CHAPTER XXXV.

Guy looked up hastily, as if about to speak, but apparently changing his mind, said nothing, and sat down in his arm chair, the old weary sadness creeping over his face.

"That is all right," said Oswald heartily. "she bore up so well all day that I feared the long-continued strain had been too much for her. We owe Miss Grey and her sister a vast debt of gratitude," he added smiling. "They are most charming girls, and it was worth enduring some trouble and anxiety to secure such friends."

Captain Layton's face glowed delightedly. The only drawback to his happiness in his engagement to Ada Grey, had been a lurking thought that his friends might think lightly of her because she was the daughter of an obscure country parson; but was himself fast finding out that there is a far truer nobility in kindly nature than in high birth, and that it is worth, not rank, which is the grand desideratum. The young man's love for Ada had indeed changed him for the better; he was no longer recognizable as the languid, listless individual, eager to flirt with Mrs. Beaudesert, and with no higher object in life than the adornment of his own person and the designing of some new fashion in cravats. The young exquisite had almost entirely disappeared, and an earnest, straightforward, resolute man had replaced him. The terrible trouble which had fallen upon Lady Glynn had touched him greatly, and Sir Hugh's awful death had been a rude but salutary shock. He had spent the weeks before the trial at Easton, and his presence was an inestimable comfort to Ada, who was almost sorry afterward to think how happy she had been while Shirley was undergoing such sorrow and suffering.

"And I have to congratulate you," Major Stuart said, looking up with a smile. "You are a very lucky fellow, Layton; Miss Grey is a most charming girl, and you are much to be envied."

"Thank you," the fellow returned, rather shyly. "Have you not dined yet?" he added, glancing at the barely-touched dinner. "Because Lucia thought that perhaps you would come round this evening. They would be so glad to see you."

"Yes, we have dined," Captain Fairholme said hesitatingly. "but I want to write home. I have already telegraphed to my wife; but I know she will be anxious to hear all particulars. Would you care to go by and by, Stuart, or are you too tired?"

"By no means," Guy answered immediately. "I should like to go."

"Then I will tell them to expect you in about an hour," said the young officer, cheerfully. "They will be delighted. You know the house, Fairholme, of course?"

"I ought to know it," Oswald answered laughing, "considering that I was there three or four times yesterday and again this morning."

"All right, then. Au revoir!" said Captain Layton as he left the room. They heard his quick step on the stairs as he went down, and his voice humming a song; and, as he died away, a little spell of silence fell upon them both, broken at last by Oswald, who rang to have the dinner removed. And while he was writing to Ruby, telling her all particulars of the trial and its result; Guy Stuart sat leaning slightly forward on his chair, his head on his hand, his deep gray eyes with wild, yearning gaze studying the glow of the fire. He was thinking of the Past and its misery, of the Present, with its strange uncertainty and flickering lights and shades, and he was wondering what fate the Future had in store for him. Would it give him more loneliness, more sorrow, more wistful yearning for love and companionship, or would Shirley put her hand in his and go with him where he would—his wife at last. For there was no life between them now.

CHAPTER XXXVI.

Guy had meant to see Shirley quietly, and Lady Glynn had made a resolution that she would not distress him by any emotion; but, when she met in the front parlor of Mr. Jackson's little cottage, their calmness and courage were sorely tried.

She was waiting for him alone standing, a slim, black-robed figure upon the bright flowered rug and when he entered, she turned and put out both little hands to him; and Guy bent over them as he took them in his and laid his face upon them in uncontrollable emotion. The long strain upon his nerves and endurance had overcome him at last, and the look in her eyes, so tender, so compassionate, so infinitely loving, broke down all his self-control. Shirley stood motionless, with her heart throbbing to suffocation. She was anxious to spare him as much as possible. She felt that it would be inexpressible comfort to throw herself into his arms and weep out all her misery upon his breast, but she knew that she must be brave for him now, for him who had so often been brave for her.

They were silent for some moments, the stillness of the little room being broken only by the great choking sobs which burst from Guy's sad heart; then, as Shirley felt that she could bear it no longer, that her strength was failing her, she said softly:

"Guy, you distress me. Dear, I cannot bear to see you thus."

At the sound of her voice he shivered; but, making a great effort, he lifted his head, and, still keeping her hands in his, murmured a few broken words of thanks and blessing for her brave testimony for him that day; and, as her eyes rested on his face, so well-beloved and so sadly altered, she could have cried out with pain at the change she saw there.

"Why are you thanking me, Guy?" she said tremulously. "Such thanks as those hurt me. Sit down and tell me of yourself. Oswald ought not to have let you come to-night. You look fit for nothing but rest."

She drew him gently toward the little sofa; and, as he sat down, still holding her hands in his and gazing at her fixedly as she bent over him with such infinite pity and love, the fair face quivered and the beautiful eyes filled with tears.

"Guy," she said brokenly, "have you been ill? Have they hid it from me?"

"I have not been ill, my darling; but of course I have been somewhat troubled and anxious and grieved; but that is all over now. I need not be selfish any longer," he added huskily. "I can have thought for others. My poor, poor child, how terrible all this must have been to you!"

"I was not alone, Guy," she answered, looking down at him sorrowfully. "I found kind and dear friends who have been, oh, so good to me, dear!"

"Heaven bless them!" broke from his lips, as he drew her closer to him. "And yet my dearest you are so changed."

"Am I? You must not judge of my looks to-night, because I am tired; and I should like not to judge of yours either," she continued unsteadily. "Oswald told me you were changed, and to-day—her voice faltered for a moment—and to-day I saw that you looked worn and ill, but—"

"If my appearance shocks you," he said, forcing a smile. "I will go away and not see you again until I have recovered my old looks. Oh, my darling!"—he dropped his head on her shoulder as she stood beside him—"how can we be thankful enough, how can we show our gratitude? Shirley, once or twice in my loneliness there, he went on unsteadily, "it seemed to me that everything was going wrong here, that the most trivial words and actions would go against me. It seemed as if Heaven were against me."

"Guy, my dearest, hush!"

"It is such a relief to tell you, osw!" he said brokenly. "I had left you that morning so much happier. I had guessed that you—and poor

CRITICAL TIME OF WOMAN'S LIFE

From 40 to 50 Years of Age. How It May Be Passed in Safety.

So, Wellington, B.C.—"For a year during the Change of Life I was all run down. I was really too weak to walk and was very despondent and thought I was going to die, but after taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier my health and strength returned. I am very thankful to you and praise your medicine."

I have advised several women who suffered as I did to try your remedies. You may publish this if you wish. —Mrs. DAVID R. MORRIS, South Wellington, Vancouver Island, B.C.

No other medicine for woman's ills has received such wide-spread and unqualified endorsement. We know of no other medicine which has such a record of success as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. For more than 30 years it has been the standard remedy for woman's ills such as inflammation, ulceration, tumors, irregularities, periodic pains and nervous prostration, and we believe it is unequalled for women during the period of change of life.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

RAILROAD MAN HAD TO LAY OFF

Until He Took GIN PILLS

Buffalo, N. Y.

"I have been a Pullman conductor on the C. P. R. and Michigan Central for the last three years. About four years ago, I was laid up with intense pain in the groin, a very sore back, and suffered most severely when I tried to urinate. I treated with my family physician for two months for Gravel in the Bladder but did not receive any benefit. About that time, I met another railroad man who had been similarly affected, and who had been cured by GIN PILLS, after having been given up by a prominent physician who treated him for Diabetes. He is now running on the road and is perfectly cured. He strongly advised me to try GIN PILLS, which I did—with the results that the pains left me entirely."

Hugh were friends, and I was thinking that there was a happy life of mutual love in store for you both in the future. Sweet, I know what you would say; but you are so young, and his love—once you had forgiven—could not have failed to win some return; and I was glad and thankful, my own—ah, I may call you so now, Shirley!—that it should be so—I was quite willing to go away and be forgotten if you were happy; and that morning, Shirley, I meant to go away and not to see you again until I had conquered my love for you."

The tears were standing in his eyes, and Shirley, bending, put her dark hair—thickly besprinkled with gray now—back from his brow, and then, with a sudden impressive tenderness, bent yet lower, and put her lips where her caressing hand had rested.

"My poor Guy!" she said softly.

"We were going over the cliffs, talking of anything and everything; but the dear woman who was so near both our hearts, when Hugh turned to me suddenly and, with a look in his eyes I had never seen there before—a look of such earnest gratitude and sorrow—asked me to forgive him the wrong he had done me in the past. He told me all, Shirley—how rendered mad and desperate by his love for you, he had resolved to possess you by fair means or foul, and that, hearing your mother's story, my poor love, he determined to betray you as she had been betrayed. But he told me that from that night—do you remember it, my darling, when you followed me to Maxwell?—he had not known one happy hour. He had quite despaired of ever winning your love—how could you love, he said, where you had learned to despise? He assured me that then, had it been possible, he would have undone what he had done; but that, knowing that to be impossible, he had tried to brave it out. And we sat down on the cliff, and he told me, poor fellow—" and prospective owners, what a full line of parts right here in the city means to you—prompt service and every satisfaction. It is useless to ignore the fact that you do not require parts. It is all the same if the car costs eight hundred or eight thousand the parts must be renewed sooner or later. The piece of machinery has not been made yet that won't wear. Unfortunately we are such a great distance from the factory and to get parts it takes considerable time, not to mention them having quite a rest at St. John, N.B. for a month or so; and then when you do get them at last, nine times out of ten they are not as ordered. Personally I have known cars to be tied up all the summer from the above cause.

I have a full line of parts always in stock and invite inspection. In fact I carry the only complete line of parts and accessories in the city. I shall be leaving for the "Ford" Factory about the fourth of February and any orders placed before I leave will be attended to personally.

Photographs and Selfishness.

By RUTH CAMERON.

One of my neighbors lost her husband just before Christmas. A few of us who had known her very well, and who realized how great her bereavement was, decided that Christmas would be very gloomy for her this year and promised ourselves we would break away from our own family circle long enough during the day to visit her. He and she were literally all the world to each other, for they had no children and their few relatives are widely scattered.

I found her almost happy. "What do you think?" she said, her pleasure flushing her face. "I learned just yesterday that just before he died John had had his pictures taken, to surprise me on Christmas. You know how averse he has always been to going to a photographer. He hadn't had a picture taken for years before. "I used to try to coax him to go, but he never would. After he died I felt so badly about it. Of course, I could never forget him or how he looked, but a picture would have been so tangible." And yesterday the proofs came. They are splendid. It seems almost like a Christmas present from him." And she showed me the proofs.

Fashions and Fads.

Advance models from Paris show that the three-piece suit will still hold its place in fashion.

The young girl does not generally wear separate furs except possibly a white fur or ermine tie.

Hats have high standing trimmings and equally fashionable are the hats almost flat in effect.

The very slender woman can look very chic in a three-tiered skirt with a large butterfly bow at the back.

Many of the smart new waists and costumes have the Japanese collar, which stands up and away from the neck.

The early spring will bring forth sailor hats of white, black, blue or green corded silk, trimmed with white moire ribbon. The most attractive dancing shoe of the moment is made of peau de suede, with a high red or blue heel and immense paste buckles.

Very smart hats are trimmed with a crown of little tips placed at the edge of the hat or at the back in a retreating movement.

Gaiters or shoes with cloth uppers are worn with street costumes. White, tan, gray and black are the popular colors for gaiters.

Many most smart and striking costumes emphasize the waist line or hips by cinching them with a contrasting form of decoration.

One of the latest velvet toques has a brim fitting close to the crown which runs into a peak of considerable height. There is no trimming.

Among the novelties are blouses of chiffon embroidered with colored silks the material or embroidery repeating the color of the costume.

In neckwear there is a tendency to substitute organdie, sheer linen, batiste or other plain wash fabric for the laces, tulle and embroideries.

The latest stockings for afternoon wear are made of extremely fine silk and inset with medallions of black lace, embroidered in silks and small beads.

The dominant features of the newest lingerie are the long, graceful line, from shoulder to sandal and caught up here and there, or slashed at the sides or front.

The latest millinery is developed of tulle, the material being shirred or fitted smoothly over the foundations and the trimming is of tulle, ribbon bows, flowers, velvet or plunage fantasies.

The petticoat is being replaced by a half petticoat or demi-drop skirt attached to the waist band with the outer skirt. Soft crepe de china, surah, messaline and china silk are used for these.

The materials chosen for bodice garments are crepe de chine, crepe moutons, chiffons, mousselines, brocades and broche crepes, tulle, satins, tulle, allover laces, French chalis, albatross and nun's veiling.

Elizabeth, N. J.

By GEORGE FITCH.

Author of "At Good Old Swash."

Every proper American city, large or small, has some feature about which it can be haughty and superior; even in the presence of Chicago and New York. Take Elizabeth, N. J., for instance. Elizabeth has only 80,000 people and its main street looks as if its fire department was entirely too good for the best interests of the town. Yet, if Elizabeth were to be consumed to-morrow, the supply of sewing machines would be cut down about 50 per cent, and all over the world women would pray for the town's recovery as they ran seams by hand in the good old way.

Elizabeth is situated in the congested part of New Jersey, around two corners and over four bridges from New York. By standing tip toe on a tall place, an Elizabeth citizen can see the Singer Building in New York, built by money made in Elizabeth. The Khl von Kull, which is a river and not a species of firearm, lies in front of Elizabeth, and when the government has finished digging in it, ocean steamships will be able to steam right up to the town and awaken its great white way at 10 p.m. by looting for a draw bridge.

Elizabeth makes about everything from adding machines to ships. It has 100 passenger trains a day and many men who have made their money in New York are building young palaces in Elizabeth, thus evening up for that Singer Building affair. The city has one dwelling house 248 years old and nine depots, most of them a little younger. It has also many new public buildings approaching in beauty its colonial relics. It has a Board of Trade which sets up nights laying plans to move the east side of New York over to Elizabeth, to extend the Atlantic ocean to the town and to put the Pennsylvania railroad on stilts.

Elizabeth is 250 years old and was first named Elizabethtown. It figured so extensively in history, however, that to save composition and wear and tear on historians, the name was amputated at the last Joint Pinegrove

University was organized in Elizabeth and for many years citizens pointed with pride to the homes of a signer of the Declaration of Independence and the president of the Continental Congress. Elizabeth men liked the British single handed in 1786, and George Washington took the ferry there on his way to be inaugurated.

Elizabeth also furnished General Scott who came in handy the last time Mexico got unreasonable. And when General LaFayette visited America, Elizabeth was too important to be overlooked.

Elizabeth has fought everything from Indians to the Pennsylvania railroad, and two centuries ago the Presbyterians and Episcopalians of Elizabeth started a civil war of their own. Peace now reigns supreme, however, and the only signs of war are those made by New York automobile owners who try to go through town without slowing down.

Jim Larkin Worsted

His Candidates Rejected by Dublin and Westford.

Dublin, Jan. 19. — The municipal elections here Saturday resulted in the overwhelming defeat of the candidates of Jim Larkin, the Labor agitator, who recently failed in his efforts to raise "the berry cross" in England. In Westford, which is a Larkin stronghold, his candidates were also defeated.

This is a death-blow to the strike here, which has been going on for months. Larkin after an all-night secret meeting with the leaders of the Transport Workers' Union, decided to advise the men to resume work.

$130,000 Illegally Spent.

The Minister of Finance yesterday tabled the Auditor General's Report on amounts spent on Executive responsibility for which no provision had been made by the Legislature and on overdrafts on the appropriations made at the last session of the Legislature.

Mr. Bertea reports that on July 8th, 1913, and September 9th, 1913, special warrants were issued by the Executive for

(a) $23,258.88 to pay liabilities of the Customs Department for the fiscal year ending June 30th last;

(b) for $14,751.44 to pay liabilities for the Department of Public Charities for the same purpose.

These payments ($44,000) constituted overdrafts in the regular and supplementary votes and he refused to allow them to be charged to the votes of the following year.

"It is a course, however, which is inadvisable and I trust will not be adopted as a precedent in future. Ordinary regard to the actual requirements of the public service when making up the Estimates will prevent the necessity of having recourse to this highly undesirable method of providing funds to meet short votes and consequent overdrafts accounts."

On November 5th, 1913, an Order in Council issued for $10,000 in favour of the Game and Inland Board. This had not been provided in the Estimates. On this, the Auditor General observes: "The Department of Marine & Fisheries was quite aware that this sum would be required if the arrangements of the Game and Inland Fisheries Board were carried out. He considers the course indefensible."

The Auditor General says he disallowed last year as contrary to the Audit Act some $48,000 of increases in salaries and new salaries. The payments were, however, made illegally. The Auditor General takes up twelve pages of his report on section 33 b of the Audit Act in giving a list of these illegal increases. The Auditor General also shows that some $27,000 have already been overspent during the currency of the fiscal year, which has yet some five months to run, on certain appropriation made last session.

To sum up, the Auditor General's report shows that during the current year some $130,000 all told has been spent in illegal increases in salaries, new salaries, or by paying for services which were short voted and should have been provided for in the session of 1913. This $130,000 is absolutely clear of an unforeseen expenditure which a Government could not reasonably be expected to provide for. In short $130,000 was spent contrary to the provisions of the Audit Act.

Firemen's Grievances.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—Your kindness and consideration in giving me the use of the columns of the People's Paper in which to air the grievances of the Fire Brigade, is only further proof of the Liberal policy which has ever been strictly adhered to by your popular journal ever since its inception.

I must again ask your consideration in allowing me another opportunity to agitate for a fair show for a score of men who have earned for themselves and the brigade a high place in the esteem of their fellow citizens. I feel so fully convinced that the firemen up to the present time have been almost entirely forgotten as regards decent wages, that to champion their cause appears to me to be an imperative duty of every citizen worthy of the name. In previous letters I have endeavored to show to the public that the pay now received by these men is absolutely ridiculous, when we take into consideration the salaries enjoyed by other officials who fill less important offices. And, if we examine the rate of wages paid laborers, clerks, tradesmen, truckmen and compare it with that which existed ten years ago, we will find that all those have obtained increases of from twenty to thirty per cent. This change has come simply because men have united and demanded it, simply because they found that it was impossible to live on the old rate of pay. No one believes in working for the fun of it, to-day; they have discovered that there is no fun in it. The firemen, unlike the big bulk of their fellow workers, have not that advantage of being able to boost their claims, because they have not the opportunity of co-mingling with their fellows, and in the secluded existence which goes with their daily life, they are to a large extent deprived of that freedom of speech which at all times is a forcible means of making one's wrongs known, and a big factor in obtaining redress. That being the case, should it not be, in our case, a duty to help those men who are practically unable to help themselves? But, Mr. Editor, the reverse seems to be the order of the day, for whilst I have written four or five times, I regret to have to admit the fact, that none of our brilliant writers, none of our philanthropists, none of our clergymen, none of our Public men outside Councillor Ryan, have thought it worth their while to pen a sentence or utter a syllable in favor of the Firemen's Plea for a Living Wage. Very nonsensical matter from bleeding Nickels, to clearing imaginary snow-drifts, occupy the attention of public men, who are ever ready to "play to the galleries," but yet they close their eyes and shut their ears when the firemen's pay is being discussed. This is lamentable, inasmuch as it denotes the insincerity of such men who ought to show better examples in displaying greater activity in questions which affect our civic life. We see those public men parade the streets in a very cheery humor, as if everything was serene, but they apparently have not the bump of common sense developed sufficiently to notice, that while they swell along, they are at the same time instrumental in doing out paper wages to those who fill important positions which call for men of pluck, men of good character, men who must at all hours be ready to take their lives in their hands. Is not this a standing disgrace, and what cause is there for it? I am beginning to believe that there is a "nigger in the wood-pile," who pulls the strings. If there is, then the sooner the wood-pile, nigger and all, are completely destroyed by fire, the better it will be for this city, a city that boasts of a population composed of Church goers, who are supposed to practice what they preach—fair play to our fellow man. Just to show how ridiculous the firemen's pay of $1.35 a day appears to outsiders, a friend of mine who lately returned from New York, told me that it was a standing joke amongst the Newfoundlanders in that great city. When you want to get off a joke on a Newfoundlander in New York, said he, you just call him aside and advise him to return home and strike a job on the fire brigade. And still we send money to foreign missions. I would suggest that our club debat-

Death Of Rev. Dr. Woods.

Mr. Wm. Waterman, Editor of the Athol Chronicle, wrote the Editor of the Daily News, enclosing the accompanying extract and saying:—

"I last met Dr. Woods during the St. John's Old Home Week. We were both staying at a Trout and Salmon resort near Port aux Basques. We were school-mates when small boys in St. John's." Dr. Woods had many friends in Newfoundland, who will sorrow to hear of his passing. Hon. H. J. B. Woods, and Messrs. Sidney and Chesley Woods are brothers.

IN MINISTRY 55 YEARS.
Rev. Dr. Frederick Woods Dies at Home in Melrose—Occupied Many Massachusetts Pulpits.

Melrose, Jan. 28.—Rev. Dr. Frederick Woods, who in the 55th years since his admission to the clergy had occupied Methodist pastorates in many Massachusetts churches, died this morning aged 80, at his home, 50 Lake Avenue. The funeral will be held at 2.30 Friday afternoon at the Methodist Church, Main Street.

Dr. Woods was born Sept. 7, 1832, in St. John's, N.F. He prepared for college at Sackville, N.B., and Genesee, N.Y., and was graduated from Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn., in 1859.

Joining the New England Conference, he was first assigned to the Methodist Church at South Hadley Falls. He had since in turn been pastor of churches at West Brookfield, Monson, Barre, Lynn, Charlestown, Lowell, Newtonville, Boston, Fitchburg, Westfield, Springfield, Hyde Park, Chelsea, East Boston, Somerville, Woburn, Lynn and Ipswich, the last from 1908 to 1911. In 1912 he retired, and he had since lived here.

Twenty-five years ago Rev. Dr. Woods was given the honorary degree of doctor of divinity by Allison University, Sackville, N.B., when he returned there to preach a baccalaureate sermon. In 1909 he preached the annual conference sermon on the 50th anniversary of his ordination.

He was married Nov. 10, 1873, and has two sons, William Woods, a member of the faculty of Fall River High School, and Frederick S. Woods, professor at M. I. T., also two daughters, Miss Alice Woods and Miss Marion Woods. One brother, Henry Woods, is postmaster general of Newfoundland, and another brother, Rev. Alfred Woods, lives in Saugus.

Grim Russian Tragedy

Officer of Imperial Guard Shoots Three Players Dead.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 22.—A well known night resort in the outskirts of St. Petersburg was the scene this morning of a terrible tragedy. A party of officers of the Imperial Guard arrived and ordered a gypsy choir and a band of guitar players to entertain them. The singing, music, and drinking lasted till early morning, when the brothers Kolzakooff, one of whom is married to a daughter of the late General Dedulin, who was commandant of the Czar's palaces, called for the bill.

While the married brother was settling the bill the other forced his way to the girl singers' dressing room. After Sasha Stepanova, the seventeen-year-old daughter had screamed, her father attempted to drag the officer out of the room. Thereupon Kolzakooff fired and killed him.

Sasha flung herself on her father's body, but she, too, was shot by the officer through the shoulder. Kolzakooff then shot a guitar player, Masalskie, in the stomach as he was attempting to disarm him. The unfortunate man subsequently died at a hospital.

These tragedies occurred at 5 o'clock in the morning, and two hours passed before the necessary authority was received to arrest the officer. It is stated this evening that Sasha has become insane.

Armed Guards In Hungarian House

Budapest, Hungary, Jan. 23.—Armed guards were called into the Lower House of the Hungarian Parliament to-day to eject unruly members of the Opposition during a debate on the Press Reform Law. Ex-Premier Count Andrássy, Count Aladar Zichy, and a dozen other deputies were thrown out of the building when they defied a ruling of the President.

The uproar was so great that it was impossible to conduct business until the wearied members of the Opposition quit the House in a body. The Press Reform Law was carried after the tumult had subsided. The Bill is designed to protect the Government against the attacks of the press, and the Opposition claims that it imperils the freedom of the Hungarian people.

The barq. Dunure is now 34 days out to Bahia from this port.
The barq. Clutha is loading cod-fish at Bishop, Sons & Co. for the Brazilian market.

Montreal, Jan. 29.—Montreal received its latest lesson in social functions last night in the introduction of a supper dance at the Windsor. The couples were placed in a delicious quadrangle and the middle space was cleared for dancing.

The bare boards had been polished and waxed and the fiddles tuned and the waiters were in a decorative uniform and the middle space was cleared for dancing.

very informal business clothes, that being considered a matter of minor importance. It must be said for the ladies that their frocks were quite of the latest mode. The couples danced after the cocktails—they did serve cocktails, tangoed after the hors d'oeuvres, and gracefully performed the hesitation waltz in the interval between soup and the roast or game.

A Bill to indemnify the Government for all acts under martial law and prohibiting the return of strike leaders recently deported from South Africa, was introduced in the Assembly to-day by the Minister of Defence and passed its reading, prior to the Labor amendment the acceptance of which would have been equivalent to a vote of censure which was defeated, the labor members alone supporting it. The Unionists voted with the Minister in all divisions. Their spokesman defined their attitude as one of suspension of judgment until all the facts are before the House.

A RIOT AT ROSSLEYS.

Last night Rossleys was crowded to the doors, many could not get in to witness the grand pantomime. This is the very best one yet, elegant costumes, all new songs, dances and lots of funny business; but the hit of the night is two little St. John's girls whom Mrs. Rossley has specially trained to give an exact imitation of Eva Tanqueray and Johnny Ford in the Bunny Hug dance, it is marvellous to see these two children perform this very difficult dance; the house burst into storms of applause and they had to respond to several encores. These clever children, Misses Margaret Handford and Clara Squires, have made one of the biggest hits ever made by children; another hit is Miss Irene Ryan who appears with Bonnie Rossley as the Boy in the Bathes of the Wood; the costumes of these two were greatly admired, while their song and dance was perfection. Mrs. Rossley has every reason to be proud of this week's production.

A crew of Chinamen had gone on board the Riverside to take the place of the Englishmen and the vessel was just leaving when Nelson refused to remain with the Chinese crew, and sprang overboard. Osborne dived to rescue him and had seized Nelson, who struggled desperately and finally overpowered his would-be rescuer. Before help could reach them both were drowned.

We have just imported a Lavender Soap which fully measures up to our standard of what a Lavender Soap ought to be. The very appearance of the soap suggests English Lavender Flowers, and the odor is quite true. The quality of the soap itself is very high, and for those who fancy this exquisite old-fashioned soap, it is the very thing. And there is no reason why those who have not used this soap before should not try an article which is so hard to get a really genuine specimen of now-a-days, and which in the days of our grandfathers was so highly esteemed. This Lavender Soap, made by Hagehurst & Sons, Ltd., Liverpool, England, will, we feel sure, satisfy the most critical. Price 15 cents a cake; box of 3 cakes, 45 cents.

Successful Concert on H.M.S. Calypso.

A very enjoyable entertainment was held on board H. M. S. Calypso last night, a large number of the friends of the ships' company and reservists being in attendance.

The programme included vocal and instrumental solos, duets, choruses, dances and a clever exhibition of club swinging, all of which were very pleasingly rendered and evoked much enthusiasm and applause from the large audience which taxed the spacious auditorium to its utmost capacity. The accompanist of the evening was Mr. Hurst, who presided at the piano in a very acceptable manner. A special feature of the programme was the "Newfoundland Tango" danced by eight reservists, four of whom impersonated females, and were quite at home in their roles. The affair was under the direction of Mr. F. Jago, bandmaster of the ship, who deserves to be congratulated on the success achieved, considering that this was the first entertainment of its kind ever held on the Calypso.

The programme consisted of two parts, and during the interval refreshments were served, and the visitors shown round the ship. To the commanding officer, to whose courtesy the ships' company and reservists are indebted for the privilege of entertaining their friends in such an excellent manner, much credit is due. This deviation from the regular routine of the reservists' work must necessarily tend to promote that harmony which is essential to the discipline so characteristic of the British Navy. It is hoped that it will be found feasible to have a series of these entertainments during the season.

At the close of the programme the Rev. H. Uphill, Rector of St. Mary's, who was a guest at the entertainment, heartily congratulated the performers for the excellent programme and in a very pleasing manner moved a vote of thanks to the entertainers which was unanimously accorded.

Mr. T. Freeman, chief gunner, on behalf of the ships' company and reservists, in an appropriate speech thanked those present for the appreciation of their efforts, which was so manifested throughout the program by the unstinted applause given the several performers. The singing of the National Anthem brought the happy event to a close.

The Imperial Institute and Commerce Services to the Empire.

When the Dominion Royal Commission sat again at Westminster yesterday under the chairmanship of Sir Edgar Vincent, it had before it a statement prepared by Professor Wyndham R. Dunstan as to the work of the Imperial Institute of which he is the Director, especially in relation to the development of the resources of the Dominions.

Professor Dunstan in his memorandum stated that the Institute had rendered important services in the endeavours made recently in many parts of the Empire to produce tobacco suitable for the British market, and in investigations concerning the exploitation of wild rubber plants and the cultivation of rubber-yielding trees in suitable portions of the Empire. It had afforded considerable assistance to the efforts to establish a cotton-growing industry in South Africa, and had given attention to cotton-growing in Australia. Since 1903 the Institute had organized mineral surveys for Ceylon, Southern Nigeria, Northern Nigeria, Nyasaland, Mozambique, and Gwallor. Four of these surveys, directed to the discovery of economic mineral resources, were in progress at the present time, and each had already afforded results of the greatest value. In Ceylon the new and valuable mineral thorium had been discovered, and the wide distribution of other minerals containing thorium had been demonstrated. In Nyasaland perhaps the most important work accomplished had been the discovery and preliminary survey of large coal areas in the north of the Protectorate. The survey of tinstone deposits in Northern Nigeria has already led to commercial developments, and an enormous deposit of iron ore had been discovered. In Southern Nigeria deposits of lead ore, brown coal and sub-bituminous black coal had been found. The sub-bituminous coal-field alone covered about 2,190 square miles. The only outstanding questions as regards both those coal-fields was the mode of commercial development to be adopted. The construction of a railway connecting the black coal deposits with the river Niger, was in progress, and the utilization of those deposits, which would profoundly influence the commercial development of the whole of West Africa could now be a matter of only a short time. Important deposits of radio-active minerals had been discovered at two places in South Australia, and in their development the Institute had rendered material assistance.

The Resources of the Institute.

Dr. Henry, the superintendent of the laboratories at the Imperial Institute, said that the scientific staff of the Institute had been increased in recent years, but its work was still distinctly in arrears, and as regards space the staff was cramped. If the Institute had the use of the whole of the building at South Kensington, as it originally had, the accommodation would suffice for a considerable number of years.

Mr. Harris informed the Commission that the annual income of the Institute consisted of about £3,400 interest upon the endowment fund, a grant of £2,000 from the Imperial Treasury—which was to be increased by £1,000 on certain conditions, one of which was that the Colonies and Protectorates should provide £1,000 in order to carry out the objects for which the Institute was founded—contributions of £450 from Canada, £500 from Australia, £800 from South Africa, £300 from Newfoundland, and £200 from New Zealand, £2,600 from the Crown Colonies and Protectorates, and other contributions, raising the total to about £15,000. Of the expenditure, about £12,500 was for salaries, of which about £3,500 represented the charge for the scientific and technical department. At present members of the staff engaged in scientific work had also to distribute information to traders. There should be a separate bureau for the latter purpose. The educational value of the Institute and the number of visitors to its galleries had increased. Many working-class people who thought of emigrating to the Dominions came to it. The Institute needed more space and more money. It could dispose usefully of an additional £5,000 a year.

Sir H. Rider Haggard.—As to the lack of space, is it not only a question of getting the University of London out of that part of the building which it occupies?—Yes, then we could develop.

The Chairman asked Mr. Harris to send to the Commission a scheme for the co-ordination of the Institute with bodies having similar objects throughout the Empire and a scheme for making the work of the Institute more widely known.

The Commission adjourned until to-day.—The Times, Jan. 16.

Publishing House Will Cost $1,000,000.

Though But Five Storeys—Building to be Erected at Corner John and Queen Streets

"By a standing vote of the Book and Publishing Committee last Thursday," said Rev. Dr. Briggs, "it was decided to go ahead with the construction of the new Methodist Publishing House on the Beverley site on Queen West. The way is now cleared for the architects to go ahead and call for tenders."

No Contracts Yet.

As yet no contracts have been signed for the construction of the new building, but tenders have already been received for certain portions of the work.

Ten Storey Building.

The ultimate intention is to erect a ten storey building, and in the contracts which will be let provision will be made for the laying of foundations which will permit of the erection of that sized building. To begin with, however, the committee, which have had charge of all negotiations, have decided to erect only a five storey building this year, which is one storey less than was originally planned for prior to the investigation recently held in connection with the purchase of the site.

Keep Within the Estimate.

"The reason for reducing it to five storeys," said Rev. J. J. Redditt, assistant book steward, "is only a matter of capital investment. In planning a new building a certain amount of trimming always has to be done to keep the cost within the amount specified, and the reduction by one storey is part of that."

Large Frontages.

When completed the building will have a frontage of 133 feet along Queen Street, 220 feet along John Street, and 190 feet along Richmond Street. The ground floor will be utilized for stores, press room, printing department, etc., the stores to have their frontages on Queen Street. Besides the Methodist Book Room's own store, provision is made in the plans for the renting of a store on each side of the company's own store.

In the four storeys above accommodation will be provided for general office, trade departments, sectional, and other offices.

When fully completed the building, including the site, will cost in the neighbourhood of $1,000,000.—Toronto paper.

Fooled His Dad.

In Thorold's "Life of Labouchere" is this amusing incident, which happened while "Labby" was still at Cambridge:

"On one occasion, having taken French leave to London, he was unexpectedly confronted one morning in the Strand by his father, who looked extremely annoyed to see the youth there when he imagined him to be occupied with his studies. Henry's wits as usual were on the alert. He returned his father's cold greeting with a surprised stare. 'I beg your pardon, sir,' he said, 'I think you have made a mistake. I have not the honor of your acquaintance.' He rushed by and was lost in the crowd. 'Rapidly consulting his watch, he found he could, by running, just catch a train for Cambridge. He did so, and what he had foreseen happened. Mr. Labouchere, sr., after having accomplished the business he was about, took the next train for Cambridge. On reaching the university he was ushered into his son's study, where he found him absorbed in his work. The old gentleman made no reference to his rencontre in the Strand, being persuaded that it must have been a hallucination."

Amazing Operation.

INCH OF ROCK REMOVED FROM THE BRAIN.

An accident case described by the surgeon in charge as "one of the most astounding within my experience," has recently been successfully operated upon at St. Bartholomew's Hospital.

A piece of rock, an inch and a quarter by one inch in size, embedded in the skull and lacerating the brain as the result of a mine explosion, was successfully removed, leaving the patient, a young Australian miner, little the worse for his experience except for partial blindness in one eye. "How the man survived the immediate effects of the explosion, which took place some months ago, is beyond my comprehension," the surgeon who performed the operation explained to me yesterday. "The huge fragment of rock entered the orbit (the bony socket containing the eye) to the inner and upper side of the left eye, lodged in the porous bone of the skull, and tore through the dura mater (one of the coverings of the brain), of necessity lacerating the brain itself. In removing the rock the eye had to be pulled downwards and outwards, towards the left ear, and even then so large was the fragment there was the greatest difficulty in withdrawing it through the orbit.

"The astounding thing is not only that the man survived the explosion but that although his brain must have been considerably lacerated he suffers no headaches or other nervous symptoms. The sight of the left eye is, of course practically lost, only a dim perception of light remaining."

The patient, a young man of 23, named Joseph Anderson, was married last week and leaves for Australia on Friday to return to his work.—Daily Mail, Jan. 14.

Fears For Schooner Canada.

Considerable alarm is being felt in shipping circles for the safety of the schooner Canada now 70 days out from Brazil to this port. Several vessels that left after the Canada have arrived, and it is thought she must have had her sails carried away or become dismasted during the recent storms. The Canada is a fine vessel of 199 tons, 14 years old, well found in every particular and owned and commanded by Capt. Conrad, of Lunenburg, N. S.

Congressman "Saw Rep"

Fought With Lobbyist and Hurried Off for His Revolver.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 20.—A fist fight between Representative Johnson of Kentucky and John R. Shields, a Washington attorney, broke up a meeting of the District of Columbia Committee of the District of Columbia. After the two men had clashed and several blows were struck, Johnson broke away, shouting "Get my pistol, I'll kill him."

When he returned only the clerks remained. The clash followed a hearing on a bill to increase the salaries of crossing policemen, whom Shields represented. Johnson declared he "heard that Mr. Shields had collected a large lobbyist's fee during the last Congress and that to vote the increase might be voting somebody a four or five thousand dollar lobby fee."

Shields demanded an opportunity to "reply to false statements" and Johnson struck the lawyer under the eye and sent him to the floor.

Cured Eczema Like Magic

Suffered for Years—Tried All Kinds of Treatment—Surprised at Results From Dr. Chase's Ointment.

You can soon tell when people are enthusiastic about medical treatment by the language they use. After experimenting with all sorts of ointments in a vain effort to obtain relief and cure, the writer of this letter was astonished at the quick and satisfactory results obtained by the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment.

"It worked like magic," she writes. "Indeed, it is surprising the healing that is often effected in a single night by this great ointment. The stinging and itching are relieved at once, and cure is only a matter of time and patient treatment."

Mrs. Clementine, 12 Strange street, Toronto, Ont., writes: "I have suffered from eczema for years, and after using all kinds of ointments, at last tried Dr. Chase's Ointment. It worked like magic and proved a God-send to me. I would advise anyone suffering from eczema to try one box and be convinced." 40 cents a box all dealers, or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

At the House

Petitions were presented by Mr. Emerson, asking that English Harbor West, be made a port of call; by Mr. Moulton, asking that New Harbor be made a port of call; by Mr. Jennings, asking for the appointment of a Road Board at Twillingate; by Mr. Stone, from New Melbourne; and Mr. Targett, from New Chelsea; by Mr. Hickman, from Bay de Verde, asking that measures be adopted for the abolition of the picking of unripe partridge berries; also that a date be appointed to pick ripe berries; Messrs. Lloyd, Stone and Targett presented similar petitions.

The House then resolved itself into Committee of the Whole on Supply.

Mr. Kent, in rising, gave a sound and logical criticism of the increased expenditure, emphasizing that the estimates, which are the cost of the upkeep and maintenance of the public service of the Colony, have not received the care and attention in preparation which they deserved. He pointed out that the total estimates now before the House was $3,842,001, compared with $3,393,919, which were submitted at the last session of the Legislature, or an increase of about $448,000. A perusal of the estimates shows that we have this year the same conditions as prevailed in years past, because there would be necessity of additional estimates and a necessity for a supplementary supply. In reviewing the past four years, we find, said Mr. Kent, that the actual expenditure greatly exceeded the estimates. In 1909-10, the expenditure over the estimates was $196,000; in 1910-11, $299,000; in 1911-12, $197,000, and in 1912-13, $199,000, a total of $895,000 or an average of $225,000 expenditure over the estimates for each year. He believed that the differences between estimates and expenditures were the result of a prevailing system in vogue for some time, but it seems that no remedy is being made, and that this system is being accentuated. While the Finance Minister stated that he hoped that the present estimates would be more in accordance with the expenditure than formerly, yet there is an additional expenditure for the year 1914 to 1915 of about $150,000. The people of the Colony, who are taxpayers, expect that the estimates be approximated as closely as possible to meet the demands of the public service. It is a matter that is becoming more and more important every year, and it is imperative that greater accuracy should be exercised either in the several departments in which the estimates are made up or by the Government in the compiling and finalizing of the estimates. He hoped that before the Committee rose, to have been supplied with the information from the Auditor General, which he (Mr. K.) has asked the Prime Minister for. He had noticed some changes in salaries, notably the increase of $4,000 to the salary of His Excellency, the Governor. This Mr. Kent contended, was only adequate remuneration for the valuable services to the Colony, the King's representative has to perform. But, he continued, the Ministers of the different departments should have shouldered the responsibility themselves of granting the increase, and not brought the Governor's letter before this House. He then dealt with the police force and fire brigade. The whole country recognizes that, in view of the increased cost of living the members of both these organizations are inadequately paid and suggested a move in this direction, hoping that the Government would consider the matter. In looking through the increases of salaries, he found it difficult to understand upon what basis the increases were made. He cited instances in which men of responsible positions in the civil service were underpaid, while others by reason of political expediency, got their salaries raised. He thought that such discrimination should not exist, and that increases of salaries should not be made in such a haphazard way. He dealt with the Deputy Heads of each department and did not see the reason why their salaries should be so unequal. Mr. Kent pointed out that, according to the Auditor General's report, which was presumably made out up to the end of September last, the $150,000 voted last, partly to cover the cost of the General Election, had been overdrawn. What the elections cost cannot be estimated at the present time, but from previous experience, he believed it was in the neighborhood of between $36,000 and $40,000. He then referred to the way Section B. of the Audit Act is being abused, which section is entirely intended to provide for emergencies. He gave many examples how the contingencies funds were overdrawn and suggested the amendment of the Audit Act. He said he would like very much to see the report of the Auditor General on the accounts outside the ordinary appropriation accounts.

The Finance Minister.—He said he did not mind much what had been said, as in his 20 years' experience he had always listened to adverse criticism on the estimates. He admitted that supplementary supply would have to be voted in addition to the estimates because it always had been the case. Any information that he could give, he said, would be tabulated.

The Prime Minister.—He said he had no reason to object to any of the remarks made by the Hon. Leader of the Opposition, because his criticisms were reasonable and impartial. In referring to the salaries of the policeman and firemen, he took it that no one seemed to understand the correct position of the matter. He had heard the same question discussed year after year, and he was always in sympathy (that proverbial word) with the movement. He stated in statistical form that no member of the police force outside was paid less than $440 a year and in St. John's not less than $418, and emphasized that every member of the force had perquisites besides his salary. The greatest difficulty that this Government and every other Government were up against was the salaries of members of the Fire Department. They were paid from $575 to $600—including their perquisites—a year. Their splendid and commendable work warranted an increase, but was entirely a matter for the Municipal Council, which has control over the Fire Department, the Government only contributing an annual amount of $12,000. Regarding the salaries of the Deputy Heads of Departments, their salaries ranged as follows:

- Deputy Col. Secretary.—$1,600 a year and extras.
- Dep. Min. of Justice.—$2,000 a year and extras.
- Dep. Min. of Finance.—$1,600 a year and extras.
- Dep. Min. of Customs.—$1,800 a year and extras.
- Dep. Min. of Marine and Fisheries.—$1,500 a year and extras.
- Dep. Min. of Agriculture and Mines.—$1,200 and perquisites on railway Arbitrations.

He said that their positions varied in responsibilities as well as in the amount of work connected with the departments. As to the raising of Civil servants' salaries, he said that no discrimination had been made and that the present administration was only following what their predecessors had done. In his opinion the remarks contained in the Auditor General's special report of Section 33 B. was practically the same for the past 15 years, yet he admitted the enormous expenditures over the estimates that had taken place within the past five years, but that a great deal of the expenditure was due to the fact that some unestimated expenditures in every department of the Government was going up. A somewhat lively discussion took place here between the Prime Minister, Mr. Lloyd and Mr. Coaker, over the public service being underpaid and overmanned, so designated by Mr. Lloyd in the House a few days ago, after which the Prime Minister resumed his seat.

Mr. Lloyd.—With reference to the challenge of the Prime Minister, asking me to name the members of the Civil Service whom I'd dismiss, the Prime Minister had answered that question himself, when he said that he knew a head of a department who came to work at 11 o'clock in the day, spent two hours to dinner, worked one hour in the afternoon, and if he had twice as much to do would still have time on his hands. Therefore, he said, the leader of the Government had found out at least one to dismiss provided he has the courage to do it. He congratulated the Minister of Finance for the pluck he displayed in raising estimates some $88,000 to $90,000 to cover to some extent votes hitherto short-voted. But he had not gone far enough. If he had raised the estimates some $200,000, they would be much nearer the actual expenditure. The Prime Minister had stated that every member of the Government had been working day and night perfecting the estimates, and yet the Finance Minister declared the estimates were of course imperfect, and they had been brought to the House to be perfected, and that the House was the proper body to correct them. On this, Mr. Lloyd observed, that the main correction was to bring up the estimates to what the Government intended to spend, and in this matter the members of the House were helpless. No member had the right to move the increase of any vote.

The Minister of Finance.—That is a matter of opinion.

Mr. Lloyd.—It is no matter of opinion. It is a matter of record. It is a matter of rules laid down by this House and by the House of Commons. No private member can move for an increase in a vote. The Speaker or Chairman would rule such a motion out of order, and properly so. Such a motion must come from a Minister of the Crown, backed by the responsibility of the Government which had to suggest the ways and means for raising money to meet these proposed expenditures. He did not believe in underpaying civil servants. It did not pay. He considered all should be properly paid, from the highest in the land to the humblest fireman or postman. Outside the civil service, the unions had forced up wages to meet increased cost of living, and the Government should be considerate with civil servants, who had no unions. Ministers were underpaid. In 1885 self deny ordinances had reduced their salaries from $2,000 to $2,000 and in spite of increased cost of living, they remained the same. If they were paid as other civil servants they should be receiving $3,000. He thought, too, the Deputies should be paid straight salaries and not have their salaries eked out in a supplementary way, and we shall not then have the spectacle we had that afternoon of the Prime Minister with the estimates before him, not knowing the gross salary of some of the Deputies. He was strongly in favor of their salaries being fixed in the estimates and not have a man drawing a certain amount annually with an uncertain and unknown amount for perquisites. He endorsed the remarks of the leader of the Opposition that Section 33 B. of the Audit Act was being improperly used by the Executive for increases in salaries new salaries and foreseen expenditures. The report of the Auditor General on 33 B. occupied 17 pages in objecting to these illegalities, he did not object to any extraordinary and unforeseen expenditure, as pointed out by the Prime Minister, but he did take objection to the matters of expenditure that the Government went into with their eyes open, and could easily have brought before the House and provided for. He read from the Auditor General's report showing increases in salaries, etc., to the extent of $48,000, made by the Governor-in-Council.

Minister of Finance.—Because it was election year.

Mr. Lloyd.—Now you admit our charge. Continuing, Mr. Lloyd asked what arrangement had been made regarding the Judgeship of the Central District Court.

The Prime Minister.—Judge Conroy has been on leave for two years. He is so ill, it would be dangerous for him to return and resume his duties.

Mr. Lloyd.—Why then have you not made arrangements for his pension and his successor? He did not envy the Prime Minister the effect of his admission that he had no recollection of any application for an increase in salaries being turned down. The Government would be flooded with other Applications. The Auditor General's report showed a dozen pages of such increases.

Mr. Coaker.—He thought that Judge Conroy was an old man, had given good service and should be retired on a substantial pension, and a man appointed in his place. He had not the slightest objection to raising the Governor's salary, but why make a jump of $4,000 of an increase. This was going to cause endless unrest among the underpaid servants of the Government. He asked that provision be made for aged widows, and that their annual fee be at least increased $10 a year. If they could give a $4,000 increase to the Governor, surely they could do this for the aged widows.

The House adjourned at 6.30 until 8.15.

After tea, Mr. Coaker again resumed his speech. He said he had every sympathy for the policemen and the firemen of the city. They were underpaid. The outport policeman's lot was much better than their city brethren. He was prepared to go to his constituents and tell them he advocated increases in the pay of these deserving men. The F.P.E. would never take objection to justice being done to these men. The civil service was overmanned and he gave instances within his own knowledge of outport civil servants who had little or nothing to do. He cited his own experience and said he had been appointed to do the work of two or three men, and yet he found less than an hour a day was sufficient for all his duties when he was a civil servant. He had found it necessary to get out as he found he would be utterly useless for earning his own living at any other occupation, should he continue a life of idleness as a civil servant.

THE FIREMEN'S GRIEVANCE.

Mr. Lloyd.—He asked for a fuller explanation of the relations of the Fire Department to the Government. The estimates showed that the Government paid the salaries and they could appoint or dismiss the men and adjust salaries. Yet the Prime Minister had disclaimed responsibility for an increase in the salaries and the Mayor had ruled recently that it was none of the business of the Council. A clear statement of the position was due to the House, the public and the firemen.

The Prime Minister.—He admitted fuller explanation was in order. He then gave a history of the Fire Department, beginning with its reorganization after the '92 fire. In consequence of the great revenue which had been derived by the Government from material imported to rebuild the city, the Government held that it was fine to the city to build the three trechalls and pay about half the cost of running the fire-department, the City Council making a contribution of some $12,000. He did not think the Government should be called upon to more.

Mr. Moulton.—He objected to any further increase in the estimates for his purpose.

Mr. Coaker.—He thought the situation disclosed was most unsatisfactory. To whom were the firemen to look for an increase. The Government disclaimed responsibility, so did the City Council. Both admitted the merits of the firemen's claim, but between the tools, the firemen felt through and not nothing. There could be no doubt that the Government was responsible, the estimates before them showed it.

Mr. Coaker.—He considered the position unsatisfactory. Why did the Government do nothing. All this talk was ending in nothing being done. Why did not the Minister of Finance add to the estimates and give the firemen their due. He was prepared to support him should he do so.

Mr. Bennett.—He admitted the anomalous position. He thought it unsatisfactory that the firemen should all between the two stools. It was owing in reality a civic matter and when the City got a full charter, they would have the matter entirely in their own hands.

PUBLICATION OF DEBATES.

Later in the evening, Mr. Coaker drew attention to the delay and the general unsatisfactory way the debates were being published. In this he was supported by Mr. Halfyard.

At 11 p.m. the Committee rose and after notice of questions the House adjourned.

Found Corpse In Ice.

Joy Discovered Body While Skating.
Windsor, Ont., Jan. 27.—With limbs protruding far perhaps a foot above the frozen surface, the rest of the body encased in solid ice which completely hid it from view, the corpse of Mrs. Eleanor Baker, aged 45, wife of Charles H. Baker, of Detroit, was discovered in the Lower Detroit River, a short distance out from the shore of Fighting Island, Sunday evening. A boy skating in the vicinity, tripped over what he at first believed was an old stump which had floated down with the ice. As the skater picked himself up, he was horrified to discover that it was a woman's leg against which he had fallen. Further examination showed the body hanging head downward. Coroner Labelle had the remains removed to the Janette morgue, and yesterday the woman's husband identified the body. Mrs. Baker disappeared from her home in Detroit on January 10, Baker stated, and that for some time she had showed signs of mental aberration, due to a proposed surgical operation, and he believed that she jumped into the river while in this condition.

This is an increase of $1 over the 1912 figures. These figures and others show that for the same period 108 fatally injured trolley cars and 132 by wagons.

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.
Flames broke out after a small explosion in the plant of the Valve Oil Company at Edgewater, New Jersey, to-day. Thousands of barrels of oil were destroyed. The loss was about $2,000,000. Approximately a half of the business section of Burnsville was wiped out by fire; in business houses and one dwelling all a prey to the flames. Loss, $100,000.

JIMINEZ, Mexico, Jan. 2.
Uncertain as to when they would be ordered to begin the attack on the Federal army at Torreon, scene of the most important conflict in Mexico, 6,000 rebels are mobilized along the railroad, south of here, to-day, awaiting the coming of General Villa. The Federal strength is estimated by the rebels as from 6,000 soldiers up to 10,000. General Velasco and his soldiers, however, have the advantage in positions, and are said to be supplied with superior artillery.

LONDON, Feb. 2.
John E. Redmond, the Nationalist leader, and Augustine Birrell, Secretary for Ireland, were closeted with Premier Asquith at his official residence this afternoon. It is understood that the Government is determined to make another effort to conciliate Ulster, before heated debates in Parliament stir into flame the admittedly dangerous situation in the northern province of Ireland. It is generally thought that Redmond holds the key to the position. In some quarters it is pointed out that if he is willing to go the same length as Asquith and members of his cabinet, and is ready to make advances in order to placate the north of Ireland, civil war may be avoided. The Unionists say they would not be surprised to see Asquith riding for a fall, before the Home Rule Bill is again reached, in case the Irish leaders should refuse to make the concessions considered necessary. They say that if Redmond should agree to the exclusion of Ulster, even for a term of years, an agreement might be reached.

Healthy and Un-healthy Lighting.

Gas, it may be said, vitiates the atmosphere. True. But it also helps to purify it. Its purifying power is greater than its vitiating power. Electricity does not vitalize, nor does it purify. Hear what three eminent men have said:—

"Much evidence has lately been adduced to show that gas is more useful than the electric light in promoting efficient ventilation of air. It is for this, amongst other reasons, that gas is being frequently substituted for the electric light. The latest example is, perhaps, the Society of Medical Officers of Health, which has recently installed gas on its premises, after experience with the electric light.—Dr. Jamieson B. Hurry.

"He would merely add that no member who had experience of their meeting room under the old conditions could deny the improvement that had taken place since gas had been substituted for the electric light and the new system of heating and ventilation had been installed.—Dr. Reinhold Duffield, before the Society of Medical Officers of Health.

"I have in my mind's eye, at the moment, a hall which, in the old days, was lighted by gas, and in which a large audience could, with comfort, sit through an hour's lecture, or with pleasure through a three hours' dinner, but which, with the march of civilization, had its illumination changed from gas to electricity, the latter been employed with all the latest refinements to effect the lighting under the best conditions, with the result that any large gathering within its walls leads to a state little short of asphyxiation.—Virvan B. Lewis, Professor of Chemistry at the Royal Naval College, Greenwich.—Nov 8/11

On Time.

This truth I'm spreading near and far, by means of loquacious rhyme. "You'd better go without a car than buy a car on time. Who are the folks who fume and fret while their bosoms bleed? They are the ones who go in debt for things they do not need. Their names would fill a catalogue in this debt-ridden clime; you'd better do without a dog than a buy a dog on time. How happy is the man who knows he does not owe a bone! The grocer sorts of griefs and woes are leaving him alone; the "charge it" course he won't indorse, nor owe a man a dime, you'd better do without a horse than buy a horse on time. The man who always pays his way is honored everywhere, and merchants want his trade; and pay that they may have a share; collectors do not dog his heels, nor lawyers haunt his door; he pays for what he buys with wheels composed of silver ore. And such a man enjoys this life, and finds the world sublime; you'd better do without a wife than get a wife on time.

For the Children's Use.

"Can you," I said to my Druggist, "suggest anything for irritable skin in children. Mine are very prone to skin irritation in winter. A new woolen garment, a slight chafe, exposure to cold winds, and they are in trouble at once. Is there anything to relieve it?"

He handed me a cake of soap, saying: "You will find in this what you need. This is Zylex Soap, and is really first rate for the purpose. Try it."

I did so with most satisfactory results too. Zylex Soap (as well as the Ointment which I always keep at hand) has proven its value to me. Zylex Soap is 25c. a cake; the Ointment, 50c. a box. At all druggists. Jan 28, 1914.

ONLY ONE ARREST.—Matters were very quiet in police circles last night and only one arrest for inebriation was made. The offender was up before court to-day.

Nickel's Fine Show

ATTRACTS LARGE AUDIENCES.
The programme given at the Nickel Theatre last evening, was an exceptionally good one, and delighted the hundreds of ladies and gentlemen present. The entertainment opened with a Gaumont graphic which was one of the finest ever seen. The scene showing the troops at the King's birthday celebration has, we think, never been surpassed. "The last performance" a two-reel picture by the Pathe Co., was watched eagerly. It was a thrilling story, ending in the death of the principal character. The other pictures were also of a very high order. Mr. Ralph L. Koch sang the pleasing song, "Dear Heart," and was enthusiastically applauded. This evening the programme will be repeated.

The publisher of the best Farmer's paper in the Maritime Provinces is writing to us states:

"I would say that I do not know of a medicine that has stood the test of time like MINARD'S LINIMENT. It has been an unfailing remedy in our household ever since I can remember, and has outlived dozens of would-be competitors and imitators.

Barqt. Minn'e Arrives

The barquentine Minnie, Captain Wakeham reached port yesterday afternoon after a run of 40 days from Bahia. Splendid weather was met on the way until nearing this coast when heavy seas tossed the vessel about badly. During Sunday's storm the ship lay to and the decks were continually awash. No damage resulted however and the captain and crew are all well.

At The Ringside.

WANTS $10,000 GUARANTEE.
New York, Jan. 25.—Nothing has been settled regarding the proposed battle between Packer McFarland and Mike Gibbons, despite assertions in Chicago that the details have been arranged. According to the latest information McFarland wants a $10,000 guarantee to meet Gibbons for ten rounds. Packer thinks that the bout will draw $80,000, but he doesn't seem willing to accept the usual percentage. It is said that he also insists upon a $15,000 forfeit from Gibbons to guarantee weight, which the latter is unwilling to post.

FITZ TOO OLD.

New York, Jan. 27.—The Supreme Court to-day denied the application of Robert Fitzsimmons, one time heavyweight ring champion of the world, for an injunction restraining the New York Athletic Commission from refusing to sanction his participation in boxing exhibitions in this State. The commission held that Fitzsimmons, who is 51 years old, is too old to again enter the ring. Justice Seabury ruled that the commission was within its rights in making such an order.

JOHNSON-LANGFORD NEXT.

New York, Jan. 26.—Joe Woodman, manager for Sam Langford, in a letter to a friend in this city says that the Johnson-Moran match, scheduled for Paris in June, will never materialize. Woodman insists that Langford will be the champion's next opponent, and that they may come together at the National S. C. London unless the French promoters offer better inducements. If Johnson sticks to Moran, however, Woodman will bring Langford home and try to match him with "Gunboat" Smith.

REPAIRS FINISHED.—Repairs to the S. S. Glenoe, now at the dock pier, will be finished to-morrow. The engines and hull have undergone an extensive overhaul, whilst the interior of the ship has been thoroughly renovated and painted. The ship is now in first class condition and will leave in a few days for Placentia to take up her usual route from there to Port aux Basques.

Very Often it Is Wiser to Spend $10.00 Than to Save $5.00!

When a woman begins saying, "I have been a good wife to him," she had better look less to her morals and more to her clothes. When your husband begins staying out nights, don't go and get a new lawyer; go and get an old hat. And make it alarmingly pretty.

That is one half of the story of foolish savings. Here is the other half. Every woman who has to care for others forgets to care for herself. And she soon ceases to be able to care for anybody. There are more faded metaphors in petticoats than there are in books.

This robbing Peter to pay Paul is a foolish expedient. Happiness is the greatest part of health. Amusement is as necessary as food.

If you haven't new clothes you won't go out. If you don't go out you won't be happy. When you cease to be happy you begin to get sick.

Your husband has his choice right now, of buying new clothes for his own wife or for the doctor's wife.

When you can buy several years of happiness with just a few dollars of cash it seems like wise expenditure.

Now, suppose you make up your mind this instant that you are going to make yourself just as attractive as your pocketbook will allow.

Suppose you turn to the advertising in this paper now and pick out that nice, warm, attractive coat for the winter. And look at some of the hats and dresses and stockings and boots at the same time. Flush yourself up with the joy of living and go the limit for once. Suppose you do spend more than you ought to. Life is to be lived, not looked at.

Turn to the advertising in this paper now. Pick out the most attractive things you can find within the limit of your spending capacity. Picture to yourself how you are going to appear to other people. It doesn't make any difference whether you are sixteen or sixty—you want to be attractive just the same.

Look over every advertisement, large and small. Some little advertiser here may have just the thing you want. And you will come back with a smile on your face that won't wear off. And remember this always:—A bright red petticoat is far more easily forgiven than a dull gray face.

Liquor Leading Russia to Ruin.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 28.—The Council of the Empire was started to-day by a dramatic appeal from Count Witt, the former premier, to stop the consumption of spirits, which he declared was leading Russia to ruin. The Council of the Empire recently was occupied with the discussion of a bill aimed at the suppression of inebriety.

Count Witt contends that his successors at the ministry of finance have misapplied the spirit monopoly which he created. His aim, he said, was to suppress drunkenness. Instead of doing this, they have built an enormous cash reserve for the country's defence, and have spent only a small amount on national education. Count Witt declares that the means of defending the country must not be collected through the cultivation of a national weakness.

Hr. Grace Notes.

The S. S. Baleine arrived from Beil Island on Saturday afternoon bringing a large number of men. Owing to the mines being closed down on account of the sad accident in the forenoon, the men decided to spend Sunday at home.

Assistant Manager McKenzie, who was killed at the Island on Saturday morning, was about 50 years of age. He was very highly thought of by all who knew him, and we were told by some of the workmen that a more courteous and obliging official was not on the works. His pleasant "good morning" or "good evening" will long be remembered by all who knew him.

The rink managers are arranging for a carnival on Wednesday night, some very pretty costumes are being prepared, and without doubt the affair will be very enjoyable. We hope the weather will be favourable.

The L. O. A. Boat Club intend holding a dance in the Orange Hall to-morrow (Tuesday) night.

To-day (Candlemas Day) is rough and tough enough, and few of us will be sorry if the worst of the winter is far enough behind.

Mr. Moses Shute, one of the employees of Mr. W. A. Munn's oil refining factory is confined to his home for the past week suffering from a "gather- ing" on the back of his neck, due no doubt to a heavy cold contracted while at his trying work. Mr. John Beckham another employee is also laid off with a severe cold.

Miss Butt, of Victoria Street School is somewhat better to-day and hopes to be able to resume teaching in a day or two.

Miss Ethel Sheppard, of the Whittman tailoring establishment, secured the prize offered by the Hermann Co. to the most popular young lady. The prize was a beautiful case of silver, and Miss Sheppard is to be congratulated on her good fortune.

The Hermann Company left this morning for Carbonear, where they will hold a number of entertainments.

The Please U. opens again to-night, with some very pretty pictures. We are told that arrangements are being made to secure that interesting series of pictures entitled "Napoleon's Retreat from Moscow." All should see this.

Colonel Rogers, Capt. Pike and Lieut. Rogers visited Carbonear on Friday night and were very pleased with the improvement in the drill, &c., of King George Brigade of that town. The Colonel tells us that Carbonear is taking a great interest in their brigades. The town that helps the lads in this way stands to benefit by turning out good healthy, manly citizens.

CORRESPONDENT.
Harbour Grace, Feb. 2nd, 1914.

The members of the T. A. and B. Society are making active preparations for their annual soiree, which will be held in the theatre flat, which has been kindly given by Mr. J. P. Kiely for the occasion. The soiree will take place on the night of the 17th instant, and the music will be supplied by the T. A. Band, who are now rehearsing new music.

The schr. Nellie Louise is now out 55 days from Pernambuco to this port.

City Council Special Meeting.

A special meeting of the City Council was held yesterday afternoon to investigate the matter for which two officers were recently suspended. The charge preferred was a disregard of the orders issued last May with regard to keeping a diary, reporting the result of each day's work.

The explanation given for their negligence was not satisfactory, but in consideration of their long connection with the Council, it was decided to re-instate them. Before so doing the Board reprimanded them and intimated that a recurrence of such conduct would mean instant dismissal.

Mauling by a Lion

Causes Death of Moving Picture Operator.

Nairobi, British East African Protectorate, Jan. 27.—Mauled by a lion caused the death here to-day of Fritz Schendler, a member of the American moving picture expedition, engaged in taking pictures of wild animals in their natural surroundings in Africa. Schendler with others belonging to the expedition, was attempting to photograph a lion in the jungle on Saturday, when the animal sprang on him and alacerated him so badly that he never rallied.

Sleeping in the cold and silent clay to-day are many men who should be alive and active — an asset to their country, but they allowed cold after-cold to go on un-cared for—result—Death. Many of these colds were contracted through wearing cotton underwear. There is nothing more dangerous in cold climates. After perspiring freely it is like a cold wet rag round the body, and the fleece rolls off in little icy knobs. Throw it away. Wear wool, it absorbs all moisture and lessens the chances of catching cold. Stanfield's, from $1.00 per garment.
