Character Ball

A character and fancy dress ball was held in the Assembly Hall on Friday evening last and was well attended. The ball which was under the auspices of the Ward Choir was very successful, many of the costumes being excellent. Music for the dancing was provided by the Newton Orchestra.

Four prizes were given for the best costumes, two for ladies and two for gentlemen. The following were the prize winners:

Ladies—1. Miss Addie Robinson as Red Wing. 2. Mrs. Faith Young as a Spanish Dancing Girl.

Gentlemen—1. Mr. Douglas Oland as Bonnie Prince Charles. 2. Fred Best as a Mexican Cowboy.

Judges—Mrs. Wm. Walsey, M. Johnson and E. J. Wood.

The following are some of the costumes noticed:—

CHARACTERS

Earl of Duffinbery—Ben Marsden.

Spanish Bull Fighter—Leigh Young.

French Prince—C. T. Magee.

Two Little Girls in Blue—A. T. Henson and F. Burton.

Uncle Sam—Harold Wood.

The proceeds of the dance were in aid of the Ward Choir, which contemplates going to Edmonton in May to attend the Musical Festival which is to be held there. The Character Ball will be remembered as one of the best in the history of the district and the committee in charge have reason to feel gratified with the success which rewarded their efforts.

Agricultural Society Purchases Grounds

At a meeting of the Agricultural Society held last Saturday, it was decided to purchase the property of Mr. Wm. Cleveland's, which is situated in the extreme west of town.

The Society will need the co-operation of the people in the purchasing of this property, and it is to be hoped that every citizen will respond handsomely when the call is made.

The officers of the society are to be commended for obtaining such a splendid site, and when the exhibition buildings are erected and the other arrangements complete Cardston will have the finest exhibition grounds in Sunny Southern Alberta.

Two Farmer's Societies Unite

Will Be Known As The United Farmers
Of Alberta

The long looked for amalgamation of the Canadian Society of Equity and Alberta Farmers' Association was consummated in Edmonton last week and hereafter the united body will be known as the United Farmers of Alberta. The new organization has a membership of five thousand farmers, and James Bower, of Red Deer, was elected president; Rice Sheppard, Strathcona, Vice-president S. G. Fream, secretary. Remaining officers will be elected later.

C. N. R. COMING

Calgary, Jan. 14.—The Herald publishes a report that the C. N. R. will build to Calgary and then to Lethbridge, with a branch north of Lethbridge to Macleod. It says also that C. N. R. will take over for Macleod Cardston Railway, and will build a line from Macleod to the Crow's Nest Pass.

Cardston Agricultural Fair Association

To the Farmers and Business Men of the Cardston District

WE, the officers of the Cardston Agricultural Fair Association, solicit the aid and support of the farmers and business men of the Cardston District.

WHY? Because a good agricultural fair held in this district each year is a necessity. It is not necessary to argue this point, it is a fact.

Four years ago we had no association.

Today you have an Association that has held three successful fairs each one larger than the last. All prize money has been paid up and no assistance has been asked for outside of the association though the association started in without one cent in the treasury.

In addition to this we have held Seed Fairs and Standing Grain Competitions and have paid the prize money upon all. Can you afford to let this good work drop? Why do we now ask for assistance?

Because the fair has outgrown our expectations and must have a permanent home. We have no place in which to hold another fair.

The entry of exhibits at the fair in 1908 was 867 and if there is a further increase in 1909 we have no place to put the exhibits. We have been, for some time, face to face with this alternative, either to abandon the fair or to buy grounds and build suitable buildings on these grounds.

We are the only association that does not possess grounds though we receive one of the biggest entries in the province.

This association holds a fall fair, winter seed fairs and standing grain competitions. Can you afford to let all these drop?

It will also hold Horticultural Shows and Poultry Shows as well as institute meetings.

It is the aim and object of this association to keep the farmer to the front. The business prospers when the farmers prosper.

So rather than abandon all that we have done we have purchased a fine location for a fair ground at Cardston. We ask you to aid yourselves in aiding us to pay for it. The ground belongs to you.

This fair ground is not the property of the officers of the Association but the property of the Cardston District.

The officers of the association are elected every year. When the present officers step down and out at the end of the year and a new set of officers step in these latter are elected for one year and assume control. The old officers make no profit and take nothing with them.

No individual, individuals or clique owns this fair ground, it is the property of the people of the Cardston District.

The officers of the association have purchased the ground and have assumed responsibility for the payment but they cannot own it belongs to the people.

If you subscribe to the association you subscribe to what is your own.

If you wish to support a fair and an association that will be a credit to your district subscribe and help us. There is no limit to your subscription that we solicit, either large or small. You may give us anything from a cent to a thousand dollars, all will go into the treasury and nothing will be refused.

Help yourselves by helping the association and let us all pull together. Give us something even if it is only a mite.

Cardston Grain Wins Prizes At Lethbridge Seed Fair

1st. in Alberta Red—1st. in Rye—1st. in Brome Grass
—1st. in Brome Grass Seed

Four 1st. prizes out of six entries is not too bad for Cardston. This is what happened at the Seed Fair held in Lethbridge on Saturday last. The entries from Cardston were made by Mr. Arthur Perry, and brought four 1st. prizes.

The Alberta Red, wheat tested

66 pounds to the bushel and scored 92½ points out of a possible hundred.

This wheat averaged sixty bushels to the acre for twenty acres.

Rye, test 16½ pounds.

Brome grass, test 15½ pounds.

Brome grass seed, test 13½ lbs.

Alberta Provincial Seed Fair

Arrangements are completed for the Third Annual Provincial Seed Fair for 1909, which will be held in the C. M. R. Drill Hall, Calgary, on February 3rd, 4th and 5th, under the auspices of the Provincial Department of Agriculture, assisted by the Seed Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture. The prizes to be given to grain growers are said to be the best ever offered at any western seed fair. For Alberta Red Winter Wheat, Banner Oats, and any other good milling variety of oats, cash amounting to $80.00 in each class is offered, divided into $20.00, $15.00, $12.00, $8.00 and $5.00 prizes. The money offered for Red Fife Spring Wheat, any other hard variety of Spring Wheat, and any short or feed variety of Oats totals $52.00, divided into $18.00, $14.00, $10.00, $6.00 and $4.00 prizes. For any soft variety of Spring Wheat the prizes are $15.00, $12.00, $8.00 and $5.00, $30.00 is offered for both the two and six rowed varieties of Barley, divided into $15.00, $10.00 and $5.00 prizes. The prize list also provides for prizes for Peas, Flax Seed, Timothy Seed, Brome Grass, Red Clover Seed, Alsike Clover Seed and Alfalfa. In each of these classes the total amount offered is $25.00, divided into $12.00, $8.00 and $5.00 prizes. Prizes are also offered for competitions in judging Wheat, Oats, and for the identification of Weed Seeds as follows:—$10.00, $5.00 and $3.00.

The $100.00 silver trophies offered for the best 5 bushels of Spring Wheat, Alberta Red Wheat, any variety of milling Oats and for six-rowed Barley, are specially attractive. The trophy for Spring Wheat is donated by the Farm Crops Magazine of Winnipeg. It was first won in 1908 by J. C. Vosburgh of Granum, but must be won three times before it finally becomes the property of the exhibitor. The publishers of this Magazine supplement the trophy with a cash prize of $50.00 to the winner, $30.00 second and $20.00 3rd. The trophy for Alberta Red Winter Wheat is donated by the Alberta Pacific Elevator Company of Calgary, for milling Oats by the Calgary and Strathcona Branches of the Braekman-Ker Milling Company, and the trophy for the best 5 bushels of six-rowed barley by the Calgary Brewing and Malting Company. Each trophy must be won three times before it finally becomes the property of the exhibitor.

In addition to the above prizes the Canadian Seed Growers' Association offers prizes totalling $250.00 in cash to the members of that Association resident in Alberta.

In order to place all the exhibitors on an equal basis, the Department refunds all express or freight charges in excess of 50¢ except in special classes, where the charges over $1.00 will be refunded.

A programme of interesting lectures relative to grain growing will be delivered at the time of the Fair by capable speakers. Arrangements are being made with the railways whereby convention rates will apply to all those attending the exhibition.

Prize lists can be procured by making application to the Department of Agriculture, Edmonton.

The Winnipeg bonspiel opens this year on February 10. It promises to be the greatest curling carnival for years.

Govt Reading Room

Kitao Dines Like a King

KITAO proposed himself to sleep. True, he had not dined, but he was contented, for all that. Had he not given his last handful of rice to the poor? Surely, he would gain much more good from it by this way than had he eaten it.

WENT FLACIDLY TO SLEEP

was dissatisfied. The idea of taking a nap while hungry was not at all attractive to her. She determined to hunt for some tempting morsel in which she could busy her teeth.

She had gone not more than a hundred yards from the cottage of her master, however, before she met several naughty boys, who wickedly tied a huge saucepan to her tail. Terrified by this great thing, which banged and clattered after her, Matou sped helter-skelter along the byways.

FASTENED THE SAUCEPAN

So great was her fright that she did not realize what she was doing when she ran against the royal cook, who prepared the viands for the emperor himself. Now, the cook was carrying a pullet, which had just been cooked for his majesty, and when he fell, tripped by the string attached to Matou's saucepan, he dropped the chicken. And this dainty fell right into the saucepan tied to the cat's tail. Away fled Matou, more frightened than ever. This time she made directly for the home of her master.

Kitao was astonished, indeed, when Matou appeared, drawing behind her the pullet in a saucepan.

"The gods have provided me with dinner!" cried he. And as he proceeded to enjoy this feast he remarked, with gusto:

"This pullet is fit for a king to dine upon."

Little did he know with what truth he had spoken. Had he done so, perhaps, he would not have eaten the pullet so calmly, nor so gratefully shared it with Matou.

A Fair Exchange

NEVER before had Willie been in the country. He fell into raptures of delight over many things, but above all did he admire a Jersey calf.

"I'd like to buy it," he said to the owner.

"But what would you give in exchange for it?" was the response.

"My baby sister," gravely answered the boy. "We often have a new baby, and we've never had a calf."

A Princess' Kindness

NOT long ago a motor-car in which the Princess of Wales was riding killed a fox-terrier puppy belonging to the children of Mr. Robert Edmunds, of Rickmansworth.

This accident so distressed the princess that she sent another puppy to the children to replace "Nelly," who had been killed. The children named the new dog "Royal Prince." You can imagine how they prize their pet and how they appreciate the kindness of the princess.

"I want to buy a dog that will look terribly fierce and won't bite anybody," said the lady to the dog dealer. "You'd better get a china dog, mamma," was the reply.

Dollies made at an Emperor's Coronation

THE ARTIST QUICKLY ARRANGED THE WONDERFUL DOLLS IN A PROCESSION BEFORE NAPOLEON

As there is nothing to disturb me today, I can now devote the time necessary to finish this portrait."

Thereupon, Isabe, the great painter of the French court, applied himself to his work with renewed energy.

But not long was he to remain in this contented frame of mind. Some one knocked loudly at the door. With a grunt of irritation Isabe turned the handle, to find himself confronted by an eunuch in the royal uniform.

"Your presence, sir, is desired at the Tuilleries immediately," said the messenger.

"Isabe," said he, "you know that my coronation takes place in two days. Well, I want you to begin work this hour upon two water colors, reproducing exactly the event which will take place on that day. I wish to have these paintings completed by the day I am crowned emperor."

The painter murmured, "Yes, sire," and then found himself dismissed. Back to his house he walked, with his mind all befuddled. How in the world could he finish two water colors, demanding great care, in just forty-eight hours?

Isabe knew the task set him was impossible. It would have taxed the ability of the work," he reflected.

All at once an idea came to him. Not only was he clever at painting, but he could devise splendid costumes with remarkable speed. Mine, Isabe was witness to his skill in designing elaborate robes exquisitely decorated.

Once having made up his mind, Isabe made hurried plans to put the scheme into execution. Servants were dispatched to buy numbers of undressed dolls; others were sent to shops to buy rich fabrics and gay tinsel of gold and silver.

Then the painter set to work. First, he painted the faces of the dolls to represent the features of those who were to take part in the pageant.

Then from the heap of costly cloth he cut pieces and deftly fashioned them into beautiful robes, exact counterparts of those to be worn at the coronation. Hours passed, but the flying fingers of the artist fairly kept pace with them. Round him now lay masses of dresses and cloth and dolls and scraps—as though it were a doll factory. Puppets after puppets was completed, however. Yet Isabe never ceased from his labors.

On the eve of Coronation Day Isabe was admitted to the presence of Napoleon. Accompanying him was the painter's valet, bearing a mass of paste-board boxes.

"What are all these parcels for?" demanded Napoleon. "Surely two water colors cannot occupy so much space."

Without replying, Isabe proceeded to unfasten the cords which bound the boxes, and to place upon the floor a multitude of puppets, exactly resembling the noted personages who were to

"I regret, sire, that I could not execute your command better, but I trust that this substitution for the water colors will be acceptable."

And Napoleon, thoroughly amused as well as astonished at the painter's marvelous skill in designing the procession, replied:

"I am satisfied, Isabe—and surprised. While Josephine, wife of Napoleon, added, with enthusiasm:

"You do very well as a court painter, Isabe, but I would that you were my costumer!"

Isabe acknowledged his compliment and the praise bestowed upon him by take part in the coronation on the morrow.

In the space of a short time he had arranged a complete procession. Then he turned to Napoleon, bowed, and said:

courtiers and ladies.

The water colors were afterward finished, as Napoleon had first commanded, but it is said that the emperor was not more pleased with them than he was with the wonderful group of dolls.

SERVANTS BROUGHT UNDRESSED DOLLS AND RICH FABRICS

Wondering for the necessity of such great haste, Isabe hurried to the palace, where he gained admittance at once. Napoleon greeted him kindly, and then referred to the matter which had caused him to send for the artist.

Himself the Enemy

AN OLD Norse legend tells of one of the kings of Northland who was a mighty warrior, and so strong that none other could stand against him in combat. There was no man living whom he feared.

But one dark and cloudy night he was set upon by an enemy who seemed to know in advance his every defense, and who was able to forestall all his moves and grips and thrusts. In vain the king sought to free himself. He felt that he was being choked to death.

Then, as the clouds parted for a moment, the king caught a glimpse of his enemy, and, lo! he saw his own face. So it was he found that he was his own greatest enemy.

Interesting Pastimes of Nan and Dan

TRICK THIMBLES

HOW THE COIN DISAPPEARS

FOLDING THE HANDKERCHIEF

GOBLET FILLED WITH "INK"

HURRIEDLY unfolding the note which Nora had just brought her, Nan read:

"To Her Majesty Queen Nan: With the permission of your most gracious majesty the court magician will perform in the queen's audience chamber at the hour of 8:—
"MAGICIAN DAN."

The little girl clapped her hands in glee. It was very, very nice of Brother Dan to help amuse her, while her strained ankle still kept her confined to the house. She settled herself, more comfortably on the couch, to await the coming of the "magician." Dan could do such wonderful tricks that she well knew a treat was in store.

Promptly at the hour appointed Dan appeared at the door of the sitting room, and bowed profoundly to Nan. Then he left the room for a moment, returning with materials for his tricks. Raising two thimbles in the air, he announced:

THE PERFORMANCE BEGINS

"Your majesty, the performance will begin with a mystifying thimble trick. You will observe the thimbles are entirely empty. Now I shall place a cork pellet on the table before me, and over it I shall place one of the thimbles. The other thimble I put on top of the one which covers the pellet. Presto, change!"

Dan waved his magic wand in the air, made a few mysterious gestures and then announced:

"I have now made the pellet travel from underneath the lower thimble to the inside of the upper thimble."

Sure enough, when he raised the top thimble, there was the pellet, while the bottom thimble was empty.

OTHER ASTONISHING FEATS

Amid great applause Dan went on with his next feat. On the table he laid a square piece of paper and upon it placed a coin. Over the coin he placed a glass. Then over the glass he slipped a cylinder of pasteboard. Raising both the glass and the cylinder together, he showed that the coin had disappeared from the table. But when he laid the glass and cylinder again upon the table, and removed the cylinder, the coin rested on the square piece of paper under the glass as before.

The magician bowed low in acknowledgment of her majesty's approval, before going on with another trick. This time he borrowed a handkerchief from his royal audience, spread it out flat upon the table and placed a coin exactly in the middle. Afterward he folded the corners of the handkerchief toward the center. Then, with a few passes of his wand, he fluttered the handkerchief in the air. The coin was gone!

"I shall conclude my performance with the most remarkable feat known to masters of the Art of Magic," gravely said Dan, as he produced a glass filled almost to the rim with ink. To prove that it was really ink, he dipped a visiting card into the fluid; but when he threw a handkerchief over the glass he muttered a few magic words, and then slowly drew the handkerchief away and, instead of ink, the glass contained clear water, in which swam a tiny goldfish.

Nan gasped with astonishment. Nor did she hardly recover sufficiently to thank the magician for his kindly entertainment, as Dan bowed himself out the door.

"I only wish I knew how he did those splendid tricks," she murmured to herself.

Perhaps you would like to know just how Dan DID accomplish these feats. In the thimble trick, the bottom thimble (A) had a piece of cork inserted inside, with a needle point extending almost to the level of the rim. So that when the cork pellet was placed under it the needle penetrated the cork, and when the thimble was raised the pellet came up with it. There was also a circular piece of cork (D) inside the upper thimble (B). This piece had a little hole in it (e)—just large enough for a second cork pellet (f) to be dropped through it. This second pellet rested on the narrow ledge (a) above the hole. Great care had to be taken to hold the thimble in an inclined position while placing it over the first thimble, in order that the pellet might not roll through the hole (e) in the cork ledge. Of course, after the upper thimble was in position, it was a simple matter to turn the thimble so that the pellet would roll out.

The second trick was accomplished by having a circular piece of pasteboard (b)—with exactly the same circumference as the mouth of the glass—resting upon the square bit of paper (c). The coin (i) was laid on the pasteboard. Then the rim of the glass (h) was stuck with mucilage. Of course, the glass was fitted exactly upon the edges of the piece of pasteboard, to which it adhered. When the glass and cylinder (k) were raised together, the cylinder was big enough to cover the glass and the pasteboard upon which the coin lay.

COIN CLINGS TO BREAD

Before beginning the handkerchief trick, a moist piece of bread was stuck on the corner of the handkerchief. This corner was pressed upon the coin first in folding. The coin naturally adhered to the bread, and the performer when unrolling the handkerchief turned toward his audience the side of the handkerchief opposite to that upon which the coin clung.

Ink really was not used in the last experiment. The inside of the glass was lined with a piece of black cloth coming up to the exact level of the water. The card was inked on one side beforehand. Upon drawing the handkerchief away from the covered glass the performer reached down and also drew out the black cloth, concealing it within the handkerchief.

Mistress (to new maid)—"Above all things, I expect you to be reticent." Maid—"Yes, ma'am, certainly." "Curiously." But "what is there to be reticent about?"

"So stingy is James Adolphus Brown," said the man who knew him, "that he never tells a story unless it is at someone else's expense."

"I would die for you," exclaimed her lover, passionately. "Oh, don't," she answered, in alarm; "I like your hair and moustache so much better as they are."

"What do you think makes the sea salt?" was a question put to a school class. A brilliant idea struck a boy. "Please, sir, the herrings."

Catching the Robber

Mr. Brown looked into the great box, sunk deep in the ground, which stood near his house. The longer he gazed the more wrathful he became. Here, you see, he had stored the apples plucked from the choicest trees in his orchard; and now some thief had made great inroads into the supply. As he muttered what he would do if he caught the rascal, Mr. Brown heard a smothered laugh. Turning his head he observed a boy peering through the hedge and grinning mischievously.

GREAT WAS HIS WRATH

"There is my robber!" cried Mr. Brown, starting to run after the boy. But the boy ran much faster than did the stout man. After stumbling over an obstacle, and falling heavily to the ground, Mr. Brown gave up the chase. But he did not give up his plan of punishing the boy. He was even more angry than before.

When he had thought deeply for some time, he decided what to do. Just beneath the lid of the box he concealed a powerful spring. As he retired to bed that night it was with a chuckle, for he felt sure of catching his prey the next day. And it happened exactly as he expected it would.

Early next morning Mr. Brown arose. Mackenzie

Bowing the shutters of his window, he peered through a crack down to where his precious apples were stored. He had not long to wait before the boy appeared. After looking closely about him, to see that no one was near, the naughty fellow stole toward the apples.

Then, as he released the staple which fastened the lid of the box, a strange thing happened. The lid flew backward and he was shot upward through the air, right into the hands of the angry gentleman who was waiting to receive him.

The spring had done its work faithfully, and you may also be sure that Mr. Brown did what he believed to be his duty. He lay the boy firmly across his knee and—well, you can guess what happened without a great deal of trouble, can't you?

GREAT LETTER WRITER

CORRESPONDENCE OF THE GERMAN EMPEROR.

Astonishing How He Finds so Much Time to Write His Many Private Letters.

William II. probably writes more letters than any other living monarch. From the early morning, when he goes over his mail and the State despatches, making copious marginal notes in pencil, until he retires for the night he is constantly jotting down his thoughts, writing or dictating letters, or annotating new books. He frequently is seen at receptions or military reviews making a note on his shirt cuff. He abhors fountain pens and swears by the old-fashioned quill of our grandfathers.

The Kaiser's handwriting is large, bold and flourishing, and, in accordance with his habit of dashing down his thoughts as they come into his head, often extremely illegible. A well-known Berlin artist, with whom the Emperor was for years in active correspondence, gives

AN INTERESTING ACCOUNT. He says—

"It is really astonishing how the Emperor, despite the amount of work he has to get through, finds so much time to carry on his extensive private correspondence. It is very rare that he ever breaks off a letter; he has once begun, nor is he content, like the Emperor Francis Joseph, for instance, to have his letters written by his instructions, but writes personally every line that has not an official character. 'I have seen letters of the Emperor on topics of history or art, twelve to eighteen pages long. It is well known that the monarch, to save time, always makes his notes in shortened form, leaving out the vowels thus: 'figdr Adlr' for 'die-gender Adler,' etc. In letters, however, he always tries to abandon this practice, chiefly because he wishes to be quite clear, but sometimes in his haste he abbreviates all the same. The Emperor even addresses his letters himself nearly always, and absolutely in full; the addressee never wants a title. 'One might say that, apart from family correspondence and short notes to the generals of his suite, the majority of the Kaiser's letters are addressed to professors and architects, artists, sculptors, or musicians. This is not surprising in view of all the predominant interest His Majesty takes in

ALL AESTHETIC QUESTIONS. In these letters the Kaiser is wont to express in short, pregnant words his views on some topic of present-day interest. As often as not his views, especially in architectural questions, are illustrated with marginal sketches of a highly technical character, revealing at every point the writer's intimate knowledge of the subject. 'Apart from letters, the Emperor or frequently sends some artist friend of his a book which he has marked with marginal notes, and this is especially the case with works on naval topics. His versatility is simply marvellous. I have seen sketches done by the Emperor, the sheet simply covered in all directions with ships' parts, designs for the mechanism of automobiles, and plans for the interiors and exteriors (facades, etc.) of buildings.

"If ever the Emperor's letters are collected and published they will give a far better picture of him than any personal characterization could do, for his thirst for knowledge revealed therein is only equalled by the number of fruitful suggestions he himself makes.

MANY A MONUMENTAL WORK in Germany owes its construction to him in reality, although honor and fame were accorded to the artist who carried out the idea."

When the Kaiser is travelling he uses the telegraph a great deal, often sending the Empress long accounts of his adventures in that way. Such private letters naturally never go through the post, but are given to the Foreign Office courier in Germany (a lieutenant of the Chasseurs of the Guard), to be conveyed to the capital with the diplomatic correspondence.

The Emperor is very fond of picture postcards, and when he was staying at Highcliffe last year there were numerous recipients of such marks of Imperial consideration among Berlin society. In his study Prince Bulow has a number of picture postcards which his Imperial master sent him from Italy upon which the Emperor has scribbled in pencil such characteristic remarks as: "Glorious view"; "Splendid weather," etc. The Kaiser's notepaper, which is white, is surmounted by a neat gold crown with the Imperial arms, and is strikingly large in shape, of a stout texture.

JINGLING JOHNSON--HE HAS A BRIEF CAREER IN VAUDEVILLE

OH LITTLE TIM, OH LITTLE TIM, HE GOT SOME PARIS GREEN IN HIM. HE GOT TOO MUCH, AND NOW 'T IS SAID, POOR LITTLE TIM IS AWFUL DEAD! KACK!

I WANT TO INTRODUCE MR JOHNSON, THE POET, I'M HIS MANAGER.

LET 'ER GO! RAH FOR JOHNSON!

HA HA HA! GREAT!

FINE!

HAMMER, HAMMER, BILLY HAMMER, HAD A WIFE AND HE DID SLAM HER. SLAMMED HER THROUGH A WINDOW PANE, AND THEN HE SLAMMED HER BACK AGAIN. SQUOW!

HELP!

THEY'RE ALL RIGHT! LET 'EM GO!

NO HOOK! NO HOOK!

LET 'EM ALONE! STOP!

THERE WAS A MAN NAMED DUBBALONG, WHO ALWAYS KICKED THE CAT. HE STABBED HIS WIFE WITH A FRIED FORK CHOP AND THAT'S THE END OF THAT! JOWB!

I'M HUNGRY!

THEY'RE BOTH CRAZY! HO HO HO!

FUNNY!

HA HA! HO HO HO!

CINDERELLA HAD A PIMPLE ON HER LITTLE NOSE. SHE WAS BURIED IN A SNOWDRIFT, THEN THE PIMPLE FROZE! ALAS!

I WISH I KNEW WHERE I COULD BORROW LOANS TO GET A FRIED EGG SANDWICH!

LOOK AT HIS NOSE! HA HA HO HO HO!

GREAT! GREAT!

ENCORE! ENCORE!

HO, FATHEADS, BALDHEADS, NINCOMPPOOS I CARE NOT FOR YOUR WHEEZY WHOOPS! OH DOWN WITH ENVY, DOWN WITH PUFF, AND YOU CAN ALL GO THERE YOURSELF!

DON'T GET MAD, I'LL TAKE 50 CENTS.

DOWN WITH 'EM!

THIS IS AN INSULT!

THROW 'EM OUT!

THE WIND WOUND WILD AND WISTFULLY, AND WINKLED THROUGH THE WOUSE. IT WHANGED A PEGGED FRIED APPLE PIE RIGHT THROUGH A BRICK SCHOOL HOUSE!

I'M SO HUNGRY I COULD EAT TRIPE.

HANG 'EM!

ALBERTA LEGISLATURE

The Alberta Legislature was opened last Thursday with the usual ceremonies by Lieut.
Gov. Bulyea. The speech from the throne announced the following items of legislation:

- Improved transportation facilities.
- Redistribution of the seats.
- The new election act.
- Legislation in regard to municipalities.
- Legislation for the better protection of children.
- Amendments to the statute law.

"The Gold King"

The above popular Western Drama was presented by the local Dramatic Co. in the Assembly Hall on Tuesday evening. It was under the management of Prof.
M. Johnson and proved to be a revelation to Cardston theatre lovers. The western atmosphere of the presentation was fully sustained throughout the play, the picturesque miners, the joy of handling fire arms all preserve that flavor which is the true essence of western comedy.

The production was a creditable performance in every way, all the different parts being ably sustained, Messrs H. Brown and
S. M. Woolf as "Tom Carew" and "Dandy Dick" made distinct hits as young miners, and the part of Old Nevada, the wanderer, was more than ably presented by Athos

M. Johnson. Mr. Ben May as "Vermont," Mr. J. M. Anderson
as "Silas Steel" and Mr. E. Jessen as "Jerden" were particularly good.

The Comedy parts "Jube, a black boy" and Win-Kye, the chinaman" were sustained by Prof.
M. Johnson and Miss Beth Newton, and they kept the audience in a scream from start to finish.

The character of "Moselle, a waif" was played by Miss Eunice May with her usual ability, her talents being particularly suited to the part of the little western girl.

Miss Eva Harker was particularly effective in the part of "Agnes Fairlee, the school marm" and her work deserves special mention.
Miss Harker plays the role with a good deal of strength and her stage presence was the personification of graciousness.

Miss Sadie Wolsey as "Mother Merton" was also good, and played her part nicely.

The staging and costuming was particularly brilliant and altogether the play is the best that has been seen here this season.

INTRODUCTION.

We propose to publish the truth and if not the whole truth, at least nothing but the truth, and while we will avoid, wherever possible, offensive personalities at the same time we expect to apply the axe at the root of the tree and possibly the chips may fly and some one may occasionally get hurt.

We know that local option, when enforced, is far preferable to the open saloon, but we are not satisfied with it because experience has taught us that our neighbors who manufacture or sell intoxicating liquors are too close to our local option district so from this time on our slogan will be Provincial Prohibition and down with the White Man's Curse.

We not only contend that every dealer in intoxicants is an enemy to the human race, because of the misery, crime and death that follows in its wake, but we also believe it wrong to license for revenue, condone aid or abet in any manner such a debasing evil.
In other words we have no sympathy whatever with the traffic in intoxicating liquors. It is a shame and a disgrace to our boasted civilization and we are prepared to do all in our power to stamp it out.
Are you for or against us?

Kindred to and growing out of the liquor habit are many other evils that will be treated upon from time to time, and we invite hopeful, helpful, practical suggestions on how best to fight against and overcome the desire for liquor, and its attendant evils.

For Sale. War Rights, entitling you to half section land anywhere you choose. Two years allowed in which to make selection.
Entire cost, $470

Nobody goes from Cardston to spend the winter in California. Why should they? The climate of Southern Alberta is just as good as that of California.

The first meeting of the Church School Board will be held in Raymond this evening. Pres. E. J. Wood, Sterling Williams and Bishop Harris will represent the Alberta Stake.

Pedestrians have a warm spot in their hearts for the man who keeps his sidewalks clear of snow, but the man who lets the snow pile up on his walks gets some deserving criticisms. Which of the two are you?

The Bijou staff, consisting of C. T. Magee, manager and operator, David Holland, ticket collector and usher, and Frank Layne, Pianist and vocalist, went to Raymond on Thursday last, as they were billed to show there on that evening. They expected to make a "killing," which they partly did, but the game proved to be themselves.

On Thursday evening a Cardston moving picture outfit were billed to put on a show here. On reaching the station, and after it was too late, they discovered they had not got their films from off the train and therefore could not put up their show. What do you think of that? However, there were not many tickets sold at any event, as people in this town do not care to lay out 50c to see a few moving pictures and hear an illustrated song. ("I'm afraid to go home in the dark") Those who did purchase may have their money refunded by presenting tickets at the drug store.—Raymond Rustler.

UNCLE DICK;

Or, The Result of Diplomacy and Tact.

CHAPTER I.

The advent of its regatta is usually heralded with a sea-side season's demise. Wivernsea, as yet, is not sufficiently developed to justify indulgence in a water festival. So far, its carnival flights have been confined within the limits of flower shows and the treats of its Sunday school.

The builder—his surname is Jerry—is around with a rule though. His conspiracy with the man who plots lands and dispenses free luncheons and railway tickets, will possibly wreck a change on that part of the map's countenance. Increased population may render the place more famous—or infamous. So very much depends on one's viewpoint.

The houses of Wivernsea are built in its bay. Stuck in round the fringe of it like teeth in a lower jaw. Picture to yourself the long ago—the bay's origin—and the present appearance of the place may come before you. It is possible to introduce a belief that there were giants in the earth in those days; it will make realization simpler, because it looks as if a mammoth had snapped at the coast just there and bitten out a huge mouthful.

If your imagination is sufficiently elastic to give play to it, conceive houses being dropped into the marks left by the giant's teeth—a sort of dental stopping. So may be garnered a fair idea of the presentment of this particular indentation in the land.

When the goose of Michaelmas is shaking in its scales, Wivernsea lodging letters encroach on the farmer's privilege. The closing time of their harvest is near enough to be grumbled at. It is painful knowledge to them that visitors scuttle away as September ends. The exodus is due to some absurd belief that the weather then—like a school at the advent of the holidays—breaks up.

In the ears of one man—William Masters by name, binder-together-ct-sensational-incidents-in-book form by profession—such grumbles tumbled pleasantly. Because the usual October Wivernsea weather is mild and bright and rainless. Being a non-regarior man, the place shaped before his eyes as a land flowing with milk and honey. He knew it to be good then.

Knowledge is the wing on which we fly to heaven. In this instance, the author's flight from London was via the London and South Western Railway Company's terminus. Later on he told himself that it was proving veritably his Waterloo.

Wivernsea's wall is known locally as the Esplanade. Euphemisms—sacrifices to vanity at the expense of the seashore. The walk terminated eastwards with the abruptness of a cinematograph view. A private owner claimed the land there.

It was not an undisputed claim. Opposition made the owner handle the matter with mailed fist. To make his position stronger he erected a high wall. If it did not prevent his opponents going further, it effectively prevented them from going further along the parade.

The embellishments of the wall were, apparently, the outcome of deep thought. Its top was artistically embroidered with spikes and broken bottles. This sharply jagged crown was known locally as a shiver-freeze. Give the average man an opportunity to mispronounce a word and his success may be equaled on every time.

Warnings to trespassers and threats of prosecution garnished the wall's face with the liberality of almonds in a piece of French rock. The everyday man might well be excused a fear that there was danger in letting an unguarded eye rest on it.

Amongst others, the wall barred the easterly progress of William Masters. In his instance, no charging resulted. It was a boast of his that he possessed "views of his own"—the things which other people smile at unpleasantly and label "eccentricities." The owner of the wall was a man after his own heart. Undoubtedly a fellow-feeling makes us wondrous kind.

It is not good that man should be alone. But the author had not yet realized the presence of that truth. He had been heard to voice the nature of his. Ultima Thule—undisturbed existence in a spot not beside the hill, but in the center of a big field. The situation to be enhanced by possession of a shotgun, a acre with a pepper-tresspasser on his solitude.

Strangers who heard Masters speak so, felt inclination to move away a pace; were prompted to thoughts of Hanwell and Coney Hatch. His friends—another boast of his—was the poverty of their number—smiled. The idea of Masters hurting a fly appealed to the humor in them.

But, as the blackets hat may have a silver-paper lining, so the wall served a good purpose. It acted as a shelter from the one thing which disturbed the enjoyment of October in Wivernsea: that wind which is said to be good for neither man nor beast. Thoughtful hands had placed a comfortable seat within the wall's shelter.

Knowledge of these things had inspired Masters' journey to Wivernsea. Where he had stayed before the landlady had rooms vacant. She knew his requirements and, hitherto, had suited him admirably. Had even acquired the knowledge that his visits to Wivernsea were not prompted solely by a desire to hear her talk.

Having done justice to a hastily prepared luncheon, Masters slipped a note book into his pocket and sallied forth. His route was easterly, its termination his favorite seat at the end of the Parade. There were some hours left of warmth and sunshine; the author's intent was to avail himself of them.

Seated, he for a time succumbed to the charm of the water as it stole out and away. Listened to its lapping as it broadened the ribbon of sand at each receding wave. Then, turning a deaf ear to the charm and his eyes on to his note book, he buried himself in the particular chapter on which he was engaged.

The writer's concentration was not of the plumbless kind. Sound of a girl's voice roused him from his depth of thought. It should not be gathered from that that the sex had any extraordinary influence over him—save when it was very young.

He loved children. Loved them best before the rubbing off of what is called their corners: the sweetness of what is actually the innocence we all come into the world with—which it seems the business of the world to destroy.

Masters guessed from the voice that it belonged to a very little girl. Looking up, saw standing in front of him proof of the correctness of his guess. A blue-eyed-wide-open-eyed-with-astonishment too at seeing him there—little maid. She had turned the parade corner and so come on him unexpectedly. It was plain that she pulled up suddenly at seeing him there. Just as suddenly called out in her clear, childish treble—

"Oh! There's someone on your seat, Miss Mivvins!"

The young lady so addressed came into view at that moment, round the bushes planted at the corner—the little one having run on ahead. Miss Mivvins flushed a little. Becoming, for otherwise the face might have been considered a trifle too pale. The possibility of the child's speech being considered rude induced her to say in an undertone:—

"Hush, Gracie, dear!"

The speech reached Masters' ears. He was struck by the singularly sweet voice the governess had. When he looked at the place whence the voice issued, he thought it the sweetest mouth he had ever set eyes on. The little droop of sadness at its corners mellowed rather than took away from the sweetness of it.

The lips—ripe red in color, cupid-bowed in shape—enchanting as they were, did not hold his attention in iron bonds. His glance wandered to her eyes and hair. From that inspection was formed an opinion—one which he never changed.

The features were the most beautiful and womanly ones he had ever seen. Just as sweet a face as a woman with golden hair—that peculiar tint of gold which the sun ever seems anxious to search amongst—and forget not eyes, can possess at the age of three-and-twenty. She was good to look upon.

Observation was a trick of Masters' trade. The practice of it enabled him to paint a picture in a paragraph. What he saw in one glimpse of Miss Mivvins' face was eloquence itself. But of that gentle, outward-going radiance in her eyes the merest layman would have been sentient. It was the kind of which one felt even a blind man must be conscious.

Details appealed to Masters' just then. He happened to be engaged at the moment on the description of a heroine. When he saw Miss Mivvins his difficulty about shaping the book-woman vanished. In flesh and blood she stood before him. All he needed was to describe what he saw; she would fit in all respects. Saved her name. He was not particularly struck with that.

CHAPTER II.

Proverbially women love men's approbation. Something of the feeling within him must have evidenced itself to Masters' eyes. His attentive scrutiny—despite all there was of respect in it—did not, apparently, please Miss Mivvins. Possibly, she was inclined to consider his admiration rudeness. Anyway she called—

"Come, Gracie!"

Taking the child's little hand in her own neatly gloved one as she spoke, the woman turned, evidently intent on walking back in the direction whence she had come.

That brought Masters to his feet in a moment—cap in hand, and apology in mouth. Full of crudities as was his character, he possessed an instinctive courtesy. In all the arrangements for his breaches of Society's unwritten laws, impoliteness had never figured. He spoke;—

"Pray do not let me drive you away! Possession may be nine points of the law, but we may consider ourselves beyond the pale of its practise here. If, as I hear—from lips the truth of which it would be absurd to doubt—that this is considered your seat"—his smile was not an unpleasing one—"I should never forgive myself if trespass of mine interfered with the owner's use of it."

"Is that pen you are using," inquired Gracie suddenly, a propos of nothing, "one of those you put the ink in at the wrong end, and trickle it out of the other?"

A softness blended with the smile of Masters' face, merged into that kindly expression of the strong for the weak. It was the successful catching of just such tenderness which made Landseer's name figure so prominently in the world of Art. As the author looked down at the mite from his six-feet altitude, the look on his face was an irresistible reminder of a St. Bernard's kindness to a toy terrier.

"You have accurately described it, little woman," he answered. "But it does not always trickle when you want it to—though it generally does when you don't."

The child looked mystified; evidently deemed further explanation necessary. Miss Mivvins was still standing, waiting to go. Masters hesitated; looked from one to the other. Politeness made him say—

"I am leaving—pray be seated. But the woman saw through that. Would have been very high up the fool grade indeed had she failed to do so. It really was quite too transparent an utterance. When truth is sacrificed on the altar of politeness the ceremony needs skill, otherwise the lie becomes ever more offensive than the act it was to cover."

His little speech induced her to take a step forward; made her say—

"Oh, no! Do not let me drive you away!"

She spoke impulsively; hurriedly. Masters thought with everything in the tone that was desirable in a woman's voice. He smiled as he expostulated—

"But you remember, surely—it is not many moments ago—you were quite willing to allow me to drive you away."

Then she smiled too. Smiles which brought into play mouth and eyes and dimples in her cheeks. From his own face the gravity of some people called it austerity—had already departed. There was a peculiar softening influence about Miss Mivvins. Perhaps his own relaxing was the result of that.

"It is a long seat."

He indicated its measurement with a sweep of his hand as he spoke; continued—

"Let its length be our way out of the difficulty—it is a long lane that has no turning. How will it be if we make it large enough for both?"

It was a tentative sort of invitation. An invisible olive branch to which her hand went out. Again she smiled. A moment's hesitation—then seated herself.

From a bag depending by silken cords from her wrist she drew a book. Having given the little girl sundry directions as to the assumption of preternatural virtue, the woman commenced to read.

Masters resumed his place at the other end of the seat. Had book in hand too; manuscript book. He had come out with intent to write; told himself that fulfilment was necessary. But he had Grace to reckon with.

"If I had one!"

Finding her first venture had not roused the lion, but fearing him a little still, she went on demurely—

"I saw a man fill one once!"

Such a statement as that surely could not fail to crush a mere user of the pen! Seeing that astonishment was expected of him Masters assumed an appropriate look of surprise. His wearing of it pleased her mightily.

"Perhaps," he said, "you would like to make quite sure you could write with one, eh? Would you like to try with this?"

The blue eyes brightened; she was at his side in a moment. Shyness is readily overcome when our numbers have not numbered five. Trustfulness at that age has rarely been shocked.

Therein, perhaps, lay the secret of the attraction children had for Masters—the sweetness of their suspiciousness existence. Viewed from the standpoint of the after life, when—if we act up to the anxieties of the world we live in—we trust no man, it is apt to brush across us as refreshingly as a gust of country air.

Turning the leaves of his book till he came to a blank page, Masters twisted and rested the cover on his knee. So the open leaf was level with the intending—eyes—sparkling-with-excitement—writer. Then he gave the child his pen.

She drew a capital G—a bright little point of tongue protruding while the head, too, seemed to follow the movements of the hand. Her intent was plain—to write her own name.

That was compassed. It took a little time—entailed a huge expenditure of concentrated energy—but she got through with it at last. There figured on the paper the words—

Gracie Seton-Carr.

The child's glance came off the page; she moved away a pace. Looked up into his eyes, her own flashing like diamonds. Such little things please in the time of happiness when we are little ourselves.

After drawing a little breath she ejaculated triumphantly—

"There!"

Once more Masters gladdened the little one, by acting as he was expected to act. No man on that coast could have worn a larger-sized look of astonishment; he cried—

"Won—der—ful!"

A clapping of hands in her glee, and the child danced along to the other end of the seat.

"I've written my name with one of those funny squitter pens, Miss Mivvins! What do you think of that?"

"I think you have a funny way of keeping your word, Gracie. You professed anxiety to finish your castle on the sands, yet you are spending your time on the wall!"

"Oh-h-h!"—prolonged and drawn out—"I had forgotten all about it!"

Attention diverted from the pen, the child ran down the steps on to the beach. A few minutes after, Masters, looking up, saw her busily at work with a spade and pail. The implements had evidently been left there in the morning.

He waved a vigorous cumbered-with-bucket-and-spade good-bye to him. She evidently preferred jumping the breakwaters on the way home to the more easy path of the sea wall. The two passed altogether from the author's sight. Not altogether from his mind.

Good-day! Yes, he felt it had been—distinctly good. Till he looked at clean pages, were writing should have been. Even then, despite the unfinished chapter, he made no alteration in his verdict.

It had been a good day.

A STARTLING PROPHECY.

May Transfer Vital Organs of Lower Animals to Man.

According to Professor Simon Flexner, of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research, New York, medical science soon is to solve the problem of transferring sound vital organs from the lower animals to man.

This prophecy was made in a paper by Professor Flexner, read by Dr. Ludwig Hektoen before the physiological section of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

The technical surgical operations involved in this kind of experimentation, on account of the necessity of maintaining unimpaired the circulation of the blood, is great, but not impossible of achievement, and no effort should be spared to reach this goal," says Professor Flexner. "The functions of transplanted organs are maintained by the method of preservation of the circulation. Hence, it now becomes possible to place sensitive and important viscera under new experimental conditions, which may aim to resemble or produce those believed to give rise to common pathological state in man and to observe the effects over a long period of time."

It is a matter of no small significance that arteries can be transplanted successfully from dog to cat and vice versa, and from man to dog, and that keeping extirpated arteries under sterile conditions at refrigerator temperature for twenty or thirty days or even longer, does not interfere with the results of transplantation.

"There is something extremely subtle in the conditions underlying successful transplantation within one race, since it may be determined by such minor factors as environment and mere quality of food. A tumor which grows in Danish white mice may fail utterly to grow in Berlin white mice, and one which grows in Berlin white mice and may lose its capacity to grow in Berlin mice transported to Christiania and kept there for a period before inoculation."

"JUST KEEP SMILING."

Treasurer of Banking Institution Has Legend on Door.

On the door leading into the private office of the treasurer of one of the Hartford (Connecticut) banking institutions may be seen by all comers a plain white card, on which are these two words: "Keep Smiling."

Ask the treasurer the significance of the placard, and he will say simply: "Just keep smiling. That makes everything easy. That's what smiles are for. A good, unfeigned, sincere smile is a veritable battering-ram to knock hard things out of the way. Sometimes I smile out loud, all to myself, when I run against anything hard; and the invitation is out to whoever enters my door. I take it that people will smile as they read the card, and I want them to continue the act while in here!"

He tells of a visitor who came to see him last winter, a Scotchman, who had served in India in the army. "My dear sir," said the visitor, "I am greeting that legend heartily. Many years ago, when the plague was raging, I was in Calcutta, and sick. The hospitals were full, and with other patients I was lying in a shed, a very sick man. On each side of me a poor chap died, when a man came around with one of the doctors to measure the bodies. As they finished the second fellow's measurement they looked at me, and the man said: 'Three of 'em, height' and whipped out his tape measure at my side. In spite of all effort, I could only stare. To save my life, I couldn't speak or move. All I could do was to smile, and I just smiled. Instead of the measuring line I was given better attention and recovered. The smile did it! That's right! 'Keep smiling!'"

EMBARRASSING.

A colored woman of Alexandria, Virginia, was on trial before a magistrate of that town charged with inhuman treatment of her offspring.

Evidence was clear that the woman had severely beaten the youngster, aged some nine years, who was in court to exhibit his battered condition.

Before imposing sentence, his honor asked the woman whether she had anything to say. "Kin I ask yo' honah a question?" inquired the prisoner.

The judge nodded affirmatively. "Well, then, yo' honah, I'd like to ask you whether yo'—was ever the parient of a perfectly wustless cullud chile."

SUGGESTION FOR BETTER-MAKERS.

Butter-making is the important thing in dairying in the United States. While a great deal of attention has been given to this branch of dairying in that country there are many complaints as to the quality of butter produced. Many suggestions for improvement have been made. One of them is that butter-makers should organize and get together more than they do.

Mr. C. W. Pelton of Wisconsin, writing to the Chicago Dairy Product, on this point says:—

"It is a well known fact that we are not making as good butter as we did ten years ago and who is to blame? I say the butter-makers, why? Because they are not organized. There should be a butter-makers' association in every county that would get together as often as twice a year and make rules and each one positively refuse to take cream more than three days old, winter and summer."

"My rule has been three times a week in summer and twice a week in winter, but my experience has been that I can make better butter from cream delivered twice a week in summer than I can from cream delivered twice a week in winter. In summer the cream is usually cooled in water and kept where the air is fresh; but in winter it is left where it is most likely not to freeze, but if it does freeze it is taken to the kitchen stove and thawed out before being taken to the creamery."

"Four of my patrons quit and took their cream to a neighboring creamery where they could go once or twice a week, but they got dissatisfied and wanted to know if I would take their cream twice a week if they returned. I declined, and they came back bringing their cream three times a week until we had the first cool night and since then I have seen them but twice a week."

"We often hear of certain cows that do not give enough butterfat to pay for their feed and I believe the time will come when butter will be so cheap that the best cows will not pay, and the farmers will be forced out of the dairy business, and the buttermaker looking for a job in some other line of work, unless we get together and correct our faults."

POULTRY NOTES.

Busy hens are not only the best egg producers, but their eggs show the best fertility. In order to keep them at work strew the floor of the pen with hay or straw and scatter the grain in this.

Another word about the chicks in regard to early roosting. Get them to roost as early as possible. Do not make rough roosting poles. The smoother they are the easier it is to keep them free from lice.

Chickens cannot be healthy that are cuddled up in a tiny bit of a brood coop, sweltering in the heat of the atmosphere, as well as that of their own bodies. Nothing will or twice a week, but they got dissatisfied, sincere smile is a veritable battering-ram to knock hard things out of the way. Sometimes I smile out loud, all to myself, when I run against anything hard; and the invitation is out to whoever enters my door. I take it that people will smile as they read the card, and I want them to continue the act while in here!"

Exercise creates in them an appetite, develops bone and muscle, stimulates healthy circulation and promotes digestion.

Make arrangements for fattening all birds, either cockers or old hens, before they are marketed. If you have not a feeding crate or two, rig up an old packing box, or better still have a good solid crate which will last you for years.

Give the fowls plenty of fresh water. It is surprising how much fowls will drink if they have it fresh and where they know right where to find it whenever they want it. This is especially true of the laying hens. Eight times out of ten a hen when coming off the nest after laying will go direct to the water and drink long and deep. This thing is produced by the muscular effort put forth in delivering eggs. During the effort great combustion takes place to produce the energy, thus depleting the tissues of water. So do not neglect the water.

RUSSIAN EGGS.

France has always been a great producer of poultry and eggs, but lately millions of eggs have been imported from other countries, especially for consumption in Paris. Of these importations by far the largest proportion comes from Russia. In 1907 about 9,000,000 pounds of Russian eggs were eaten in Paris.

Austria-Hungary in the same year furnished only about 1,200,000 pounds, and other countries less. Among these Egypt contributed 250,000 pounds.

AMONG GIRLS.

"Does she know her to talk to?" "No, only to talk about."

THE TORTURES OF NERVOUSNESS

The Sufferer Feels That Unless Relief Comes Insanity Will Follow.

There is no torture more intolerable than nervousness. A nervous person is in a state of constant irritation by day and sleeplessness by night. The sufferer starts at every noise, is shaky and depressed. Often although in a completely exhausted state is unable to sit or lie still, or trouble of this kind absolutely the best thing in the world is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The eyes are jaded and jangled because they are being starved by poor watery blood. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills make new rich blood which feeds and soothes the irritated nerves. There is absolutely no doubt about this; thousands can testify of the blood-making, nerve-restoring qualities of these Pills, among them is Mrs. Thos. Harpell, Wallace Bridge, N. S., who says: "Some years ago I took sick and the doctor pronounced the trouble nervous prostration. To describe the tortures of it is impossible. God and myself only know what I endured. The doctor gave me medicine but it did not seem to help me. Then he ordered me away for a change, but I was afraid to go, as I always seemed to fear some impending calamity, and was afraid to spend the night alone, as I used to think each night that I would die before morning. I tried different kinds of medicines but with no better results, and finally decided I would go to my parents to see if the change would benefit me. I went to their doctor but with no better results. My mother urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and got me a box, of course I did not expect a box would help me, but I continued taking them and in about a month began to feel better, from that on there was an improvement in my condition every day, and in the course of about three months I was again enjoying the blessing of perfect health. I gained about twenty pounds in weight and my friends could hardly believe I was the same person. I believe I would have been in my grave long ago if it had not been for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are good for any disease due to bad blood or weak nerves. That is why they cure such troubles as anaemia, indigestion, rheumatism, neuralgia, St. Vitus' dance, paralysis, and the ailments of girlhood and womanhood. Sold by medicine dealers at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 or may be had by mail from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

PROOF.

"Miggins (angrily)—"Do you know that your chickens come over to my yard?"
"Snooks—"I supposed that they did, for they never come back again."

Attacks of cholera and dysentery come quickly, there seldom being any warning of the visit. Remedial action must be taken just as quickly if the patient is to be spared great suffering and permanent injury to the lining membranes of the bowels. The readiest preparation for the purpose is Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial. It can be got at small cost at any drug store or general dealer's, and it will afford relief before a doctor can be called.

A DUBIOUS PROPOSITION.

EXPLORER WAS WAIF.

Henry M. Stanley Was Once in a Poor House.

It is not generally known that Stanley, the famous explorer, was a waif, and that his original name was not Stanley at all. The little boy's "real name" was John Rowlands. He was born near Denbigh, Wales, in 1840. When he was three years old he was put in a poorhouse at St. Asaph. It was ten years later that he sailed away to America as a cabin-boy. In New Orleans a merchant by the name of Henry Morton Stanley adopted him and the little boy was given his name. The "John Rowlands" was discarded from that day, and it was Henry M. Stanley, Jr., who served in the United States navy, won fame as a war correspondent in Turkey and with the British army in Abyssinia, and as the crowning achievement of his life, after he had penetrated the darkest wilds of Africa and found Dr. David Livingstone, opened up the Congo region for intercourse and commerce with the world.

BEST IVORY FROM AFRICA.

Ivory comes from hippopotamus teeth, walrus tusks, narwhal horns, whales' teeth and bears' tusks. At present ivory costs about $7,200 a ton; the price of billiard ball ivory has reached the record figure of $860 a hundredweight. The best ivory comes from Africa. Mammoth tusks are found in extraordinary abundance in Siberia principally, but they are not very highly esteemed, though they run to an enormous size and indeed hold the record, being sometimes twelve feet long and weighing 200 pounds. The natives of Africa regard ivory as the standard of wealth and store it up in their villages for hundreds of years, constantly adding to their stock, and thus the supply continues, and will continue for many years.

"Selling a deodorizing powder."
"Last time I saw you you were selling an insect powder to be sprinkled on the floor."
"I know; now I am going round to the same houses selling this disinfectant to get the smell of the insect powder out of the house. Next week I'll sell a mixture to drive away the smell of the disinfectant."

BABY'S OWN TABLETS

WILL CURE YOUR BABY

If your little ones are subject to colic, simple fevers, constipation, indigestion, worms, or the other minor ailments of childhood, give them Baby's Own Tablets. This medicine will give relief right away, making sound, refreshing sleep possible. Better still an occasional dose will keep little ones well. Guaranteed to contain no opiate or poisonous soothing stuff. Good for the new born baby or the well grown child. Mrs. Ronald L. Scafield, Palmer Rapids, Ont., says: "Baby's Own Tablets are the most satisfactory medicine I have ever used, and I would not like to be without the Tablets in the house." Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

MRS. JOHN HENDERSON

WAS SO RUN DOWN LIFE NOT WORTH LIVING

A Few Bottles of Peruna Restored Me to Health

Mrs. John Henderson, 2 Overdale Ave., Montreal, Can., writes: "I was much distressed with neuralgia and was so run down that life was not worth living. I tried a great many remedies, but all to no effect. "I met a friend of mine, and told her of my ailment. She advised me to try her remedy, Peruna. "Although I had no faith in Peruna, I took her advice, and am pleased to state that the neuralgia has entirely left me, and I have gained so in health that I feel just like my old self again. "I am enjoying the best of health. We have on file many thousand testimonials like the above. We can give our readers only a slight glimpse of the vast array of unsolicited endorsements Dr. Hartman is receiving."

GOLD GUNS MELTED.

Costly Weapons of an Indian Prince Converted Into Bullion.

I learn with profound regret (writes a Westminster Gazette correspondent) that H. H., the Maharajah Gaekwar of Baroda has melted down and converted into bullion the celebrated gold and silver cannon of Baroda. I say "with profound regret" for sentimental reasons.

Of these costly but useless toys, the silver guns were the inspiration of the former Gaekwar. In order to "go one better" than his predecessor, the late Gaekwar (he who was charged in 1875 with the attempted murder of Col. Phayre), had the gold guns cast and mounted at a cost, it is said, of £100,000.

They reposed in the state armory and were the wonder and admiration of all visitors to the capital. On State occasions, however—such as coronations, marriages, etc.—the gold and silver guns were always brought out to take part in the procession. They were "horsed" by teams of magnificent white oxen, which were fittingly caparisoned, i.e., in cloth of gold for the gold guns and cloth of silver for the silver guns.

The native gunners and drivers regarded their charges as sacred and the writer has seen offerings of rice, fruit, fowls, etc., deposited upon the muzzles of these weapons (?) in the Baroda barracks. Such offerings have now "had their day and ceased to be." For the present Maharajah Gaekwar happens to be a man of both practical politics and practised economy, and he would not maintain the "guns" for merely sentimental reasons.

When a mother rubs on to the delicate skin of children a salve to heal some cut, bruise, burn, eruption or skin disease, she needs to be as careful as if she were giving the child an internal remedy. Zam-Buk is pure—free from all animal fat and all mineral matter, and may be applied even to the skin of young babies.

Zam-Buk heals sores, cures eczema, skin eruptions, ulcers, ringworm, itch, barber's rash, blood poisoning, bad leg, salt rheum, abrasions, abscesses, cuts, burns, scalds, and all skin injuries and diseases. Of all stores and druggists at 50 cents, or from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price, 3 boxes for $1.25

It's queer how some people imagine they are having a good time when they do things you dislike.

After Wasting Fevers hasten recovery to health by the use of "Peruna." It is the best tonic. It builds, strengthens and gives new vitality. Try it, it will make you feel strong.

A bachelor may be independently rich, but a rich married man is never independent.

They Drive Pimples Away. — A face covered with pimples is unsightly. It tells of internal irregularities which should long since have been corrected. The liver and the kidneys are not performing their functions in the healthy way they should, and these pimples are to let you know that the blood protests. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills will drive them all away, and will leave the skin clear and clean. Try them, and there will be another witness to their excellence.

"My friends," said the political speaker, with a burst of ingenious eloquence. "I will be honest—There were a large number of his neighbors present, and the terrific outburst of applause which followed this remark entirely upset the point which the orator was about to introduce."

Singer Talks

7. Singer First Cost is the Whole Cost

Of course you can buy a sewing machine for less money than you would pay for a Singer—all the world knows that. But consider this: When a Singer is bought and paid for, it is paid for—it lasts a lifetime.

A cheap machine is never paid for. Every cent expended for repairs must be added to the original cost—it's an endless system of instalments. These instalments, added to the first cost of the machine, soon exceed the cost of a Singer, and after each successive repair (if you can get another part) the cheap machine grows more and more second-hand—one step nearer the junk heap.

The time lost, the trouble and the worry outweigh many times over the difference in the cost between the "cheap" machine and the Singer.

There are two kinds of machines—good and bad—and the good kind is the Singer.

HOMELY, BUT USEFUL.

A door mat, you must confess, in looks is hardly neat; But when it comes to usefulness It gets there with both feet.

Death Comes to All.—But it need not come prematurely if proper precautions are taken. "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure," and to have prevention at hand and allow a disease to work its will is wickedness. Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil not only allays pains when applied externally, but will prevent lung troubles resulting from colds and coughs. Try it and be convinced.

"You say she married for love; but I happen to know that the man she married is worth a million."
"Of course; the million is what she loves!"

It will be noticed in the Singer Sewing Machine Company's advertisement that there are three addresses at the bottom of the announcement. Any one writing will please address them at the nearest one of the three places to his post office.

"Are you going to settle anything on your daughter?" asked the young man with the cigarette and languid air. "Well, it rather looks, if she marries you, that she is going to settle something on me," replied the parent.

For Inflammation of the Eyes.—Among the many good qualities which Parmelee's Vegetable Pills possess, besides regulating the digestive organs, is their efficacy in reducing inflammation of the eyes. It has called forth many letters of recommendation from those who were afflicted with this complaint and found a cure in the pills. They affect the nerve centres and the blood in a surprisingly active way, and the result is almost immediately seen.

"Can you conceive," asked the professor, "an eternal vacuum, a portion of space unoccupied, an empty void, into which nothing ever enters, from which nothing can ever come, which maintains inviolate and for ever its own eternal emptiness?" "I can," replied the student immediately; "I have a fountain pen."

The person who buys any other tea always hopes it will be "as good" as "Salada."

THE MOST APPROPRIATE.

"How is Nell going to make up that flame-colored dress?"
"I guess with a flare skirt."

The never failing medicine, Holleway's Corn Cure, removes all kinds of corns, warts, etc.; even the most difficult to remove cannot withstand this wonderful remedy.

Owner—"What made that horse kick you?" Stableboy—"I may be a fool, guv'nor, but I ain't fool enough to go back and ask him!"

The Winter Housing of Swine

It is at this season of the year that the housing of swine becomes a more or less difficult problem. This is more particularly true in regard to the housing of sows due to farrow in the spring. It is chiefly on the housing that the vigor of spring litters depends. The revised edition of Bulletin No. 10 of the Live Stock Branch, Ottawa, treats this question in a very practical manner. It says:

"Much of the success of hog-raising depends upon suitable housing. Suitable housing does not, however, demand summer temperature during the winter season. In an ambitious desire to treat swine with due consideration for their comfort many progressive hog raisers have, during the past few years, practically wasted large sums of money in building elaborate warm houses for their herds. Having wintered their stock of all ages and conditions in these structures for one or two seasons the mistake they had made became apparent by reason of the fact that the swine instead of showing greater vigor exhibited signs of ill-health in the form of coughing, lameness, scurfiness of skin and other evidences of lack of thrift. The chief difficulty from these close houses is due to the lack of exercise taken by the swine kept in them. After rising from their comfortable beds to take their food, which is usually provided regularly, near at hand and in palatable condition, the pigs fill themselves and again return to their resting places. This mode of living followed for weeks and months at a season of year when outdoor life is uninviting, even should the pen door be left open, is attended with indigestion, constipation and other forms of sluggishness, causing weak litters, lack of good milk flow in dams, stunted weanlings and slow gains in older hogs. Exercise is one essential for swine of all ages if hog raising is to be made a success, and it is in not providing this that the warm pen used for both sleeping and feeding fails. For young litters coming in cold weather a warm pen is necessary, and rather close quarters are also conducive to the most profitable gains during a hog's final fattening period, but at no other time in a hog's life is close housing advantageous.

"For brood sows due to farrow in the late winter or early spring months there is no better shelter than the movable cabin. A number of these can be ranged side by side in or near the barn yard. If kept comfortably bedded four or five large sows will lie very comfortably in a cabin constructed according to directions given further on. The old style of rail creep beneath a straw stack, so long as it is closed on three sides, affords a fine bed for breeding sows or even growing pigs. On some of the most extensive hog breeding establishments the only shelter given the sows in winter is an old barn or shed, lined up to keep the draughts out, and having a constantly open door which affords free and unlimited access to the open air. The feeding is done in the open, which compels the herd to take a good amount of daily exercise, upon which good health so much depends. Sows thus housed and fed on food composed of pulped roots and chopped grain, bran, etc., given in a rather dry consistency will maintain a fine condition for successful motherhood."

The bulletin then goes on to describe in detail the plan, construction and management of various styles of houses that are in successful operation in different parts of Canada. Copies of this excellent bulletin which should be in the hands of every swine raiser may be secured free by making application to J. G. Rutherford, Live Stock Commissioner, Ottawa.

Thrifty Bluenoses

(Montreal Gazette)
The estimate is made by Nova Scotia newspapers that the agricultural and fishery, manufacturing and mineral industries of the province last year produced wealth to the amount of $103,000,000. This is a fairly large figure, meaning fully $1,000 a family. If it is right, Nova Scotians should be well up among the people of Canada who are growing rich.

Canadians are thankful that conditions in Canada are not so bad as they are in the States. The only reason is that we are a younger country. Give Canada time and, unless we are on our guard, identical conditions will develop here.

Poultry Meetings

The following is a partial list of the poultry meetings which will be held in the Province of Alberta during the winter months of 1909, in accordance with the educational program mapped out by the Department of Agriculture. As in the case of the dairy meetings, there will be two delegations touring the province, and the speakers are the best experts on the poultry business than can be secured.

The schedule of dates is as follows:
Speakers—T. O. Lachance and E. J. Cook, of Lethbridge.

January 11, Irvine; 12, Medicine Hat; 13, Burdette; 14, Taber; 15, Lethbridge; 16, Stirling.

SYNOPSIS OF Coal Mining Regulations

Coal mining rights of the Dominion, in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta, the Yukon Territory and British Columbia, may be leased for a term of twenty-one years at an annual rental of $1 an acre, not more than 2,500 acres will be leased to one applicant.

Application for a lease must be made to the Agent or Sub-Agent of the district in which the rights applied for are situated. In surveyed territory the land must be described by sections, or legal subdivisions of sections, and in unsurveyed territory the tract applied for shall be staked out.

Each application must be accompanied by a fee of $5, which will be refunded if the rights applied for are not available but not otherwise. A royalty shall be paid on the merchantable output of the mine at the rate of five cents per ton.

Every lessee of coal mining rights which are not being operated shall furnish the district agent of Dominion Lands with a sworn statement to that effect at least once in each year.

The lease will include the coal mining rights only, but the lessee may be permitted to purchase whatever available surface rights may be considered necessary for the working of the mine at the rate of $10 an acre.

For full information application should be made to the Secretary of the Department of Interior, Ottawa, or to any Agent or Sub-Agent of Dominion Lands.
