 feet long, 48 feet beam and had a depth of 23 feet. She was built at Port Glasgow in 1901, and was owned by the Craigard Line S. S. Company of Leith.

Richmond Is Sunk.

The British steamship Richmond, of 3,214 tons gross, bound from Queenstown for Boulogne, and laden with railway ties, was sunk by a German submarine off the Scilly Island. The crew was landed at Plymouth, England.

German submarines also accounted for the Larchmore, of 4,355 tons gross, and the Renfrew, of 2,348 tons.

The British steamer Gadsby, of 3,497 tons gross, was sunk by a German submarine. The crew was landed at Moville, Ireland.

The Belgian steamship Boduognat was torpedoed and sunk by a German submarine. The crew was landed at Falmouth.

The Boduognat was a steamer of 1,441 tons gross, and was built at Sunderland in 1909. She was 250 feet long, 38 feet beam and 17 feet deep. The Boduognat was last reported at Port Talbot, England, on June 12. She was owned by the Antwerp Shipping Company.

TRYING TO TRACE HOLT'S IDENTITY

Detectives Following Clues All Over Country To Place Him.

MORGAN GETTING BETTER

English Paper Says Germany Was Probably Behind the Attempt.

[Canadian Press.]

New York, July 5.—Efforts were made here, at Glen Cove, L. I., and in several other cities today to clear up the mystery said to surround the identity of Frank Holt, who on Saturday attempted to assaassinate J. P. Morgan. Federal detectives throughout the country were following up clues which they hoped would reveal the chief events in his life. One of the important questions which they had to solve was that raised by the police of Cambridge, Mass., regarding the possible identification of Holt as Erich Muenter, a former Harvard instructor, who disappeared from that city after the death of his wife from alleged poisoning in 1906. Statements from relatives of Muenter and men who knew him as a student in Chicago, comparing descriptions of Holt with their recollections of Muenter, were read with interest by the detectives working on the case. Photographs of Muenter were compared with those of Holt.

Until a late hour last night Holt was questioned by police officials from New York and Washington. Major Pullman, superintendent of the Washington police, the last of the inquisitors, endeavored to locate the room that Holt occupied in Washington before exploding the bomb in the capitol, but was unable to do so.

Wanted to Hold Family.

It was in the course of his examination by several police officials that Holt disclosed his plan, entertained when he entered the Morgan home, to hold Mrs J. P. Morgan and the Morgan children as hostages in their own home, or to kill them if Mr. Morgan refused to use his influence to stop the exportation of war munitions.

Dispatches received here from Dallas, Texas, stated that the Rev. O. F. Sensabaugh, Holt's father-in-law, had taken steps toward engaging Martin W. Littleton as counsel for Holt, but Mr. Littleton said he had not received such a request.

Mr. Morgan's condition, according to the latest official bulletin, issued last night, continued to be most favorable, and the physicians attending him had stated that the bullets from Holt's revolver did not penetrate Mr. Morgan's abdomen.

PROBABLY INSPIRED.

[Canadian Press.]

London, July 5.—The Chronicle commenting on the attempt on J. P. Morgan's life, says:

"German apologists will no doubt disclaim responsibility for Holt as a mentally overwrought individual, acting entirely on his own initiative, but in spite of the evidence as to his mental condition his act or acts cannot be so simply dismissed.

"German Macchiavellianism has never shrunk from crime to advance its interests in neutral countries. The pro-German clique who rivetted the German yoke upon Turkey and forced her into war, has at every stage stained its pathway with murders of some of Turkey's best patriots, from Naxim Pacha downward.

"And why not?" By the side of the public acts which the German army and navy committed in this war and the wholesale murders and outrages which they designedly perpetrated against non-combatants, even hired assassination is not a particularly atrocious expedient."

OUT OF DANGER.

[Canadian Press.]

Glen Cove, N. Y., July 5.—J. P. Morgan, who was shot twice by Frank Holt last Saturday, is out of all danger. His physicians so notified his family this morning. Mr. Morgan's pulse was normal, his temperature was normal, and he passed a restful night.

Holt Very Weak.

Holt, the assassin, on the other hand, was so weak today that when his keepers went to his cell to arouse him he could not sit up in his couch. Unless his condition improves rapidly, and there seemed no reason to expect so radical a change, it will be impossible for him to be taken in court for examination next Wednesday. All plans to submit Holt to further questioning today were abandoned because of his serious condition.

Injuries Grave.

The jail physician today examined Holt thoroughly, and found that his injuries were graver than at first thought. Extreme weakness seemed to be the chief feature of Holt's indisposition. This was due, the doctor, said, to the great quantity of blood which he had lost from the wound over his eye.

Two stitches had been taken in this wound, and when it was dressed today, it still evinced a tendency to bleed, and all possible efforts were made to prevent a further loss of blood. In addition, Holt sustained a black eye, his shoulder was severely wrenched, and he was struck a powerful blow in the stomach which left a mark that had turned black and blue.

"Holt is very sick," the jail physician said, "sick physically and mentally. He is, apparently, exhausted and is unable to answer questions."

Sheriff Griffenhagen of New York County came here today to question the prisoner. One of the things that the sheriff wanted to clear up, if possible, was whether Holt had been involved in the alleged murder of Mrs. Erich Muenter in 1906. Holt denied vigorously and emphatically that he was Erich Muenter. He didn't know Muenter, he said, and had nothing to do with the murder of Mrs. Muenter.

Morgan Sleeps Well.

With the knowledge that his wounds were less grave than the doctors had first feared, Mr. Morgan rested comfortably during the night, awoke much refreshed and seemed cheerful. The X-ray examination of yesterday had dispelled fears that one of the two bullets had entered the abdomen or shattered the bone. Both bullets passed through the muscles of the hip and out through his clothing. The only danger, it was asserted, was from blood poisoning.

The physicians, therefore, felt justified in telling Mr. Morgan's family that he was out of all danger. For publication, they issued the following bulletin:

"The patient had a restful night. His temperature and pulse are normal. His general condition is most favorable. We consider him practically out of danger."

In Letter to Mother, Sergt. E. C. Bendle Tells of Wound and Other Things.

In a letter to his mother from the Royal Herbert Hospital in England, where he now is, Sergt. E. C. Bendle, 224 Ottaway avenue, a member of the 1st Canadian Overseas Contingent, tells of the wound he received, and also makes mention of the fact of Lieut.-Col. Becher's death, and the loss of the captain, also the injury of several other officers. Sergt. Bendle's wound was close to the spine and just above the kidneys. It was just 36 hours from the time he was hit until he was lying in a cot in the English hospital. The piece of shrapnel which injured him cannot be taken out, as in so doing other trouble might ensue, so, to use the words of the writer, "I guess I will carry a piece of German shell in my body as long as I live." He speaks in the highest terms of the Red Cross nurses, who, he says, are true angels of mercy. They are not contented, he affirms, until they see every one of their patients lying out of pain in a nice, clean cot. His injuries will keep him from the firing line for some time, but he expects to get another whack at the enemy befor the war is over.

RIGHT RELATIONSHIP

Religion Is But That Between Man and God.

"Religion is buthe right relationship with God and man." This was the essence of a strong sermon preached by Rev. Dr. Silcox in First Congregational Church last night, the subject of which was "The Christianity of Jesus." There was a great difference, he said, between being religious and possessing the Christianity of Jesus.

There could be no heaven for a man with an unloving heart, and on the other hand there could be no hell for the man who had in his heast love for God and humanity. The primal requirement of religion was to love God and man. No one had a right to call himself a Christian who had not the Christianity taught by Jesus.

Many people were religious who had no Christianity. Only as a man's religion was divine could it be humane, and only as it was humane could it be divine. What the world needed today was not Roman Catholic Christianity or Protestant Christianity, but the Christianity of Jesus.

DIED IN GUELPH

W. H. Cutten Was Formerly Law Student in London.

[Canadian Press.]

Guelph, Ont., July 5.—Walter Hoyt Cutten, a prominent barrister, died here late on Sunday night, aged 71. He had practiced here for twenty years, but studied law in St. Thomas with C. C. Abbott, brother of the late Sir John Abbott, with whom he was associated at St. Thomas and London until he came to Guelph.

Mr. Cutten was a law student in the office of Abbott & Hutchinson in this city, but so far as lawyers of the old school remember he never practiced in London. C. C. Abbott and the late Charles Hutchinson formed, at one time, one of the best known legal firms in Western Ontario.

Spirit of '12 Still Lives in Breasts of Canadian Youths

They Will Answer the Country's Call As Did Forefathers, Declares Len G. Westland, Writing From Hero's Grave, in Little Church Yard, Who Could Fight Like Devil and Pray Like Saint.

To the Editor of The Advertiser:

Occasionally, upon a fine day, when the wheeling is good, I have visited a small, country cemetery. It lies on the top of a sunny hill, and in the full fury of the winter's windy blasts, under the thick-growing crop of grass and weeds which cover its surface, many a bold pioneer lies at rest beside his brave helpmate, they having fought the good fight, and laid the foundations on which rests our present prosperity, and our social and religious life.

Under one of the many white stones which dot the hilltop lie the remains of one in whom I have a peculiar interest, for his name and exploits have been a tradition throughout my life; but it has been only in these latter years that I have been able to verify the tradition, and to really know something definite about the man, who was one of those noble few that in 1812 answered the call of Canada and defended the country so well and truly that it was saved, to form a part of the British Empire. It was, indeed, a great inheritance which those sturdy men of 1812 left to us of 1915. Do we as a people realize to the full our responsibilities, and that we should feel bound to hand it on to the next generation intact?

Actions Teach Bravery.

These old warriors whose bodies now lie in a thousand grass-grown cemeteries about our land incite us by their actions, which were brave, to be brave, which were earnest, to be earnest, which were loyal, to be loyal, and so perpetuate that glory of the British people of which I wrote a few days ago. Especially do they speak to the young men of Canadian birth—those of them who have not as yet heard the call of duty, those of them who have not felt the responsibility that is theirs; those of them who have forgotten these heroes of 1812, and for whom I speak, whose tongues are now dumb, but whose actions if read aright must be an incentive to all our brave young manhood.

'Tis a long way back to October 13, 1812, when on the evening of that day, it being wet and dark, Brock led his little army up the steeps of Queenstown, and there gave up his life while battling for the guns which changed hands a number of times, but which were ultimately left in the hands of his brave followers.

Offering of Flowers.

I always take a few flowers with me when I visit the old cemetery for an offering to the brave dead, and this day is no exception. I have been sitting near the grave writing the above, but at this point I get up and deposit my bunch of forget-me-nots on the base of the white stone, and ask that the spirit of the old heroes may not have departed from us utterly and left us craven

But, after all, I do not fear for that. So many of our young men have shown that they have the old British blood in their veins, I feel that the call will reach more and more of them as they are wanted, even as the old man lying below heard it when he was a young man

To me, there is a mighty mystery about the British people. What wanderers they are. How they love the old lands, and no matter where they are, any place in the wide world, home to them is always the little old islands of the sea. Some of them call it "'Ome," and to me it is not offensive, but conveys their love, and longing for their native land just as clearly as the more cultured sounding "Home," and the more I hear of "'Ome" the more I am proud to be one of them, and one with them. Some of our very "superior" people call them sparrows, but if some of these people were prisoners in Germany and heard that old familiar "'Ome," I think they would be more likely to think of the sweet-voiced lark, and then immediately of old England. The sparrow is a most cosmopolitan bird, but the lark, why one cannot hear the name without seeing England's hedges and meadows. All the British poets sing of the lark. Wordsworth starts:

"Up with me! Up with me into the clouds."

Even the poet who sang mostly of the wrongs of people—Shelly—had to have an ode to the lark:

"Hail to thee, blithe spirit:
Bird thou never wert'."—

Eden Philpotts, anticipating his deathbed, wishes for:

"A little lark above the morning star,
Shall shrill the tidings of my end afar;
The muffled music of a lone sheep bell
Shall be my knell."

What spirit is it that makes them all love their land so much, that no matter in which corner of the earth they happen to be, their goal is ever home? And yet are they ever ready, with a song or a cigarette on their lips, to lay down their lives be it in Egypt or Europe or Asia or America, any place and every place. Indeed the earth is well sprinkled with British blood. Anglo-Saxon, Norman, Celt, and even the blood of the old Druids, who carried on their mystic rites beneath the great, ancient oaks of Britain, possibly has its influence, and helps to make the people of our race a mystery to all the rest of the world.

Combined Devil and Saint.

It was this mixture of blood that warmed the heart of my old hero, of whom one of the British officers said: "He can pray like a saint, and fight like a devil." Another said, as he passed by: "There goes a fine fellow. He can do his duty all day, and give his comrades a good sermon at night," and even as Brock fell mortally wounded, it is stated on good authority, that his voice could be heard above the din of the battle cheering on his fellow soldiers. He lost his leg shortly after that battle, after which he resumed his itinerary as a Methodist preacher. From Ottawa to Detroit he went with his little Indian pony and his Bible, ever ready for any foe, earthly or satanic, and many a cabin floor resounded to the thump of his wooden leg, with which, "Carrol," who writes of him, said: "He used to accentuate the points of his sermon." Carrol also tells of a certain night in 1823, when he attended a service as a boy, in what I suppose was the First Methodist Church, erected in Toronto on the corner of King and Jordan streets, when the soldier preacher thumped with his wooden leg, impressing the sermon so strongly on his mind that he was convicted of sin, making it a turning point in his life.

But, after all, I suppose there are not many who are interested in the ancient dead. Nothing that is not modern can attract them, and, as we have the very latest things in wars on just now, why we can go back to that. Across the lake to the south of us Britishers is another nation largely of British origin, and although there has been a little disagreement in the family, like most family quarrels, more for love than hate. It was only about stamp taxes and tea, I think. Many a heart thumps to the beat of British blood over there; and today they hear as we do its wild song for liberty as it courses in their veins.

"Blood calls to blood, across the sea,
Heart beats to heart, for liberty."

And so I think that in the course of a hundred years or so we will be able to hold an "old boys' and girls' reunion' in the home town of the "Mother of Nations," and that maybe the prodigal daughter will return for the maternal blessing.

Today, while I sit writing in this old cemetery, away off in Europe, fights the Lion and her Cubs, bravely, stubbornly, even as the old man did 103 years ago, and for the same reason: that the ideals and civilization of Britain shall live. A cricket chirps in the deep grass near me, a meadowlark goes swiftly overhead, and an automobile goes tooting up the road buried in a cloud of dust. Glancing at the forget-me-nots, and thinking again of the chivalrous dead, I remember that line:

"The paths of glory lead but to the grave."

But I am not dogmatic about it, and so I wonder—"Do they?"

Omar, the philosopher, says:

"They say the lion and the lizard keep
The courts where Jamshyd gloried and drank deep;
And Bahram, that great hunter—the wild ass
Stamps o'er his head, and he lies fast asleep."

Then, again, a greater than Omar said:

"He that loveth his life shall lose it, and he that hateth his life in this world shall keep it unto life eternal."

THE DIARY OF MARS

German assaults in force on the French lines are continuing and have been successful in regaining ground previously lost on a front two-thirds of a mile long between Fey-En-Haye and the Moselle. The French official statement of the day admits this, while recording the breakdown of attacks along other parts of the front.

In Southern Poland the Russian armies, driven over the Galician border, are fighting determinedly to check the Teutonic thrust at Warsaw. The most recent Austrian official statement admits that the Russians have been "strongly attacking" in several sectors.

Petrograd tells of desperate engagements between the Vistula and the Bug rivers, and claims to have checked the Austro-Germans at different points, but concedes a retirement in East Galicia from the Gila Lipa to the Zlota Lipa.

Vienna declares that at what seems to have been the chief point of the Teutonic attack in Poland, near Krasnik, the heights to the north were taken.

A Turkish statement declares the Entente Allies lost heavily in an attempt to land reinforcements on the Gallipoli Peninsula, and that the effort was frustrated.

Twelve persons were killed and eight injured on the British steamer Anglo-Californian, from Montreal, by shell fire from a German submarine. The steamer arrived at Queenstown with the dead and injured on board.

Petrograd reiterates the claim that a Russian submarine sank a German battleship of the Deutschland class in the Baltic last Friday. This is semi-officially denied in Berlin.

The latest advices from Berlin confirm recent intimations that the German reply to the American note may not be delivered for several days, during which time an agreement may be affected between the naval extremists and those favoring a compromise as to Germany's submarine policy, it is hoped.

SAYS PAY STOPPED

18th Battalion Soldier Declares He Has Had None For Two Months.

Mrs. J. Murphy, wife of a soldier of the 18th Battalion, who left London with that regiment, has received a letter from her husband, declaring that for the past two months the men have received no pay, and asking her to send some money in order that he could buy stamps, food and soap. He said that he had been in the hospital for some time.

Mrs. Murphy declares that she has received no Government allowance during the present month, and the only money coming in is part of her husband's pay. Her husband makes a statement that the paymaster has been imprisoned for robbing the men.

ALL OVER HORSES.—Richard Bugler and George Hutchinson got into an argument while down town on Saturday evening regarding the merits of their respective horses and a fight resulted. They were arrested, and in police court today were each fined $3 for being drunk and disorderly.

ALBATROSS' DEAD BURIED WITH HONORS

About 30 Killed and 30 Wounded on German Mine-Layer.

[Canadian Press.]

Berlin, July 5.—The German sailors of the minelayer Albatross, who were killed in an engagement July 2 with a Russian cruiser squadron off the Swedish island of Gothland, were buried today with signal honors in which the Swedish authorities and civilians participated. Swedish troops came to the salue as the procession wended its way from the shore, where the Albatross was beached, to the Bjoerke Cemetery.

Revised estimates place the number of killed at 30 and three more men are believed to be dying. Thirty other wounded sailors are now doing well.

BARN ABLAZE. — A barn in the rear of 39 Regina street caught fire about 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon, giving apparatus from the North End and Central hall a run. Damage amounted to about $150.

DRUGS AND BANKS AT ROTARY CLUB

Both Discussed At the Noon Luncheon Held Today.

PRAISES FOR LONDON

Drug Stores Here Best in the Country, Declares Dealer —Banking Defended.

Two much appreciated addresses were given at the weekly luncheon of the Rotary Club at noon today in the Tecumseh grill room. The topics were widely divergent, one being a talk on the reail drug business by A. R. Cairncross of Cairncross & Lawrence and the second a few remarks on banking from E. C. Bowker of the Dominion Bank.

Mr. Cairncross said in effect that the backbone of tre drug business was the prescription department. In the store with which he is associated the prescription business is the largest department, running into a total of more than 20,000 each year, 8,000 of which were new and the others "repeats." Under present conditions in London, there was no money in patent medicines, as no profit could be made when goods were sold for cost.

The speaker stated that London had been known for years as the city with drug stores that could not be excelled in any other city. Their methods were modern and the precautions taken and stocks carried ranked above those of other cities, according to travellers.

Lack of Appreciation.

Mr. Bowker spoke along the lines of the service rendered by banks and the lack of appreciation among those who wished to have the banks act for them. Some people regarded it as an exorbitant thing that the banks should get ten cents on a $100 transaction. The rules of other business, if applied to banks, would mean much larger returns to the banks.

He believed that the public should be ready to give the banks adequate security as they were loaning money given them by depositors, and they had a trust which could not be jeopardized. He said that the time was coming when the banks would ask more for service rendered.

Criticism Unjustified.

Mr. Bokwer said that such critics as the Toronto World had no reason to criticize the banks, for without the banks the staff would probably be out on the street.

The progress of the Rotary five-dollar bill was reported.

SIR RODMOND

and solicitors strongly advised against pressing the charges, and thought they should be dropped.

A Caricature.

Sir Rodmond described the report of an interview wigh him published in Toronto as a caricature, burlesque and misrepresentation. He studiously avoided saying anything, he said, and the reporter wrote a column about it.

"Things that happened between the Lieutenant-Governor and myself that no other eprson on earth knew about have appeared in a newspaper down town the same day," commented the ex-premier.

Mr. Pitbaldo read to the ex-premier the telegrams which passed between Sir Rodmond and Hon. Robert Rogers regarding sending up ex-Judge Phippen, as produced before the Parliament Buildings commission last week.

"I wanted," said the witness, "to make an adjustment, and felt Phippen was the man with most influence with Kelly, that's why I want Phippen, and I undertook to secure Mr. Rogers' influence to get Phippen here."

Subject Dropped.

"Do you know anything about a Toronto plan?" asked Mr. Pitbaldo.

"Better not go into that, that's a serious measure, and has no relation to the royal commission," interjected Sir Rodmond, and the subject was dropped.

The "Toronto plan" was mentioned in another series of wires between Sir Rodmond and Mr. Rogers.

Judge Phippen, witness said, had no authority to enter into any negotiations with Hudson.

After Phippen got here and told Kelly they were going to set up a contract for the caissons, no more use was made of him by the Government, which dismissed its experts and practically withdrew from the commission.

CHARGES VERIFIED.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Winnipeg, Man., July 5.—Hon. A. B. Hudson announces that the valuation of the telephone plant by the Manitoba Government experts appointed since the Norris Government came into office shows that it is $1,138,000 less than the Government has always stated, substantiating charges made by Liberals when in office that the Government telephone system was greatly overestimated.

MANY APPLICANTS

School Positions in Demand for Coming Terms.

Many applications have been received by the inspector for positions on the city school staff for the coming year, and this means a long substitute list for the fall. When the applicant is a "new" teacher, or recent graduate from the Normal, the inspector invariably advises: "Go and take a country school for a time. There the classes will be smaller; you will have full control and an opportunity to gain experience in management."

PERSONAL MENTION

James Sage has returned home after spending the holiday with his aunt, Mrs. Dwyer.

Miss Myrtle Hicks, one of London's popular young vocalists, has returned from a successful trip on the lakes, ending at Duluth.

A. Macdonnel of Fort William, Ont. has returned home after visiting his mother-in-law, Mrs. M. Dwyer of Richmond street.

Miss Tolhurst and Miss Marjorie Tolhurst have left for Feutress, Texas, to visit their brother, Charles E. Tolhurst, going on later to San Francisco and other western points.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Beitz of 256 Talbot street, have left for a visit to the Mrs. Beitz's sister, Mrs. L. O. King of Cleveland, Ohio.

SAFE IN TRENCHES.

[Exchange.]

Old Lady (to nephew on leave from the front), as Puck heard her—Good-by, my dear boy, and try and find time to send a postcard to let me know you are safely back in the trenches!

ENJOYING IT!

Members of the consolation trip party in The Advertiser's grand Panama-Pacific voting contest, who left last Monday on their holiday tour down the St. Lawrence and up the Saugenay, and who are expected home tonight, have written enthusiastically of their enjoyment. Miss Francis Rankin, welfare nurse of the McClary Manufacturing Company says:

"The trip thoughout has been very delightful and exceedingly comfortable."

LOCAL NEWS

SUPERINTENDENT IN TORONTO.—Superintendent Davidson of the G. T. R. is in Toronto today on business.

THREAT TO KILL.—On a complaint laid by Mary Atkinson of Westminster Township, John Burgess was arraigned before Squire Chittick in the county police-court today, charged with having threatened to kill the complainant. Particulars will be aired next Saturday, until when the accused was remanded.

C. W. C. A. EXECUTIVE. — The executive committee of the Canadian War Contingent Association will meet in Hyman Hall at 10:30 Tuesday morning, and the Red Cross executive at 11 a.m. As important business is to be transacted all members are requested to be present.

ARCADIA DANCES.—The Arcadia dances, which were so popular during the winter in the Masonic Hall, and which are now being held at the waterworks park pavilion at Springbank, are attracting larger crowds weekly. The management announces a change of dates, from Wednesday and Friday to every Tuesday and Friday, for the summer months.

POSTMEN'S PICNIC POSTPONED.—The postmen's picnic, which was to have been held yesterday at Springbank, was called off on account of the inclemency of the weather during the afternoon and will be held next Saturday instead. It is expected that all the letter-carriers and a number of the inside men, with their wives and families will take part.

SHORT TERM BONDS.—A bylaw authorizing the city to borrow the sum of $200,000 by short term debentures, payable in thre years from date of issue, with interest at 5 per cent per annum in denomination of $1,000 each, and a bylaw authorizing the borrowing of $32,000 in 50, 40 and 30 lots at $100, $300 and $500 respectively, were passed b ythe board of control today. These are to cover local improvements.

BAPTIST ON A SPREE.—Baptist George, an Indian, will spend the next ten days in jail because he had not the wherewithal to satisfy Squire Chittick's assessment of $2 and costs for his obstreperous behavior at Springbank Park on Saturday. Having imbibed more firewater than he could assimilate properly, Baptist threw off all restraint and gave rein to his inborn capacity for making trouble. Constable Fish was called upon to remove him after he had made himself objectionable by using very bad language and generally disturbing the peace of visitors to the park.

BREAKS LEG IN FALL.—Thomas J. Guymer, 69 Forward avenue, a shipper in the employ of Reid Bros. & Co., Clarence street, sustained a fractured leg when, in attempting to jump from a hoist in the factory, he slipped and fell with the limb between the floor and the lower edge of the hoist. The police ambulance was called, and in this the injured man was removed to Victoria Hospital, where he is being attended by Dr. Arnott. Early this afternoon he was reported to be progressing satisfactorily.

R. E. O. A. PROTESTS.—A bylaw to prevent anyone from installing hydro who is not a licensed electrician brought forth a protest from the Real Estate Owners' Association to the board of control this morning. The R. E. O. A. members consider the move a further one to create a monopoly and extort more money from the city. In good set terms they state that the introduction of hydro, which should be in every house in the city, has been very much impeded by expensive and unnecessary restrictions and equipments, which have doubled the cost of installation.

SUNDAY SCHOOL HOLIDAYS.—A new plan is being tried out in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church for solving the Sunday school holiday problem. Some time ago it was decided to hold the July and August sessions in the morning, but not before the morning service as has been done from time to time in previous years. According to the new arrangement the pupils, teachers and officers of the school gather with the congregation at 11 o'clock, remaining for the opening part of the service. Immediately after the offertory, the usual short address to the children is given by the pastor. A children's hymn is then announced, and during the singing the members of the Sunday school quietly withdrew by the rear doors to hold their session while the sermon is in progress. This was accomplished without any confusion yesterday morning, and the first experiment indicates the plan is in a fair way to prove a good success.

THE LION'S CUBS.

[San Francisco Journal of Commerce.]

With Australia sending 100,000 men to the European war, and Canada preparing to put 150,000 in the field, Great Britain has great cause to be proud of her colonies and duly grateful to them. When the hostilities are over a more closely-knit form of government, in which the colonies will be given a voice in the Imperial Parliament, would seem to be a logical consequence of the present condition of affairs.

MUST ALTER AREA FOR THE L. AND P. S.

Application Made To Increase Junk District Because of New Line.

DEALER HAS TO MOVE

Property Has Been Secured For Erection of New Car Barns.

Desiring to build car barns along the line south on Maitland street, the London and Port Stanley Railroad is negotiating with Gootson & Co., junk dealers, to buy its property. Mr. Gootson applied in person to the board of control this morning for leave to convey his junk license to property which he own directly across, west of Maitland and north of Marshall lane, outside the junk area. The Port Stanley line runs through the back of his property, on which he has sidings.

He stated it would take him several months to remove his stock a distance, and that the railroad was anxious to obtain possession of the site for the car barns within a month. Unless Mr. Gootson will sell, arbitration will be necessary in order to take the property.

Members of the board of control will visit the site this afternoon and determine the effect on adjacent property of removing the junk across the street before recommending a change in the bylaw to meet the case.

COLDWELL ORDERED CHANGE TO CAISSONS

Architect Simon Says This Was Done March 13—Tenders Asked July 2.

[Canadian Press.]

Winnipeg, July 5.—Evidence given before the Mathers commission today by F. W. Simon, the British architect who designed the Manitoba Parliament buildings, stated that Hon. G. R. Coldwell gave him instructions to habe caissons instead of concrete piles for the foundations as early as March 13, 1913, although tenders were not received until July 2. Simon said he thought a pile foundation would have been all right, but Horwood advised caissons. At a meeting March 13, Coldwell, in the presence of Horwood and H. A. Bowman, instructed Simon to prepare a caisson scheme.

The witness then produced a letter which he wrote on May 13 to his engineer in England, asking him to draw the Caisson plans. The engineer, a man named Drew, started on the plans, Simon said, but did not finish them because Coldwell wanted them hurried. For this reason Simon cabled Drew to stop work on the plans, and they were drawn in Horwood's office. Simon said he asked the Government to let him supervise the construction. He desired to see his plans carried out properly. He put them atter to Coldwell, who, he said, however, was very much opposed to his having the supervision. Later the matter came before the Government as a whole, and Simon was told he had "as much right as any other citizen" to draw the Government's attention to any flaws in the work.

POSTMASTER QUITS IN BLENHEIM AFTER SERVING 60 YEARS

J. K. Morris Held Distinction of Longest in Office.

A REAL LIVING PIONEER

Suggested That W. J. Baird, School Principal, Will Succeed Him.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

BLENHEIM, July 4.—J. K. Morris, postmaster here for over 59 years, has sent in his resignation to the department.

Such was the news that was made public here yesterday, and has formed a topic of conversation as to his long period of service and as to who is likely to get the appointment.

In spite of Mr. Morris' advanced years he has attended to business faithfully and has been seen almost daily at his post. It is claimed here that he holds the distinction of being longer in office as postmaster than any other postmaster in the Dominion of Canada.

He came to this place on May 1, 1856, when it was but a hamlet of about 250 people and known as Rondeau Post-office, and has continued as postmaster since. At that time most of the country round about was forest with here and there a small clearing.

Those were days of plain living and days when people were "roughing it." Besides performing his duties he entered into business, and for several years had a hand in the lumber mill industry, being owner of a mill and afterwards a bending factory.

Already names are being mentioned as likely applicants for the position, among others W. J. Baird, principal of the public school and secretary of the Conservative Association here.

News of Men In Training For Great War

LONDON CAT TRAVELS OVER 4,000 MILES; IS STILL 18TH BATTALION'S MASCOT

Stray Tabby From Queen's Park Now in England.

IS AT SANDLING CAMP

Is Successfully Smuggled Aboard Troop Ship Under Owner's Great Coat.

[By Pte. W. J. Bartlett.]
Sandling Camp,
Kent, June 23.

There are cats and cats, but there is one cat at Sandling Camp, Kent, that is petted by all the officers and men of the 18th Battalion.

It is a black cat with a remarkable history, which should prove interesting reading to Advertiser readers. The cat is owned by Scotty Kane of C Company, and it was at Queen's Park, London, where the proud possessor picked it up.

It happened in this way. Pussy quietly walked into the barracks one evening and looked over the soldiers' cots. Pte. Kane's eagle eyes spotted the visitor, and at once took a fancy to it. He decided there and then to keep the cat, and placed it in a small box at the side of his cot, and there the cat slept soundly every night.

The boys christened pussy "Bum," but the name does not imply in any way that the cat was guilty of bumming, for it is too well fed for that. It was just a name let idly drop, which has stuck to it.

"Bum" at once proved itself a faithful creature to his soldier friend, and would follow him around the park as faithfully as any dog. All Pte. Kane had to do was to whistle certain notes and the cat would quickly come.

Its owner decided to take the cat with him across the broad Atlantic, and he successfully got it on the train when the 18th left London. Pussy made itself quite at home in its new quarters, and would parade up and down the coaches as if it had been there all its life. The officers did not object to the cat, and would frequently stop to smooth its glossy fur.

Smuggled on Board.

To get the cat on the SS Grampian, however, was no easy task. Kane had his full pack on, and carried also his two kit bags. He, however, slipped it into his haversack, underneath his grey coat, and pussy never rendered any solos. Thus, while many animals which the boys would have liked to take to England with them were turned down by the officials, "Bum" was safely taken on board.

Pussy again made itself quite at home, and was landed in England, like the soldiers, in the pink of condition.

The cat is now in the training camp here, and follows its master around as it did in Queen's Park. Pte. Kane would not part with his mascot that has travelled over 4,000 miles, for anything. His ambition is to take it to the trenches on the firing line in France, and if it is at all possible his comrades will willingly help him in his task.

"BUM," THE 18TH MASCOT, AND ITS MASTER.

Some Canadians Getting Holiday

First Party Cross Channel for Rest in England.

[Special Cable to The Advertiser.]

London, July 5.—About twenty-five men of the Canadian division on leave from the front made the crossing on Saturday. These are the first of what are hoped may be occasional parties of Canadians returning here for a brief spell.

FUNERAL OF MRS. HOLLING.

WYOMING, July 4.—The remains of Mrs. B. Holling were laid to rest on Saturday morning from the home of her daughter, Mrs. O'Brien. A large number of friends were in attendance to pay last respect to one who was widely known for her deeds of charity and kindness.

RECRUITING STATIONS FOR 34TH OPENED

Men Will Be Taken On At Paisley, Woodstock, Stratford and Galt.

Recruiting stations have been opened for one week at Paisley, Woodstock, Stratford and Galt, where men for the 34th Battalion will be taken on. This battalion has still need of about 150 men, this being the reason for the opening of the stations in four Western Ontario points.

Ten men for the hospital unit are still required, but it is expected that this number will report in some time today.

The ten engineers requested some time ago have not been recruited, neither has recruiting for the two new battalions been begun. Until the commanders have been named not a man will be taken on with either body, and the officers who will head these two new Western Ontario units are not yet appointed.

PRINCETON GARDEN PARTY.

PRINCETON, July 4.—Although the weatherman did not favor the Methodists at their annual garden party, the affair passed off successfully. The proceeds from all sources, exclusive of Sunday, amounted to $160.

E. W. Nesbitt, M.P., of Woodstock, presided in a very able manner and his speech later on was listened to with great interest. Rev. W. K. Shearer, M. A., was in a happy vein and, as usual, much pleased his large audience. The many numbers of prose and poetry given by Rev. C. L. McIrvine of Berlin, an old Princeton boy, were highly appreciated. Mr. Mann of Innerkip gave patriotic songs in splendid form. The brass band from Ayr furnished good music. The supper was set in the basement, owing to the heavy rains of the afternoon. There was an abundance of fine strawberries and the tables were furnished by the ladies with a large supply of the best of dainties.

KEENEST COMPETITION FOR OFFICERS' SHIELD

Possession May Be Decided By Wednesday Drill Contest.

The Wednesday drill competition of the men at camp promises to be more keenly contested this week than the last two weeks, for the reason that the 34th has but to win once more when it will have proved its right to the shield offered by the officers for a field drill competition between the members of the two battalions. The 34th say that they expect to win the shield Wednesday for keeps, but the 33rd boys are just as positive such will not prove to be the case. Both squads are hard at work practising, and the prettiest competition yet held at the camp is promised for next Wednesday afternoon. Citizens are cordially invited to be present, and such as have availed themselves of the privilege the last two weeks went home more than satisfied with what they had witnessed.

GALT MAY SUPPLY 25 MEN FOR GUARD ON LONDON CAMP

New City Asked How Many It Can Provide.

RECRUITING TO FILL 34TH

This Locality Has a Good Record for Recruiting So Far.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

GALT, July 4.—Through its splendid recruiting record for the first, second and third contingents, Galt has again been asked to recruit men for the 34th Battalion to bring it up to full strength. Orders were received yesterday morning by Major Clarke, officer commanding the 29th Regiment, and in the afternoon the recruiting office was opened, and will be kept open for a week. It is expected this city will contribute a number of men.

The 29th Regiment has also been asked to state how many men it can provide for a permanent guard for the mobilization camp at London. Applications are being received, and it is expected that this city will give for this purpose about 25 men.

STRATFORD SIGNS TWENTY-FOUR.

STRATFORD, July 4.—Twenty-four recruits were accepted for overseas service on Friday, and ten of them left Saturday morning for London to immediately undergo training. These latter were: Ptes. Thomas, Flannigan, Mantle, Hubbard, Clark, White, Romey, Whitehead and Chillingworth.

When James S. Smith enlisted, all records of enlistment from any individual house were broken. Six volunteers have been accepted from his home since recruiting first commenced last August, and two of these, members of the first contingent, have appeared in the casualty lists, one wounded and the other missing.

SERVICE FOR SOLDIERS

Impressive Sigt at Camp Where Men Are Massed for Worship.

Capt. Peacock of the 33rd Battalion conducted services at the camp Sunday morning. The captain is chaplain of the regiment. Services were held one-half hour earlier than usual. It was an impressive sight to see the hundreds of men take part in devotional services, with the large tree in the centre of the grounds standing out as sentinel and around it massed cordon on cordon of khaki-clad soldiers. The service is that of the Church of England. Capt. Peacock made a short address to the men and some few hymns were sung.

THE ROYAL MAIL

"A letter from loving Lucy, a letter from loving Lou." — Military bugle call.

FRED YOUNG.
(18th Battalion Band, En Route To Berlin.)

When the bugle call of "letters" flings
Its notes out on the breeze,
We know that mail has reached the camp from loved ones overseas.
And we welcome every word we read,
for it cheers us, you can bet,
To know we're not forgotten by the friends we can't forget.

We need no further proof to show that things exist today
As when it first was said that "Britain o'er the waves holds sway";
And we're ready on the instant to salute with cheery hail
The faithful men and women who dispatch the royal mail.

The trenches will be won by men that training has made fit,
And the messages of cheer from home will surely "do their bit"
To keep a man in fighting trim; and when we've licked the Hun,
Should have an equal chance to share in glory that is won.

The soldier's life in camp is shaped by bugle calls galore —
"Reveille," "Fall In," "Lights Out" and the good old "Cookhouse Door."
And the eyes of brave men brighten as the call sounds clear and true,
"There's mail from loving Luey, boys, there's mail from loving Lou."

Respectfully dedicated to the men and women who handle the royal mail.

MEN AT CAMP WANT SERVICE

Are Anxious To Get To Firing Line As Soon As Possible.

MORALE IS EXCELLENT

Good Rifle Scores Being Made and Troops Are in Fine Condition.

The men at camp are anxious to get to the front. They have proved now that they can take long route marches and feel practically no ill effects. They are daily becoming more and more proficient in the various drills, and their shooting at the ranges has caused their officers to express the profoundest satisfaction.

Rifle shooting is interesting to the men. There are some crack shots in the 33rd and 34th Battalions, and those not so proficient practice steadily so that they too may become as proficient. Several of them have made possibles recently at the ranges and, when one does this he feels more elated than he would on getting a stripe. The morale among the men of the two battalions is excellent. There is the best of good feeling apparent, and at all times.

TIPPERARY PARODY

The following "Inniskilling" parody on "Tipperary" which was published in English papers, has been sent in by Pte. H. Russel of the pioneer section of the 34th Battalion with the request that it be published.

Very near to Paris came the Kaiser's men one day,
They were bound for London, and all looked proud and gay,
Singing songs of Piccadilly, Strand and Leicester Square,
Till Tommy got excited, and shouted to them there:

Chorus—
It's a long way to go to London,
Where Willie wants to go;
But he's afraid to come in contact
With a chap named Jellicoe;
He'll not see Piccadilly,
Nor gaze on Leicester Square,
It's a long way to go to London,
And he won't get there.

The Kaiser wrote a letter to Sir John French one day,
Saying, "If you interfere, I'll have to cut my way,
And if I kill the lot of you in doing so," said he.
"Remember that you made me fight—don't lay the blame on me."

Chorus—

Sir John wrote a neat reply to silly Kaiser Bill, Saying, "Don't be quite so certain—not at least until
You have driven back the Russians, and then they all will see Me giving you the thrashing that you meant to give to me."

Chorus—

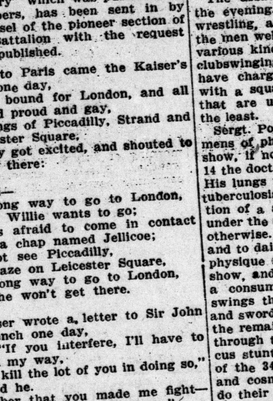

Jointly composed by Lance-Corp. M'Currie and Ptes. M'Quiston and Duffin, all of the Inniskillings, Omagh Hospital, Co. Tyrone.

135 MONTENEGRINS NOW IN CAMP HERE

Await Reinforcements Before Going Back To Native Land.

There are now about 135 Montenegrins at the camp grounds. Their quarters are situated just east of the 34th Battalion camp. They have their own tents and own drill ground, although not their own commissariat. They eat with the 34th battalion; members, Major A. V. proportioned men and are in charge of Tom Guzina, who is one of the largest in the party. Tom speaks English fluently and stated this morning that he is awaiting the arrival of about 200 men more, when the whole number will go to Quebec and thence to their own country.

WOUNDED AFTER BRAVE WORK

Lieut T. W. ANDERSON
TORONTO

LIEUT. T. W. ANDERSON, Toronto, an officer of the 3rd Battalion, has been wounded, according to official word from Ottawa. He was a stockbroker before the war. Lieut. Anderson acted with conspicuous bravery on several occasions during the past two months.

ORANGEMEN'S CHURCH PARADE.

ST. THOMAS, July 4. — The Orangemen of this district held their annual church parade to Trinity Church this evening. There was a big turnout from the various lodges, in St. Thomas and outlying districts. A considerable number of London brethren also came down and participated in the parade. Rev. Joseph Ryerson preached the sermon.

BIG FIELD DAY FOR 34TH MEN

Hike To St. Thomas Is Scheduled For Friday Next.

PERFORMANCE AT NIGHT

An Assault-At-Arms Will Be Staged By Battalion Members.

The members of the 34th Battalion at 3 o'clock in the morning of Friday next will start out for St. Thomas with full equipment, including camp kitchens and everything else a battalion would carry with it if in actual warfare. On Friday the men will put on a field day in conjunction with the London and St. Thomas baseball teams. At night an assault of arms will be held.

They will leave St. Thomas at 3 o'clock Saturday morning, and expect to arrive in London about two hours before noon.

The men, when they leave London, will carry a lunch in their haversacks, and at the first stop will eat. The kitchens will be cooking on the way, and a good hot mug of tea or coffee and an as equally hot cup of soup won't taste badly with the cold lunch. When St. Thomas has been reached a full dinner will be ready in the soup kitchens, and the men will be prepared to go to Pinafore Park and take part in the day's program.

Assault-at-Arms.

The assault-at-arms will be held in the evening. There will be boxing, wrestling, actual bayonet fighting, with the men well padded; of course; fencing, various kinds of physical drill, such as clubswinging, etc. Sergt. Potts will have charge of the clubswinging, and with a squad will perform some stunts that are unique in their way to say the least.

Sergt. Potts is one of the finest specimens of physical manhood the 34th can show, if not the finest. When a lad of 14 the doctors told him he could not live. His lungs were said to be affected with tuberculosis, and that it was only a question of a short time when he would be under the sod. But young Potts thought otherwise. He began to study the body and to daily exercise it. Today he has a physique few men in the Dominion can show, and he looks about as much like a consumptive as a young colt. He swings the clubs, axes, a lighted torch and swords, and does the solo work while the remaining members of his squad go through the regular motions. Some circus stunts will also be given, and three of the 34th boys have all the costumes and cosmetics, etc., ready to put on to do their turns.

Special trains will be run from London, Chatham and Woodstock.

GOSSIP OF THE CAMP

Mounts to the number of 250 were shipped from the camp this morning to Quebec, and from there will sail for England. The horses came from the remount depot, and have been pretty well broken to military life. They are all good specimens of horse flesh.

Lieut. H. K. Black of the 29th Battery, C. E. F., reported for duty this morning. He is the last of the officers to come in, so now the battery is at its full complement. Lieut. Black is from Guelph.

The details of the 7th Overseas Regiment, C. M. R., remaining at Queen's Park are taken on the strength of the camp. They went into their quarters at the Heights this morning and will police the camp and otherwise attend to detail work.

Lieut. F. W. Hanning, A. M. C., has been taken on the strength of the reinforcements of No. 3 Stationary Hospital.

The standing medical board at the camp has been reconstituted as follows: President, Major J. H. Ratz, 34th Battalion; members, Major A. V. Becher, M. O., 33rd Battalion, and Lieut. F. K. Bowen, M. O., 29th Battery, C. E. F.

Major C. H. Reason, 1st Hussars (late 7th Overseas Regiment, C. M. R.), is detailed to assist the sanitary officer in camp at Carling's Heights.

The following have been granted leave of absence—Lieut. V. P. Cronyn, Capts. W. W. Muir and Cowell, and Major H. T. Rance, all of the 33rd Battalion.

Tom Massie, 33rd barber, has been more or less under the weather for the past two weeks. He has been suffering severely from neuralgic pains superinduced from trouble with his upper teeth. The dentist who has had his case has found it necessary to perform several operations of a minor nature, which, however, caused Tom several minutes of excruciating agony. He is said to have borne the pain in a truly Spartan manner, and since several plates have been installed in his mouth is rapidly on the road to recovery. It is rumored about the camp that this gallant member of the 33rd is soon to take unto himself a better half. Nothing definite as to this is known as yet, and Tom refuses to speak for publication. His friends are hoping it is true, and if so promise him the best charivari any benedict ever had the misfortune to experience.

The rain last night had little effect on the camp grounds. The heavens did empty themselves in a terrific downpour, but the tents stood up well against the wind, and little moisture, if any, came into the quarters. The men did not mind the rain. They are so accustomed to being under canvas and in any kind of weather that a heavy rain has no more effect than a sun shower.

EMBRO WOMEN'S INSTITUTE.

EMBRO, July 4.—Owing to Thursday being a holiday, the Women's Institute did not meet last week. The regular meeting will be held on Thursday, July 8, at the home of Mrs. James Brand, when it is expected that Miss Mabel Munro will give a paper.

Charles Nobes of Hickson spent the holiday with friends here.

SPURT COSTS HIM $50.

GUELPH, July 4.—Magistrate Watt at Saturday's police court set a new mark for fining speeding auto drivers when he assessed William Tanner of this city $50 and costs for exceeding the speed limit on Woolwich street.

CROWD CATHEDRAL TO HONOR SLAIN SOLDIER

Memorial Service for Col. Becher Draws Thousands—Band Plays Dead March—Pew Where Fallen Officer Worshipped Is Decked With Flowers.

London citizens and soldiers in thousands filled St. Paul's Cathedral to its utmost capacity Sunday morning to attend the memorial services for the late Lieut.-Col. Campbell Becher, who lost his life in the fighting around Festubert recently. Although the big edifice was packed and hundreds stood in the aisles and vestibules, many hundreds of others had to go home, being unable to gain admission to the church at all. The officers and men of the 7th Regiment marched to the cathedral in a body and occupied places adjoining the pew where their dead commander had worshipped since childhood. Beautiful floral wreaths marked his seat. While the clergy and choir were entering the church the 7th Regiment Band, led by Bandmaster Slatter, played a funeral march, the congregation standing.

An Impressive Service.

The service, which was a most impressive one, was a duplicate of that conducted in St. Paul's Cathedral, London, Eng., recently by the Lord Bishop of London as a memorial for the Canadians who have fallen in service for the Empire. It consisted of special prayers and hymns, into all of which the congregation took part earnestly, and following a sermon by Canon Tucker the 7th Regiment Band played the "Dead March in Saul" and then a bugler sounded "The Last Post." During the offertory the choir rendered most beautifully "Crossing the Bar."

Canon Tucker chose as his text: "The Cup Which My Father Hath Given Me Shall I Not Drink It?" He pointed out that the British from the earliest times have been ready to fight for truth, liberty and justice. Courage and suffering, he said, had often been necessary, but Britons had never flinched. Only in recent years had Canadians figured in the fighting for the Empire, but in South Africa and in the present war they had made a record for themselves which will live forever in the annals of the Dominion and of the Empire.

Mourn for All Dead Heroes.

"While this service," he said, "is a memorial for Lieut.-Col. Becher because he worshipped in this cathedral from his earliest years and was commander of the 7th Regiment and the only London officer lost in the fighting in France, we grieve sincerely for all those who have given their lives. From all over Western Ontario and the Dominion men answered the call when Britain stepped in to save outraged Belgium. All are heroes. The Canadians held their trenches under what seemed impossible conditions. When last seen Lieut.-Col. Becher was on the parapet of a German trench cheering his men onwards, when a bomb suddenly burst. He and thousands of others died with their face to the foe for the cause of liberty, truth and justice. What a picture for the poet and artist of the future."

Canon Tucker showed that all are engaged in a fight. Christ gave his life as an atonement for the sin of the world, and the soldiers have given their lives in order that his ideals might prevail over those of the brute from the abyss which started the war and stopped at nothing in his lust for power.

TIMOROUS FEARED GERMAN "RAID"

Threatened Invasion of London Failed To Materialize, However.

PRECAUTIONS TAKEN

Extra Guards Put On and Ball Cartridges Issued At Camp.

Londoners, some of them, were rather timorous last night after having read the various stories that have been written about a contemplated raid of Germans from the United States which an anonymous letter to Col. Shannon some time ago stated would take place on the evening of July 4. At the time the commandant of the camp here made the remark that the writer had evidently allowed his imagination to run riot, and that there was little likelihood of any attempt against the lives and property of Canadians being made. There were many citizens, however, who spent a restless night, for the dynamiting of the Peabody plant in Walkerville and the attempted blowing up of the armories at Windsor rendered them nervous. The thought was in their minds that a like attempt or attempts MIGHT be tried here, and when daylight came and no explosion had aroused them, neither the sound of rifle shots nor the spit of machine gun bullets, they heaved sighs of relief, and truly did slumber peacefully until rather later than usual this morning.

The military authorities here had not failed to take the precautions necessary to meet a raid, if such there had been. Ball cartridges were issued to the guards last night, and more than the usual number paraded about the camp last night. The armories were well guarded, too, and other buildings in the city that might have proved a point of attack were protected.

All transients passing through the city in motor cars came in for the closest scrutiny, but they were all apparently just American holiday-makers en route for some Canadian point over July 4 and 5.

CALL ISSUED FOR MILITARY POLICE FOR THIS DISTRICT

[Special to The Advertiser.]

ST. THOMAS, July 4.—Lieut.-Col. Green, O. C., the 25th Regiment, has received notice from divisional headquarters that 150 men of the Canadian active militia are required for guard, military police and general fatigue duty in this divisional area.

They must be men of good character, and in all probability will be required until peace is declared. The pay will be at the active service rate of $1.10 a day.

Recruiting for this service will commence at once. It is presumed the men are wanted to police the borders and important railway centres.

ROUTE MARCH TONIGHT

Both Battalions Will Participate in Manoeuvre.

There will be a route march tonight of the two battalions under command of Lieut.-Col. Oliver of the 34th Battalion. The men will leave the camp grounds at 7:30 o'clock, and will go to the corner of Oxford and Adelaide streets, thence north to the 4th concession, west to the Pipe Line road, south to Oxford street and east to camp again. The troops will go out with advance and rear guards, in accordance with the rules laid down for day and night marches.

PLACE FOR TRUMPETERS

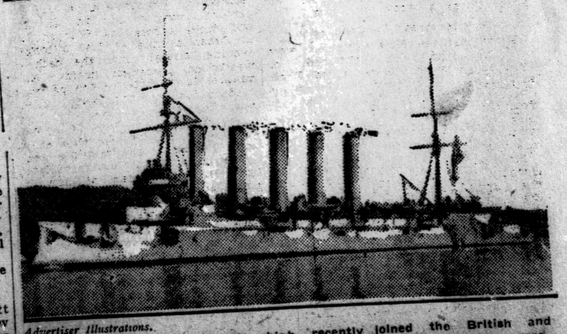

Two Can Be Taken on Strength of 29th Battery.

The 29th Battery C. E. F. wants two good trumpeters, as well as two or three other first-class men. They must be of the highest type physically and mentally, for the 29th is now at such a high standard as regards the fitness of the men who compose it that only men of the perfect kind are now required. Those wishing to join should inquire at the recruiting station at the camp.

STEAMERS ARRIVED.

HOLT ALSO TRIED TO WRECK CAPITOL

Man Who Attempted Murder of Morgan Confesses Plot.

IN CELL AT GLEN COVE

The British Ambassador Witnesses Assault Upon Big Financier.

[Canadian Press.]

GLEN COVE, L. I., N. Y., July 4.—Frank Holt, the former Cornell University instructor, who attempted to assassinate J. P. Morgan at East Isle, Mr. Morgan's summer home near here yesterday, has confessed that he was the man who sent the bomb which exploded in the United States Capitol at Washington, Friday night.

Mr. Morgan, the victim of the bullets which Holt fired Saturday morning, was said by specialists at his bedside to be resting well tonight. No vital organ, the physicians announced, had been involved in his injury.

By his confession and the detailed description of the bomb he used in the Capitol outrage, Holt stamped himself as an expert on the use of explosives, the police assert. Immediately his confession was obtained, the chief of the Washington police, a squad of secret service operators and New York City detectives and Bertillon and finger print experts were summoned to Glen Cove.

May Have a Record.

The belief that Holt had been connected with other bomb outrages which have baffled the police, notably the finding recently of a bomb on the grounds of Andrew Carnegie's Fifth avenue residence in New York City, prevailed. Thomas Tunney, captain of the bomb and anarchist squad of detectives of the New York police department and Wm. E. Luyster, the justice of the peace before whom Holt was arraigned late yesterday obtained the confession after two hours of "third degree" treatment.

Three sticks of dynamite bound together; some match heads placed in a hollow of one of the sticks which Holt had scooped out with his penknife, a bottle of sulphuric acid and in whose neck there was inserted a cork carefully measured and of a kind previously tested—Such was the bomb that Holt placed in the Capitol Friday afternoon. Holt had ascertained by previous test that the acid would eat its way through the cork in about eight hours. Therefore, he estimated that the bomb would explode about midnight. He wanted to make certain, he said, that it would explode, so he took a stroll about Washington, and early Friday evening went to the Union Station, a few blocks away from the Capitol and waited there till he heard the explosion. Then he took a train to New York.

Took Dynamite to Glen Cove.

Arriving here he lost little time in taking another train for Glen Cove Several sticks of the dynamite left over from the making of the Washington bomb were in his suitcase, and these he took with him to Glen Cove. One of the sticks he stuck into his pocket, along with two loaded revolvers, for use, if necessary, in his mission at the Morgan home. It was not used but was found when he was locked up. At first the police thought the dynamite played a minor role in his plans to assassinate Mr. Morgan. When they listened, in undisguised amazement to the story he told of the Washington bomb's construction, they decided that he possessed a knowledge far beyond that of the ordinary bomb-maker.

Under the persuasion of the "third degree" Holt talked freely of his bomb-designing qualifications. Without such persuasion he had openly admitted earlier in the day that he had gone to the Morgan home with the intention of remaining there till Mr. Morgan did something to end the European war. What he wanted Mr. Morgan to do was to prevent the further shipment abroad of American-made munitions of war.

Native of the States.

The man who unfolded his unusual story of bomb-placing and attempted assassination, talked coolly and with dramatic frankness. He is an American citizen, native born, about 35 years of age and educated far above the average. He had been a student at Cornell, he said, and later an instructor there in French. The records show he taught German, instead. His wife, daughter of O. F. Sensabaugh, presiding elder of the Dallas district of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, is with her father in Dallas and to her he addressed a telegram telling her that man proposed but God disposed and bidding her to be brave.

Holt told his story in a cell of the Glen Cove jail. He had discarded his shirt and collar, and had bound across his forehead a white cloth, through which there had seeped a trickling of blood from a cut above his forehead. His greyish eyes sparkled as he spoke and he talked at first with great animation.

Weak From Loss of Blood.

As the day wore on he weakened. The quantity of blood he had lost from a terrific blow on the head — a blow that knocked him unconscious as he grappled with Mr. Morgan and his butler on the floor of a hallway in the Morgan home—was great, and the strain told on him during the afternoon.

When night came Holt was a wreck, huddled back in a corner of his cell, breathing hard, and apparently comatose. But the detectives refused to let him rest, and urged every means known to get the prisoner to tell his story. After two hours of this treatment, Holt wilted, and replied wearily to the questions they asked. His story was that he left Jersey City Friday morning, arrived in Washington at noon, and went to a house at Delaware avenue and C. street, where he rented a room. Before taking the ferry to Jersey City he purchased a supply of so-called trick matches at a store in New York. These he took with him.

"Trick Matches" for Concussion.

These matches, Holt explained, were of the kind that exploded, or "popped" after they were lighted. Their sale was not prohibited for Fourth of July celebrants, and so he had no difficulty in obtaining them. The popping of the matches, he explained, furnished the concussion which exploded the dynamite.

Holt said he left his room, taking the dynamite with him, and walked around the Capitol grounds. He then entered the Capitol and strolled around through the corridors, without meeting a guard or policeman. He spent about half an hour in the building, he said, arranging the bomb.

"I didn't want to hurt anybody," he said. "I just wanted to call the attention of the nation to the terrible murders being committed in Europe. And I didn't want to damage the Capitol any more than was necessary."

After placing the bomb Holt went back to his room, and wrote letters to the newspapers, and to the President, to explain why he had set the bomb.

"Didn't you have an accomplice?" he was asked.

"No," he muttered, wearily, "none whatever. I did the whole thing myself. I planned it. I executed it. Nobody knew anything about it but myself."

British Ambassador Present.

As the evening wore on more details of the attack on Mr. Morgan came to light. It was learned that Mrs. Morgan was a witness to the attempt to assassinate her husband, and that Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, the British ambassador to the United States, also saw the entire occurrence from the entry of the assailant to the moment he was taken out of the house by the police.

Mrs. Morgan, it was learned, ran toward the assassin, as if to ward off his attack on her husband.

The blow which ended Holt's struggle on the floor also knocked him senseless. Before he had recovered consciousness the servants at the Morgan home bound him hand and foot with ropes and trunk-straps. Holt was bleeding profusely and lay in a pool of blood when the police arrived. A few minutes before they came he recovered his senses. He looked up at the butler.

Six Months "In Hell."

"Kill me now, please," he said. "You might as well do it, and end my suffering. For six months I have lived in hell. I could not rest because of the frightful murders in Europe."

At police headquarters Holt was interrogated about this statement.

"Do you think you are crazy?" he was asked.

"I don't know," he replied. "Sometimes I do; sometimes I don't. I have been trying for six months to convince myself of one of two things—either that I am crazy or that I am not. And I have not been able to settle the question yet."

GERMANS LOST BIG WARSHIP SAYS RUSSIAN STATEMENT

Pre-Dreadnought Blown Up By Torpedoes in Friday's Battle and Armored Cruiser Hit With Effect — Mine-Layer Also Damaged.

LONDON, July 4. — 11:22 a.m. — The Russian general naval staff, according to a dispatch from Reuter's correspondent at Petrograd, reports that a German battleship of the Deutschland type, which was leading the enemy's line during Friday's naval engagement in the Baltic Sea, was blown up by two torpedoes discharged by a Russian submarine.

The Deutschland class of boats are pre-Dreadnoughts of 13,200 tons displacement, and carry a complement of 729 officers and men in times of peace. They are armed with four 11-inch guns, fourteen 6.7-inch guns and twenty 24-pounders, and are equipped with six submerged torpedo tubes. They are built to travel 18 knots an hour, and cost complete about $6,000,000 each.

RUSSIAN OFFICIAL REPORT.

PETROGRAD, July 4. — (Via London, July 5.—2:30 a.m.) — A detailed story of Friday's naval action in the Baltic is given in a Russian official statement issued tonight. This communication follows:

"The Russian cruisers Rurik, Makaroff, Bana, Bogatyr and Oleg encountered the enemy at 8 o'clock in the morning between the Island of Oeland and the Courland coast. The enemy consisted of a light cruiser of the Augsburg class, a mine-layer and three destroyers.

"The sea was shrouded in a fog so dense that the ships frequently were swallowed up in darkness, and therefore the gunfire was inaccurate. The Russians, attempting to intercept the enemy's retreat, were attacked by the torpedoboats, but were unharmed. In half an hour the Augsburg, finding the Russian fire too hot, abandoned her slower consort and fled full speed southward. The Albatross, the German mine-layer, began to show signs of distress and the torpedoboats endeavored to assist her escape, throwing volumes of thick, black smoke out of their funnels and rendering the fog more dense, but at 9 o'clock the foremast of the Albatross was shot away, clouds of steam arose, and the doomed ship began to list to starboard.

"Hauling down her flag, she made for the coast. As she was badly damaged and was entering neutral waters, the Russian ceased firing, and soon she was seen to go ashore behind the Oestgarns lighthouse.

Second Encounter.

"The Russians cruised northward. At 10 o'clock they sighted a squadron of the enemy, including an armored cruiser of the Roon class, a light cruiser of the Augsburg class, and four destroyers. The Russians immediately joined battle, and half an hour later the enemy began to retreat, while several submarines attacked the Russians unsuccessfully.

"The Rurik was sent at full speed after the retreating vessels, which were joined by another cruiser of the Bremen class. The Rurik soon had the satisfaction of seeing the effect of her salvoes, for the enemy's fire weakened. The Roon's four 8-inch guns were silenced and fire broke out aboard. Obviously disliking further conflict the enemy disappeared rapidly in the fog.

"The Russians sustained trifling damage. No one was killed; fourteen men were wounded.

"Shortly afterwards the Russians were attacked by torpedoes from submarines, but were protected by Russian torpedoboats which arrived to reinforce them. One of these torpedoboats was damaged in driving off the submarine attack."

SAYS RUSSIANS FLED.

STOCKHOLM, via London, July 4.—Dispatches regarding the naval engagement in the Baltic on Tuesday between Russian and German vessels state that a German cruiser squadron and the mine-layer Albatross sailed north a short time previous to the fighting for the purpose of laying mines on the Russian coast. The Albatross lost touch with the remainder of the squadron during a fog, and suddenly found herself among Russian warships.

A battle began between the Albatross and the Russian ships and shortly afterwards a German cruiser came to the help of the Albatross, which was beset by four cruisers. The German ships were obliged to retreat toward Swedish territory. The Russians, keeping up a furious fire, pursued them so near the coast that the population of the island of Gothland could easily see the projectiles striking the water. The Albatross was hit by 25 shots and ran ashore on the nearby coast. The German cruiser escaped southward.

By this time another squadron arrived on the scene and put the Russians to flight. Owing to the fog it was impossible to tell the number of ships in the German squadron.

GERMANS ADMIT ONE LOSS.

BERLIN (via London), July 4. — A statement issued by the German admiralty last night relative to Friday's engagement in the Baltic Sea, confirms the report that the German mine-layer Albatross was forced to run aground on the coast of the Island of Gothland, and states that twenty of her crew were killed in the fight and twenty-seven wounded. The Albatross ran ashore in a sinking condition after two hours of heavy fighting with four Russian cruisers.

The text of the statement follows:

"The admiralty reports that a portion of light Baltic naval forces returning from outpost duty, steaming in extended order, met at about 6 o'clock in the morning of July 2, in somewhat hazy weather, Russian armored cruisers patrolling between Gothland and Windau (Russia), Isolated fighting developed, our weak forces attempting to draw the Russian vessels within range of the other German ships.

"In the course of the fighting the war vessel Albatross was unable to regain touch with her own forces. After two hours of heavy fighting against four armored cruisers, which continued firing within Swedish territorial waters, the Albatross, owing to several hits, was compelled to run aground in a sinking condition near Oestgarns, in Gothland. Twenty men were killed and twenty-seven were wounded. The wounded were well tended by the Swedish officials and population."

EIGHT SOLDIERS BROUGHT BACK FROM PRESTON

Some Had Overstayed Their Leaves of Absence.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

PRESTON, July 4.—Eight soldiers from the London camp were rounded up here Friday and taken back to London. It seems that some of the eight had stayed over their time, and the others had left camp without permission. They did some damage to the cells, which they probably will have to make good from their pay.

BRITAIN PLANNING HELP FOR RUSSIA

Disturbed by German Success, Is Considering Best Way of Aiding.

[Canadian Press.]

New York, July 5.—A cable to the Herald from London this morning says: "Russia's desperate need of ammunition is shown by the continuous retreat of Grank Duke Nicholas's forces in Galicia and Southern Poland. To say that Britain is disturbed by the constant reports of German successes in the eastern theatre of the war is to put it mildly. The British authorities are anxiously asking what can be done to stem the tide.

Two courses are open. On the one hand, it is proposed to begin a violent general offensive in the west in the hope of forcing a transfer of German troops from the east, and thus relieving the pressure against the Russians. On the other hand, the more conservative military writers think that the time for this is not at hand, and that the best aid Britain can lend her eastern ally is to pour into Russia every ounce of ammunition that can be spared, without curtailing the necessary supply at the western front.

PRESTON GIRL KILLED AS FATHER DRIVES AUTO OVER AN EMBANKMENT

Sister Rescues Father and Two Sisters From Under Machine.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

PRESTON, July 4.—Florence Mickler, daughter of Jacob Mickler, was killed this afternoon near Glenmorris, when a car driven by her father plunged over an embankment and turned turtle, and pinned the party, which consisted of the father and four daughters, under the car.

Miss Emma managed to free herself, and, with the aid of a fence rail, pried the car up sufficiently to release her sisters, Laura and Norma, who were riding in the rear seat of the car.

The three young ladies had a difficult time in releasing their father, who was pinned under the steering wheel of the car. Miss Florence was the last one to be dragged from underneath the car, and when released she was found to be dead. The girl had received a severe blow on the head, which caused concussion of the brain.

The accident happened about 1 o'clock this afternoon, the party having left home about 12 o'clock. They were on the road to Brantford, when Mr. Mickler, in trying to release the front wheels from a rut, swerved the car across the road and over a steep embankment.

The sad affair has cast a gloom over the community. The family are well known throughout the town.

Miss Florence was in her twentieth year, and had many friends, who join in mourning with the family.

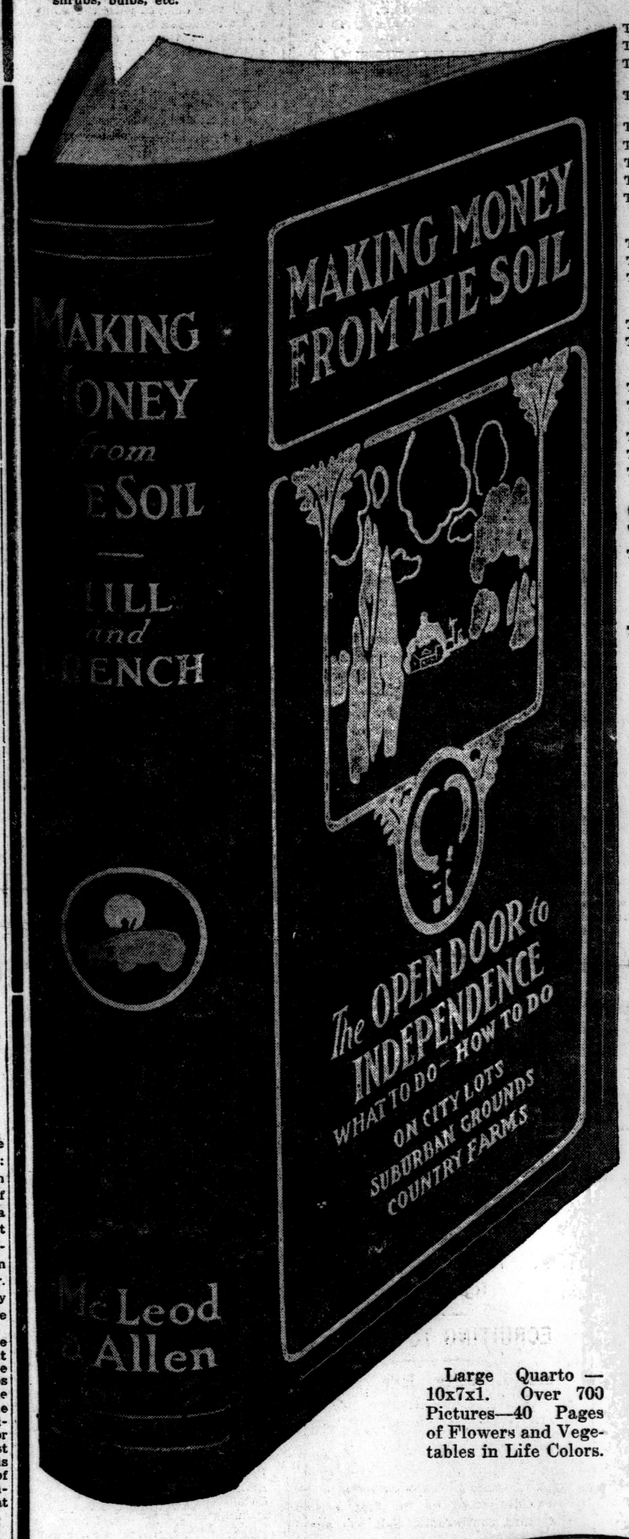

Two doctors have been at the Mickler home continually since the accident attending to the injured members of the family and the mother, who is almost frantic. The car was a new one, and had been purchased by Mr. Mickler recently.

EVILS OF WAR.

THERE are fond optimists who tell us that out of the war will come peace and the millennium. Such a revulsion will insure that men will be changed to wisdom and virtue.

Carlyle was probably nearer right at least, when he said, extravagantly, that out of evil comes only evil. We have to think of the hatred engendered among peoples by this war, the division of humanity into German and non-German as two distinct and hostile species, the destruction of the noblest lives, of villages, railroads, bridges, woods and art. In an article in American Forestry by Jean-Paul Alaux, an eminent French architect, it is estimated that the damaged forests of Northeastern France, from which the enemy has been cutting the timber and shipping it into Germany, will not again be a source of revenue for 30 years. Can such robbery be forgiven?

There was great distress after the Napoleonic wars. What will things be like in the European countries when this affair is over? There can be no millennium amidst starvation and living hatred. Germany and her war have set back the clock of progress.

Edmund Gosse, the English poet and essayist, says:

"I cannot imagine that the passions which the war stirs up can have any other effect but of deepening and widening the abyss. I fancy that at least for a generation no intellectual relations will be possible between France and England on the one side and Germany on the other. If I am not mistaken, the neutral nations will form the only link between the Allies and Germany after this war. The responsibility and privilege of the United States, Sweden, and Holland thus become supreme."

Sir William Ramsay, the great British scientist, holds much the same opinion:

"I am afraid that the horror of the whole civilized world at the moral decay of the Germans (as displayed in Belgium and the territories occupied in France and Russia) makes it most unlikely that international relations with individuals of that nation will be resumed before several generations have passed. Men of science will always recognize scientific achievements, independent of nationality. But should an attempt be made to resume friendly relations with Germany and Austria by means of invitations to scientific congresses, we shall certainly all resent it."

While French theologians and publicists adopt a similar attitude, German and Austrian writers seem to think that scientific co-operation and trade relations will be quickly restored after the war. Not so fast, gentlemen. No doubt Germany will want to be let back into decent society, and to buy and sell with the rest of the world. But while it is possible to forgive a mean assassin, and even in a rarefied, poetical and celestial fashion, to "love" him, people do not make friends with him again, give him positions of public and private trust, do business with him in the old way, enter into partnership with him, take him into the bosom of the family.

It will be a different world after the war, as it already is. The brotherhood of mankind will yet be realized, but late. The wounds inflicted upon civilization by a brutal cad, half-lunatic, will heal slowly. The war has breathed hell into our earth. We have to clear out as many devils as possible.

SLOW WHITTLING.

That seems to be exactly what Germany is doing—whittling down England's navy. An occasional vessel is put out of business; once in a while a submarine or a floating mine cripples a ship of war for the Britons. But the German ships are safe. They are unquestionably in better shape today than when war came—fully coaled, fully provisioned, properly manned, and with every gun clean and bright. But the whittling process must go on a while longer.—Dayton News.

YES, indeed, the whittling process must go on a while longer; in fact, about five years more at the present rate of Von Tirpitz's "whittling down." That is to say, if the British navy remained at its present strength, but unfortunately for Germany every month sees more fighting ships launched in the shipyards of the United Kingdom, so that it will take many more years before the Kaiser's submarines and floating mines reduce the number of British vessels to the point where Von Tirpitz dare order his ships out from the shelter of the Kiel Canal. There is nothing Jellicoe, Beatty and their jackies would like better than the chance of meeting the Germans ship for ship, but if the latter intend to wait until they have whittled down the British squadrons, the battle so greatly desired is in the remote future.

The statement that the German squadron is in better shape for a fight than when the war broke out is open to question. True, the German ships have escaped a certain amount of the wear and tear of being constantly at sea, but on the other hand, rusting behind fortifications is demoralizing. The British fleet today is like the boxer who is always in action, trained down to the minute, alert and splendidly effective. The German navy may have the theory of fighting at its finger ends, but tied up as it is, it has no chance to put it into play. Von Tirpitz's fleet will be flabby and slow from long inactivity when it does come out for the big fight. But that day seems about as remote as the German admiral's chances of victory.

ANOTHER EMANCIPATION NEEDED.

IN a recent investigation by the American Industrial Commission it came out that the dividends paid last year by the Pullman Car Company amounted to $161,000,000, while the wages of porters were $27.50 a month. At the same time the head of the company, R. T. Lincoln, son of the great Abraham Lincoln, claimed that his company had been a great benefactor of the negro race in opening up this opportunity for employment at "honest labor." He admitted that "the arrangement of tips is not a nice one at all, but still an old custom to which the colored race is accustomed."

Lincoln I. freed the black men, and Lincoln II. benefits them by paying them less than a living wage, and by collecting the travelling public into their cars to be fleeced. It is estimated that a year's tips come to about $2,340,000. This the Pullman magnate pretends to be the company's benefaction to the colored race!

When the company divides up $161,000,000 of its profits among the shareholders, it might easily afford to relieve the public of paying that $2,000,000 by paying it itself in a decent, regular wage. Not all the amount would be lost to the shareholders, as certainly more would use the Pullman cars if it were not for the exasperating system of tips. It is conceivable even that the company might gain financially as well as in common decency. Lincoln II. should issue a second emancipation edict to free the porter from servility, as his father freed the porter's father from servitude.

"STUFFING" THE KAISER.

FOR years the Kaiser has been "stuffed" by his agents and advisers; that is to say, he has been told largely what they knew it would please him to be told. Thus it was that his special investigators assured him that Ireland and India would revolt in the event of Great Britain going to war with Germany, and Canada and the other overseas dominions would take advantage of the chance to cut loose from the motherland. In regard to the United States, too, the war lord has been grossly misled. Somewhere amongst his archives placed there years ago are documents to show that the German-Americans, through the pressure of the ballot, would compel the United States Government to act only to the advantage of Germany, should the latter bring on a conflict. And now, despite what has happened during the last ten months to show clearly just how anti-German is the sentiment of the American people as a whole, along comes Dr. Anton Meyer-Gerhard, fresh from a visit to America, and informs the German nation that the sentiment of a majority of the American people is clearly against the contents of the notes of protest over the Lusitania sinking.

Again the Kaiser is being "stuffed." If there is one thing more certain than another as to German-American relations at the present hour, it is that the majority of Americans are standing behind President Wilson in his protests over the Lusitania and the other submarine atrocities. Dr. Gerhard is either very unobservant or he, too, has been "stuffed," probably by the reading of the German-American newspapers, which he tells the Germans are the only newspapers in the United States that have succeeded in being neutral. He is another glaring instance of how harmful to the Germanic cause are the investigations and reports of her army of spies, agents, special pleaders and apologists. The activities of Bernstorff and Dernberg played directly into the hands of the Allies, and Gerhard in misrepresenting or misunderstanding the sentiment of Americans, is working nicely in our interests. No government of recent times has been so poorly served by its diplomats as has Germany.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

That is an odd day that doesn't bring its own explosion.

The Dardanelles is proving a hard nut to crack, but every day the nutcracker grows heavier.

The war has now reached the supposed site of the Garden of Eden. That's where the first row started.

There is a feeling abroad that Roumania will enter the conflict at just the right moment, as did Italy.

Diaz was a sort of Mexican Bismarck. Like the Iron Chancellor he ruled harshly, but for the general good of his country, and when Mexico "dropped the pilot" things went wrong.

Holt who tried to kill J. P. Morgan confesses that it was he who bombed the American capitol. He declared that he is just a poor worker in the cause of peace. He also seems to be a poor shot.

With Servia, Greece and Montenegro all grabbing at parts of Albania it will require some skillful steering to keep clear of complications that might hamper the Allies. It is reassuring to know that that master diplomatist, Sir Edward Grey, is at present in the Balkans.

British Cabinet ministers, whose salaries vary considerably, have pooled the amounts and share alike. The idea might be extended. Already it has been in a measure adopted in trades unions. The war may yet turn us all into friends, among whom there is one purse.

Another surprise of this war was the smashing fight made by the Russian fleet against the German squadron in the Baltic. Because of Russia's wretched showing against the Japs on the sea, and the ridiculous Rojestvensky, the world was not reckoning on the Muscovite cutting much of a figure on the water in the present war.

On stay-at-home day.

On stay-at-home day, stay-at-home day,
There were trunks surreptitiously rifled,
We children would strut in old-fashioned array,
While laughter was carefully stifled.
The garments that father and mother once wore
Were given some graces they'd ne'er known before—
And somewhat untidily dragged o'er the floor,
On stay-at-home day.

On stay-at-home day, stay-at-home day,
The patter of raindrops delights me.
In Memory's attic I rummage away
Where Youth to new mischief incites me.
And I read the old books, and I play with old toys,
I wear the old clothes, and I know the old joys.
Say, ain't it the truth, bo? Again we are boys
On stay-at-home day!

A DISTINCTION WITH A DIFFERENCE.

"Going to send your wife away for the summer?"

"Hush. Don't put it that way. I'm going to let her go away, but if she thought for a minute that I was sending her she'd stay right here."

EXCUSABLE.

[Chicago News.]

If rain would only grow hair on bald heads there might be some excuse for all the wet days that prevent perfectly good ball games.

BOASTFUL.

[Pittsburg Dispatch.]

Baltimore is boasting that the government reports show it costs less to eat in that town. But life is not all eating, except to the gluttons.

THE HONEST GRIEFS.

(Detroit Free Press.]

I can stand a fellow's whining
If he's got real cause for pining,
I can stand his dismal wailing
If he's really deep in woe;
And I don't mind honest grumbling
If his feet are sore from stumbling,
And the briars and the brambles
Block the way that he must go.

But I hate the senseless simper
And the woeful wail and whimper
Of the fellow who starts growling
At the first few drops of rain;
And I cannot stand the brother
Who thinks someway or another
All the fates have turned against him
When he feels a touch of pain.

Life's a blend of joy and trouble,
Through the cool grass and the stubble
Everyone of us must wander
As we journey towards our goal;
Every Tom and Dick and Harry
Has some burden he must carry,
He who seeks the joy of living
Must, in some way, pay the toll.

Both the great man and the humble
Find an honest cause to grumble,
Each must shed his tears of sorrow,
Through the darkness each must grope;
And when real care is assailing
There is some excuse for wailing
But without the slightest reason
Far too many give up hope.

Save your tears and save your sighing
For the hours that will be trying,
Keep on smiling, keep on plodding
Just as far as you can go.
While the sun of hope is shining
There is no sense in repining,
It is time enough for wailing
When life's honest griefs you know.

TRUE.

"Men are queer."

THE CAP-BOX.

By Louis Joseph Vance.

Before him, through a fringe of beeches, loomed a grey, rock-ribbed mansion, shuttered and gloomy. To all appearances it might have been deserted for years; but across a more distant stretch of lawn Alspaugh could see a frantic negro scuttling as for dear life, his rags weirdly fluttering.

Dismounting, he marched to the kitchen door and raised his hand to knuckle a thunderous summons upon the panels. His descending fist, however, encountered nothing more substantial than air; the door had opened before him.

"Well?"

The Northern soldier stared, a pleased surprise kindling in his grey eyes. His cap came off abruptly, and he bowed—but mutely.

"Well? What do you want?"

The tone was repellent as the speaker was decidedly to the contrary. A girl stood upon the threshold; a girl, but almost a woman, dark, rebellious, and wonderful in a number of ways which Alspaugh had scarce time to enumerate; a beauty in a temper. She frowned upon him, fearless, eyes snapping a challenge beneath her level brows; and she stamped a foot which Alspaugh thought absurdly inadequate for the purpose.

"Could I have a glass of water, if you please?" he asked finally. "I'm powerful thirsty."

Without a word she turned her back and disappeared; when she returned it was with a glass in her hand.

"There!" she said, and indicated the well.

With some trouble he managed to draw himself the drink, swallowing it with composure; the girl remaining mute and almost shamefaced after her first violent outburst. "Thank you," he said coldly, returning the glass.

She struck it from his hand, dashing it against the well-curb, to fly into a thousand fragments.

"Because a Northern soldier drank from it?" asked Alspaugh, gravely interested.

She nodded furiously, eyes blazing, lips set and hard; perhaps she dared not trust them. Alspaugh laughed softly, bowed, got to his horse and mounted.

"Good-day," he said pleasantly, from the saddle; adding as an afterthought, as he rode away: "My, what an angry child!"

II.

The men of the detail drawn from Alspaugh's regiment, Alspaugh himself among them—came from the half-cleared swamps of the Northwest, where they, even as their forebears, had hewn them their homes out of the living wilderness forests; pastmasters in the art of the axe were they, before whom the slender saplings swept down like timothy before a scythe.

In time, however, he suspended operations; he was breathing fast, and the perspiration fairly ran down his cheeks.

Taking half a dozen canteens, he sauntered off to the right, in which direction he declared he was positive there must be a spring; and was soon lost to the view of his laughing comrades. In time, on rising ground, he came upon a patch of dewberries, and set to work upon it, oblivious to all else until—it came suddenly: "Surrender, or I'll shoot you!"

"The devil you say!"

Reaching for a particularly ripe berry, Alspaugh tipped his face slightly and gazed into the muzzle of a rifle. Promptly he straightened up; after which he stood at attention.

"Oh, I beg your pardon. Why, certainly!" he assured his captor.

His first definite impression was of a pair of velvety black eyes glancing purposefully down the barrel of the rifle. Then he found that they were the eyes of a girl, and at once understood that they were eyes wherein one might fall and drown—by good fortune. Afterward he recognized the girl; only a day had passed since the affair of the well-curb.

"Keep straight ahead, sir! You see that big chimney over yonder? Well, go that way; that's Lee & Gordon's mill."

"Fine mess of grist you're bringing them! I say, what are you going to do with me, anyhow?"

"Turn you over to Gen. Forrest. Move faster!"

"Forrest!" he said to himself as he plodded. "That's bad. They say he hangs every Yankee who falls into his hands—if he doesn't eat him. I wonder if she knows that? Guess not; though that's no consolation."

Abruptly he faced about; the girl was startled, but ready.

"Don't do that!" she warned him. "I'll shoot—indeed I will!"

"Shoot, but hear me!" he said gaily; but she saw that his eyes were serious. "I want you to do me a favor; there's no telling what will happen, you know. No, I'm not going to beg off; but I've a mother living up in Ohio. Will you send her this if—if you hear of anything happening to me?" He held out his hand; in the palm lay a ring. The girl was relenting. He saw that; she knew that he saw it. But ere she could speak, he interposed. "It's an heirloom; she would like to have it. Just that and my name—won't you, please? It would be a small thing to do for a dead man, wouldn't it?" He took from his pocket a battered diary and the stub of a pencil, and tore out a leaf whereon he scribbled his name and address. "You'll do it? I can trust you?"

She accepted the ring; the hostility was gone out from her face, a grave tenderness was come into her eyes. But her resolution to hand him over remained unshaken.

III.

Forrest's face was long, lean, pallid; the face of an ascetic lit by the eyes of a zealot. He was a brave, keen soldier, a very representative petal of that brilliant blossom, the flower of Southern chivalry; but in his attitude, as he slouched across the table, twisting his slender white fingers together, eying Alspaugh, the prisoner found something suggestive of wolfishness.

Forrest convened the court-martial without ceremony; his voice was hard and unemotional.

"Gentleman," he said, "this morning I was called upon by a Mrs. Swain. Your neighbor, I believe, Miss Thorpe?"

"She lived two miles down the pike, sir. But—"

"Pardon me. I was coming to that. Mrs. Swain's home was robbed and burned to the ground yesterday by a gang of bushwhackers led by this man, Alspaugh—"

"A lie!" Alspaugh branded it calmly.

"Silence, sir! Mrs. Swain's description of the leader fits this hound in detail—tall, well-built, wearing a blue uniform, a man with grey eyes. The outrage was perpetrated at eleven in the forenoon—"

The girl fairly jumped with relief.

"That proves that he had no part in it," she gasped.

"Why?"

"Because the prisoner was at my home at that hour."

"Indeed?" Forrest seemed not greatly impressed. "For what purpose?"

"He—he asked for a glass of water." She flushed slowly, nor dared to meet Alspaugh's eyes. "I gave it him. He went away at once. He was very gentlemanlike, I thought. I am sure he had no part in the crime, Gen. Forrest."

"Thank you," Alspaugh said gratefully.

"You are sure of the hour, Miss Thorpe?"

"I looked at the clock a moment or two after he left."

"In what direction did he ride?"

"Toward the south."

"He was mounted—yes? He rode away rapidly?"

"It is unnecessary to question Miss Thorpe further on that point," he volunteered. "I readily admit that I rode south, even that I was at the Swain homestead. In point of fact, I arrived in time to see it a deserted, smoking ruin. But it is absurd to connect me—"

Forrest smiled acidly.

"I hold in my hand convincing evidence of your guilt. This belt was wrested from you in your struggle with Mrs. Swain. You can't deny your property."

It was a plain strap of worn black leather, with a brass buckle bearing the Federal "U. S." But attached to it was a cap-box; and on the under side of the flap Alspaugh read his own name, in his own hand: "Adam Alspaugh, Twenty-First Ohio." He moistened the corners of his lips with the tip of his tongue.

"It is my name," he said slowly. He fumbled with the cap-box, stuck one finger through its bottom. "You see?" he said "I don't expect you to believe me, but I threw that cap-box away while we were encamped at Sandy Springs. Some camp-follower must have picked it up."

He returned the belt and spread out the palms of his hands helplessly.

The girl could not face him.

"We don't believe you," she heard Forrest announce in his passionless voice. "The case is too plain. Can you explain what you were doing within two miles of Mrs. Swain's house yesterday morning, if you are innocent on this charge?"

Alspaugh's lips tightened; he threw a quick, furive glance about him. He had no chance for escape. He knew himself demned already in the hostile eyes of the judges; and what he was about to reply would be misconstrued.

"I was on a reconnaissance," he said; "under orders."

"Ah! A spy?"

"If you call a man in full uniform between the lines a spy, yes."

"And may I inquire what information you got on your expedition?"

"Certainly you may inquire," he answered cheerfully "But you don't expect me to answer, do you? I think you may as well sentence me to be murdered and have done with this farce, gentlemen."

"Yes," agreed Forrest slowly.

The girl turned and left the room.

IV.

Upon the homeward road her horse set his own pace, a slow one, unchidden; the girl herself was scarcely conscious of her whereabouts. She rode with a drooping head, wrapped in musings. A dying sun bathed her in a crimson splendor, and upon her hand the carnelian in the ring blazed like a drop of living, palpitating blood—upon her hand! She shuddered.

Clouds gathered; and the night's shadows closed about her swiftly. It was to be a black night, moonless; and when it had passed swiftly, as it would surely pass—she shuddered again, and was shaken by a sigh deep as a sob.

The guard tent was backed up against the edge of the woodland, whose nocturnal stirrings made sibilant the long hours to Alspaugh. He sat in the centre of the plot of moist earth, painfully hunched up; his wrists bound behind his back, his feet similarly secured. There was no one to talk to, not a chance for flight. His hands and feet were numb, and within the tent was black darkness.

In the dawning he was to hang. It was very unpleasant to think about. So he tried to think about the girl. He felt very sorry for her. He could imagine how the horror of it would sting her.

Once he napped lightly. But a slight rustling in the rear of the tent roused him, and he sat for what seemed like ages straining his ears to catch a repetition of the sound, which did not come. Something else did, however—the coolness of a knife-blade against his wrists. He held his breath, a cold perspiration breaking out upon his face, his heart hammering like distant thunder.

The knife sawed through strand after strand; and when it was done, the hilt was thrust into his aching palm. He grabbed it with a silent prayer of thanks, and attacked the ropes upon his ankles with desperation. In a moment he sat free. The sentry still paced up and down, to and fro, unconsciously.

Noiselessly Alspaugh turned over and lay prone, wriggling toward the spot where the canvas had been slashed. As he reached it, the groping hand met his face; he seized it, and its mate pressed a revolver into his palm. They were the soft hands of a woman. He could put one and two together very satisfactorily; so he pressed her one hand to his lips.

Stealthily as thieves in the night they made an arduous passage through the woodland. In one place they waited twenty minutes—as many years!—for a sentry to move to the further end of his beat. At length they were without the lines. Somewhere they came out upon an open road; and the starlight struck down and faintly outlined the face of the girl.

She had stopped; he saw that she was weeping, very softly but intensely. He stood speechless, amazed, until she turned upon him.

"Oh!" she cried. "Why, why did you do it?"

"But I did not do it," he expostulated. "If you believed I did, why did you come to me—"

"I don't mean that!" she whispered passionately "I know that you were innocent. But why—why did you kiss my hand? I hate you!"

"But I love you," he explained in a breath. "How could I help it? You can't blame me." He paused. "Is it the pollution of my lips? You broke the glass. Will you cut off the hand? Or will you give it to another, to cleanse it of dishonor? Or"—he faltered—"can it wait? Will you keep it so, for me, until—"

Both were silent.

"I'm afraid of this country," Alspaugh laughed tenderly, after a while. "It's full of surprises. But I'm coming back to it —I'm coming back—I'm coming back!"

But the girl was gone from him, alone through the night; and on her finger the carnelian ring was like a drop of living blood.

THE NEW MINISTER.

[Exchange.]

"How do you like your new minister?"

"Very much, indeed. He's the right sort. One of those 'man-among-men' ministers, you know. Comes over to the house occasionally and smokes a pipe; plays on our baseball team; good at tennis and golf and seems to believe in getting pleasure out of this life."

"I see."

"Yes, and he's interested in the things we laymen are interested in. He discusses the problems of the day. I tell you he's a fine fellow."

"I know, but what sort of sermons does he preach?"

"Well, that I can't tell you. I haven't been over to hear him preach yet."

ALMOST READY TO DEPART.

[Exchange.]

"Planned your vacation yet?"

"Well, we've located a neighbor who'll take care of the canary; another to look after the dog; a third to keep the garden watered and weeded during our absence; someone to go into the house two or three times a week and air it, and now all we have to do is to decide where we are going and when."

Press Comment on the War

THE GREEK ELECTIONS.

[London Times.]

King Constantine, it need hardly be said, understands the duties and the position of a constitutional monarch, in a highly democratic state, too well not to bow to the considered will of the country. Shortly before his illness he used some significant language on this point in conversation with an American journalist. He said that if M. Venizelos was returned to power they would work together in harmony as before, for the common realization of the national aspirations, "which are merely the desire for national unity." The remarkable activity of the German Press Bureau in Greece, their agents, emissaries and dependents, in carrying on a bitter press campaign against M. Venizelos shows how greatly his success was dreaded in Berlin.

LABOR'S POSITION.

[Glasgow Herald.]

Happily the ammunition problem is at long last in process of solution. According to Mr. Lloyd George, the result of the negotiations between the Government and the labor leaders has been a very fair working arrangement. We shall see how far it carries us. It is based upon voluntary effort. In recent months the "slacker" minority has reduced some shops to uselessness, and we shall watch closely to learn whether the pressure and the persuasion of the leaders prove more effective. Mr. Lloyd George conveys the impression that he is less doubtful than he was, and the members of the men's committee are honestly anxious to back him up with all the resources at their command. If the hopes are falsified within a brief period, there is always the possible resort to the final method of saving the men and employers also from themselves.

AN ILLUMINATING CASE.

[New York Herald.]

Of vast importance in its bearing on the issues now in controversy between the United States and Germany is the case of the Norwegian mail steamship Venus. As told in a brief cable dispatch from Newcastle, a German submarine hailed the Venus while en route from Norway to that English port, and gave the captain of the merchantman the alternative of throwing overboard all the foodstuffs—declared to be contraband by Germany—in her cargo, or of being torpedoed. The contraband was accordingly sent to the bottom of the sea, and the vessel was permitted to proceed unharmed. This method of treatment may seem that light is breaking in upon the understanding of Berlin or it may not.

THE COST OF THE WAR.

[Weekly Scotsman.]

Figures are not always illuminating; but the figures brought forward by Mr. Asquith in the House of Commons in introducing the new vote of credit gave a clear enough indication of the gigantic nature of the war. They will not alarm this country, since one of the things of which we are most sure is that the credit of Germany must go before the credit of Great Britain. But it would be foolish to overlook the heavy financial burden which the war is imposing upon us, and it is clearly the duty of every responsible citizen to exercise the private economy which Mr. McKenna has recommended, and to see that, as far as he can, his influence is used in discouraging extravagance among public bodies.

Fighting in Land of Mirage

[Montreal Star.]

An officer serving in German Southwest Africa writes of the scene which faced the northern force on its landing from Walfish Bay:

"What a world of desolation is there! Not the benign duneland of East England, or Flanders, with tussocks of grass and scrub, but a heart-numbing ocean of soft white sand billows, rising in places to a height of 1,000 feet or more, and always melting and trekking and piling up; and not a living thing, plant, animal or insect to be seen. And fearsome is the mirage here! At 400 yards a man looks as bulky as a horseman—with fluid legs!—and at 600 yards a whole regiment is utterly lost in shimmering lake or reedy lagoon."

Describing the life and work of the force, the writer adds:

"Since those callow days of hourly expectation, we have been engaged on one colossal fatigue. First entrenching the bases, then building sea walls, then building the railway from Walfish to Swakopmund along the seashore, guarding its construction, building sandbag blockhouses at short distances along its course, and also, of course, outposts and patrols. A weary, if necessary, grind. The enemy have shown a most extraordinary lack of enterprise, and have never once tried to hinder this railway, so necessary to our advance, as Swakopmund is a very hopeless place at which to try and land all the heavy stores and implements required for our army. Now the railway has reached Swakop. Gen. Botha landed on February 12 with well-equipped burghers, and long before you get this we shall have started our advance along the main railway to Windhoek. Early in January, while standing to arms in the gloomy hour before the dawn, we heard 27 terrific reports in the direction of Swakopmund, 22 miles away. This was an absorbing mystery to all of us. It was not until the middle of January, when the Imperial Light Horse made a dash on Swakop in the night, that the explanation was forthcoming. The Germans, in an attempt to hinder us, had blown up all the public works, pier, etc. —all, in fact, save the water tanks, which they left in order to poison the water and mine the approaches. It was just dawning on the morning after this same night ride by the Imperial Light Horse when we heard another series of reports. This time the explanation was quicker to come, and more tragic. Men and horses blown to eternity by mines—the price of the taking of Swakopmund.

"There are some humorists among the Germans. Some little time ago they sent a wireless message from Windhoek to our G. O. C. at Luderitz Bay, and recommended our people not to steal too much time at football there, as there was an excellent football ground at Windhoek, where they would play us. That morning a German patrol had been trapped and two had been killed and three wounded. So a prompt reply was sent to say: 'Many thanks, but we are doing nicely here. In a game we played against you this morning we scored two goals and three tries!'"

Betty's Dilemma.

Dear Miss Grey: This is the first time I have ever entered your column, but take much pleasure in reading it in The Advertiser every day. Would like very much if you will answer some questions for me.

1. I have been corresponding with a young man for about one year. He seems to think a great deal of me, but I don't like him. He is a very nice young man, but I can't seem to like him for some reason. Mother likes him, and wants me to keep company with him. I have been keeping company with another young man in my own town, but mother doesn't want me to go with him. But I like him a good deal better than the other one. Please advise me what to do.

2. Should you let a young man put his arm around you while out driving if you are real well acquainted with him?

3. Candidly, what do you think of my writing, which I have scribbled off in a hurry?

Hoping to see this in print soon, I remain, BETTY

Ans.—As a rule a mother's advice in such matters should certainly be listened to, and heeded. On the other hand, a girl cannot force herself to care for a young man just because her mother likes him. It is the girl, not the mother, who marries him and lives with him. And no matter how good and admirable some people are we do not relish the idea of being closely associated with them.

If your mother has any real reason for her objection to the man you like, it is only fair for her to state it, and I should advise you to give every heed to her views. I wish you had stated your age, for while a woman of 25 or over may decide for herself pretty safely, a young girl should, I think in most cases, be guided by older advice.

2. Betty, I'm ashamed of you. After reading this column of advice for some time too! The answer is No!

3. You write a most attractive hand.

From the Country.

Dear Miss Grey: Will you please answer these questions for me?

1. I have fair hair, dark eyes and quite dark complexion, what do you think my "best" color would be?

2. Don't you think it would be nice for girls of sixteen to do their hair up during the hot weather? I would be very grateful to you if you could suggest a way.

3. Are these long-waisted dresses, which were in style last spring, worn much now?

4. Would you please reprint in your column the recipe given some time ago for salad dressing? have forgotten the name of it now.

5. Also a recipe for a nice salad (not potato).

Hoping to see this in your column soon. "COUNTRYFIED."

Ans.—1. Rather difficult to say just which color would be your "best," but I fancy that quiet shades of brown relieved by touches of cream, or a dash of some bright tango shade would be becoming.

2. Yes, more comfortable. Couldn't you braid it and wind the braid around your head?

3. Not particularly; the tendency now seems for shorter waist lines; this is noticeable in the vogue for Eton coats and blouses.

4. Am not sure if it was a plain boiled dressing or mayonnaise, that you wish, as both recipes have appeared recently:

Mayonnaise Dressing — Break the yolks of two raw eggs in a soup plate, beat smooth with a silver fork, and add oil, a few drops at a time, until it begins to thicken, when it can be added in larger quantities, keep up the stirring constantly and with a rapid motion. When it grows thick add a few drops of vinegar, beat smooth again, and then add 1 teaspoon salt, level saltspoon mustard, and dash of cayenne. Add the vinegar a little at a time until two tablespoons have been used; a good half cupful of the oil should be enough. If directions are followed faithfully, this makes an excellent dressing. Some cooks who object to the flavor of the oil use melted butter instead.

Boiled Dressing: A good dressing is made of one egg, one tablespoon flour, wet in half teacup sweet milk. Mix all, then add very slowly half teacup vinegar, beating steadily to prevent curdling. Boil until smooth and creamy.

5. Beet and Cabbage Salad—Four cups chopped beets, 3 cups chopped cabbage, 1 cup grated horseradish, 1 cup sugar, 1 cup vinegar, little salt. Boil the beets, and when tender plunge into cold water, and remove skins; chop fine, add the chopped cabbage; the horseradish may be bought already pickled at any provision store. Serve on lettuce leaves. This also keeps well if packed into a jar and sealed.

Tomato Jelly—Take enough tomatoes, either canned or fresh, to make one pint of juice. Add one slice of onion, one bay leaf and two cloves. Boil for ten minutes, then strain. Soak one-half box of powdered gelatine in one-half cup of cold water. When soft add one-half cup of hot stock or water with beef extract. Stir tomato juice, a few rings of the white of hard boiled eggs, four olives sliced. Turn into molds and chill. Serve on lettuce leaf with spoon of mayonnaise dressing.

Music for "Chuck."

"Another Who is Lonely" sends words and music of the song "Six Feet of Earth," asked for by "Chuck." The same has been forwarded to him.

"Another Who is Lonely" says: "I have another called "Love Letters," but I do not think it is the one he wants, but would be pleased to send it if it is."

Cake for Doris.

"Doris" sends the words of "We'll Never Let the Old Flag Fall," which, however, appeared the same day that her letter was written, being supplied by another reader.

Your writing is very good indeed, Doris Here is a recipe for the layer cake which your mother may like: Two eggs, whites and yolks beaten separately, scant cup sugar, lemon flavoring, two tablespoons softened butter, scant cup sweet milk, two level teaspoons baking powder, 1¾ cups flour; beat all together well, adding the beaten whites of the eggs last. Bake in greased layer tins, and ice as preferred.

Aim To Be Noble.

Dear Miss Grey,—1. Is it proper for a girl of 14 to write to a soldier, they being pretty good friends?

2. Would it be proper for her to go with a boy of 13 years?

3. How long should a grandchild go in mourning for her grandmother? Also if black and white should be worn, and is it the proper mourning for a grandchild?

4. How can you clean suede slippers? TWO APPLE BLOSSOMS.

Ans.—1. Would depend both on the girl and the soldier; if he is a family friend, and her mother approves of the correspondence, it would be all right.

2. Good gracious, no, child! Little girls of this age should pay attention to their studies, and not think of "going" with anybody. Aim to be a sweet, noble, useful woman, sunny and merry as you please, and love is bound to come to you in time.

3. She might wear black for three months, then black and white for another three months, before going back to colors. The wearing of mourning is now largely a matter of personal choice, especially for a distant relative.

4. The shoe stores sell a special preparation for this purpose.

A Healing and Antiseptic Soap.

Advertiser Illustrations

There will not be much gingham worn this year, even in children's frocks. The manufacturers, however, have made many of the new cotton weaves into gingham patterns.

While the new loosely-woven ratines will probably not wear as long as gingham, they are softer and prettier than standard material for children's school dresses.

Brown and yellow plaid ratine makes a smart school frock for a little girl eight to ten years old. The skirt is perfectly plain, somewhat gored at the belt, and the waist is cut in kimono shape, left open in front to show a white cotton duvetine waistcoat. The collar and cuffs are of handkerchief linen, hemstitched.

Most children will wear the low-heeled "baby doll" slippers this summer, and white stockings will be worn to the exclusion of any other color.

Canadian Verse

BRAVO, CANADA BOYS!

Ripe for any adventure, sturdy, loyal and game,
Quick to the call of the Mother, the young Canadians came.
Eager to show their mettle, ready to shed their blood,
They bowed their neck to the collar and trained in the Wiltshire mud.

Shipped, in the fulness of time, across to the other shore,
Heard a deep hum in the distance, the "basso profundo" of war.
Fretted to get to the business, chafed for the firing line.
Forward—with throbbing pulses, like pilgrims who near their shrine.

Spoiled for a fight, and got it—lurid, merciless, red—
Trifled with death in the trenches, braved and battled and bled.
Then, at a given order, gathered together and backed—
Not because they were bending, but to keep the line intact.

Four of the guns defenceless—left in the enemy's hand!
That was a bitter buffet, more than the lads could stand.
Back charged the Men of the Maple, routed the jubilant Huns,
Captured a pack of Germans and saved the beloved guns.

Ripe for any adventure, sturdy, loyal and game,
Quick to the call of the Mother, the keen Canadians came.
Hurrah! for the young Dominion! Cheer them with heart and voice.
The Maple shall never wither! Bravo —Canada boys!

—Jessie Pope, in London Daily Mail.

TWENTY-SIX INCHES FOR FALL.

It seems that by now the styles for fall are quite fixed, if the latest final. Nearly all of the creators have been heard from, at least, in regards to suits and the redingote, and practically all of them agree as to the length of the suit jacket which varies from twenty-six to twenty-eight inches in length, while the skirts remain short and full. That the redingote will be featured for fall wear we are assured. It is a very practical garment since our women have taken to the tailored gown. The redingote covers the gown that is worn under it, usually fits at the waist line quite snugly and has a decided flare at the bottom, starting from the hips.

It is also safe to predict that if the skirts are to remain short there will be a demand for novelties in footwear, as it has been found that all eyes are turned towards women's feet, and when it is a case of being considered well-dressed, one nowadays buys a new pair of shoes rather than a new hat, as was the practice formerly. The shoes that are laced insure a well-fitted foot, so there will be many demands for the laced shoe rather than those that button. This shoe is made higher in order to meet the short skirt and the uppers will, in many instances, match the color, if not the material of the suit.

Four things a man must learn to do.
If he would keep his record true:
To think without confusion clearly;
To love his fellow-man sincerely;
To act from honest motives purely;
To trust in God and Heaven securely.
—Henry Van Dyke.

The Summer Vacation Guest

WHAT TYPE ARE YOU?

[By Cynthia Grey.]

Now that summer vacations are being discussed by almost everybody there is one question which the girl who is to be a visitor, either individually or at a house party, may well ask herself: "How can I be a successful guest?" We hear much about the successful hostess, but while everybody possibly does not possess the qualities of tact, genuine hospitality and geniality that make for a popular hostess, surely most of us can at least learn to be agreeable guests.

It is really surprising to note all the many varieties—quite "fifty-seven"—of guests that there are. Even women who do little entertaining are soon awake to that fact, and the unpleasant ones may be found among young and old. It is difficult to say which is the worst, the "finicky" woman guest of mature years, or the giddy, thoughtless girl who is a constant source of anxiety to her hostess.

Let me relate the experience a woman friend of mine had last summer with a guest of both these types.

"I was prepared to do everything to make Cousin Carrie comfortable," my friend told me, "I understood that ill-health had rendered her somewhat eccentric in her habits, but really had not anticipated the worst. The evening after her arrival I told her that we invariably breakfasted at eight, and if she wished it I would call her. To my dismay I found that she never got up for breakfast, but desired me to bring it to her in bed. That was but the beginning. Breakfast over, she requested me, so pleadingly that I couldn't refuse, to brush her hair. Cousin Carrie always required a nap after her mid-day meal, and warm water for a bath before tea-time. I had a joyful time climbing stairs, and was just about getting worn out when Sam, my husband, you know, awoke to Carrie's system of "sponging" as he termed it, and as she is his cousin, not mine, he had a heart-to-heart talk with her that resulted in Carrie's leaving. I'm afraid she blamed me, but really I never grumbled to Sam.

"However, even Cousin Carrie's ways were nothing compared to our next guest. The minister's family live next door to us and when his niece, Elvy B—, came to visit them because her little brothers had the measles at home, it was to find that the minister's children had the measles too, and so, somehow, Elvy came to stay at our place. She was just fifteen, and not a bad youngster at heart—if you didn't happen to live in the same house—but untidy!" and my friend threw up both hands in horror.

"As you know, I'm not usually very pernickity about the house, for as I always say to Sam, it is for use, and there isn't a room that's too good to live in. But Elvy quite evidently thought so too. I can't understand how a fifteen-year-old girl could be so thoughtless. I gave her Marie's room to sleep in—Marie was in New York studying just then—and at first she seemed quite proud of the little grey and pink room. But after a week!

"Well, I soon got tired tidying up after her. Her clothing would be scattered in every corner, things on the dresser all awry, and crumbs of cake or candy over nearly everything. She spilled freckle lotion over the dresser and left a white stain, ink on the pin-cushion, and on some of Marie's cherished books.

"Elvy made friends with a number of rather bolsterous girls on our street—just the sort of girl who is a dangerous companion for such as she, and I cannot tell you the anxieties I had over her. Nothing particularly wrong, you know, but she often went out with them without telling me where she was going or how long she would be. I tried to be companionable, and so did Sam, and we took her out lots of places just for her amusement, or had young people in, but it was an honest relief when we were able once more to have a quiet house.

"The only thing I found to be thankful for about the two experiences, was that they didn't happen together. Cousin Carrie and Elvy here at once would have placed me in the asylum sure!"

HALF HOSE FASHION PRETTY FOR LITTLE MISS IN SUMMERTIME

The fashion of half hose on little girls will prevail again this summer and certainly nothing is prettier than the tanned and dimpled nudity of little miss 6-year-old's knees.

A white cotton poplin, made very plain, with bands of embroidery forming the trimming and holding the wide white leather belt in place, makes a frock that is dressy enough for a child to wear any place. It is also plain enough for school or play-time after the first newness is worn off.

CHERRY RECIPES.

Here are some ways to use cherries, and this "Roly-Poly" is especially good: Sift two cups of flour with one even teaspoonful of salt and three level teaspoonfuls of baking powder; and one tablespoon of butter, and cut with knife till butter is mixed; add two-thirds cup of milk and beat for three minutes. Turn out on board, pat out to one-half inch in thickness and spread with a layer of stoned cherries; dredge with a little flour and sugar; roll up and pinch all edges together; wrap in pudding cloth and steam for one hour.

Serve with cherry sauce made from one cup of cherry juice, one cup of sugar, tablespoonful of butter, pinch of salt and one tablespoonful of cornstarch that has been blended in a little cold water; put all in double boiler and cook fifteen minutes. Stir constantly for first five minutes to avoid lumps. Serve warm.

Remove the stems from fine red cherries, stone them if desired (many cooks think the flavor better if the stone is left in), and place in the preserving kettle with one-half pound of sugar to one of fruit. Add a little hot water, just enough to prevent the sugar sticking, and bring to a boil. Have the jars scalding in a separate kettle. Let the fruit boil ten or fifteen minutes, then pour hot into the sterilized jar, and seal at once.

Hem, collar and sleeves may be bound with a contrasting color and the frock will be fashionably trimmed.

RAIN AGAIN INTERFERES WITH LEAGUE SCHEDULE

No Games Played In Western Ontario Section of Canadian League Saturday—London and Guelph Will Play at Galt on Wednesday.

Rain again seriously interfered with the Canadian League schedule Saturday afternoon, none of the games billed in the west end of the circuit being played. Hamilton and Guelph were to play a double header at Guelph, and London and Brantford were to have staged a double bill at the Telephone City, but the heavy downpour of the morning put both fields in poor shape for playing on.

London did not play any games with Brantford since leaving here Thursday night. The Tecumsehs and Brants will be playing nothing but double headers when they meet again in Brantford. Three postponed games will have to be played off.

Play In Galt Wednesday.

Today "Doc." Reisling and his boys will play Knotty Lee's Guelph outfit in the Royal City and will also meet the Leafs on Tuesday and Wednesday. Wednesday's game will be played in Galt in order to give the fans of that town a glimpse of Canadian League ball. It will be a big day for Frank Eckstein, the local leftfielder. He played in Galt last season with the Wobbly Leaguers and was a great favorite there.

The London team will likely be strengthened before the week is out. Lusk has not been going good, and a new infielder is needed badly. The enforced rest of the past three days will help the club considerably and give some of the crippled pitchers a chance to recuperate. Graham will in all probability work this afternoon against Guelph, providing there is a game. The heavy rain of last night swept Western Ontario pretty thoroughly, and it may have put the Guelph diamond in poor shape for a contest.

WATER BLOSSOM WON THE CANADIAN DERBY

McDowell's Kentucky Filly Provides Feature at Fort Erie.

THE FINN WAS BEATEN

Eighth Straight Victory for Water Blossom, Seven of Them on W. S. Tracks.

FORT ERIE, Ont., July 3. — Under most adverse conditions the summer meeting of the Niagara Racing Association commenced here today. A steady downpour of rain made the track a sea of mud, but, despite this, 7,000 people were present. Twelve coaches brought the Toronto delegation, which numbered about 400. T. C. McDowell's Kentucky filly, Water Blossom, won the opening day feature, the Canadian Derby, by a head from the Hamilton Derby winner, The Finn. Water Blossom won her last seven starts in Kentucky and made it eight straight today.

Summary:

First race, selling, 5½ furlongs — 1 Anita, 2 Port Light, 3 Tar Brush. Time 1:12 3-5.

EDDIE RICKENBACKER WON SIOUX CITY 300-MILE RACE

Second Victory In This Race, as he Won It Last Year—Eddie O'Donnell Was Second.

SIOUX CITY, July 3.—Eddie Rickenbacker won his first big race at the wheel of a Maxwell car, and first place in the 300-mile race on the dirt speedway here in 4:00:56, an average speed of 74.70 miles an hour. The prizes amounted to $15,000.

It was Rickenbacker's second victory on the Sioux City track, as he won the 1914 event and set a track record of 78.80 miles an hour at the wheel of a Duesenberg. Recent heavy rains had softened the oiled dirt surface of the track and the cars soon had it rough in spots, which cut down the speed, and prevented the Detroiter equally his previous record.

With the same Maxwell that he finished third in the Chicago 500-mile race, Rickenbacker, the favorite, was the fourth car in the field of fifteen to get away at 12:30 p.m. Eddie O'Donnell, former teammate of "Rick," at the wheel of a Duesenberg, was the first to start, and finished second to the Detroiter. Tom Alley, formerly mechanic for Ralph De Palma, finished third, also driving a Duesenberg.

Won On Saturday in Tenth Inning and On Sunday Won by One Run in Ninth.

OTTAWA, July 4. — Ottawa made it three out of five at the expense of the St. Thomas team by taking today's game 1 to 0 at Hull. The Senators defeated the Saints on Saturday by 3 to 2 in an interesting game. Hughey and Shocker were engaged in a pitching duel with the latter having the best of it. On Sunday another pitcher's battle developed, both Howick and Peterson went along nicely for eight innings, then the Senators scored the only run in the game.

CORNWALL BEAT SHAMROCKS.

MONTREAL, July 4. — Cornwall, playing a clever combination, obtained a long lead in the first half of the N. L. U. game against the Shamrocks in this city Saturday afternoon, and won by seven goals to three. The attendance was small.

SOME FOUL TIPS AND A FEW LINERS

Hamilton has released George Pembroke, the catcher who looked so good in the Hamilton series here. Matty Lamond will do all the backstop work for the Hams.

Ottawa and Guelph are still said to be above the salary limit. Shaughnessy will never get any lower than he is at present, from all indications.

The Saints gave Ottawa a great battle in the series just ended in the Capital. If Stewart had a couple of more good hitters, he would have a team that would beat any of them. It is a shame to have the good pitching he is getting go to waste.

Hamilton is looking for a good-hitting outfielder, and rumors of a trade with the London Club are rife. The Hams would like to get Schaffer, while Reisling is sweet on Paddy Dougherty. A trade of this kind might help both clubs.

The St. Thomas club is making efforts to bring Chief Nevitt back. The Indian catcher was popular with the fans in the Railway City, and he was a big attraction. Stewart has been strongly criticised by the fans for letting the Indian get away, and as Harris is not hitting a lick, he is badly needed. Nevitt would prefer to play for London, though, and it may be he will refuse to return. He is at Mount Pleasant College, Mich., where he has a position as physical instructor.

Sam Ross the Ottawa southpaw, is just recovering from an attack of tonsilitis. He has not appeared in a game for a couple of weeks.

George Gibson, the Pittsburg catcher, in a letter to some of his friends in this city, says that the London team does not need to be down in the race. He claims that in every big city in the States there are hundreds of good minor league ball players who are out of jobs, and that they besiege the big league players every day asking to be recommended to minor league managers.

Frank Rooney May Join London Team This Week

Reisling Is After Hard Hitting Outfielder That Shaughnessy Released.

Frank Rooney, the outfielder who was with Ottawa this season, may join the London club this week. Reisling has been after Rooney for several days. Shaughnessy let him out in order to cut down to the salary and players limits. Rooney is one of the best hitting outfielders in the Canadian League, and he is also a good first sacker. If he reports here, London will likely use him at first base and McEvoy will be released.

Rooney went to the South Michigan League from Ottawa, but so far has not appeared with any of the teams there. If Reisling can locate him he will ask him to report right away.

The trio pleaded guilty, and they were remanded to the county jail for one week to await sentence. In the meantime the authorities will look up their records.

When arrested Nutt had in his possession a lady's gold watch, with chain and locket, a pearl gold ring, a wedding ring, a small electric motor, and a bunch of keys. On an ultra-smart identification card, also found on him, the following was written: "Raymond Nutt, Ingersoll, any place but home." His father's address was given as Woodstock.

WINGHAM OUTPLAYS LOCALS AT LACROSSE

Northern Town Boys Defeat London by 19 to 4.

EX-LONDONERS FEATURE

Eddie Hawkins Scores Nine of Wingham's Goals, While Grant Fetterley Also Gets Many.

Wingham intermediates proved too strong for the London representatives of the O.A.L.A. at Tecumseh Park, Saturday afternoon, and the game resulted in a victory for the visitors by the score of 19 to 4. The locals were outclassed from the start and the game developed into a burlesque toward the end. Never at any time were the Londoners in a class with the northern town boys.

Eddie Hawkins, who played with London last season, was the star of the contest. He scored almost at will and in the first ten minutes of the game had run in 5 goals. He scored 9 of Wingham's goals during the fray and could have had many more had he cared to exert himself at all. The visiting team looked almost like last year's London aggregation, three other players having been with London last season. Charley Hawkins, Grant Fetterley and Scott are the trio and they played a fine game. In fact, they are among the best players Wingham have Fetterley is captain of the team.

Small Crowd Present.

The game was only thinly attended most of the spectators coming down from Wingham. Londoners have failed to become enthused over lacrosse this season and the local players have apparently lost interest in the game also. The team was a couple of players short when the time for the game to start came round and two substitutes were pressed into service. "Doc." Walker and Harold Fetterley were the two, and they performed well considering that neither of them had been out before this season. Dietrich, Slattery, Klersey and Nash were the other members of the team who showed real flashes of lacrosse.

Wingham had the score 6 to 0 at the end of the first quarter but the second quarter was much closer, the locals holding their opponents to a 3 to 2 count, making the half time count 9 to 2. In the second half, however, Wingham toyed with the London players and although there were flashes of good lacrosse, the contest was never keen enough to be interesting.

Wingham Looks Good.

The Wingham team is a strong one and it plays clean lacrosse. It should go far in the O. A. L. A. series. It looks to be a much better outfit than St. Marys and there is no doubt that it will win the group honors. By losing Saturday's game the London team is out of the running. There is plenty of good material in the city for a team equally as good as Wingham's but the players will not turn out to practice and the management has had to labor with considerable difficulty in order to put a team in the field.

Allan Kinder of Preston, refereed on Saturday and kept the game free from roughness and otherwise helped to make it a contest. Kinder is a good referee.

The teams were:

Wingham		London
Knetchel	Goal	Donohue
Anderson	Point	Simmons
C. McLean	Cover	H. Fetterley

BRITISH PURCHASER COMING TO CANADA

D. A. Thomas Lands in New York To Supervise Munitions.

NO CRITICISM OF MORGAN

Capitalist Will Not Comment On Canada's Lack of Orders.

[Canadian Press.]

New York, July 5.—The American Line steamer St. Louis arrived here today from Liverpool. She was escorted down channel by two torpedo boat destroyers ot a distance west of Daunt's Rock, probably owing to the presence on board of D. A. Thomas, the British capitalist and coal operator. Thomas comes here to supervise and expedite the production of munitions for the Allies.

The two destroyers remained with the St. Louis two days and nights, it was said, and did not leave her till the war zone was cleared.

Met By Ambassador.

When the St. Louis docked here, Mr. Thomas was met at the pier by Sir Cecil Spring Rice, the British ambassador to the United States, and Willard D. Straight, of the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co.

"I have come to America prepared for an indefinite stay," Mr. Thomas said. "I may stay till the end of the war, and I don't know how long that will be. It looks as if the war might last a long time. But no matter how long it lasts there can be but one ending—Germany must be defeated and will be.

Coming to Canada.

"My business in the United States and Canada (I expect to go to Canada very soon) is to co-operate with Mr. Morgan's firm and firms in Canada in the purchase of munitions of war for Britain In this connection, I want to say that there has been no criticism of the manner in which Mr. Morgan has fulfilled his contracts. What criticism there has been was chiefly in Canada, and was to the effect that Canada had not been favored so much in the award of contracts as the United States."

Mr. Thomas did not care to comment on this criticism, he said. His immediate plans, he added, were not yet ripe for publication, but these embraced a trip to Canada within the near future.

GERMAN "BIRDS" DROP THREATENING MISSILES INTO CITY OF WARSAW

Foe Claims That Place Will Fall Into Their Hands Within Month.

LONDON, July 4.—A dispatch from Petrograd to Reuter's Telegram Company says:

"A great number of civilians are leaving Warsaw, in order not to hamper military operations.

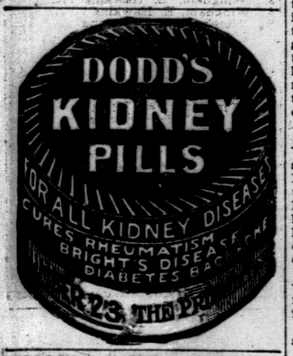

"German aeroplanes are dropping messages into Warsaw stating that the city will be in the possession of the Germans within a month.

"The Germans, it is known, have drawn up lists of prominent Poles, who they plan to hang for their Russian sympathies."

BRITAIN ORGANIZES TO COMBAT GERMAN SCIENCE

Admiral Lord Fisher Appointed Chairman of "Inventions Board."

LONDON, July 4.—The plea of British scientists that Great Britain organize the country's best scientific brains to combat German ingenuity in warfare, found expression today in the official statement that Admiral Lord Fisher, who recently resigned as first sea lord of the admiralty, owing to differences with Winston Spencer Churchill, then first lord of the admiralty, has been appointed chairman of "The inventions board" which is being formed to assist the admiralty in relation to naval requirements.

ADRIATIC CARRYING PREMIER AND R. P. BENNETT, M.P. TO ENGLAND

HOLT'S PLAN FOR STOPPING THE WAR

Proposed to Hold Mrs. Morgan and Children as Hostages.

SCHEME FAILED TO CARRY

Had Dynamite to Show What Was Causing Slaughter In Europe.

[Canadian Press.]

GLEN COVE, N.Y., July 4.—Mrs. J. P. Morgan and the Morgan children were to be held as hostages in their own home and killed with dynamite if J. P. Morgan refused to use his influence to stop the exportation of war munitions, Frank Holt, who yesterday attempted to assassinate Mr. Morgan at his home near here, told Police Commissioner Arthur Woods, in his cell at Mineola today.

Holt said his plans miscarried; that he planned to send Mr. Morgan out to stop the exportations of munitions while he held the other members of the family in an upstairs room.

Mr. Morgan, the victim of the bullets which Holt fired, continued to show improvement today. The only bulletin issued was more reassuring. It is said that the bullet did not enter the abdomen, and that an X-ray examination showed that no bones had been damaged. Late tonight it was said that the financier was resting easily; he had slept all afternoon. No reference was made to the other bullet, which was said yesterday to have come out of the upper part of the leg. The Morgan home was closely guarded today, the force of armed men surrounding the estate being doubled as the day wore on, and all suspicious looking persons were kept at a distance. Every incoming train was watched.

To Police Commissioner Woods, who visited him during the afternoon, Holt told briefly how he planned to hold as hostages Mrs. Morgan and the Morgan children while he sent Mr. Morgan out to stop the exportation of munitions of war.

"My plan," said Holt, "was to get hold of Mrs. Morgan and the Morgan children and take them into an upstairs room, and then send Mr. Morgan out to see his influential friends to stop the exportation of munitions from this country.

"I planned to take the dynamite in the room with me, and cut a hole in the door, and have the food shoved in through it. I planned to keep them there until Mr. Morgan returned and gave me his promise that the exportation of war munitions would stop. Unless he stopped it, I would tell him of my intention to kill Mrs. Morgan and the children and myself by exploding the dynamite."

Knew Morgan Could Stop War.

Holt then tried to tell Commissioner Woods about the terrible slaughter resulting from the war. He said he knew Mr. Morgan could stop the war and that is the reason he went to him. He insisted that he did not intend to harm him, but just wanted him to "see his influential friends and manufacturers" and get them to put an embargo on arms from this country.

Holt said he took the dynamite sticks with him to show Mr. Morgan the very material that was killing so many people in Europe.

At this juncture Commissioner Woods asked Holt why his plans miscarried.

Holt declared that he started for the stairs when he met the Morgan children and was walking ahead of them when he was intercepted. He had a revolver in each hand, he said, but that didn't prevent someone from clutching one of his hands. He said he thought Mr. Morgan attempted to stop him and that a scuffle followed. He became unconscious and remembered nothing until he was lodged in jail.

"I didn't want to hurt Mr. Morgan," Holt persisted in telling Commissioner Woods. "I only wanted him to do something to stop the terrible war."

Hopes Act Will Help.

Holt then told Commissoner Woods that he had tried to do what he thought was his duty and that he hoped his act would help to end the war.

"The man appears to be mentally unbalanced," said Commissioner Woods. "He has evidently brought himself to this very poor mental condition. He appears to be in a state of utter mental and physical collapse."

Holt stoutly protested that he had no accomplices. "I acted alone," he added. "I realize that I did a wrong thing, but that wrong was done to accomplish a great right."

Dr. Guy Cleighorn, the jail physician, was the only medical man to visit Holt today. "He is in an extremely bad mental and physical condition," said Dr. Cleighorn.

BERLIN NOW DENIES SINKING OF WARSHIP

Also Refuses to Admit Albatross Lowered Her Colors.

[Canadian Press.]

Berlin, via London, July 5.—The Russian report regarding the destruction of a vessel of the Deutschland class is untrue, according to a semi-official statement issued here. It also is denied that the mine-layer Albaatross lowered the German flag before running ashore on Swdish territory. The Russians are said to have fired 1,500 shots at the Albatross, of which only 25 were hits. An eyewitness of the naval battle asserts that nearly the entire stern of one Russian warship was shot away.

ITALIAN ROYAL FAMILY DIRECTS BIG LOTTERY

[Canadian Press.]

Paris, July 5.—Queen Helena of Italy directed the auction in Rome Saturday of tickets in the lottery for the benefit of the Red Cross Society, which took place in the great court of the royal stables at the Quirinal, says the Rome correspondent of the Havas Agency. The correspondent states that a vast crowd of the public was present as well as members of the royal family, and that a great number of tickets were sold, some of them at extraordinary prices, for the lottery, which contains 40,000 prizes.

Among those present, says the dispatch, were the young crown prince, the princesses Yeolando and Giovanna and other royal children. The prince sold postcards and the little princesses passed among the people with baskets filled with bouquets, buyers emptying the baskets many times. The Duke of Genoa (Prince Thomas of Savoy), lieutenant-general of Italy during the King's absence at the front, also was present.

BOAT CATCHES FIRE; PASSENGERS EXCITED

[Canadian Press.]

Chicago, July 5.—Life preservers were hastily adjusted to frightened women and children who formed the majority of the 2,000 passengers on the steamship Christopher Columbus, when the boat, bound for Chicago from Milwaukee, caught fire 30 miles off this port last night, according to reports of passengers today.

The first passenger to notice the fire, which was confined to a wall in the saloon, shouted "Fire!" The ship's officers had considerable difficulty in restoring order, it was declared. The blaze was quickly extinguished with a small loss.

GUNS MOW DOWN MASSED GERMANS

Enemy Tries To Regain Lost Ground in Sector North of Arras.

ATTACK ON LA HAYE

Enemy Makes Midnight Advance on Trenches After Violent Bombardment.

[Canadian Press.]

PARIS, July 4—For three days the Germans have been making renewed efforts to regain the ground lost north of Arras. Following the heavy cannonading of Friday, during which incendiary bombs were hurled into Arras, causing loss by fire, determined attempts were made by the enemy in close formation on Saturday on the French forces defending the Angres-Ablain road to the north of Arras. These, according to the official reports of the war office, were repulsed with severe loss to the Germans. All day Friday and Saturday there were heavy artillery actions along the greater part of the front. Today the engagements have been severe in the region of Nieuport and on the Steenstraete-Hetsas front.

A German battalion, the statement this afternoon adds, attempted to storm the village of Fey, five miles southwest of Pont-a-Mousson and the Moselle River, but were forced to retire after reaching the French wire entanglements.

Tonight's official communication is as follows:

"There have been quite spirited artillery actions in Belgium, in the region of Nieuport and on the Steenstraete-Hetas front, as well as in the sector to the north of Arras. On the right bank of the Aisne, in the neighborhood of Paissy, mining operations continue.

"In the Argonne engagements with hand grenades and hand torpedoes occurred, but no infantry action.

"On the heights of the Meuse and in the Vosges there has been merely cannonading."

Afternoon Report.

The text of the afternoon statement follows:

"In the region to the north of Arras the enemy last night attacked in close formation our positions along the hollow road from Angres to Ablain, which is to the north of the highway running between Aix Rouiette and Souchez. Our assailants were dispersed and driven back by the fire from the French barricade and from our machine guns and they suffered heavy losses.

All Night Cannonading.

"In the Argonne infantry fire and cannonading did not cease at all during the night. Along the road between Binarville and Vienne le Chateau, as far as Le Four de Paris, the only activity consisted of some local infantry engagements.

"In the region of La Fontaine there has been no change in the lines, either German or French.

"On the front at La Haye the Germans, following a very violent bombardment, endeavored to attack our trenches at about midnight.

"To the north of Regnieville the fire from our barricades prevented the forces of the enemy from spreading out.

"In front of Fey a battalion of the enemy which came as far as our wire entanglements was compelled to retire. A second attack at this place by half a battalion of German troops was no more successful."

Renewed Activity in Belgium.

Last night's official communication says:

"The day has been marked by renewed activity by the artillery of the enemy, particularly in Belgium, in the region of Neuville, Ecurie and Roclincourt and on the front from the Somme to the Aisne we have replied against the trenches and the batteries of the enemy.

"On the right bank of the Aisne, in the region of Soupir and Troyon, as well as in Champagne, on the Perthes-Beausejour front, mining operations have been carried out.

"In the Argonne the day has been calmer. The enemy, after the check suffered in his latest attempts, has made no further attacks with infantry.

"On the heights of the Meuse, at the Calonne trench and on the LaHaye front the cannonade continues. In the Vosges there have been artillery actions at Fontenelle and Hartsmanns Wellerkopf."

KELLY OBJECTS TO GIVING EVIDENCE

Has Asked Injunction To Prevent the Commission Forcing Him.

[Canadian Press.]

Winnipeg, July 5.—F. W. Simon will be called to the witness-stand when the Parliament Buildings commission meets today. In all probability his evidence will take more than a day to deliver, and when it is in, the commission may be asked to hear argument on the testimony received thus far. On behalf of Thomas Kelly, an application for an injunction is being filed with the court of King's bench, restraining the commission from compelling Kelly to give evidence.

"Until this point has been made the subject of a court ruling, Kelly will not be called, and as some delay in settling the matter is expected, the royal commission will probably make an interim report.

New York, July 5.—This city's official celebration of Independence Day today comprised an unusually varied list of events, ranging from ceremonies and speech-making in City Hall Park to patriotic exercises by scores of neighborhood organizations in different sections of the city and athletic contests.

Features of the afternoon and evening programs were the Americanization Day meeting in the Stadium of the College of the City of New York, where thousands of immigrants admitted to citizenship here within the last year were to be addressed by federal and state representatives, and numerous suffrage meetings and dancing fetes in the streets.

The Americanization Day celebration was a part of the general plan, approved by President Wilson, to hold similar meetings today throughout the country.

GEORGIA MOB OF 500 LYNCHES 3 NEGROES

Action Follows the Killing of Young White Farmer—Others Missing.

[Canadian Press.]

Macon, Ga., July 5.—Three negroes are known to have been shot to death by a mob last night near Round Oak and Wayside, two villages about thirty miles from here, and the authorities today began a search for others who are missing. The telephone wires leading to the villages were cut last night, and news of the lynchings did not become known here until early today when sheriffs' deputies arrived with three negroes, who are being held in connection with the killing of Silas Turner, a young farmer whose death precipitated the outbreak of race feeling.

Turner went yesterday to the home of W. H. King, a negro near Round Oak, to collect bill from one of several other negroes who were there. A dispute resulted, during which the former was shot with a pistol. The negroes then fled. Turner's body was found later by friends, who were searching for him. Plans were made to avenge his death and according to sheriff's deputies fully 500 persons composed the mob.

BODY FOUND WITH ITS ANKLES STRAPPED

Foul Play Suspected in Case of Man Picked Out of St. Lawrence.

[Canadian Press.]

Quebec, July 5.—The body of an unknown man was picked up floating in the River St. Lawrence at Cap Blanc on Saturday morning, and the fact that both legs were bound together at the ankles with a strong strap leads to the belief that the victim either committed suicide or was the victim of foul play.

An autopsy was held on the remains yesterday afternoon by Dr. Marois, who will report the result at the coroner's inquest this morning.

The man, who was old, had fair hair, no moustache or beard, was fairly well dressed with grey pants, laced tan shoes, white shirt with black bars, and was about five feet nine inches in height. On the buckle of the strap which bound the legs is the letter "A."

WHEN LONDON PAID TRIBUTE TO ITS DEAD: AN IMPRESSION OF THE ST. PAUL'S SERVICE

Britain's Great Heroes of the Past File in Review Before One Who Sat in Cathedral — National Life One of Travail, But One of Triumph Through Its Very Suffering.

BY FRANK BROWNE.

It was a few minutes after ten as I entered into the Cathedral and was shown to a seat to the left of the central aisle. Up to that time very few people were present, and for a space I watched the sun strike in varying colors on the stained windows in the nave, and the shadowed leaves chase each other across the glass. A restful quiet pervaded the whole, yet there was that expectant hush about the place that told of some impending happening. Here and there the attendants moved noiselessly in the performance of their duties; showing the early arrivals to their seats and handing out the forms of service. There was nothing outwardly to indicate the day, no sombre drapery, nor prevalence of purple; the Union Jack still wreathed the pulpit, as it had done from the beginning of the war; the regimental colors that stood before the lectern were visible beside the organ, and except that they were more numerous in quantity the floral decorations in the chancel were but little changed. It was the people that indicated a difference, and if one had to form an impression from these one would have said the day was to be festival in character.

Memories of Other Days.

I had glanced through the form of service, I knew its prototype, for many have been the times in which I with others have stood in St. Paul's and in Westminster Abbey in that city that is beyond the Atlantic on the national occasions when we have mourned our dead or paid tribute to their valor. It was today with a knowledge of these things that I took my stand in an unaccustomed place in a seat that corresponded with the position of the Wellington monument in St. Paul's. I almost fancied that its dark sombre shadow loomed before men in the ghostly flares of the lights, and above my head the roof melted away in that vast dome whose rich mural decorations lend intensity to its gloom. I know there is little in common between the two places, but it pleased me to invest this with the splendor of monuments and age that has made Wren's masterpiece a shrine of men to whom the empire means more than a name. Even the flags that hung a silence above the choir stalls served to carry on the deception; they are but four, but their story is the same as the flags that hang motionless in our oversea cathedrals.

Bands of Mourning.

It was nearing eleven before the people entered in appreciable numbers and soon, except for the seats reserved for the soldiers, the place speedily filled. Khaki-clad officers with black bands on their left arms; women, many wearing bands of purple, followed one another, till the white and gaily colored dresses of the women contrasted the more sober habiliment of the men, and made the whole a many-colored picture of exquisite beauty, but here and there the deep black of mourning was seen, a reminder of the need that had called these people to prayer.

As eleven o'clock struck the Seventh Regiment Band entered the church followed by the soldiers. The band taking up a position near the lectern, immediately in a reassuring minor key played "Let Us Have Peace." I had expected the Kieff Chant, that glorious funeral hymn of the Russian-Greek Church, that is rarely absent from a St. Paul's memorial service, but I think the simpler music was better suited to the hour. Meanwhile the doors to the left of the chancel having been thrown open, on its conclusion, the choir emerged in the processional hymn, "Brief Life Is Here Our Portion," which was speedily taken up by the congregation, who in the triumph of its last lines voiced an aspiration that was anything but a peace to the satirical Bernard of Cluny, its author.

A Chant of Sorrow.

And then followed the opening passages of the burial service, "I am the resurrection and the life," followed by the Psalms appointed for the day. All were chanted in a minor key, the De Profundis being sung to the heart-stricken penitential chant that has so long been associated with the Miserere, a chant that has the sound of slow-paced feet and muffled drums.

Following the lesson the hymn, "The Saints of God Their Conflict Past," was sung, and next the suffrages, collects and prayers for us and for the enemy followed, and next the third hymn, "Let Saints on Earth in Concert Sing." As this closed Canon Tucker ascended into the pulpit, and chose as his text "The cup that my father has given me, shall I not drink it?" In the course of his sermon he brought home to us the cost of empire; its central theme the suffering and sacrifice that has been ours, that must be ours till the end. Suffering, sacrifice and death! Our English hearts beat quicker as the beloved names of an old dead fell upon our ears. It was befitting that dealing with Canada, and speaking in Canada, Sir Humphrey Gilbert's should have been the first name to be uttered. Who of us to whom history is a vital thing, a reality as is flesh and blood, failed to recall that storm-tossed night off Newfoundland and those struggling barks, and when the hungry seas engulfed its light those on the Hind heard his hail, "We are as near heaven by sea as by land." That was in 1584. As name after name fell from his lips we remembered. Think of them—Hudson, Frobisher, Franklin, Gordon and Scott! Can any nation show us a brighter galaxy than these?

Upward Through Suffering.

Our national life in sooth has been one of travail, but it has also been one of triumph. I have heard Canon Tucker in many national sermons. He has striven to teach the people much, but could he not strive to teach them more? Let him teach them that this England and these oversea Britains of which Canada is part, is the one nation that is privileged to bear the Lion of Judah and the Unicorn of Syria on its arms. What can it mean other than the transmission of the power that has made us great and shall continue to make us great to the end of time.

After the sermon the choir sang Tennyson's "Crossing the Bar." This was one of the sweetly opposite features of the service, breathing forth that larger empire spirit that received such a masterly treatment in his sermon. Perhaps its hold upon the imagination of the people may be due to its having been penned by the great singer of the awakening forces of the Victorian period; or it may be, knowing the circumstances under which it was penned, and the occasion on which it was first sung the people remember it as an eloquent voicing of the empire's dead, who slip out into the beyond as noiselessly as in the dusk of a southern night the little fishing boats slip out to sea.

A Tribute of the Heart.

After Ellerton's "Now the Laborer's Task Is O'er," a hymn that more than any other in England is sung at the edge of the open grave, the people stood while the Dead March in Saul wailed its regret to the beat of muffled drum. The Last Post sounded with its "Are You There?" and "O, Canada," and the National Anthem crashed as a voluntary of sound, and as the retiring hymn, "O God, Our Help in Ages Past" rolled from a supplicant people, Canada had paid its tribute to its dead!

ST. MARYS, July 4.—At the regular public school board meeting the secretary presented several communications. Miss S. C. Shier, Kirkton, asked for an appointment on the teaching staff when a vacancy occurs. C. M. Gibbon of the C.P.R. wrote that he had donated three large scenic pictures, framed, for the Central School. Inspector W. Irwin of Stratford presented his report, showing total pupils' attendance, 525; average, 471.

The finance committee reported the following expenditure: Miss Taylor, supply teacher, $9; Miss Standeaven as supply teacher, $11; Cline & Burt, supplies and repairs, $2.25; H. E. Illingworth, music, 90 cents; Ira Gleason, freight, 25 cents; Laso Manufacturing Company, dust layer and sprayer, $35.40; Wm. Andrews, repairs to clock, $1.50; A. Willard, supplies, $4.15; St. Marys Hardware Company, supplies, $14.57. Total, $78.52.

Principal D. G. Anderson presented his May and June reports of attendance. For June, on roll, 514. Average, 430. Last year on roll, 471. Average, 411.

Principal Anderson stated that the prevalence of German measles had caused a smaller attendance. He was anxious for some donations towards furnishing the teachers' room. Any gifts of pictures, curios, minerals, woods, etc., would be welcomed. The gift of a clock from Trustee Gregory was much appreciated.

The finance committee recommended that the salaries for the coming year be the same as those of last year excepting in the case of Miss Parkinson, who should be paid $525, and Miss Sparks, who should be paid $500.

H. E. Illingworth was re-engaged as musical instructor for the coming year at the same salary. The fuel committee was instructed to receive tenders for supply of coal for the west ward school.

The building and property committee was instructed to proceed with the levelling of the Central School grounds and the building of the sidewalks.

ITALIANS GRATIFIED WITH THEIR OPERATIONS

Public Warned Not To Expect Too Rapid Progress.

MILAN, via Paris, July 4.—2:20 p.m. —The Italian operations against the Austrian fortifications at Malborgeth and Predil Pass have produced encouraging results, but in view of the formidable difficulties of bringing up heavy artillery in this mountain region the Italian press warns the public not to expect too rapid progress.

In some cases it has been necessary to construct entirely new roads up the mountains and the guns that can be brought into action there necessarily are less powerful than the permanent Austrian batteries which have been installed at leisure on concrete foundations.

Most of the Austrian batteries are protected by domes having a six-inch steel armor.

MORGANS HANDLED CONTRACTS WORTH HALF A BILLION

Most of Purchases for the British Government.

FEWER ORDERS FILLED

Most of the Munitions Have Yet to Go Forward to Europe.

NEW YORK, July 4.—In explanation of the part the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co. has taken in the furnishing of war munitions and supplies for the European nations at war, it was stated authoritatively here tonight that the firm had handled contracts amounting to more than $500,000,000 for the account of foreign Governments since the war began.

Of this amount, about $400,000,000 worth has been purchased for the British Government since the Morgan firm was appointed as agents for that Government in this country, and $50,000,000 worth for the French Government contracted for within the last month, the Morgan firm having been appointed by the French Government to act in the same capacity as it does for the British Government. About $150,000,000 worth of war supplies were purchased for the British Government in this country during the early months of the war, which the Morgan firm had placed in part.

Only a Small Part Forwarded.

About one-half of the total amount contracted for in this country represents contracts for munitions, shells, powder and the like, but of the whole amount of ammunition contracted for, only a small part, it was stated, had been forwarded to the purchasers. The remainder is now being manufactured.

The Morgan firm's commissions for placing the contracts was said to be on a sliding scale, which began at 2 per cent and decreased in proportion to the magnitude of the contracts. All of the contracts, it was understood, had been placed with firms in the United States. The Morgan firm, it was stated, had not given any contracts to firms in which it was interested.

It was explained that of the total of $450,000,000 worth of war supplies contracted for by the Morgan firm, that only a small proportion had been paid, although advances have been made to some firms. This explanation was given to correct the impression that the large purchases of war supplies had been responsible for fluctuations in foreign exchange.

CUTWORM DAMAGES SOUTH LAMBTON CROPS

Alfalfa Will Make Up for Hay's Deficiency—Wheat Looks Good.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

PETROLEA, July 4.—G. G. Brumhill is optimistic over the crops of Lambton, in spite of the inclement weather, which, he admits, has made the general fruit outlook rather disappointing. During the past week considerable welcome rain has insured a good corn crop, which is one of the district's chief products. The grains will also be good with favorable weather, although the drought and cold affected the size of the head of the wheat. The hay is short but he is enthusiastic over the alfalfa, which is going to tide the country over the stress of the lack of other fodder.

The early vegetables were also slightly damaged by frost, but there ought to be a good crop. The cutworm is especially bad this year, especially in the southern part of Lambton, but a successful fight is being waged against it.

MONTREAL WANTS ROYAL COMMISSION

Demand Made For an Inquiry Into Charge Made Against Hebert.

[Canadian Press.]

Montreal, July 5.—A demand is being made for a royal commission to inquire into the charge which has been made here that Controller Napoleon Hebert asked for $200,000 for his vote on the tramways franchise extension proposals. The board of control adopted the proposals.

A letter from the controller containing his alleged request was published and Mayor Martin says: "Hebert does not deny the letter, but it was a trap."

Another Letter.

This morning the Mail prints a letter from Controller Hebert to Controller MacDonald, in which the former is alleged to promise support to a franchise policy different to that for which he voted and which the controllers accepted.

Controller MacDonald issued the following statement today to introduce the alleged letter of Controller Hebert to him:

MacDonald's Statement.

"Controller Hebert has stated that a high personage went to his office on Wednesday morning last to threaten him and to try to force him to vote against his conscience on the tramways question. It is rumored that I am the person referred to. I want to say that I went to Mr. Hebert's office on Wednesday morning to request Mr. Hebert to respect his solemn promises made to me."

The application for a permanent injunction to restrain the city council from acting on the controller's franchise report will be heard by Judge Archibald tomorrow.

SUPPOSED GUELPH MAN IN TROUBLE

George Baines, Arrested in Detroit, Says He Is British Agent.

Detroit, July 5.—Men who recently have been associated with George Baines declare he would be a winner with any hostess upon whom he might drop in for afternoon tea.

Baines writes "Guelph, Ont.," after his name on hotel registers. Like many others, he makes his living by talking—it is alleged.

Among those who "recently have been associated" with the loquacious one are A. H. Zenner, of the Lafayette boulevard, and A. E. Rouech, manager of the Walsh Disinfecting Company, 800 Grand River avenue.

Both have told their troubles to policemen

King George Forgot a Friend.

Garrulous George, Mr. Zenner and Mr. Rouech declare, talked to them—he talked the disinfecting business in 300-barrel lots and at prices that would mean about $1,000 profit to the seller.

Baines, self-alleged representative of the British Government, empowered to make large purchases of disinfectant and roofing, was not required to produce credentials. That, in fact, is where much of his chatter came in—he talked around the point.

Baines' conversational achievements are credited with having enabled him to dine at exclusively downtown cafes and with having been the means of his borrowing money when King George, as Baines is alleged to have explained, failed to send a regular remittance promptly.

Rude Police Seize Him.

In addition to assuming responsibility that devolves on someone every time a waiter brings a check — and this several times—Mr. Rouech and Mr. Zenner, they told the police, contributed $3 and $5 in cash loans, respectively.

Mr. Zenner said the entertainment afforded him by the talkative Baines was worth the disbursement, but Mr. Rouech said he preferred the kind of talking that is done by money, and—

Baines was arrested at the Morgan House Sunday morning, after detectives had searched for him three weeks. In roofing business, too.

Detectives say he admits living pleasantly in Detroit for two months and getting about $100 in small amounts from businessmen he has entertained with his conversation. Baines told the police he had obtained $25 from a broker's representative in the Ford building, and $10 from a representative of Detroit roofers. He also told them they had interrupted a deal with still another roofing company.

STRATHROY, July 4. — The annual church service of the L. O. L., No. 547, was held this evening, when more than 100 members marched from their hall to St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. Rev. Mr. Shaver, the pastor, delivered a stirring address, in which he dwelt on the work of the order and its progress. Following the service, a vote of thanks was passed to the pastor. Next Sunday the members of the order will attend divine worship in Mount Brydges.

ODDFELLOWS PAY TRIBUTE TO DEAD

March To Cemetery and Decorate Graves of Local Comrades.

ST. THOMAS CANTON HERE

Impressive Ceremony At Mt. Pleasant Yesterday of I. O. O. F.

Oddfellows from every lodge in the city to the number of between five and six hundred, together with the members of the lady Rebekah lodges and St. Thomas Canton, which was invited to attend, yesterday honored the memory of the dead local members of the order by a memorial service in Mount Pleasant Cemetery and by decorating with flowers the graves of those buried there.

The procession to the cemetery was headed by the band of the 7th Regiment, which volunteered its services for the occasion. Behind it marched the members of the visiting canton and No. 1 Canton of the city, all in full uniform, and behind them came the subordinate local lodges. The lady Rebekahs were accommodated in carriages.

At the cemetery the ceremony, which was under the auspices of Canton No. 1, consisted of marching completely around the burial place, the band meanwhile playing the dead march. On arrival at the entrance gates at the completion of the parade, the special service, somewhat similar to the church burial service, which is prescribed by the order for such occasions, was read by Capt. Shaw of Canton No. 1, after which the members divided to decorate the graves. A splendid address, in which he reviewed the history of the order from its inception, and during which he spoke in glowing terms of the patriotism of those Oddfellows who have offered their services and lives in the Empire's cause, was given by ex-Mayor Clarence T. Campbell, past grand sire.

EFFICIENCY VACATION.

One of the latest and best plans is what is commonly referred to as the Efficiency Vacation, and is being tried this summer by E. W. Gillett Company of Toronto. Under the plan in question, all factory and office employees will have a two weeks' vacation at the same time. In a large business, a lot of very careful planning is necessary in order to have the scheme work out satisfactorily, but it is expected the result will be better than under the regular plan which meant that probably two or three people would be away every week during the entire summer.

BRITAIN SAVED FOREIGN MISSIONS

Missionary Throws New Light On Titanic Struggle Now Raging.

INDIA IS LOYAL TO FLAG

Remembers England's Just Treatment and Answers Call With Thousands.

"I tremble to think what the result to the foreign missions of the British Empire would have been had the decision of Great Britain been different the end of last July and beginning of August," said Rev. Mr. Wilson, a missionary who has just returned from Mhow, Central India, when he gave a most statesman-like presentation of the question: "What Is the Effect of the War On Foreign Missions?" before a large congregation in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church at the morning service yesterday.

"Had Great Britain been unfaithful to her pledge and failed to stand for righteousness and justice, it would have cut the ground from beneath the feet of the missionaries of the various societies throughout the Empire," he continued, adding, "In India, as in Canada, the question is asked: 'Is it not dreadful for two nations that have taken the lead in missionary enterprise to be locked in such strife?' The shallow-minded in India, as well as in Canada, wonder how a Christian nation like the British nation can engage in such strife. Those who consider things more deeply realize that the Gospel of Jesus Christ is not only a gospel of peace, but a gospel also of justice, integrity and truth. It is because Britain has stood in the great war crisis for these principles of righteousness, justice and truth that she is trusted and honored today in India."

India Is Loyal.

Referring to charges of disloyalty that had been heard against India, Mr. Wilson admitted that in the past there had been disquieting rumors, but the war had proved these to be the scum and froth that had come to the surface. Beneath flowed a strong, deep current of loyalty. Had there been disloyalty, it would first have asserted itself in the semi or almost entirely independent Indian states, in which the missionary work of the Canadian Presbyterian Church is almost entirely carried on. Instead, these states were among the first to answer the Empire's call for support. The princes gave of their armies, their money, their jewels and even themselves for service.

The promptness of India to respond was attributed in a large measure to the sympathetic administration and treatment received from England for years past. India realized the first aim of England was not to exploit the country, but to develop its resources and care wisely for its people. The visit of the King and Queen some years ago strengthened the relationship of the people of India to the Empire in a manner difficult for a democratic western nation to understand. The citizens of India have been accustomed to look up to their rulers as representing the state. The fact that the King should have come so far and at such great personal risk to visit his Indian subjects profoundly impressed and touched them and made the throne seem so much nearer. Unrest had doubtless been often, due to the remoteness of the throne and the extent of the intervening red tape of officialdom. The King had himself come and lived and worshipped with his people in India, hence the awakened feeling of relationship.

War Brings Change.

One effect of the war in India has been the evident growth of a comradeship between Christians and non-Christians in the army. This Mr. Wilson noted in visiting three members of the Mohammedan Church in the ranks previous to their leaving with their regiment. The Christian native has in the past been looked down upon by the non-Christian. The moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church of India, a prince, who relinquished his throne to become a Christian, has given his son to the cause.

A passing reference was made to the scorn which Canadian missionaries have been called upon to endure in India, owing to the treatment meted out to natives of India in this country. He was not prepared to discuss the question, nor did he fully understand all its phases, but he did believe after the war, in which Canadians and soldiers of the Indian Empire are fighting shoulder to shoulder, such questions will require to be settled, not on the basis of color or color prejudice, but on the basis of brotherhood.

One lesson the war has taught the missionaries is the need of commending the unfailing Christ more, and the benefits of Christian civilization less, to the Christless people in foreign lands. Another lesson is the great necessity for faithfulness on the part of Christian people in regard to foreign missionary enterprise. The fact was recalled that three-quarters of the missionary societies of the British Empire were founded during the twenty years of the Napoleonic wars, when war taxes were comparatively much higher than now, food twice or three times as dear, and industrial conditions entirely disorganized. In Ireland, where the recruiting has been heaviest, the Presbyterian General Assembly, at the recent meeting, reported supplies for foreign missions equal to those of a year ago, and the general assembly convening in London, England, had a similar report.

St. Andrew's congregation was especially interested in having Mr. Wilson, owing to the fact that it furnishes almost entire support for Rev. Mr. Lyons, who arrived in Mhow just before Mr. Wilson left.

WRITERS AT CONGRESS.

[Canadian Press.]

San Francisco, July 5.—Newspapermen from all parts of the world are here today for the International Press Congress, which will assemble at the Panama-Pacific Exposition and continue until July 10. Walter Williams, dean of the school of journalism of the University of Missouri, is in charge of arrangements. Vergilio Redriguez Betata, editor of El Diario De Centro America of Guatemala, has been named honorary vice-president of the congress.

THREE PASTORS IN NEW PULPITS

Three Methodist Congregations Have Changed Ministers.

ALL MAKE IMPRESSION

Rev. Dr. Dougall, Rev. F. L. Barber and Rev. H. B. Moyer Heard.

The pastorates of three new Methodist ministers were inaugurated in London yesterday, the occasion being of greatest interest to the three congregations that attended both morning and evening services in large numbers.

South London Hears Dr. Dougall.

Eloquent, and possessing much magnetism, Rev. Dr. Dougall held the close attention of his audiences in Askin Street Methodist Church, his sermons proving not only interesting, but convincing and logical as well.

"The Making of a Man" was his morning theme and vividly told of the creation of the world and of man in a sinless state. Turning to the second part of the subject, the preacher emphasized that Christ came into the world to restore man to the sinlessness of his condition before the fall, in other words, "for the renewing of the whole man in Christ Jesus." Sin was declared to be an abnormal condition, and the natural one for man a condition of purity and righteousness.

At both morning and evening services, excellent music was rendered by the choir, under the direction of E. W. G. Quantz and the soloists, Misses Rennie and Vivian. In the morning, "How Beautiful Are the Messengers" from Mendelssohn's "St. Paul" was the offertory anthem and in the evening, "I Bring You Good Tidings" (Maunder). Dr. Dougall announced that he will preach his real inaugural sermon next Sunday morning.

Colborne Street Methodist Church.

Rev. F. Louis Barber, M.A., Ph.D., created a most favorable impression upon his first appearance at the morning service in Colborne Street Church. The subject chosen for the inaugural sermon was "The Hope of the Soul" and a spirit of optimism characterized the discourse, striking an encouraging keynote for the ministry of the next three years. Miss Irene Straitch and Fred Dowling were the morning soloists, while in the evening, the singing of Ed Webster was much appreciated.

Rev. H. B. Moyer at Hyatt Avenue.

Members of the congregation of Hyatt Avenue Methodist Church had the pleasure of making the acquaintance of their new pastor, Rev. H. B. Moyer, and listening with deepest interest to two well prepared and well delivered sermons. In the morning, Mr. Moyer preached on "The Apostolic Benediction" and in the evening he discussed the subject "Working Together With God," or "God's Fellow-Workers." He pointed out that all that is accomplished by man is through co-operation with God. God created and fixed laws for the physical universe. Man discovering these laws has named the discovery science. In intellectual development, in social evolution, in the spiritual realm, the same rules apply. God creates and endows with power. The responsibility rests on man to use this power to God's glory and thus become a fellow-worker with God. In the afternoon, Mr. Moyer addressed the Sunday School very briefly. Special music was provided by the choir, under the direction of Mr. Adams.

CLOGGED DRAINPIPE NEARLY FLOODS STORE

A clogged drain pipe on the roof of the building caused a tremendous volume of water to pour down into the jewelry store of John S. Barnard on Dundas street during the heavy storm of last night. One of Mr. Barnard's sons and "Danny" Bowen were in the store at the time. Suddenly the water burst through the metallic ceiling, and, with a roar like a cataract, commenced to flood the place. The young men hastily cleared the space under the shower and tried to stop the flow, but without avail. Mr. Barnard was telephoned to and an effort made to locate the source of the trouble. The water was running down an overflow pipe into the establishment of A. Finley on the second floor. From here it was pouring into the Barnard store. Most of the stream was checked before the rain stopped, but the water that entered the Barnard store will cause damage to the txtent of $25 or $50.

CAMLACHIE MAN IS BEATEN AND ROBBED ON PETROLEA STREET

James Holling Lies Seriously Injured in Sarnia Hospital.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

CAMLACHE, July 4. — In response to alarming news from the Sarnia Hospital officials, Mrs. Holling rushed to that city yesterday. Her son, James, is lying in the Sarnia Hospital seriously injured through being beaten by thugs in Petrolea on the eve of Dominion Day. At about 10 o'clock he was attacked from behind as he was turning into Main street. When he came to, early next morning his money was gone.

He crawled to the home of a relative, and medical aid was summoned, and the next day he was sent to Sarnia Hospital. He is seriously hurt, the wound in his head having to have seven stitches in.

YOUTH DROWNED; CHUMS HELPLESS

Charles Kemp, 16, Loses Life in Water of Swimming Tank.

PULMOTOR IS USELESS

Lung-Pump Fails to Revive Him—Was Sliding Into Plunge.

While a dozen youthful companions rushed frantically about in a vain effort to save him, Charles Edwin Kemp, aged sixteen, son of William Kemp, 894 Princess avenue, was drowned in the big cement swimming tank at the London Mineral Baths establishment on Thames street about 6 o'clock Saturday night.

The pulmotor, which was rushed to the spot, failed to revive him. No inquest will be held.

Kemp was only in the water about five minutes. According to Coroner Dr. A. MacLaren, who has charge of the case, death was partly due to heart failure. When pulled from the water the young man's hands and ears were livid. He appeared to have been strangled, bearing out the theory that death was not alone due to drowning.

Sliding Down Incline.

With a number of his chums young Kemp was sliding down a steep incline into six feet of water. It was stated that he was an indifferent swimmer and that he was depending on the momentum of the dive to carry him to a side of the tank where he could pull himself out.

Dr. MacLaren stated that he believed Kemp had opened his mouth and drew in a breath as he struck the water. The lad came to the surface sputtering and calling for help. His companions were not of sufficient strength to be of service and several minutes had elapsed before W. Gould, the proprietor, and a negro attendant arrived with ropes. By that time the young man had gone down for the third time.

Pulmotor Useless.

A call was sent in to fire headquarters for the pulmotor and Dr. Shoebotham was also summoned. Fire Chief Aitken and Fireman Tozer responded, but although they made a quick run to the scene in the chief's car, the apparatus failed to restore consciousness in the still body. Coroner Ferguson arrived shortly after and pronounced the boy dead.

It was thought at first that Kemp had struck his head on the cement bottom of the tank. There were marks on his chin and chest when he was taken from the water. Coroner MacLaren, however, declared that these were caused by the grappling hooks.

The body was lying face downward in six feet of water about ten feet east of the west end of the plunge when the firemen arrived.

Young Kemp was employed as an electrician with the People's Electric Company.

Coroner MacLaren presented the facts of the drowning to Crown Attorney J. B. McKillop Saturday night, and it was decided that no inquest was necessary.

Voice of the People

City Employees and City Residence.

To the Editor of The Advertiser:

I see a reference made in your paper concerning Superintendent Dodd defending William Bibbings of the garbage stables. As your reporter was not present at the time, you are probably not aware how this came about.

Some short time ago Mr. Dodd discharged one George Loney, a resident of this city for over 30 years, and a taxpayer, just because he slept in the township. Mr. Loney came to me and told me of his discharge. I took the matter up at a special meeting of the council, and proved that Loney was a taxpayer and also assessed for the Wharncliffe road pavement. At the next meeting of No. 3 committee I made a charge that William Bibbings, the garbage stableman, was neither a resident of the city nor a taxpayer, and that his place should be filled by a resident or at least a taxpayer. Mr. Dodd stated emphatically that Mr. Boss had requested Bibbings to move into the township in order to be near the stables when he worked for him. This Mr. Boss justly denies, but says he asked Bibbings to move nearer to the stables from West London. Mr. Dodd knew that Bibbings lived in the township when he discharged Loney. His worship the mayor preferred to leave it with Mr. Dodd to require Bibbings to move into the city. I have agreed with his worship in a great many things, but I certainly disagree with him in this case, to allow Bibbings to move into the city in order to hold his job, as he is not even a taxpayer, whilst there are scores of good taxpayers in the city who could fill the job of Bibbings' much better than he does. I have heard considerable complaint about Bibbings around the stables, and think a change might be healthy.

Yours truly, W. A. WILSON.

Ministers on the Muncey Reserve.

To the Editor of The Advertiser:

Allow me a small space in your daily to tell a few facts as to Indian work on the missions. I read in your paper of June 7, when the London Conference assembled at St. Marys, that the stationing committee brought in a recommendation that a forward movement in relation to the Indian missionary work on the reserves should be inaugurated, and the Methodist board of missions be memorialized to that effect.

Rev. G. N. Hazen, the mover, said in part, a great work could be done, if only more interest were aroused (I understand to mean in the Indians). It ought to have been said if the missionaries take a whole-hearted interest in these fields of labor. Let me cite one fact sadly neglected, the pastoral work. Very recently an ex-chief and a church worker in a nearby reserve visited us. I asked: "Does your missionary do pastoral work?" and the answer was, "No." It is sadly neglected, seemingly, and no one cares. Well, the Indian sees this, and we do not like to say our mind. It's below their dignity to visit us. Rather strong language, you say. Well, you can lump it—it's a fact.

If we saw the missionary oftener at our humble wigwams, if he would read the Bible and pray with us, would it not put greater interest in us, and thereby raise us to a high spiritual standard? It surely would.

I see that this reverend of Indian descent, Wells, spoke very convincingly on the question. He said in part that the reserves should be broken up. Well, Bro. Wells, you come on the mission work here and show us how; but mind you, we don't want a lip love, but we do want to see life love.

Then it is recommended that regular old-time Methodist revivals be held. Just the thing. Let them be held, and the old-time soul-stirring hymns be sung—not the song old Old Black Joe. Now, Mr. Editor, I have taken too much time already, and I trust no one will say fault-finder, but a simple statement of facts.

Attacking "Drugless Healing."

To the Editor of The Advertiser:

In your paper the osteopathic and chiropractic profession has been monstrously attacked, the profession maligned, and the superb work of these professions grossly misrepresented by some members of the allopathic, or drug school of medicine. During the past number of years drugless healing has come into prominence through its remarkable efficacy in curing and alleviating human ills without drugs, and largely repudiating the necessity of surgery, and owing to the sound success and the fact that the people are more and more placing themselves in the hands of drugless practitioners and continually being cured or greatly benefited, this has aroused the ire of some physicians.

This is much to be regretted, because even the families of many allopaths have been cured of their ills after, of course, exhausting the field of drugs, and the fact of the leading members of all the professions and their families have been treated, are being treated and will be treated, proves the merit and excellence of drugless and non-surgical methods, abusing maliciously a system of healing which by its record of curative powers is, of course, weak and foolish.

For the allopathic profession to presume to imagine that the great intelligent public are fools, requiring guardianship, is insulting, and the learned public will resent the implication of lunacy.

I am glad to say many physicians of high and liberal standing soundly indorse drugless healing, and to these gentlemen of culture, ability and nobility this attack on drugless healing will be regretted.

In regard to our education and general ability, the thoughtful public are our judges. I do not believe in inculcating the hatred idea, rather the gentle, brotherly love principle. We have witnessed in other fields the result of fostering dogmatism and hatred. We should strive for mutuality and friendliness. I earnestly state: let the members of the allopathic profession who interminably wish to exterminate us find out the real good we have done. By so doing, they will in time heartily indorse our work.

R. C. BARKLIE, D.O., D.C.

Editor's Note.—The "attack" referred to by our correspondent was contained in the report of a meeting of the Ontario Medical Council held in Toronto on July 1.

CROP SITUATION IS FULL OF PARADOXES

Fields On Same Farms of Both Good and Bad Variety.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

EAST WILLIAMS, July 4.—The crop situation is one of the strangest ever seen in this district. Some fields of grain could scarcely be improved upon, while others are a failure. Two fields of flax on B. A. Stirton's farm are a sample. One is as fine as could be wished for, while the other, which is on muck soil, will yield an indifferent crop.

Murdock McLennan has a fine field of barley with fine purple bloom on it that denotes the healthy crop and some measures five feet, four inches. He has also a crop of wheat on the same farm which measures five feet six inches in length. Other fields on good farms are a failure.

Some of the wheat did not head owing to the frost, while others that did head had the grain killed by the frost and a great deal of the latter are being cut for feed.

Oats are an even crop and with tonight's rain should yield well.

Clover is a short crop, in many fields not being six inches long.

Some timothy fields are fair, but none are good.

Some corn is fair, while some had to be replanted or the gaps filled in with the hand seeder.

Millet is a failure so far. All that was sown early had to be cultivated up and resown. Never in the history of East Williams has there been such a cold spring and summer. Ever since the snow went none of the showers were heavy enough to reach the depth of the plough furrow and some only wet the earth about two inches. Very few districts could show such good grass and general crops on such a small rainfall. This is where East Williams shines.

The root crop is uncertain. Alsike for seed will be good if it can be got, but much of it headed out too or three inches from the ground and therefore will be missed by the mower.

MEXICAN GENERALS STILL HELD IN JAIL

Huerta and Friends Have Not Found Bondsmen—Orozco Over Line.

[Canadian Press.]

El Paso, Texas, July 5.—Gen. Victoriano Huerta and the three former Mexican generals and two members of his personal staff arrested here Saturday on charges of conspiracy to violate the neutrality laws, remained in jail here last night. Apparently no effort was made to provide bond for their release. Huerta and his attorneys conferred at the jail, but no one else was permitted to see him. It was understood an effort will be made to get bonds for the men Tuesday.

Different Views.

Whether the developments of the last week meant the abandonment of a new revolutionary movement has created a division of opinion, even among those characterized as Huerta's adherents. Certain persons close to Huerta are quoted as saying that his arrest has merely delayed action, but others equally close have said that any organized movement has been indefinitely postponed.

Orozco Gets Away.

That Pasqual Orozco, who escaped from his guards Saturday, has succeeded in getting across the international boundary is conceded by almost all of the American authorities, and only a half-hearted search was conducted on this side today. He is reported to have joined asmall party of his followers east of Juarez, and from his camp across the river to have summoned his partisans to join him in an attempt to wrest Juarez from Villa.

It is known that a considerable quantity of ammnition and guns have been smuggled across the line, but not nearly enough to justify the inauguration of a serious campaign.

"CANADA" TO BE CAPABLE OF TREMENDOUS SPEED

New Biplane Will Have 320 Horsepower —Will Break 65-miles-an-hour Record of "America."

TORONTO, July 4.—Glen H. Curtiss, the noted flying man and flying machine builder, reached Toronto last night and will spend a day or two here.

Mr. Curtiss gave further particulars of the giant biplane "Canada," which is being built in Toronto for the British Government and of which he is the designer. The biplane will be of 320 horsepower, to be supplied by two engines of 160 horsepower. Her prototype, the flying boat "America," only carried two 100 horsepower motors, which, however, enabled her to make a speed of 65 miles an hour with a load of 1,200 pounds, whether it be guns, bombs or ammunition. The "Canada" will have a wing sweep of about 75 feet, as compared with 72 feet in the "America." There is every probability that Britain will soon posses a fleet of "Canadas" built in Toronto.

FLEW GERMAN EAGLE OVER STARS AND BARS

Detroit German Shoemaker Has To Be Suppressed by Police.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

DETROIT, July 4. — It was found necessary to call out a squad of policemen this afternoon to protect Herman Klenk, an old German shoemaker, living on Chestnut street, who persisted in floating a German flag above the Stars and Stripes. At first Klenk absolutely refused to lower the Kaiser's rag, but he finally decided to take down both flags. For half an hour a crowd threw missiles at his house, and he only gave in when his property was threatened.

RUSSIANS CAPTURE MANY AUSTRIANS

Whole Battalions Taken Prisoners By the Czar's Troops.

TURN TO OFFENSIVE

Desperate Engagements Between Vistula River and the Bug.

PETROGRAD, July 4. — The following was issued tonight by the war office:

"In the Shavli region, west of the Niemen, there has been a recurrence of fighting. In the Edvabno region a fierce mining conflict is progressing. Near the village of Kutche we captured a gallery of mines in which were 900 pounds of dynamite. We also successfully exploded mines prepared by us.

"On the Bzura, near the village of Sukha, we repulsed an attempted advance by the enemy against our trenches. In the direction of Radom we took the offensive on Tuesday and Wednesday nights and captured several trenches and several Austrian battalions.

"Between the Vistula and the Bug there have been desperate engagements. The enemy's offensive on the Wysnica River was successfully stopped. The enemy concentrated his principal effort to the east of Krasnik, in the direction of Lykhav, where we repulsed the attacks, although the final result of the fighting is not yet known.

"The enemy also attempted an advance towards Zamosc and Krasastva, where the fighting was desperate, especially where the Volitza flows into the Vieprz, on the line of villages including Tarjimeklir, and Stryeff. The enemy sustained heavy losses.

"Tarjimeklir, which the enemy captured Friday evening, again passed into our hands at dawn on Saturday. After holding up the Austro-German advance on the Gnlia Lipa we fell back to Zlota Lipa.

"There has been no change in the Dniester."

AUSTRIAN REPORT.

VIENNA, July 4. — (Via Amsterdam to London, July 5.—2:15 a.m.)—The following official Austrian statement regarding the progress of hostilities was given out here tonight:

"In the Russian theatre the enemy, who yesterday offered strong resistance in East Galicia, between Narajow and the Zlota Lipa River, and further north were attacked by Teutonic allied troops, and after long hours of fighting were repulsed along the entire front. We captured three thousand prisoners and took several machine guns. In the district of Przemysl and Gliniany the enemy is retreating towards the east. On the Bug River the situation is unchanged.

"In Russian Poland there has been heavy fighting in several sectors of the front, the Russians attacking strongly, but all the Russian attempts failed, one of our corps repulsing five attacks. Fighting continues for the brook, Wysnica. On both sides of Studzianki we penetrated the main position of the enemy on a front of several kilometres, capturing a thousand prisoners and three guns, while the enemy suffered heavy losses. The heights north of Krasnik were taken after severe fighting."
