U. S. DOLLAR IS DISCOUNTED IN CANADA BANKS

General Prosperity Is Put Down as Cause by Banking Officials.

NOT FORCED BELOW PAR

Exchange Brokers Refute the Argument That Market Was Engineered.

Montreal, Sept. 7.—The United States dollar is being quoted at a discount of one-quarter of one per cent here today. This is the first time in seven years the United States dollar has sold for less than par here.

It is said in financial circles that on very large amounts, say $200,000, one-half of one per cent discount will be demanded here.

Various reasons are offered as the cause of the discount, but the one which is mostly justified, according to banking officials and financiers, is general prosperity in Canada. It was thought that the market had been engineered and the American dollar forced below par, but this is refuted by exchange brokers as being an impossibility owing to the strength of the American banks. It is also said the new American tariff might have had something to do with the exchange.

The present grain movements and huge tourist traffic to Quebec and Ontario have a bearing on the fluctuation of the American exchange, as also has the Canadian borrowing in New York.

CHARGED 2 PER CENT.
Fredericton, N. B., Sept. 7.—American motorists arrived here recently reported that they were charged 2 per cent discount on U. S. funds in Nova Scotia and eastern New Brunswick points, and were surprised when local garages and merchants here accepted American money at par for purchases of gasoline, oil, etc.

NEW YORK SURPRISED.
New York, Sept. 7.—Reports that the United States dollar was quoted at a discount in Montreal today were received with surprise by officials of New York branches of Canadian banks.

At the exchange departments of the Bank of Montreal and Bank of Commerce it was said that hourly reports were received of the standing of United States funds in Montreal, and that latest reports were that the United States dollar was being sold in Canada at a premium of 1-8 of one per cent, the highest in several weeks.

FRANCE AND GERMANY PLAN RECONSTRUCTION
Paris, Sept. 7.—Senator de Lubersac, explaining in Le Journal his arrangement with Hugo Stinnes, German financier for reconstruction work in the former battle zones, said it was thought best to make as much use as possible of German labor. The effect of having too many German workers in the devastated regions, however, was feared, and by the arrangement adopted the greater part of that labor will be utilized in Germany.

TASCHEREAU SPEAKS.
Quebec, Sept. 7.—Premier Taschereau, addressing some 500 guests at a banquet at the exhibition grounds last night, given as the crowning event of Agricultural Day, affirmed that at the next session of the Quebec Legislature legislation will be passed by which the government will assume full charge of the maintenance of the provincial highways.

British Destroyers Will Engage Russians To Recapture Ships

BATUM. Sept. 7.—Russian port authorities have seized two more British ships, the Hedewige and the Lady Elinor. When the British flag was lowered the soviet military band struck up "God Save the King," after which the red flag was hoisted to the strains of the "Internationale."
Word has been received here from Constantinople that if the ships are not released the British will dispatch a fleet of destroyers to Batum and forcibly take them.

MIDDLEMISS TO VALUE TRACKS

Toronto Commission Recommends Assistant Manager to Investigate L. S. R.

Transportation Body to Name Expert Engineer at Next Meeting.

When the transportation committee of London, which is a special body appointed by the city council to investigate transportation problems here, meets again, M. Middlemiss, assistant manager of the Toronto Transportation Commission, will be suggested as the engineer to be called to investigate and value the tracks and equipment of the London Street Railway Company, with a view to having the ratepayers vote on purchase of this corporation in the near future.

The transportation commission of Toronto, which body is responsible for the operation of street cars in the Queen City, has recommended to the transportation committee of London that Mr. Middlemiss be appointed to investigate the local street car situation.

While admitting that the services of an expert engineer will be called in to look into the London situation, Mayor Cameron Wilson stated Thursday that such an officer has not yet been named. He could not state when the local committee would meet, but as this body holds secret sessions, his worship is not expected to divulge any information regarding the plans.

Mayor Wilson has stated that the advice received by the expert engineer will be utilized along with data obtained in advising the ratepayers prior to having a vote taken on the purchase of the London street railway system before expiration of the franchise, if such action is deemed advisable by the committee.

This committee, which is composed of Sir Adam Beck and Philip Pocock, representing the public, Ald. Gordon Drake and Ald. H. J. Childs, representing the city council, and Mayor Cameron Wilson, who is chairman, is expected eventually to recommend to the city council that the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario be requested to take over the London street railway system, although the members deny any such intention.

In addition to investigating and reporting upon the street car system here, this committee will procure data, as reported upon motor buses, trams, trolleys, and other means of transportation which may be utilized in London.

ROB JEWELER AT PISTOL POINT

Montreal, Sept. 7.—A woman made off with a tray of 12 rings valued at $900, while a man, who had entered the store with her, held up the proprietor, A. Kramer, at St. Catharines street, at the point of a revolver yesterday afternoon. The pair made a clean getaway.

QUAINT figures from history, wee comical statuettes, and all sorts of animals, scarcely statue-like, but depicting quivering motion in every line, form the exhibit of plasticine modeling which will be shown at the Western Fair next week by Morris Wilkinson, the 13-year-old artist of Ripley.
Marks of real genius, more positive talent are shown in the models, and what adds more to their cleverness and charm is the fact that the young creator has lain since he was a baby entirely helpless, except for the use of his two hands.
It is not so very long since an interested friend thought of providing Morris with plasticine as a means whereby he might while away the hours, which seemed so long to him, as he laid helpless, and so quite by accident the genius of the boy was discovered.
Now Morris spends nearly all his

WOULD KEEP SCHOOLS OPEN YEAR AROUND

Education Officials Offer Suggestion as Solution For Act Difficulties.

DR. GRANT CONSIDERS MEET CHIPPEWA COSTS

Six Days Per Week, Fifty Weeks Per Year, Is Proposal.

What has been heralded as a real solution for all perplexities attending the enforcement of the adolescent school attendance act is a proposal emanating from the London board of education officials that the schools of this city remain open six days a week, and fifty weeks a year, to enable children affected by the new ruling to attend the required 400 hours annually without leaving their employment.

This proposition is at this moment receiving the full consideration of Hon. Dr. Grant, Ontario's minister of education, and a decision is expected daily. It was announced Thursday.

The local authorities feel that once the provincial department has approved of this plan, all trouble now encountered by pupils, parents, employers of labor, or all others involved, will be automatically removed.

It is suggested that all adolescents be allowed to remain at their places of employment throughout the week, while the part-time classes could be held on Saturdays. The students would attend eight hours on this day, 50 weeks a year, thus accounting for the 400 hours' study as required by the act for all children who without a matriculation standard have not reached the age of 16 years.

Approached upon this question it is fully believed that the majority of the industrial firms who employ children of this age will lend their sympathy and co-operation to the movement.

Dr. George S. Weir, London's public school attendance officer, is of the firm opinion, however, that in any event the situation will be handled here with but little friction.

"I find," he states, "that the majority of the concerns are more than willing to lend assistance in the smoother enforcement of the act, and none of the pupils need worry much for the fear that they will not find employment. One firm in particular, I can furnish particulars, called me yesterday, offering to arrange for the return of all their former employees with the added assurance that they will employ all others that we may care to send."

The attendance officer states that many other of the firms have expressed themselves similarly, and that conditions will adjust themselves satisfactorily. "If we can't engineer the thing in London, it can't be done anywhere," he concluded enthusiastically.

FARMER MEMBERS WAR ON TARIFF ON SHINGLES

Senators Threaten to Fight Move to Shut Out Canadian Competition.

Washington, Sept. 7.—(By the Canadian Press).—Action of the senate and house tariff conferees in providing for a 25-cent per thousand duty on shingles in order to shut out Canadian competition has caused protest from the agricultural members.

Senator Kellogg of Minnesota has told the conferees he will vote against the bill if any duty is put on shingles. Leaders of the house and senate agricultural groups today continued their fight to keep the high agricultural rates imposed by the senate.

Petitions were circulated in the house and presented to the house conferees, urging insistence upon the high senate rates, including the gentleman agricultural duties, the $1.84 senate rate on Cuban sugar, 30 cents on wheat, 33 cents on wool and the high cotton rates.

BOOSTS HYDRO POWER RATES IN CITY HOMES

Public Utilities Commission Finds Immediate Increase Will Be Necessary.

MEET CHIPPEWA COSTS

Cost to City of London Will Total Approximately $75,000.

Hydro rates for domestic purposes in the city of London, in common with other municipalities throughout Western Ontario must be boosted without delay to meet the cost of the Chippewa canal undertaking.

While E. V. Buchanan, general manager of the London public utilities department, stated on Thursday morning that he has not as yet fully prepared a recommendation for the consideration of the commissioners, it is estimated that the increase will be in the neighborhood of 5 per cent. The minimum of 75 cents will remain, he believes.

As this move is deemed unavoidable, it is considered more than likely that the question will claim attention at the next general session of the commission, a week hence.

Manager Buchanan explains that the local boost automatically follows the increased cost of power to the municipality of London, at the rate of $5 per horsepower, as directed by the Ontario Power Commission, to defray the huge expenditures in connection with the Chippewa canal power development at Niagara Falls.

This will mean an increase to us of approximately $75,000," the general manager pointed out, "and we are compelled to institute the local change in rates to gain this sum."

MOTOR CLUB MAY ISSUE LICENSES

London Organization Will Seek New Means of Raising Revenue.

Added revenue, through the issuance of license markers, may be obtained by the London Motor Club next year to help finance the work of erecting road signs in London. Already the club is taking steps to obtain the work of issuing Ontario licenses.

The Toronto Motor Club enjoys that privilege in its own city, at present. This work, it is estimated, would net the local club about $2,000 annually.

All the parking signs so numerous on London streets were erected by the London Motor Club. Gradually dangerous corners, where the possibility of accidents is great, are being eliminated. At the corner of York and Ridout streets, where quite a number of minor accidents have taken place in past years, signboards have been moved many feet to give motorists going south on Ridout street an unobstructed view of the traffic coming up the York street hill.

Police consider the corner of Maitland and Dundas streets one of the most dangerous in the city. Chief Birrell will ask that a warning sign be erected on this corner, pointing out to motorists driving east on Dundas and both directions on Maitland street, the advantages of driving very slowly at this corner.

The view is obstructed at this point by buildings on the southwest and northwest corners.

WORKER KILLED ON WELLAND CANAL

St. Catharines, Sept. 7.—Alexander Chisholm, aged 23, of Long Point, Cape Breton, a worker on the Welland ship canal, was killed last night in a landslide at Port Weller. He came from the east six weeks ago.

Danger to Motorists at Busy Intersection Eliminated

ONE of the danger spots in the city—namely, the corner of York and Ridout streets—where several minor auto accidents have taken place within recent years, has been eliminated by moving the signboards back a considerable distance from the street line. Motorists driving south on Ridout street are now able to get a clear view of the traffic coming up the York street hill.

CITY BOY GETS CARNEGIE PRIZE

Saved Woman's Life While On Active Service in France.

David Mills Recognized For Brave Rescue From Depths of Well in 1918.

David Mills, who resides at 29 Grafton street, was pleasantly surprised Wednesday when he received a parcel from France in which was contained a Carnegie Medal, awarded him for bravery in saving a French peasant woman's life in June, 1918. Mr. Mills, who is employed at the Grand Trunk car shops here, and who proceeded overseas with a London battalion during the war had no inkling that he was to receive the coveted honor for his brave act.

In June, 1918, while on active service in France with the Royal Engineers, Mr. Mills was proceeding through the village of Frolois, in the war zone. His attention was attracted to a large group of peasants of the village about a well in the village, and investigation revealed the fact that a woman had fallen down the well and was drowning.

The group of peasants had become frantic and in such a condition were helpless to rescue the unfortunate woman. Quickly sensing the situation, Mr. Mills procured a rope, and attaching it about his body, instructed those present to lower him into the well. This was quickly done, and seizing the unconscious form of the victim, the London hero held it in his arms while those on the ground hauled him to safety.

After bringing the French woman from the well, Mr. Mills employed artificial respiration in an effort to revive her. This was only accomplished after three hours of strenuous work, and the peasants were loud in their praise of his brave deed.

However, Mr. Mills thought no more of the occurrence, and after serving several months longer in France, was returned to Canada and demobilized at London. Wednesday afternoon the incident was recalled in his mind by receipt of the Carnegie medal from France.

This coveted decoration, which is believed to be the only one of its kind awarded to a soldier for saving the life of a citizen while on active service during the war, is inscribed in French, and cites the cause of the award as "For an heroic deed while on active service."

Mr. Mills is showing the medal proudly to his friends and receiving congratulations Thursday.

Mayor Proclaims Friday Afternoon Holiday in London

AT the request of a number of citizens interested in baseball in London, Mayor Cameron Wilson has issued a proclamation setting aside Friday afternoon as a half-holiday, for the purpose of allowing Forest City fans to attend the final battles for the Michigan Ontario Baseball League pennant between Hamilton and London teams at Tecumseh Park.

These teams are running neck and neck for the league leadership, and as the season ends Saturday, and two games are scheduled for Friday afternoon, the pennant will likely be won and lost on this day. The half-holiday will commence at 1 p.m., and Mayor Wilson, in a published proclamation, calls upon the citizens to observe it as far as may be possible for the purpose of fostering interest in sport.

This action was taken following the approach to his worship of a deputation of citizens urging it, and after conferences held with members of the city council Thursday morning, a majority of whom agreed that declaration of the half-holiday is warranted.

MEDICAL DOCTORS HOSPITAL GUESTS

Many Members of Western Ontario Academy Entertained at Westminster.

Members of the Western Ontario Academy of Medicine, comprising several score physicians and surgeons of London and district, were the guests of the staff of Westminster Psychopathic Hospital here Wednesday, when a local meeting was held.

The medical officers of the above institution provided the program for the occasion, which consisted of two interesting papers on certain nervous diseases and their treatment, read by Dr. McLean and Dr. Mitchell.

A discussion was held at the conclusion of each paper, in which the academy members freely participated. During the session luncheon was served to the guests, who are warm in their appreciation of the splendid manner in which Dr. McGhie, medical superintendent of Westminster Hospital and his staff entertained.

BRITAIN MOVES TO BEAT TURKS

Sends General Plumer to Defend Constantinople From Attack.

Dispatches Nine Warships to Thwart Reported Soviet Plan.

Special to London Advertiser.
Constantinople, Sept. 7.—Great Britain has sent Field Marshal Lord Plumer, famed world-war commander, to take charge of the defense of Constantinople, threatened with attack by victorious Turks under Mustafa Kemal.

At the same time, nine British warships arrived at Constantinople to prevent a reported plan of Soviet Russia to send troops by water to assist the Turkish Nationalist commander in an assault upon the port. The Greek forces, retreating in a rout towards Smyrna, have been completely defeated. A Turkish communiqué today reported capture of a corps containing 403 officers and 2,000 soldiers. Mustafa Kemal, at the head of his army, is reported preparing to push his victorious progress northward to Constantinople.

General Harrington, British commander, who was Field Marshal Lord Plumer's chief of staff during the war with Germany, has been in charge with defense of the former Turkish capital. He will serve under Plumer again when the latter arrives.

Two hundred thousand Greek and Armenian refugees are pouring into Smyrna, threatening disease and famine.

SITUATION CRITICAL

Smyrna, Sept. 7.—The situation in Smyrna at noon is growing more critical. The British are removing some of their nationals in merchantmen, posting destroyers to cover their embarkation.

The French and Italians have landed marines and have called on their Greek nationals to serve as a volunteer corps.

Greek troops from Thrace, with Venizelist officers, have arrived, and are organizing resistance.

The towns of Magnesia and Cassaba, 25 miles east of Smyrna, are reported in flames.

Admiral Sir Osmond Brock, the British commander of the Mediterranean fleet, is taking all measures possible for the safeguarding of Smyrna. British marines have been landed, and are guarding the gas works and the banks.

SEES REBELLION OF UNEMPLOYED

London, Sept. 7.—(Canadian Press Cable).—A repetition of the days of Wat Tyler, the leader of the rebellion in England in 1381, during a period of extreme economic distress, is promised by the organizer of the National Union of Unemployed. In a speech which he made at Woolwich, he declared that contingents of the unemployed were arranging for the workless men of the country to converge at Whitehall, where they would make a demonstration that would draw the attention of the government to the seriousness of the situation.

DRURY SAYS HE'S NOT FLUSTERED

Ottawa, Sept. 7.—That he was satisfied and optimistic regarding the outcome of the Morrison-Drury fight over the broadening out policy, was the gist of a statement made yesterday by Premier E. C. Drury on arrival in Ottawa to attend the national unemployment conference. With respect to the success achieved by the opponents of the broadening out policy in securing control of the United Farmers' publication, the Farmers' Sun, Premier Drury said that he was not at all flustered. He thought that events would shape themselves satisfactorily in the long run.

LOCAL FIRM IN MOVE TO FORCE DEBT PAYMENT

Seeks to Collect Alleged Liability of Kingston Construction Company.

REFUSE TO WAIT LONGER

Trustees Expect Situation Will Be Cleared at Next Meeting.

Once again the London board of education finds itself confronted by a legal entanglement involving the new Central Collegiate Institute and the Kingston Construction Company, its creators.

It was officially announced Thursday morning that within the past 48 hours a lien had been placed upon the much-contested structure at the instigation of the executive members of a local firm of contractors, who are content to wait no longer for a certain sum of money they claim is owing them by the Kingston firm for either services rendered or material sold for the new building.

Board of education authorities declined Thursday to offer comment one way or the other, holding that the affair would be cleared up satisfactorily at the next regular meeting of the Collegiate Institute committee of the board of education.

This legal action places all onus of responsibility for the payment of the debt, if such exists, squarely upon the shoulders of the school trustees, although it is understood that none of them, including even the chairman of the committee, have as yet been actually acquainted of the latest move by sub-contractors, who seemingly are not too well satisfied with the manner in which the business has been transacted since the project was first undertaken.

While as uncommunicative as his colleagues, L. E. Carrothers, school architect, intimates that the Kingston company has completed all work at the school and that it is ready for the final inspection by the committee, W. A. Tanner, secretary, explains that he understands that a final settlement is delayed pending the last financial statement from the contractors.

Three months ago, a Chatham firm caused a notice of garnishee to be served upon the school trustees, alleging non-payment of similar debts. As there was certain errors noted in the statement, and the Kingston company executive members stated publicly that they would meet every just debt before they turned the building over to the board, the issue died a natural death.

All interest in London's new collegiate is again revived by the latest development.

TO CARRY CASE TO CIVIL COURTS

Professor W. G. Smith Will Continue Fight Against Methodist College.

Winnipeg, Sept. 6.—Professor W. G. Smith, former assistant principal at Wesley College, Winnipeg, who lost his dismissal case before the Methodist appeal court in Toronto on Wednesday, will carry his appeal to the civil court, declared his wife today. She had had no word from the professor and was unable to say definitely what his future plans would be, except he will keep his fight for justice. "He will carry out his intention to go to the civil court," she averred.

Charges have been made by Dr. Smith that discipline at Wesley College was not what it should be and the conduct of students was improper. Smoking and even drinking within college precincts was mentioned. Differences that arose following these charges led to dismissal of Dr. Smith and avowal of confidence in Principal J. H. Riddell at Manitoba conference. Dr. Smith had a five-year contract with Wesley College, and he will make this the basis of civil action.

PRINCE POSTPONES WEDDING

Copenhagen, Sept. 7.—Crown Prince Frederick has postponed his marriage to Princess Olga, niece of King Constantine of Greece, until early next year.

The ceremony was originally set for this autumn, but it was found the castle at Amalienborg, in which the young couple will live, could not be finished in time.

BED-IMPRISONED LAD FASHIONS QUAIN CLAY FIGURES

QUAIN figures from history, wee comical statuettes, and all sorts of animals, scarcely statue-like, but depicting quivering motion in every line, form the exhibit of plasticine modeling which will be shown at the Western Fair next week by Morris Wilkinson, the 13-year-old artist of Ripley.

known to him solely from pictures in books. Out of histories he has taken the idea for a tiny figure of King William, mounted on horseback, and an idea of a more recent date is the figure of a Royal Canadian mounted policeman, life-like in every detail of mounting and equipment.
From occasional fiction, which came his way, Morris conceived the outline for figures of a stalwart Viking, a quaint Chinaman, complete from pigtail to trousers, a Robinson Crusoe, sadly ragged and disheveled, and one exceptionally striking figure, a cowboy on a bucking bronco. Morris has made a trapper, an Irish Paddy, a pair of Scotchmen with their bagpipes, and one of his best examples of working with still life is a holly wreath, molded with beauty and precision.
His special pride, however, is a wax swan, a thing graceful, fragile, and of a delicate whiteness. Just now he is busy conceiving an idea which shall give opportunity for a figure of equal beauty and delicacy. Morris has collected the very best of his models for his exhibit at the Western Fair, and Rev. Harold Villars of Ripley, has offered to take charge of the exhibit during the entire Fair Week, where it will be set up in the machinery building.

Examination of the figures leaves no doubt of the cleverness of their modeler. Showing such ability, without an atom of training and at such an early age, those interesting themselves in the boy are quite sure that if he were placed in the hands of a professional teacher he would develop remarkable possibilities.
"Morris has a practical business head, which does not usually accompany signs of genius," Mr. Villars says. "He takes no money for his models until they are absolutely finished, then he has them done up and sent off. C. O. D. with the amount registered in his little book. His one ambition is to raise money to secure professional training."

EXPECT RECORD CROWDS AT FAIR

C. P. and G. T. Railways Prepare for Heavy Traffic Next Week.

Grand Trunk Will Run Seventeen Special Trains to London.

Indications for the past few weeks tend to show that the Western Fair this year will attract such crowds as it has never enjoyed in its many years of existence, and that from every corner of Western Ontario, from Sept. 9 to 16, thousands will flock to the second largest annual exhibition in the Dominion.

Officials of both the Canadian Pacific and the Grand Trunk railways predict that the traffic this year will be heavier than it has ever been, and during Fair week many special trains are being added to the passenger service so that persons may come to the city from any point in the district and return home the same day.

On the G. T. R., seventeen special trains in all will be running during the week, while on the Canadian Pacific, extra coaches will be added to all trains. On both roads the train service will be unexcelled, and great care was taken in drawing up the schedules so that people in the lying districts may be able to visit the city the same as residents of towns near London.

KILL BANDIT IN RUNNING FIGHT

Posse Captures Two Companions After One Had Been Wounded.

Believed To Have Stolen Motor Which They Were Driving.

DETROIT, Sept. 6.—Two of the alleged automobile thieves who shot and killed a detective and severely wounded another while resisting arrest in a garage in Toledo today, were captured after a half-hour's revolver fight with deputy sheriffs in a clump of woods near Wauseon, O.

Edward H. Fox, chief of Detroit detectives, was notified this afternoon. A companion of the two was found dead in the bullet-riddled automobile which they abandoned at the roadside when the pursuing deputies closed in on them. They were thought to be on their way to Detroit. The car they drove was thought to have been stolen here.

The two surrendered to the deputies after being surrounded and after one had been wounded. When they gave themselves up the wounded man was leaning on his companion's arm.

The dead man is believed to have been hit by a bullet fired by the wounded Toledo officer, George Bach. The detective who was slain was William Martin.

LIVESTOCK BREEDERS GATHER AT TORONTO

TORONTO, Sept. 6.—A gathering of live stock breeders from all parts of the Dominion was entertained by the directors of the Royal Winter Fair Association at a luncheon in the Hotel Carls-Rite today.

The Royal Winter Fair will be held in the coliseum of the exhibition grounds during the week of November 22.

Vice-President Carroll stated that the first Royal Winter Fair show will bring together all the leading live stock breeders of Canada and the United States, with a possibility of several entries from European centres.

Dr. Hugh A. Stevenson, member for London in the Provincial House, will be literally riding for a fall—of about 20 feet to the sidewalk below—on Carling street, if he interferes with Magistrate A. H. M. Graydon in his police court duties, the magistrate promised this morning.

"If he interferes with me, he will go out through this window," Magistrate Graydon jocularly remarked as he sat in his office in the police building.

Of course such action would only result if Dr. Stevenson invaded the city court as he did Squire W. H. Chittick's court at the court house some weeks ago. At that time he walked into the room and demanded to know by what authority the squire handed down decisions in county cases.

Carries Heavy Load. Magistrate Graydon is indeed one of the busiest officials in London these days. He is city magistrate, county magistrate, and juvenile court judge. He declared it to be almost a "physical impossibility" to handle all the work, and engage in private practice; in fact, he stated, his private work has fallen off to almost nil because of lack of attention.

However, the magistrate declared his willingness to do all in his power to assist the juvenile court, for he is in sympathy with the establishment of it.

This morning he received notice of his appointment, which was unanimously made by the aldermen. He intends to carry on in the new court, which will be established apart from, but adjacent to the police station. For years Magistrate Graydon has handled cases of erring juveniles in his office to the satisfaction of all city officials.

Protect Children. Those who have worked for and obtained the new court agitated for its establishment, mainly because they wanted to have juveniles tried in surroundings other than police headquarters. They did not think that bringing the children through the regular courtroom was in the best interests of the young citizens, for the impression left in their minds after they have been paraded through the regular court is to say the least, a pleasant one, these workers claim.

Magistrate Graydon has not raised any objection to trying county cases, having heard one yesterday and another a few weeks ago.

"All these appointments have been wished on me," asserted the magistrate, "but I have told those backing the juvenile court that I will do all in my power to assist them in the work."

Magistrate Graydon Promises to Eject London Member by Force.

Ten Dollars Buys Freedom For Two of Four Horsemen in Jail

Two of the four horsemen, Fred Smith and Everett Marshall, who have been spending a few days at Dawson Castle as a result of their being apprehended by Acting Sergt. Percy Last a few nights ago, were brought up from their cells this morning to police court and ordered released by Magistrate A. H. M. Graydon when they displayed two crisp five-dollar bills, enough to take them to Toronto, their destination.

When arrested the four knights of the turf had but 80 cents when they pooled their resources. They explained that they had missed a horse train out of Windsor and succeeded in getting a free motor trip to London.

Magistrate Graydon remanded them for eight days, with a promise that if their ship sailed in the meantime and brought sufficient to take them to Toronto he would release them.

Smith and Marshall informed him this morning that they had qualified for their release. They were instructed to hand their money over to an officer, who will buy their tickets, escort them to the train and see them safely on their way.

FIGHT CATTLE TRANSIT MOVE

Humane Society Opposes Keeping Stock On Cars Longer Than 28 Hours.

Inspector George Tustin Returns From Convention in Toronto.

Of the many reports that were submitted Wednesday at the Toronto convention of humane officers, there was none more favorable or satisfactory than that submitted by the London delegation, according to George Tustin, inspector for the local branch, who attended with Miss J. Elliott, vice-president, and Rev. Mrs. Strong.

Humane officers throughout the province are united, Inspector Tustin related upon his return Thursday, in a determination that every opposition will be made toward the proposal to lengthen the hours that cattle may be kept in transit.

At this moment the act stipulates that live horses need not remain in cars for a period to exceed 28 hours, and the proposal has been made to increase this time limit to 36 hours. "We will not stand for this," declares the local inspector, "and a resolution was passed to this effect after a thorough discussion. The London delegation was supported by the Hamilton, St. Thomas and others of the principal cities."

His motion, involving London to a considerable degree, was also passed, urging greater co-operation between adjoining counties. This will enable the local officer to work with greater expediency with the Elgin County representative.

Inspector Tustin reported that a serious complaint was registered at the convention respecting the treatment of horses employed at the Welland Canal, and a special officer was immediately detailed to visit the district and return a report.

It was further ruled that no badge other than the London badge will be recognized at the Toronto fair.

Side shows from the latter exhibition will arrive in London Saturday, the inspector stated, adding that he was glad that they will be under the jurisdiction of the local humane society until their departure. The animals will be subject to a strict examination, he states, and certain improvements must be noted.

The local department has now in its possession an adequate quantity of literature dealing with the care and treatment of household pets of every description, and copies of the same may be obtained for the asking.

During a 20-minute address, Mrs. Strong touched upon every phase of the work undertaken by the local society. Her report was well received, as was the detailed statement by the inspector.

The Bishop of Toronto presided.

LONDONERS LECTURE TO COLLEGE OF ORGANISTS

Chas. E. Wheeler and F. Linforth Willgoose Attend Annual Convention in Montreal.

The annual convention of the Canadian College of Organists was held in Montreal this week. A large gathering of organists from all parts of the Dominion were in attendance.

On Tuesday morning the council met to receive the reports from the various centers of the college. The report of the London center was presented by Chas. E. Wheeler.

Afternoon a general meeting of members was held, at which short lectures were given by several organists, including Chas. E. Wheeler, and also F. Linforth Willgoose of this city.

The evening annual dinner was held at the Windsor Hotel, under the presidency of Dr. Percival J. Illeley.

On Wednesday morning a council meeting was held for the election of officers and other business. An enjoyable afternoon was spent by the organists and their friends at a Country Club, St. Lambert.

An organ recital was given at St. George's Church in the evening, at which a very fine program of organ music was rendered by several organists.

W. H. Howlett, who is well known to many in this city, gave a study in 7-4 time by Goodhart, and also a Scherzo-Caprice by Emile Bernard.

A concert overture in F minor was rendered by Dr. E. MacMillan of Toronto. This selection was composed by Alfred Hollins, the eminent blind organist of St. George's Church, Edinburgh, who dedicated the piece to Dr. MacMillan.

Dr. Healey Willan gave a composition, which was well received. The offertory taken at the recital was in aid of the benevolent fund of the Canadian College of Organists. Before returning to their respective homes a number of the organists are spending a few days sight seeing around Montreal.

FOUND GUILTY OF THEFT ATTEMPT

WINDSOR, Sept. 6.—Howard Johnston, colored, who was arrested on Aug. 26 after being taken off the ferryboat Britannia as a pickpocket working the race track crowds, was found guilty of attempted theft in police court this morning by Magistrate Gundy, and was remanded until Saturday for sentence.

NOMINATE LAFOLETTE. MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 6.—Indications this morning were that Senator Robert M. Lafolette has been overwhelmingly re-nominated in yesterday's primary election over W. C. Ganfield of Waukeesa as Republican candidate for United States senator at the November election.

JUVENILES' ACT URGED BY KELLY

Inspector of Children's Aid Society Believes Proclamation Urgently Needed.

Fears Court Will Not Function Without Backing of Law.

That the establishment of a juvenile court as enacted by the city council Tuesday night does not provide measures in the full interest of child transgressors of the law in London is the contention of Inspector W. E. Kelly, of the Children's Aid Society.

Mr. Kelly is of the opinion that the first steps have been taken to provide this needed improvement in administration of the law, but points out that until the juvenile delinquents will not be in a position to reap the full benefits legislated for them.

"For a juvenile court to function properly, we must have a good act," declared Inspector Kelly, whose work in London and Middlesex County for several years qualifies him to speak on the subject. "We have gained nothing for the children until we proclaim the juvenile delinquents' act in London."

Regarding the appointment of Police Magistrate A. H. M. Graydon as juvenile court judge, I might say I regard him as one of the best men in London for that office. He has shown wonderful judgment at police court continually, and as I have been in a position to watch his work, I know.

"However, I cannot see how the court can function at all without proclamation of the act. We cannot get any place without it. I can get a great hubbub some time ago for stealing and sent to the reformatory because they were not tried by a juvenile court. The public said they were treated as criminals."

"Without the proclamation of the act they would still be treated as criminals under the criminal code in the new juvenile court here. I can see how they would be handled any other way. No man, no matter how kindly disposed, can deal with them otherwise."

Taking the children to a different building than that used to try adults is in absolutely a necessity. It should have been done years ago."

Mayor Cameron Wilson has promised to proclaim the juvenile delinquents' act as soon as conditions warrant it, and in the opinion of Inspector Kelly and prominent officials and public men interested in child welfare, assert that no time should be lost in proclaiming the act here.

HAS AGREEMENT WITH M'GILL

Western University to Open New Courses in Science.

Students May Graduate at Montreal After Spending First Years Here.

In co-operation with Western University, which has made an arrangement with Montreal and Kingston universities whereby boys entering courses of engineering and applied sciences may spend the first year at Western and finish at Queen's University, and girls entering courses of domestic science and household arts may spend the first two years at Western and finish at McGill University, the London Technical High School, according to an announcement by Principal Beal, has arranged to give the honor matriculation required for such courses in four years instead of five.

Principal Beal stated that owing to the number who are anxious to register for the four-year course, the school would be open Thursday and Friday nights, in order that parents who wish to discuss the matter with the principal, and the number who are anxious to enter these departments and take advantage of the longer period at home has induced us to give an honor matriculation course in four years, although it has been customary for a student to spend at least five years in getting his honor matriculation. The usual matriculation course will be given and special attention paid to the subjects in which courses in engineering, applied science or household arts demand the honor matriculation standing.

TO HOLD SESSION OF BOARD WHEN BUSINESS DEMANDS

Chairman Smith Says Delay, if Any, Occasioned by Committees Individually.

There will be a general session of the board of education the very moment that there is any business to be transacted, declared Trustee Edwin Smith, chairman, Thursday, in a sharp retort to those in city hall circles who have asserted that the trustees "are doing nothing."

In any event, the chairman declares, the board will meet again Sept. 20, and if in the meanwhile there is any great delay noted, it is occasioned, not by that body as a whole but by the committees individually.

While the charge has been levelled that the trustees are "laying down on the job" with respect to the proposed new public school at Oliver and Trafalgar streets after months spent in officiating members of the city council and the civic commission, the chairman points out that plans for this undertaking have not even been approved by the public school committee.

In the face of this he asserts that it would be highly impossible for the board to proceed without further delay, upon the construction of the school.

IF RADIO SETS owned by amateurs are not properly grounded or equipped with lightning arrestors they may cause fires in London homes while electrical storms are in progress, Fire Chief John Aiken stated today. In Windsor during a recent big storm which struck border points a number of small fires were attributed to lack of care in the erection of radio sets. "London is lucky as far as fire goes, considering the number of high-tension wires that pass through the city," the chief remarked.

WHILE IT WAS fully expected that a regular session of the public utilities commission, the first since the holiday season commenced, would be held Thursday, it has now become necessary to postpone the gathering until next week. Three of the commissioners, Philip Pocock, Jared Vining and T. W. McFarland, are out of the city, while Commissioner Fred Mitchell is reported as being again confined to his bed through illness.

FINED FOR SELLING TOBACCO TO MINOR

Angus Kemp, Pleading Guilty, Pays $10 and Costs.

Reaching court before witnesses, and in time to notify them that his presence is not required, will save paying their fees, if one pleads guilty, Angus Kemp found when he signified his willingness to plead guilty to a charge of selling tobacco to minors, but protested against the amount of the costs, found when he appealed to Magistrate A. H. M. Graydon in police court this morning. The case had been adjourned until Friday, and three witnesses had been ordered to appear on that day.

Kemp came to court Wednesday as a visitor to watch the case against Walter Gower, who was charged with selling tobacco to a young boy at a booth on the Hamilton road. When sharp retort to those in city hall circles who have asserted that the trustees "are doing nothing."

HURON ALUMNI ELECT OFFICERS

Rev. H. W. Snell of Wingham Is Now President of Association.

Unveil Memorial Tablet to Memory of Late Harriet Boomer.

At the annual meeting of the Huron College Alumni, which came to a close Thursday morning at Cronyn Hall, after being in session for three days, late Harriet Boomer, who was elected President, Rev. H. W. Snell, Wingham, 1st vice-president, Rev. A. L. G. Clarke of London, 2nd vice-president, Rev. H. A. Wright, secretary, Rev. C. W. Foreman, Waterloo, treasurer, Rev. T. Dobson, Cambridge, Ontario, and Rev. J. M. Smith, Wingham, were elected members of the committee. Rev. R. Armitage, Rev. R. Herber, Preston, and Rev. W. B. Hawkins, members to Huron council, Rev. S. P. Irwin, two-year term, and Rev. H. W. Snell, one-year term.

The unveiling of a memorial tablet to the memory of Harriet Boomer, widow of the late Deane Boomer, was one of the important features of Wednesday evening's session of the Huron College Alumni Association.

An interesting address by Rev. Mr. Abayankar of Bombay, India, a former member of the Huron College, who was in the city on his conversion into the Christian faith, was one of the features of the program.

Educated in English. In the course of his address, the speaker stated that his father was a priest of the Brahmin faith, and that when he, Rev. Mr. Abayankar, decided to receive an English education, it was strongly objected to, as it was looked upon as a social revolution by his people. He, however, in spite of all this, entered the John Small Memorial Hall, and it was there that he received his education.

Then I was a good idea to walk around in a storm, for it gave the victim a chance to be out of the way when the lightning came, and it sounds much braver to go roaming around the house, sort of attending to things in general, all set for action in case anything should happen, and at the same time scared stiff that I was sure I'd be sitting up when Santa Claus came.

Speaking of Santa Claus I was afraid that lightning would do like he does and crawl down the chimney. One expert had said to keep away from the kitchen stove when a storm is on, so when I passed the kitchen door I held my nose tight and didn't breathe, being afraid to start a draft there.

But I forgot I had gone upstairs, so let's go upstairs again. Arriving there I coughed, to let the family know all was well, and father, brave heart, was on the job, because he couldn't lie in bed.

Awakens Family. There being no real snow to my couch, I let a hot fall, which was only a wet noise between the crashes of thunder, but it worked. "Who's there?" called out my beloved.

"Only me," I answered, quite unconcerned like, with a voice intended to go to bed and keep quiet, you'll soon have the whole family awake with your walking around."

And just then there came such a crack and a crash and a bang all in one that I retired. Oh, bravery, where is thy reward?

And just then there came such a crack and a crash and a bang all in one that I retired. Oh, bravery, where is thy reward?

There being no real snow to my couch, I let a hot fall, which was only a wet noise between the crashes of thunder, but it worked. "Who's there?" called out my beloved.

"Only me," I answered, quite unconcerned like, with a voice intended to go to bed and keep quiet, you'll soon have the whole family awake with your walking around."

Father's Wanderings Disturb Family During Storm

BY A BRAVE MAN.

DON'T you like to meet the person the day after there has been a regular full-grown thunder storm who will say he slept through the whole thing, and didn't know anything about it until, as he was pouring the milk on his porridge for breakfast, and wondering if there was going to be anything after that, some other boarder came in and said: "Well, Bill, wasn't that some storm we had last night?"

Up our way we've been reading the magazines that have some special articles in them, telling what to do when there is a storm on. Some of the articles say that it is safe to lie in bed and pray a little while the storm is raging, taking good care all the time that they touch the radiator on the one side, or the electric fixtures on the top. Well, last night I tried this thing out.

At first it was my policy to ignore said storms, letting on I didn't hear him coming, and didn't care a hoot whether he kept on coming or went back home.

He seemed to be approaching from the way of Nairn and Lucan and Belmont all at once. So I made quite sure that my feet weren't touching the bottom of the bed, and I also made certain that the top of my head was six and a half inches from the dashboard at the head of the couch. So there I lay.

Storm Approaches. By this time the storm had crossed John Putherbough's new bridge leading to the city from the neighborhood of Fox's school of learning. I was traveling on high, hitting on my side, and the out-crook of my head was six and a half inches from the dashboard at the head of the couch. So there I lay.

Then I remembered having read that it was a good idea to walk around in a storm, for it gave the victim a chance to be out of the way when the lightning came, and it sounds much braver to go roaming around the house, sort of attending to things in general, all set for action in case anything should happen, and at the same time scared stiff that I was sure I'd be sitting up when Santa Claus came.

Speaking of Santa Claus I was afraid that lightning would do like he does and crawl down the chimney. One expert had said to keep away from the kitchen stove when a storm is on, so when I passed the kitchen door I held my nose tight and didn't breathe, being afraid to start a draft there.

But I forgot I had gone upstairs, so let's go upstairs again. Arriving there I coughed, to let the family know all was well, and father, brave heart, was on the job, because he couldn't lie in bed.

Awakens Family. There being no real snow to my couch, I let a hot fall, which was only a wet noise between the crashes of thunder, but it worked. "Who's there?" called out my beloved.

ASKS PUBLIC TO VISIT SCHOOLS

Trustee Smith Will Arrange to Open Buildings For Inspection.

Believes Citizens Will Be Surprised at Many Changes Made.

It is the expressed desire of School Trustee Edwin Smith, chairman of the board of education, that any of all of the taxpayers interested in local educational affairs should be afforded an opportunity for a close inspection of the city schools, public and otherwise.

With this belief uppermost the chairman, later in the month, more than likely just after fair week, will arrange with the various committees that certain evenings be set aside in the different schools for an inspection by the general public.

Trustee Smith proposes that the parents and others interested should visit, not only the new schools but the older structures in order that they may gain some idea of the work of renovation that has been accomplished during the past holiday season.

"I believe that the greater bulk of the people are interested in educational activities," he pointed out, "and I venture to say that they will be indeed surprised by a visit to Simpson street or other of our older public schools where they will note vast improvements that have been made. Pupils who attended these schools even ten years ago, would hardly recognize some of the rooms."

It was arranged that certain schools will be opened each night and that the general inspection will last the greater part of a week. Another opportunity will be given for the public to view the new central collegiate institute, the new Victoria public school and the London Technical and Art School.

Although this is an entirely new move a record attendance is anticipated, particularly in view of the various controversies that have entered in past months respecting certain school buildings, as well as the approach of the civic election.

East Londoner Captures Nuisance-Creating Monkey

AFTER a chase of a week, the monkey, which was making itself more or less of a nuisance to Londoners in the eastern part of the city, has been captured by Eugene Cox of 857 Lovett street, who is waiting a claim from the owner, the identity of whom is not yet known.

Complaints were heard a few days ago, that a monkey, coming from no one knew where, had been roosting in the district with its mischievous ways.

The passage of the resolution was not unanimous by any means and a lively tilt ensued, with John McGuire, J. W. Ingles and other delegates participating.

A communication from the minister of labor, with reference to the "air wage" question, was submitted to the council, precipitating a general debate. The minister stated in short: "I wish, as the minister of labor, that I could do something in this matter. This is impossible, as I have no jurisdiction."

John McGuire, chairman, referring to this letter, declared, "for some reason or other, either personally or through the press, word has reached Mr. Rollo that this council has been trying to criticize him on the fair wage question. I would not want anyone to think that this is the case, for it is not."

Attacks Minister. Delegate J. W. Ingles, who seemed full of antagonism to the minister of labor, gave quite a long address on the subject of the letter. He went on to say: "The minister is side-stepping and this council has a tendency to 'pass the buck' between here and Toronto."

John McGuire, who felt that the argument was getting a trifle hot, moved that the Hon. Mr. Rollo be invited to attend the next meeting of the council and if there were any criticisms to be made, he could be there to confront them.

At this point Mr. Ingles' voice was again to be heard, as he said: "Why should he be invited here when he distinctly states in his letter to the council that he has no jurisdiction in the matter whatsoever. He will come here to tell us the same thing."

Reads Report. The chairman in reading the report on the Dominion Trades Congress in session at Montreal last week, stated "that out of 69 resolutions sent in 26 of them carried. The meeting had a record attendance, and delegates were there up to the closing night."

The main resolution brought up was in the form of a protest against the soldiers being stationed in Nova Scotia to fight the miners who were out on strike against the reduction in wages.

In the closing period of the Labor Council's meeting, a letter was read to the delegates from the American Federation of Labor, asking that all members of that order do their best to help the men who are out on strike at the present time. The purses of those unions are getting very low and any help that the brother unions could give would be a great help in the present struggle. A move that they should give $25 carried unanimously.

Justifying the Step.

MEMBERS of the U. F. A. (United Farmers of Alberta) at Stettler, Ridgewood, and one or two other points have registered protests, by resolutions in their gatherings, against the acceptance by members of the Alberta Legislature of an increased indemnity, voted by the members to themselves at the last session. The following resolutions, passed by the Stettler District Association is typical of others:

"Whereas the members of the U. F. A. organization have always been opposed to extravagant expenditure of the people's money by governments, and

"Therefore be it resolved that we, the members of the Stettler District Association, do protest the extravagant seasonal indemnity paid the members of the Alberta Legislative Assembly in their recent sitting in the House."

So much for that. One of the members of the Legislature comes to the defense of the increased indemnity, which the members received.

"There are," this member claims, "angles to the indemnity paid, not generally understood. There is a vast difference between $2,000 seasonal indemnity and $2,000 salary for work at home. Traveling expenses have to be met, to country members the expense of keeping up a car (which is necessary if a member in a large constituency is to fulfill his duty to his constituents efficiently), and, greatest of all, payment of others to take care of the work on the farm. To my mind the recognition only of services rendered during a session is wrong and misleading. Any rural member will tell you that practically all of his time has to be devoted to the work. No farmer can afford to keep up a team to work only at short and irregular periods, such as would be the case if a rural member attempted to drive one of his own teams. The seasonal indemnity makes no provision for the extra expense entailed on a rural member in covering a large constituency, nor does it allow anything for a member living at a long distance from the capital. In some cases entailing two and additional traveling expenses and time lost in going back and forwards on business for his constituency."

There can be no doubt that what this Alberta member says is quite true. The trouble is that the public recognize that the members of the Alberta Legislature—and the same thing applies in Ontario—ought for and accepted office at a certain salary. They knew what it was before they started.

Although a very good case can be made out by members who voted themselves more pay, it is impossible to make it look right to the public. The thing is wrong in principle and exceedingly faulty in actual operation.

Your Valuables.

ARE you thinking of buying the Russian crown jewels, including the famous Orloff diamond? They are offered for sale by the Bolsheviks.

The price? A trifling $500,000,000. The whole caboodle of them, piled out of their golden crowns and scepters, could be carried in your suitcase.

As far as being useful, the Russian crown jewels are about as valuable as a peck of broken glass.

Their value is entirely imaginary—no more, no less than the imagination of man makes it.

Queer thing is value. Ford Motor Company's latest statement shows that its assets exceed $400,000,000. Of this, $81,026,633 is invested in real estate, the only imperishable form of material wealth.

Patents are listed at a value of only $110,740.

The company's goodwill is entered as worth nearly $21,000,000. This goodwill is intangible. No eye can see it. No scales can weigh it.

Equally intangible is the Ford Motor Company's greatest asset—the brain of Henry Ford. Or, to be absolutely accurate, his intellect.

Accumulation of values seems to be a national mania. There are fixed values such as gold, whose price is set by law. There are sentimental values—diamonds, remembrances, etc.

Value is the most elusive thing on earth. It is the magician of economics.

You think you have obtained a small value. Suddenly it swells to enormous size. This is increasing value.

In the far corner are declining values—ones that are deceptive, look substantial and permanent at first, then shrink. Ask stock market plungers who have been caught in bear markets.

Value skips about like a flea. Big fortune comes to the man who can guess where it will jump next. Typical of this is real estate.

Values are the poker chips of uncertainty.

And of all values, the only ones that have permanence approaching the perpetual are knowledge, fame and good deeds. These are the real wealth. No man is really poor who has created any of the three.

Fighting Weeds.

IN MOST of the farm leases that are signed there is a clause which makes it incumbent on the person taking over the property to keep down noxious weeds.

A London legal firm had a visit a few days ago from an owner seeking to force a tenant to live up to this clause. The point made by the tenant was interesting, being based on the claim that the party having the property for three years previous had spent very little time on the land, and that as a result it was impossible in one year to get the weeds out of the property. He was, according to his statement, working to pay for the neglect of the former tenant.

Weeds are no respecters of either tenants or owners, and they will grow just as well for one person as another.

Neglect of a property for a year or so will put up a mountain of work for some person to tackle in the following season.

Neither do weeds live to themselves. Many a clean-land farmer is treated to a deluge of weed seed from lands where scant attention has been paid to weed eradication.

This one tenant, who claims he is a victim of past neglect, is not in a class by himself.

He is simply one of a great army of workers who are fighting a fight that has been foisted on them by carelessness and neglect.

A Big Problem.

THE automobile tourist trade has come upon this province with a rush. The residents of United States have discovered that this is a goodly country for the summer months.

They have found out that our lakes are many, our rivers are numerous, and the scenery is excellent, and that we have good roads in many sections.

The result is that traffic on the roads is increasing at a very fast rate, and another result is that accidents are also keeping pace with this increase.

There are many of our country roads that are narrow, and this narrowness is intensified at culverts. Many of these were built for horse traffic, before there was any idea of autos traveling over these thoroughfares at anything from 20 to 45 miles an hour.

Driving over a well-known road leading from London to Lake Huron points, a few days ago, an Adventurer man could not but be impressed with the remarks that were made. The driver of the car had covered the same ground every second day all season, and will continue to do so until he is stopped by bad weather.

Here are a few of his comments: "At this corner, where there is a sharp curve, a car was leaving for Detroit. The driver made the curve all right, but was going fast that he couldn't right the machine after the corner was turned. That new wire in the fence is where he went through. His wife was killed and the car was a wreck."

"Guess I'll slack up and let that other car get to that little red light over the culvert first. It doesn't pay to take chances here. Cars coming down from Bayfield are often headed for home, and home means the same point in United States. The driver knows he has a long trip ahead of him, and seems to think that a few minutes spent in racing to get across a culvert first is going to be quite a help. On Monday morning of last week two cars were coming from opposite directions right here. One going north lost out and had to take the side of the road, where he hit loose gravel, throwing him in front of the other car, which could not turn because it was on the culvert. They smashed, but, fortunately, no one was hurt, but both cars were tied up for the rest of the day. Day before yesterday, not ten feet from this same place, the same thing happened. One woman was taken out of the wreck and the doctor over at — is attending to her now. One car was turned over in the ditch. When it was pulled out it was the finest wreck you ever saw, front and back wheels three feet out of line. The other car fared better, but between expenses and the loss of one car, that smash must have cost about $5,000, as one big car was wrecked."

About four miles farther down the road the driver started again: "See this hedge all along here. Well, it's pretty, but it ought to be cut out at the corner, as you can't see the cross-road that carries a lot of traffic. Only two weeks ago I helped pull a little car out of the fence corner, where it had run rather than be hit in the middle by a heavy car coming around the corner. The driver of the car was from Ohio. He was not seriously hurt, but cut a bit with glass. His car took a lot of rebuilding at the first garage he came to, and the big car that chased him into the ditch never stopped to see what had happened."

There is nothing in the way of exaggeration in what this driver said, as it was possible to verify his statements from various sources, and at other times from wrecks that were in the garages.

What is going to be done? It is impossible to have traffic men all over the country, and it is impossible to rely on the common sense of all the drivers we are turning loose on the roads of the province, because many of them do not seem to be possessed of their share of that very desirable quality. The careful driver is at all times at the mercy of the one who thinks that speed is the chief attribute of a good driver.

The traveling public resent the interference of the traffic men on the country roads, but if we are not to have them, what is going to be done? Is it good policy to let car drivers go ahead and make their own regulations?

AS MOTHER SEES IT

BY BERTON BRALEY.

My brood is off to school again, beneath the teacher's rule again, And though I love them dearly I am glad to see them go. For when they only play around I always have to stay around To keep them out of mischief; that's a mother's job, I know. But none the less my attitude is one of heart-felt gratitude. To have the youngsters off my hands a portion of the day, So I can loaf and rest a bit, recuperate my zest a bit And have some time for gossip or for housework or for play.

I found the children's books for them (I brought them from strange nooks for them). I got a suit for Eddie and a brand new dress for Sue; Their wallings were lamentable while I made them presentable (They'll probably remain so for at least a day or two). The thought of studies fretted them, I scolded, soothed and petted them.

And sent them on their way at last—and breathed a grateful sigh. Vacation days are jolly days and children love their holidays, But they're the hardest sort of days for mothers such as I.

How sturdy and how neat they looked, how very dear and sweet, As they trudged together to the schoolhouse on the hill! Oh, teacher, take good care of them, for how I love the pair of them! Nobody else can understand, nobody ever will; Some day, full grown, they'll start away and take my very heart away.

And I shall watch them, smiling very much as I do now; They'll face the great world fearlessly while I wave to them tearlessly. And I'll get on without them—though I can't imagine how!

THOSE WARBLING EDITORS.

WHO would think that the publishers of weekly papers in Ontario spent so much time and thought in harping on their vocal chords? It used to be that much vocal effort was used in ringing the changes on that sweet little ballad, "Your Subscription Paid in Advance." But times are better, and the weekly editors have set hours now to play on the grand piano and take vocal lessons at $3 for a half-hour period.

Jack Hunter, of the Kincardine Reporter, who awarded the long distance championship some time ago, and now he turns on the people's William—of the Chesley Enterprise, as follows:

"Recently someone started a discussion about editors and their capabilities as singers. As a general rule, as editors sing. These of the early days studied a little 'close harmony.' It was generally a lesson that finished with 'Just a wee Doch and Doris.' Scotch editors sing well, but it remained for the 'People's William'—McDonald by name, of the Chesley Enterprise—to self acknowledge he was a singer. One night he was asked to go to Park Road and deliver an address at an entertainment. He would no doubt pay his own expenses and his way into the entertainment. William went, made a good speech, but he was not the only McDonald there. Ruthven McDonald, of Toronto, that fine singer, was there. He was paid for being the big musical noise. When the program was concluded the chairman said: 'Mr. McDonald will now lead in the singing of the National Anthem.' The big chief of the McDonald clan from Chesley stepped to the front of the platform and in his splendid soprano led off, while Ruthven followed 'Bill's' lead. When the patriotism was commingled it dawned on William that there was another McDonald who could sing and who no doubt was the Mac called upon. The discovery didn't phase William. His notes were true and strong to the finish. He then turned to Ruthven and apologized for his error. Ruthven said: 'You may have the glory, I got the money.' It was ever thus, sighed William."

AND now comes the Chesley Enterprise with a spirited and whole-hearted defence of Hunter, and apologized for his error. Ruthven said: 'You may have the glory, I got the money.' It was ever thus, sighed William."

DR. BISHOP'S ADVICE

FRESH AIR

BY DR. R. H. BISHOP.

NE physician's prescription for good health is "to get in a draught and stay in it."

This sounds revolutionary, for we often hear of "catching cold" in a draught. Really, however, it isn't the draught that brings on the cold, but overheating in a stuffy, unventilated room before or after exposure to it.

Air is the first necessity of life, yet many people worry about every little draught and extra current of air. Instead of worrying, the right thing is to take advantage of the draught, breathe deeply several times and observe how much better you feel.

There is a blanket of hot air around the human body at all times. It requires a strong current of air or a breeze to lift this blanket and make the body cool and comfortable. The current may be provided by an electric fan or it may come from a ventilation shaft or, better yet, from a window, open top and bottom. Just so long as the air is fresh and kept in motion, the result will be the same.

Everyone should get accustomed to fresh air, breathe all of it that is possible, and then he won't mind cold, wintry air. Those who are hardened to cold air are less subject than others to colds, bronchitis and pneumonia.

No condition tends more surely to colds, grip and lowered vitality than a crowded room with no air circulation. Excessive dryness, combined with insufficient air, affects the mucous membranes of the nose and throat.

Be sure to open your windows wide at night and obey these general air-hygiene rules if you would enjoy perfect health:

Let the fresh air in.
Go out after it.
Sleep out if you can.
Breathe deeply.

NO. 316—HOW TO TREAT MIXED PROFILES.

As it is easy to observe whether a person has a concave or a convex profile, it is also easy to observe whether he has a profile that is a mixture of these two.

For practical purposes there are two such combinations.

One is the person the upper part of whose face is convex and the lower part concave; that is, a person with a forehead which slants backward a bit, and a chin which projects. Remember that it is the forehead which reveals thought and the chin that reveals decision. Treat this man like a convex so far as outlining your proposition to him is concerned, but like a concave when pressing him for a decision. He represents probably the most efficient type of businessman, quick of thought and slow of action, missing no tricks, and making few mistakes of impulsiveness.

But when you find the other mixture, the concave upper and convex lower, the principal features of which are a protruding forehead and a chin which slants back, you should make a complete variation in your tactics.

Be patient, careful and detailed in working up to the climax of your appeal. Be careful that this climax is one of suggestion, rather than appeal to reason, and then press for a quick decision. For this type of man is slow of thought, but quick of action, is more sentimental than average and is powerfully moved by well-planned suggestion.

DRURY URGES NEW PLANS FOR GIVING RELIEF

Scores System of Handing
Doles As Opiate Rather Than Cure.

RAPS HIGH LIVING COSTS

Addresses National Conference On Unemployment in Session At Ottawa.

OTTAWA, Sept. 6.—(By Canadian Press.)—Presentation of the unemployment relief measures adopted by the trades and labor congress of Canada, also of recommendations from other bodies, kept the national conference on unemployment busy this afternoon. Premier E. C. Drury of Ontario, the chief speaker of the afternoon, spoke against the continuance of the system of handing doles, which he said, was an opiate rather than a cure. They had a tendency also to build up a habit as had an opiate.

This evening the conference went into executive session to try and reach a definite recommendation for the relief of unemployment which will be placed before the open conference tomorrow morning.

Hon. E. C. Drury, premier of Ontario, at the afternoon's meeting expressed distrust of the relief measures which had been employed in the past.

An advisory committee appointed by the Ontario government had come to the conclusion that Canada should be the cheapest country in the world to live in, but that the high cost of living was proving a check to development of industry. Labor could not afford to work for the industries for the wages offered and industries could not afford to pay the wages which labor demanded.

This committee, which was voluntary and advisory, had recommended that there should be co-operation among all classes to reduce prices and speed up industry. The basic industries, Mr. Drury believed, had been receiving too low returns and paying too high charges. The Ontario premier referred to agriculture, which was now on the basis of "dollar wheat," when that price had obtained previously costs of production were vastly lower. The retail prices of their products had increased to the consumer more than they had to the farmer. It was useless for this conference to seek an immediate remedy and not seek to "put things in step."

Must Reduce Costs.
The cost of living must come down so that the cost of products could be reduced without also cutting down the laborer's standard of living.

"Canada has more material and less people than any other country," said Mr. Drury. "It should be the cheapest country in the world to live in." Mr. Drury said there was a tendency to "pass the buck" from one authority to another, but he thought that the Dominion government might be able to secure some information which would help reduce costs.

Mr. Drury paid a tribute to the Ontario municipalities for their co-operation in relief work during the years of crisis.

Tom Moore, president of the Canadian Trades and Labor Congress, presented a memorandum dealing with unemployment from the labor point of view, and also with the international labor organization.

Mr. Moore deplored the present high cost of money, which was hampering development. In his unemployment memorandum Mr. Moore said it was not claimed that it was the duty of governments paternalistically to provide every man and woman with the necessities of life, but for every healthy man and woman there should be full opportunity of employment at wages which would enable them to maintain a proper standard of living; and if private enterprise failed in this respect then it did become the duty of governments to see that none were compelled either to starve or to become paupers.

Work Three Ways.
"Existing conditions," the memorandum set forth, "demand that the unemployment problem be dealt with in three ways: (a) by the provision of temporary relief for emergency cases of destitution; (b) permanent measures to provide for the needs of those unemployed and their dependents; (c) measures for the reduction of, and as far as possible, elimination of unemployment."

The report of suggested measures for dealing with unemployment and under-employment, which was unanimously adopted at the recent convention of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, was placed before the conference.

Referring to the need of public works as a means of eliminating unemployment, Mr. Moore urged that during years of prosperity a fund should be built up from which, during years of unemployment, moneys would be available for public works, which, however, should not be undertaken except upon recommendation of the unemployment civic councils which were in touch with all needs and suggestions.

The memo on labor organization pointed out that organized labor was especially desirous of securing definite results from Canada's membership in the International Labor Organization (League of Nations). Canada's moral obligations, as a member of the League of Nations and the international organization could only be fulfilled by the co-operation of the provinces and effectively to have such co-operation, co-ordinated action was essential.

The Trades and Labor Congress of Canada had expressed itself as being of the opinion that these conventions and recommendations, being the sequence of treaty obligations that they also should be treated as such, federal legislation enacted based upon them. This, however, was not the opinion of the legal advisers of the federal government. The labor congress suggested that the conference recommend such steps as would bring within the scope of federal legislation all matters dealt with by the international labor organizations.

Mr. Moore pointed out the importance of the work being done by the League of Nations and the international labor organization connected with it. Both of these organizations were important to the peace of the world.

RANEY AT LUNCHEON TENDERED TO LORD SHAW

TORONTO, Sept. 6.—Even if the attorney-general, Hon. W. E. Raney, is opposed to carrying appeals from Canada to the privy council in England, this fact did not deter him from attending today's luncheon given by the benchers of the Law Society of Upper Canada to Lord Shaw of the judicial committee of the privy council. Mr. Raney, as attorney-general, attended as an honorary bencher.

Today's luncheon took place in the benchers' historic dining-room on the ground floor. After the viands had been discussed, Featherstone Osler, K.C., treasurer of the Law Society, introduced Lord Shaw to his fellow-lawyers and judges, and the guest replied.

OPPOSES FUSION WITH OLD POLITICAL PARTIES

CALGARY, Sept. 6.—That H. H. Wood, president of the United Farmers of Alberta, is strongly opposed to fusion of the farmer members of the House of Commons with either of the old political parties, is indicated in a special article written by him for the official organization of the United Farmers of Alberta. The article is entitled: "Shall We Turn Forward or Turn Back?"

In his argument, he says farmer members who are considering going into one or other of the old political parties, should resign.

MURDOCK FAILS TO SEE BENEFIT OF NEW HEARING

Minister of Labor Replies To Protest of Railway Employees.

ANXIOUS TO ASSIST

Government Official Urges
Union Men To Reconsider Facts.

OTTAWA, Sept. 6.—(By Canadian Press.)—Hon. James Murdock, minister of labor, tonight telegraphed a reply to the protest of Division No. 4, Canadian railway employees, against the majority report of the board of conciliation in the shop crafts dispute.

"I am not at all convinced that it would answer any beneficial purpose to undertake to resubmit certain questions bearing on the original dispute to the same board whose reports are now before you," he says. He emphasizes the point that the department of labor is most anxious to preserve industrial peace, and "that there will be no delay in giving such assistance in having the questions of vital interest to the employees you represent as fully investigated and reported upon as may be necessary to insure a complete investigation dealing with all essential facts."

The telegram, which was addressed to Charles Dickie, secretary of Division No. 4, follows:

Text of Telegram.
"Your night lettergram received and your protest against the acceptance of the majority report of the board noted. Two members of your committee called at this office Tuesday morning and the apparent objectionable features of the award as determining the questions in dispute were discussed and advice given me was that the committee representing Division No. 4 and the shop craft employees would not be convened formally to consider the board's report until tomorrow (Thursday) morning. It appears to be unfortunate that while the dispute in question was as stated by your committee in its applications, as an attempt made by the Railway Association of Canada to reduce wages five, seven and nine cents per hour, that many facts in relation to this question and its justification were to a large extent overlooked in the actual investigation."

"All members of the board that heard your case appear to agree that only about six hours were spent by both sides in presenting the entire dispute to the board, and it is unfortunate that all of the essential facts in connection with the consistency of the proposed wage reductions were not brought out by your committee."

Anxious To Assist.
"You may still find it necessary to do that. I assume that your entire committee will consider the existing situation when convened, and am not at all convinced that it would answer any beneficial purpose to undertake to resubmit certain questions bearing on the original dispute to the same board whose reports are now before you. Be assured that the department is anxious with you and your committee to assist in maintaining industrial peace and that there will be no delay in giving such assistance in having the questions of vital interest to the employees you represent as fully investigated and reported upon as may be necessary to insure a complete investigation dealing with all the essential facts. You will, however, no doubt desire to ascertain what may be accomplished by further prompt negotiations."

Reading Acknowledges Co-operations of Colonial Governments Re Indian Immigration.

LONDON, Sept. 6.—(Canadian Press.)—In connection with the opening of the session of the council of state and the Indian executive assembly yesterday, the Earl of Reading, Viceroy of India, in addition to his announcement that there would be no change in the policy of the British government towards Indians, his reference to recent events in that country, according to a Reuter cable from Simla, acknowledged the cordial spirit in which the colonial governments were co-operating to make the conditions of Indian immigration free from reasonable objection. Lord Reading said India had every reason to be gratified at the success attained by Hon. Srinivasa Sastry, the Indian representative, who is now on a mission to various British dominions, with a view to obtaining for Indian residents therein a better standing in the matter of citizenship, and the reception accorded Mr. Sastry in each of the dominions must be very gratifying.

The government of India, he said, would be unremitting in asserting and urging the rights of Indians in all parts of the empire.

STATES ENGLISH TRADE REVIVING

Sir Edwin Andrew Cornwall
Says Old Country Regaining Confidence.

WINNIPEG, Sept. 6.—"In spite of all the difficulties under which the old country has, and is laboring, the re-establishment of confidence is coming along," declared Rt. Hon. Sir Edwin Andrew Cornwall, Bart., deputy speaker of the British House of Commons, who is touring Canada with the Montreal Board of Trade party, in an interview here last night. "As soon as that is definitely established, trade and prosperity will follow rapidly," he said.

Discussing the Irish question, Sir Edwin said if the Irish agreement was put into effect it would give great and general pleasure and would be much better, not only for Ireland, but for the whole British Empire.

In a brief discussion of Canada's right of appeal to the privy council, Holman Gregory, K.C., M.P., for South Derbyshire, also touring Canada with the British parliamentarians, made the following statement:

"In my opinion as an English lawyer, Canada would be wise to keep the privy council as the ultimate court of appeal, at least for some years to come."

"The court is a strong one, and must necessarily have unique and unparalleled experience, and I can conceive of no court, no body of judges, who are better able to deal with the important difficult questions which must necessarily arise between members of the community during the growth of a country such as Canada."

REMANDS AUTOIST ON SERIOUS CHARGE

St. Thomas Man Found Guilty of Causing Grievous
Bodily Harm.

Special to London Advertiser.
ST. THOMAS, Sept. 6.—That he had struck Mrs. E. Claus, Regent street, with his car on the night of July 27 and had then speeded away without offering her assistance, was the evidence adduced by the crown in the case of causing grievous bodily harm preferred against Michael Deratany, which was heard in the police court Wednesday morning.

The accused was found guilty of the charge and has been remanded to the county jail until bail can be arranged. The complainant's claim for $300 damages was not disposed of pending an attempt at settlement.

Mrs. Claus, the victim of the accident, testified that she had just stepped off the curb at the north end of Wilson avenue bridge when she heard the noise of the fall, testified that the motorist had sped away but that he had succeeded in getting the number.

The defence was that Mrs. Claus had contributed to the accident by stepping off the curb in the path of the car and was therefore in part responsible for the damage which she sustained.

In the box, Deratany protested his innocence. He had driven the car for 15,000 miles without any accident, he said. He declared that he had not heard Mr. Kidner call.

In summing up the case, Magistrate Maxwell pointed out that not enough regard was paid by motorists to the rights of pedestrians, and that it was a negligent practice to drive so close to the curb.

Crown Attorney McCrimmon prosecuted and J. E. Davidson acted for the defence.

SIXTH VICTIM OF WOOD ALCOHOL POISONING DIES

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—The sixth death attributed to wood alcohol poisoning in the Red Hook section of Brooklyn this week, occurred today ending the agonies of Michael Keenan, who became blind last midnight.

Two of the victims were women. It was Keenan who gave the police the tip which led to the arrest of two men and a woman on homicide charges. He said he feared something had happened to his landlady, Mrs. Theresa Martin, and he guided the police to her room. They found the woman dead.

In seeking the cause they found four other dead and reported that had liquor was in circulation in the district.

PEACHES ROT ON TREES IN NIAGARA

ST. CATHARINES, Sept. 6.—Many peaches in the Niagara fruit belt will rot on the trees this season, while the rest of the country is clamoring for the fruit. The intense heat of the last day or two has ripened the crop fast, and the problem of getting it harvested and shipped is one hard to solve.

Marketing activities, generally speaking, however, are widening. This week Niagara peaches started on their way to England, and if the experiment proves successful it is expected that the old country market will prove a profitable one.

People always talking haven't time to think up anything to say. Some towns have all the luck. In New York a school burned.

LONDONERS FIGURE IN PASSION PLAY

Assist With Production of "Victory in Defeat" At Okanagan Home Theatre.

An interesting souvenir brought home by Mr. and Mrs. Jared Vining from a visit to Karamata, now famous for Carroll Atkins' Home Theatre, where a little group of London girls have been studying dramatic art this past summer, is a program of the presentation of what is termed the "Canadian Passion Play." The title is "Victory in Defeat." A study of spiritual progress in the life of Christ, dedicated by the Canadian Players gathered there to the memory of Marjorie Pickthart, Miss Blanche Hancock of this city was one of the two members of the executive in charge of arrangements, and Miss Margaret Glass, with an assistant, looked after settings and costumes for the production, given daily from July 31 to August 3.

"Victory in Defeat," according to the Vancouver Daily Province, differs from the Oberammergau Passion Play in two respects. It is not strictly speaking a play at all, but a series of tableaux, seen against a screen of marvellous and ever-changing luminosity. In the second place, it is not a continuous and historical review of the life of Christ, but a series of incidents selected for their artistic rather than their purely religious significance.

Mr. and Mrs. Vining made their pilgrimage to see the Home Theatre, which has drawn students of drama from all parts of Canada, while stopping over a day in Penticton, 10 miles away.

The theatre itself, Mrs. Vining states, was built originally as a fruit packing house by Mr. Carroll Atkins for his large orchard, which he had undertaken to work in quest of health, rather than money. The second story of the big shed has been transformed into a gem of a theatre while the lower floor serves its original purpose.

The students work on fruit picking as needed and the London girls were in their farmette costumes when met by Mr. and Mrs. Vining. The players enjoy a happy fellowship with others of kindred interests in the desire to realize the ideals of Mr. Carroll Atkins. His work on the Greek dramatists as well as modern plays is already becoming known throughout Canada to discerning theatre lovers.

The four London students, Misses Margaret Glass, Shirley White, Constance Blackburn and Blanche Hancock are expected home on September 19.

Marriage a La Mode

THERE is very little quarrelling between mother and daughter-in-law in the Fiji Islands.

This is because the wife dares not address the mother-in-law—that implies a disrespect that cannot be brooked.

However, through the husband, the mother-in-law is dictator in the home, and the wife has practically no rights.

SURE WAY TO GET RID OF BLACKHEADS

There is one simple, safe and sure way that never fails to get rid of blackheads, and that is to dissolve them.

To do this get two ounces of peroxide powder from any drug store, sprinkle a little on a hot, wet sponge, rub over the blackheads briskly, wash the parts, and you will be surprised how the blackheads have disappeared. Big blackheads, little blackheads, no matter where they are, simply dissolve and disappear, leaving the parts without any mark whatever. Blackheads are simply a mixture of dust and dirt and secretions from the body that form in the pores of the skin. Pinching and squeezing only causes irritation, makes large pores, and does not get them out after they become hard. The peroxide powder and water simply dissolve the blackheads so they wash right out, leaving the pores free and clean and in their natural condition. Anybody troubled with these unsightly blemishes should certainly try this simple method.—Adv.

Don't Ruin House With Soft Coal Smoke Burn "Strike Fuel" In Expert's Way

Are you numbered among the homemakers who are bemoaning the lack of "black diamonds" in the basement? Are you one who never before realized in quite the same way the preciousness of sparkling anthracite, unless, perhaps, in those war days of transportation difficulties, when occasionally it seemed you were getting your coal doled out by quart measure?

Prospects at present are that hard coal will not be shipped into London freely until towards Christmas time. For those who failed to get in a supply of coal in the late spring the necessity confronts of making the best of the soft coal available.

"But it will ruin the decorations of the house, the curtains, the hangings, the coverings, ruin everything," is a wall that is heard to right and to left, as visions are conjured up of weeks of "dirty black soft coal smoke."

"Not necessarily," said a London authority on coal the other day to the Women's Department of The Advertiser. Specially requested to do so, Mr. William Martin has prepared the following directions, based on his own knowledge and experience, for the use of soft coal for domestic purposes, with safety, cleanliness and satisfaction:

"These are directions for burning soft coal in furnace, range or other heating apparatus which is not self-drafting. Soft coal cannot be safely used in baseburning stoves."

"In making the first fire have all drafts on full. Put in a generous amount of kindling and only about enough soft coal to cover the kindling. For this first fire avoid the use of coal smaller than about three inches square, otherwise the kindling may be smothered or the shaker become clogged. Allow this to burn until it has become a bed of red-hot coals, which should then be pushed back in the fire pot as far as possible. In front of the glowing coals put in a fresh supply of about half the quantity used when firing hard coal. Ignition then takes place from back to front, the fire spreading over the fresh coal burning the gases and reducing the formation of smoke and soot."

"After the first fire it is not important that you select the larger pieces, but more care is taken and the smaller pieces used for topping each fresh supply."

"The upper or blower draft should be on full, or nearly so, at all times, so as to carry off any unburned gases or smoke."

"The under draft will have to be regulated by the amount of natural draft there is in your chimney. This will be indicated by a quick or slow-burning fire, and the under draft should be checked accordingly. In most cases the under draft is required to burn soft coal after a bed of red-hot coals has been produced."

"Soft coal fires require much more frequent attention than hard coal."

Put out the foregoing and post it up for future reference.

WITH THE BRIDES WALLS-SHIPLEY.

Miss Meda Bligh acting as bridesmaid, while the groom was supported by Mr. Clifford Payne, brother of the bride. The happy couple will take up their residence in West Zorra.

OWN MISSIONARY WRITES.

The Senior Mission Circle of Askin Street Methodist Church met Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. William Westcott, Euclid avenue, with the president, Mrs. Herbert Childs, in the chair.

A committee was appointed to look after a crusade meeting to be held in October. An interesting letter received by Mrs. Childs from Miss Govanlock, who is in Kanazawa, telling of her work in Japan, was read by Miss Winifred Dunn. Miss Govanlock was a former member of Askin Street Church. The Bible reading was given by Mrs. Fretz.

Following the business part of the meeting a charming program was enjoyed, including solos by Miss Minnie Westcott and Miss Finn. The conclusion of the meeting supper was served by the hostess.

DR. COPP COMING.

Dr. C. J. Copp, assistant commissioner for Ontario of St. John Ambulance Brigade Overseas, is coming to London about the middle of October to inspect the work here and present certificates, medallions, labels and pendants to those who have qualified.

ADMIRE READING DESK PRESENTED TO HOME

W. C. A. Views Mrs. Tilley Memorial, Gift of King's Daughters.

Meeting Wednesday afternoon in the Victoria Home, South London, the members of the Women's Christian Association saw for the first time the beautiful reading desk presented to the home for services by the City Union King's Daughters, as a memorial to the late Mrs. Tilley. Delight with it was expressed by one and all.

A tour of the home after the meeting also revealed everything in most satisfactory condition. The business was largely routine. Mrs. C. B. Hunt presiding in the absence of the president, Mrs. John Currie, owing to illness in her family.

MY GARDEN.

My garden is a wondrous spot. Where perfect peace prevails. The little blue forget-me-not unfolds her mystic tales.

The pansy faces gently smile. As I refresh their bed. And butterflies try to beguile. The bluebell's drooping head.

Big sunflowers stand still by the wall. To guard the smaller flowers. The hollyhocks so fair and tall. Protect them from the showers.

The lovely iris lithesome bend. In colors white and blue. Sweet-scented stocks their perfumes lend. To flowers with just a hue.

Alyssum sweet a border makes—So perfect is the sight—Begonias then their places take. With margolds so bright.

Fair asters and the daisies greet The morning glories' glow. Grape vines and honeysuckle meet Sweet marguerites in a row.

The many species of the rose. Who always seem to blush. My garden where such beauties pose. There seems a sacred hush.

EMERGENCY HOSPITAL OPENED AT QUEEN'S PARK

RESURRECTION ROCK

by Edwin Palmer
© 1922, Edwin Palmer

Luke gazed at his father, uncertain for a minute whether the old man were wholly serious. His father was never more offensive to him than when he chuckled in satisfaction at his own smartness.

The next day, when Lucas completed his business with his lawyer, Jaccard, he himself made an appointment with a private detective who proved so competent that when Ethel left the house on Scott street that afternoon she had no idea whatever that she was followed.

"Started work 2:15 p.m. opposite Scott street. Miss Ethel Carew, left by front door 2:55." So read that portion of the confidential report which was supplied to Lucas early that evening.

"Followed her to—N. State street where she rang, was admitted at 3:20 and remained until seven minutes to four. Inquiry established that number—15—is establishment of a Mrs. H. J. Davol, a professional psychic medium of apparently high-class practice, no police court record of arrest or conviction."

CHAPTER XII.
THE young man who called himself Barney Loufrelle, had never, for himself and upon this personal errand, entered such a home as that on Scott street.

Ethel, upon the floor above, had been ready for many minutes. She had seen Barney approaching the house; but she had waited for the servant to tell her that Mr. Loufrelle had come and then, amazingly, a tremor had attacked her when she reached the head of the stairs.

The sight of his strong, vigorous figure striding toward her had started a flutter in her breast which a moment of argument with self could quiet.

"Miss Carew!" he spoke her name when she appeared.
"I'm so glad you're here!" she said. "Oh, I'm so glad. A great deal has happened. I found out a good deal more about James Quinlan."

"I told the landlady where he lived that I was a Cullen, and of course concerned about him."
"Something had happened inside James Quinlan after Robert was shot down in flames which probably made it impossible for my uncle, who had taken grandfather's place here, to keep on controlling Quinlan in the old way," she said. "Whatever it was, it made Quinlan want to go to Resurrection Rock; I don't know whether he went there to find you. I can't quite see how that could be, but he certainly went there, and grandfather was afraid of his seeing you. That's quite clear. Grandfather was afraid, too. I think, of Quinlan coming to him. But Quinlan doesn't seem to have gone to St. Florentin at all; he went to Resurrection Rock; and Kincheloe found him there and killed him so that he could never speak to you."

"Your ring," Ethel recalled to herself suddenly. "And the device carved on the mantel in that room? He did not need to mention what room; he was thinking of it, too."
"They were identical, Miss Carew," he said with a sudden emphasis which betrayed to her something of what he had been thinking of.

"For a moment more Ethel stood quivering with feeling for him—for this boy from the Indian shack in the Charlevoix woods finding, at last, something which traced to his ring and to himself. Then her thought went to that photograph upstairs."

She went over with him in detail everything she had done since leaving him, including her call of the afternoon at Mrs. Davol's where, she reported, she had made an appointment for a sitting that evening.

She heard a servant opening the front door and realized that this was the hour at which Bennet dropped in to scold and argue with her.

"Hello!" he called before him, coming into the drawing-room; then, seeing Barney, he squared about challengingly.
"Mr. Loufrelle, this is my cousin Bennet Cullen."

"Loufrelle!" Bennet repeated, facing about to Barney again. "So you are Loufrelle!"
The exclamation was so insulting that Ethel recoiled that Barney offered no reply.

"What do you want here?" Bennet was demanding.
"Miss Carew knows why I am here," Barney replied quietly.

"I'll ask you to tell me," Bennet attempted to command.
"That's no use," Barney said, shaking his head slightly.

It was no use; and Bennet was alert-minded enough to recognize it. Finally he became calm and the new developments were thoroughly explained. He examined the envelope and postmark of Ethel's letter from Huxton, and he again pronounced the entire affair a lunatic's hoax and then determined to accompany his cousin and Barney to the sitting with Mrs. Davol that night.

CHAPTER XIII.
ETHEL explained the details of spirit communication while Bennet, Barney and she drove to Mrs. Davol's in Bennet's car. Barney, having attended sittings in England, was of course familiar with the ordinary methods; but Bennet was almost wholly ignorant of the subject.

The medium wore a plain gray woolen dress, which closely fitted the ample lines of her figure.
"These your friends?" Mrs. Davol inquired as Ethel greeted her. She pointed to seats close together while she herself took the large, leather chair near the center of the room.

"Sometimes, just before Eva comes, I'm clairvoyant; I see things pretty clear," Mrs. Davol volunteered. "When I do, of course, I'll tell you what I see."

Strangely the presence of the medium, instead of intensifying for Ethel the solemnity of the room, had dispelled it. "I feel a lot of force here," the medium said.
"She ought to feel the police force," Bennet whispered derisively to Ethel, who made no reply while she watched Barney who had supplied himself with a pad and pencil, which he now took from his pocket ready to record what would be said.

"I think sure you'll get something," Mrs. Davol continued. "I see—I see a woman, very beautiful. She is no longer young; she is middle-aged; she—now I see water; I see a lot of water and people swimming; she is in the water; she is drowning; she is trying to swim. I see a great ship sinking. I think it is a steamer; it is going down. Yes; it is a steamer. I see many people in the water; but now I do not see her."

The voice of the medium halted, and Barney filled in, from memory, the gaps of unimportant words when the medium spoke too fast for his pencil to follow.

"I still see water," continued Mrs. Davol, "but not the same water; this is smooth and blue and very clear. Ice floats in it. I see trees on the shore and a girl in a cloak walking under the trees. She bears a burden beneath her coat—now I see her more clearly—the burden she bears is a child—unborn—the stumbles and is afraid—she looks upon the water and seems to think to cast herself in—but now someone appears in a boat—padding—it is a canoe—"

Again the voice of the medium halted; and now, though the description recalled nothing to Ethel's mind, yet the manner of this recital of vision lessened Ethel's feeling of fraud.

Mrs. Davol suddenly thrust herself back in her chair and her voice marvelously altered.
"There is someone here with much difficulty," this new voice said. "Quite old. He wants very hard to speak. He is with two others, both much younger. Eva has seen one of them before; Eva feels one of them was waiting for him, the old man not well built up—He had a troubled life—he wants to say—but cannot—"

The voice trailed off into murmurs, unintelligible and then inaudible.
"I suppose," said Bennet, leaning again to Ethel's ear, "this is the trance; she's under her control. Little Eva spoke that piece."

"Can you describe the man better now?" Mrs. Davol inquired of the medium, writing his own question as he had recorded the others.

"He shows me a capital Q," the voice of "Eva" continued strongly and distinctly. "Now a J with it; the J is before the Q; J Q."

"Q?" Bennet challenged.
The voice did not reply directly. "Eva feels like a blow in the breast; there is something from it. He does not know he is giving this. He has not done it on purpose; they have tried to make him forget that; but Eva gets it from him. I am happy," he says, "It is true, I am happy. He can say that; but that is all now. He holds up in his hand a torch—a flaming torch. Associated with the torch is the word Galilee. The younger man leads him away. The voice again ceased."

Ethel gazed at Barney who had stopped writing and turned to her but made no comment; Bennet waited silently, and Ethel knew that to both of them the reference to James Quinlan was as clear as to herself.

"Does that 'Galilee' and torch stuff mean anything to you?" Bennet demanded of her.

She shook her head to tell him that it did not as the medium began to speak again.

"Someone stands behind you," she said to Ethel; and Ethel turned about, startled, and saw—

"Who?" Ethel cried, bending forward. "Who do you see?"

"One who loved you much; he is tall; middle-aged; he smiles lovingly. He has brown hair, blue eyes, good features. He says he is your father. His hair is lighter than brown. Eva cannot see his face very clearly. He has been trying to come to you many times before; but there have been difficulties."

Ethel the solemnity of the room, had dispelled it. "I feel a lot of force here," the medium said.
"She ought to feel the police force," Bennet whispered derisively to Ethel, who made no reply while she watched Barney who had supplied himself with a pad and pencil, which he now took from his pocket ready to record what would be said.

JACK DAW'S ADVENTURES

JACK RACED THE SPEEDY HORSE AS FAST AS HE COULD GO. THEN HE RAN UP TO THE DOOR AND POUNDED ON IT AS HARD AS HE COULD. "HURRY AND OPEN THE DOOR," SHOUTED JACK. "SHORTLY HE HEARD FOOTSTEPS. JACK WAS IMPATIENT AND EXCITED SO COULD HARDLY WAIT."

"What does he want to say?" Ethel demanded again.
"He builds up something; a letter," the voice continued. "The letter L."
"What does that mean?"
"It is his name; no, he shakes his head. It is the name of a place, a city where something has happened."
"London?" Ethel put in again.
"Yes; London. He says it is the name of a person, too."
"What about that person?"
"He says important events will come; he wants to say, they are happening now with L. Now he is going. Another is present. He is a brown-faced man with straight, black hair; an Indian—"

Barney put the next question in a strange word, and Ethel, glancing at his pad, saw that he wrote as his question:
"Ochtipwen?"
"He nods yes," replied "Eva." "He was a Chippewa."

To Be Continued.

Rough Coats Are Modish

A HERRINGBONE on the back is worth half a dozen on the plate this season. Women have taken over all woolen stuffs in this pattern—formerly monopolized by men—and are making fall and winter coats of them.

These coats are of the rough-and-ready variety. Some of them are made with voluminous over-capes to shield one from the "raucous" blasts. Some have sleeves set in several inches below the shoulder. Others have raglan sleeves.

They are made with collars that button tight under the chin, are severely notched, tailored fashion, or are slightly draped in the back and roll open in front.

The materials are all herringbone weaves, checked and plaid wool velvets, plaid-backed coatings, wool tricot and suede.

Why Not Vary Your Menus? Here's How

BY BERTHA SHAPLEIGH
Of Columbia University.

So many women, whose duty it is to feed a family three times a day, get tired and discouraged doing the same thing over and over! Thinking to find something new, they read recipes from a cook book or magazine.

There it is, and they attempt a new dish which takes much time and some money, and then often come the exclamations from the "kitchen," "I would rather have your cake than this!" Do not try a difficult recipe unless quite sure that the time will be well spent, and the result acceptable to the family. Rather, use your own recipe, and change its form or garnish.

The one reliable cake recipe may be baked in muffin tins and served with a chocolate or fruit sauce.

The plain cornstarch pudding may have the whites of three eggs added to it as it comes from the fire. A sauce made from the yolks, in other words a soft custard, will quite change the pudding. Or line the mold in which the pudding is cooled with slices of canned pineapple and it is quite a new dessert.

Or, instead of serving the chopped meat in balls, make a roll of it, bake it, and serve a tomato sauce with it. Save out bread dough, if you make your own bread, and add some sugar, a little butter, and an egg, and surprise the family with some sweet rolls.

Too many cooks are afraid of experimenting and feel that they must have a recipe before them. Someone invents new dishes, why not you? A soup kettle is a wonderful thing! In it can go so many scraps, bits of raw vegetables, bones from roasts, and the result is a stock which can be used for sauces, or soup, or a liquid in which to cook vegetables.

A soup, even though there is but little meat in it, which has vegetables and beans and macaroni or rice, is sufficient for a meal when served with bread and butter, possibly a salad, and a sweet. A few left-over vegetables, such as one boiled potato, half a cup of peas, a stalk of celery, a beet, and, of course, a bit of onion will make a small salad. And if by chance an egg was left at breakfast time, chop it up and put it in the salad.

A small amount of cooked vegetable may always be used for the foundation of a cream soup.

It is not the cost originally, but the utilization of food which makes for economy.

GIRLS! LEMONS WHITEN SKIN AND BLEACH FRECKLES

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of Orchard or White drug store will supply for a few cents, shake well, and you have a quart of harmless and delicious lemon lotion. Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face, neck, arms and hands each day, then shortly note the beauty and whiteness of your skin.

Famous stage beauties use this lemon lotion to bleach and bring that soft, clear, rosy-white complexion, also as a freckle, sunburn and tan bleach, because it doesn't irritate. Adv.

Radio Radiations

It is no longer necessary to put any more stress on talk to be broadcast by radio than is used in ordinary conversation. The new speech input amplifier, shown above, takes care of that. This apparatus amplifies the voice before it enters the transmitting apparatus. Not only is it easy to send the voice broadcast, but the transmitting operator is enabled to hear the voice directly, so that he may supervise the broadcasting.

HELP FOR SHIPS.

Ships without radio facilities, hereafter, will get weather reports—by radio!

This will be done through the aid of those ships that can pick up the weather warnings flashed over the waters from the scattered government stations. It will be a courtesy of the sea which will mean the saving of many lives and much money in vessels and cargo.

After picking up storm or other warnings by radio, they are to relay these by international code or other methods established for some time at sea. The warnings are flashed at regular intervals from any of about 20 high-powered radio stations throughout the world.

Whenever a vessel equipped with wireless picks up a weather warning and, during its course, sights another ship that lacks wireless facilities, the orders are that the reports be signalled by any of the old established codes.

SALADINA PUZZLES
HAM SWAT KINGSBrant Takes Second Game
After Losing First 8-4.

HAMILTON, Sept. 6.—Inability to hit Saladina in pinches kept Hamilton from winning a double-header from Brantford this afternoon. They won the first game 8 to 4, but could not solve the delivery of Saladina in the second game when his meant runs, losing 3 to 2, and allowing London to cut down their lead to two runs. There was a near riot during the second game when cushions and other things not so soft were thrown at the pitcher. SMALL TOWNS EFFECT UNION

Band Together To Secure Share of Canadian Branch Industries.

Mayor of Listowel To Head Committee For Western Ontario.

TORONTO, Sept. 6.—A meeting of representatives of the smaller towns of Ontario was held here today with the object of forming an organization for the purpose of securing interest in industries which are coming to Canada at the present time from both England and the United States.

Another point discussed was that from the standpoint of health of the community in every way more desirable that the towns should be built up rather than the cities become too large.

In order to work up interest in the proposition the province was organized by districts, and accordingly the following appointments were made:

For Ottawa Valley district—W. West of Almonte and A. E. Bradwin of Arnprior. They will call a meeting which will be held at Ottawa of the representatives of such towns as Pembroke, Smith's Falls, Perth, Carleton Place, Renfrew and other towns in this vicinity.

The Niagara peninsula district—William Scott of Port Colborne, Thomas Marshall of Dunnville and F. W. Warren of Dundas, who will call a meeting either in St. Catharines or Hamilton and invite representatives from the towns in their district.

For Western Ontario—Mayor Malcolm of Listowel and the presidents of the boards of trade of Elmira and Wingham will organize their district.

It is proposed eventually to form a provincial organization when a permanent managing secretary will be engaged.

COLONIZATION SCHEME MOOTED

Commissioner Visits Canada to Talk Immigration.

Will Meet Cabinet Members at Ottawa and Make Tour of Provinces.

Montreal, Sept. 6.—A huge colonization scheme to settle Italian immigrants in Canada is projected by the government of Italy, which has sent Joseph De Michalis, general commissioner of immigration, to make a minute survey of industrial and agricultural conditions in the Dominion with a view to ascertaining the quota and the type of immigrant that is most needed here.

Mr. De Michalis passed through Montreal today en route to Ottawa, where he will meet members of the cabinet and confer with departmental heads of the department of labor and immigration. Following these meetings, he will cover each of the provinces from Ontario westward, accompanied by Jules Edouard, Italian consul to Canada. Mr. De Michalis said only the type of settler wanted in Canada would be sent.

When Mr. De Michalis completes his survey in Canada he will make a similar one of the United States, but the field in Canada is believed to be the wider in view of the peculiar immigration restrictions of the U. S. A. In explaining his mission, Mr. De Michalis declared it had three chief aims:

1. To ascertain the class of immigration most needed by the Dominion which Italy could supply.
2. To secure Canadian capital, which would be joined to Italian capital, with the view to establishing Italian farmers on Canadian land; and
3. To collect first hand data on actual conditions in the Dominion, and to determine whether it is in the best interests of the Italian government to embark on the contemplated colonization scheme.

Mr. De Michalis said: "We do not want to send you those who may become a burden on your state. If you have no place for industrial workers, none will be sent out. If your sole need is agricultural workers and the conditions of settlement here are satisfactory, we will send you the type you need."

DISCOVERS BODIES OF 2 MEN IN LAKE

Victims Believed To Be Finns—Police Suspect Foul Play.

SUDBURY, Sept. 6.—According to a report made to District Inspector Storie by Provincial Constable Fraser today, the bodies of two men in an advanced state of decomposition, one of whom had evidently suffered a heavy blow on the face before death, weighed down by stones, were discovered by a Finn named Walter Gronlund, in a small lake situated 25 miles due northeast of Regent, on the Algoma Central Railway, on August 24.

It is thought that the bodies are those of two Finnish men, Victor Joki and Hannes Nemi Keuru, who were reported missing from Port Arthur in the early part of July of this year. The last trace of whose whereabouts ended in the vicinity where the bodies were found.

Joki was a widower, 35 years of age. He left two children. Keuru was 30 years of age and was single. The police suspect foul play and are investigating.

Gas In the Stomach Is Dangerous

Recommends Daily Use of Magnesia To Overcome Trouble, Caused By Fermenting Food and Acid Indigestion.

Gas and wind in the stomach accompanied by that full, bloated feeling after eating are almost certain evidence of the presence of excessive hydrochloric acid in the stomach, creating so-called "acid indigestion."

Acid stomachs are dangerous because too much acid irritates the delicate lining of the stomach, often leading to gastritis accompanied by serious stomach ulcers. Food ferments and sours, creating the distressing gas which distends the stomach and hampers the normal functions of the vital internal organs, often affecting the heart.

It is the worst of folly to neglect such a serious condition or to treat with ordinary digestive aids which have no neutralizing effect on the stomach acids. Instead get from an druggist a few ounces of Bisulphate of Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quart of water right after eating. This will drive the gas, wind and bloated right out of the body, sweeten the stomach, neutralize the excess acid and prevent its formation and there is no sourness or pain. Bisulphate of Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and the best form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.—Adv.
