Newfoundland

Agricultural Board.

PUBLIC NOTICE.

The Agricultural Board has had many requests from members of Agricultural Societies and others to import for them approved varieties of seed potatoes for spring planting.

Realizing the necessity for this the coming spring, the Board has, after extensive enquiry from reliable New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island dealers, procured prices for different varieties covering cost of delivery of same at St. John's, and will now undertake to order, for such as may require them any of the varieties on which it has quotations.

The quotations received by the Board are based upon its order being for not less than carload lots. Carload lots, however, may consist of two or more varieties.

The Old Marquis; OR
The Girl of the Cloisters

CHAPTER III.
A GIRL'S SONG.

He threw the bridle to one of the grooms, stopped a moment to pat and thank the mare, as all men who love the horses they ride do, then strode to his room.

He put on evening dress, thinking that perhaps his father might by chance send for him; and knowing, or rather feeling that the marquis would be gratified by seeing that his son had some other suit besides the objectionable one of cords.

Dinner was served for him at one end of a magnificent but dreary dining room, and a couple of footmen, in the dark-blue Farintosh livery, waited in solemn state. It was an admirably selected meal, and well cooked, but poor Lord Edgar found it dull. He thought of his club, with its cheerful dining-room, and nice fellows to talk to, and he sighed; but still he did not regret remaining; not even when he was about to light a cigarette, and Mr. Palmer, who happened to come into the room with an opened bottle of claret, said: "The smoking-room is at the end of the left corridor, my lord," as a gentle and respectful reminder that smoking was not allowed in the dining-room.

"No, thanks, Palmer," said Lord Edgar. "I remember that family vault of a room. I'll go on to the terrace."

"His lordship's hat and coat," said Mr. Palmer, solemnly, to one of the footmen.

"And the goloshes!" said Lord Edgar, with a laugh. "Why, Palmer, it's as warm as the tropics!" and without waiting for the footman to return, he opened the French window and walked out.

The evening was warm and lovely, and as he lighted his cigarette he drew a long breath of keen delight, and glanced up at the closed windows of the marquis' apartments pityingly.

"Jove! how can he bear it!" he murmured. "Not a breath of air, and shut up in that awful stillness! I wonder whether I shall have the gout and be like that! I hope I shall break my neck first!"

He sauntered along the terrace, looking up at the windows of the vast place, which would one day be his, and thinking what a pity it was that they should be so dead and silent, that there should be no faces, no voices behind them, until he came to the abrupt curve which, if he turned it, would bring him to the library windows.

He paused and looked wistfully, longingly; but he hesitated. To all intents and purposes that wing was hers. She herself had said that no one came there; his presence there in the morning had been almost an intrusion.

No, he would not trespass on the precincts of the abode sacred to the divinity in the cream dress! But as he turned the longing increased and became irresistible, and, yielding, he leaped the stone division and walked towards the library.

But nothing rewarded him for his pains. The windows were all shut and lifeless, and half ashamed of himself for an intruder, he was about to retrace his steps when he heard a girl's voice singing.

He knew the voice in an instant, though Lela had certainly not sung that morning. He could not see her, but he knew that she must be standing at one of the windows in the wing beyond the library, in the wing her grandfather and she occupied. In fear and trembling lest she should become aware of his presence and cease, he leaned against the wall and listened.

He could hear every word of the song, every note. It was a simple ballad, such as any young girl might sing, and yet it seemed to him the rarest poetry, the sweetest music.

For years afterward the refrain remained with him to haunt and agonize him.

"You gave me, love, wild rose, and mignonette,
That morning, love, do you forget?
Where in thy love—alas! why should I fret!
Though love is gone, I have the flowers yet!"

Simple, childish words, made by some professional ballad writer, and yet they thrilled him.

Instinctively, drawn toward her by a magic cord, he approached the window, and stood before her in the golden sunset.

She did not start, but just as she had done in the morning, she looked at him with the large, half-sad eyes.

He stood for a moment, just as he had stood in the morning, abashed by the sweet serene purity that seemed to surround her.

"Am I intruding?" he said, looking up; the window just high enough for him to lean his arm on if he had dared. "I heard you sing, and could not help coming to thank you."

He was, you will notice, more fluent and self-possessed than in the morning; he had dined, was in evening dress, and the light was growing dim; those who have been, or are, in love, will understand me.

"I—I—thought I should like to stay for a little while," he answered, rather lamely. "You see, I haven't been to the Abbey for so long; it's three years."

"Yes," she said, smiling at his eagerness. "And then we'd go to the picture galleries; and then to the theater! Have you ever been to a theater?"

"Never," she answered, quietly. "He smiled and looked down at his boots—not muddy now, but shining patent leather."

"How I should like to take you to them all; I think you would enjoy it!"

"Perhaps," she said, quaintly; "after all there is nothing like the country."

"For angels!" he said, impetuously. "She did not catch the words, and leaned forward."

"For—those who like it!" he said, covered with confusion. "Well, but come!" he added, "you don't know much of the country; do you take any walks?"

"I have never been away from the park," she said.

"Grandfather and I walk in the park, sometimes."

"The park!" he said, contemptuously. "Why that is nothing! I mean the real country, the hills and the valleys far away from here."

She shook her head, and one stray curl escaped from its bands and fell across her forehead.

"I have never been away from the park," she said.

"Then— he paused; it was a bold step he was going to take—"then will you come with me?"

"With you? Where?"

"I am going for a drive to-morrow. There is a mail phaeton which nobody uses; it is getting rusty in all its joints. Come with me to-morrow and we will find out the prettiest drives. Don't say no!"

She looked at him, not fearfully, as she should have done, but doubtfully. "I will ask grandpapa," she said.

"If he says I may come, I will." Lord Edgar was fain to be content with that; he knew that no amount of pressing would get her beyond that, and he relapsed into silence.

Suddenly she extended a white hand, and pointed to the sky. "Did you see that?"

"What?" he demanded, staring blankly at the heavens.

"That star! It was a falling one. I saw it fall. If grandpapa were here he would say it was unlucky."

"Would he? Why?" demanded Lord Edgar.

"Because—are you laughing?"

"Laughing!" he responded, drawing nearer the window. "Look at me!"

"I thought you were laughing! Grandpapa gets all his magic out of an old book in the library. And he says that if two persons see a falling star—see it when it begins to fall—that it means ill-luck for both of them. Look!" she exclaimed, suddenly laying her hand on his coat sleeve.

Lord Edgar swung round, and followed with his eyes the indication of her finger, and was in time to see a star fall through the evening sky.

"I saw that one. Well?"

"Did you? Well, then, you and I have seen our fate."

"Our fate?" he repeated, gazing up at her as if she were a prophet in her cream dress.

She nodded.

"Yes, I think grandpapa half believes in it, nonsense though it is."

"I hope," he says, "that he will take it that it is our fate to go for a drive together to-morrow!"

She smiled down at him, and slowly pulled a leaf from the stem of the rose which she had taken up from the window sill.

"That would be a very pleasant fate," she said, softly.

"Oh, you must come!" he said, eagerly. "Where shall we go?"

"Hush!" she put up her finger to her lips. "You are waking grandpapa; he is awake now. I must go. Good-night, Lord Edgar!"

"Good-night!" he said, and put up his hand. She hesitated a moment, perhaps suddenly reminded, by pronouncing his name, of the social distance between them; then she slowly extended her hand and let him take it.

looked quite Lord Fane, the next Marquis of Farintosh.

Possibly—who shall undertake to read a young girl's mind—she was considering how vastly dress improves even a man. But anyhow, she was silent for the space of a minute, then she said with a start, as she awoke from her reverie:

"My song? Ah, yes, I was singing to grandpapa; but he has gone to sleep. It is his favorite song."

"I don't wonder at that!" he said. She looked at him.

"It is a silly little song," she said, after a pause, "but he likes it because it is old-fashioned. I found it in one of the old music books."

"If you could find some more!" he said, fervently. Then he looked at his cigar. "I beg your pardon—I forgot," and he raised his hand.

"Don't, please," she said, simply. "I like to see the smoke rising against the sky. And you have not gone?"

"Gone? No," he answered. She smiled, and leaned forward to pick a rose that grew near the window.

"They told grandpapa that you were going to-night."

"Then they were wrong," he said, in his curt fashion. "I didn't mean going, and I don't, and here I am."

In his defiance of the popular idea of his departure, he spoke loudly; she looked within the room, half nervously, then smiled at him.

"Grandpapa is asleep," she explained. "He always goes to sleep when I sing to him."

Lord Edgar came closer and looked into the room.

It was a small room comfortably furnished; in an easy chair the librarian sat locked in the arms of slumber.

"Don't be afraid," he said, lowering his voice. "I shall not wake him. And you thought I had gone? Well, I was going?"

"Yes," she said, seriously, "and why didn't you?"

He looked down at his cigar for a moment; should he tell her that the hope of seeing her again kept him? No, he would not.

"I—I—thought I should like to stay for a little while," he answered, rather lamely. "You see, I haven't been to the Abbey for so long; it's three years."

"Yes," she said again, looking at him with the calm, serene eyes.

"Three years," he repeated, for the sake of saying something. "It is a long time, isn't it? If I go, I suppose I shouldn't come back again for another three!"

"Yes!" she said, once more; and he fancied—it could only be fancy, of course—that this time there was a touch of sadness in the little word.

He sighed and echoed her "Yes." She looked at him thoughtfully for a moment, then she said:

"Where do you go when you leave here?"

"Oh, to London!" he said. "You have been to London?"

She shook her head.

"No, I have not."

He laughed softly, remembering the sleeping librarian.

"Not! H'm. I should like to show it to you! After all, it is a wonderful place! Yes, I should like to show it to you! We would go—let me see, where should we go?" he paused.

She leaned forward, looking at him. There was a large diamond in his shirt front, and her eyes wandered from it to his face with sweet, innocent intentness.

"Well, we'd go to the Zoological Gardens! You'd see all the animals there."

Allies May Advance Into Germany.

Revolutionists Paying Big Wages-- About to Abandon Russia-- Mine Disaster in Colorado.

MARSHAL FOCH'S AUTHORITY.
 LONDON, March 31. The Evening News says it understands that reliable information has been received in London that in case the German delegates refuse to sign the peace treaty, Marshal Foch has authority to order a general advance of the Allied armies along the Rhine.

REIGN OF LAW AND ORDER UNDISTURBED.
 BUDAPEST, March 30. The plunge of Budapest into anti-capitalism continues with feverish effect. To show that the reign of law and order is undisturbed the city is outwardly quiet since the first few days in which there was much looting, especially of jewelry shops. As a result of the looting it is reported 1,506 persons were executed by the new regime, their communistic ideas apparently being too violent.

CZECHS CAPTURE TOWNS.
 BUDAPEST, March 30. The town of Kaschau and several other ports in Southern Slovakia have been captured by Czechs, who are fighting the Hungarian Communists. German colonists in Western Hungary and Transylvania are hostile to the Communists and are making an effort to gain their independence.

ALSACE'S GRATITUDE TO FRANCE.
 STRASBURG, March 31. A few days after the entry of the French troops into Alsace, a committee was formed to raise money to assist the devastated Northern Provinces of France. The committee today forwarded 1,000,000 francs to President Poincare as a testimony of the gratitude of Alsace to France.

NOT BONA FIDE.
 LONDON, March 31. The publication by the Daily Herald, the new labor newspaper, of a report that those in power in Russia had made comprehensive peace proposals to the Allied and associated Powers, caused no stir in diplomatic circles in London today. Those in a position to speak authoritatively on Russian affairs, say that if such new proposals were made they will be doubtless considered as not being bona fide as have been other proposals or feelers put forth by Premier Lenin.

WAGES IN BUDAPEST.
 VIENNA, March 31. The daily wages of laborers in Budapest have been fixed at twenty crowns for men, twenty-five for women, and twenty for children. The normal exchange value of the crown is twenty cents. Thousands of lawyers, small business men and officials are out of employment as a result of the revolution, and are applying for work as laborers.

RETURN OF CANADIANS.
 OTTAWA, March 31. In the House of Commons today, in reply to a question by Mr. LaPointe, of Kamouraska, Minister of Militia, Mr. Meuburn said that arrangements had been made for the return of the Siberian Expeditionary Forces. The date is being kept secret on the request of the British Government.

GAS EXPLOSION.
 TRINIDAD, Colorado, Mar. 31. Thirteen men are reported entombed in the Empire Mine of the Empire Coal Co., near Aguilas, Colorado, which was wrecked by an explosion of gas this morning.

RETURNS CHEQUE.
 OTTAWA, March 31. Sir Thomas White intimated that Sir Charles Fitzpatrick had sent him

AGAINST GOVT. TERMS.
 CARDIFF, Wales, March 31. At a conference of the South Wales miners today, a resolution was adopted advising the Miners' Federation to reject the Government's terms of wages and working conditions for the coal miners, based on the recent report of the coal commission, of which Justice Sir John Sankey is chairman.

REACHED A DECISION.
 LONDON, March 31. The department of the German Foreign Office having charge of the peace negotiations, has reached a decision as to its attitude towards the negotiations, a German wireless message says. The department has decided the German Government should act only in accordance with President Wilson's fourteen points.

Unprofessional Men As Inventors.
 That so many inventions have been made by men not of the profession, nor previously engaged in engineering work, seems convincing proof that the class of mind best suited for research and discovery differs largely and fundamentally from that which in other men succeeds in directing successfully all kinds of work, men and other operations. Hence the differentiation indicated above. Brahm was a blacksmith and maker of locks; George Stephenson was a fireman; "Screw-propeller" Smith, the man who patented a good workable propeller and got the Archimedes built was a farmer; Samuel Hall was in the lace trade; Goldsworth Gurney a doctor. The inventor who exhibited an internal-combustion engine a hundred years ago at Cambridge was a parson, as was also Ramus, the inventor of the hydroplane ship; James Watt was an optical-instrument maker; the inventor of the chronometer, and winner of the King's prize for it, was a gardener; "Increasing-pitch" Woodcroft was a librarian; Bessemer was an artist; Armstrong a lawyer; and even in our own days we have had very many valuable additions made to our knowledge by men outside the profession, which all goes to show how much more liberal we are than the members of those other professions who would monopolize that adjective for their own.

Heavy Storm.
 A very heavy storm raged yesterday on the West Coast, but moderated somewhat last night. The s.s. Kyle which has been jammed for some days in Sydney tight, was freed by the sea occasioned by the gale, breaking up the ice barrier. The ship went back to North Sydney.

Why Raise Your Hat?
 Many of the customs in everyday life have long since lost their real purpose. Take, for instance, the practice of shaking hands. When two foes were making a truce it was deemed necessary to guard against treachery. So they held each the weapon-hand of the other. Then gradually this became the mode of greeting friends, as they were friends when a truce was declared.
 Why does a gentleman raise his hat on greeting a lady friend? In the strenuous life of long ago, when men wore armour, the helmet was only doffed in the presence of friends. Hence the raising of the hat is a complimentary sign of the wearer's regard.
 Courtesy is not now so popular as it was years ago. Then the village dame "bobbed" in greeting to the squire's lady, but the rising generation is above this. The curtsy is a relic of the time when women went on the knee to beg mercy from men of rank, and is therefore a tacit acknowledgment of inferiority.
Freak Strikes.
 Two examples of freak strikes in New Zealand were mentioned in the course of a recent speech by Mr. F. M. B. Fisher, for some time Minister of Customs and Imports in that colony.
 On one occasion, he said, the crew of a boat struck because in the articles it was provided that Worcester sauce should be served. As a matter of fact, the supply ran short and another brand was supplied with the result that the men declined to take the vessel out of the dock.
New Ship's Propeller.
 To increase the efficiency of the ship's propeller, it is suggested by an inventor to place a smaller propeller, but with a steeper pitch, in front of the usual propeller, and on the same shaft. The smaller radius of the auxiliary screw compensates for the greater pitch, reducing the resistance to the screw.
 The inventor of this double propeller claims that the auxiliary screw causes a better utilization of the engine's power. The small screw placed in front of the usual propeller acts upon the water near the shaft, where the larger screw exerts but little power. He contends that the addition of the smaller screw will not increase the burden placed upon the engine of the ship, and that, with the same motive force it will add from 25 to 30 per cent. to the driving power of the propeller.
 There is no doubt that the addition of another screw of greater pitch would increase the driving power of the propeller a great deal, but it is by no means clear how this can be produced without adding to the burden of the ship's engines.--Popular Science Monthly.

The Price of Fat.

With the arrival of the s.s. Sable I on Sunday, the price of fat was, by arrangement, fixed yesterday at the rates already announced in the Telegram, viz., $8 and the rise for young seals, and $6 for old. Last year, it will be remembered, the arrival of the first sealer was the signal for a big burst on the part of the Government papers, each one endeavouring to outdo the other in their instructions to the sealing crews to hold back their shares for the bigger offer. Even before the feet sailed the "organ" had fixed the minimum price. What a difference this year. No sealers' meetings; no price fixing; no enthusiastic send off; no thronging crowds blocking Duckworth Street; nothing but a few brief words of good bye, covering a eulogy on certain legislation passed by the Government of Sir Edward Morris, by which the crews were ensured better treatment and food than they had enjoyed in former years. Neither the Prime Minister, nor the W. P. was at home to accord the hand shake of farewell to each individual sealer. The former was in Europe giving the benefit of his "sixteen months' education in statesmanship" to the Peace Conference, and the latter was also across the pond gathering information for the promised book. There was no need, consequently for the "silent doctor" to, as was said of him by our political foe, "fumigate his office" though as a matter of fact we have since learned that on the historic occasion referred to, the sealers who called on the member for Trinity at that time, were compelled to fumigate themselves after the visit.

And equally as there were no organized plurgies on the departure of the fleet, this year and no headlines, so the absence of the same today is particularly noticeable. The "organ" devotes a couple of inches to the price, and, as if in apology for its brevity, adds to it a two line "Later," that negotiations are still going on in an endeavour to get $9. Rather a climb down, eh? friend. The appointment of the new councillors to the Upper House is of more importance now than the price of fat. And we notice that the said councillors are not taken from the ranks of the fishermen, neither are they representatives of the outports. Straws show which way the wind blows, and all the evidence now points to a complete renunciation of the policy of "Saum Culque" in its broadest acceptance, by the former exponents of "to every man his own."

Outport Health Report.

Dr. Bethune, of St. George's, wired to town yesterday reporting six more cases of influenza at that place. Dr. Gill, of Brigus, wired that four more cases of smallpox had occurred at Clarke's Beach.

"Standard" Sarcasm.

Touching the attempted sarcasm of our esteemed contemporary, the Harbinger Grace Standard, which reproaches us for calling attention to the practice of outsiders addressing letters to St. John's, Canada, we might state for the benefit of our sealers etc. that we used St. John's in this instance merely as an illustration. We could equally have used Harbor Grace, Carbonear, Grand Bay, Channel, Bonavista, or any other town. The antagonism between the outports and the capital is not by any means so strong as the Standard would have us believe. Evidently our e.c. is in an "outports" condition of mind.

Hospital Report.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—The Visiting Committee of the Newfoundland War Contingent Association report condition of the following men in hospital:
Progressing Favourably.
No. 5492—Private Samuel Anthony, 429—Private Henry Pearcey, 4278—Private W. J. Shaw.
Yours faithfully,
J. R. BENNETT,
Minister of Militia.

When you want something in a hurry for tea, go to ELLIS—Head Cheese, Ox Tongue, Baked Ham, Cooked Corned Beef, Bologna Sausage.

From S. S. Diana.

Reports from the s.s. Diana say that there are fifteen of the crew sick, and a few others ailing, although no new cases were reported yesterday. The ship was 8 or 10 miles off Cape Spear this morning, and was jammed in the ice, thereby unable to get into port. Dr. Campbell has instructed Mr. Oscar Howell, the ship's doctor how to treat the infection, which is declared to be the "flu," and arrangements have been made to send the sufferers to the Fever Hospital upon arrival, and to exercise due precautions to prevent spreading of the sickness. No reports have as yet been received of any deaths, it is quite reasonable to assume that none has yet occurred or the messages would have stated so.

Fishery Reports.

Fishery reports from centres on the South West coast are not nearly as bright as formerly. The fish has evidently struck off from the land, although in one instance at Rose Blanche, the fish was still plentiful. The inclement weather during the latter part of March hampered the movements of the fishermen considerably, and affected largely the catch. The catch to date as compared from the totals given by Rose Blanche, Channel and LaPole districts is about 25,500 qts.

Making Preparations.

The boys and girls of town must have wished the early Daylight bill in force to let them up to see the carts this morning at six to six-thirty dash along the streets on their way to the Aeroplano site at Harbor Grace East—not "Caplin Cove" or "Bear's Cove," if you please—familiar old names but hardly suitable to new conditions as misleading for that part of Harbor Grace so picturesque and aeroplano. Messrs. Reid and O'Driscoll returned here on Monday to finalise arrangements. The only property required we hear of as not yet quite arranged for is that on which Mrs. High Simmonds resides. The work of preparing the ground for the flight began this morning. About 80 men are at work taking down the 400 ft. wall of Mr. Squires, and 30 carmen are assisting in the work and are carting the stone to distance away. More men will be put on likely a little later. There are two or three other walls of about the same length to be removed besides the one of Mr. Squires. Mr. George Walters one of the Reid men versed in constructive work is in charge of the work of removal of obstacles level, and other necessary preliminaries.—Hr. Grace Standard.

McMurdo's Store News.

TUESDAY, April 1, 1919.
Worms are often troublesome to children especially in Spring, and some reliable remedy is necessary. One of the best and most valuable medicines for worms is our Worm Syrup which is pleasant to take, gentle but sufficient in action, and will expel all the kinds of worms which are usually found in children. Price 35c. a bottle.
Gentle Syrup of Tar and Cod Liver Oil has borne the test of two winters in this climate as a cough remedy of great value. It is not a cough mixture but a tonic, and being easy to take can be used by all. Price 50c. a bottle.

Supreme Court.

The Crown vs. The Star Candy Co.
The Supreme Court opened to-day for the spring session, the full bench being present.
The Star Candy Co. appealed from the decision of Judge Morris given in the Magistrate's Court in December. Mr. A. B. Morin, K.C., and Mr. C. E. Hunt were engaged on the case. Court still sitting at press hour.

More Smallpox.

Messages to the Health Department report a few cases of smallpox at Chimney Cove, Bonne Bay, and Dr. Greene, from Bonne Bay, have not attended the patients. Some cases of sickness have also been reported from Whitbourne. It is not definitely known yet whether the disease is smallpox or not.

Sable I. Discharging.

The s.s. Sable I. will finish discharging her seals this evening. Yesterday the average weight of the seals discharged was 94 lbs., while the hoods averaged 46 and 160 lbs. respectively for young and old.

Reids' Boats.

Ethie not reported since leaving Placentia on the 29th.
Gloucester leaving Placentia after arrival of to-day's train.
A marconigram from the s.s. Sagona at 6 p.m. yesterday reported 8 miles west Placentia, dense fog, unable to approach land; engines working slowly.

Tasker Educational Concert.

The Blue Room of the Masonic Temple was the scene of a large and representative gathering of music lovers last night, when a most appreciative audience assembled to hear an exposition of the Divine Art, conducted by Mr. F. J. King. All the Masonic mysteries had been carefully concealed, and there was nothing at all visible by which even one secret of the craft could be obtained and taken away. The uninitiated chiefly ladies.

The programme was most choicely selected and magnificently rendered, the performing artists being the last word in the exposition of the instrumental and vocal items set down. Among the distinguished company was His Excellency the Governor who was attended by Hon. R. Watson; M. Suzor, French Consul; Hon. Tasker Cook, Norwegian Consul, and many other prominent in social circles. The District Grand Master for England, Hon. J. A. Clift, K.C., was Chairman, and in his usual felicitous manner welcomed the gathering. One, who is non-musical, fears to make any reference whatever to the various renditions, but it was evident that the double quartette of male voices, carried off the honors of the evening, though the mixed quartette ran them a close second. The recitation by Miss F. Curtis was a gem of elocution, and of this young lady has the faculty of being pathetic and witty in the same breath. The songs by Capt. Campbell were received with the customary applause and "The Pipes of Pan" by Mrs. Riggs evoked a number of encores. The Instrumental Trio, Piano, Organ and Cello by Mrs. Alec Mews, Messrs. Arthur and Alec Mews was most enthusiastically encored, as was the double quartette in both items. Altogether the concert was without doubt the musical treat of the season, and promoters, directors and performers deserve all the encomiums and applause which their eminent services have evoked. The programme is appended.

Organ solo—Mr. A. Mews, C.M.G.
Duet—"Kingfisher Blue," A. Woodford-Tenders; Mrs. Warren and Mr. Ruggles.
Song—"Vesti la Quibba (Pagliacci) Leoncavallo; Capt. Campbell.
Trio, organ, piano and cello—Mrs. Mews, Messrs. A. and A. Mews.
French songs, Massenet; Madame Suzor.
Double quartette—"The Comrades," A. Adam; Song of Hope; Messrs. Trappell, Cornick, Seymour, Macintosh, Ruggles, Bastow, Somerville, Martin.
Recitation—"Angel's Wickedness," M. Correll; Miss P. Curtis.
Solo—"The Trumpeter," Mr. Carl Trappell.
Song—"The Pipes of Pan," Mrs. Riggs.
Piano solo—Mr. Gordon Christian.
Quartet—"Queen of the Night," Smart; Mesdames Ruggles and Warren, Messrs. Ruggles and Trappell.
Songs (a) "Because," Guy d'Harcourt; (b) "Fair House of Joy," Capt. Campbell.
Organ solo—Mr. A. Mews, C. M. G.
Double quartette—"The Frog," E. Newton.
"God Save the King."

Praises Service.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—Your editorial in last night's Telegram re coastal contract, has my heartiest support, and I believe the support of the public generally. Your remarks on the Bowring service agree exactly with my travelling experience. The Bowring coastal boats are the best equipped and give the most efficient service, and are preferred by the travelling public to any other of our coastal boats. I write now as one having a knowledge of the travelling facilities of our country, spending about eight months of every year travelling around the island, and I do not think the public should be deprived of this splendid service of the Bowring boats. I make no complaint of any of our coastal boats. I hold no retainer for the Bowring coastal Co., or any other steamboat Co.; I write solely in the interest of the travelling public.
Yours truly,
TRAVELLER.

Up to the "Advocate."

The Advocate has recently begun a campaign for "a million dollars for good roads."

Wait indefinitely for a train from Lewisporte.
A similar good road from Lewisporte to Beaverton or Boyds Cove would be of inestimable value to the residents of Fogo, Change Islands and Herring Neck.
Similarly, imagine what a benefit it would be to our friends at Halls Bay if there were a good road from there to Millertown Junction. Put another road from thence to Balger, and the whole bay would be linked by good roads. The result would be a competition which would topple excessive railway rates.
But our million dollars is already outlined. Not one but two or three million dollars thus spent would be worth five times as much as if spent on railways.
For, get this great truth in your head, the main road is FREE TO ALL; whereas the railway is not.
If this is what our scheme means brother Advocate, me for it; but if you mean frittering away a million dollars on existing roads, just watch us grab the brakes and heave them on hard.—Twillingate Sun.

AVIA? The Possibilities In Newfound

(Specially Written for the Evening Telegram)
Newfoundland is eminently suited for the use of aircraft. One of the most important industries in this country is undoubtedly the sealfishery. The boats go out, and, in many cases, become jammed in the ice and cause days of valuable time and cause the owners much financial loss. The boats, on arriving at the icefields, are largely a matter of luck. Were the owners of the sealing boats to cooperate in the purchase of a small aeroplane and obtain the services of a good pilot, this wastage in both time and money would be reduced to a minimum, if not altogether eliminated. The machine could leave here at daylight in the morning, and return in five or six hours, giving the owners a map of the channels through the ice, with the position of seals and the quantity seen at each point. When the sealing steamers had cleaned up one area, another similar trip could be made by the plane and the information repeated. Loss of time would be experienced, a modern aeroplane can easily be fitted with wireless at a very small expense, and constant communication between the pilot of the machine and the skippers of the different boats could be made.
Were this scheme to be tried both by the sealers and whalers, the machine would undoubtedly pay for itself on the first voyage.
In the winter months of this Island many outports are completely isolated. Mails, a most important item, could be delivered without fail on 90 per cent. of the days throughout the year. In the case of sickness the timely arrival of a doctor would save not only a valuable life to the country. The most suitable machine for inland work would be of an amphibious type. Dotted throughout with water, in the form of ponds and deeply penetrating, bays the land, as it would be ideal for the successful operation of those services. During the winter months the machine could be fitted with skis. These would enable the plane to land on any moderately sized sheet of ice. During the summer, the skis could be replaced by an under-carriage combining both skis and wheels. This arrangement could make it possible to alight on the land or water.

In Memoriam.

MRS JOSEPH MILLER.
It is with deepest regret we learn the passing of one widely known and very dearly loved, in the person of Mrs. Joseph Miller of Topsail, which occurred at the home of her daughter, Mrs. W. H. Strong, 93 Springdale St., St. John's, on March 29th. The circumstances were peculiarly sad owing to the fact that the deceased lady had been at her daughter's home for three days, when she was stricken with the severe heart trouble which ended so fatally. Since the death of her only son, eleven years ago, those who loved her saw that, in spite of her apparent cheerfulness, the blight of sorrow never lifted from her heart, and this so greatly impaired her health that she was a semi-invalid for some years past. Recently a growing tendency to blindness caused her to go to town for special treatment, with the result as stated above. At Topsail her death has caused a great blank in many hearts, particularly in the home that was to her sweet and sacred as a shrine. Here her home-keeping soul loved and moved and had its being, and the duties of wifehood and motherhood were deemed her greatest privilege. Though she rarely moved outside, her friends and strangers alike came to her in her home, and were greeted with that grace of welcome which made her hospitality almost proverbial throughout the land. She possessed to a marked degree the faculty of friendship. Hers was the deeply sympathetic soul; the mother-heart; the open hand. As one stood beside the bed it was hard to realize that the warm heart was stilled forever, and her secret charities were tenderly recalled by many who came to funeral here for the last time. The funeral was conducted by the Rev. James Nurse, took place at covered on Saturday afternoon. Her beautiful floral tributes, the handsome casket which cradled her sweet sleeping was borne to the Hill's churchyard on the hill, followed by a vast throng of those who knew and loved her in her life. There, we hope, she will arise on the Day of Resurrection "fresh as God and beautiful as the morning."
Mrs. Miller was the youngest daughter of the late James Allen for many years the beloved village school-master of Topsail. Of her eleven children, two others now survive, viz: Mrs. Elizabeth of St. John's, and Mrs. Smith of Topsail. The church and the community will miss her early, for although not active in the world outside the home, her sympathy and ready help were always assured in the

The Possibilities of Aircraft In Newfoundland.

ARTICLE III.

(Specially Written for the Telegram.)

Newfoundland is eminently suited to the use of aircraft. One of the important industries in this country is undoubtedly the seal-fishing. The boats go out, and in many cases become jammed in the ice and days of valuable time and cause the owners much financial loss. On arriving at the icefields it is a matter of luck. Were the sealers of the sealing boats to consider the purchase of a small airplane and obtain the services of a good pilot, this wastage in both time and money would be reduced to a minimum. If not altogether eliminated, the machine could leave here at daylight in the morning, and return in five or six hours, giving the sealers a map of the channels through the ice, with the position of seals and the quantity seen at each place. When the sealing steamer had cleaned up one area, another trip could be made by the airplane and the information repeated. Less time would be experienced, and a modern aeroplane can easily be operated with wireless at a very small expense, and constant communication between the pilot of the machine and the skippers of the different boats could be made.

Were this scheme to be tried both by the sealers and whalers, the machine would undoubtedly pay for itself on the first voyage. In the winter months of this Island many outports are completely isolated. Mails, a most important item, could be delivered without fail on 90 per cent of the days throughout the year. In the case of sickness the speedy arrival of a doctor would save many a valuable life to the country. The most suitable machine for island work would be of an amphibious type. Dotted throughout the water, in the form of ponds and deeply penetrating, bays the land, as it would be ideal for the successful operation of these services. During the winter months the machine could be fitted with skis. Those words are the plane to land on any modicum of snow or sheet of ice. During the summer, the skis could be replaced by an under-carriage combining both wheels and wheels. This arrangement would make it possible to alight on either land or water.

To-day, no very explicit maps of the country are to be obtained. By means of an aeroplane any portion of the country could be brought within two or three hours' distance of St. John's. Much valuable information in regard to its resources, now lacking, could without doubt be easily obtained. Many districts now unknown might be found to be eminently suitable for settlers. To-day that country lies practically waste.

The distance from Sydney to St. John's is about 650 miles by rail and less by water. This could be covered by means of an aeroplane, in a few hours. An average machine could, without difficulty, transport from 3,000 to 3,500 letters from Sydney to here and return with an equal quantity the next day. To business men the reliability and the constant communication, now so frequently interrupted, would largely appeal. Much money spent on elaborate cables could be saved. That, together with the advantage of being able to write a full and explicit letter, alone would make an assured success of such a project. Carrying a full load, an extra charge of ten cents per ounce over the regular postal rates would show an excellent working profit.

These few items will show to your readers the improvements that could be made and the conveniences which would exist, had some small company started a service of this nature on this Island. Commercialism of the air must come. It has already come to a very large extent in other countries, and Newfoundland must not refuse to be left behind in the matter. The first people to take it up to-day will reap to-morrow's benefits. Much in opposition has been said of commercial aviation. Much in opposition was said of aviation itself in its infancy. Those people who foresaw years ago, the possibilities of aviation are to-day reaping the benefits of their foresight. The same will apply to commercial work.

Cannot our Island help itself to some of the great benefits to be derived? To-day you are the centre of the aviation world. Your business men could regain Newfoundland in that position, if they so desired. Are they willing to try and do it?

will not take now—neither will promises. We have been fed on them quite long enough. Mr. Coaker's underdog have got wise to that. We notice our request to have the Glencoe call regularly both ways, has been ignored by Reid and the Govt. and we shall certainly resent this at the next election, 145 votes may mean quite a lot to a candidate.

Thanking you for space.
Yours truly,

Girls Thicken and Beautify Your Hair and Stop Dandruff.

Try this! Your hair gets wavy, glossy and abundant at once.

To be possessed of a head of heavy, beautiful hair; soft, lustrous, fluffy, wavy and free from dandruff is merely a matter of using a little Danderine. It is easy and inexpensive to have nice, soft hair and lots of it. Just get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine now—all drug stores recommend it—apply a little as directed and within ten minutes there will be an appearance of abundance; freshness, fluffiness and an incomparable gloss and lustre, and try as you will you cannot find a trace of dandruff or falling hair; but your real surprise will be after about two weeks' use, when you will see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—sprouting out all over your scalp—Danderine is, we believe, the only sure hair grower; destroyer of dandruff and cures for itchy scalp and it never fails to stop falling hair at once.

If you want to prove how pretty and soft your hair really is, moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair—taking one small strand at a time. Your hair will be soft, glossy and beautiful in just a few moments—a delightful surprise awaits everyone who tries this.

A Voice From the Interior.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir:—Re an item appearing in your paper bearing date March 25th signed "Mayo," in reference to the latest imposition by the Imperial Tobacco Trust or Combine of 25 per cent on tobacco the evening solace of and sundry as it reaches preacher or post, sailor and clerk—so if all will join and apply the remedy, which to my mind would stop this kind of thing, viz. Buy no Imperial Tobacco for a month. The Imperial Tobacco Co. could not afford to let this go on very long. I always contend that remedies for such actions as the above by a firm, trust or combine are always in the hands of the people who have shown that they can do without strong liquor. It would be a grand thing to prove that they can do without tobacco for a month. "Use Substitutes." The Imperial Tobacco Co or Trust, wouldn't make very large dividends while the people kept this up. Prevention is better than cure. Bolshevism is getting busy on the quiet. Unionism does the trick. Remember men are not dead, but sleepeth. No roads to rush troops in this country.

Wretched Mail Service.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir:—Will you kindly allow me space in your paper to say that the inhabitants of here and Otter's Point have every reason to feel proud of the magnificent mail and freight service we now get from the S.S. Glencoe. We are now about three weeks without any mail and freight, as this is the only boat calling there, and not only are we compelled to tolerate this service but we also have to put up with the wretched system of her calling alternately and then cannot rely on that. This, I consider, is a great injustice, when we know that several less important places have the Fortis and Glencoe calling regularly while we had to put up with this system of alternate calling. When the Glencoe used to make the trip every 7 days in Capt. Drake's time, it was then very inconvenient, but now we would rather expect the blue hills of Grand Bruit to topple from their base than expect the Glencoe to make that time.

I may say that while the S.S. Fogota was on the same route for eight months, Capt. Dalton called regularly both ways, which was greatly appreciated by the public, and he could make the round trip in from 9 to 10 days, but as soon as the great palatial liner Glencoe is put on the route we have to put up with the old rot of alternately calling.

Also I understand while the Fogota called regularly, the mail courier service from La Poile was stopped and also the couriers pay, consequently we have now to wait return of the Glencoe from west before getting our mails. We have no telegraph office here and passengers are obliged to unbundle in a being bundled into boats in the middle of the night and put ashore in one remote place La Poile, and in all kinds of weather. However, the inhabitants of here and vicinity are aware that the next polling day is drawing near, and the hand shaking time, but that bluff

Indian Island Notes.

No little excitement was caused here last week when one of our young men coming from the lumber camps and rushing into the first house he came to told the occupants that he had been chased all the way from Gander Bay by a fox or wolf, and that the fox or wolf was just then a little distance off on the ice. A cry was soon raised, and quite a number of men, armed with guns, made after it, and chased the poor animal all the way across the harbor and Eastern Cove marsh until it took shelter in a grove of trees, when he and behold they found out that it was a dog. So the supposed valuable chase was abandoned.

Mr. L. Sheppard fell from his store gallery last week and cut himself quite a bit about the head and hand. The wonder is that the man was not killed, the distance of the fall being ten feet.

Messrs. Abbott and West are visiting this place in the interest of the Fishermen's Union. Several meetings have been held, but it remains to be seen whether the fishermen will invest or not in the Union Stores.

Mr. Arch Holmes, a returned soldier, is spending a few days with his friends here, and is looking well after his experience at the front.

On March 18th, the Methodists held their annual missionary meeting in Perry's Island Church, the deputation consisting of Revs. Wilkinson, Cotton and Clark. Although the weather was all that could be desired, the gathering was small. The discourses were helpful and inspiring, and our men folk missed much by not being present.

Some Kinds of Borrowings.

By RUTH CAMERON.

Every once in awhile I get a letter packed so full of human experience that the only thing I can do is to print it bodily. Below is one such:

"My dear Miss Cameron: Will you not say something on the subject of borrowing?"

"It is a pleasure to loan things to my neighbors and a great convenience to have neighbors to whom one can loan, but—there is the neighbor who is away, and you pay her laundry bill as a favour; she asks for your vacuum cleaner, and you loan it with such pleasure, but you have to go after it, days afterward, if you need it yourself. Then the woman who asks you to talk for an hour, and the woman who comes in and stays to chat when you are washing—stays for hours at a time. (Don't misunderstand, I am sociable and love to talk with them but there is a time for everything.)

A Profitable Transaction.

"You arrange to go to the matinee with a friend. She asks you to order the tickets when you are downtown. You are perfectly willing, but you always have to pay for them yourself. You ask your neighbor to change a half dollar, and she only gives you a quarter. She says it is all she has. She keeps your half dollar, though so she was a profitable matter for her. Dozens of things like this happen between neighbors. People do that one likes, too.

Mothers Who Need Spanking.

"While I am on a tirade, I will mention something else. (Now you think I am childless myself and see only one side, I will tell you I have several children and love children dearly.) But I feel that those mothers need spanking. They allow their children to come in and scratch the phonograph records, tear up treasured records, tear up treasured pictures, books, etc. As soon as they get in the house, they commence asking for something to eat. If you give it to them, they drop it all over your floor and leave spots, and you are expected to stand it smilingly or else you are a crank. They dash into your house, upstairs, anywhere, with mud and snow on their feet. If she does it doesn't seem to trouble her. I don't blame the children, they can't do any better unless they are taught. I don't make any protest because I like my neighbors and would rather stand these things than to lose their friendship.

Going A Little Too Far.

"It is a pleasure to loan things if they are returned, but when one pays a two dollar laundry bill for a neighbor, and she neglects to pay you, it seems to me that is going a little too far. One hates to ask for it, you know, and I think perhaps it will do some good if you will write on this subject. The innocent won't feel guilty, and the guilty need to be taken to task."

Write on this subject? Dear lady, I couldn't possibly add to the picture you have already painted. My congratulations to you.

Milady's Boudoir.

CAREFUL GROOMING.

This is distinctly a period of good grooming among women. The slow-growing but perhaps artistic looking woman is no longer in the running. The woman who has the features of a Greek goddess and yet neglects to have her hair properly shampooed and dressed creates more adverse comment than the woman of irregular, even poor, features who shows the good effect of careful grooming. Good grooming is simply immaculate cleanliness and exquisite attention to details of the person, but in their anxiety to acquire this effect women are prone to adopt cosmetics or to employ means for reducing defects wherein the remedy is more undesirable than the defect itself.

When a defect is so deep rooted as to require radical treatment it is far better for a woman to ignore its existence than to endanger her personal appearance, and perhaps her health by trying to treat herself. If the defect is one which requires surgical treatment go to an expert—or endure the annoyance of the defect rather than risk what beauty you have by using acid, the needle or electricity yourself.

This caution is especially applicable to the busy woman who can give but little time to the making of her toilet. Take, for instance, obesity curves. We are all asked for diets and systems of exercise for reducing the weight, but it must be borne in mind that the reduction of weight must invariably be accompanied by a reduction of strength.

This means that the woman who systematically enters upon a dietary, bathing and exercise system must give herself over to this entirely, for it will exhaust her strength if it removes flesh. The woman who does her own housework or the business woman must not undertake violent physical exercise or bathing and combine with these her regular work. Physique and nerves cannot endure the strain. A breakdown is inevitable.

Household Notes.

It is wise to put a little salt in the water in which vegetables are washed. It will destroy insects. Allow two level teaspoonfuls of baking powder to each cup of flour when no eggs are used.

Dreadnoughts of the Air

The Handley-Page machine is the Dreadnought of the Aerial Navy. The sense that up to the present it carries the heaviest armament, the battleship, it needs its square of fast auxiliaries to protect it, except when it can operate by night. It will carry many heavy bombs, and it can release them at will, or all simultaneously if required. This is very formidable, but it must be remembered that a 8-inch shell weighs more than 250 lbs., and that a gun if he has the assistance of a well posted observer, can put shell ashell on a piece of ground much less in extent than a cricket field. The airman is by no means so certain of his aim, unless he comes quite low, when his chances of being brought down are vastly increased. In the struggle between aircraft and anti-aircraft guns the progress is by means on one side, a new weapon promises universal destruction, before it is perfect a new defence is arisen, and obliges it to act from distance; and so it comes that the carnage in a modern battle is proportionately much less than in the days of spears and arrows. The armament of the Handley-Page machine is confined to bombs; its crew of five men have each a machine-gun which can operate through a large arc, when there is no load of bombs, the men can be accommodated in fuselage, which is 62 feet long. Large as it is, it does not look like a "voiture de luxe" for that number, rather suggests the proverbial snail-box. There are two twelve-cylinder engines, one on each side of the fuselage between the wings. The speed of course, is not great for an aeroplane, but it can be maintained for many hours. There are 16,000 parts in the machine.

RAILWAY ENGINEER KILLED.

EDMONTON, April 1. Allen Fraser, of Winnipeg, chief engineer of the Canadian Northern Railway, was killed by a snowslide near Mount Robinson, on the Yellow Pass through the Rocky Mts., yesterday morning. Details of accident are scanty.

NOON.

CHEAP FISH. QUITAWA, March 31. Fish prices in Canada are remarkable at present, cod and Pacific fish especially, fresh and frozen fish, halibut and salmon, being sold at prices cheaper than during the Lenten season for the past five years. Fresh prices are in some cases less than the actual prices corresponding to fish prices in Great Britain.

RATS RESPONSIBLE.

BUENOS AYRES, March 31. Bubonic plague is increasing as a result of the great number of rats that are in merchandise which has been left on docks and in warehouses owing to the strike of port workers.

AIR TRAGEDY.

PENSACOLA, March 31. Three naval aviators were killed and another badly injured here today in collision between two seaplanes.

SITUATION SATISFACTORY.

PARIS, March 31. (By the A.P.)—The Allied Premier's method for payment of reparation by Germany with their financial advisers and in the morning afternoon discussed military questions with Marshal Foch, who presented the French position regarding the left bank of the Rhine. Later, German Ministers of five great powers were called in to discuss the situation.

Where late of frenzied fights through fields of carnage, now able-bodied writers are doing of their word the gifted lad are pouring of language where lately we were roaring and muddying our ears.

Where the Teutons Gory?

They're left the field of glory to raise string bands and herbs; and writers through the places where warfare left its traces and they get down to cases and shoes and fourth nouns and verbs. No more Bill's mighty legions along the land-escape reach; no more in sunny regions the shell and shrapnel screech the peasant is not yelling while the bold are shelling the world with words of speech. No more the Prussian clamor to Gott in their despair; the musty chunks of grammar are whirling through the air; where Lutz used to hurry, where Hinden used to worry, the shade of Lindley Murray now walks, denied a chair. Oh, boot and donnerwetter, relieved we must feel; a war of words is better than a war of steel; so let the scribbles be swarming in ranks, the deeper storming, their bloodless deeds performing where armies used to reel.

tion resulting from the Hungarian revolution. In French conference circles, there was an impression this evening, that the situation is clearly satisfactory, although extreme caution is being observed in the proceedings of the Conference.

HAVE ADVISED ACCEPTANCE.

LONDON, April 1. Delegates of Scottish miners, meeting at Glasgow, have endorsed the Government's terms as to wages and working conditions, based on the recent report of the Beaulieu Coal Commission, and have advised miners to accept them. Similar action has been taken by miners' associations in the Yorkshire and Cleveland fields while Lancashire miners are reported to be generally satisfied.

IRISH MISSION TO CONFERENCE.

NEW YORK, April 1. Three delegates elected by the Irish Convention in Philadelphia last month, to lay the Irish-American appeal for free Ireland before the Peace Conference, were given honor at a "God speed" reception here last night, tendered by more than 400 Irish sympathizers. The delegates: Frank W. Walsh of Kansas City, former Joint Chairman of the National War Labor Board; Edward F. Dunne of Chicago, former Governor of Illinois; and Michael Ryan of Philadelphia, former Public Service Commissioner for Pennsylvania, are scheduled to sail for France to-day. Mr. Walsh, in a brief address, characterized the mission as the "most unique and beautiful adventure it has been the privilege of man to undertake."

KILLED AT LAUNCHING.

BRISTOL, Pa., April 1. Estimates, early to-day, of the number of persons drowned or killed in the collapse of a lightly constructed patrol bridge, fronting the shipways of the Merchant Shipbuilding Corporation at Harriman, near here, during the launching of a freighter yesterday ranged between five and twenty.

A Beautiful Road.

We direct the attention of the Municipal Council to that portion of Waterford Bridge Road extending from the Tannery into Syme's Bridge. This portion of the road, we might say, is within the city limits and should certainly receive some attention. The mud there is worse than in France, and one risks the life, as they would say in France, to walk over it. The people living near there have themselves paid to have a sidewalk built, but without drains those are worthless. In fairness to the taxpayers of Waterford Bridge Road we suggest that the Council send one of their overworked inspectors there, so that he may be able to inspect the quality of the mud and determine whether or not it is healthy and pure, as a precaution, however, the inspector courageous enough to attempt this should be equipped with a gas mask, a life belt, and at least a week's food, for life in the midst of a great waste of mud is no pleasure jaunt, more especially if there is no food to keep up the spirits.

Personal Mention.

Mr. Alan, Noseworthy, son of Head Constable Noseworthy, formerly attached to the Royal Navy and also the Army goes to England by the S.S. Tevanton, and will there receive his discharge. Mr. Noseworthy sits for a marine engineers certificate while away.

Mr. A. M. Galpin is in the city on a visit from Bay Roberts, and registered at the Grosvenor. A life-saving Telegram press-room, left by to-day's express for Canada, where he is to undergo medical treatment. Mr. Herder will likely be absent for about a month.

Hun Habits Tickle Tommy.

(People's Journal.) "We are making the Germans understand they are beaten all right, but even the Huns are beginning to realize that British justice and fairness are things they never before realized."

In this way a young officer just back from Cologne gave me an account of his experiences during his stay in German occupied territory. "When we first marched into the city the Germans did not know exactly what to make of us, and it was easy to pick out the types who were our bitter enemies, those who were thunderstruck to realize that it all meant and the other crowd—largely composed of demobilized soldiers and sailors and workmen—who did not seem to care whether we were there or not. The first to show any great interest in us were the little children. Shy at first, and a bit frightened, especially when the Jocks were in sight, they did not take long to perceive with true children's instinct that if the tall kilted "Scottische" marched into their midst with stern martial step, they could also smile when off parade.

Saluting a Bobby. "The older people were a more difficult problem. At first they were inclined to treat the British soldiers with complete indifference, especially the better classes, among whom one could not help recognizing German officers in mufti. No German officers or soldiers are permitted to wear uniform in Cologne, and the only persons in official garb are the civilian police and the station-masters. These are a lordly looking body of men, and the Germans take precious little liberties with them I assure you. It is no uncommon thing to hear a German civilian say 'sir' and touch his hat when addressing a German policeman or station-master. Such incidents as these greatly amused our soldiers, accustomed as they were to the free and easy ways in their own land. The idea of hitting their hats to one of our own countrymen tickled them greatly. "I was a bit sick at the bowing and scraping business, because the rule was strictly enforced if a German civilian or official dared to pass a British officer without lifting his hat or saluting he was immediately placed under arrest. This rule was in all our battalion orders—in order to impress on the German people the fact that the Allied nations are the undisputed victors in the great European War. I am a thorough believer in the Germans being humbled, but I hate this hypocritical servility, nor

Luckless Names. The prize bounty case which came up recently, and which had to do with claims as to the sinking of the German cruiser Breslau, brought out a curious decision of the Admiralty. The Goeben and Breslau were brilliantly tackled by two of our small destroyers, the Lizard and the Tigress, yet the Admiralty suppressed the names of the commanding officers. It now turns out that the reason was that the name of the commander of the Lizard was Lieutenant Norman Chinnichlagier, and it was thought that the Teutonic sound of the name would offend the susceptibilities of the British public.

The death of poor little Prince John has called to mind the fact that John has been an unlucky name for Royalty all through English history. From King John, who lost all his treasure in the Wash, and died of a surfeit of lampreys, there has never been a lucky John.

Thomas has always been regarded as an unlucky name, because it was that of the doubting apostle. So, too, but to a lesser extent, have James and Charles.

Sailors do not like ships bearing the names of serpents or reptiles. The Navy has lost two Serpents, a Cobra, a Viper and a Basilisk.

would I like anybody to associate me with those upstarts. Prussian officers who swaggered along and pushed civilians of the pavement if they happened to be in the way.

"There have been one or two occasions when we have had to exert our authority and do it sternly, and that was in the case of men most likely ex-German officers in mufti, some of them probably with the magic Von in front of their names. These fellows hate us cordially, and pass with a scowl on their faces which they little try to conceal, and bitterness in their hearts when they have to lift their hats. Woe betide any of these gentry if we catch them trying to show any insolence.

"One thing which seems to greatly surprise the Germans, especially of the officer and upper classes, is the way the British officers and men play together in football or hockey matches. It seems to rather stagger the Huns when they see our officers and men playing in a hard game of football where knocks are taken and given in the best possible spirit."

A Roland for An Oliver. Helpers in a Y. M. C. A. hut tell me that Rudyard Kipling is the writer whose works the "boys" like best to get hold of. Have you heard this story of him? A lady who "adores" Kipling and was anxious that he should be correct, wrote to the author to call his attention to the fact that he had said it was difficult to find more than two words beginning with the letters "s-u" which were pronounced as if spelled "shu." She reminded him that there was only one word in the English language of which this was true: Sugar. Whereupon the lady received this brief note: "My dear Madam,—Are you quite sure!—Cordially yours, Rudyard Kipling."

Luckless Names. The prize bounty case which came up recently, and which had to do with claims as to the sinking of the German cruiser Breslau, brought out a curious decision of the Admiralty. The Goeben and Breslau were brilliantly tackled by two of our small destroyers, the Lizard and the Tigress, yet the Admiralty suppressed the names of the commanding officers. It now turns out that the reason was that the name of the commander of the Lizard was Lieutenant Norman Chinnichlagier, and it was thought that the Teutonic sound of the name would offend the susceptibilities of the British public.

The death of poor little Prince John has called to mind the fact that John has been an unlucky name for Royalty all through English history. From King John, who lost all his treasure in the Wash, and died of a surfeit of lampreys, there has never been a lucky John.

Thomas has always been regarded as an unlucky name, because it was that of the doubting apostle. So, too, but to a lesser extent, have James and Charles.

Sailors do not like ships bearing the names of serpents or reptiles. The Navy has lost two Serpents, a Cobra, a Viper and a Basilisk.

Cats That Bark. FREAKS OF NATURE.

How would you like to have as a pet a cat that barked? Such a freak animal was recently exhibited in Boston, U.S.A., and created a great deal of interest, although it is not stated if it combined the mouse-catching propensities of tabby with the good qualities of a watch dog.

America seems to specialize in producing strange freaks of Nature. One of these peculiar creatures was a giant glowworm, found in the Santa Cruz mountains, which was about 4 1/2 in. in length. When placed in the dark, a gorgeous effect was produced by the luminous rings encircling the body.

Huge blossoms of mammoth fruit are of frequent occurrence but one of the most remarkable of such freaks is a garden daisy, which, developing the modern habit of co-operation, formed seven flowers, joined together by one wide, flat stalk.

The Greedy Plant. This plant, which was grown at Southstoke, Bath, is a shocking example of what happens on exceeding one's rations, since its condition is scientifically known as fasciation, which is a result of over-feeding.

The ocean, too, provides its quota of curiosities, amongst those on record being a double-sided flounder, both sides of which were marked exactly alike, with duplicate fins and a misplaced eye. More strange, however, was the catch of another angler, whose bait lured to destruction a hybrid fish with a body of a perch but a head like that of a pike.

There are numerous instances of white black birds having been seen; and other white songsters include canaries and linnets; while a white sparrow exhibited at a Gorieston show was awarded a first prize.

A Famous Traveller.

Lieut. F. W. Engholm Kinematographer of World Wide Reputation is in the City, Was in Five War Campaigns.

Some people it seems have all the luck. Whereas there are thousands who would give almost anything to be enabled to travel even to a few such places as London and New York, there are some—the favored few—who spend their entire lives in visiting every out-of-the-way place on the globe. Among those is Lieut. F. W. Engholm, Royal Navy, Lieut. Engholm, who at present is the star kinematographer of the Jureys Imperial Pictures, Ltd., of London, England, is now in the city for the purpose of kinematographing the start of the Sopwith attempt to cross the "great waste of water" by air within the coming couple of weeks. The actual building of the machine to be used was taken with a cinema machine by Lieut. Engholm, as were also the first tests and flights. It was while making a flight in this Sopwith machine that Harry Hawker broke the record for duration, staying in the air for 9 hours, 15 minutes, and flying at the rate of 110 miles an hour. This record-breaking flight was kinematographed by Lieut. Engholm personally, he following the Sopwith machine also in another machine of Sopwith design and manufacture, namely, the Sopwith-Buffalo machine, the flying equivalent of the tank. To fly in this machine for the purpose of taking a pictorial record of the flight was most courageous of Lieut. Engholm, as those who know anything about the matter will believe. A flight all around England in a Sopwith-Buffalo, which was not at all constructed for such work, was a thrilling as well as difficult feat. It was such nerve, however, which enabled Lieut. Engholm to "bag" so many kinematographic "scopes" as he has during his eventful career. Lieut. Engholm has been through five war campaigns with the cinema camera, and the thrilling, hair-raising adventures and escapades he has gone through in that time would fill a volume from cover to cover. These campaigns were the Boxer uprising, the Boer War, the Russo-Japanese War, the Wars in the Balkans, and the late conflict. He has been official kinematographer for the Serbian and Turkish armies, and once acted in the same capacity for the Bulgarian army. When the Great War broke out he went with the Belgian army, and for sixteen months was the official "camera operator" there. He has been through and kinematographed the bombardments of such cities as Liège, Antwerp (also the evacuations of the latter) the evacuation of Alost, East Flanders, Bruges and Ostend. He has taken many bombardments on the Belgian coast, and in fact obtained a complete record of the Belgian army's part in the Great War. After his withdrawal from the Belgian Government he became attached to the Jureys Imperial Pictures, Ltd., during which time he fulfilled the duties of official kinematographer for the Royal Navy and for the Royal Naval Air Service. Lieut. Engholm possesses numerous passports and permits to enter any Government, Naval or Military establishment or works, where every facility must be granted him. These passports, which the Telegram reporter in his interview with the cinema-man examined, are signed by three of the very highest authorities of all Great Britain.

Among the many wonderful pictures obtained by Lieut. Engholm was the landing at Zeebrugge, and the deliberate standing of the H. M. S. Vindictive. He was fortunately present at this time, and, luckily enough, kinematographed the entire historic incident. Another great moving picture taken by Lieut. Engholm was of the surrender of the German fleet. This, he says, was possibly one of the most impressive sights he has ever witnessed. Miles upon miles of German ships passed through a double line of British naval ships, and each was filmed by Lieut. Engholm as it passed. This picture, when released and shown in England, was about the most wonderful picture ever seen there. Practically every naval officer of importance was shown. Among those were Admirals Beatty, Shiry and Rodman. Entitled: "The Triumph of Britain's Sea Power," the picture closed with pictures of King George. These pictures of the King, which were obtained by special appointment from him, were the only ones ever granted by His Majesty to a filming company.

Still another picture taken by him was entitled "The Triumph of the Air," and showed the entire growth of the R. N. A. S. from its start to the present day. In this picture were thrilling scenes of looping-the-loop, the corkscrew and many others of the same nature. Everything to do with flying was included in the picture, which measures 5,400 feet of film, or 5 reels. The Jureys' Imperial Pictures, Ltd., of Tower Street, London, England, is headed by Sir William Jureys, the governing director. In Sir William's hands was the Supreme authority regarding the war propaganda by cinema. His was a most important trust, but one which was well fulfilled and always guarded jealously by him. He worked night and day during the war, and it would be safe to say that no one man in England did so much for the winning of the war as he. Sir William Jureys handled all the official war films of the British army and navy, and all passed under his authority. His private business is that of buying films, and he has done more than anybody else to keep the standard of the British Cinema at a high moral and patriotic tone. The Jureys Imperial Pictures have the controlling of all photographing concerning the present Sopwith attempt to cross the Atlantic. No photographs of the machine, pilot or navigator, or of anything connected with the attempt may be taken except by the authority of the Jureys people. The telegraphic address of the Jureys Imperial Pictures is Jureysgraph, London.

Last Night's Lecture.

Under the auspices of the Holy Name Society, H. F. Shortis, Esq., delivered a learned and historical lecture on "Our Oldest Customs—the Spaniards" in the Aula Maxima last night. Introduced in a few pleasing words by Pres. C. W. Ryan, Mr. Shortis for an hour held the attention of his audience with a most graphic description of the times and customs when the Spaniards traded with Newfoundland. He showed by examples the dealings, the trades, the intercourse with the Spaniards in these days. With absorbingly interesting descriptions, depicted in choice diction, he enlightened the audience on a subject of which few of the present generation are cognizant. Rt. Rev. Mons. McMenott, several of the priests and Christians were present, and at the close Rev. Doctor Greene paid a tribute of gratitude to Mr. Shortis for his kindness. With such historians as Mr. Shortis, who loves every story, every clue, every trace of native history, and with the complete record of the Historical Society, 'tis to be hoped that the present generation will learn much more of their Island's history, and thus engender the true spirit of patriotism and love of dear old Newfoundland.

The Majestic.

"Evidence," in five parts, was the feature at the Majestic last evening. This was a brilliant picture of splendid acting, luxurious scenery and deep character. Showing the English aristocratic life to perfection, "Evidence" will interest everybody liking good pictures. A society vulture, in a fit of foolish drunkenness, makes open love to his beautiful hostess. The latter's husband, catching the couple in this act, supposes that the affair is mutual. Treated with scorn by the husband, the drunken pest resolves to widen the gulf that now exists between the husband and wife, and by compromising the latter, manages to estrange the couple. The friend of both parties now steps in and in a masterly and clever manner effects a reconciliation. This is done by obtaining the dying confession of the cause of all the trouble. The sacrifice of this good friend, for he, too, loved the woman, drew the admiration of the audience. The usual comedy completed the show, which will be repeated to-night.

Lecture on London.

Mr. Llewlyn Colley repeated his lecture on London to a large gathering at Canon Wood Hall last night. R. F. Wood, Esq., presided and introduced the speaker. Rev. Mr. Molton operated the lantern, and as slides were depicted on the screen of many of the principal places of note in the great metropolis Mr. Colley gave a word picture of each and often told anecdotes in connection with same. The Chairman thanked the lecturer for his splendid address, while Rev. Mr. Molton likewise on behalf of the Home Mission Circle, to whose fund the proceeds were given.

The Battle of the Marne

September 11 the British were advancing upon a somewhat narrow front. There was no opposition again the day bore a considerable crop of prisoners and other booty. The weather had become very hot and it is only when these wonderful accounts are precluded from that a general realises how impossible they have become to him. As it expressed it, they have won a war from a game of cards into a game of chess. It was still very hot and the Army was exposed to considerable privation, most of the men and men having neither coats of clothing, overcoats, nor waterproof sheets, while the blowing gales had made it impossible to get the wants. The undefeatable general, however, was still doing well, which means that the Army was doing the same. On the 12th the pursuit was continued as far as the River Aisne. Allenby's Army occupied Braine in the early morning, the Queen's Bays being particularly active, but there was so much resistance that the Third Division was needed to make the ground good. The Cavalry Division also advanced into the enemy near Chassemy, capturing several hundred prisoners of the German infantry. In these operations Captain Stewart, whose name as an alleged spy's has been mentioned, met with a soldier's death. On this day the Sixth French Army fighting a considerable action upon the left in the vicinity of Compiègne, the Germans making a stand to give time for their impediments to get over the river. In this successful, so that when the Allies reached the Aisne, which is an unfavourable stream some sixty feet from bank to bank, the retreat was not across it, had been most of the bridges, and every sign of being prepared to repulse the crossing.

Bourg Bridge Seized.
The Fifth Division, facing the Fifth Division, appeared at first to be in a position of a daring reconnaissance by Lieutenant Pennecik, of the Engineers, showed that it was really a damaged. Conde Bridge was in fact, but was covered by a high formation of hills upon the side that it could not be used. It remained throughout under control of the enemy. Bourg Bridge, however, in front of the First Army, had for some unexplained reason been left undamaged, and this was seized in the early morning of September 13 by De Lisle's cavalry, and rapidly by Buijn's 2nd Brigade. It was on the face of a somewhat desperate enterprise which lay immediately in front of the British. If the enemy were still retreating, he could not afford to slacken his pursuit, while, on the other hand, if the enemy were merely making a feint of resistance, then, at all events, the stream must be forced and the rearward driven in. The German infantry could be seen streaming up the roads on the farther bank of the river, but there was no sign of what their next disposition might be. Air reconnaissance was still precluded, and it was impossible to say for certain which alternative might prove to be correct, but Sir John French's cavalry training must incline him always to the braver course. The officer who rode through the Boers to Kimberley and threw himself with his weary men across the path of the formidable Kronje was not likely to stand hesitating upon the banks of the Aisne. His personal opinion was that the enemy meant to stand and fight, but none the less the order was given to cross.

September 13 was spent in arranging this dashing and dangerous movement. The British got across eventually in several places and by various devices. Bullin's men, followed by the rest of the First Division of Haig's Army Corps, passed the Canal Bridge of Bourg with no loss or difficulty. The 11th Brigade of Pulteney's Third Corps got across by a partially demolished bridge, and followed by the 12th Brigade, who established themselves near Bucy. The 13th Brigade was held up at Missy, but the 14th got across and lined up with the men of the Third Corps in the neighbourhood of Ste. Marguerite, meeting with a considerable resistance from the Germans. Later, Count Gischel's 15th Brigade also got across. On the right Hamilton's 16th Brigade, the 8th Brigade crossing on a single plank at Valley and the 9th using the railway bridge, while the whole of Haig's First Corps had before evening got a footing upon the farther bank. So eager was the advance and so inadequate the means that Haking's 5th Brigade, led by the Connaught Rangers, was obliged to get over the broad and dangerous river, walking in single file along the sloping girder of a ruined bridge, under a heavy, thought distant shell fire. The night of September 13 saw the main body of the Army across the river, already conscious of a strong rear-guard action, but not yet aware that the whole German Army had halted and was turning at bay. On the right De Lisle's cavalrymen had pushed up the slope from Bourg Bridge and reached as far as Venizel, where they were pulled up by the German lines.

Heavy Losses.
It has been mentioned above that the 11th and 12th Brigades of the Fourth Division had passed the river in the early afternoon and they at once advanced, and proved that in that portion of the field the enemy were undoubtedly standing fast. The 11th Brigade, which was more to the north, had only a constant shell-fire to endure, but the 12th, pushing forward through Bucy-le-long, found it

A beautiful complexion is the outward mark of good blood and a healthy body. When the stomach, liver and blood are in good order, the skin is clear and lovely. self in front of a line of woods from which there swept a heavy machine-gun and rifle-fire. The advance was headed by the 2nd Lancashire Fusiliers, supported by the 2nd Inniskillings Fusiliers. It was across open ground and under heavy fire, but it was admirably carried out. In places where the machine-guns had got the exact range the stricken Fusiliers lay dead or wounded with accurate intervals, like a firing-line on a field-day. The losses were heavy, especially in the Lancashire Fusiliers. Col. Griffin was wounded, and five of his officers with 250 men were among the casualties. It should be recorded that fresh supplies of ammunition were brought up at personal risk by Col. Seely, late Minister of War, in his motor car. The contest continued until dusk, when the troops waited for the battle of next day under such cover as they could find.

The Stream Crossed.
The crossing of the stream may be said, upon the one side, to mark the end of the battle and pursuit of the Marne, while, on the other, it commenced that interminable Battle of the Aisne which was destined to fulfil Bloch's prophecies and to set the type of all great modern engagements. The prolonged struggles of the Manchurian War had prepared men's minds for such a development, but only here did it first assume its full proportions and warn that the battle of the future was to be the siege of the past. Men remembered with a smile Bernhard's confident assertion that a German battle would be decided in one day, and that his countrymen would never be constrained to fight in defensive trenches.

The moral effect of the Battle of the Marne was greater than its material gains. The latter, so far as the British were concerned, did not exceed 5,000 prisoners, 20 guns, and a quantity of transport. The total losses, however, were very heavy. Apart from the losses, the mere fact that a great German army had been hustled across 30 miles of country, had been driven from river to river, and had finally to take refuge in trenches in order to hold their ground, was a great encouragement to the Allies. From that time they felt assured that with anything like equal numbers they had an ascendancy over their opponents.

Despair of Shorthand Writers.
A prominent Bishop once described the delivery of Prebendary Webb-People, the eminent Evangelical, as "the swiftness of a Derby winner." It is certainly the despair of shorthand writers. The Prebendary is a man of strong beliefs and strong prejudices. I remember that years ago he stigmatized an invitation to a performance of "The Frolic of the Sea" as "insult." He hated too, the boasting self-made man. "Why, when I landed in this country I was without a cent in my pockets," boasted a wealthy stockbroker to him once. "Yes," said Mr. Webb-People, promptly, "but there were other pockets."

TAXES THAT ARE NEVER PAID.
The managements of many public-dance halls are at present considering the imposing of a tax on soldiers who wear spurs while dancing. Unless worn by an expert dancer these ornaments are apt to tear ladies' frocks and make scars on the polished floors; hence this gentle method of discouragement of the wearers.

A Soldier's Will in Verse
A soldier in the Liverpool Regiment, Private Stanley Frederick Woodburn, of 14 Rappart Road, Seacombe, Wallasey, Cheshire, who was killed in France last April, wrote his will in verse.

It was made two months before his death on a field service form about the size of a postcard. The soldier left £1,000 13s. 3d. The will reads:
My belongings I leave to my next of kin.
My purse is empty, there's nothing in it.
My uniform, rifle, my pack and kit,
I leave to the next poor devil 'twill fit.
But if this war I manage to clear I'll keep it myself for a souvenir.

Incurable.
In a great deal of trepidation, and a snuff-coloured suit, the timid young man called at the office of the father of The Only Girl in the World.
Father was very busy, and he sharp, please, and then clear out.
The young man blushed.
"Pardon me, sir," he began, "but I—I want to marry your daughter."
"Well, I'm busy, and can't be troubled with small matters!" responded the father. "Go and see her mother, young man!"
"I've already seen her mother," stammered the young man, "and I—I still wish, sir, to marry your daughter!"

Labour Department.
The N. I. W. A. deputation, consisting of Messrs T. M. White, Mearns, Tricker, Taylor, Caldwell, and Bennett, waited upon the Premier yesterday afternoon relative to the establishment of a labour bureau. The Premier listened to the reasons advanced for the creation of such a department, and stated he was convinced that something should be done. He promised to bring the matter before the executive but feared this session would not do anything in the way of legislation relative thereto.
