

FLOWERS AND PLANTS
FOR GIFTS

Choice boxes of Roses Carnations, Violets, etc., shipped by Express for $1.00 and up in price.

Telephone or write us

THE HAY FLORAL & SEED CO.
BROCKVILLE - ONTARIO

The Athens Reporter

Milk Statements

We supply promptly at moderate cost all kinds of stationery for the dairy business.

The Reporter Office
Athens, Ont.

—AND—
COUNTY OF LEEDS ADVERTISER.

Vol. XXIII. No. 35 Athens, Leeds County, Ontario, Wednesday, Aug. 28, 1907. G. F. Donnelly, Publisher

BROCKVILLE'S GREATEST STORE

Ready-to-Wear Garments

At a Greater Sacrifice

Clearing up time in our ready to wear store—all summer garments at surprising sacrifices.

Boys' Wash Suits

Buster Brown Suits with sailor collar and belt. Just a few left in plain colors or checks, $1.50 suit for $1.25, $1.50 suit for $1.25, $1.50 suit for $1.00, $1.00 suit for 68c

White Silk Blouses $2.75

These are choice new white Jap Silk Blouses, open back with five tucks, full front with two rows fine pin tucks and one row narrow lace forming deep yoke, with lace medallion in centre, 3 rows lace and tucks below yoke, lace collar, 1 sleeve trimmed with lace, sizes 34 to 40, regular price $3.50, for..... $2.75

80c White Underskirts for 69c

White Cambric Underskirts, with frill containing 3 tucks, finished with wide torobon lace, 9 only, were 80c, for..... 69c

Wash Skirts $2.25, for $1.50

A few Wash Skirts left in black and white checks, some pleated, some strapped, were $2.50 and $2.25, choice for..... $1.50

$10.00 Short Jackets for $5.00

Neat, short, tight-fitting coats of fawn covert cloth, stitched and strapped, just right for cool evenings, were $10.00, for..... 5.00

Wash Suits Half Price

All our ladies' beautiful wash suits selling at half price. Seems a shame to sell them at a sacrifice—less than cost of material.

Robt. Wright & Co.
IMPORTERS
BROCKVILLE - ONTARIO
Brockville Sept. 10th to 13th

Local and General

Miss Gertrude Young is spending this week in Toronto.

The funeral of the late Caroline Newlan, Lake Elvida, is taking place to-day.

Mrs. Wm. Mott, after a year's residence in New York state, returns to Athens this week.

Mr. G. F. Gainford has temporarily accepted the leadership of the Methodist church choir, Athens.

The supplementary promotion examinations will be held in the A.H.S. on Tuesday next, commencing at 1.30 p.m.

Mrs. Susan Cheeseman is very ill at her home here. Mr. and Mrs. A. Hendry of Lyn visited her this week.

Epworth League Monday evening. Topic—"I can and I can't." Roll call and collection. Leader, Mrs. Wm. Johnson.

Dr. A. E. Taplin of Sisseton, S. Dak., after an absence of sixteen years, is visiting relatives and friends in Athens.

Secretary Wright of Brockville Fair is negotiating for a baseball game on Sept. 11th between Westport or Elgin and Brockville.

The Reporter can effect a big saving to any boy or girl who contemplates attending a business college this fall. Call or write.

Labor Day, Monday, Sept. 2nd, is to be observed as a public holiday in Athens and all places of business will be closed.

Mr. Ardie W. Parish went to Toronto exhibition on Tuesday and Mrs. Parish is spending the week with friends in Newboro.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Smith and Miss Belle Wilse left on Tuesday morning for a trip that includes a visit at Toronto and points in Western Ontario.

Mrs. Brockizen of Iowa and Mrs. Wm. Stafford of Delta are home, assisting in the care of their father, Mr. Silas Hombin, who has been ill with pleurisy for several days.

Newboro Fair—Train leaves Athens 10.30 a.m. Monday; returning, will leave Newboro at 5.15 p.m. and 9.30 p.m. Fare for round trip .50c.

Mr. John Mackie, a widely known and esteemed resident of Kitley, departed this life on Tuesday, aged 90 years. The funeral is taking place to-day.

The property of the Rev. John Wilson at Charleston Lake is being given a new roof and repaired generally. The Rev. Mr. Wilson may return to it next summer.

Rideau Excursion—120 miles for $1.00; positively, last of season. Stop will be made at Jones Falls and other points of interest. Special train will leave Athens 7.40 a. m., Aug. 30th.

Recorder: Miss Louisa Moore, of Addison has been in town for the past week the guest of Mrs. W. Wilson, Mrs. L. Lyman, Mrs. W. J. Kearns, and Mrs. Anson Earle.

The Rev. S. J. Hughes will take his own work in Athens next Sunday. The service at Lake Elvida in the afternoon will be withdrawn on account of the campmeeting being held at the Lake.

With the rapid shrinkage in the milk supply, due to the poor pasturage, cheese salesmen find it hard to understand just why the price of cheese falls to respond to these conditions by climbing up nearer the 12c mark, and so they are reluctant to part with their goods. At the meeting of Brockville board on Saturday the top bid was 11½c for both white and colored, but not a single box was sold. On the kerb as high as 11½c is reported to have been paid. For the same week last year the price was 12½c.

Practical Mission Work

On Tuesday last the W.F.M.S. together with some other ladies of St. Paul's Presbyterian church, met to sew at the home of Mrs. R. Henderson. They quilted a large quilt which the Mission Band had pieced and made several articles of clothing for an Indian girl who is being educated in the Mission School at Regina.

By way of encouragement, the little girls were invited for tea and with the others freely partook of the dainty repast, after which a musical programme was enjoyed and the party wended their way home by the light of the moon, well satisfied with their work and day's outing.

DEATH OF JENNETTE KELLY

Early on Monday morning last Miss Jennette Kelly, adopted daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Kelly, departed this life, after a lingering illness, aged 80 years. Only a year ago Miss Kelly appeared to be in excellent health, but that fell destroyer, consumption, slowly but surely, pursued its deadly course and the end came at a time when life is at its best.

Miss Kelly had for years been a member of the choir of the Methodist church and in other respects gave what aid she could to the advancement of the church's work. Bright intellectually and possessed of a mild disposition, she made many friends who sincerely mourn her early demise.

Growing up in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Kelly, she proved a loving, obedient daughter, who responded readily to the kind treatment she always received.

During the last months of her illness many anxious inquiries were made by friends in Athens as to her condition and the tender solicitude of all must have proved a balm to the sufferer. She was attended with the utmost love and affection by members of the household, and during the last days she enjoyed the ministrations of her sister, Mrs. Henry Hutton of Spragueville, N.Y.

The funeral was held on Tuesday afternoon in the Methodist church, and it was very largely attended. The choir rendered specially appropriate music and the pastor, Rev. S. J. Hughes, spoke very feelingly and impressively from the text Jer. 16: 9—"Her sun is gone down while it is yet day."

The casket, which was borne by six young men, was covered with a wealth of floral tributes to the memory of deceased.

Death of Mrs. Chamberlain

On Friday last, Aug. 23rd, at St. Vincent de Paul Hospital, Brockville, Ruth Eliza Chamberlain, relict of the late Rev. Wyatt Chamberlain, departed this life, aged 86 years. Deceased was a native of Harlem, a half sister of the late Dr. Asher Chamberlain of Athens, and in years gone by was a frequent visitor here. She was for several years a resident of Frankville and North Augusta but during her declining years has made her home with her daughter, Mrs. S. J. Bellamy of Prescott. Other surviving children are Mrs. J. B. Bellamy of Rochester, N.Y., Mrs. Atwood of Rockford, Ill., and Mr. A. Chamberlain of Waddington. A woman of high Christian character, of tireless industry, always a friend of those in need, her memory is revered by all her acquaintances.

Interment was made at North Augusta.

After Forty-Seven Years

Last week, E. W. Root came to visit his sister, Mrs. John Mackie. He left Leeds county in 1860 and went to Salem, Iowa, and in 1861 enlisted in the Northern Army; was taken prisoner by the rebels at Shiloh. After spending two months in Cahaba prison, he, with many others, was paroled but was soon exchanged for Southern prisoner and was in the field against the foe once more. He was in fifteen hard battles and several skirmishes, but was never wounded. After serving three years he was discharged.

He now lives in Fresno, California where he has concluded to stay and enjoy his comfortable fortune. Although he was absent for forty-seven years, he found here some old schoolmates to greet him and many familiar faces, among them his school teacher of 53 years ago, Mr. Gilbert Austin.

ADDITIONAL A.H.S. RESULTS

In addition to the High School results published last week, the following have been awarded Honor Matriculation standing:—

Edie L. Blancher—Honors in English, Mathematics, History and Science

Florence E. Scovill—Honors in English and History; pass in Mathematics

Julia E. Washburne—Honors in English, History and Mathematics; pass in Science.

BROCKVILLE FAIR
SEPTEMBER 10 TO 13

ZINCARELLA—Only Woman Spiral Acrobats in the world, in thrilling, amazing 15 minute act.

$2,000 RACE PROGRAMME

THE KITIMURA JAPS in five marvelous acts.

Grand Live Stock Parade

—AT THE BIG—

Summer Sale

The goods and not the talk about them, makes this sale. It isn't because of large type and big space in the newspapers, it isn't because of persuasive argument, it isn't because of special public preference for this store. It isn't for any of these reasons that this sale is in records of sale far beyond anything in our history. It is because of the high quality of the goods and the extreme low prices that the chief July activity centres here.

Men's $10 $9 and $8.50 Suits, Sale Price $5.00

Test this for yourself if you have time, interest and economy at heart.

THE GLOBE CLOTHING HOUSE
BROCKVILLE

THE STAR WARDROBE

Why should a man wear clothes of indifferent fit, that always look "slouchy" after a week or two, when for practically the same money he can get something made to his measure that is made right?

Our prices range from $15.00 up.

M. J. KEHOE - Brockville

BUY NOW

Clothing Prices Reduced
Furnishing Prices Reduced
Hat Prices Reduced

BUY NOW

Between seasons, when Clearance Sale time arrives, we always tempt the buying appetite with unusual inducements. Twice a year we hold these bargain feasts.

Our Mid-Summer Function is Now - Duel

There are weeks and weeks of summer weather ahead and, certainly, any investment made at our present prices will prove a profitable one. We inaugurate these sales for two reasons—first, we want the money; second, we want the room. To these we add our determination to carry over no stock. Won't these prices turn your footsteps towards this bargain feast.

$18.00 and $16.00 Suits for $12.00
$15.00, $14.00 and $12.00 Suits for... 9.95
$11.00 and $10.00 Suits for 6.99
$9.00, $8.00 and $7.00 Suits for..... 4.99

E. WISEMAN & SON

Authorized agents for The Progress Brand Clothing

—TWO BUSY STORES—
BROCKVILLE - AND - SMITH'S FALLS

FALL TERM OPENS

TUESDAY, SEPT. 3

The difference between short and long hours, high and low wages, drudgery and dignified employment is mainly in education. Get your education at

.....The.....

Brockville Business College
BROCKVILLE, ONT.

W. H. SHAW, PRESIDENT. W. T. ROGERS, PRINCIPAL.

Send a request for our new catalogue.

THIS ORIGINAL DOCUMENT IS IN VERY POOR CONDITION

At Sea With the Dreadnought.

(By Frank T. Bullen.) We silently stole out of harbor into weather of the usual type...

Many valuable animals have been permanently injured by such blows given under impulse of the result of variations of switching of tail or struggling...

By this one makes certain contraction of the hoofs, with all its attendant permanent ill-effects...

Then I was taken over the helmsman's wheel which was not used there...

Then to the control of the delicate gear operated by the little wheel on the bridge 400 feet away...

Then to the control of the delicate gear operated by the little wheel on the bridge 400 feet away...

Then to the control of the delicate gear operated by the little wheel on the bridge 400 feet away...

Then to the control of the delicate gear operated by the little wheel on the bridge 400 feet away...

Then to the control of the delicate gear operated by the little wheel on the bridge 400 feet away...

ROOF RIGHT NOW

There is one roof that saves money because it will last 100 years. "OSHAWA" GALVANIZED STEEL SHINGLES.

By this one makes certain contraction of the hoofs, with all its attendant permanent ill-effects...

Then I was taken over the helmsman's wheel which was not used there...

Then to the control of the delicate gear operated by the little wheel on the bridge 400 feet away...

Then to the control of the delicate gear operated by the little wheel on the bridge 400 feet away...

Then to the control of the delicate gear operated by the little wheel on the bridge 400 feet away...

Then to the control of the delicate gear operated by the little wheel on the bridge 400 feet away...

Then to the control of the delicate gear operated by the little wheel on the bridge 400 feet away...

Then to the control of the delicate gear operated by the little wheel on the bridge 400 feet away...

Advertisement for Wilson's Fly Pads, featuring an illustration of a fly and text describing the product's benefits for horses.

When to Wind a Watch. The Morning, Not the Evening, the Best Time, the Watchmaker Says.

Children! Do you want a Painting Book? It's FREE. Ask your mother to send us her name...

Issue No. 33, 1907. Very Serious. Everybody's. Shortly after two o'clock one bitter winter morning...

Same Kind of a Cat. Ethel, aged 8, had succeeded in making her dog stand up on his hind legs...

Nurses' & Mothers' Treasure. Most reliable medicine for baby. Used over 50 years...

Cherish Your Child. Among the presents lately showered upon a Maryland bride was one that was the gift of an elderly lady...

ITCH. Mange, Pruric Strachies and every form of contagious Itch on human or animal cured in 20 minutes...

World's Best Timekeeper. Electric Clock at Berlin Enjoys a Unique Distinction.

Minard's Liniment Cures Burns, etc. Holland seems to be pioneering a new development of sea signals...

Down the St. Lawrence, through the 1,000 Islands, running the rapids, past Montreal, and quaint Quebec...

Advice They Heed. "Yes, I'm going abroad at once. I gotta go."

English Spavin Liniment. Removes all hard, soft or calloused lumps and blemishes from horses...

Minard's Liniment Relieves Neuralgia. A certain type of story, having the sudden and terse conclusion to a direct statement...

Her Dear Friend. Mrs. Capsicum was at the telephone. "Hello!" she said...

Uncle Allen. "Once in a while," said Uncle Allen Spalks, "you meet a man who is so busy talking about the 'higher life'...

Minard's Liniment Cures Dandruff. HORSE SENSE. The Kind Needed, Not by the Horse, But by the Owner.

Execution for Murder of a Man Who Fired at Czar Alexander. Berezowski, the Pole who just forty years ago attempted to assassinate Czar Alexander II...

Banking by Mail. THE making of a Man. Every man has before him a serious problem in providing for future need.

4% Compounded Quarterly. A few hundred, or a thousand or so, ready to hand in case of emergency...

THE UNION TRUST COMPANY LIMITED. TEMPLE BUILDING, TORONTO. Capital and Reserve $2,900,000.

Eddy's Toilet Papers. Are the VERY BEST values going. WE invite comparison as regards QUALITY and QUANTITY of paper supplied...

Eddy's Toilet Papers. Always Everywhere in Canada, Ask for EDDY'S MATCHES.

Minard's Liniment Cures Dandruff. HORSE SENSE. The Kind Needed, Not by the Horse, But by the Owner.

Execution for Murder of a Man Who Fired at Czar Alexander. Berezowski, the Pole who just forty years ago attempted to assassinate Czar Alexander II...

Banking by Mail. THE making of a Man. Every man has before him a serious problem in providing for future need.

4% Compounded Quarterly. A few hundred, or a thousand or so, ready to hand in case of emergency...

THE UNION TRUST COMPANY LIMITED. TEMPLE BUILDING, TORONTO. Capital and Reserve $2,900,000.

Eddy's Toilet Papers. Are the VERY BEST values going. WE invite comparison as regards QUALITY and QUANTITY of paper supplied...

Eddy's Toilet Papers. Always Everywhere in Canada, Ask for EDDY'S MATCHES.

Minard's Liniment Cures Dandruff. HORSE SENSE. The Kind Needed, Not by the Horse, But by the Owner.

Execution for Murder of a Man Who Fired at Czar Alexander. Berezowski, the Pole who just forty years ago attempted to assassinate Czar Alexander II...

Banking by Mail. THE making of a Man. Every man has before him a serious problem in providing for future need.

4% Compounded Quarterly. A few hundred, or a thousand or so, ready to hand in case of emergency...

THE UNION TRUST COMPANY LIMITED. TEMPLE BUILDING, TORONTO. Capital and Reserve $2,900,000.

Eddy's Toilet Papers. Are the VERY BEST values going. WE invite comparison as regards QUALITY and QUANTITY of paper supplied...

Eddy's Toilet Papers. Always Everywhere in Canada, Ask for EDDY'S MATCHES.

REINFORCEMENTS FOR GENERAL DRUDE.

He Will Have 5,000 Under Him When Additional Troops Arrive.

Paris, Aug. 28.—An official note was issued to-day announcing that Gen. Drude, commander of the French expeditionary force in Morocco, will, when the reinforcements now on their way to Casa Blanca reach him, have at his disposal 5,000 men, which number is considered to be sufficient to insure the protection of the town unless the unexpected happens, for which emergency further reinforcements are ready to embark for Morocco.

It is stated that as a result of the latest conferences and exchanges of views with Premier Clemenceau, who is at Maribad, where he met King Edward, the Government remains firm in carrying out its programme, which it is reiterated is not one of conquest.

To-day's despatches from Tangier show that the situation throughout Morocco is becoming more serious. There are fears that the whole country will soon be ablaze with a holy war, which will not be checked until after an awful sacrifice of human life, as the native fanatics have no fear for consequences when the fever of a war against the unbelievers has taken possession of them. The interior is in a ferment. The rebels have proclaimed Mulai Hafiz, the brother of the Sultan, as the true Sultan. This has aroused the natives to a condition of wild excitement, and they are crying for revenge on the "foreign dogs." A new Moorish army has appeared before Casa Blanca and another attack is expected. The constant strain of fighting is beginning to tell on the French troops of Casa Blanca, while all sleep with one eye open, with the arms beside them. Reinforcements have been asked for by Gen. Drude. With his present force he can repulse attacks, but he cannot follow up the enemy after he has driven it from the outskirts of the town.

U. S. Consul Safe.

Washington, Aug. 28.—Through the courtesy of the British charge at Teheran, the Persian capital, the State Department has received the following from the disturbed border country where certain American residents were supposed to be in danger:

"The British Consul at Tabriz reports that American Consul there, Mr. Doty, was about to leave for Urumiah. All was quiet at that place. The Turks were still at Tergavel, and Kamis (reported to have been destroyed) was safe."

Germany Dissatisfied.

Berlin, Aug. 28.—The attention of the German Government is fixed upon the events at Casa Blanca more than upon any other subject in Germany's external relations. The presumption, of course, is that the French Government will observe its declarations at the beginning of the operations and remain in Morocco only long enough to restore order. Yet the indications are that France's definition of that period will depend on developments in the situation and may be a long one. The principle of the French action is considered to be altogether correct. The German Government under similar circumstances would have acted as France has done; in other words she would have sent warships to Casa Blanca had the German subjects been killed. But the French action, although sound in principle, is looked on officially here as not being well managed and as being characterized by a certain degree of ferocity and slaughter that might have been avoided.

SHELLED THE MOORS.

Fog Lifted While They Advanced, and They Were Routed.

Paris, Aug. 28.—Vice-Admiral Philibert, commanding the French naval forces off Casa Blanca, telegraphs that while the Moors were advancing on the French camp near Casa Blanca yesterday morning under the cover of a fog, the fog lifted and permitted the French batteries ashore and afloat to shell the Moors with deadly effect. At 2 o'clock in the afternoon Gen. Drude had moved forward his field guns to a ridge, situated about four miles from the camp, whence he shelled the Moors, who were then in full flight eastward.

Admiral Philibert also reported the situation elsewhere was practically unchanged.

The report that Mulai Hafiz, brother of the Sultan, had been proclaimed Sultan still lacks official confirmation.

HOLY ROLLERS LET CHILD DIE

CORONER'S JURY HOLDS FATHER AND MOTHER FOR NEGLIGENCE.

Both Pray ALOUD in Court Before They Testify—Admit They Gave Baby No Medicine—Frenzied Sec's Noisy Meeting Disturbs Inquest at Tottenville.

New York, Aug. 28.—Several weeks ago the Holy Rollers of Tottenville, Staten Island, prayed for five hours that Peter Peterson, a member of the strange sect, might die, because in the excess of religious zeal he had proclaimed that he was ready to be received by the Lord. Peterson still lives, but yesterday Ruth, Peterson's fifteen-month-old daughter, died at his home on Breunhau Avenue unattended by a physician. Following the tenets of the Holy Rollers, Peterson and his wife had prayed over the sick child instead of administering the medicines a physician had prescribed.

Last night when Peterson and his wife, Anna, were called before a coroner's jury to tell why they had allowed the child to suffer without medical aid, both requested that they might pray for divine guidance before giving their testimony. The mother of the dead child knelt before Coroner Martin Cahill and the jury and lifted up her voice in a prayer.

"Almighty God," she said, "I left my loved one in Your hands for I knew that if You saw fit to save his life You would know that I have done it for the best, but I know You will permit me to see him in heaven some time. The Almighty God is powerful, and I am satisfied that no doctor on earth could prescribe medicine which would cure my child if God saw fit to take my child to me."

While Mrs. Peterson was praying the Holy Rollers, who had purloined a hall next door to the Knights of Pythias Temple, where the inquest was in progress, were engaged in praying vociferously, were engaged in praying vociferously, were engaged in praying vociferously, were engaged in praying vociferously.

IS THE MAN GIANETTI?

He Was Found With Throat Cut in Toronto Hotel.

Toronto despatch: A man found with his throat cut in Toronto in the Cecil Hotel, at the corner of Beaufort and Queen streets at midnight last night is believed by the police to be the missing agent of the Banco Gianetti, for whose arrest a warrant is out.

In his pockets were found letters addressed to A. Gianetti, Toronto, and business cards of the Banco Gianetti. The man answers the description of the missing agent, and his face resembles the picture furnished to the police of the missing man.

Bills to the amount of $1,400 were found in the man's pockets. Pending identification the remains were taken to Craig's undertaking establishment on Queen street west.

The bank yesterday was closed, and scores of Italians, driven almost to despair by the fear that they had been defrauded out of their hard-earned savings intended for those depending upon them in Italy and entrusted to the bank were urging the authorities to have an investigation into the bank's affairs prosecuted without delay. Mr. Michael Basso and Prof. Sacco, the latter of the Ontario Immigration Department, are co-operating with the police in the case.

TO HAVE A DECENT BURIAL.

Hon. Mr. Foy Issues Order to Save Old Soldiers From Dissection.

Toronto, Aug. 28.—According to an order issued by Hon. J. J. Foy, Acting Premier, all dead paupers who have in their lives served as soldiers of the Empire shall be given a decent burial, so far as it can be assured, by a Government grant of $5 in each case. This decision was reached on representations of Major Collins, President of the Army and Navy Veterans' Association.

Of late the bodies of two or three old soldiers too poor or ignorant to join the Veterans' Association have gone to the dissecting room.

HETTY GREEN TALKS.

SUMMER GIRL AND HER LITTLE VANITIES JUST FOOLISH.

Admits She Was Gay Once—Wore as Many Trimmings as a Christmas Tree; Now She Detests 'Em.

New York, Aug. 28.—Young girls of to-day are too extravagant. They think too much about clothes and they don't have enough to do. If they had some useful work to occupy their thoughts they would not run to such extravagance."

So spoke Mrs. Hetty Green, the world's greatest woman financier, as from her corner in the Chemical National bank she watched the tide of girls, young and old, in summer finery, turning toward Brooklyn bridge andoney Island.

"I speak from experience," she added. "Perhaps you don't know it, but I was quite a belle when I was young. But I outgrew all that sort of thing. These rainbow silks and metal fingers are not to my taste. I used to wear those things. I used to have more fixings and trimmings on me than there is on a Christmas tree. I have more sense now."

She tugged restlessly at the strings which, in a careless, listless sort of way were holding her tiny bonnet on her head. She spoke in a hoarse, almost inaudible voice and the most careful concentration was necessary in following her remarks. In one hand she held a much worn, small, black bag. With the other she was constantly doing something, tugging at her cap, pulling or releasing her bonnet strings or emphasizing her remarks by jerking the lapel of my coat.

"No, I don't like society, and I seldom go out. Last season I went to one reception given in my honor. One reason why I'm so tired to-day that I can hardly talk to you is that my daughter Sylvia is going away to one of those swell places. I will be busy for a week yet getting her ready."

The bonnet strings received a particularly vigorous tug this time, which said quite plainly that daughter Sylvia was going to visit the social elite with her mother's consent, but not her blessing.

"Society hasn't enough to do to keep it out of mischief. Those so-called fashionable women spend all their time these days at bridge and smoking cigarettes and drinking weak tea and doing nothing. Every one of them ought to be down her working, and they would be better off."

Her manner changed to an odd combination of indignation and humor.

"The airs some of those people put on amuse me. Before they got their money some of them made pants for their children out of their husband's old trousers and now they drive about in their own carriages and hold their noses up in the air. They do not know how to use their money yet. They are not accustomed to it. We had money in our family for four generations. O, they can't teach me anything about that."

She paused in her reminiscences to laugh until tears came to her eyes, and then she added grimly: "But Hetty is living yet."

To describe the real Hetty Green is a difficult task. To describe her clothes and her personal appearance, or rather, her face, separately, is to create two distinct persons, and only an alchemist could amalgamate the two personalities in a single description. But even a mere man recognizes the fact that the clothes and the woman are somehow a part of each other in Hetty Green's case.

PREFERRED SUICIDE.

Once Prosperous, Now Old and Neglected, Shoots Himself.

Jamestown, Aug. 28.—Neglected by members of his family, it is charged, whom he had given away his fortune, amounting to $30,000, Andrew Johnson, at the age of 83 years and living in the cellar of a house he had once owned, committed suicide last night by shooting himself through the head. Had he not done so he would have been removed to the county house at Dewittville today. Arrangements to that end had been made, and it would have been a very great improvement over the life that the old man had led for some years, deserted by his children, who had squandered the money he had given them.

Johnson was a former prosperous builder of the city and had accumulated considerable property. His wife died and he decided some fifteen years ago that he would remarry. Before he did so, however, he divided his property among his children and the second wife, who was much younger than himself.

When the proper authorities discovered the condition in which he was living a few days ago they determined to give him a home in the county house, and arrangements to that end had been made. It was this, doubtless, that led to his suicide. The dead body was found in the members of the family who lived in the house where he had made his home in the basement, and it was taken in charge by the overseer of the poor and will be buried to-morrow.

A BOLD ROBBERY.

Letter of Credit Taken From French General's Pocket in Montreal.

Montreal, Aug. 28.—A daring robbery was committed to-day, when General De Negrier, of Paris, a guest at the Windsor Hotel, was relieved of his wallet, containing a letter of credit for a large amount, while he was attempting to board a street car.

General De Negrier, who is well known in French army circles, having had command of the French troops in Algeria, is on a visit to Canada. According to his story, he was followed to the Bank of Montreal, where he drew a considerable sum on his letter of credit, by those who eventually stole his wallet. After leaving the bank and while trying to board a car, in order to return to his hotel, he felt himself pushed, but paid no particular attention to it.

At the time his wallet was in his right hip pocket, and in the same pocket were the bank notes and gold which he had just drawn from the bank. Strange to say, the thieves missed the money and got away with the wallet, which contained the letter of credit, which is of no negotiable value except to the general himself.

VIENNA LOVE AFFAIR ENDS IN MURDER AND SUICIDE.

Jealousy Leads Man to Slay His Bride and Send Bullet Through His Brain

New York, Aug. 28.—In a fit of insane jealousy Julius Teich, a silk weaver, shot and mortally wounded his beautiful young wife, a bride of two months, in their flat at 510 West 126th street, just before noon yesterday. He then turned the revolver on himself and sent a bullet crashing through his right temple. Both died an hour later at the J. Hood Wright Hospital.

Teich and his wife were heard to quarrel earlier in the day, although none of the occupants of the house where they were living paid much attention to them. Teich wanted, it is said, frequently resented the attention his wife attracted when they were out together, and their differences had become a matter of gossip among the neighbors.

The police had to force an entrance to the Teich apartments after the shooting. They found the man and his wife lying in bed clad in their night clothes and unconscious from their wounds. A 38-calibre revolver lay on the floor near the bed, where it had evidently fallen after Teich shot himself.

Neighbors of Teich and his wife said the husband lavished his money on her to the last cent he could earn. He was employed by Smith & Kaufman and drew a salary of $30 a week. He had furnished his four-room flat well and his wife always dressed in the best of style. Back of the tragedy was a love romance that had its beginning in Vienna, when Teich and the girl were schoolmates. They were sweethearts as children, according to Josephine Herter, a cousin of the dead woman, but when they grew up the girl's parents objected to her marrying Teich. Thinking that if they were separated she might forget him, the parents sent her to America to visit her aunt.

Teich left Vienna soon after his sweetheart departed. He first went to Germany, then to other European countries, and finally to New York. He had been working here a little over a year when he located the young woman at her aunt's home in 159th street.

When Julius Teich found Emily he at once proposed that they elope, according to Josephine Herter. She did not take to the idea, however, and it was a month before Teich could get the aunt, Mrs. Herter, to consent to the wedding, though Teich was 25 years old and his wife about 30.

New York, Aug. 28.—The Times says: The Commercial National Bank of Chicago, in its summary of financial and commercial conditions, compiled with special reference to the crop outlook, to be issued to-day, draws the conclusion from the 30,000 replies received from its correspondents that the overwhelming preponderance of evidence is that the business situation is sound and satisfactory.

The bank comments on the fact that in the thousands of replies there is scarcely a reference to the present position of the speculative markets. That there has been a let-up in business compared with the feverish activity of last spring and winter, is generally admitted, but this, the bank says, is acknowledged by its correspondents with entire satisfaction.

On the crop outlook the bank reaches the conclusion from the data gathered by it that this year's wheat crop will amount to 640,000,000 bushels, the corn crop 2,600,000,000 to 2,600,000,000 bushels, while the oat crop will be deficient by perhaps as much as 150,000,000 bushels.

Regarding the financing of the crops the bank says that though the yield may be deficient in quantity, as well as in quality, there will be required practically as large a volume of funds for financing the crops as was needed last year.

SOCIALIST CONGRESS MEETS AND DISCUSSES COLONIZATION.

The Hague Conference Described as a Gathering of Thieves and Murderers.

Stuttgart, Germany, Aug. 28.—An interesting discussion of the colonial question developed at yesterday's meeting of the International Socialist Congress which is now in session here. Dr. David, one of the German delegates, expressing the views of the majority said that colonization was necessary as a means of civilization, but that the present method of conducting colonial wars purely for conquest, followed by the exploitation of the country for the benefit of capitalists, must cease. The products of territories rescued from barbarism, he said, should be sent out for the benefit of the world. The natives, however, should obtain an equal share of the results with the citizens of the civilizing power on the principle that all men are equal.

Mr. Quetch, of London, spoke for the minority and favored the proposal that all nations give up their colonies. He referred to the peace conference at The Hague as a "gathering of thieves and murderers," and expressed his indignation at the methods for the carrying out of crimes.

LABOR MEN'S TRIAL.

TWO MEN FOUND GUILTY AND OTHERS WILL BE TRIED.

Shoeworkers Decide That Charges Against Hickey and Murray Have Been Proven—End of Sensational Case.

Toronto despatch: Hickey and Murray were found guilty of the charges of bribery and corruption brought against them in connection with the last election of officers of the International Union of Boot and Shoe Workers.

Counsel for the prosecution and defence delivered stirring addresses. Hickey, in a speech full of emotion, indignantly repudiated the charges and endeavored to pose as a martyr who was being crucified on the altar of To-binism.

At the conclusion of the addresses the chairman of the judges said it was unnecessary to see the evidence, the delegates had heard all the evidence and it was for them to say which side had told the truth. A vote was taken of all present, each delegate's name was called by the secretary, and the response was either aye or nay. Of the 236 who answered, 136 considered the charges proven.

The chairman then asked Hickey and Murray to stand up, and told them it was his painful duty to inform them they had been found guilty of dishonorable conduct in trying to illegally interfere with the election of officers.

What action will be taken as the result of the verdict will not be made known until the counter charges brought against the executive officers have been dealt with. The hearing of these will start on Friday morning at 9 o'clock. In the interval, the election inspectors and committee of judges will go to Buffalo to bring back the ballots cast at the last election, as they will play an important part in the new case.

A resolution was unanimously passed over, election inspectors, be charged with entering into a conspiracy to control the result of the last election, and that the delegates deal with the matter at the present convention, so that the union be freed of two members who, by their own confession, are conspirators and traitors."

MAIL TELEGRAMS.

No Law Against It in the United States.

Buffalo despatch: It is not illegal to send telegrams through the mail. That is the statement made to-day by United States Attorney Lyman M. Bass. Efforts were made by the striking telegraphers to bring the management of the Western Union and Postal Telegraph Companies into court for receiving messages at the regular telegraph rates and sending them by mail. Mr. Bass said that there is no Federal law to cover the case; therefore no prosecution could be brought into the Federal courts.

KINGSTON PEN.

Deputy Warden Speaks of the Conditions There.

Ottawa, Aug. 28.—"We have about 450 prisoners in the institution at present where a few years ago 600 was the normal number," remarked Deputy Warden Dan O'Leary to a Citizen reporter this morning. Mr. O'Leary has been spending a few days at his old home in this city.

"The operation of the ticket of leave system," he continued, "has resulted in quite a thinning out of the prisoners."

"What proportion came back to the penitentiary after being released on parole?" was asked.

"It is a very small proportion," said the deputy warden. "I recall only two or three cases." Mr. O'Leary says the discipline at the institution is good. McGill of the Ontario Bank, Phillips, of the York Loan, and Martineau, of Ottawa, are engaged as bookkeepers, and seem cheerful in their confinement. "We need several bookkeepers for the different departments," Mr. O'Leary stated, "and they are the best men for the job. Their fare and treatment, however, are just the same as the other prisoners."

U.S. CROP FORECAST.

MAY BE DEFICIENT IN QUANTITY AND QUALITY.

Business Situation Sound and Satisfactory—Chicago Bank Gives Conclusions of Many Correspondents' Replies.

New York, Aug. 28.—The Times says: The Commercial National Bank of Chicago, in its summary of financial and commercial conditions, compiled with special reference to the crop outlook, to be issued to-day, draws the conclusion from the 30,000 replies received from its correspondents that the overwhelming preponderance of evidence is that the business situation is sound and satisfactory.

The bank comments on the fact that in the thousands of replies there is scarcely a reference to the present position of the speculative markets. That there has been a let-up in business compared with the feverish activity of last spring and winter, is generally admitted, but this, the bank says, is acknowledged by its correspondents with entire satisfaction.

On the crop outlook the bank reaches the conclusion from the data gathered by it that this year's wheat crop will amount to 640,000,000 bushels, the corn crop 2,600,000,000 to 2,600,000,000 bushels, while the oat crop will be deficient by perhaps as much as 150,000,000 bushels.

Regarding the financing of the crops the bank says that though the yield may be deficient in quantity, as well as in quality, there will be required practically as large a volume of funds for financing the crops as was needed last year.

CHEAP TRAVEL.

STEAMSHIP COMPANIES ENTER UPON A RATE WAR.

German Lines Reduce Fares to the United States—Competition With the Russian Lines—English Company Hits the German Companies.

Berlin, Aug. 28.—The Cunard line has offered a minimum first cabin passage from Hamburg to New York of $127.50, including a free ticket to Liverpool and expenses there, the Hamburg-American announces a reduction of the rates from $130 to $107.50, and the North German Lloyd line a reduction from $130 to $117.50.

The German lines are becoming involved in rate wars in various directions. The Hamburg-American line's new connection between New York and Baltic ports is a blow at the Russian line, which has answered with a further reduction of the steerage rate to New York.

The German lines found it impossible to continue to draw Russian emigrants by the railroad from the Russian frontier to Hamburg and Bremen, because they preferred embarking at home ports, Riga and Libau. This necessitated bidding for emigrants at Baltic ports. The view prevails at Hamburg and Bremen that the Russian lines will prove unable to keep up the fight for any length of time, and will offer to compromise before many months have elapsed.

Demoralization prevails in the freight business to Brazil and other parts of the South American continent, caused by a cut from $8.75 to $7.75 per ton by the English shipping firm of Lamport & Holt. The latter went into the trans-Atlantic business owing to the announcement of the Hamburg South American Steamship Company and the Hamburg-American line into the trade between Brazil and New York, competing with Lamport & Holt and the Brazilian Lloyd. The German lines have been hard hit by the Lamport & Holt line.

AUTO CRASHED INTO BUGGY.

Serious Injuries Result From Accident at Chatham.

Chatham despatch: The first serious automobile accident to be recorded here happened last evening when the machine owned by J. E. O'Keefe, and at the time under the control of Mrs. O'Keefe, collided with a buggy in which were seated Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Owens, and their little baby daughter. The auto was turning a corner, and was on top of the buggy before the latter was struck by the lady at the wheel. Mrs. Owens was thrown under the machine, but, strange to say, the baby remained in the rig and was uninjured.

Mrs. O'Keefe escaped without any injury. The machine was not damaged, but the buggy was badly smashed. Mrs. Owens was unconscious for several hours.

AUSTRALIAN TARIFF STANDS.

Commonwealth Government Declines to Postpone Its Operation.

London, Aug. 28.—The Birmingham Chamber of Commerce has asked the Commonwealth Government that the operation of the new tariff be temporarily postponed. Mr. Winston Churchill, speaking to-day in the House of Commons, stated that the Commonwealth has replied that it was not practicable to accede to a temporary postponement. Mr. Churchill also stated that there was no foundation for the report that the British flag had been raised on Isle Royale in Lake Superior.

TO IMPEACH JUDGE MARTIN.

He Has Refused to Accept the Sitings Made by Chief Justice.

Vancouver, B. C., Aug. 28.—Legal circles in Vancouver and British Columbia are in an uproar over the refusal of Judge Martin to accept Chief Justice Hunter's appointments for sittings throughout the province.

As a result Vancouver is without a Judge.

This is only the culmination of a long series of quarrels between Hunter and Martin. The Bar Society of Vancouver is discussing a proposal to have Martin impeached. A resolution has been passed by this law society to that effect.

A SASKATCHEWAN VIEW

Lake Valley, Aug. 17th, '07.
Dear Editor,—As I have not written to you for some time, kindly allow me a little space in your paper, as no doubt many of your readers are interested in Western affairs.

We have had a rather dry summer with some heavy storms, but little or no damage was done. At the present time rain is falling, which is much welcomed.

Crops in this locality look well, though stubby land will be somewhat light. Breaking is extra good, so is summer fallow. Flax will be an average yield, and, as a rule, pays well. It is a common thing to see eighty or a hundred acres in one block, and when in bloom it is a pretty sight.

Much of the land here is owned and worked by American companies, who use steam as their motive power in ploughing and harrowing. In ploughing they go on mile bouts and turn an acre in one score. Coal is used as fuel and two men can break between 30 and 40 acres a day.

Wheat is a good price, ranging from 72 cents to 76. From present market conditions, a good price is expected this fall.

Thanking you for your kindness, I will close, hoping to write again on the school system of the province.

ALBERT E. STURGEON.

WANTED IN ONTARIO

Dealing with the rumor that Hon. Geo. P. Graham might be called to a Cabinet position in the Dominion Government, The Globe objects. It says:—"There is just one word of protest to be uttered. Among the names suggested is that of Mr. Graham, leader of the Ontario Liberal opposition. Mr. Graham would add undoubted strength to the Liberal administration at Ottawa; but it must be said in all earnestness that to take him away now from the post he is filling so admirably would be to do an ill turn to the Provincial Liberal party. Mr. Graham is a find made by Liberal members of the legislature. They frankly stated that there may have been some doubt as to the wisdom of the choice at the time it was made, but this has been absolutely scattered by the winds. Mr. Graham has commended himself to every section of the party and has enheartened and energized it throughout. It would be a questionable proceeding to disturb so satisfactory a state of affairs."

A Kind Farewell

On leaving Spencerville for their new home in Athens, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. E. Burchill were tendered a farewell social by citizens. Mr. Burchill was presented with a rocking chair while his wife received a set of dinner dishes. On behalf of the Sunday school of the Presbyterian Church Rev. Mr. Macdougall presented Mr. Burchill with a Bible commentary in two handsome volumes.

The Hot Weather Test

Makes people better acquainted with their resources of strength and endurance.

Many find that they are not so well off as they thought and that they are easily enervated and depressed by the heat.

What they need is a tonic effect of Hood's Sarsaparilla which strengthens the blood, promotes refreshing sleep, overcomes that tired feeling, creates appetite.

—Wedding Stationery—the very latest at the Reporter Office.

An Appeal to the Public

The attention of the public is called, to the circumstance of Adam Emmons, Mr. Emmons has been deprived of both feet. These can be replaced at a cost of $175.00, the company guaranteeing him to walk without crutch or cane. Contributions are solicited for the purchase of these. Any amount, however small, will be helpful, and appreciated. Offerings can be made at hand, or by letter, to the Reporter office at Athens. The Lord has dealt mercifully, thus far, with Mr. Emmons, in restoring him both physically and spiritually. He leaves now a part for his brother-men to do.

- A friend, Brockville 2 00
- A friend, Havelock 1 00
- A friend, Athens 5 00

TENDERS WANTED

Tenders will be received up to 7 o'clock p.m., Saturday, August 31st, inst., for the leasing of the new dining hall on the Delta Fair Grounds for the two days of the Exhibition, Sept. 24 and 25, 1907. Communications to be marked "Tender" and addressed to Mr. L. N. Phelps, Secretary, Delta Fair, Delta, Ont.
The highest or any tender not necessarily accepted.
Geo. Morris, } Committee.
Arch Stevens, }

A Paying Investment

A Modern Business Education is a necessary requirement for success in this progressive age.

FRONTENAC BUSINESS COLLEGE KINGSTON - ONTARIO

is one of Canada's Representative, Modern Institutions. Our connection with the United Employment Bureaus in the large cities of Canada and the United States enables us to place every graduate in a good situation. We have never failed to do so. Moderate rates. Write for particulars and large catalogue.

FALL TERM OPENS SEPT. 3

W. H. Shaw, T. N. Stockdale, President, Principal.

The Old Reliable

Your New Suit

If bought from

A. M. CHASSELS

Will look well and wear well—Please both yourself and friends. New stock just received, includes latest patterns in Tweeds, Twills and Worsteds—imported goods. Call and make your selection now.

FANCY VESTINGS—No gentleman's wardrobe is complete without one of these stylish garments.

RAIN COATS—the Premier brand—suitable for all seasons.

New stock of hats and caps—see these stylish goods.

A. M. Chassels

Fall Term FROM SEPTEMBER 3

OTTAWA, ONT.

Cor. Bank and Wellington Sts

Business - Shorthand - Telegraphy

Write for our new prospectus. We have one for you.

H. G. W. BRAITHWAITE, Prin.

CANADIAN PACIFIC RY. FARM LABORERS' EXCURSIONS

2nd CLASS To Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, Moosejaw and East $12.00 Proportionately low rates beyond, to and including Moosehead, Calgary and Edmonton. Good going from Brockville, Tuesday Sept. 18, 1907. Full particulars on application.

Homeseekers' Excursion August 27, to the Canadian West September 10 and 24 and Return—Low Rates 60 DAYS

Labor Day—Sept 2nd, 1907 Single First-Class Fare Going Aug. 31st, Sept. 1st and 2nd Return until Sept. 3rd.

Sherbrooke Exhibition

From Brockville Going Sept. 4, 5, 10, 11 $4.50 Going Aug. 31, Sept. 1, 2, 3, 6, 7, 8, 9, 12, 13, 14 $5.00 Return until Sept. 16th, 1907.

Brockville City Ticket and Telegraph Office, east corner King St. and Court House Ave.

GEO. E. M'GLADE, CITY AGENT

The Best on the Market

Guaranteed to Cure Lame Back or money refunded!

An excellent remedy for Rheumatism, Lame Back, Etc., Etc.

Read the following testimonial from a man you all know: Forfar, Feb. 6, 1907

Mr. W. A. Singleton, Crosby, Ont.

Dear Sir,—Being laid up with lame back, I thought I would drop you a line to tell you that your St. Regis Lumbago cure will do all you claim for it, as I have only used part of the bottle and I feel no returning symptoms of the disease.

I may say I have been troubled with lame back for the last ten years, and tried several other patent medicines but without results. I can heartily recommend it to any troubled with lame back, and I feel safe in saying that it's the cheapest medicine on the market.

Yours Truly, JAMES McCUE

If your dealer does not keep this medicine kindly ask him to order some for you as any sized order will be filled promptly.

First order, freight prepaid. Yours truly, W. A. SINGLETON

100 DROPS
CASTORIA
Vegetable Preparation for Assimilating the Food and Regulating the Stomach and Bowels of INFANTS CHILDREN
Promotes Digestion, Cheerfulness and Rest. Contains neither Opium, Morphine nor Mineral. NOT NARCOTIC.
A perfect Remedy for Constipation, Sour Stomach, Diarrhoea, Worms, Convulsions, Feverishness and LOSS OF SLEEP.
Fac-Simile Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher
NEW YORK.
116 months old
35 Doses—35 CENTS
EXACT COPY OF WRAPPER.

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Bears the Signature of

of Chas. H. Fletcher

In Use

For Over

Thirty Years

CASTORIA

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

If you wish to be successful attend to the

Kingston Business College Limited

KINGSTON - ONTARIO

CANADA'S HIGHEST GRADE BUSINESS SCHOOL

Book keeping, Shorthand, Type writing, Telegraphy, and all commercial subjects thoroughly taught by competent experienced teachers. Enter any time. Rates very moderate.

Headache

Zutoc tablets will insure you against headache—a splendid policy, honest and reliable.

Harmless as the soda they contain, yet they never fail. A phenomenal success. Praised by all users. Buy a box and be protected.

Insurance

OGDENSBURG, N. Y. FAIR AND HORSE SHOW
SEPTEMBER 24, 25, 26, 27, 1907

The Peer of All—Some imitate, but none equal. Educational, Interesting, and Entertaining.

It is one of the Leading Out-Door Horse Shows of both the United States and Canada and will bring together Horses as fine as can be seen at any exhibition in the world. The exhibition of Cattle will be large in number and in quality cannot be excelled. The show of Poultry will be immense and all fanciers in this line will be more than pleased. All who are interested in Sheep and Swine will find many animals that will attract their attention. The display of Dairy Products will be unusually large. Trotting Pacing and Running Races every day. Remember all entries of Horses, Cattle, Sheep, Swine and Poultry must be made on or before Tuesday, September 17th.

Floral Hall

"A Thing of Beauty is a Joy Forever"

This year Floral Hall will be a thing of beauty. The managers have made arrangements at great expense with the celebrated florist, John Lawrence, for the erection of a mammoth pyramid of cut flowers, flowering plants, ornamental plants, etc., etc., in the centre of the hall.

It will be magnificent and will be viewed with pleasure and admiration by thousands who visit the Fair.

MUSIC

Those who listened to the music at the Ogdensburg Fair and Horse Show last year remember it with pleasure. This year it will be excelled.

SIGNOR GUISEPPE SIRIGNANO

Acknowledged to be the greatest leader Italy ever sent to our shores, will be present with his famous

Banda Roma of Forty Pieces

It is considered to be the finest Italian musical organization in the United States. This band will be on the grounds the last three days of the Fair.

Grand Concert

Thursday Evening, September 26th, a Grand Operatic Concert will be given in the Opera House by

MISS BESSIE ABBOT

Of the Grand Opera House, Paris, and the Metropolitan Opera House, New York. Miss Abbot is one of the greatest of living sopranos and her singing has attracted the notice of the music loving people of the world.

SIGNOR CAMPANARI

Of the Metropolitan Opera House, New York. One of the leading baritones of the day. Has no equal.

SIGNOR ED. CASTELLANO

Grand Opera House, Milan. One of the finest tenors in this country. These artists will be assisted by the full Banda Roma. No such musical treat was ever offered in this section of the country.

The Managers extend a cordial invitation to the people of Northern New York and Canada to attend and exhibit.

THE GREATEST AND BEST OF ALL. IT WILL BE A GALA WEEK

Robert J. Donahue, Treas.

Louis C. Nash, Sec'y

William H. Daniels, Pres.

THIS ORIGINAL DOCUMENT IS IN EVERY POOR CONDITION

Sunday School.

LESSON XI—SEPT. 1, 1907.

Moses Pleading With Israel.—Deut. 6: 1-15.

Commentary.—I. The duty of loving and obeying God (vs. 1-5). 1. Commandments, etc.—If a distinction is made between these words, then commandments must be understood to refer to the moral law, statutes to the ceremonial law and judgments to the judicial law. 2. Which I command thee—"The speaker is an aged man, whose venerable head is covered with the snowy white of nearly a score years, but whose voice is still bold and clear enough to be heard afar off."

deage, that they might better appreciate the riches of Canaan. 12. Swear by His name—Not servile fear, but reverential awe, is enjoined. This was the essential basis of Hebrew worship. The oath in the name of Jehovah was equivalent to a solemn acknowledgment of belief in Him. This command is not to be considered inconsistent with what the Saviour enjoins in Matt. 5, 34.—Lindsay. 14. Other gods—Moses saw that their great danger would be their desire to be like the heathen nations around them, which would lead them into idolatry. 15. A jealous God—God will have no rival. To worship "other gods" meant that they would become an impure people, because the objects of their worship would be impure. They would be no better than the gods they worshipped. By obedience to God we are made partakers of the divine nature.

II. Observe to do" (v. 3). "O, but we had a grand sermon yesterday," a poor woman who kept a corner grocery, and had been wont to cheat with scant measures, said to a lady. "Where was the text?" "Sure, now, and I don't remember." "What did he talk about?" "Well, I'm beat but I don't know." "Then what makes you say it was such a fine sermon?" "It was, indeed, for I came home and burnt up all my short measures. This poor woman heard the word and did it, though she could not recall text or sermon.

III. Study the word "love" (v. 5). It is the fruit of the Spirit (Gal. 5, 22). The bond of perfectness (Col. 3, 14). The fulfilling of the law (Rom. 13, 10). The debt we owe another (Rom. 13, 8). The path to walk in (Eph. 5, 2). The companion of faith (1 Thes. 5, 8). That to which we are to provoke one another. Heb. 10, 24). To serve one another (Gal. 5, 13). To follow after (1 Tim. 6, 11). Love is to be fervent (1 Pet. 4, 22). Without dissimulation (Rom. 12, 9). In the Spirit (Col. 1, 8). In deed and in truth (1 John 3, 18). Makes us willing to lay down our lives for others (1 John 3, 16). "Love suffereth long and is kind; love envieth not; love vaunteth not itself, is not puffed up, doth not behave itself unseemly, seeketh not her own, is not provoked, thinketh no evil; rejoiceth in truth (1 John 3, 18). Makes us willing to lay down our lives for others (1 John 3, 16). "Love suffereth long and is kind; love envieth not; love vaunteth not itself, is not puffed up, doth not behave itself unseemly, seeketh not her own, is not provoked, thinketh no evil; rejoiceth in truth; beareth all things, believeth all things, hopeth all things, endureth all things. Love never faileth" (1 Cor. 13, 4-8). Read this love chapter every day on your knees and ask God to teach you to live it.

IV. Love the Lord thy God with "all thine heart" (v. 5). Love him understandingly, appreciatively, earnestly, with surrendered will and tender sensibility and all the powers of your being. A divided service counts for little. J. R. Jacques says: "During the Franco-Prussian war, I had some experience illustrative of this principle. Logically I was on the side of the Germans, believing them right. Sympathetically I was on the side of France, for reasons I could not vaguely define. I had a German friend but with the heart of a Frenchman. I was in vain I remonstrated with my heart for its perverse sympathy with the French. Whenever the news came of a reverse to the French, my heart was pained while my head sided with the Germans. My head was right. I would have joined the army of the Germans. Would I not have made a good soldier? I could have truthfully sung, 'I'm glad I'm in this army.' But if Gen. Moltke had known my heart, would he have trusted me? Now, in the army of the Lord some of us have hearts that are not true. The heart has sympathies that wander away to the armies of the allies. So God cannot trust us with much power, nor use us for his glory. But perfect love makes the heart loyal to God and to his kingdom."

V. Notice the little pronoun "in thee" (v. 6). You are commanded to love God, not as did Adam before he fell, not as did Mary who sat at his feet, not as did John the beloved disciple, not as did Paul the great scholar, not as did John Knox, whose love for souls broke out in the agonizing cry, "Give me Scotland, or I die!" but with thine heart, reaching after a God but just known, with thy soul, so long dead in trespasses and sins, with thy might, which may seem but weakness. Pray him to enlarge thy heart, uplift thy soul, and increase thy strength, until all men seeing thy love shall know that ye are his disciples indeed (John 13:34).

VI. Hide God's word "in thine heart" (v. 6). David said, "Thy word have I hid in mine heart, that I might not sin against thee" (Psa. 119: 11). A little girl longed to join a picnic party. Her mother felt it wise not to let her. When Susie came, with her request, the mother said, "No, Susie dear, you cannot go." She had expected to see a sorrowful disappointment in her daughter's face, but instead, the little one bounded away singing merrily. "I was afraid of seeing you grievously disappointed," she said afterward to her mother. "I have got the 'Thy will be done' spirit in my heart," the child answered, sweetly.

THE TRAGEDY AT WIARTON.

Inquest into the Murder There of Philip Gilbert.

Woman Thomas Discharged and Then Re-Arrested.

Mob Pelted Women With Stones and Rotten Eggs.

Warton despatch: As already reported, Philip Gilbert, an old and well known citizen, was shot and instantly killed by Mrs. Thomas, one of a pair of disolute women who were housed in a tent in a suburb known as Voganville. The section in question has long been troubled with houses of a questionable character, and Mrs. Thomas was warned away from there more than once. She always returned, however, and when she came back last week it is said Gilbert organized a gang of men and boys to raid the tent where she resided. The tent was pulled down by a mob estimated at from twenty-five to fifty men and boys, some with blackened faces. The two women were pelted with stones and rotten eggs, and it is said Gilbert struck Mrs. Thomas. However, the woman fired several shots in the air to frighten the raiders away, but the last shot struck Gilbert and death followed almost instantaneously.

Blame the Authorities. The Town Hall, Warton, was packed by hundreds of people to-night to listen to the coroner's inquest on Philip Gilbert. County Crown Attorney Dixon, of Walkerton, was on hand to press the prosecution, and Mr. A. G. Mackay, Owen Sound, represented the woman under arrest. On every hand there was a disposition to severely censure the authorities for their laxity in dealing with the women of ill-repute. Agnes Thomas is an old and familiar name in these parts. Two years ago she located on Four Mile Point, in the township of Keppel, on the shores of Colpoys Bay, and proved herself somewhat of a nuisance. She pitched her tent on the marine allee, and defied removal. The authorities of Keppel were remiss in their duties, and at last the Mayor of Warton and the Police Magistrate practically drove them out by a game of bluff. She then pitched her tent on the matter at all. The two women then went to Allernbar, but the authorities in that township got after them and forced them to make tracks in double-quick time. Since that time the women have been here off and on. They were here early in the spring, when they took their traps to Southampton, where Col. Belcher forced them to make a hasty exit. Last Friday night they returned and pitched their tent in the outskirts of the North Ward, and at within twenty-four hours they were again intolerable to the residents. They wanted them out of that. So far the law has been inoperative. Upon three occasions charges had been laid against women of this class, and the cases tried before the Police Magistrate, who dismissed them each time on the ground of insufficient evidence.

Planned the Raid. The dead man, Philip Gilbert, was one man who had laid a complaint, and to no effect. He felt something had to be done. So on Tuesday evening he headed about a dozen men who determined that they would make a raid upon the tent and drive the undesirable women from the town. The raid was made with apparent wildness, the tent ropes were cut and the tent dragged away. Stones were thrown, and the women were pelted with eggs, and when they found, which gave evidence that force was intended. Agnes Thomas came out and warned the men to keep away, stating that she would shoot. Then to give effect to her warning, she fired several shots in the air. Just then some one struck her arms with a club. She was on the point of discharging her revolver again, but the man who was thrown out of position, and the next bullet went through Gilbert's heart. The body of the unfortunate man was taken to a house near by and Dr. Fisher summoned, but the man was dead long before he arrived. The Mayor, who was at a Masonic meeting, heard of the shooting, and he then swooped in a large number of special constables and the arrest was immediately made.

All day the body of Philip Gilbert lay in the room of the local undertaker, and the women were in the lockup.

The Inquest Begun. A post-mortem examination was held during the day, which did not bring out anything new, and the coroner began his inquest in the afternoon, but soon adjourned till the evening, in order that counsel might be present. At the inquest, Andy Hasling, a day laborer, who resides in the North Ward, stated that he heard shots and was near the tent when the last discharge of the revolver was made. He stated that there were between thirty and forty among the raiders, and that some had their faces blackened.

Dr. Robert Lancaster, into whose house the body was taken, carried by four men, unfortunately appeared to know very little, and knows none of the people there, though he has lived among them all his life. His evidence did not amount to much. Dr. Albert Fisher was called, and made his report upon his post-mortem examination. He stated that the wound corresponded to what might be made from a bullet of a small revolver, of, say, 32 calibre. The bullet, it appeared, went into the right lung, where he found it imbedded, and he laid it upon a table. From the nature of the wound he did not think that Gilbert had lived more than a minute, because a large blood vessel had been burst. He stated that the wound showed that the man had been in a stooping position when the shot was fired, but in answer to the defendant's counsel he admitted that if the arm of the one discharging the revolver had been lowered anyway it might account for the downward tendency of the bullet.

The Prisoner's Statement. Chief Hull, who made the arrest, stated that Agnes Thomas wanted to know why she was arrested. The Chief informed her, "For killing Philip Gilbert," whereupon she replied, "Surely to goodness I did not shoot anybody." She begged to be taken over to where Gilbert was, so that she would be convinced that he was shot. He took her to the street, where he met the Mayor, who gave instructions to her. She told the chief that she had only shot to scare them, so they would quit tearing the tent down, and that the last time she fired someone had struck her on the arm and knocked her arm down. He then asked her the revolver which she had taken from the prisoner, which contained five chambers, and all of which were empty. The chief said that the woman had told him that when the men came she went out and asked what the men wanted, but instead of answering her, they shot her down. She simply shot in the air to scare them away.

Mrs. Lamont's Account. Mrs. Stella Lamont, the associate of Agnes Thomas, was then called, and stated that her home was in London. They had arrived here last Friday night on Tuesday afternoon, and stated that there would be a crowd there that night to tear the tent down. She told the story to Mrs. Thomas, who advised her to get a revolver, as she had, to protect herself and her property, and if she would fire in the air a few times the crowd would disperse. She stated that at 9:30 p. m., there must have been about fifty men, some with faces blackened, standing on the road in front of the tent. Mrs. Thomas, who went out, asked them what they wanted. They did not reply, but some one of the crowd said, "Bring out the boys, now is our chance." Gilbert led the raiders, who ran into the tent, cut the guy ropes, pulled the tent down, upset the furniture; then she ran towards the road. She just got on the road when a number of men came from a house on the opposite side of the road, and three eggs and stones at her, one stone hitting her on the back. She went to a creek to wash her face, when the shots were fired, and upon returning found Mrs. Thomas lying on the bed crying. In a few minutes the chief came and placed them under arrest. She told the magistrate, "I never saw any one that night except the boys, and it was clear that they were planning to shoot me." The Crown Attorney and Counsel A. G. Mackay both addressed the jury for a few minutes, the latter emphatically maintaining that the shooting had been justified and that there had been no intention, and that the killing of Gilbert was accidental.

Verdict of the Jury. The jury retired and brought in a verdict that the said Philip Gilbert came to his death at Warton on the 20th day of August from a pistol shot wound and the jury are of the opinion that the bullet came from a revolver fired by the hand of Agnes Thomas.

Mr. Mackay contended that the verdict was no finding against Mrs. Thomas. The jury had not found unlawful shooting, and therefore the prisoner was at large. The coroner, after further argument, refused to issue a warrant, and Mrs. Thomas was discharged, but subsequently arrested under a warrant issued by the Police Magistrate.

Philip Gilbert was a man of sixty years of age, and was English by birth, had served a number of years as a constable, and had been in the army in Warton for twenty years. He was unmarried, was an honest, law-abiding citizen, and every man in Warton regrets his untimely end.

CHOKED INDIAN.

ROLLING RIVER SQUAW CONFESSES KILLING HUSBAND.

Man Had Come Home With Whiskey, Wife Hid It and the Husband Threatened to Kill Her—She Acted in Self-Defence.

Minneapolis, Man, Aug. 26.—Several weeks ago an Indian, John Assinwasiss by name, disappeared mysteriously from the Rolling River reserve, and foul play was suspected, as indicated in despatches to the east at the time. The mystery has been cleared up by the arrest of his squaw, charged with murdering him. The squaw when arrested made a pathetic confession to killing her husband in a struggle. She said she brought home to the tepee two large bottles of whiskey. She hid them from him, and he threatened to kill her if she did not give them up. He chased her. She laid down her child, threw him down and choked him, not intending to kill him, but he died shortly afterwards. Early in the morning she dragged the corpse to a big knoll nearby, wrapped it in a blanket and buried it, putting her husband's drinking cup in the grave.

It appears that there was another Indian camp near by, but the men were so much under the influence of liquor that they did not know anything about what had happened. The squaw was committed for trial by the Shoal Lake Magistrate to-day.

STEEL-MAKING IN B. C.

Great Plant to be Established by Aid of British Capital.

Vancouver, B.C., Aug. 26.—J. T. Shadforth, organizer, Newcastle-Tyne Iron & Steel Corporation, is here arranging for the amalgamation of the coal and iron interests preparatory to the erection of a modern steel works. It will build steel of all grades, including steel rails and ship plate, with a big ship-building plant. The initial capital will be raised in British Columbia and a greater amount in Manchester and London. The company will be registered for fifteen million, of which two million will be raised in Vancouver. All the raw material is now found in British Columbia. The value and extent of the iron ores of the coast is only lately being fully realized.

THE MARKETS.

TORONTO LIVE STOCK MARKET.

Receipts of live stock at the City Market since Tuesday, as reported by the market committee, were as follows: 1,284 cattle, 1,127 hogs, 2,056 sheep and lambs, and 24 calves. The quality of fat cattle was no better, but worse. The market is being flooded with half-fat steers, many of which weigh around 1,100 to 1,200 lbs. each. Trade was dull for all cattle except a few of the best, so dull that several lots were left unsold. More good fat cattle would have sold, but drovers say they are hard to find. Prices are lower, and it looks as though $5 would be the top price for choice exporters. Exporters—None of choice heavy weights were on sale. One load weighing 1,200 lbs. was on sale. Feeder calves, $2.15 to $2.50 per cwt. Butchers'—Butchers' cattle sold at lower prices than at any market this season, but the general run of the cattle was of the poorest quality. A few picked lots sold from $3.00 and low brought the better price; medium cattle and good cows sold $2.50 to $4.00; fair cows, $2 to $3.25; cows, $1 to $1.50. Feeders and Stockers—A few loads were offered, which were generally of common to medium quality. Common stockers, 500 lbs. each, sold at $2 to $2.25; some light feeders, 800 lbs. each, sold at $2.50, and one load of 1,000 lb. feeders sold at $2.15 to $3.50 per cwt. Milkers and springers—The bulk of the best cows sold around $60; some few reached the $50 mark, and one $57. Some inferior cows were reported at $25, and some did not sell at all. Veal Calves—Trade remains steady for veal of good quality, with a good demand. Prices ranged from $2 to $2.50 per cwt., with the bulk selling from $5 to $8 per cwt. Sheep and Lambs—There was, as usual, a good demand for sheep and lambs. $2.50 per cwt. sold at $4.50 to $4.75; rams, $3.50 to $4 per cwt.; lambs sold at $5.50 to $6.50 per cwt., with a few selected lots at a little more money. Hogs—There was not a large run of hogs, but did not stop a drop in price. Mr. Harris quoted selects at $6.50, and lights and sows at $6.25 per cwt.

CHEESE MARKETS.

Kingston—The Frontenac Cheese Board was held this afternoon. There were 300 pounds of 47 colored, all of which, except thirty, were sold at 11 1/2c.

TORONTO FARMERS' MARKET.

Twenty-five loads of new hay received to-day sold between $8 and $11. Great reeds were one kind of Fall wheat, at 90c, and the first load for the season of new oats, which sold at 90c. Do, red, bush, $1.00 to $1.01 Do, white, bush, $1.00 to $1.01 Do, spring, bush, $1.00 to $1.01 Do, clover, bush, $1.00 to $1.01 Oats, bush, $1.00 to $1.01 Barley, bush, $1.00 to $1.01 Peas, bush, $1.00 to $1.01 Hay, old, ton, $15.00 to $15.50 Do, new, ton, $15.00 to $15.50 Dressed hogs, $9.00 to $9.50 Eggs, per dozen, $1.17 to $1.22 Butter, dairy, $1.00 to $1.14 Do, creamery, $1.00 to $1.14 Fowl, lb., $1.00 to $1.10 Turkeys, Spring, lb., $1.16 to $1.25 Ducks, lb., $1.12 to $1.15 Chickens, new, bush, $1.00 to $1.10 Beef, hindquarters, $9.00 to $10.00 Do, forequarters, $8.00 to $9.00 Do, choice, carcass, $7.50 to $8.50 Do, medium, carcass, $6.00 to $7.00 Mutton, per cwt., $10.00 to $10.50 Lamb, per cwt., $13.00 to $15.00

WINNIPEG WHEAT MARKET.

Following are the closing quotations on futures contracts to-day: Wheat—Aug. 51 1/2c bid, Sept. 51 3/4c bid, Oct. 52c bid.

FLOUR PRICES.

Four—Manitoba patent, $4.60 to $5, Toronto, Ontario, 50c extra, patent, $3.20 bid for export; Manitoba patent, special brands, $5; second patent, $4.00; strobus brands, $4.40.

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK MARKET.

Montreal—About 750 head of butchers' cattle, 40 milch cows, 200 calves, 500 sheep and lambs, and 400 fat hogs were offered for sale at the market to-day. There was a fair attendance of butchers, but trade was dull and the prices of all kinds and qualities of live stock, excepting milch cows, had a downward tendency. Prime cattle sold at $5 to $6 1/2c per pound; pretty good steers, 3 1/2 to 4 1/2c; common steers, 2 1/2 to 3 1/2c per pound, while the small, hard-looking bulks sold at 1 1/2 to 2c per lb. Milch cows sold at $8 to $10 each; calves at from $2.50 to $10 each; sheep at about 4 1/2c per lb. and the lambs at $5.50 to $6.50 each. Good lots of fat hogs sold at from 9 1/2c to near 10c per pound.

CANADIAN APPLE TRADE.

London—Official figures of the apple trade show that Canada sent 3,600,000 bushels, three-quarters of a million less than American merchants, but Canadian realized better prices.

Bradstreet's Trade Review.

Montreal—General business continues to move along well. The demand for wholesale stocks is heavy and big shipments are going forward. In this connection the prospect for a heavy fall business is being well borne out. The whole country is reflecting the optimistic tone to which Western Canada is being encouraged by generally excellent crop conditions. The stringency in money continues as bad as ever. Canadian securities have been seriously affected by this factor and by the declines in New York. Collections are generally fair, and where renewals are granted it is at considerably higher figures than have ruled for some years. The dry goods men report that fall and winter goods are going out well. The grocery trade is beginning to show a better tone after the holiday season. Fairly good shipments are being made and values generally held firm. A good business is being done in all lines of hardware. The railways still find difficulty in obtaining desired supplies and values are firm. The business in small goods is also heavy. Toronto—There is now rather more activity in general trade here. Wholesale are busy sending out fall lines, and they report that an unusually heavy business is being done. The total volume is said to be even heavier than that of last year. Crop prospects are looking well in all directions. Money is very tight and firm and relief in the connection seems to be as far off as ever. Other branches of wholesale trade report a good, reasonable demand for all lines, and in almost every direction prices may be said to show marked firmness. Winnipeg—A fairly good volume of business is moving here at the present moment. At this season of the year there is always a quiet tone to the ordering, but shipments are being made and heavy lines are arriving from the east. In dry goods these arrivals are slow, but it is hoped that everything required will be on hand before the opening of the season. The crop outlook is generally very encouraging. The wheat looks well and harvesting is drawing near. The total crop is expected to prove fairly close to last year's figures. Should it go behind somewhat, higher prices for grain will offset the shortage. Vancouver and Victoria—Excellent business is moving in all lines here and along the coast. The retail trade is quite brisk, and wholesalers report a very active demand for all lines. The lumbering and mining industries continue exceedingly active and the call for supplies is heavy. Collections are good. The shipping trade shows steady expansion, the season so far having been an excellent one.

Quebec—Trade reports are usually satisfactory, and while considerable rain has fallen in the eastern section of the province during the past fortnight, crop reports to hand are satisfactory and there is every indication for a very fair harvest.

Hamilton—The volume of fall business is now good. Shipments of all lines are going forward and orders continue to promise a heavy business. Local retail trade is brisk. Harvesting is about beginning and crops are looking well. Collections are said to be good.

London—There is generally a good tone to trade here. The volume of business will hold moderate until after the close of the holiday season. Retail trade is fair and collections are generally satisfactory. Local industries are busily engaged.

Ottawa—There has been little change in the situation here. Wholesale and retail stocks are moving fairly well and collections are fair to good. The outlook continues to favor an excellent fall business.

SAVED TWO.

Train Stopped Within Four Feet of Man and Woman.

Denkirk, Aug. 26.—The following very gratifying letter was received to-day by Michael Summers of Denkirk, engineer of a passenger train on the Dunkirk, Allegheny Valley & Pittsburgh Railroad, Warren, Pa., Aug. 20, 1907. Please accept my thanks for stopping your train yesterday in time for me to escape a serious injury if not death. Had you been as careless as I my family might have been having a funeral to-morrow. I did not realize what had happened until it was all over.

Gratefully yours, Sam O. Mitchell. Mr. Mitchell, an elderly man, was in company with a gray-haired woman walking along the tracks from one crossing to another with their backs toward the train of which Mr. Summers was engineer, and being somewhat of the approaching train. The engineer whistled and rang the bell without any success in alarming the two persons. He put on the emergency brakes and succeeded in bringing his train to a stop within four feet of the man and woman, who knew nothing of their danger until they were saved.

DELLA FOX.

The Comedienne Ill and May Neer Act Again.

New York, Aug. 26.—According to a despatch from Pittsburgh, Della Fox, the comedienne, is seriously ill at the Hotel Lincoln.

Last night Dr. Samuel Milligan, who is attending her, declared that she may never appear behind the footlights again. Miss Fox is suffering from appendicitis and peritonitis, and yesterday evening was forced to cancel her engagement at the Grand Opera House, where she opened Monday night. All of her future engagements have been cancelled.

COLONIES ARE YOUNG.

Britain Not Called to Follow Their Social Experiments.

London, Aug. 26.—In the House of Lords the Archbishop of Canterbury, by unsuccessfully opposing the second reading of the marriage of a deceased wife's sister bill, said the colonies, young and eager for home life in sparse populations, were subject to conditions other than our own. They made experiments, unsuccessfully, in social, educational and fiscal legislation, and he urged that the colonies be not called to follow. The legislation of the colonies in relaxation of the ancient marriage law was very recent, and it was too soon to argue from their experience of the nature and working of the change. He heard, surprisingly, from those who were declining, rightly, he thought, to be led by the colonies in the path of fiscal change, the argument that it was the mother country's duty to follow them in a matter intimately affecting social domestic life.

GOLD AT COBALT.

Report of Rich Discovery There by Two Swedes. Cobalt, Aug. 26.—The camp is agog with the report of a very rich gold find near Night Hawk Lake, a large sheet of water west and slightly south of Abitibi Lake. It is stated that two Swedes have found a vein of gold-bearing rock 130 feet across, and have already traced it two miles. Lurid stories are told of its wealth. McDougall's Chute will be the starting point from which the stream of prospectors will set out for the new field, it being about eighteen miles from their objective point. The small settlement there is almost deserted, the inhabitants having migrated to the new gold fields bag and baggage. Prospecting syndicates all along the line are sending out men to investigate.

NEUTRALITY OF NORWAY.

It Will Be Guaranteed by Germany and Russia.

London, Aug. 26.—It was learned in diplomatic circles to-day that one of the principal questions discussed by Emperor William and Emperor Nicholas during their meeting at Swinemunde was the neutrality of Norway. An agreement was reached under which Germany and Russia undertake to regard Norway as neutral territory. This is in accordance with the desire of Great Britain, which has been supporting Norway's endeavor to secure guarantees in this direction. Emperor William also intimated that Germany would not seek to thwart the policy of Russia in carrying out her accords with France and Great Britain.

Cupid Tries Again

"Are you sure it is impossible?" asked Mrs. Bayley, sharply.

"Quite sure. I never intend to see Colonel Fane again, if I can help it! Why did not Sir Frederic warn me before? I don't want to quarrel with Colonel Carrington, but had I known his connection with my husband—"

"You would have had nothing to do with him, and quite right, to believe me, my dear, you will come round to my opinion, and the opinion of your friends in general. You owe it to yourself to sue for a divorce. As to poor Sir Frederic, he never thought of mentioning this man's intimacy with your husband, until he was going away; and then he was so full of you that he mentioned it to me."

"There is no harm done at all events, in any direction," said Mrs. Fane, coldly; "but I think it will be as well if I let Colonel Carrington know I am aware of his friendship with my husband, and more, that his intervention will be useless."

"Certainly," returned Mrs. Bayley, with emphasis. "You would be quite right."

"The day after this conversation was dull and wet; but Carrington was not sorry to spend an hour, perhaps two, in the pleasant, quiet atmosphere of Mrs. Fane's drawing-room, perfumed as it usually was by household flowers. To-day a bright fire glowed in the grate, and Mrs. Fane had established herself and a piece of high-art needlework on a sofa near it. She was alone. Miss Onslow had some visitors, and Mrs. Bayley was indemnifying herself for a bad night by a long afternoon sleep.

At first the conversation flagged. Mrs. Fane was preoccupied. Carrington, who had drawn a low chair near her, watched the motion of her deft fingers in silence.

"Is it true," she said, suddenly looking up, "that you know my husband?"

"It is," he returned.

"Do you know him intimately?"

"I think I may say I do."

"You have known him since he was in India?"

"And before."

"And dropping her work in her lap, she looked at him with a steady gaze.

"It is an old friendship, then. Perhaps he has spoken to you of me?"

"Yes; often."

"I presume you did not receive a favorable impression of me?"

"Not very," taking up a skein of silk, and beginning to entangle it. Mrs. Fane's color faded and a smile played over her lips.

"You did not come here, then, prepared to make friends with me?"

"I came here," said Carrington, "utterly unprepared for what awaited me."

His expression struck Mrs. Fane as peculiar.

"You did not expect to find your friend's wife?"

"Certainly not. I should never have sought her."

"Ah! I understand!" A pause. "Colonel Carrington, may I ask you a few questions about my husband? A little curiosity on my part is excusable; is it not?"

"I may answer any question you would ask," returned Carrington.

"Tell me," hesitatingly, "is he well and happy? I mean contented with his life?"

"On the whole, I believe he is now. He has had lots of work, and is steadily enough. At first he was a little reckless. Of course he is not as young as he used to be."

"He is not old," said Mrs. Fane, very thoughtfully.

"About my age, I suppose," replied Carrington, looking keenly at her.

"Oh! I imagine he must be younger," returning his gaze calmly, critically.

"I look older than I am," said Carrington, smiling.

"Pray excuse me! I do not want to pry into Colonel Fane's life. I do not feel I have any right to do so. Nor am I disposed to be harsh or unfriendly towards him; but our position is peculiarly unfortunate and difficult. Nor do I see any way out of it."

"That," returned Carrington, speaking emphatically, "depends on the view you take of certain questions. A divorce is by no means impossible."

"I strongly object to being dragged through the mire," she said, with some hauteur which became her very well. "May I tell you my story?" she continued. "It is well to know both sides."

"I shall feel honored by your confidence," said Carrington, with much feeling.

Mrs. Fane, leaning her elbow on the end of the sofa, and her cheek on her hand, turned slightly towards him, a dreamy, far-away look in her eyes.

"You have probably heard the outline of the history. I was very young, an orphan, rich, ignorant, I fear arrogant. My aunt, under whose care I was brought up, spoiled me, yet worried me with small restraints and perpetual espionage. She was very pleased to marry me to Mr. Fane; he was a lieutenant in the Guards then, especially as he was to be Earl of Milford when his uncle died. As to my own ideas, I can hardly tell what they were. I must be a totally different creature now from what I was then. I liked the notion of being mistress of my own house and free from my aunt's rule. I don't think I cared for Mr. Fane, though I was rather proud of him. He was not at all good-looking, but tall and distinguished and haughty. I took it for granted that he would love me, for I fancied myself charming. The lawyers squabbled over the settlements, and it was finally arranged that the original Fane estates should be cleared of encumbrances, and handed over to Mr. Fane, and the rest of my fortune settled strictly on myself. Well! We were married! My husband was no indulgent lover; but he was polite and condescending, and tried to treat me good manners. Oh! yes," in reply to a murmur from Carrington, "I was dreadfully bad style; loud in dress, hoydenish, everything I ought not to be. He used to mortify me perpetually. Yet, a soft blush rose in her cheek; a sweet, half-mocking smile parted her lips; "I believe I could have loved him if he had not disdained me. Ah! how cruel it was to let two such young creatures as we rush into certain misery! Clifford—my husband, I mean—was only three-and-twenty, and I was seventeen and a half. How could we bear with each other, untrained, undeveloped as we were? I imagine the contrast between myself and the clever, high-bred women of the world he was accustomed to, must have been trying; but he might have had a little patience."

"I am afraid he acted like a brute!" ejaculated Carrington.

"No; he was always gentlemanlike! That first year was miserable enough. My aunt took great offence at some trifling neglect which Mr. Fane was guilty of, and did her best to set me against him. He insisted on living in the country, so I fancied he was ashamed of being seen with me in town. I began to dislike and defy him. Then his uncle suddenly acknowledged a private marriage and a son and heir. This finished the measure of Mr. Fane's iniquities in my aunt's eyes; she never ceased complaining and fretting about him. But I will not weary you with lips. I believe I could have loved him if he had not disdained me. Ah! how cruel it was to let two such young creatures as we rush into certain misery! Clifford—my husband, I mean—was only three-and-twenty, and I was seventeen and a half. How could we bear with each other, untrained, undeveloped as we were? I imagine the contrast between myself and the clever, high-bred women of the world he was accustomed to, must have been trying; but he might have had a little patience."

"I am afraid he acted like a brute!" ejaculated Carrington.

"No; he was always gentlemanlike! That first year was miserable enough. My aunt took great offence at some trifling neglect which Mr. Fane was guilty of, and did her best to set me against him. He insisted on living in the country, so I fancied he was ashamed of being seen with me in town. I began to dislike and defy him. Then his uncle suddenly acknowledged a private marriage and a son and heir. This finished the measure of Mr. Fane's iniquities in my aunt's eyes; she never ceased complaining and fretting about him. But I will not weary you with lips. I believe I could have loved him if he had not disdained me. Ah! how cruel it was to let two such young creatures as we rush into certain misery! Clifford—my husband, I mean—was only three-and-twenty, and I was seventeen and a half. How could we bear with each other, untrained, undeveloped as we were? I imagine the contrast between myself and the clever, high-bred women of the world he was accustomed to, must have been trying; but he might have had a little patience."

"I am afraid he acted like a brute!" ejaculated Carrington.

"No; he was always gentlemanlike! That first year was miserable enough. My aunt took great offence at some trifling neglect which Mr. Fane was guilty of, and did her best to set me against him. He insisted on living in the country, so I fancied he was ashamed of being seen with me in town. I began to dislike and defy him. Then his uncle suddenly acknowledged a private marriage and a son and heir. This finished the measure of Mr. Fane's iniquities in my aunt's eyes; she never ceased complaining and fretting about him. But I will not weary you with lips. I believe I could have loved him if he had not disdained me. Ah! how cruel it was to let two such young creatures as we rush into certain misery! Clifford—my husband, I mean—was only three-and-twenty, and I was seventeen and a half. How could we bear with each other, untrained, undeveloped as we were? I imagine the contrast between myself and the clever, high-bred women of the world he was accustomed to, must have been trying; but he might have had a little patience."

"I am afraid he acted like a brute!" ejaculated Carrington.

"No; he was always gentlemanlike! That first year was miserable enough. My aunt took great offence at some trifling neglect which Mr. Fane was guilty of, and did her best to set me against him. He insisted on living in the country, so I fancied he was ashamed of being seen with me in town. I began to dislike and defy him. Then his uncle suddenly acknowledged a private marriage and a son and heir. This finished the measure of Mr. Fane's iniquities in my aunt's eyes; she never ceased complaining and fretting about him. But I will not weary you with lips. I believe I could have loved him if he had not disdained me. Ah! how cruel it was to let two such young creatures as we rush into certain misery! Clifford—my husband, I mean—was only three-and-twenty, and I was seventeen and a half. How could we bear with each other, untrained, undeveloped as we were? I imagine the contrast between myself and the clever, high-bred women of the world he was accustomed to, must have been trying; but he might have had a little patience."

"I am afraid he acted like a brute!" ejaculated Carrington.

"No; he was always gentlemanlike! That first year was miserable enough. My aunt took great offence at some trifling neglect which Mr. Fane was guilty of, and did her best to set me against him. He insisted on living in the country, so I fancied he was ashamed of being seen with me in town. I began to dislike and defy him. Then his uncle suddenly acknowledged a private marriage and a son and heir. This finished the measure of Mr. Fane's iniquities in my aunt's eyes; she never ceased complaining and fretting about him. But I will not weary you with lips. I believe I could have loved him if he had not disdained me. Ah! how cruel it was to let two such young creatures as we rush into certain misery! Clifford—my husband, I mean—was only three-and-twenty, and I was seventeen and a half. How could we bear with each other, untrained, undeveloped as we were? I imagine the contrast between myself and the clever, high-bred women of the world he was accustomed to, must have been trying; but he might have had a little patience."

"I am afraid he acted like a brute!" ejaculated Carrington.

"No; he was always gentlemanlike! That first year was miserable enough. My aunt took great offence at some trifling neglect which Mr. Fane was guilty of, and did her best to set me against him. He insisted on living in the country, so I fancied he was ashamed of being seen with me in town. I began to dislike and defy him. Then his uncle suddenly acknowledged a private marriage and a son and heir. This finished the measure of Mr. Fane's iniquities in my aunt's eyes; she never ceased complaining and fretting about him. But I will not weary you with lips. I believe I could have loved him if he had not disdained me. Ah! how cruel it was to let two such young creatures as we rush into certain misery! Clifford—my husband, I mean—was only three-and-twenty, and I was seventeen and a half. How could we bear with each other, untrained, undeveloped as we were? I imagine the contrast between myself and the clever, high-bred women of the world he was accustomed to, must have been trying; but he might have had a little patience."

"I am afraid he acted like a brute!" ejaculated Carrington.

"No; he was always gentlemanlike! That first year was miserable enough. My aunt took great offence at some trifling neglect which Mr. Fane was guilty of, and did her best to set me against him. He insisted on living in the country, so I fancied he was ashamed of being seen with me in town. I began to dislike and defy him. Then his uncle suddenly acknowledged a private marriage and a son and heir. This finished the measure of Mr. Fane's iniquities in my aunt's eyes; she never ceased complaining and fretting about him. But I will not weary you with lips. I believe I could have loved him if he had not disdained me. Ah! how cruel it was to let two such young creatures as we rush into certain misery! Clifford—my husband, I mean—was only three-and-twenty, and I was seventeen and a half. How could we bear with each other, untrained, undeveloped as we were? I imagine the contrast between myself and the clever, high-bred women of the world he was accustomed to, must have been trying; but he might have had a little patience."

"I am afraid he acted like a brute!" ejaculated Carrington.

"No; he was always gentlemanlike! That first year was miserable enough. My aunt took great offence at some trifling neglect which Mr. Fane was guilty of, and did her best to set me against him. He insisted on living in the country, so I fancied he was ashamed of being seen with me in town. I began to dislike and defy him. Then his uncle suddenly acknowledged a private marriage and a son and heir. This finished the measure of Mr. Fane's iniquities in my aunt's eyes; she never ceased complaining and fretting about him. But I will not weary you with lips. I believe I could have loved him if he had not disdained me. Ah! how cruel it was to let two such young creatures as we rush into certain misery! Clifford—my husband, I mean—was only three-and-twenty, and I was seventeen and a half. How could we bear with each other, untrained, undeveloped as we were? I imagine the contrast between myself and the clever, high-bred women of the world he was accustomed to, must have been trying; but he might have had a little patience."

"I am afraid he acted like a brute!" ejaculated Carrington.

"No; he was always gentlemanlike! That first year was miserable enough. My aunt took great offence at some trifling neglect which Mr. Fane was guilty of, and did her best to set me against him. He insisted on living in the country, so I fancied he was ashamed of being seen with me in town. I began to dislike and defy him. Then his uncle suddenly acknowledged a private marriage and a son and heir. This finished the measure of Mr. Fane's iniquities in my aunt's eyes; she never ceased complaining and fretting about him. But I will not weary you with lips. I believe I could have loved him if he had not disdained me. Ah! how cruel it was to let two such young creatures as we rush into certain misery! Clifford—my husband, I mean—was only three-and-twenty, and I was seventeen and a half. How could we bear with each other, untrained, undeveloped as we were? I imagine the contrast between myself and the clever, high-bred women of the world he was accustomed to, must have been trying; but he might have had a little patience."

"I am afraid he acted like a brute!" ejaculated Carrington.

"No; he was always gentlemanlike! That first year was miserable enough. My aunt took great offence at some trifling neglect which Mr. Fane was guilty of, and did her best to set me against him. He insisted on living in the country, so I fancied he was ashamed of being seen with me in town. I began to dislike and defy him. Then his uncle suddenly acknowledged a private marriage and a son and heir. This finished the measure of Mr. Fane's iniquities in my aunt's eyes; she never ceased complaining and fretting about him. But I will not weary you with lips. I believe I could have loved him if he had not disdained me. Ah! how cruel it was to let two such young creatures as we rush into certain misery! Clifford—my husband, I mean—was only three-and-twenty, and I was seventeen and a half. How could we bear with each other, untrained, undeveloped as we were? I imagine the contrast between myself and the clever, high-bred women of the world he was accustomed to, must have been trying; but he might have had a little patience."

"I am afraid he acted like a brute!" ejaculated Carrington.

"No; he was always gentlemanlike! That first year was miserable enough. My aunt took great offence at some trifling neglect which Mr. Fane was guilty of, and did her best to set me against him. He insisted on living in the country, so I fancied he was ashamed of being seen with me in town. I began to dislike and defy him. Then his uncle suddenly acknowledged a private marriage and a son and heir. This finished the measure of Mr. Fane's iniquities in my aunt's eyes; she never ceased complaining and fretting about him. But I will not weary you with lips. I believe I could have loved him if he had not disdained me. Ah! how cruel it was to let two such young creatures as we rush into certain misery! Clifford—my husband, I mean—was only three-and-twenty, and I was seventeen and a half. How could we bear with each other, untrained, undeveloped as we were? I imagine the contrast between myself and the clever, high-bred women of the world he was accustomed to, must have been trying; but he might have had a little patience."

"I am afraid he acted like a brute!" ejaculated Carrington.

"No; he was always gentlemanlike! That first year was miserable enough. My aunt took great offence at some trifling neglect which Mr. Fane was guilty of, and did her best to set me against him. He insisted on living in the country, so I fancied he was ashamed of being seen with me in town. I began to dislike and defy him. Then his uncle suddenly acknowledged a private marriage and a son and heir. This finished the measure of Mr. Fane's iniquities in my aunt's eyes; she never ceased complaining and fretting about him. But I will not weary you with lips. I believe I could have loved him if he had not disdained me. Ah! how cruel it was to let two such young creatures as we rush into certain misery! Clifford—my husband, I mean—was only three-and-twenty, and I was seventeen and a half. How could we bear with each other, untrained, undeveloped as we were? I imagine the contrast between myself and the clever, high-bred women of the world he was accustomed to, must have been trying; but he might have had a little patience."

"I am afraid he acted like a brute!" ejaculated Carrington.

"No; he was always gentlemanlike! That first year was miserable enough. My aunt took great offence at some trifling neglect which Mr. Fane was guilty of, and did her best to set me against him. He insisted on living in the country, so I fancied he was ashamed of being seen with me in town. I began to dislike and defy him. Then his uncle suddenly acknowledged a private marriage and a son and heir. This finished the measure of Mr. Fane's iniquities in my aunt's eyes; she never ceased complaining and fretting about him. But I will not weary you with lips. I believe I could have loved him if he had not disdained me. Ah! how cruel it was to let two such young creatures as we rush into certain misery! Clifford—my husband, I mean—was only three-and-twenty, and I was seventeen and a half. How could we bear with each other, untrained, undeveloped as we were? I imagine the contrast between myself and the clever, high-bred women of the world he was accustomed to, must have been trying; but he might have had a little patience."

"I am afraid he acted like a brute!" ejaculated Carrington.

"No; he was always gentlemanlike! That first year was miserable enough. My aunt took great offence at some trifling neglect which Mr. Fane was guilty of, and did her best to set me against him. He insisted on living in the country, so I fancied he was ashamed of being seen with me in town. I began to dislike and defy him. Then his uncle suddenly acknowledged a private marriage and a son and heir. This finished the measure of Mr. Fane's iniquities in my aunt's eyes; she never ceased complaining and fretting about him. But I will not weary you with lips. I believe I could have loved him if he had not disdained me. Ah! how cruel it was to let two such young creatures as we rush into certain misery! Clifford—my husband, I mean—was only three-and-twenty, and I was seventeen and a half. How could we bear with each other, untrained, undeveloped as we were? I imagine the contrast between myself and the clever, high-bred women of the world he was accustomed to, must have been trying; but he might have had a little patience."

"I am afraid he acted like a brute!" ejaculated Carrington.

"No; he was always gentlemanlike! That first year was miserable enough. My aunt took great offence at some trifling neglect which Mr. Fane was guilty of, and did her best to set me against him. He insisted on living in the country, so I fancied he was ashamed of being seen with me in town. I began to dislike and defy him. Then his uncle suddenly acknowledged a private marriage and a son and heir. This finished the measure of Mr. Fane's iniquities in my aunt's eyes; she never ceased complaining and fretting about him. But I will not weary you with lips. I believe I could have loved him if he had not disdained me. Ah! how cruel it was to let two such young creatures as we rush into certain misery! Clifford—my husband, I mean—was only three-and-twenty, and I was seventeen and a half. How could we bear with each other, untrained, undeveloped as we were? I imagine the contrast between myself and the clever, high-bred women of the world he was accustomed to, must have been trying; but he might have had a little patience."

"I am afraid he acted like a brute!" ejaculated Carrington.

"No; he was always gentlemanlike! That first year was miserable enough. My aunt took great offence at some trifling neglect which Mr. Fane was guilty of, and did her best to set me against him. He insisted on living in the country, so I fancied he was ashamed of being seen with me in town. I began to dislike and defy him. Then his uncle suddenly acknowledged a private marriage and a son and heir. This finished the measure of Mr. Fane's iniquities in my aunt's eyes; she never ceased complaining and fretting about him. But I will not weary you with lips. I believe I could have loved him if he had not disdained me. Ah! how cruel it was to let two such young creatures as we rush into certain misery! Clifford—my husband, I mean—was only three-and-twenty, and I was seventeen and a half. How could we bear with each other, untrained, undeveloped as we were? I imagine the contrast between myself and the clever, high-bred women of the world he was accustomed to, must have been trying; but he might have had a little patience."

"I am afraid he acted like a brute!" ejaculated Carrington.

"No; he was always gentlemanlike! That first year was miserable enough. My aunt took great offence at some trifling neglect which Mr. Fane was guilty of, and did her best to set me against him. He insisted on living in the country, so I fancied he was ashamed of being seen with me in town. I began to dislike and defy him. Then his uncle suddenly acknowledged a private marriage and a son and heir. This finished the measure of Mr. Fane's iniquities in my aunt's eyes; she never ceased complaining and fretting about him. But I will not weary you with lips. I believe I could have loved him if he had not disdained me. Ah! how cruel it was to let two such young creatures as we rush into certain misery! Clifford—my husband, I mean—was only three-and-twenty, and I was seventeen and a half. How could we bear with each other, untrained, undeveloped as we were? I imagine the contrast between myself and the clever, high-bred women of the world he was accustomed to, must have been trying; but he might have had a little patience."

"I am afraid he acted like a brute!" ejaculated Carrington.

"No; he was always gentlemanlike! That first year was miserable enough. My aunt took great offence at some trifling neglect which Mr. Fane was guilty of, and did her best to set me against him. He insisted on living in the country, so I fancied he was ashamed of being seen with me in town. I began to dislike and defy him. Then his uncle suddenly acknowledged a private marriage and a son and heir. This finished the measure of Mr. Fane's iniquities in my aunt's eyes; she never ceased complaining and fretting about him. But I will not weary you with lips. I believe I could have loved him if he had not disdained me. Ah! how cruel it was to let two such young creatures as we rush into certain misery! Clifford—my husband, I mean—was only three-and-twenty, and I was seventeen and a half. How could we bear with each other, untrained, undeveloped as we were? I imagine the contrast between myself and the clever, high-bred women of the world he was accustomed to, must have been trying; but he might have had a little patience."

"I am afraid he acted like a brute!" ejaculated Carrington.

"No; he was always gentlemanlike! That first year was miserable enough. My aunt took great offence at some trifling neglect which Mr. Fane was guilty of, and did her best to set me against him. He insisted on living in the country, so I fancied he was ashamed of being seen with me in town. I began to dislike and defy him. Then his uncle suddenly acknowledged a private marriage and a son and heir. This finished the measure of Mr. Fane's iniquities in my aunt's eyes; she never ceased complaining and fretting about him. But I will not weary you with lips. I believe I could have loved him if he had not disdained me. Ah! how cruel it was to let two such young creatures as we rush into certain misery! Clifford—my husband, I mean—was only three-and-twenty, and I was seventeen and a half. How could we bear with each other, untrained, undeveloped as we were? I imagine the contrast between myself and the clever, high-bred women of the world he was accustomed to, must have been trying; but he might have had a little patience."

"I am afraid he acted like a brute!" ejaculated Carrington.

"No; he was always gentlemanlike! That first year was miserable enough. My aunt took great offence at some trifling neglect which Mr. Fane was guilty of, and did her best to set me against him. He insisted on living in the country, so I fancied he was ashamed of being seen with me in town. I began to dislike and defy him. Then his uncle suddenly acknowledged a private marriage and a son and heir. This finished the measure of Mr. Fane's iniquities in my aunt's eyes; she never ceased complaining and fretting about him. But I will not weary you with lips. I believe I could have loved him if he had not disdained me. Ah! how cruel it was to let two such young creatures as we rush into certain misery! Clifford—my husband, I mean—was only three-and-twenty, and I was seventeen and a half. How could we bear with each other, untrained, undeveloped as we were? I imagine the contrast between myself and the clever, high-bred women of the world he was accustomed to, must have been trying; but he might have had a little patience."

"I am afraid he acted like a brute!" ejaculated Carrington.

"No; he was always gentlemanlike! That first year was miserable enough. My aunt took great offence at some trifling neglect which Mr. Fane was guilty of, and did her best to set me against him. He insisted on living in the country, so I fancied he was ashamed of being seen with me in town. I began to dislike and defy him. Then his uncle suddenly acknowledged a private marriage and a son and heir. This finished the measure of Mr. Fane's iniquities in my aunt's eyes; she never ceased complaining and fretting about him. But I will not weary you with lips. I believe I could have loved him if he had not disdained me. Ah! how cruel it was to let two such young creatures as we rush into certain misery! Clifford—my husband, I mean—was only three-and-twenty, and I was seventeen and a half. How could we bear with each other, untrained, undeveloped as we were? I imagine the contrast between myself and the clever, high-bred women of the world he was accustomed to, must have been trying; but he might have had a little patience."

"I am afraid he acted like a brute!" ejaculated Carrington.

"No; he was always gentlemanlike! That first year was miserable enough. My aunt took great offence at some trifling neglect which Mr. Fane was guilty of, and did her best to set me against him. He insisted on living in the country, so I fancied he was ashamed of being seen with me in town. I began to dislike and defy him. Then his uncle suddenly acknowledged a private marriage and a son and heir. This finished the measure of Mr. Fane's iniquities in my aunt's eyes; she never ceased complaining and fretting about him. But I will not weary you with lips. I believe I could have loved him if he had not disdained me. Ah! how cruel it was to let two such young creatures as we rush into certain misery! Clifford—my husband, I mean—was only three-and-twenty, and I was seventeen and a half. How could we bear with each other, untrained, undeveloped as we were? I imagine the contrast between myself and the clever, high-bred women of the world he was accustomed to, must have been trying; but he might have had a little patience."

"I am afraid he acted like a brute!" ejaculated Carrington.

"No; he was always gentlemanlike! That first year was miserable enough. My aunt took great offence at some trifling neglect which Mr. Fane was guilty of, and did her best to set me against him. He insisted on living in the country, so I fancied he was ashamed of being seen with me in town. I began to dislike and defy him. Then his uncle suddenly acknowledged a private marriage and a son and heir. This finished the measure of Mr. Fane's iniquities in my aunt's eyes; she never ceased complaining and fretting about him. But I will not weary you with lips. I believe I could have loved him if he had not disdained me. Ah! how cruel it was to let two such young creatures as we rush into certain misery! Clifford—my husband, I mean—was only three-and-twenty, and I was seventeen and a half. How could we bear with each other, untrained, undeveloped as we were? I imagine the contrast between myself and the clever, high-bred women of the world he was accustomed to, must have been trying; but he might have had a little patience."

"I am afraid he acted like a brute!" ejaculated Carrington.

"No; he was always gentlemanlike! That first year was miserable enough. My aunt took great offence at some trifling neglect which Mr. Fane was guilty of, and did her best to set me against him. He insisted on living in the country, so I fancied he was ashamed of being seen with me in town. I began to dislike and defy him. Then his uncle suddenly acknowledged a private marriage and a son and heir. This finished the measure of Mr. Fane's iniquities in my aunt's eyes; she never ceased complaining and fretting about him. But I will not weary you with lips. I believe I could have loved him if he had not disdained me. Ah! how cruel it was to let two such young creatures as we rush into certain misery! Clifford—my husband, I mean—was only three-and-twenty, and I was seventeen and a half. How could we bear with each other, untrained, undeveloped as we were? I imagine the contrast between myself and the clever, high-bred women of the world he was accustomed to, must have been trying; but he might have had a little patience."

"I am afraid he acted like a brute!" ejaculated Carrington.

"No; he was always gentlemanlike! That first year was miserable enough. My aunt took great offence at some trifling neglect which Mr. Fane was guilty of, and did her best to set me against him. He insisted on living in the country, so I fancied he was ashamed of being seen with me in town. I began to dislike and defy him. Then his uncle suddenly acknowledged a private marriage and a son and heir. This finished the measure of Mr. Fane's iniquities in my aunt's eyes; she never ceased complaining and fretting about him. But I will not weary you with lips. I believe I could have loved him if he had not disdained me. Ah! how cruel it was to let two such young creatures as we rush into certain misery! Clifford—my husband, I mean—was only three-and-twenty, and I was seventeen and a half. How could we bear with each other, untrained, undeveloped as we were? I imagine the contrast between myself and the clever, high-bred women of the world he was accustomed to, must have been trying; but he might have had a little patience."

"I am afraid he acted like a brute!" ejaculated Carrington.

"No; he was always gentlemanlike! That first year was miserable enough. My aunt took great offence at some trifling neglect which Mr. Fane was guilty of, and did her best to set me against him. He insisted on living in the country, so I fancied he was ashamed of being seen with me in town. I began to dislike and defy him. Then his uncle suddenly acknowledged a private marriage and a son and heir. This finished the measure of Mr. Fane's iniquities in my aunt's eyes; she never ceased complaining and fretting about him. But I will not weary you with lips. I believe I could have loved him if he had not disdained me. Ah! how cruel it was to let two such young creatures as we rush into certain misery! Clifford—my husband, I mean—was only three-and-twenty, and I was seventeen and a half. How could we bear with each other, untrained, undeveloped as we were? I imagine the contrast between myself and the clever, high-bred women of the world he was accustomed to, must have been trying; but he might have had a little patience."

"I am afraid he acted like a brute!" ejaculated Carrington.

"No; he was always gentlemanlike! That first year was miserable enough. My aunt took great offence at some trifling neglect which Mr. Fane was guilty of, and did her best to set me against him. He insisted on living in the country, so I fancied he was ashamed of being seen with me in town. I began to dislike and defy him. Then his uncle suddenly acknowledged a private marriage and a son and heir. This finished the measure of Mr. Fane's iniquities in my aunt's eyes; she never ceased complaining and fretting about him. But I will not weary you with lips. I believe I could have loved him if he had not disdained me. Ah! how cruel it was to let two such young creatures as we rush into certain misery! Clifford—my husband, I mean—was only three-and-twenty, and I was seventeen and a half. How could we bear with each other, untrained, undeveloped as we were? I imagine the contrast between myself and the clever, high-bred women of the world he was accustomed to, must have been trying; but he might have had a little patience."

"I am afraid he acted like a brute!" ejaculated Carrington.

"No; he was always gentlemanlike! That first year was miserable enough. My aunt took great offence at some trifling neglect which Mr. Fane was guilty of, and did her best to set me against him. He insisted on living in the country, so I fancied he was ashamed of being seen with me in town. I began to dislike and defy him. Then his uncle suddenly acknowledged a private marriage and a son and heir. This finished the measure of Mr. Fane's iniquities in my aunt's eyes; she never ceased complaining and fretting about him. But I will not weary you with lips. I believe I could have loved him if he had not disdained me. Ah! how cruel it was to let two such young creatures as we rush into certain misery! Clifford—my husband, I mean—was only three-and-twenty, and I was seventeen and a half. How could we bear with each other, untrained, undeveloped as we were? I imagine the contrast between myself and the clever, high-bred women of the world he was accustomed to, must have been trying; but he might have had a little patience."

have been prosy over my early troubles."

"If you knew the deep interest every syllable you have uttered possesses," said Carrington, humbly, and stopped short.

"You are very good to sympathize with me so kindly," returned Mrs. Fane, looking at him with suspiciously moist eyes. "There is my side of the story. I am no angel, nor was my husband a monster; but it has been our misfortune to spoil each other's lives."

"By heaven!" exclaimed Carrington, starting up and pacing once or twice to and fro. "There never was so unfortunate a devil as Fane to lose you, and without an effort to save himself!" He resumed his seat, and pressing his hand upon his brow, sheltered his face for a moment as if to hide his emotion. Mrs. Fane, greatly touched, looked at him in surprise. What a warm heart must be hidden under his stern, cold manner! Her own best quickly with an emotion more thrilling, delightful, disturbing, than she had ever felt before.

"I don't suppose Colonel Fane takes your view of the subject," she said, with a slight smile; "and do not suppose I have any wish for reunion with him. I bear him no malice, but I never desire to see him again."

"That is only natural," returned Carrington, in his usual tone. "Am I discreet," he continued, "in asking how life has gone with you since—since you and Fane parted?"

"Oh, smoothly enough on the whole. At first I was feverishly fond of place, and somewhat imprudent, so got into scrapes. My aunt died not long after Colonel Fane left me, and I had two or three failures in the shape of lady companions; but I was fortunate in making a few steady, solid friends, who found a chaparrone for me, one of the best and light-toned women. She did me a world of good. I owe her an enormous, never-to-be-repaid debt; but she married an old lover and left me."

"It has been a trying position for such a woman as you are," said Carrington, his brows knitting as he looked keenly at her.

A Pocket Brownie

The New No. 2 Folding
 Meniscus lens, Automatic Shutter
 with Iris diaphragm, Automatic focus ing lock, Reversible Finder. Uses
 N. C. Kodak film, makes pictures
 2 1/2 x 3 1/4 inches. Price $6.00.

Wm. Coates & Son,
 Jewelers and Opticians,
 Brockville, Ont.

Established 188

Grain - Warehouse

Large stock on hand of
 Flour, Bran, Shorts, Middlings,
 Barley Meal, Corn Meal, Procyender, &c at lowest prices.

Athens Lumber Yard

All kinds of Building Lumber Sash, Doors, Shingle
 Water and Whey Tanks, &c

CHOICE

GERANIUMS	PANSIES
PETUNIAS	PHLOX
CANNAS
SALVIA AND SALORI

all ready for setting out

AT

R. B. Heather's
 Tel. 223, G. H. 55.
 Floral work made in the latest styles.

Brockville Fair

Will Soon be Here

Every one should have a nice harness for his horse, and now is the time to buy. We are offering for one week—

Genuine Rubber-trimmed Harness, regular $20.00 for $16.00
 Nickel Trimmed, regular $16.00, for $12.50
 Davis Rubber, regular, $16.00, for $12.50

We have just received a nice lot of fall rugs. Call and see before buying. No trouble to show goods.

CHAS. R. RUDD & CO.
 BROCKVILLE
 Phone 181

Some Specials

White Waists
 The balance of our stock of Ladies' White Waists will be sold very cheap.

REDUCTIONS
 of from 10 to 25 per cent in all. Prices range upwards from 25c.

Ladies' White Wash Collars, very special, 2 for 25c.

White Shoes
 To clear the balance of our stock we will give a package of white dressing with each pair of White Shoes purchased.

Fine Shirts
 In men's sizes, soft fronts, prices ranging from 50c up.
 Flannelette Shirts from 25c up.

Fruit Jars
 Get our prices before buying.

T. S. KENDRIK

The Merchants Bank of Canada

ESTABLISHED - - 1864

Capital and Reserve . . . $10,034,256
 Assets (over) 52,000,000
 Deposits (over) 37,000,000

Hereafter interest will be added on Savings Bank deposits quarterly.

FOUR TIMES A YEAR

And may be withdrawn, if desired, on following dates June 1, September 1, December 1, and March 1. $1.00 opens an account.

ATHENS BRANCH: E. S. CLOW, Manager.

Local and General

The village schools open on Sept. 3. Newboro Fair next Saturday and Monday (Labor Day).
 Miss Ethel Slack is teaching a school near Westport.
 Mr. Jas. F. Gordon visited friends in Montreal last week.
 Mrs. A. E. Brown of Morton visited at the home of her mother here last week.
 The school at Hard Island is this year being taught by Miss Chrystal Rappell.
 Miss Mary Livingston is visiting her niece, Mrs. Isaac Stevens of Phillipville.
 Mrs. D. Johnston and children of Frankville are guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Lamb.
 Charles Haley, V.S., recently with Dr. Peat, has purchased a practice in Iroquoia.

The new dining hall and lunch room on Delta Fair grounds is now open for lease. See adv't.
 Mr. D. L. Johnston of Frankville has gone to the Canadian West on a prospecting trip.
 Mr. Albert Davis is seriously ill with rheumatism at his home on the Addison road.
 Dr. and Mrs. C. C. Johnson of Saranac, Mich., are visiting old friends here and at Oak Leaf.
 Mr. George Campbell left on Monday morning for a visit with friends in Northern New York.
 There is to be a large dining tent on Brockville Fair grounds where a good 25c dinner may be had.

Miss Ethel West returned from Montreal last week and is a guest at Unedarest, Charleston Lake.
 William Stewart of Spring Valley, injured last week by falling from the lot of his barn, is now able to be out.
 Cheese sold in Watertown, N.Y., on Aug. 17 at 12 1/2c and on the same day in Brockville the price was 11 1/2c.

—Giant Triplets "Curcency," "Bobs," and "Stag" Chewing Tobaccos, in big plugs. Quality always the same.
 Mr. Thomas McBratney and family of New Dublin are now residents of Athens, occupying Mr. A. W. Blanchard's residence.
 Is this a sample of the beautiful open fall weather that the cheerful prophets predicted for us during the wintry days of last May?
 Mr. and Mrs. Abner Moore of Portage, Wis., are visiting old friends in Athens, guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Percival.
 In the window of Falkner's gallery last week there was shown a large and excellent photo of Mr. A. E. McLean's marble works and residence.

—For Quality and Quantity ask your dealer for the new big plugs of "Bobs," "Stag" and "Curcency" Chewing Tobaccos.
 Master Clare Sanderson, son of Rev. Mr. Sanderson of Calcutta India is visiting at the home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Mitchell, Frankville.
 Dr. John Dunn, who recently returned from New York, has decided to locate for the practise of his profession at his old home in Elgin. His many friends here wish him a full measure of success.

Zingerella, the only living female spiral scientist, who performs at Brockville fair, has the most striking sensational act ever produced. Toronto and Brockville are the two Canadian points where this great feature will be seen this year. The Kitamura Japs, a company of seven wonderful performers, are another strong card at Brockville's Big Show.
 —A modern business education is a necessary requirement for success in this progressive age. A young lady who left the Frontenac Business College, Kingston, Ontario, and accepted a situation in Calgary, is now drawing $75.00 a month—$900.00 a year. Our graduates always secure good situations. Write for our large catalogue and full particulars. Fall term opens Sept. 3. T. N. Stockdale, Principal.

Miss Belle Earl is visiting friends in Brockville this week.
 Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Kincaid are visiting friends in Toronto.
 Miss Veda Buell of Lyn is the guest of Dr. and Mrs. Lillie, Elgin St.
 The Misses McGuigan of Rochester, N.Y., are visiting friends in Greenbush.
 Miss Lizzie Sheldon of Brockville is visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. Livingston.
 Mrs. Stevens and son Wesley have returned home from a vacation spent at Schenectady, N.Y.
 Mrs. S. S. Cornell and children went to Butternut Bay last week for a visit with friends.
 Master Carman Slack of Westport is visiting at the home of his grandmother, Mrs. P. P. Slack.

Miss May Berney went to Toronto last week, where she is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Donovan.
 Mrs. A. Sheffield and son Charles returned last week from a month's vacation spent at Lyndhurst.
 Mrs. (Dr.) Addison, who was taken suddenly ill Sunday afternoon, is, we are pleased to say, doing nicely.
 Miss Bessie and Masters Leslie and Leonard Cowan are visiting at the home of their grandfather at Charleston Lake.
 Mr. Oscar Patterson of Toronto, a former pupil of the A.H.S., is visiting his brother, Rev. R. B. Patterson, at the Rectory.

The annual camping meeting of the Holiness Movement opens at Lake Elvada to day, and already a number from other circuits have arrived.
 Mr. Lawrence Smith of Newark, N.J., a former typo in this office, is now holidaying at his home in Greenbush and visiting friends in Athens this week.
 Rev. W. N. Scott of Selkirk will conduct services in the Baptist churches of this circuit on Sunday next, preaching at Plum Hollow at 10.30 a.m. and Athens at 7.30 p.m.

Cards of invitation have been issued for the marriage of Miss Lucy A. Kelley of Athens and Mr. J. A. Whipple of Spiritwood, N.D. The ceremony takes place at the home of the bride's sister, Miss Maggie Kelley, on September 2nd.
 Thursday night about 11 a destructive fire raged through the outbuildings of John W. Foley a prominent farmer residing at Rockfield about six miles distant from the village of Lansdowne and a heavy loss was sustained.

Already a considerable shortage of farm laborers is reported from the West, although it is by no means so serious as that of last year, owing to the continuous immigration. Farmers are offering from $35 to $45 for experienced men and from $25 to $30 for "greenhorns."
 Secretary Wright of the Brockville Fair has devised a membership ticket that cannot possibly be used by more than one person. The name of the owner and the secretary's signature appear on card and attached thereto are six coupons admitting once each morning and afternoon. These are detached by the gate-keeper. Members who have not yet secured their tickets should call on the secretary.

Messrs. Kenneth McClary, Harry Smith, Roy Parish and Glen Earl spent the week end under canvas at Derbyshire's Point. They were too busy to catch fish, but pretty fully explored the lake, one of their trips including the ascent of Blue Mountain and a visit to the lake near its summit. The day was clear and a fine view was had of the grand landscape scenes that stretch in all directions.

We are pleased to learn that the Bullis mill property at the station, which has been idle for the greater part of the time since Mr. Bullis left for the West, has passed into the possession of Mr. W. G. Parish, who will run it in conjunction with his other busy mill across the road. A staff of men are now engaged in overhauling the machinery and fitting it for sawing this fall. Other improvements contemplated are the reconstruction of the red building next Henry street into a business office and the putting in of a weigh scales for the convenience of his customers and the public.

Miss S. E. Byers is spending her vacation with friends at Jones' Falls.
 Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kirt and two children of Brockville spent Sunday here, guests of Mrs. L. Monroe.
 Mr. Lambert Kerr and little daughter Thelma of Greenbush spent Sunday here, guests of Mrs. Joseph Kerr.
 Merrickville Star: Mr. M. B. Holmes, of Athens, spent part of last week the guest of his sister, Mrs. Malcolm McCrea.
 Mrs. M. Breese is this week moving from Addison to Athens and will occupy one of Mr. A. R. Brown's houses on Wilts street.
 Rev. B. B. Brown of Montreal assisted in the services in the Methodist church, morning and evening, of Sunday last.

Mrs. Fred Wood and two children of Chesterville are visiting at the home of her father, Mr. Joseph Kerr, and friends at Greenbush.
 The Directors of the Brockville Fair have selected Sept. 11th as Children's Day at the big show, when all school-children will be admitted for 10c each.
 The entries are coming in at Secretary Wright's office, for the Brockville Fair, faster than he can take care of them. It will certainly be the biggest show yet.
 Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Snider and son of Utica, N.Y., are visiting friends here and at Addison. They expect to spend several weeks at Charleston Lake before returning to the city.

Mr. Kenneth Berney, B.Sc., after a pleasant holiday at his home here, returned to Hamilton on Monday to continue his practical course with the staff of the Canadian Westinghouse Co.
 Miss Præsent of Guelph assisted in the choral service in the Methodist church on Sunday evening, taking, in company with Miss Maude Wilts (soprano), the soprano part in a duet that was very sweetly rendered.

—Last week two students of the Kingston Business College secured positions in Syracuse, three in Kingston, one in Montreal and one with the Dominion Government. Two young men, under eighteen years of age, who graduated three months ago, are drawing salaries of $600.00 and $720.00 per year respectively. What the Kingston Business College has done for others it can do for you. Enter at any time. Rates moderate. Catalogue free. Fall term begins on Tuesday, Sept. 3rd. H. F. Metcalfe, Principal.

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.
 The Kind You Have Always Bought
 Bears the Signature of Dr. J. C. Watson

Village Property For Sale

That comfortable brick house with barn and garden, situated on the corner of Wellington and Elm streets, Athens, formerly the home of the late Richard Arnold, is offered for sale and must be sold in order to settle up the estate. Apply to
 H. H. ARNOLD,
 Athens, Aug. 28, 1907, Executor.

Business For Sale

THE subscriber begs to inform the people of this section of country that he is, through failing health, obliged to retire from the carriage business and offers his shops and business for sale at a bargain. He has also a number of finished carriages that he will dispose of at closest possible prices, including two handsome cushion tire jobs, open and top, thoroughly up-to-date. Come early and get your choice.
 Bellows, Anvils, and tools at cut prices.
 D. FISHER,
 Athens, July 31, 07.

NEW GOODS

- BUCKWHEAT FLOUR IN BULK
- SWEET POTATOES
- SPANISH ONIONS
- CRANBERRIES
- NEW TABLE RAISINS
- NEW COOKING RAISINS
- NEW PEELS
- NEW CURRANTS
- NEW PRUNES

Every thing you need guaranteed of the best quality, and the lowest prices at

Jos. Thompson's

Bu-Ju

and by Winter your Kidneys and System will be fortified against Rheumatism or any other Kidney trouble.
 See a box at Drug Stores or by Mail. 21
 THE CLARK CHEMICAL CO. Limited, WINDSOR, Ont.

The Superintendent of Sunday Schools will give an address on the evening of Sept. 5th at 8 p.m. in the Baptist church, Athens. All are cordially invited to attend.

On Friday last fire was communicated to stubble in a field near the farm buildings of R. Sturgeon, Glen Buell. With the aid of neighbors and a train crew of the B.W. & N.W., it was extinguished before any serious damage was done.

Rev. A. B. Johnson of Delta gave an excellent discourse in the Methodist church on Sunday morning. In the evening Rev. George Wilts of Ohio, brother of Mr. Wilson H. Wilts, occupied the pulpit and was heard with interest and profit. Mr. Wilts commenced the work of the ministry here and left for the West twenty-five years ago.

The Kidneys

When they are weak, torpid, or stagnant, the whole system suffers. Don't neglect them at this time, but heed the warning of the aching back, the bloated face, the sallow complexion, the urinary disorder, and begin treatment at once with Hood's Sarsaparilla which contains the best and safest curative substances.
 For testimonials of remarkable cures send for Book on Kidneys, No. 8. C. I. Hood Co., Lowell, Mass.

The People's Column

Adv'ts of 6 lines and under in this column, 25c for first insertion and 10c each subsequent insertion.

Boarders or Roomers
 COMFORTABLE accommodation for several roomers and boarders. Apply to 31-4 MRS. BENJ. SCOTT, Athens.

Roomers
 THE undersigned has comfortable accommodation for students desiring rooms—furnished or unfurnished.
 35 MRS. GEO. EVANS,
 Cor. Church and Victoria Sts.

Board or Roomers
 STUDENTS can be comfortably accommodated with board or rooms at the home of JOHN ROSS, Wellington St.

PIANOS and ORGANS

We are pushing business in the sale of our high grade musical instruments, and give surprising values. Before you invest a dollar, call and learn what we have to offer. We combine superior excellence and low price in a way to please you.

Raymond Sewing Machines
 Have you seen our Raymond Sewing machine? It is a beauty—has ball bearings throughout—full cabinet of quartered oak—and the price is only.....
$35.00

Call and see our stock and test the extraordinary value contained in our special prices
W. B. Percival
 Main street, Athens.

THE "EARL" GENERATOR

W. F. EARL, PATENTEE AND MANUFACTURER - Athens, Ont.

Picnic Supplies

Every Requisite in groceries for the Camp or Cottage

- CANNED GOODS
- PICKLES
- SAUCES
- RELISHES
- BISCUITS, ETC.

All your hot weather needs in the grocery line are here. Good value and prompt service always.
G. A. McClary

FIVE FURNITURE

NEW DESIGNS
 In furniture, new designs both useful and beautiful are constantly being brought forward, and from these we select what we think best fitted for the trade of this district. That's why it is a pleasure to inspect our stock—that's why you find here just what you want. See our

Parlor Suits
Bedroom Suits
Dining Suits
 Handsome Rockers, Easy Chairs, Couches, Enamelled Beds—in short, everything for the comfortable and artistic furnishing of a home.
 We ask only a reasonable price and cordially invite inspection.
T. G. Stevens

FRUIT

All reasonable varieties constantly on hand

Ice Cream
 Pure Ice Cream—home manufacture—wholesome and delicious.

Cooling Drinks
 All kinds of popular "soft" beverages.

Confectionery
 Full line of the very choicest goods.

Groceries
 We can supply all your needs in the grocery line with fresh and reliable goods.

E. C. TRIBUTE
 Next door to Merchants Bank.

T H I S O R I G I N A L D O C U M E N T I S V E R Y P O O R C O N D I T I O N