

Northumberland County Teacher's Institute

Has Most Successful Meeting Here--112 Enrolled--Excellent Addresses and Papers--Important Resolutions Referred to Provincial Institute

The 20th annual session of the Northumberland County Teachers' Institute, was held in the Newcastle Town Hall, Thursday and Friday, Sept. 28th and 29th.

Principal J. D. Keane of Newcastle Superior School presided.

Thursday forenoon very able addresses were given by the chairman, Inspector MacFarlane, and Dr. W. S. Carter and Rev. S. J. MacArthur, and an excellent paper on English Composition by Miss Katherine C. Murray of Chatham.

Mr. Keane referred feelingly to Lt. Col. Mersereau's absence, and said that to the teachers as to no other profession was entrusted the public welfare.

Inspector MacFarlane emphasized the importance of the County Institute and thanked the Teachers for their cordial reception and assistance tendered himself.

Dr. Carter strongly emphasized the importance of properly teaching reading, writing and drawing, and arithmetic, which of late years seem to be much behind the standard of former years. He gave very much good advice on those subjects. He hoped that the time would come when teachers and ministers would become permanent residents of the district, and all text books and apparatus should be free.

Miss Murray's paper was very warmly commended.

Thursday afternoon Director R. P. Steeves spoke very clearly on Nature Study, and Mr. Wm. McIntosh of St. John, on Insects and their Influence on Man and his History. Both addresses were most instructive.

At the public meeting in the evening, Mayor Fish presided and gave a very cordial address of welcome. Noting the absence of the local school trustees, he advocated election of town trustees by ballot, as in the U. S. A.

Mr. McIntosh gave a profoundly illustrated lecture on the Mammals and Customs of the Indians of N. B. It was very interesting.

Inspector MacFarlane and Dr. Carter spoke very instructively on the live educational questions of the day.

Friday morning, two very able papers were presented--School Sanitation by Dr. R. Moore, M. D., Newcastle's skillful surgeon, and Household Science in the Public Schools, by Miss Vera Wilson, the efficient teacher of that subject in Chatham.

In discussing Dr. Moore's paper, which he heartily endorsed, the Secretary claimed that doctors should be paid, not for curing people, but for keeping them well as is done in China. Dr. Moore agreed with the proposition.

Friday afternoon Prof. H. H. Hazerman of the Normal School, gave a much needed lesson on drawing.

The finance committee (Misses Grace Henderson and Jennie McMaster) reported the accounts correct and balance of $25.40 on hand.

The Resolutions Committee (Messrs K. I. B. MacLean and Lottie E. Underhill) submitted the following:

1.--That this institution, while recording its deep sense of loss because of the absence from its midst of Inspector Geo. W. Mersereau, Lt. Col. of the 132nd, and of its vice-president, W. M. Bonnell and Mr. Theophilus Underhill, all of whom have temporarily left the teaching profession to take up arms in defence of their country, expresses its deep appreciation of the action of these gentlemen in thus freely offering themselves to insure the safety of the community.

2.--That this Institute, extend its deepest sympathy to the bereaved relatives of the late Misses Ellen Donovan and Nellie Ryan, who for years were most devoted and successful teachers in this county, and who will be greatly missed and much mourned wherever they have been employed; also to the Misses Marlin and Louise Fleiger on the death of their heroic brother at the western battle front.

3.--That thanks be tendered the Mayor and Town Council of Newcastle for the use of the Town Hall, to the M. S. N. Co. and C. G. R. for transportation courtesies, and to Dr. Carter, Director Steves, Inspector MacFarlane and all others who so kindly took part in the program.

4.--That in the opinion of this institute all schools should regularly receive medical inspection, the same, as well as Manual training, school gardening and Household Science, to be obligatory in every district of the province.

5.--That in the opinion of this institute the compulsory Education Act should apply to all children up to the end of Grade VIII or the age of 16, and should be obligatory and completely enforced in all districts, any clauses in the Factory Act that in any way conflict with the above to be repealed.

6.--That in the opinion of this institute consolidation of schools in rural districts should be made obligatory in all cases where practicable.

7.--That in the opinion of this institute the teaching of Latin and Algebra should be eliminated from Grades VII and VIII and the time saved thereby devoted to English and arithmetic, the latter study to be finished in Grade VIII.

Sections 1, 2 and 3 were adopted unanimously; and sections 4, 5, 6 and 7 were adopted and referred to the Executive of the Provincial Institute for consideration at the next Provincial meeting.

Following officers were elected, on recommendation of the Nominating Committee (G. H. Harrison and Misses Murray and Martin): President--Inspector MacFarlane Vice Pres.--Miss Katherine A. Murray, Chatham

Sec. Treas.--H. U. Stuart, Douglstown

Additional members of Executive--J. H. Drummie, Newcastle; and Miss Annie Morrison, Douglstown.

Next meeting of the County Institute will be at Chatham, the time being left to the Executive.

The Institute was one of the most successful ever held in the county. Much regret was felt at the inability of Director Steeves, because of sudden illness, to be present at the public meeting.

North'd County Sunday School Convention

Hears Reports from 46 Schools--Endorse Repeal of Scott Act--Able Addresses Given

Northumberland County Sunday School Convention was held in the Presbyterian Church, at Blackville, Sept. 27th, 1916, from 9.30 a. m. to 5 p. m. The morning session was given partly to reports from the parish secretaries and departmental superintendents, and partly to a discussion of points growing out of such reports. The needs of the Convention and goals for 1917 were thoroughly discussed.

At the afternoon session a summary report gathered from the figures given in the morning was presented. The report was as follows: Schools that use Graded Lessons--16. School that have teachers' meetings--3. No. of schools that reported--46. No. of evergreen schools--26 or 57%. No. of schools with cradle rolls--23. Membership in Cradle Rolls--428. No. of Home Departments--19. Membership in Home Department--236. No. of scholars in teacher training classes--17. Members pledged against intemperance--690. I. B. R. A.--3 branches. Organized Bible Classes: Teen age 6; adult 5. Total number of teachers in county--289. No. of Schools holding Promotion Day--6. No. who have joined church during year--8. No. that hold Decision Day--1. The goals for 1917 are as follows: (a)--A parish convention and rally in each parish. (b)--Number of Cradle Rolls for county, 40. (c)--Home Departments, 25. (d)--Organized Classes:--Teen age 15; adult class 10. (e)--Teacher training classes--5. (f)--Schools pledged to temperance--11. (g)--Schools organized for Missionary work--all. (h)--for graded lessons--15.

Rev. Dr. Squires gave an address on "The Approach to the Child's Mind" in which it was shown that it was necessary for successful teaching that the teacher have some knowledge of the leading tendencies of the developing child. The laws of apprehension and visualization were especially emphasized.

The financial report was presented as follows: The different amounts allocated were: Parish of Alnwick $20.00. Glenelg and Hardwick 20.00. Chatham 50.00. Newcastle and Nelson 40.00. Derby 15.00. Blackville 15.00. Ludlow and Blissfield 25.00. North and South Esk 10.00. The amounts received were: Incidentals amounts received by General Secretary and paid over to treasurer $11.67. Parish of Alnwick 21.50. Glenelg and Hardwick 11.00. Chatham 46.60. Newcastle and Nelson 9.20. Derby no report. Blackville no report. Ludlow and Blissfield 13.20. North and South Esk no report.

Amounts that have not been paid should be passed in before the 20th of October. In the evening Rev. John Harris spoke on "The S. S. and the Bible." He regretted that the Sunday School had lost much of its original power and efficiency. The causes were shown to be the Spirit of secularization, the overshadowing of the Bible by pamphlet literature that had little bearing upon it and the presence of unsuitable literature in S. S. libraries.

Rev. S. J. MacArthur gave an inspiring address on the power of a leading idea. He showed that hidden in the Bible were the great ideas and principles that were vital to Christian life, character and civilization. Both national and civic righteousness find their adequate foundations upon the bed-rock of these ideas.

Report of Nominating Committee was as follows: Additional members of the executive--J. J. Ander, Newcastle; C. C. Hayward, Newcastle; S. S. McLoon, Chatham; W. S. Loggie, Chatham; J. W. S. Babkirk, Loggieville; W. B. Snowball, Chatham; A. B. McKinnon, Chatham; Pres.--Rev. J. J. Phikerton, Chatham; Parish presidents are vice-presidents of County Convention: sec. treas.--Miss Jessie McKnight, Lower Napan; Elementary Super.--Miss Bella Falconer, Newcastle; Organized classes--Rev. Geo. P. Tattler; Home Department--Mrs. Wm. Anderson; Temperance--Fredrick Locke; Teacher Training--C. W. Squires; Mission--Rev. Alex. Firth; I. B. R. A.--Miss M. E. Betts. Report of committee on resolutions:--1.--We the members to Northumberland County S. S. Association assembled in Blackville, place our record our cordial assent to and agreement with the Dominion Alliance in its endeavor to have the Scott Act repealed in this county in order to come under the new Provincial Act, and would urge our S. S. workers to do all in their power to assist in this worthy movement.

WIFE TOO ILL TO WORK

IN BED MOST OF TIME

Her Health Restored by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Indianapolis, Indiana. — "My health was so poor and my constitution so run down that I could not work. I was thin, pale and weak, weighed but 109 pounds and was in bed most of the time. I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and five months later I weighed 133 pounds. I do all the housework and washing for eleven and I can truthfully say Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been a godsend to me for I would have been in my grave today but for it. I would tell all women suffering as I was to try your valuable remedy."—Mrs. W. M. GREEN, 332 S. Addison Street, Indianapolis, Indiana.
There is hardly a neighborhood in this country, wherein some woman has not found health by using this good old-fashioned root and herb remedy.
If there is anything about which you would like special advice, write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

Moved from Doaktown

Mr. James Holmes, the well-known lumberman of Doaktown, has gone to Fort Francis, Ont., where he will probably reside in future. Mr. Holmes has two sons located at that place. Many friends throughout Northumberland County will regret the departure of Mr. Holmes, who took a prominent part in business affairs. It is only recently that his fine mill was wiped out by fire. The loss was $-990 and there was no insurance. Mr. Holmes believes that the fire, which was the second one he had as of incendiary origin.

FREE BEAUTIFUL "CHEVROLET" TOURING CAR

This Splendid Motor Car will be Awarded as First Prize in The Advocate's Second Big Voting Campaign which is just beginning

The "Chevrolet" (pronounced "Shevroay") motor car has been aptly called the "wonder car." It deserves such a designation. The price of the car delivered at Newcastle, by The Lonsbury Co., Ltd., the New Brunswick distributors, is $710. Never before has such a complete car been made to sell at such a price.
The "Chevrolet" (pronounced "Shevroay") motor car which will be awarded as first prize in The Advocate Voting Campaign, is known as model "Four-Ninety"—a five passenger touring car carrying full automobile equipment. It has a mohair tailored top; envelope for the top and side curtains; electric horn, clear vision ventilating wind shield; speedometer; electrical starting and lighting system; ammeter and license brackets.

The "Chevrolet" is a Complete Car
The "Chevrolet," as the above description shows, possesses many features found only in high priced cars.

The "Chevrolet" has the following exclusive features and differs in many respects from all other automobiles, irrespective of price.

- The "Chevrolet" has shock absorbing, duplex front springs and is the easiest riding car for its size in the world.
- The "Chevrolet" has a self-lubricating clutch collar, eliminating clutch collar troubles, such as friction, heating and wear.
- The "Chevrolet" has the rear wheel bearing carried on the wheel hub, just the reverse of the ordinary construction, the bearing being three times the size used in ordinary axles. This extra large bearing carried in the axle housing takes the load—the axle shaft carries no load.
- The "Chevrolet" has a compound steering gear, composed of spur gears and sector, attached to body, simplest and safest ever invented. It is adjustable for wear.
- The "Chevrolet" has a unit power plant carrying transmission on open brackets which gives accessibility to clutch and allows removal of transmission, if necessary, in twenty minutes.
- The "Chevrolet" has a special brake arrangement, which insures powerful, quick acting and smooth brakes. Emergency brake internal contracting.
- The "Chevrolet" does not have a single hinge joint to squeak or a spring shackle to rattle and only six grease cups will be found on the entire car.
- The "Chevrolet" is powerful and high running. The "Chevrolet" is made in graceful lines and is a beautiful motor car.

The "Chevrolet" is a Magnificent Prize

- TOTAL OF $1360 WORTH OF PRIZES WILL BE AWARDED.
- SECOND PRIZE: $400 Cabinet Grand "Lonsdale" piano, manufactured and guaranteed by Lonsdale Piano Co., Toronto.
- THIRD PRIZE: $150 cabinet of highest grade silverplated tableware, manufactured and guaranteed by Canadian Wm. A. Rogers Limited, Toronto.
- FOURTH PRIZE: $100 six-piece silver plated tea service, manufactured and guaranteed by Canadian Wm. A. Rogers Limited, Toronto.

These prizes will be awarded in the order of standing to the contestants securing the highest number of votes during the campaign.
The campaign is open to ladies only, but anyone may assist a contestant. Any man may, therefore work for the "Chevrolet" or any of the other prizes by having any lady, with whom he can make suitable arrangements, enter the campaign as a contestant. It costs nothing to enter the campaign. All receipt books and other supplies needed are provided contestants free of charge.
Votes are obtained by securing subscription to The Union Advocate, MacLean's Magazine, Farmer's Magazine, or all three. See vote schedule published elsewhere.

IF YOU WANT TO WIN the "Chevrolet" or any of the other prizes, enter the campaign now and start at once securing subscriptions and votes. Don't Hesitate. Don't Delay. This is a golden opportunity. You can't win by wishing. You can win by working. Start today. DO IT NOW.

THE ETERNAL CITY WITH PAULINE FREDERICK

Happy Hour Tuesday Oct. 10th produced amid the grandeur and beauty of modern Rome, under the direction of Edwin S. Porter and Hugh Ford. This amazing photographic spectacle marks a new era in dramatic pictorialization. For the first time in the history of motion pictures the Vatican Gardens, the Coliseum, St. Peter's, the Castle of St. Angelo's and many other historic and impressive spots in the Imperial City have been used as settings for a screen production. No summary of bare facts can adequately describe the astounding power and harm of the subject. The pictorial version of Hall Cain's thrilling romance presents the stirring incidents and climaxes, the nobility and tragedy, the elements of love and betrayal and the beautiful ideals and humanities of the original plot, with a wider range, in truer colors and with bolder strokes than were possible in the novel or play, and will therefore render the inspiring story its greatest measure of immortality. Prices 15 and 25 cts.

Petrova, the gifted Metro star, will be seen in the stellar role of "Playing With Fire," a five part wonder play produced by the popular Plays and Players, which will be presented at Happy Hour on Thursday. Ribbing Up the Liberal Party

H. F. GADSBY, brilliant Canadian journalist, continues in the October number of MACLEAN'S MAGAZINE his notable series of Canadian political studies. In the September issue he dealt with "The Duff Boom." In this October issue he tells in a non-partisan way of forces at work at the present time in the Liberal Party of Canada. In the November issue he will have an article on the Conservative Party in Canada. This series is unique and of lively interest, partly due to Gadsby's racy style, and partly to the fact that he possesses "inside" information of a piquant sort.

American Elections and the Great War Agnes C. Laut

Startles you in this article of hers in the October MACLEAN'S. How will the German-American vote go—to Hughes or Wilson? Miss Laut says Wilson will get it! Her vigorous mind, her "inside" information, and the robustness of her style make this contribution of hers refreshing reading.

SCHOOL SANITATION

A Paper Read by D. R. Moore, M. D., Before the Northumberland County Teachers' Institute, at Newcastle, Sept. 29th, 1916

The numbers and the standing of the audience that I have the honor of addressing upon this occasion, naturally tends to admonish me with a sense of my inability to discuss this subject with the thoroughness which its importance demands. I observe in this audience a representation of the good and the wise, and the noble, and the fair, of the county of Northumberland, indeed the cultured element into whose hands have been entrusted the educational interests of the county.

As an aristocracy of learning—and the only caste of aristocracy I trust, this country may ever know—you teachers are indeed the heirs of all ages. Your curriculum is only an incident in the sum total of human experience. Your geography is an epitome of the struggle, triumphs and disasters of the world's navigators, explorers and travellers covering a period of thousands of years. Your history, "philosophy teaching by example," is an abridged narrative of the acts and conduct of mankind—individuals and nations—since the vanguard of civilization first camped on the plains of Mesopotamia. Your science is a checked record of vigorous intellects occupied in the conception and discovery of grand truths, often evolved in an environment which proscribed the liberty and freedom of the originator as his reward. Your literature, early in the morning of life, tells of struggling mental utterances, seeking expression in hieroglyphics and image inscriptions upon stone, Egyptian papyrus, and what not; Mahomet writing the Koran upon shoulder blades of mutton, as Carlyle tells us, accomplishing the preservation and survival of the exquisite production of the Greek and Roman minds, and everywhere recording the happiest and best thoughts of the happiest and best minds. We indeed know the beginning of little or nothing in this world. The operation of the human mind is a record of perpetual ascension. The interval between the dawn of intelligence in the primitive savage, and the imaginative power of Milton or Shakespeare is measured by successive convulsions in the great family of mankind—indeed, by the whole field of human culture.

Doubtless man's energies were originally, solely of a physical character; when and how the intellectual faculty first became quickened and alive must ever remain a mystery. When the struggle for life first became associated with the struggle for the life of others; when the struggle for life begot selfishness, aggressiveness, and war, and the struggle for the life of others begot unselfishness, sympathy and love, we shall never know. The struggle for life developed courage and strength, characteristics of individualism, and the struggle for the life of others developed sympathy and love, characteristics of altruism. When the first savage mother became roused to her first tender and sympathetic concern for her babe, and for a moment in its helplessness and suffering, forgot herself, and became conscious of the unutterable impulses of motherhood, when some rising feeling first lessened the cruelty of some brutal act, and a kindly gesture first softened some fierce glare, and a sympathetic gleam first kindled in a savage eye, however long heredity might require to nurse into vigorous life these precious germs of intellectual might, these changes certainly marked the most stupendous transition in the history of our race.

Mankind have not always been tented in comfortable homes of modern architecture. There was a period in his early history, probably 200,000 or 400,000 years ago, when he was little more susceptible to bodily ills, than were the other types of his fellow brutes with whom he roamed. Life experienced in the open air; with perhaps resort to the branches of a tree for the safety of a night's sleep, with strenuous efforts to provide necessary food for himself developed a physical vigor and an endurance, which distinguishes this era of primitive man. The occupation of natural caves, induced him later to excavate similar apartments for himself, and cave and cliff dwelling marks an advanced stage in human progress. Next followed the construction of rude wooden huts, later these evolved the tent originally formed of the skins of wild animals, which for the thousands of years, with millions of mankind, has remained a popular and healthful type of habitation. The class of food available required and developed formidable jaws and strong teeth; the hurried rush to evade some savage attack developed vigorous lung and muscular sinewy limbs, requiring an active function of every organ in his physical system.

For ages mankind was demarcated by the supreme law of necessity, until reason dawned, and his intellectual faculty quickened, when we find him making terms and compromising with this supreme necessity. At the confluence of the animal and the rational in man he forever surrenders instinct. This feeble intellectual spark illumines the dark trail of his existence, free will now delivers him from the thraldom of tyrannical necessity, whispers to him of indulgences and habits hitherto unknown, establishing within himself baneful and harmful needs unforeshadowed in his constitution.

The epigram that we begin to die as soon as we are born, is profoundly true. It is the knowledge of this truth that has caused the development and the organization of the sanitary and hygienic institutions throughout the civilized world. The status of the sanitary legislation of a nation is, today, regarded as an index of its intelligence. Of the greatest possible importance is the conservation of the public health and the restriction of the rate of mortality.

In Europe a merciless war is destroying millions of the world's best and bravest men; never has the science of war furnished such a schedule of infernal devices for maiming and destroying mankind, as are known to the present war. Never was there known such a triumph over human mutilation and destruction, as is known to war medicine and surgery of today.

I have been requested to talk with the teachers here assembled, on sanitary and hygienic conditions as applied to the school. What is sanitation for your homes is likewise also for the school. A broad application of these conditions to our environment, whatever it may be, would serve a wider purpose in the common interests of life. As officials in the public service, you would do well to acquaint yourselves with the provisions of the Public Health act of this Province. Its perusal will become an education in matters of daily concern to you especially respecting the Public protection in prevailing diseases of an infective character. You will also find useful hints respecting various foods, and also concerning matters of ventilation. Knowing that elementary chemistry and physiology enter into your curriculum of your professional study I am occasionally surprised to find teachers quite indifferent to the sanitary interests of home. It is imperative that a current of fresh outdoor air should freely circulate through every occupied room in the school or home, especially during the spring, summer and autumn seasons, and in winter ventilation must also supply fresh oxygen necessary to stimulate the languid mental state, probably induced by a vitiated atmosphere, and the inhalation of carbonic acid.

There is a belief with some people that in winter an apartment that is merely cold must necessarily be well aired, when its atmosphere is toxic with carbonic acid. I would advise you, upon some occasion when you observe a number of your pupils exhibiting a sporadic listlessness of drowsy mental languor and apathy, to open your doors and windows, and witness the interesting transformation that results from every tiny red blood cell, bearing its complement of oxygen in the circulation, kindling a lustre in the eye and an energy in the brain and whipping up the hesitating mind to do its best. Moreover sanitation has decreed that at all times, excepting in the winter and during rainy weather ventilation should be continuous. The chief factor in the sanitarium treatment of tuberculosis is that the patient lives in the outdoor air. If pure rich air is capable of reclaiming the pale and emaciated tubercular patient from impending death, and restoring a healthful expression to the face, and invigorating the tottering frame, what health and longevity may we not experience if only we dwell in an atmosphere of pure rich air, to be had reasonably without money and without price?

The popular dread of contracting a cold in a well ventilated apartment, with reasonable precautions, is groundless, and the sanitary relations between the close vitiated atmosphere of ill ventilation and a pure atmosphere, is the difference between the Black Hole in Calcutta and the Strand Hall we now occupy.

Screen the doors and windows in your private homes, and public buildings allowing the air to circulate throughout and you can report progress in every healthful walk of life.

Next among nature's bountiful and gratuitous supplies is water. Neither animal or vegetable life can exist in the absence of water or moisture. For human requirements drinking water should be free from, or contain only a minimum of organic matter. It may contain a considerable percentage of inorganic substance, and not be necessarily injurious to health. The best spring water may become contaminated through faulty drainage or decaying vegetable matter. Natural spring or drilled wells, usually yield the purest water; the water from rivers and brooks, especially during the summer season, owing to various causes, is liable to be unfit for drinking purposes, unless previously boiled. The water supplied to towns and cities by reservoirs, or other methods should from time to time be carefully examined in order to ascertain the percentage of organic and inorganic matter. This information can be effectively obtained, and without cost by forwarding the specimen to the Federal analyst at Ottawa. Boiling suspected water destroys any infection it may contain. However, the process of boiling normal water destroys all microscopic life in the water, and it is known that certain infusoria contained in water are friendly and advantageous to the human economy. Especially may water become the vehicle for the diffusion of typhoid, scarlatinal and diphtheritic infection; in typhoid fever the infection is usually taken into the system either in food or drink. Water intended for drinking purposes in public localities should be contained in closely covered tanks of suitable material, supplied with automatic faucets at the bottom, and individual drinking cups. In large cities this provision is imperative, and possesses a great sanitary value. The covered tank with faucet and an ordinary enamel drinking cup certainly marks a great advantage over the old method of dipping each cupful out of an open pail. In the near future when prohibition seems likely to drive mankind to drinking only water, these details should be considered. "Old things shall then have passed away and all things become new." No treatise on sanitation can today be considered complete that omits mention of the ubiquitous fly. Only a few years ago, children were taught by the school text books that they "Must not kill a little fly 'Tis an act of cruelty." Medical science, ever ready to enhance the interests of mankind by research and discovery, has within the past two decades realized undreamed of triumphs through patient and diligent use of the microscope.

The marvellous revelations of this instrument, have, in the realm of medicine and surgery, heralded the proclamation of the gospel of man's redemption of man. "While reverence and gratitude are reckoned among the attributes of mankind, the memory of Louis Pasteur and Robert Koch shall be enshrined in the memory of posterity. Not only in the domain of medicine were the researches of this brilliant and resourceful Frenchman astonishing and vigorous, but also in the silkworm industry, and grape production, he won imperishable fame, and by which those industries have been conserved to the extent of hundreds of millions of francs.

About the time that Pasteur's fame was at its zenith, Robert Koch, a health officer in a small German town, commanded the attention of the medical world by demonstrating the causative relation of tubercle bacillus to the tubercular disease. He was also successful in the production of a tubercular serum, which will undoubtedly, be exploited in the effective treatment of tubercular consumption. Koch's service to mankind in the investigation and discovery of other diseases was no less distinguished, posterity becoming his acknowledged debtor the world over. Some one has appropriately summed up in the following lines certain revelations of the microscope:

The Old Cider Woman
A POOR old cider woman of long ago explained to her customers that she lost on every glass she sold, but made it up on the great number sold. Figure it out for yourself.
Now we feel sometimes like the old cider woman. We lose on every subscription we take at a dollar a year, yet try to say to ourselves that we make it up on the large number of our subscribers.
A good weekly newspaper cannot be produced for $1.00 a year. $1.50 is the absolute minimum—and this only when the paper carries a goodly amount of advertising. On the advertiser is placed the burden of losses on subscriptions. This is no secret. Yet it is not right.
And so, to-day, the publishers of dailies and weeklies are trying to set things right—by raising the price of their papers to subscribers in order that no heavier load will be placed on the advertiser.
For the costs of publishing are going higher every year. And this higher cost must be collected from some source.
We believe that you are ready in your mind to pay more for your weekly newspaper. You know that in your own buying and selling, prices in scarcely anything remain "fixed" year after year, as has the price of your weekly newspaper. You are paying more—very much more—for almost everything in common use.
We put it to you: Is it reasonable that the old dollar rate of the country weekly remain unchanged in the light of the costs of other manufactured products?
And in the confidence that you will agree that it is absolutely just to raise the subscription price of The Advocate, we announce that on and after November, 1st, the price of the Advocate will be $1.50.
We are counting on you to fall into line with the necessities of the situation, and that you will agree with us when we say that three cents a week for The Advocate is little enough when one figures out what it costs to produce it every week.

"Stick-Fast"
For all purposes where paste is used. No Boiling. Made Instantly with Cold Water. Try a package. Price 15c. at The Advocate Job Dpt.
A Harrison Gulch, Cal. mining company, forwarded a real gold brick worth $1,800 by parcel post, the postage was 45 cents and the package could not be insured for more than $100.

ages seemed to pass, and Marjorie had not even a suggestion. By this time Marjorie's temper had evaporated, and when he said: "If we could only stop at some town for half an hour," she said: "Maybe the conductor would hold the train for us."

"I hardly think he would."

"He looks like an awfully nice man. You ask him."

"Oh, what's the use?"

Marjorie was getting tired of depending on this charming young man with the very bad luck. She decided to assume command herself. She took recourse naturally to the original feminine methods: "I'll take care of him," she said, with resolution. "A woman can get a man to do almost anything if she flirts a little with him."

"Marjorie!"

"Now, don't you mind anything I do. Remember, it's all for love of you—even if I have to kiss him."

"Marjorie, I won't permit—"

"You have no right to boss me—yet. You subside." She gave him the merest touch, but he fell backward into a chair, utterly agast at the shameless siren into which desperation had altered the timid little thing he thought he had chosen to love. He was being rapidly initiated into the complex and versatile and fearfully wonderful thing a woman really is, and he was saying to himself: "What have I married?" forgetting, for the moment, that he had not married her yet, and that therein lay the whole trouble.

CHAPTER XXVI.

Delliah and the Conductor.

Like the best of women and the worst of men, Marjorie was perfectly willing to do evil, that good might come of it. She advanced on the innocent conductor, as the lady from Sorek must have sidled up to Samson, coquetting with one arch hand and snipping the shears with the other.

The stupefied Mallory saw Marjorie in a startling imitation of herself at her sweetest; only now it was brazen mimicry, yet how like! She went forward as the shyest young thing in the world, pursed her lips into an ecstatic simper, and began on the unsuspecting official:

"Isn't the country perfectly—"

"Yes, but I'm getting used to it," the conductor growled, without looking up.

His curt indifference jolted Marjorie a trifle, but she rallied her forces, and came back with: "How long do we stop at Ogden?"

"Five minutes," very bluntly.

Marjorie poured maple syrup on her tone, as she purred: "This train of yours is an awfully fast train, isn't it?"

"Sort of," said the conductor, with just a trace of thaw. What followed made him hold his breath, for the outrageous little hussy was actually saying: "The company must have a great deal of confidence in you to entrust the lives and welfare of so many people to your presence of mind and courage."

"Well, of course, I can't say as to that—"

Even Marjorie was melting fast as Marjorie went on with relentless treacle:

"Talk about soldiers and firemen and life-savers! I think it takes a braver man than any of those to be a conductor—really."

"Well, it is a kind of a responsible job." The conductor swelled his chest a little at that, and Marjorie felt that he was already hers. She hammered the weak spot in his armor, followed "Responsible! I should say it is. Mr. Mallory is a soldier, but soldiers are such ferocious, destructive people, while conductors save lives, and—if I were only a man I think it would be my greatest ambition to be a conductor—especially on an overland express."

The conductor told the truth when he confessed: "Well, I never heard it put just that way." Then he spoke with a little more pride, hoping to increase the impression he felt he was making: "The main thing, of course, is to get my train through on time!"

This was a facher. He was going to get his train through on time just to oblige Marjorie. She stammered: "I don't suppose the train, by any accident, would be delayed in leaving Ogden?"

"Not if I can help it," the hero averred, to reassure her.

"I wish it would," Marjorie murmured.

The conductor looked at her in surprise: "Why, what's it to you?" She turned her eyes on him at full candid power, and smiled:

"Oh, I just wanted to do a little shopping there."

"Shopping! While the train waits! Excuse me!" Marjorie fluttered, "by a sad mistake, my baggage isn't on the train. And I haven't any—any—I really need to buy some—some things very badly. It's awfully embarrassing so be without them."

"I can imagine," the conductor mumbled. "Why don't you and your husband drop off and take the next train?"

"My husband—Mr. Mallory has to be in San Francisco by tomorrow night. He just has to!"

"So have I!"

"But to oblige me? To save me from distress—don't you think you could?" Like a sweet little child she twisted one of the brass buttons on his coat sleeve, and wheedled: "Don't you think you might hold the train just a little tiny half hour?"

He was sorry, but he didn't see how he could. Then she took his breath away again, by asking, out of a clear sky: "Are you married?"

"He was as awkward as if she had proposed to him, she answered for him: "Oh, but of course you are. The women wouldn't let a big, handsome, noble brave giant like you escape long."

He mopped his brow in agony as she went on: "I'm sure you're a very chivalrous man. I'm sure you would give your life to rescue a maiden in distress. Well, here's your chance. Won't you please hold the train?"

She actually had her cheek almost against his shoulder, though she had poise atop to reach him. Marjorie's dismay was changing to a boiling rage, and the conductor was a pitiable combination of Saint Anthony and Tantalus. "I—I'd love to oblige you," he mumbled, "but it would be as much as my job's worth."

"How much is that?" Marjorie asked, and added reassuringly, "If you lost your job I'm sure my father would get you a better one."

"Maybe," said the conductor, "but I got this one."

Then his rolling eyes caught sight of the supposed husband gesticulating wildly and evidently clearing for action. He warned Marjorie: "Say, your husband is motioning at you."

"Don't mind him," Marjorie urged, "just listen to me. I implore you!"

Seeing that he was still resisting, she played her last card, and, crying, "Oh, you can't resist my prayers so cruelly," she threw her arms around his neck, sobbing, "Do you want to break my heart?"

Mallory rushed into the scene and the conductor, tearing Marjorie's arms loose, retreated, gasping, "No! and I don't want your husband to break my head."

Mallory dragged Marjorie away, but she shook her little fist at the conductor, crying: "Do you refuse? Do you dare refuse?"

"I've got to," the conductor objected, "I insist."

Marjorie blazed with fury and the siren became a Scylla. "Then I'll see that my father gets you discharged, if you dare to speak to me again, I'll order my husband to throw you off this train. To think of being refused a simple little favor by a mere conductor! of a stupid old emigrant train!"

Then she hurled herself into a chair and pounded her heels on the floor in a tantrum that paralyzed Mallory. Even the conductor tapped him on the shoulder and said: "You have my sympathy."

CHAPTER XXVII.

The Dog-on-Dog Again.

As the conductor left the Mallory to the care of his device, it rushed over him anew what sacrifice had been attempted—a fool bride had asked him to stop the Trans-American of all trains!—to go shopping of all things!

He stormed into the smoking room to open the safety valve of his wrath, and found the porter just coming out of the buffet cell with a tray, two hot-water-stemmed glasses and a bottle swaddled in a napkin.

"Say, Ellsworth, what in — do you suppose that female back there wants?—wants me to hold the Trans-American while—"

But the porter was in a hurry himself. He was about to serve champagne, and he cut the conductor short: "Scuse me, boss, but they's a lot in couple in the stateroom forward that is in a powerful hurry for this. I can't talk to you now. I'll see you later." And he swaggered off, leaving the door of the buffet open.

The conductor paused to close it, glanced in, started, stared, glared, roared: "What's this! Well, I'll be— a dog smuggled in here! I'll break that coon's head. Come out of there, you miserable or'ary bound." He seized the incredulous Snoozeleums by the scruff of his neck, growling, "It's you for the baggage car ahead," and dashed out with his prey, just as Mallory, now getting new bearings on Marjorie's character, spoke across the rampart of his Napoleonic folds arms:

"Well, you're a nice one!—making violent love to a conductor before my very eyes. A minute more and I would have—"

She silenced him with a snap: "Don't you speak to me! I hate you! I hate all men. The more I know men the more I like—" this reminded her, and she asked anxiously: "Where is Snoozeleums?"

Mallory, impatient at the shift of subject, snapped back: "Oh, I left him in the buffet with the waiter. What I want to know is how you dare to—"

"Was it a colored waiter?"

"Of course. But I'm not speaking of—"

"But suppose he should bite him?"

"Oh, you can't hurt those nigger waiters. I started to say—"

"But I can't have Snoozeleums biting colored people. It might not agree with him. Get him at once."

Mallory trembled with suppressed rage like an overloaded boiler, but he gave up and growled: "Oh, Lord, all right. I'll get him when I've finished—"

"Our common fleas have little fleas Upon their backs to bite them, These little fleas have less fleas And so ad infinitum."

The microscope has recently enabled us to discover that the most direct and house fly, are among the deadliest enemies of our race. The combined destructiveness of all the tigers which prowl in India's jungles, and the lions of Africa, has been practically nothing compared with the war which these insects have waged upon the human race in past times. They have been the active agents in carrying and transmitting the infection of yellow fever, malaria, typhus, fever and frequently also typhoid fever. Dysentery is known to be carried by these pests, and they are responsible for most of the intestinal diseases with children, which so often prevail in the autumn with fatal results. Careful investigation has also demonstrated that the widely prevailing fatal epidemic of infantile paralysis, which has brought grief and mourning into hundreds of homes in New York City, has been traced to the house fly having carried the infection from neighboring stables and other filth collections.

Numbers of these mosquitoes biting patients suffering from malaria, yellow, typhus, and typhoid fever and infantile paralysis, inoculate the next person it attacks, with the same infection. Dr. L. O. Howard, a United States government entomologist has given some interesting information respecting the devastating work of the mosquito. It is known that Greece, and certain parts of Italy, including sections in the vicinity of Rome, abound in swamps and marshy surroundings, which are infested with malaria and immense numbers of mosquitoes. Dr. Howard relates that on one occasion the army of Julian the Apostate was so fiercely attacked by mosquitoes as to be forced to retreat. In another instance Sapor, King of Persia, was obliged to raise the siege of Nisibis owing to the swarm of mosquitoes attacking his elephants and other military train, causing a rout of his forces. It is also claimed that the decline and demoralization of the Greeks and Roman people, was not due to the alleged invasion and subjugation of these countries by savage hordes from the north, but was in fact chiefly due to the epidemic and fatal prevalence of malaria, causing the death of the young and old, and the consequent ruin of their industries and business. Malaria prevails extensively throughout the United States, costing it not less than $100,000,000 per year. There are also millions of fertile lands in that country that cannot be cultivated on account of the prevalence of mosquitoes and malaria.

It has been discovered that the bat is the natural enemy of the mosquito, devouring hundreds of them nightly, and the industry of breeding colonies of these peculiar animals has been found effective in the destruction of these pests. The mosquito is an inhabitant of localities abundant in stagnant pools, swamps and marshes in which they lay their eggs and thus multiply and the thorough draining of such districts results in their extermination. Fish destroy the developing mosquitoes, and large sheets of water are too rough for them, and the result is that the mosquito must have for breeding purposes small pools of fresh water free from fish. Mosquitoes will disappear from a place if all collections of water within a quarter of a mile of it are filled, drained or covered with a thin sheet of oil, thus rendering their breeding impossible.

Since fleas breed only in filth, it is necessary to render it impossible for the fly to reach any accumulation ship, and teachers should always inculcate its importance and practice among children. Within recent years vaccination as a protection against typhoid fever has been exploited with the splendid results of immunizing about 75 per cent. of those vaccinated. Four or five years ago the United States government adopted it, especially in the military service in the Philippines, and also in the present European War, our Canadian soldiers and the entire military force of the Allies have been treated with this protection. I believe with satisfactory results.

The idle and filthy practise of expectorating or spitting in public thoroughfares is now under the ban of sanitary law. The penalty prescribed for such an offense, in and upon the property of the New York subway, is $500.00, with or without imprisonment. The serious consequence of such a practise is at once obvious. Secretions ejected from the mouth on the walks of public passages may contain tubercular or diphtheritic infection which when dried, are carried into the atmosphere by sweeping, traffic, or the wind, and inhaled into the lungs, perchance with deadly effect by the unconscious pedestrian. Nor is the practise wholly harmless when indulged in amid the privacy of your own residence or surroundings; the filthy habits of poultry lead them to follow the chronic expectorator greedily devouring the secretion he ejects. If the sputum chance to contain tubercular infection the fowl becomes a victim of its own voracity, contracting the disease, and when prepared for the table, only the process of thorough cooking, can rescue those who partake of it as food. The habits of dogs and cats are equally filthy, and the consequence, equally serious through these pets later lick the hands and faces of children or others; diphtheria as well as other infectious disorders may thus readily be transmitted. The most effective administration of school sanitation, or at least one feature of it to be found in the large metropolitan school districts where each district has a physician and also a trained nurse on the Trustee Board. I believe that our Public Act may, in our school boards, permit this arrangement, but its operation is unknown in the schools of this province. In the large American cities, this medical department exercises the function of inspection. At stated periods throughout the year a medical inspection of the pupils is made; the physician usually examining the males, and the nurse the female pupils. This inspection is general in character, the pupils are carefully examined for the usual disorders of childhood, such as disease of the throat, tonsils, and adenoids, discharging ears, affections of the eye, teeth, bones of the limbs, and feet, and of the skin. If any of these affections are found to exist in a child, e. g., disease of the tonsils, adenoids, eversion or inversion of the feet, the parents, or guardians of the child are so informed with instructions to have, within a stipulated period, such disorders receive the proper medical treatment. If the home circumstances of the child are indigent and needy, the parents are instructed to take the child to one of the medical or surgical clinics in connection with charitable service of the many large hospitals in the locality where the proper treatment is promptly administered without cost to the child. The operation of these regulations becomes an education to the people, and is fraught with the greatest benefits to the children. Especially is this the experience where the children suffer from tonsil and adenoid affections of the throat, which frequently renders the child an invalid, impairing vision and hearing, and fettering both perception and energy. Relieved of these disorders the pale and nervous child lives another life, and enjoys the repose and pursuits of the new existence. Neglect in the treatment of these infections, which unfortunately, are present in many children may later, lead to the development of such diseases as quinsy, deafness, tuberculosis or epilepsy. There is no school district, but what can derive some benefit from a knowledge of these provisions, and there is no district so feeble or remote that cannot call into its operation the necessary requirements for accomplishing some good results along these lines. The schedule of matter having a sanitary bearing is by no means here exhausted, nor can it be on this occasion considered at greater length. However at this distance in its consideration, upon reflection, one is amazed at the magnitude of the human organizations, that are scientifically battling for the rescue of mankind from the many ills which every where threaten him, with the result of scarcely halting the process of his dissolution. The highly trained status of the teachers, their discernment and opportunities admirably qualify them to co-operate with the physician in all matters pertaining to the interests of public health. The splendid work achieved by our young women who retire from the profession to enlist in trained nursing affords ample proof of this assertion. In the large hospitals in the United States are found Canadian nurses occupying the foremost positions. The fact that she is a Canadian argues for her promotion, and she enjoys the happy reputation of being capable of doing her work as few can.

We have been considering several matters of a sanitary character, with a view to having the teaching profession, in military parlance, "do their bit" towards aiding in lessening the prevalence of disease, and also in the preservation of health. This is under ordinary conditions desirable, but at such a crisis in the history of our country, and the world, when the most heroic and best elements in Canadian life are being drained away by hundreds of thousands to along its triumphal march the abode and sustenance for increasing millions secure only in the imitation of those immortal examples, which down through the checkered history of our race have at all times commanded the admiration and the esteem of the heroic and the wise of all enlightened nations.

porarily impoverished but with an enormous asset of experience, enlightenment and shattered ideals. We all bear to that man who wields England's sceptre, the sincerest regard and esteem and for his land, home and respect becoming the land of our fathers. We delight in the recollection that the English, if not the earliest, have been at least the sincerest champions of freedom; that if not the most liberal according to our ideal they have been the justest according to their own. We admire the valor of her heroes, the wisdom of her sages, the sagacity of her statesmen, the culture of her institutions and the antiquity of her history. But the glory of the past is the lawful heritage of the present. Beneath the surface of the Canadian flows the rich blood of the Anglo-Saxon, deeper still, through successive races—side by side with Greek and Roman—pulsing the nomadic blood of the old Aryan stock.

Inheriting therefore as we do the wisdom, resolution and courage of our sires, possessed of a vast country, nearly equal in area to the continent of Europe, with a soil rivaling in fertility the great seed beds of the world; whose parallels of latitude encompass hundreds of thousands of square miles between the grape producing vine of the south, and the frost bound lichens of the north, whose territory abounds in an immense wealth of natural resources, locked up in the seclusion of the forest and the dark chambers of the mine, and with a system of common school education whose curriculum represents the culture of the most advanced nations of the age, one may inquire need Canada waver in the opportune claim to nationhood? And the glory and the honor of Canada's nationhood shall be achieved, not through the spoils of foreign conquest, or by the ignominious barter of inherent right, but by industry, invasion of the solitary wastes of the land, scattering of its triumphal march the abode and sustenance for increasing millions secure only in the imitation of those immortal examples, which down through the checkered history of our race have at all times commanded the admiration and the esteem of the heroic and the wise of all enlightened nations.
