POETRY.

Courage.

Because I hold it sinful to despair,
And will not let the bitterness of life
Blind me with burning tears, but look
Beyond its tumult and its strife;
Because I lift my head above the mist,
Where the sun shines and the breeze blow,
By every ray and every rain-drop kissed
That God's love doth bestow:
Think you I find no bitterness at all?
No burdens to be borne, like Christian's?
Think you there are no ready tears to fall
Because I keep them back?
Why should I hug life's life with cold resolve,
To curse myself and all who love me?
Nay!
A thousand times more good than I deserve
God gives me every day.
And for each one of those rebellious tears
Kept bravely back, He makes a rainbow
In his smile;
Grateful I take his slightest gift, no fears
Nor any doubts are mine.
Dark skies must clear, and when the clouds are past,
One golden day redeems a weary year;
Patient I listen, sure that sweet at last
Will sound his voice of cheer.
Then vex me not with chiding. Let me be
I must be glad and grateful to the end,
I grieve you not your cold and darkness
—The powers of light befriend.

Why should I hug life's life with cold resolve,

To curse myself and all who love me?

The Hero of Beaver Head.

BY ALVA MILTON KERR.

CHAPTER IV.—Continued.

Very gently Eric lifted her up and led her away to the hut upon the cliff. The men slowly followed, bearing the man upon the litter, and laid him down in his humble home. In a little time Carl came in with the village doctor. The physician placed a flask of whiskey to the exhausted man's lips, but when its fumes smote the patient's nostrils, such a look of terror, hatred and loathing came into the sufferer's face, that the doctor fell back before it in wonder.

"Take it away! Destroy it!" he hoarsely cried. "I will never drink again."

"For the love of Heaven, ever offer that to the like of me!" Oh, think what it has done to us! and his rage fell into a broken-hearted man. "Don't ask me to drink it," he said, "for I've been drunk for three days, and I can't keep about much longer." No he managed to steer for the island, and when he got nigh, he said again: "I am afraid, father, the current's going to carry us by." And he set his helm to port an' starboard. Then he got his hands on the tiller, and when he was about to strike he held up with his knees an' teeth, an' what he could with his poor hands, an' when he struck he lifted an' threw me ahead, an' I fell onto the shore. But he sprang back an' glanced off, an' he fell in the prow an' laid still. He'd fainted, Lucy, his last drop of strength was gone. I got upon my knees an' holled with all my might to rouse him, but he had no strength. Lucy, he'd give it all to me, an' tears run down the big man's cheeks, with the mother sobbed with her face pressed against the pillow.

"Then the boat lurched," the man went on, huskily, "an' it followed the current past the island, and I see him struggle up an' heard him callin': 'Oh, father! I done my best! I tried to bring ye back! Moby some ship'll save ye, an' if ye ever reach home an' I never come, tell mother I died innocent!—I died innocent!' Then I couldn't hear him no more, an' I watched the boat go further an' further, an' I see another island way off to the west, but just afore he reached it the boat struck something—a bar, I guess—an' sunk, an' I fell forward an' didn't know no more, only a sort of dreamin' movement of sights an' noises, till Eric laid me down there on the sand, and your callin' roused me to life again."

His voice faltered, and they sat a long time weeping together in silence; and that might ever have been said of prayer or blame or sorrow and love, of regret and new resolve, was spoken in that sound of falling tears.

The next day was Sabbath and all was quiet in Redwood town. The millmen, clad in fresh clothing, sat on the doorsteps of their cottages smoking their pipes and looking idly out at the blue fields of the sea, or down among the fragrant stacks of lumber sat whitening and talking. Some, when the little cracked bell in the steeple of the church upon the shady allside called them, had gone with the children to hear what love could do in saving men—even the love of a wronged and crippled boy. Surely all their hearts were better for having heard from the minister's lips the story of Paul Armor's victory, though they knew it well before.

Over on the head the day broke beautifully, yet with little cheer, for sorrow and heavy poverty were there. The children felt it, and the mother went sadly and fro, longing for her lame lost boy. Near noon she stood in the doorway looking out to sea. A big yacht, with all its white sails spread, blew into the little harbor, but she did not see it, for her eyes were wet. She was thinking of that island, somewhere to the west of the blue horizon line, upon whose cruel bar her boy went down. She thought of him as he used to lie upon her breast when a child, and again she seemed to see him, as she had so many times, coming up the path to the door where she stood, his straw hat in his hand, his light curls blown about his frank blue eyes. And yet when she turned from those fancies there was something sweet at the bottom of her heart. She could not tell when it came. Was it because the sky was so beautiful with its flocks of snowy clouds, the sea so blue, the air so crystal clear, the sunshine so pretty on the rooftops? She saw, too, that the children seemed happier than for many days, and when she went into the sick man's room he met her with a smile.

Presently footsteps came to the door, and Eric and his comrades, with their sweethearts entered. Behind them were others bearing bags and baskets, and the children leaped with joy. Armor arose and came out. His step was slow but steady and his face was clear. The children with Gale among them, shouted and danced with gladness to see him grown so strong, and the big man's eyes were filled with blessed tears as he looked around upon the faces of his friends.

The shadow seemed lifted, and the mother smiled; something strange and sweet was in the air.

Suddenly there arose the noise of many voices near the hut, cheering and singing in the sunshine. Eric sprang up, and all stood still and harkened. A great light came into the mother's eyes. She held her hand hard against her leaping heart and listened. Suddenly Eric leaped out the door with an answering shout. They all followed him, and along the top of the great bluff a crowd poured into view, and there borne upon the shoulders of the cheering men, sat Paul Armor!

He was pale and weak, and his poor hands, swathed in white bandages, hung down over the men's shoulders, but his face was almost like a star. Ah, there was his old mother with her face wreathed in light and thankful smiles, and his father, looking as if Heaven had come opened. In a moment they had come together, and there was kissing and crying and handshaking and happy laughter. Then Eric noticed that little Gale was crying for happiness in the arms of a lady he had not seen before, and as soon as Paul could get his breath he cried:

"Mother! Father! This is the little thing's mummy! She was on the steam-boat that took me off the island where I was washed ashore after the boat sunk! She had my knees fixed in the city, an', oh, mother! I ain't lame any more!"

Then the handshaking and cries of surprise and gladness were renewed, and the millmen and wharfmen swung their hats again and gave three mighty cheers for "The Hero of Beaver Head."

And went back to the town.

Trave Armor is an old man now, but since that day he has never tasted rum. Paul is a merchant in Sag Raceville. Sitting one day upon his porch and looking out upon the sunlit bay, he told me in private what I have told you here. Two pretty children were playing down below us in the grass, and a happy face was bending over a cradle just in-

THE ACADIAN

WOLFVILLE, N. S., OCT. 9, 1891.

The Local Newspaper.

Your town newspaper is the most useful of all the agencies which stamp the impress of progress upon the town and inland city.

Death of Parnell.

The sudden death of Charles Stewart Parnell, the famous Irish leader, took place at his home on Brighton, on Tuesday night.

The Electric Light.

This light appears to be the popular illumination just now, and is being adopted in several towns of the Province. Others have had it in operation for some time past, and found it much superior to any light previously in vogue.

The Highways.

As the season advances and autumn rains begin to fall, it is necessary, in order to maintain passable roads and bridges throughout the fall and winter, that some attention should be given to the washouts and dilapidated bridges which the storms and travel of summer have made apparent.

The Halifax Fire.

A disastrous conflagration took place in Halifax on Thursday evening of last week, when the wharf property from Cronan's south to Cunard's north was entirely destroyed.

The Land We Live In.

We often hear Nova Scotians speak of "going to Canada," when they mean the Upper Provinces of the Dominion of which we form a part.

An Ideal Wife.

A $350 SEALSKIN COAT FOR THE LADY COMING NEAREST THE REQUIR- MENTS. Every lady sending fifty cents for a three months' trial subscription to the Ladies' Pictorial Weekly, may enclose a sample of her handwriting.

Janitor Wanted--See adv.

The sch. Amherst, Smith, arrived from Boston on Saturday last, with general cargo.

Rev. Mr. Martell occupied the Presbyterian pulpit last Sabbath, the pastor being absent attending the meeting of the synod.

There will be a meeting of the Wolfville Tennis Club this afternoon, at 4 o'clock, in Witter's Hall. A full attendance is requested.

Principal Miller, of Hantsport, will lecture in the Methodist church, Canning, next Saturday evening. His subject will be, "Tomstones."

The paid admissions at the Halifax exhibition were as follows: Tuesday, 3,015; Wednesday, 12,032; Thursday, 16,577; and Friday, 3,899--making a total of 35,523.

Mr. C. R. H. Starr has begun the erection of another dwelling on his property, and has sold the house and lot already to a party who is moving into our town.

At a meeting of the Executive of the Teachers' Association for the district of Kings and Hants it was decided to hold the annual meeting of the Association at Hantsport, Dec. 16th and 17th.

Mr. W. J. Balcom, of this place, purchased on Thursday last from G. B. Graves, of Aylesford, a fine four-year-old mare, sired by "Knox"; a good sum was paid for her, not less than $150.

Mr. Burgess' barque Ball is being thoroughly repaired at St. John, having been stripped, re-caulked, re-sheathed and re-coppered. She was chartered to load deals at St. John for the west coast of England.

Flat Table Ware, in steel and silver plate, a fine assortment, at Brown's.

Next Sunday, October 11th, the service in St. John's church will be at 3 P. M. Subject of the Rector's sermon: "Faith's trial, Faith's struggle, and Faith's victory." The offerings outside the parochial envelopes will be for the bond of home missions.

We are glad to be able to state that some of our subscribers have taken notice of our appeal in last issue, and have paid up the amounts due us. They have our hearty thanks: We only regret that the number has been so small. Will not others "go and do likewise?"

"Unity" Tyro Cement, for bridges and parapet walls, at Walter Brown's.

Rev. J. S. Coffin is expected to preach in the Methodist church at Lower Horton next Sunday morning, at Greenfield in the afternoon, at 3 o'clock, and at Wolfville in the evening. Many who were acquainted with Mr. Coffin when he was stationed on this circuit some years ago will be glad of another opportunity of hearing him.

The steamer King Frade sailed on Saturday last from Kingsport for London, G. B. She was chartered by Mr. D. M. Dickie, of Canning, to load apples, and carried a cargo of 8,000 barrels. Mr. Dickie went on the steamer as a passenger, and will look after the cargo, a considerable part of which belongs to him. The King Frade is a regular fruit steamer, is 700 tons register and when light loaded has a speed of eleven knots.

Carpet Felt is an excellent thing to put under carpets in the fall--at Brown's.

The Presbyterian Sewing circle, of Lower Horton, are making arrangements for holding a "Hot Supper and Fancy Sale" in Borden's Hall, Grand Pre, on Thursday, Oct. 15th, and promise a good time to all who attend. We hope they will be liberally patronized and encouraged in this worthy effort to raise money for church purposes. The evening will be lighted by that time, and it would be a pleasant drive from here.

Before the close of the year Kentville will be lighted by electricity. A company has been organized, to be known as the Kentville Electric Light and Power Co., to undertake the venture. The capital stock of the company is $10,000, of which $5,000 is subscribed. The vacant lot adjoining the Porter House has been bought, and the station will be built there. The work for putting in the system will commence immediately, and it is expected that the system will be completed by Nov. 1st.

Local and Provincial.

The "big ship Canada" arrived in Liverpool on the 28th ult., having made the voyage from St. John in 27 days.

The regular monthly meeting of the Fire Company will be held next Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock in their room. A full attendance is requested.

Mr and Mrs C. H. Borden arrived home on Friday afternoon last, and have taken up their residence in the fine dwelling just completed by Mr. Borden.

Lost, between Avonport and Wolfville a small pocket diary and a pearl cuff button with gold band. The finder will be suitably rewarded by leaving one or both at this office.

B. H. Dodge is loading the Boston barque Benjamin Dickson, now at Kingsport, with lumber for the West Indies. The barque will take 400,000 feet of spruce.

James E. Bertain of Somerset brought to our office last evening a ripe strawberry of the Jesse variety. In size this berry will compare favorably with the finest of the Summer growth.--Register.

Of the sheep imported by the local government and sold at the provincial exhibition, thirty-three per cent were purchased by King's county. Of those bought by P. Innes, Esq., some were for Miss Stirling, of Hillfoot Farm, Aylesford.

Rev. J. B. Logan, preached his last sermon previous to his return to Scotland in St. Paul's church, Kentville, last Sunday. He expects to sail for home tomorrow. The rev. gentleman has spent several months in the Province, and has spoken in a great many churches.

"Lightning" Hay knives, to cut hay cutters mow at Brown's.

The St. John exhibition closed on Friday last, after quite a successful run of ten days. The display on the whole, though inferior in some respects to that of last year, notable in lack of agricultural and stock exhibits, was quite creditable, some special features having proved quite attractive.

Wait For It.

The publishers of the Dominion Illustrated have in preparation the most magnificent Christmas number ever issued in Canada. Its literary and artistic features will stand unrivalled. It will be a purely Canadian work. Wait for it! Published by Sabiston Litho & Pub Co., Montreal.

The executor court has awarded damages to property in Annapolis, caused by the creation of the overhead crossing of the Western Counties Railway, the following sums: Rev. J. J. Richies, $1,600; William Malcom, $1,600; Methodist, church $800; Annie R. McKay, $650; Ella B. Gavaza, $530 and George McLaughlin $525.

EDITOR ACADIAN.--Can you tell me if there is any law compelling the public to shut the gates on the middle dike road? Several animals have been killed on the railway during the past five years which would have not been done if the gates had been kept closed. Perhaps the Commissioners can tell us if there is a law, and if so why it is not enforced.

Mr Bezantson has nearly completed extensive repairs on Mr. L. N. Caldwell's house. The improvements made considerably enhance its external appearance and add much to the conveniences within.

Mr Jchiel Martin has sold his barrel establishment, Mill accepted, to Mr. Williams, who has been his right hand man for several years past. Mr. W. is deservedly esteemed: With his skill and industry he will, no doubt, succeed in the new venture.

We have had two marriage celebrations recently! Two people have been made richer thereby but by so much has our community been the losers.

Mr Freeman Bishop and Miss Etta Benjamin, a favorite among the young people, were married in the church, which was tastefully decorated for the occasion.

Death of Edwin Rand.

The death of Edwin Rand occurred at the house of his brother, Rufus E. Rand, Upper Canada, Cornwallis, on Saturday last. Mr Rand was 61 years of age, the second son of Thomas W. Rand, of Canada. For several years he was one of the prominent business men of Canning, as a member of the firm of Dickie, Rand & Tupper. After the dissolution of that firm, he went to the city of New York, for a few years. From New York at the solicitation of his sons, who are doing a large and flourishing business there, as Rand Bros, he went to British Columbia, settling first at New Westminster, and later at Vancouver. He came to Cornwallis with his wife, daughter of the late David Ellis, in July last, for a somewhat extended visit among his relatives and wide circle of friends. He was in excellent health and evidently greatly enjoyed revisiting the scenes of his childhood, and meeting the friends of youth and manhood. His intelligence, his affability and his genial hearty enjoyment of his friends made him a welcome visitor wherever he went and increased the regard of his old friends toward him. He was in Wolfville for some time visiting his brother, Mr G. V. Rand, during which time we made his acquaintance. He was expecting to leave on his return to his home in Vancouver, when he was suddenly stricken down by fever and in spite of all medical aid and nursing could do for him, he died in a few days. A very large and representative concourse followed to the funeral services were conducted by the Rev. S. B. Kempton, pastor of the Canada church, of which Mr Rand was a member before his removal from the place. During the years of his residence in Canning he was a deacon in the Baptist church there and of him his pastor used to say, that he was a tower of strength to him. At the time of his decease he was a deacon in the Baptist church of Vancouver. Wherever his residence, he sought to maintain the christian life and sanctify his church connections. He will be greatly missed by a large circle of much attached friends and acquaintances in Nova Scotia and in British Columbia. His excellent wife, expectancy returns to Vancouver. The return journey will be a lonely one to her.
