The Heir to Beecham Park

CHAPTER XIII.

Immediately on her return to the castle, Vane Charteris sought her aunt, and whispered to her the success of her mission. Mrs. Crosbie willingly agreed to drive over early the next morning, and see what could be done with respect to dispatching Margery from the village; and Vane went up to her room, both satisfied and triumphant. Stuart's eagerness was fed by fictitious tender messages from Margery, which Vane uttered glibly and without the slightest effort; and so the first part of her plot proved most successful. She learned from her aunt that the mother and son had met, and that Mrs. Crosbie had carried out her part to the letter, thereby causing Stuart no little surprise and pleasure.

The news of Margery's disappearance came like a thunderclap to Vane. She had never contemplated this development, and was a little puzzled how next to act, until Mrs. Crosbie, by recounting the occurrences of her morning drive, incidentally mentioned that she had met Mrs. Bright, who was in great distress about her son.

"What has happened to him, Aunt Constance?" asked Vane, with assumed indifference.

"I thought I said that he was in love with this girl—wished to marry her, in fact—and is so troubled at her refusal that he has determined to leave England."

"Ah!" ejaculated Vane, looking up suddenly, her cold, blue eyes shining like stars. "Reuben Morris has gone to Australia, you say?"

"He starts at the end of the week; he left Hurstley for London this morning."

"And the girl is with him?" next queried Miss Charteris.

"She must be. The cottage is shut up, the key has been sent to the Weald, and the neighbors tell me they saw both the man and the girl leave early this morning."

"Could Mrs. Bright give you no clue as to where her son has gone, or intends to go?"

"None. She gave me his note to read, in which he merely says he shall leave England for a while. This girl has bewitched him. A marriage with him would have been the best she could expect, indeed, much too good for her," remarked Mrs. Crosbie, coldly. "What do you propose to do now, Vane?" she added, rising.

"Nothing. I have finished. Aunt Constance, the game is ours. Do you not see that this young man has gone to Australia with them?"

Mrs. Crosbie removed her driving-gloves slowly.

"I scarcely think that Vane," she replied, "for Margery Daw has refused to become his wife. His mother is highly incensed and greatly troubled, poor creature, about it. No, I cannot think that, Vane."

"It will prove to be the truth, nevertheless," Miss Charteris said, quietly; adding, "and, as such, it is welcome as a fall and complete solution to a difficult and disagreeable question. Poor Stuart—I am sorry for him!"

Mrs. Crosbie glanced at her niece, leaning languidly against the open window, almost frail-looking in her delicate white gown, and could scarcely reconcile the strong, cold, relentless spirit with so lovely an exterior. For an instant a feeling of disgust at this girl's calm trickery and deceit, and at her own share in the matter, passed over her. Then her pride came to the rescue, and she consoled herself with the thought that Stuart had been saved from dishonor and trouble, and that Vane had done well. She bent and kissed her niece's delicate cheek.

"Yes, you are right," she said, thoughtfully. "The problem is solved, and you have done it. I cannot thank you enough, Vane."

"Do not thank me at all," the girl whispered. "You know why I did it—it was my love for Stuart that prompted me. Some day he will thank me, perhaps. But for the present I fear I will suffer."

"With you near, Vane, that will not last," and, with an affectionate glance Mrs. Crosbie left the room.

The next day came, and Stuart still lived in his blissful dreams. Then with a rough hand, they were ruthlessly shattered. Vane was reading in the colonnade that afternoon, when she saw hurried steps approaching, and, on looking up, saw Stuart, his face as white as his tennis coat, beside her.

"What is it, Stuart?" she asked, hurriedly.

"Vane, something has happened so strange, and yet so absurd, that, were I not so confoundedly weak, I should laugh at it. My man Andrews has just told me that Morris has left Hurstley—left early yesterday morning—for Australia, and Margery has gone with him. He declares that it is true."

"True!" repeated Vane. "It is too absurd to credit for one instant. Stuart, how can you believe it?"

"The man is so positive," Stuart went on, with a sigh, resting his left hand on a chair for support, "that it quite staggered me. Of course, there is some mistake, but it haunts me, nevertheless. Vane, will you drive me to the village?" he asked, abruptly. "I must make inquiries."

"Willingly," and Vane at once put down her book.

"How good you are!" exclaimed Stuart, trying to force a smile. "You are indeed a friend."

With a little laugh Vane put her hand on his lips and fitted away, while Stuart called to a gardener and ordered the pony carriage to be brought round.

Vane was down again almost immediately, her face nearly as pale as her cousin's. It was but a few minutes before the carriage appeared, yet to Stuart they seemed hours. He tried to laugh at the absurdity of the report, yet a presentiment of trouble possessed him.

"It cannot be, it cannot be!" Vane heard him mutter again and again; and then he approached her.

"Tell me once more the message she sent," he said, hurriedly; and Vane breathed the tender falsehoods in his ear, touching his agitated, troubled spirit with their healing balm.

Sir Douglas Grant passed through the hall just as they were starting.

"Whither away, wounded knight?" he asked, lightly.

"To the village. I shall be back soon, Douglas." Then, turning to his cousin, he said, "Drive fast, Vane."

With a puzzled brow Sir Douglas watched them disappear—he could not understand Stuart's apparent attachment to this selfish, worldly girl; then, with a sigh, turned wearily indoors. The next day was that fixed for his lawyer to come down from London, and he had much to occupy his thoughts. He sought the squire's room, and, in a chat over bygone years, lost for a while his anxious, restless expression.

Stuart sat silent beside his cousin as they bowed along the lake to the village; and Vane glanced now and again at his pale, pained face, wondering, when he knew the truth, what his opinion would be of her.

The village reached, he broke the silence by asking Vane to drive straight to the little cottage by the Weald; and, without a word, she complied. She drew up the ponies on the brow of the hill; and Stuart, heedless of his aching arm and weakness, alighted, and walked down to the gate he knew so well. It was just such an afternoon as that on which he had parted from Margery, and the memory of her beauty and sweetness lent strength to his faltering steps and fed the eagerness and desire in his heart. He pushed open the gate and entered. The window-blinds were drawn; the door—pushed with his one able hand—defied every effort. He grov faint and cold, and leaned against the doorpost for a moment, while the roses, nodding in the breeze, seemed to whisper to him a sense of his loss in all its bitterness.

Margery was gone! But why—and whither? He turned and walked down the garden, his head drooping dejectedly on his breast. Margery gone! What could it mean? Why had she left him, without a word or sign, in the very moment of their joy and happiness? The truth did not come to him even then. There must be some mistake, he tried to convince himself. A hundred different answers to the strange question came to him. He closed the gate behind him and turned away. There was a man standing at the gate of the next cottage, and at first Stuart determined to pass him; but a sudden impulse seized him, and he stopped and spoke with forced lightness.

"Ah, Carter—lovely weather for the crops! Is this true that I hear about Morris?"

"Good-afternoon, squire. Hope I see you better. It were a stiffish fall as you had, Morris, sir? What? That he's gone to Australia? Ay, sir—that's true enough."

Stuart's left hand grasped the gate. "Rather sudden, isn't it?" he questioned, trying to clear his voice.

"Well, sir, it were rather; but you see, the death of his missus fair knocked him over, and he made up his mind in a minute."

"And he has gone alone?" asked Stuart, every nerve in his body quivering.

The spring holidays promises to be several shreds deeper than the present nude and parchments.

A new material belonging to the kasha family, but a shade softer in quality, is being used for straight-line sports frocks.

Positive Insulation

It is like relying on faulty tools to use insulation of unknown properties or produced by makers not having earned a reputation for producing insulation that surely insulates.

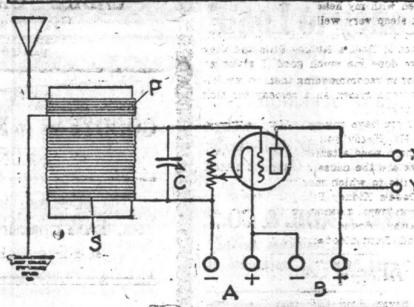

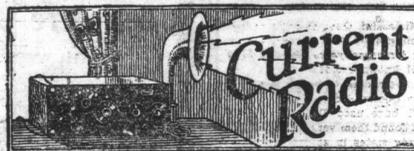

Westinghouse, due to its own enormous consumption of insulation, has spent years in extensive research and investigation in perfecting insulation.

How to Add a Stage of R.F. to the One-Tube Set.

After you have built the one-tube original crystal receiver—that is, receiver, and then later built the one-stage audio amplifier, the time will come when you will want to add some radio frequency amplification.

This can be done very easily. A radio frequency unit is shown in the diagram above, and this can be added to the one-tube receiver simply by hooking it in at the "Antenna" and "Ground" posts of the one-tube, and "jumping" over the battery connections to those of the one-tube outfit.

In the unit shown, it will be noticed that we have not made our variocoupler with a rotor. The reason is that the only value of a rotor-mounted primary is to get a variable selectivity feature. Now, in our one-tube set we have such a variable primary rotor, so it will not be necessary to incorporate it in the antenna coupler of the r.f. unit. Of course, if desired, the primary of the r.f. unit coupler can be put on a rotor.

In the diagram, the primary "P" and the secondary "S" are both wound on the same four-inch cardboard tube. This tube should be treated just as was the tube on the

The Duke of York Among Wild Beasts

LONDON, Feb. 1.—(Canadian Press) The Duke of York, who with the Duchess of York is on a tour of Africa, had some good sport on his recent hunting trip in Kenya Colony, according to the Nairobi correspondent of a London daily paper. One day the Duke shot a lioness and two buffaloes, the latter with two shots from his rifle.

A zebra had been left as a lion-bait, and the Duke was up before dawn awaiting developments. At sunrise a big lioness was seen, and his Royal Highness fired at it. The lioness went into the bush, from which there immediately emerged two huge buffaloes, nocerous. With a companion he stalked a big rhinoceros and when at length he fired the beast made a terrific charge in his direction. The Duke stood his ground, allowing the rhinoceros to continue its charge until it was within 30 yards of him, when he and his companion fired together, and the rhinoceros rolled over close to where they were standing.

Threatened Depletion Of Forests.

Ottawa, Ont., Feb. 5. (By Canadian Press).—"Our virgin resources are being rapidly depleted, and unless drastic measures are taken to protect the young growth, as well as the mature timber, from further destruction, a serious reduction in the use of wood in Canada is inevitable within the next twenty-five years," declared Roland D. Craig, of the Dominion Forest Branch, Department of Interior, at the annual convention of the association of Dominion Land Surveyors, to-day.

Although one-third of the land area of Canada was essentially forest land, incapable of profitable agricultural development but suitable for growing forests, wasteful exploitation and fire had worked havoc with an area which was sufficient to supply, in perpetuity, many times Canada's present requirements. Forest industries, like agriculture, depended on the renewable products of the soil, and, in Canada, were second only to agriculture in value of production. Yet, the Canadian forest had been allowed to become low; the extent of which was not definitely known, but a knowledge of the country's forest resources was being extended, as fast as possible, by means of extensive and intensive surveys.

Four main classes of forest surveys were recognized, stated Mr. Craig, based on their intensiveness. The first was preliminary reconnaissance, the object of which was to determine the use to which land was best adapted and to obtain general information as to its resources. This could be conducted by making observations along water courses, or other avenues of travel; but the airplane now offered a very efficient means of carrying out these surveys.

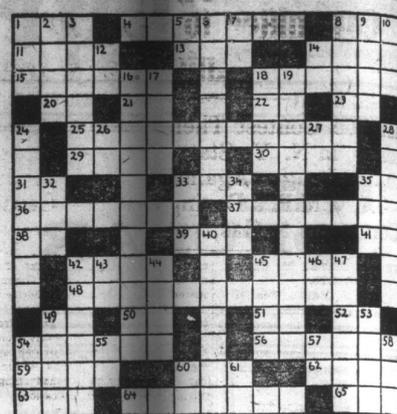

The second was general reconnaissance, where only a rough estimate of the forest resources was required, but a fairly accurate map of the types and topography was required for administrative purposes. Aircraft had proved valuable for this work, but a small percentage of the area, usually in strips a mile or so apart, was actually cruised on the ground.

Stock taking survey, represented a third class, and necessitated an accurate estimate of the merchantable timber for the purpose of valuation. This entailed the cruising of from 2 1/2 to 10 per cent of the area.

The final class was the working plan survey, which was the most intensive, requiring in addition to an accurate estimate of the standing timber, the determination of a felling budget, based on the rate of growth of the forest.

Fads and Fashions

Red kasha trims a novelty still in vogue and the rough coat of white homespun worn with it.

The finer afternoon gowns of the season in such shades as raspberry, fuchsia and strawbery.

Besides the evening slippers of silver kid one often sees slippers dyed to match one's gown.

A motif of bright colored tulle, tery, and bindings of pastel shades are used on a small hat of beige.

TO YOUNG MEN!

This is specially addressed to the young men who are following the trend of style especially as regards trousers. If you want the bell-bottom trousers, with or without cuff, here is the place to get them; we are making and have made recently some splendid examples of this style. This also applies to the straight hanging English trousers hanging free from the hips to the cuff; with plenty of room at knees and bottom.

"Liver Trouble so Severe I Had to Quit Work"

Mr. Thomas Honey, Brantford, Ont., writes:

"I was a great sufferer from enlargement of the liver for ten months, and finally I had to quit work. I would wake up in the mornings with a bitter taste in my mouth, had frequent headaches, yellow complexion, and pain in my right side, and between the shoulder blades. It was almost unbearable, and terribly weakening, and I could not sleep at night and my heart also bothered me. But the whole trouble has now left me, thanks to that wonderful medicine, Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills."

FRENCH COMMITTEE TO STUDY DEBTS.

PARIS, Feb. 11. The Finance Committee of the Chamber of Deputies, in agreement with Premier Herriot, to-day appointed a sub-committee charged with the study of the question of inter-allied debts.

LABORITES INTERESTED.

LONDON, Feb. 11. British laborites are keenly interested in the proposal of the Canadian Government to attack the North Atlantic Shipping Combine by means of a subsidized fleet. It was learned to-day that they intend asking questions of the House of Commons at an early date as to what information there is in possession of the British Government concerning the alleged discrimination against British ships in the matter of freight rates. One Labor member aims to possess information that ship manufacturers find it more difficult to ship their goods first to Hamburg and other Continental ports and have them shipped from those ports in British vessels owing to the higher rates charged by the combine of Continental ports.

AUSTRALIAN LABOR LEADER FINED.

MELBOURNE, Feb. 11. President Walsh, of the Seamen's Union, was today found guilty of the charge of inciting dock workers and members of the Waterside Workers' Federation to strike, and of being officials of the Federation to encourage a strike. He was fined 150 shillings and costs, amounting to 50 shillings.

BILLS PREPARING BIG CLAIM.

QUEBEC, Feb. 11. Representatives of the six nations' tribes held a meeting of the Huron tribe at Lorette, Que., to-day, with the legal advisers, including Armand Lavigne and several United States authorities, to map out a plan to receive sixteen million acres of land in the State of New York, valued at several billion dollars. They claim the land was given to them in 1874 but taken away without legal right. The cities of New York and Buffalo are concerned.

GENEVA, Feb. 11. The Chinese delegation withdrew in a politely subdued gasp of astonishment when they saw the dress worn by the most daring costume designer of the world, Miss Wilkison, who has yet shown in the British staid legislative chamber. Miss Wilkison has red hair which she had shingled during parliamentary vacation.

CHURCH OF SCOTLAND BILL.

LONDON, Feb. 11. In the House of Commons last evening, a motion to reject the bill concerning the endowment of the Church of Scotland and to enable a charge to enter the projected union with the United Free Church, was defeated 232 to 116, and the bill was given a second reading.

WHY CHINA WITHDREW.

GENEVA, Feb. 11. The Chinese delegation withdrew from the first Far Eastern Opium Conference when that body was brought together again to-day to reconsider its findings. In his letter to the conference the chief Chinese delegate, S. Altred Sze, said the withdrawal was due to the conference's failure to adopt a system for suppression of opium smoking in the Far East.

GREECE TAKES CASE TO LEAGUE.

GENEVA, Feb. 11. Greece has appealed to the League of Nations against the action of Turkey in expelling Most Rev. Constantinos, Ecumenical Patriarch of the Greek Catholic Church, from Constantinople, claiming the action endangers the friendly relations between the two countries.

A KETCH, NOT A LINER.

LONDON, Feb. 11. Considerable alarm was felt this morning over dispatches to a London newspaper that a big liner had gone ashore on the Essex Coast and was sending up distress flares near Walton. The vessel turned out, however, to be the hundred ton ketch Rossina which was swamped and sank. A lifeboat from Clacton-on-Sea rescued her crew of four.

A Rare Species

VICTORIA, B.C. (C.P.)—While Victorians have been assured that it would be almost impossible to find a mate for Ursus Kermodei, the famous white bear, from among bears of his kind, when she is housed in the new thousand-dollar home which the city is erecting at Beacon Hill Park, a Customs officer, Joseph McPhee, stationed at the Butedale Cannery, Princess Royal Island, comes forward with a report that other bears of the same species are at large on Royal Island. He believes there are also some on Gribble Island, adjoining.

These white bears, of a small size, with teeth differing considerably from the polar bear, and particularly small ears, have a limited habitat, but according to Mr. McPhee, are by no means uncommon on the island, and some have been observed as having grown to considerable size.

The eminent zoologist, Dr. W. T. Hornaday, of New York, who has been so anxious to purchase Ursus Kermodei, which the city refuses to part with, definitely established the species, and since then the greatest interest has been aroused to capture live specimens. According to the isolated and rugged character of the islands it is almost impossible to capture the animals alive.

Ursus appears to thrive in captivity, but he's going to lose all the fine thick fur of his coat, just the same, because he's not yet accustomed to a diet of milk and dog biscuits. It is expected that it will grow a fine new coat within a few months time.

Teaching Correct Speech by Drill

HALIFAX, N.S., Feb. 4. (C.P.)—Rosamond de Wolfe Archibald, of Wolfville, N.S., who has achieved a noteworthy success in her Better English campaign instituted some years ago and based on a method invented by herself of teaching correct speech by drill, has received Royal acknowledgment of the specially prepared copy of her book, "The King's English Drill," for presentation to her Majesty the Queen.

Miss Archibald wrote a letter of explanation to Miss Knox, Private Secretary to the King, to whom she had a personal word of introduction from Beatrice Hay Shaw, whose story of Miss Archibald's campaign was published in a Canadian magazine, and incorporated in the presentation copy. This copy bound in white kid with shield of lavender surrounded by maple leaves of gold, and surmounted by the British Coat of Arms, included also about 60 excerpts chosen from over 2,000 letters of endorsement from leading educationalists, statesmen, authors, etc., of four countries.

The method of daily drill in Correct Idiom embodied in the manual has found recognition not only in business offices, public and private schools and homes, but in many colleges in the United States and Canada. The School for the Blind, at Halifax, has put in into the Braill.

Scot and Lot

In former times people who paid taxes were called payors of Scot and Lot, and in some boroughs these were the people who returned members of Parliament.

The word "Scot" referred to the tax, and the word "Lot" to the ability to pay. We still use the word lot to indicate a person's condition in life. We say a man's lot is hard or easy or pleasant. Thus the two words mean the tax and the assessment, or a contribution to the State based upon a man's ability to pay.

The first word is used nowadays only when we say: "He got off scot-free." To-day, if a man has been accused of a misdemeanor and escapes, we use this phrase, as in many other cases of escape from something impending, but in former times to get off scot-free meant ability to show reason for not paying a tax.

Alleged Confession

Of Seven Year Old Girl That She Killed Her Two Little Twin Sisters at Dauphin, Manitoba.

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 3.—Seven-year-old Aisa, Thompson is under observation at the Psychopathic Ward of the General Hospital here to-day as a result of an enquiry conducted by the police in the course of which the child was alleged to have confessed that she murdered her two little sisters in Dauphin, Manitoba, two years ago. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Thompson, formerly of Dauphin.

Investigation of little Aisa by the police here followed an alleged attempt to kill members of the family where she is boarding.

The child is accused of mixing antipaste and acid from a radio battery, and attempting to induce several persons to eat it.

When they refused she is reported to have attacked Maxine Platta, aged six, and slashed her wrists with a safety razor blade. Officers said that the child admitted the charge and that she explained: "I guess I did it because I'm so mean."

Also is alleged to have told the police that she killed her twin sisters with ground glass, two years ago, while living in Dauphin. Investigators were inclined to view skeptically that angle of the child's purported confession, but admitted themselves puzzled by the fact that she is unusually precocious, having reached the eighth grade in school while still of a kindergarten age.

"Govern—or Get Out"

London Morning Post: We believe that when the balance of this nation comes to be struck, its greatest work and noblest achievement will be reckoned to be this British Empire, of which Communists speak with hate and highbrows with apology. Whether Divine Providence or blind destiny has given us this task it has been well done, and we have good reason to be proud of having done it. Moreover, we should not be misled by the cunning propaganda of the enemy into suicidal doctrines of "self determination" and democracy run mad which are being subtly used to persuade our people that it is immoral, sordid, or tyrannical to hold and to govern our Empire. They who dare not be the hammer will assuredly be the anvil; if we have not the resolution and the courage to hold what we have won, we may be denied in the end even the right to live in these islands. It was because this truth is better understood outside England that within it that a sigh of relief and a prayer of gratitude went up from the whole Empire when our Government chastised its enemies for the murder of its servant in Cairo.

Buick

For seven consecutive years Buick has been awarded first choice of space at the National Automobile shows. This award is made on the basis of the largest volume of business done during the preceding year.

Buick has been able to transact such a huge volume of business only because motorists have found Buick automobiles to be "Better Automobiles" and have bought them for that reason.

The present year is no exception. It sees Buick well on the way to the production of the Two-millionth car. More and more motorists are turning to Buick as through various channels they receive convincing proof that regardless of price Buick is the greatest value on the market. And these owners are learning by experience that all the good things they have heard of Buick are true. They are making exacting tests of the car because they are new owners and they want to prove to their own satisfaction that all they have been told about the Buick is so.

There is not a possible advancement in motor car design that Buick overlooks. Each possibility is studied by expert automotive engineers, it is tried and tested from every standpoint, but only if it can meet the rigid, iron-clad standards of Buick engineers is it included in a Buick car.

When better Automobiles are built, Buick will build them.

FAMOUS NEW ZEALAND RUGBY PLAYERS NOW IN CANADA.

All Blacks Entrained For Toronto Immediately After Arrival at St. John—Reported Wonderful Trip In Europe—Eager to See Beauty Spots of Dominion.

ST. JOHN, N.B., Feb. 2.—The famous All Blacks football team of New Zealand, one of the greatest rugby organizations in the world, caught their first glimpse of Canada this morning when they landed from the Canadian Pacific steamship Montserrat at Sand Point and a few hours later entrained for Toronto.

All expressed eagerness to see Canada and particularly to indulge in some of the great winter pastimes, which have been promised them on their arrival in Banff.

The players were unanimous in a statement that they have had a wonderful time since leaving their homes over six months ago.

They say the English are great sportsmen and they thoroughly enjoyed their matches there. They were royally treated in every city they visited.

and members of the rugby clubs, officials and others did everything in their power to make the trip a most enjoyable one.

They played a total of 28 games in England and Ireland and two in France, winning all. In the thirty games they scored 721 points while their opponents were amassing 112.

This gives them an average of over 24 points a game, while their opponents averaged better than three.

There are 29 players on the team, all splendid specimens of humanity, big husky men showing marked development and fairly radiating with health.

Some of the players are former University stars and others are young farmers.

Eighteen of them are from the North Island and the others from the South Island.

Included in their number is B. V. McCleary, who was amateur heavyweight boxing champion of Australasia in 1920-21.

The heaviest man on their team tips the scales at 214 pounds, while others average from 170 pounds up.

Speaking about the game in New Zealand, they said there are 40,000 rugby players out of a population of 1,300,000.

They did not know definitely whether or not they would be able to see the famous Niagara Falls.

From Toronto they will continue west and are eager to try their skill at snow-shoeing, skiing and skating.

They said they have practically no opportunity in their own country of enjoying winter sports, as they would have to travel to the top of one of the mountains to find any quantity of snow and ice.

Upon their arrival here they were met by H. W. Broder, assistant passenger traffic manager of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

CHAMPION LEONARD RETIRES FROM RING. Mother's Falling Health Causes Light-weight King To Give Up Title.

NEW YORK, N.Y., Jan. 22.—I am retiring from boxing for the love of my mother, who has begged me not to fight again.

With this statement, Benny Leonard, world's lightweight champion, announced his retirement from the ring.

The announcement, contained in a statement covering five typewritten pages and signed by Leonard, sets at rest conflicting reports which have been in circulation for the last year.

Leonard has decided to forsake the ring and probably will confine his future activities to the stage or to motion picture work.

His decision to retire, Leonard announced, was prompted by the objections of his mother.

The titleholder said he had become convinced that if he remained active as a boxer it would prove harmful for his mother.

The retirement of Leonard precipitates a situation in the lightweight ranks similar to that which existed in the featherweight ranks at the time Johnny Dundee, veteran Italian pugilist, publicly surrendered the world's themselves more hair than at present. The hats seen here are close fitting, especially at the back, where there is frequently no brim, or a small turned-up at the most. Colors are high, and are pinched and pulled out to rob them of stiffness and harshness. The brim, too, follows the set line but is shaped to suit the face.

Nine-Year-Old Ski Wonder JUMPS 100 FEET AT OPENING DAY OF REVELSTOKE MEET. REVELSTOKE, B.C., Feb. 4.—Lined in front of the world's highest ski hill here, Wednesday afternoon, a thousand winter sport devotees from all points in Western America, saw Little Arthur Johnson, "baby wonder" of the ski world, whirl 105 feet through space and make a perfect landing on the side of Mount Revelstoke.

TOPIC OF INTEREST

Henry's Visit to Bucleuch Revives Rumor of His Engagement.

SOCIETY APPROVES.

George Off to China in Navy for Two Years.

Henry's week-end visit to the Duchess of Buccleuch at her residence is responsible for a fresh crop of rumors that their daughter Lady Mary Scott, is destined to be a royal bride.

It makes Prince Henry's fourth year to the Buccleuch estate where he frequently danced with twenty-year-old Mary, who is beautiful, accomplished and well liked at court, with her family has long been connected in a ceremonious way—the Duchess of Buccleuch was Queen
Charlotte's Mistress of the Robes.
William Scott, Lady Mary's father, is a captain in the 10th Hussars, Prince Henry's regiment. The Scotts already claim royal blood through the family coat-of-arms quarters of Charles II.—with the marriage with Charles, the ultimate son of the Duke of Monmouth, and also quarters the "bleeding hearts of Douglas" and the "crosslets" of the Earls of Mar, with the Douglases supplied the Scottish royal line.

"BRIDES" FOR GEORGE.
Prince Henry has escaped
the name link-d matrimonial with those of many girls, whereas his younger brother, Prince George, has been provided with half a dozen prospective "brides."

George, the King's youngest son, is the "Naval Prince," because a sub-lieutenant in the navy at the age of sixteen. A Lieutenant in the navy at Portsmouth, but destined to sail at the end of this year for China and the Eastern Mediterranean fleet was "that one" who was originally destined, it is said, to be the bridegroom as the rumors were made to frustrate as far as possible an intimation of the royal parents.

BARING IS POPULAR.
In the case, whom it was determined, or at least thought to wed, is Miss Anlethe-Baring, daughter of Sir Anleth and Lady Baring of Nijala in Greece. Prince George, who is popularly in British society stands for the leather Wales, is enthusiastic about mounting and dancing, and "Poppy" also devotes much of her time to these diversions. Among the "brides" the fact is extremely interesting, as it is thought to seem that the royal parents are anxious to appoint the King and Queen as a daughter-in-law. The rumors that George's marriage was officially indicated to whatever attachment there was between the two young people has generally discredited Prince George's already reputation for popularity to Lord Buccleuch's son, and also to a number of "eligible" misses and to other "brides."

George's court apparently has been "Poppy" personally, her mother is most emphatically persona-grata there, and Lady Hesketh-Pritchard, recently appointed lady-in-waiting to Queen Mary.

Prince George leaving England for the Far East this month, Duke of York already on his way to Kenya, East Africa, and Prince of Wales sailing for South Africa and the Argentine in March, of the King's four sons will be absent from the country during the early part of 1925.

Mr. Ruggles sing "Land
Hope and Glory" and "Rule Britannia" at Wembley Exhibition.

Crime and Civilization

Times City Star: The fact can be mentioned too often that the Republic, which advertises the opportunities for the average man, which has more wealth and prosperity than any other nation, has more reason for popular contentment and leads the world in number of its murders. Even in this country, contiguous and similarly situated, the chances of being murdered are as one against six in the United States. In England and Wales in 1921, according to the census bureau, there were only 202 murders, and in this country in the same year there were more than nine hundred. In Chicago alone there were 112 murders in 1921, 331 in 1922 and 359 in 1923.

A Movement to Encourage Agriculture

The action taken by the Minister of Agriculture and Mines in calling the farmers together to discuss matters in connection with the industry, in order to arrive at a sound agricultural policy is a move in the right direction and will, it is hoped, lead to more practical results than attempts of a similar nature made in the past.

As a member of a political organization the farmer would immediately lose his individuality, and become nothing more than a puppet dancing to the tune of his leader.

Whether or not it is the intention of the farmers to reform their Association with branch organizations throughout the Island has not yet been ascertained.

A few days ago at the seventh annual gathering of the United Farmers of Quebec, the Provincial Minister of Agriculture in an address pointed out the evils which had resulted from political affiliations, and strongly urged the farmers not to be led into making a similar mistake.

others, and in this particular work much may be done by obtaining advice from men who have made a close study of the various branches of the industry under conditions similar to those which exist in this country.

PEPYS BEHIND THE SCENES.

Feb. 11th.—Coming home this day, a great smell of burning all over the house and cook rushing out cries that the cake she has in the oven is burning but the recipe book will not allow her to remove it for another five minutes.

The weather grown mighty mild, and it is warmer than ever I do remember it at this season of the year, which may do lay to the eclipse, which serves as well as aught else for an excuse.

Povey, going home, tells me of a droll repartee which he made to his wife this morning. She, in ill humour, did tell him that he could not say that she had run after him before they were married.

I do learn this day how a temporary agreement has been reached in the Bell Island trouble, whereby the men will continue at work until the matters in dispute have been thoroughly discussed.

Home this night, my poor wife coming from the hospital, and I glad to see her, yet would not have her to know it, being that it would weaken my authority over her.

SUGGESTS HOLDING LEAGUE ASSEMBLY IN CANADA. GENEVA, Feb. 12.

The idea of holding some future assembly of the League of Nations in Canada recently Ottawa is being quietly broached at Geneva. It was learned to-night. The suggestion originated with Sir Herbert A. Ames, the Canadian director of the League's finances, and it is said that if it is adopted it would have the hearty support of the Canadian Government and the British Dominions.

FLOODS IN N.Y. STATE UNPRECEDENTED.

SYRACUSE, N.Y., Feb. 12. The flood situation in the southern lowlands of Syracuse and Onondaga valley adjoining became more serious to-night when the water rose rapidly, caused scores of families to flee from their residences, threatened the destruction of bridges over the Onondaga Creek and spread to areas not heretofore affected.

MINNEOLA, N.Y., Feb. 12. The bulk of the estate of the late Julius Fleischmann, yeast magnate, estimated from $50,000,000 to $60,000,000 is left to his children, Julius, Jr., and Louise, now Mrs. Henry C. Yeiser Jr.

SOVIETS GIVE LARGE FLOUR ORDER TO CANADA.

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 12. What constitutes the largest order for flour ever given at one time on this continent has been placed by Russian buyers with two Canadian Milling Companies, says the Globe today. The total business placed amounts to 1,300,000 barrels to be shipped as early as possible to Black sea ports. The transaction is on a cash basis and it is understood the Soviet authorities have arranged credit at New York to cover this and previous orders. Further purchases are believed to be pending.

LONG STANDING BREACH MAY BE ADJUSTED.

The historical breach between the state of Italy and the Roman Catholic Church which has existed, despite long standing efforts to effect a settlement since the Vatican soldiers entered the Papal state, was bridged Feb. 11, on September 29th, 1870, is declared to be more susceptible of a permanent adjustment now than ever before.

DISASTER IN GERMAN MINE.

DORTMUND Germany, Feb. 12. Thirty workmen were killed by an explosion of fire damp in the Steinhilber mine last night and one hundred others are missing. Only eight men were rescued alive. This morning there seemed to be little hope of rescuing the entombed miners. The explosion was very violent and caused a shaft to the underground galleries to collapse, blocking all exits. It is feared trapped men died almost immediately from the effect of poisonous gas.

OPIUM CONVENTION.

GENEVA, Feb. 12. The first far eastern Opium Conference yesterday adopted and signed a convention and an annex protocol. The main features are: first, discontinuance of opium in the far east within fifteen years after China has curbed over production in growth of opium has been attained; second, the decision to abolish the firm system of opium traffic with substitution of free competition. The convention signed by Britain, France, Holland, Portugal, Japan, Siam and India.

Magistrate's Court

A man given in charge by his wife for being drunk and disorderly in his home was discharged. The complainant failed to appear against him. A resident of Georgetown charged with being drunk was convicted and fined $1.00 or in default 3 days' imprisonment. Supt. O'Neil asked for certificate of conviction of drunkenness, which was granted.

Farmers Discuss Agricultural Policy

The Minister of Agriculture and Mines, Hon. W. J. Walsh, desiring to stimulate rural interest in a progressive agricultural movement that would encourage greater effort, and at the same time advance the present agricultural methods, recently sent out invitations to a number of farmers asking them to meet and discuss with him their views on such an agricultural policy. The meeting took place Tuesday at the Agriculture & Mines offices, and the following were present:—Geo. Thomas, William O'Dea, Harry Cowan, William Sloan, H. Macpherson, H. R. Cook, G. R. Williams, John Cook, A. V. Ross, John Farrell, Jerry Brennan and John Neville. In welcoming the farmers the Minister assured the meeting that as far as he was concerned politics will have no place in the present issue, that he was prepared to step out of his position rather than sacrifice the agricultural interests of his native land to those of party politics, and assured his guests that they could freely express their views and give their advice as to what their opinions would be in considering an agricultural policy that would be in the best interest of the country. The Minister pointed out that the distribution of seed, machinery and animals did not appear to bring returns commensurate with the expenditure, because many of those to whom the free gifts went had not the knowledge necessary to make the best use of them.

The bonus, granted under one form of agricultural policy for clearing land, had failed likewise to create a desire on the part of anybody to raise more crops. Further, agricultural knowledge had not been an essential requisite for those who had charge of the agricultural societies which at one time had been established, and the consequence was that necessary information could not be imparted, and those who automatically became members by reason of being voters were more interested in the givings out than in attempting to increase production. A policy that would be economical and workable was the aim of the Minister, and he felt confident that with the farmers co-operation and advice such a programme could be formulated that would restore the confidence which has been so sadly lacking in such undertakings in the past. A movement was needed to counteract the importation yearly of about $5,000,000 worth of farm produce. The meeting was enthusiastic and nearly everyone present expressed his opinion on the best course to pursue. The consensus of opinion was that a large expenditure of money was not needed and that agriculture generally would greatly advance if tillers of the land were better instructed regarding seeds, soil and fertilizers. The Minister is of the opinion that properly constituted agricultural societies free from political influence could be made the means of distributing information by being visited frequently by agricultural authorities. Another means of encouragement would be agricultural exhibitions held regularly. The many suggestions made at the meeting will be given consideration and when a summing up is made another meeting will be announced.

Seek Protection From Any Further Claims

A peculiar life insurance case has come to light in the action of a legal firm, acting for a life insurance company, in serving papers in Saskatchewan on Mrs. Atrina Trauch, who is serving a life sentence for the murder of her husband. The latter was insured for $1,000 and the company wishes to make sure that the Mrs. Trauch, should she be paroled, will have no further claim on them if they pay the money into the estate for the benefit of her children. The courts are asked to legalize such a payment and authorize the woman to sign a quit-claim.

Valentine Celebration
SUCCESSFUL AND ENJOYABLE AFFAIR

The Valentine celebration, held by the Ladies of the Star of the Sea Association, at their rooms, last night, was a most successful and enjoyable affair. The number of guests who attended was large and the varied costumes made a most interesting scene as the dancers glided across the floor. At 8.30 the Grand Ball was begun, being led off by Mr. Buckley, President of the Ladies' Association, and P. J. Cashin, M.H.A., of the Star Society. From 9.30 to a very attractive dance program was rendered and was a source of much pleasure, the music being supplied by the G.C.C. Orchestra. For those who did not wish to dance, a card party was held in the room of the hall and a large number of players participated, the prizes being presented with suitable ceremony. The prizes for the cards were pieces which were won by F. Buckley and Mrs. Martin. The prizes for the most original costumes were won by Miss Aspell as Cross Word Puzzle and Mr. Westcott as the Star of the Sea. During the interval supper was served by the ladies. At an hour this morning the affair closed, all having spent a happy evening.

Bowring Bros., Ltd.
ENTERTAIN EMPLOYEES.
At the Gaiety Hall, to-night, the company of Bowring Bros., Ltd., will be guests of the firm at a card party, supper and dance. Elaborate decorations have been made for the occasion and a most enjoyable time is anticipated, the decorations, in which various colors figure prominently, have been placed in position the last days by some of the employees, some of striking beauty; in fact, the prettiest ever seen at the Gaiety Hall. The Prince's Orchestra will furnish the music during the evening and the employees have formed an orchestra to be known as the Bowring Bros. and Athletic Association. Officers as follows:— President—Sir Edgar Bowring. Vice-Presidents—Messrs. Eric W. Bowring. President—W. Willis. Treasurer—R. G. Ross. Secretary—E. Rendell. Secretary—P. H. Jardine.

The club proposes to hold outings during the summer and various other gatherings during the remainder of the year.

AN OLD IRISH AIR
Written on the "Annie Laurie" disc— Mr. Grattan Flood says— "The air of the song was not composed by William Douglas, a cadet of the Grenadier family, and neither is it composed by Lady John Scott, generally asserted. It is an old Irish air of the early nineteenth century (as is also 'Ye Banks and Braes'), carried over to Scotland by some of the wandering minstrels. Lady Scott merely arranged it for piano, having previously rewritten the original song, which, curiously enough, was attributed to Allan Cunningham. Many another air, it did not receive such attention at the date of publication, in 1838, nor yet when it was republished in Wood's 'Songs of Scotland' in 1847. Lady Scott's arrangement of the song was not new for almost fifty years. During the Crimean War it became popular as the fact of some of the British soldiers singing it in the trenches being reported."

Man 76 Gets First Shave in Barber's Shop
MONTGOMERY, N.C., Jan. 22.—W. C. Bagby, who resides near here, was shaved in a barber shop for the first time in his life a few days ago. Bagby went to Duke with a nephew. He lived 22 miles from that town practically all of his life, but had never been shaved before. The nephew persuaded him to get a shave and hair cut. When the barber had finished with Bagby he remarked, "My face feels like it's certainly feels funny." It was the first shave Bagby had in more than 40 years.

Vegetable and scrubbing brushes should be kept in a bathtub soap holder, turned over the kitchen sink.

SPEAKING OF MIRRORS.

There is a great deal said among artists about the hanging of pictures so that they will get the proper light.

Some of the artists of home life about properly hanging that highly interesting form of picture (perhaps to most of us most interesting in the world) known as a mirror.

How often do you find a mirror with a really good light on it either by night or by day. To say nothing of one that has been so skillfully hung that it gets a good light both times.

When Back Hair Comes Back. For years we have bracketed lights beside our mirrors which I contend were almost useless. Lately the idea seems to have begun to percolate that a really give a light that one can share by or set one's back hair up, properly by, the light must be over the mirror, and some distance in front of it.

Perhaps the lack of back hair among so large a proportion of the female population will retard further research along this line, but as I am one of those who believe that back hair will inevitably come back (unintentional, I assure you) I trust attention will again be focused on the proper lighting of mirrors.

Of course there are advantages in having mirrors too well lighted. There is no doubt that a little too much light will spoil the broth. Which is a fact in human psychology that I wonder the shop-keeper does not make thorough use of. It seems to me that there can be nothing more important to the purveyor of feminine wares than the choice of a becoming light for the mirror and a becoming mirror for the light.

The Mirror A Good Saleswoman. Mirrors vary almost as widely as the fact they reflect. Some of them have ugly dispositions and seem to delight in calling attention to the enlarged pores and the wrinkles from nose to mouth, and the chin sag that forever beset all who have passed beyond that Elygum known as first youth. Others seem to have a tender, kindly way with them and send us away cheered thinking perhaps we are not so difficult to look at as we had feared at times. A mirror like this, properly lighted with a soft but adequate light, will sell more hats or frocks I am sure than the best saleswoman.

A milliner I know who has recently moved into new quarters complained to me that her business was not so good as it had been in the old quarters. She thought it was the location. After I tried on a hat in front of her handsome new mirror, but one of those with an unkind disposition and placed in the most uncompromising light possible, I suspected at once what the trouble was.

But He Wasn't Going To Wash His Face.

Ever since Eve paused on the edge of the pool where she had gone to drink and stood looking enchanted at her new playmate, and called Adam to see, and found out the identity of the lady in the pool, and learned to come and look at her when in lack of diversion, mirrors have been a great source of interest to humankind. I started to say to the feminine sex, and then suddenly remembered that as soon as Adam thought Eve wasn't keeping tabs on him, he sneaked back and stayed so long at the pool that Eve got worried and went to look for him and finally found him gazing enraptured at himself, whereas he had pretended to have been about to wash his face.

In view of which preoccupation with mirrors I think it is surprising that a more thorough science of mirrors, how to choose them, and how to light them has not been devised. Let us hope it is one of the developments of the coming juster century.

Scalds Caused Boy's Death After Bath At School.

Mrs. Mother College Brother Bathed Him for Being Dirty—Director's Story—Coroner Regrets Brother Not Called and Adjourns Inquest.

Before a Coroner's Jury and in a crowded court-room, the death-bed story of a scalded child was told, amid sobs, by a grief-stricken mother recently.

Little eight-year-old Hector Galaran, one of the youngest boys in the village of the Brothers of Mercy at St. John's, had been "careless" with his person one day at school—had mother," he said, as he lay in the Children's Ward at the St. Justine Hospital, "mother, I was careless,

NERVOUS BREAK-DOWN

Pains in Back and Legs Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Ford, Ontario.—"I had a nervous break-down, as it is called, with severe pains in my back and legs, and with fainting spells which left me very weak. I was nervous and could not sleep for fear as I should and spent much time in bed. I was in this state, more or less, for over two years, before Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended to me by my doctor. Before I had taken five boxes I was sitting up in bed, and when the first bottle was taken I was out of bed and able to walk around the house. My sickness I had been told to get some one to look after me for me, but thanks to the Vegetable Compound I am now able to look after myself. I have been in turn with the Vegetable Compound and I certainly recommend it to any one who is not enjoying good health. I am quite well now. If you use these facts as a guide, you will be benefited."—Mrs. J. SHEPHERD, 130 Newmarket Avenue, Ford, Ontario.

Nervousness, irritability, painful runs, run-down feelings, weak women suffering from these troubles, which they so often have, should give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. All druggists sell this medicine.

CHILDHOOD

"Come along and follow me To the land of Used-to-be! Come along and let me show you Love and laughter and delight! Come, you little children gay, Where your daddy used to play; 'Tis a fairland of pleasure, Where the skies are ever bright!"

So I led them gayly back, Over Time's long, winding track, To the garden of my boyhood, Where I played my merry games; And I called that glorious crew Of glad playmates which I knew, And we watched them come a-run-ning, As I shouted out their names.

"Jim and Fred and Jane and May! Come," I called, "and share our play! Come, you little bright-eyed Mary!" Back they came on flying feet; And we played the old games o'er As we did in days before, And I asked my trusting youngsters: "Was a childhood e'er so sweet?"

Then they gazed in quaint surprise At the question in my eyes, And they said: "We, too, are merry, These are games we also play! All that used to be for you, Now in summer-time we do, You are old, and you're forgotten, Childhood's just the same to-day!"

Important Warning!

There is only one "Congoleum" and you will know it by the Gold Seal pasted on every pattern. "Congoleum" is a registered trade name and the exclusive property of The Congoleum Company. If you want genuine "Congoleum" take care to ask for it by name and refuse imitations.

The Gold Seal pasted on every Congoleum Rug is a guarantee of highest quality and an assurance that you are getting value for your money.

Congoleum Rugs are waterproof, dust-proof and sanitary, they lie flat, will not turn up at the edges, and do not require to be tacked to your floors. At house cleaning time you can take them up in a few minutes. With Congoleum Rugs on your floors, you have no troublesome sweeping or beating to do; five minutes with a damp cloth will suffice to make a Congoleum Rug look like new.

In addition to the above good points, Congoleum Rugs may be had in the most beautiful patterns and colorings imaginable and at quarter the cost of a carpet square. Congoleum Rugs are more stylish than floor canvas; people of refinement prefer Congoleum Rugs. Ask for the booklet "Modern Rugs for Modern Homes." #### LOW DOWN.

We who live in sunny lands, where there is no sleet or snow, gather in exultant bands every winter day or so, telling how the record stands back in Maine or Idaho. "Back in Bilgetown, my old home," says

WALT MARCH, a glad and chortling wight, "it is colder far than Nome, colder than an arctic night, where the bear and reindeer roam, which explains my keen delight. It is good to think of guys, friends we knew in other years, living where the blizzard flies, icicles upon their ears, while we loaf 'neath azure skies, drinking cool denatured beers." It is surely mean and base, gloating over stricken friends, who are living in a place where the winter seldom ends, where the cold is a disgrace, and all kinds of torture 'ends. "Back in Kansas," I remark, mingling with the grinning hosts, "bitter mornings freeze the bark from the granite hitching posts; here the land is like a park, living up to spring-time boasts." In the morning how we wait for the helpful Daily Press, knowing that it will relate tales of people in distress; people in the Old Home State find their climate such a mess! Half the pleasure of a life in a calm and balmy dell is in reading to your wife all the papers have to tell of the elemental strife where your old time neighbors dwell. "Jasper Jenkins froze his feet," "Peter Piffle froze his beard;" in the trusty morning sheet tales like these have long appeared, and our lyses seem fine and sweet, as we read the tidings weired.

According to Detective Laroche, on the stand, the boy, in answer to questions at the hospital, told him that the Brother had placed him in boiling water.

Dr. R. Fontaine, morgue autopsist stated that the child had died from second degree burns about the lower part of the body showing greater intensity at the bottom of the back.

Coroner McMahon deplored the fact that the institution had not deemed it necessary to send Brother Umar to the "material witness in the case" especially when a "request" rather than an "order" had been given. "This is an order this time," the Coroner concluded.

An Indomitable Heroine of the Mining Camps

VICTORIA, B.C.—(Can. Press).—Nellie Cashman, whose death at the age of 81 following a brief illness was announced in recent telegraph despatches, won the admiration and respect of mining men from Arizona to the Yukon by her indomitable pluck and generosity.

A slight little figure, only five feet, three inches tall, she followed the gold rushes of the last half century, "washing" hundreds of miles over the snowy wastes of the frozen north, "grub-staking" "sourdoughs" and "chucklers" on their road to fortune, giving away with a lavish hand in the sacred cause of charity the money she earned by sheer grit and industry. Her whole life was the embodiment of self-sacrifice and her last dying wish was the request that she be buried in Victoria, so that the money which might have been entailed on sending her remains away for burial would be available for distribution among the poor.

It was the opening years of the '80s that Nellie Cashman came from her home in Ireland to Boston, Mass., to join a married sister, a visit destined to end in sorrow, for death shortly took away the sister and her husband, and left the care of four little orphans on the shoulders of this young girl. Nothing daunted, the little girl took up the burden, and one of her first jobs was that of messenger in a Boston hotel.

This was but the first of many ventures which she tried, all of which enabled her to rear the children and give them a sound education.

Impelled by her responsibilities to some quick way of making money, Miss Cashman decided to enter on the quest for gold in British Columbia, then experiencing the fever of the "rush." She came west in 1874 and went up to the Cassiar, in northern British Columbia, where she quickly decided that prospecting was not so certain of remuneration as merchandising. She obtained supplies from Victoria and opened a store and restaurant in the centre of the camps at Dease Lake, selling equipment and food supplies to the gold-seekers.

From the very outset Miss Cashman displayed a generous sympathy which militated against her financial success, but at the same time made her beloved of all with whom she came in contact. Throughout her whole life sentiment came before business, and many a prospector, hungry and despondent at failure, found fresh courage under the influence of her ready sympathy. Many a present dry millionaire owes his start to the "grub-stake" provided by Nellie Cashman.

From Cassiar Miss Cashman made frequent trips to Victoria in quest of supplies for the replenishment of her store.

During all this period the intrepid young pioneer faced all the hardships incidental to the rough and ready life of a mining camp, and made hosts of friends among the prospectors by her pluck and industry.

After her Cassiar venture she returned to Victoria for a time, but the rush to the Tombstone, Arizona, gold field found her again on the trail in 1877. Here again she opened a store and restaurant, doing most of the drudgery herself, and renewing her friendship with men who had been in the Cassiar and making new friends.

She had an amazing personality, with a sunny smile and a most infectious laugh.

In the early 'eighties she grub-staked many of the State's present millionaires. Sometimes she was repaid, but sometimes the recipients of her kindness found their footsteps dogged by ill-luck, and she suffered with them. On various occasions her generosity was abused by men who accepted her help when in trouble, only to forget her kindness when fortune smiled their way, but these adventures never soured her disposition or prevented her from helping others.

After a further stay in Victoria of some years, Miss Cashman was fired anew to resume her adventures by the stories of the Klondike strike in 1898. She again collected an equipment, and many a miner going North Dawson. She again opened a store and when necessary did some nursing.

Koyukuk was the next place which called her, and it was at this camp that she first made a venture into mining for herself, staking several quartz claims and undertaking the hard work unaided.

She met with varying success, but found herself crippled in her efforts by lack of money. Through all her years of labor, her adopted family of nieces and nephews had first claim on her generosity, but in addition her purse strings were never closed against the needs of the unfortunate, and until the day of her death she put herself last, stinting herself to help others.

As her children showed signs of wealth Miss Cashman made several trips south in later years to interest capital in their development. She raised money in Seattle in 1921 to buy equipment for her group of claims on Nolan Creek.

As recently as last year, at the age of 80, this intrepid woman mushed from Koyukuk to Seward, Alaska, 750 miles. The Yukon estimate of this woman is best judged by the following item which appeared in a Seward paper last year:

"In from the Koyukuk Thanksgiving night, seventeen days out from there by dog team, came Nellie Cashman, who needs no introduction being that she is the Simon-pure 'Miss Alaska.' From the Farthest North mining camp to the City of New York is her trail trip this time, and any obstacles on the trail between here and New York might just as well get out of the way, for she's hit the trail and is going through."

This trip was destined to be her last. An attack of pneumonia left her weak and she returned to Victoria. She scooped to be carried into the hospital here, insisting on "walking in on her own two legs," and she was there but a short time when she died, closing the career of one of the most remarkable women in the west.

The Emerging Pacific
(Chicago Daily Tribune.)

Guns may never boom across the storms and surf of the Pacific, and soldiers may never charge across its beaches for new conquests, but the chances that they will are enough to make prevention worth the effort.

Australia looks to 1923 for the next crisis in the Pacific, says Floyd Gibbons; and, though four years may be too short a time to brew the broths of a new war, the danger is still present. The Pacific problem is rising like a slow pillar of smoke, and for the English speaking peoples near the great oceanic basin it is obscuring all else.

This is illustrated once more in Australia's reported refusal to attend the British imperial conference to discuss the Geneva protocol. It is not unlikely that New Zealand and Canada will take a similar attitude. A protocol that compromises the policy of the white people on the Pacific in order to further the divergent interest of European England and Japan will not be accepted gracefully. It will not be accepted by Australia. New Zealand and Canada for the same reason that the United States would refuse it.

For Australia's relations to London are not unlike western America's relations to the Atlantic seaboard. Slowly the Pacific policy of the English speaking peoples and the Atlantic policy are diverging. With the increased accent of world interest on Pacific affairs western policy inevitably will come into the foreground. Australia, western America and New Zealand have discovered this emergence of westernism into world policy, and it is time for Washington and London to find it out.

Australia, it is said, prefers to wait until Mr. Coolidge calls a conference in Washington on further arms limitation and on Pacific problems. In that western America and Australia are thinking alike. If Mr. Coolidge would call a supplementary conference, say in Honolulu or in Vancouver, of English speaking peoples on the Pacific, it would be still better.

Ancient Temples Found in Syria.

Archaeologists Unearth Greek Temples, Statues and Tombs.

Beirut, Syria, Jan. 30.—(A.P.)—Statues of the Goddess Astarte, various inscriptions, Egyptian emblems, and two Greek Temples, one probably of Jupiter and the other of Athena, have been unearthed in excavations carried on under the direction of Professor Paradise, of Strasbourg, and Prof. Harvuzny, of Prague.

The operations under Prof. Paradise cleared the place where was situated, Seljaecia, first capital of the Mosaic kings. Here the two Greek temples, dating to the fourth century, B.C., were discovered. A monument erected by a Roman commandant of the Second Century, A.D., and numerous Greek tombs, also were found.

Prof. Harvuzny's excavations led to discoveries in the vicinity of Telfrad, the ancient, Arpad, which is frequently mentioned in the history of the Assyrian kings. The excavations show that gigantic fortresses were built in this region 1,600 years before the Christian era.

The unfortunate feature, it was added, is the testimony of the two refugees that the Greeks were murdered by Greeks, and not Bulgarians. This fact was easily demonstrable by the Greek authorities.

The Tullis incident referred to by the Bulgarian Foreign Office involved the killing of seventeen Bulgarian peasants by Greek guards at the village of Tullis, in northern Macedonia. An international mixed commission composed of British, French, Greek and Bulgarian representatives found after investigation that the Bulgarians were killed without justification or provocation. It attributed the responsibility to the local authorities and charged the head of the authorities with grave negligence.

This is the highest rainfall figure ever registered there, and the record date back sixty-five years.

"I JUST DIDN'T SAVE"

THAT is why I am here. That is why the others are here. In my younger days I made plenty of money. But it was a case of 'easy come, easy go'. If I had only formed the habit of putting something away out of my earnings I would be comfortable and independent today.

A pathetic story this, told in bitterness by an inmate of a home for dependent poor—a man, old and penniless because of a bad beginning in life.

It is a story of wilful neglect and disregard for the future. In its main essentials it is the story of a vast number of men—men thoughtless and short-sighted—men who blindly refuse to consider to-morrow seriously.

All about us we see these men. The evening of their lives is a time of drudgery, if not of humiliation. They pay a heavy price for the folly of a wasted youth.

A few dollars a year saved now—when you can spare the money—and invested in an Imperial Endowment policy will secure a guaranteed monthly pension to support you when you are old. Or, it will provide for your family should death call you early.

THE KING VS. ALEXANDER ROONEY.

When the hearing in the above matter was resumed yesterday morning, Mr. Fox called Wm. L. Donnelly, deputy Auditor General. Sworn and examined the witness told of the times he audited Mr. Rooney's books, and the relation they had to the accounts kept by the accused. Witness checked up the moneys that came into Mr. Rooney's office through Mr. Rooney. He discovered in November, 1923, that money received in October and part of November, had not been passed to Mr. Young. Witness with accused and Mr. Berteau attended an audit in December when Mr. Rooney stated to the auditor general that his cash was short about $1,900.00. After a brief cross-examination by Mr. Dunfield, Auditor General Berteau was called and examined by Mr. Fox. Witness made a personal audit of Rooney's books. An audit of his books was always made at the close of the financial year. Sometime in September witness asked accused to have his books ready for audit. This request was repeated several times, and then he had to appeal to the Minister. The audit took place at the end of October, and it was found that the books did not balance by between $1,900.00 and $2,000.00 in cash. Witness then asked the accused to make his books up to date so that the audit could be completed. Subsequently the audit was completed and witness found that up to June 30th, 1924, there was a shortage of about $10,000.00. Questioned about the documents from which he made the audit witness was asked would it be proper for the accused to destroy them. This question was objected to by Counsel for accused. Objection was also raised to the putting in evidence the witnesses summary of the audit. The objection was upheld by the Chief Justice.

Cross-examined by Mr. Dunfield witness said Mr. Rooney never definitely refused to give him the books. The audit from June, 1923, was entirely in the hands of Mr. Howley. Witness knew that there was an outstanding balance of over $7,000 against certain parties. Asked to name the parties witness named the St. John's West Liberal Association owing $6,023.66 and the late Prime Minister's Department as owing $2,170.00. These debts, however, were not included in the amounts which made up the total shortage charged against Mr. Rooney. Witness said he reported shortages to the head of the Department concerned, but it was not his duty to collect unpaid balances. Destruction of documents after an audit might not affect matters unless it were necessary to go back over the audit. Witness knew of no destruction of vouchers ever taking place without the consent of the Government. This consent was always necessary before documents are destroyed. Witness thought that Mr. Rooney's work could be done in Mr. Young's office. Witness had no fault with Mr. Rooney's books previous to the fiscal year 1923-24.

James Howley, Auditor for the Postal Telegraphs Department, examined by Mr. Fox said he was instructed in April, 1924, to audit portions of Mr. Rooney's accounts. He found a cash shortage of $1,385, and that payments for monthly accounts charged in the cash book amounting to $84.00 were not paid over to the cashier. There were 27 or 28 days from September 14th, 1923 up to December in which no moneys were paid into the cashier by Mr. Rooney. Other cash payments made the total up to $2,317.44. In reference to accounts of Grenfell Institution and William Noseworthy and Balne Johnstone & Company, witness could not find entries in accused's books covering certain payments made. Witness said he enquired for some consolidated sheets when making the investigation, but was told that they had probably been destroyed. The grand total shortage he discovered was $12,370.

Cross-examined by Mr. Dunfield, witness said he could get nearly all the information he desired from the press copy books, but he did not get them until a considerable time after the investigation started. Witness did not think that the I.O.U.s. of $149.00 given to Wylie were included in the general shortage. The same applied to the Grenfell, Balne Johnstone & Co. and Noseworthy accounts. Witness said that at no time he gave Mr. Wylie instructions to take charge of the office or cash, and there was no record of the days when Mr. Rooney was present or absent from his office. After the cross-examination Mr. Fox announced that all the witnesses for the Crown had been called. By permission of the Court Mr. Wylie was recalled and questioned by Mr. McNeilly about Mr. Rooney being at the office during certain days in September, 1923. Witness said that it was possible that he might have gone shooting. He always went shooting with Mr. LeMessurier, Inspector General Hutchings and Mr. Pratt, but he could not say if he did or not during September, 1923.

hands the cash for this over to the cash boy, and then when the boy's back is turned takes out the five-dollar bill and puts it in his pocket, that is larceny. But if he, after making the sale, fails to hand over the money to the cash boy, but puts it in his pocket right off, that is embezzlement. In the present case Rooney is only a carrier of money, he had to pass over his receipts to Mr. Young, so that the worst that can be proven against him is embezzlement. The evidence of the auditors shows that there was a shortage of $12,366.91, but this fact of itself does not prove that the accused stole it, and without further evidence is not sufficient to find a man guilty. The evidence of the auditors has shown that neither of the three has taken up the whole of the accounts, each of them had done a portion and took it for granted that what the other fellow had done was correct, without endeavoring to find out for themselves if such was the case. Even if there was a shortage as stated, it could not be said that Rooney alone took it. There was evidence of Rooney's drunkenness, of his being away shooting and for other causes, all of which had to be borne in mind, and Mr. McNeilly would dare to say that the actual recipient of the money was Mr. Wylie. Mr. Wylie had stated that he always kept his cash locked up, but the evidence of Mr. Robert Walsh on this point was sufficient, and the jury could decide for themselves which they would believe. The only shred of evidence against the accused was Wylie's going to the Controller's Department, and where it was stated that Rooney had spent between $120 and $180 a week on liquor. On this point the jury had to decide for themselves as to whether this was true, but Counsel would say it was an absolute lie that Wylie should swear such a thing especially now after he had a raise in his salary. Even if it were true, the total amount would not come near the alleged shortage. Were the jury to assume that if all this drinking was going on that Rooney had to stand all the expense, the very openness of the way he did these things was proof against any intention of wrong doing. The jury had to carefully consider what motive Wylie had in putting over all the blame on Mr. Rooney. The evidence of Mr. Berteau was that Rooney was alright up to June, and if this was the case, either the figures are wrong or Mr. Berteau is wrong. If Rooney put the whole of this amount in his pocket, taking it in five dollar bills, his whole time would be taken marching back and forth to the desk where the money was. The smaller the amount taken the more entries would have to be made to cover up the guilt, and it would be only reasonable to suppose that if wrong doing was contemplated that two or three large amounts would be taken thus making it easier to cover up. Mr. McNeilly went on taking each charge separately, and submitting that there was no foundation given in the evidence. Referring to the letter he said that the only evidence this could produce was that Wylie was the thief and that Rooney was an accessory. This letter also proved that the executive had believed Mr. Rooney innocent, that Mr. Hawco was to instruct the accused to return to work, and that even the Inspector General was confident of his innocence. Concluding Counsel asked for the prisoner the same justice as would be given to a man of the highest or lowest rank in the community and in meting out this justice he asked them could they, on the evidence before them, find the accused guilty of the charges against him.

Mr. C. J. Fox, Counsel for the Crown, who followed, congratulated Mr. McNeilly on the address he had made on behalf of the accused, and with certain things that had been said he was in entire agreement. It was the duty of the jury to judge the case only according to the evidence as submitted to them, and not on anything they may have heard on the street or anywhere else. And, secondly that it is the duty of the Crown to prove beyond the shadow of a reasonable doubt that the accused is guilty. It is not for the prisoner to prove his innocence. Counsel then reviewed in detail the charges under which the accused was charged. The accused might well have objected to being tried on so many counts at the same time. If application had been made to the court, it might have been ruled that certain charges were to be tried now and others at a later date, but to do this would be to involve the accused in a continuation of the suspense which he has suffered since last year. The fact of so many charges being made at the same time is also an advantage to the accused, as it shows the weakness of the Crown case. If they were satisfied that the accused had stolen the $12,366.91, why was there so much trouble taken with the smaller amounts. The accused is charged with larceny and embezzlement, but he cannot be found guilty of both. To explain the difference he would cite a case. If a salesman in a store makes a five dollar sale, and must only be proved beyond the shadow of a reasonable doubt. It was not necessary that there should be no doubt left in the minds of the jury. He regretted the instructions made by the learned Counsel for the defence that there had been desperate efforts made to convict the accused. There is no foundation in fact for any such insinuations against the Crown. Mr. McNeilly knows, or should know, that it is the duty of the Crown to bring all the facts before the jury, and having done so to rest the case in their hands. In this case nothing more than the movement of Mr. Fox called attention were reported to obtain a conviction, nothing more was done than a mere submission of all the facts, done in an impartial manner in order that the jury would impartially do its duty. Certain things had been said against a Crown witness which were altogether unworthy of Mr. McNeilly, as was the insinuation that because Mr. Wylie obtained a raise in his salary that the authorities were behind the movement. Mr. Fox called attention to the impartial report of the auditors, on Rooney's books, which shows that there was a shortage. The evidence shows that in the fall of 1923, when an audit had been taken, there was discovered that twenty-nine days had not been accounted for and that subsequently there were 58 days unaccounted for in connection with the records that were not available. Mr. Rooney was not going to sign any sheets which he did not receive. The jury had been asked to believe that Mr. Wylie was a liar, and Mr. Fox asked the jury if Mr. Wylie struck them as the type of man who would be an intriguer. Wylie was merely a subordinate clerk, and when he received a direction he had to carry it out to the best of his knowledge and belief. Perhaps the jury was astounded, but that does not say that it is not true. Merely that throwing it out as being a lie. The amount of money was proved to be spent and something had to happen to make it disappear. Cut it down to any amount desired and it still stands there was misappropriation of funds, Rooney had no right to borrow money, if what he had done was called borrowing, and when he received the money he must have known it was not coming out of Wylie's pocket. Referring to the Walsh incident, Mr. Fox stated that many a man has sworn to a thing believing it to be fact, when it was not the case, but this does not prove that the man who swore was a liar or a perjurer. There was no evidence to show that the money seen in that drawer was the property of the Department, and Wylie had said that when he kept the money it was in a cash box locked up in a cupboard on the right hand side of the desk. Some vouchers were not available and Mr. Rooney had no right to destroy them. Never has it been known that records of any sort were destroyed except by order of the Department on the authority of the Executive Government. Regarding the falsification charges, the Crown alleges that failure to enter amounts that were received is proof of guilt of intent to defraud. It is for the jury to agree or disagree with this contention. Mr. Fox went on to review the evidence, and concluded by asking the jury for an important consideration of the facts.

Beginning his charge to the jury at 4.40 p.m., the Chief Justice said that the case had been put so clearly by Counsel that it was not necessary for him to review the evidence at any length. It was the duty of the court to assist the jury in sifting the evidence, and in the performance of his duties he had the right to express his opinions. It was the jury's province to sift the evidence but they were not to discard the whole of the evidence of a witness because he is contradicted in any one point by other evidence. The indictment consisted of a number of counts, and each had to be considered separately. The first count of stealing was followed by a second one of embezzlement for the same sum. The third count then follows charges of larceny of particular sums. After which there is a charge of falsification of accounts and destruction of documents. Dealing with the first main charge, his Lordship pointed out that it was an alternative count to that of embezzlement. Explaining the difference between embezzlement and stealing he said that the law regarded it as larceny when a person takes or borrows money without the consent of the owner. Embezzlement is intercepting money belonging to another. If in considering the charge the jury found that the particular money was in possession of the Government then the charge would be larceny. There was no doubt as to the amount of money which came into the accused and what sums were passed on to the cashier. The difference amounted to $12,370. Being an employee of the Government and the responsible officer, the fact that the accused had a subordinate who held the keys of his desk is not of itself an answer to the charge. In their deliberations they should weigh whether the drawer was a place of deposit for Government monies. On the question of evidence which sustains the Crown charges, the Chief Justice reviewed the evidence of the Auditors, Messrs. Donnelly and Berteau. The evidence of Mr. Wylie there was corroborated in part through the submission of the letter from Rooney asking for a loan. If they regarded the letter as a corroboration of Wylie's story of the borrowings then the charge would be larceny. The Chief Justice spoke strongly on the practice of borrowing with the consent of the owner. It would be found by investigation that half the people convicted of embezzlement had the intention of paying back the money which they borrowed. With regard to the burning of the vouchers, the jury had to consider if their destruction had an element of fraud, the same consideration they should give to the charge of omitting to make entries in the books of amounts received. If they found that the omission were willful they could infer and would be justified in finding that they were fraudulently done. Concluding, the Chief Justice pointed out that each count in the indictment was an indictment in itself and should be so considered. At 5.30 the jury retired to consider the evidence and returned to court at 6.30 to ask if in the 55 days the accused was charged with not sending in returns was included the days when he was out shooting. They were told that this was so. To the question as to what amount had been passed over to the general cashier on the day Mr. Rooney returned from the shooting trip, the books would show this, they were told. They also asked if the accused could be held responsible if money was taken from the drawer by another person. The Chief Justice told them that in this case they had to be guided by the evidence, and decide if there was evidence to show that it had been taken by another person, but there was no charge that money had been taken by another person. At 9.25 the Jury returned to Court and through their foreman, Mr. W. Thompson, reported that they found "gross negligence and conduct on the part of the accused who was entirely

HOSPITAL WORKER IS GIVEN
LONG FURLOUGH

Winnipeg Hospital to Lose Efficient Superintendent of Past 14 Years. An interview was obtained recently from the Free Press with Brigadier General Payne, who, after 14 years' service as superintendent of Grace hospital, Winnipeg, has been granted a furlough of one year. Three years ago, General Payne was on the verge of a nervous breakdown; and the furlough has been granted on the suggestion of General Booth. It will not interfere in the nature of a holiday, but from official responsibility; for General Payne hopes to spend the summer months in taking a course at Columbia university at New York for professional improvement and efficiency.

General Payne was reluctant to speak for himself, except as one merged in the work of the institution it had been his mission and assignment to direct. She avoided biographical details and merely stated that it had been her single and absorbing idea from an early age to do her part in holding the standard of higher nursing in a moral and spiritual way. She desired for service in the military field joined in her with a leaning toward nursing service, and with the years had come an opportunity to help in this way and she was devoted to social problems.

General Payne then turned to the subject of her chief interest—the work of Grace hospital. "It has been the aim of the hospital," she said, "to provide professional and nursing care of the highest order. A large proportion of the patients bring their own private treatment in addition to this, and, of course, the social side of the work, which reaches to the unfortunate portion of humanity, the principle governing Grace hospital in all cases is service to humanity. The nurses here are trained and taught the idea of service as an underlying feature.

"Besides the regular hospital service and social service, we have a training school for nurses, in which we have given a 15 months' course in practical nursing which thoroughly prepares for that particular branch of work.

"Fourteen Years' Service. During my 14 years' service at the hospital, there have been 13,822 births, 13,822 total days' treatment for all 723,822. On the social side, which the hospital also conducts, we have revived and helped those 11,569 babies who have been born within these walls. I sincerely hope all the babies who have been born in Grace hospital will grow up to be worthy citizens, so that their parents in days to come may be justly proud.

"I would like to commend the work of the nursing staff and officers of the hospital who have stood nobly by

Salvation Army is change of heart, we are glad to report that 1,800 of these 2,106 young women have within the walls of this institution professed to have been converted to a fresh outlook upon life and higher moral standing.

"We have had a total of 13,822 births. The number of days' treatment for all children in the institution has been 338,648. We have five nurseries to accommodate infants who are discharged from the hospital with the parents; and we have also accommodation for children in cases where there are two or three others beside the expected newcomer, so that these may come to the hospital with the mother and, when the baby is born, all go home together.

The Nursery. "We have also a nursery filled with babies whose parents are unable to give them loving care—in cases, for instance, where the mother has died and the father is left to struggle on with four or five children. Undernourished babies from outside districts are also brought to us for care and treatment. We have also been able, in co-operation, to arrange for the adoption of babies into suitable homes.

"These are some of the branches of the many-sided work that Grace hospital is doing for the public. I fully appreciate the consideration that has been given me during my connection with the institution for so many years. It is with a feeling of deep regret that I lay aside the work for a time; but in the meantime I intend to fit myself for further and more efficient service on the professional side of my life. As one means toward this end, it is my desire to spend the summer months of my furlough at Columbia university, New York. There can be no discounting the advantages of professional training. It has been the aim of my life to serve humanity in my sphere to the highest possible degree. I love the work at Grace hospital, especially those branches of it which are directed to giving everybody in this world a chance.

"I would like to put on record my personal appreciation of the help of Lieutenant-Governor and Lady Alkins, His Worship the Mayor and the members of the city council, and the community at large. Winnipeg for the past 14 years has been in my parish, with its joys, its sorrows, its social problems, and difficulties. Together with my devoted nursing staff we have tried to do our part in helping alleviate the suffering humanity.

Thanks Our Doctors. "To the doctors in general, who have been regular attendants and have brought their patients here, I extend thanks for their assistance and the interest in which has enabled us to carry on the good work which carries out the fundamental principles of the Salvation Army.

"I would like to say something to those 11,569 babies who have been born within these walls. I sincerely hope all the babies who have been born in Grace hospital will grow up to be worthy citizens, so that their parents in days to come may be justly proud.

"I would like to commend the work of the nursing staff and officers of the hospital who have stood nobly by me with their faithful and earnest desire to serve and further to express my profound respect and esteem for the late Dr. Charles E. Sugden. Memories such as he left with us can never die. And I would like to mention particularly Dr. J. E. Coulter, Dr. W. G. Campbell, Dr. Arthur Burridge, Dr. A. W. Allum. And in connection with the prenatal clinic, which we started during the past year for the purpose of giving instructions to expectant mothers, I should like to thank on behalf of our institution the doctors who aided us. Dr. Lennox Arthur is in charge of this department. Undernourished children are taken in for care and treatment under the supervision of Dr. O. J. Day and Dr. Murray Clarke. To these and to Dr. W. J. McCowan, bacteriologist in connection with the hospital, I would like to give special thanks.

"Finally, I would acknowledge with heartfelt gratitude the valued advice and assistance at all times of the territorial headquarters, Commissioner Chas. Rich and Mrs. Rich, who are in charge in Canada, and Colonel and Mrs. Knott, chief secretaries of the headquarters staff.

Women's Happiest Age

"What is woman's happiest age?" The question was put by a young man—and it set most of us thinking.

"Speaking personally, I should say between 55 and 65," said a well-preserved woman whose age lay in the period she named. "It is when, married, her family by that time is grown-up and she has time to carry on her favourite pursuits."

"It is quite a fallacy that childhood is the happiest time," said a young married woman. "I wasn't a happy child, although my parents could afford to give me the necessities, if not many of the luxuries of life. I was introspective, sensitive, and reserved—a rather objectionable child many people thought. I dabbled yet I dived passionately to be liked. I think I really found myself after I left school."

Delights of School-Days. "I look back upon my school-days as the best period of my life," affirmed a professional woman, "because, I think, of the easy companionships, the sports, and opportunities for winning laurels. I've never won anything since. And one didn't analyse motives, or build up artificial barriers between oneself and one's friends as one did afterwards."

Grandmother's Wisdom. "I repeated our talk to Grandmother, who is over 80 and the wisest woman I know—not wise because of the length of her years, but because of her interest and knowledge concerning her fellow-beings.

"The happiest time of a woman's life," she said, "is when she learns contentment—which is a matter of the heart, not of circumstances."

Grandmother, I think, has answered the question. Don't you?

Radiology
(By DR. HAM.)
K.D.K.A. Pittsburg has temporarily changed his wave length from 328 to 309 metres. When a new wave is fixed the public will be notified.

The location of your Radio set has a lot to do with reception. You will get better results in a frame building than you will in a concrete house which has a super-structure of steel. The steel structure is a conductor of electro-magnetic waves, and consequently radio energy is absorbed before it reaches your receiver. You will also find that a receiver will not work so well when placed near the stove or grate, as it will when tucked away in a corner all by itself.

To keep your storage battery in good condition, it should be charged often. Never allow your battery to go below 1.8 volts per cell. You will soon ruin it if you do.

According to the figures quoted to the Chamber of Commerce in Spokane, Wash., a 500 watt broadcasting station would cost $20,000.00 to install. Our local stations of course do not cost anything like that figure, but the expense is considerable.

Ray J. C. Joyce of Wesley Church announced on Sunday that a concert was to be held this Thursday evening to help defray the cost of the transmitter. This concert will be broadcasted and promises to be the radio treat of the season. Those of us who enjoy the "Good" stuff that Wesley Church sends out, have a chance to show our appreciation.

It seems to me that there is a whole lot of improvement to be made with loud speakers. The most important part of any loud speaker is the diaphragm. This has hitherto been made of thin steel or a similar substance. A patent has lately been is-

"You'd better take that blanket off, He hasn't got the Hopping Cough," advised Dr. Quack, the famous duck doctor, after taking the Old Red Rooster's pulse, as I mentioned in the last story.

"Now, let me see your tongue," he added, and when the Old Red Rooster opened his bill, wise Dr. Quack looked down his throat with a telescope.

"Ha, ha," he quacked the next minute. "Have you been eating a caraway bun?"

"Cock-a-doodle-do, I gobbled up just two," answered the Old Red Rooster.

"Well, that accounts for it," went on good Dr. Quack. "There's a little caraway seed down there that tickles your windpipe. But you haven't got the Hopping Cough. Only rabbits have it. Wait a minute, you need not worry 'bout that pesky seed," fastening a bit of chewing gum on the end of a pencil, the famous duck doctor touched the seed and then pulled it out.

"Dear me, wasn't kind Uncle Lucky happy after that. Much happier than the Old Red Rooster, I'm thinking. I guess that lazy old fowl was disappointed not to have an excuse to loaf for a week.

"Now, you'd better go out to the Little Red Barn," advised Dr. Quack. "And when the clock on the steeple strikes two don't forget to cockle-do-do."

After the old fowl had gone and Little Miss Mousie had locked the kitchen door, kind-hearted Uncle Lucky picked up the telephone and ordered a taxi for Dr. Quack.

"No, you shan't go home on foot," said the wise old gentleman rabbit. "I'd take you home in the Luckynow-

Celebrating G. F. S. Jubilee

The Girls' Friendly Society was begun by Mrs. Townsend in 1875, and is now preparing to commemorate its jubilee. On the 18th of June a special service is to be held in St. Paul's Cathedral, at which the Archbishop of Canterbury is to preach, to be followed by a Thanksgiving Service at Westminster Abbey, on July 2nd. At the Albert Hall there is to be a Pageant and Grand Rally, and Her Majesty the Queen has promised to attend. The Jubilee will be permanently commemorated through the opening of the Townsend Memorial House to be the headquarters of the Society in future. This is a handsome structure now nearing completion at Westminster. The contributions to the building fund acknowledged to the end of last year exceeded $100,000.00, but further contributions have been promised from the Overseas Branches as well as from England, and the building for which financial arrangements are completed will cost three times this sum. The Society has in England and Wales alone, 150,000 members, and some 35,000 associates, besides its very large membership throughout the Empire and in the United States of America. As part of its jubilee programme, the Society is observing a Day of Intercessory Prayer during the 24 hours of March 5th, the Branches in the different countries being responsible for the hours assigned to them. The Newfoundland Branch will keep the hours from noon to 1 p.m., and 8 to 9 p.m.

Crowded House at Casino Last Night

GOOD PLAY, WELL ACTED BY ARLIE MARKS PLAYERS.

Last night was the fourth performance of "The Sins of the Fathers" by the Arlie Marks Players, and judging from the consensus of opinion and the tremendous reception accorded the bill, it appears that the production would stand even a longer run. The play has been beautifully mounted and directed. The settings are a delight to the eye. The acting of the entire company is good and each character is cleverly interpreted. Miss Arlie Marks, the dainty and winsome leading lady, made a decided hit. Miss Marks is considered the most natural leading woman that has come in our midst. She is a clever interpreter of drama and also of comedy and has a rich, soft musical voice. A magnificent bouquet was sent Miss Marks from an appreciative patron who was delighted with her good work in the bills already played.

Lindsay Perrin had little difficulty in getting the laughs for his role last night was the best gloom-chaser we've seen in many months.

A little regarding to-night's play. The title is "Mother's Irish Rose," a companion play to "Able's Irish Rose" but distinctly different in every way. The bill is guaranteed to satisfy one hundred per cent. On Saturday afternoon a big children's matinee will take place with special attractions for the young folks. The bill announced for the opening next week is Oliver Morocco's celebrated success, "The Brat." Watch for further particulars of this bill and book reservations early at Hutton's Music Store.

Long Sentence for Mail Robber

BROOKLYN, N.Y., Jan. 24.—James Watt Cadoo, who turned train-robber to impress his young bride with his ability to make good, was sentenced yesterday to 25 years in Atlanta penitentiary.

Cadoo changed a plea of "not guilty" to "guilty," and the sentence imposed was mandatory upon the court. The charge under which he was sentenced was robbery of the mails and jeopardizing the life of a mail clerk.

Household Notes.

Chopped dates add interest to oatmeal bread.
Mince onion very finely and add to mashed potatoes.

Use a percolator brush for cleaning your food chopper.

When washing windows add a little kerosene to the water.

Add a little drained, crushed pineapple to coconut cookies.

Try making brown betty with sliced oranges and raisins.
China carries better when it is packed in dampened excelsior.
Left-over fruit sauce can be used as a foundation for a fruit cup.
When making a coconut cake, try using coconut fat instead of butter.
Dried orange skins thrown on an open fire give forth a delightful odor.
Add finely chopped apples to lemon gelatin and serve with whipped cream.
When making pastry use only enough water to hold the paste together.
A very delicious spiced sweet pickle is made with sliced canned pineapple.

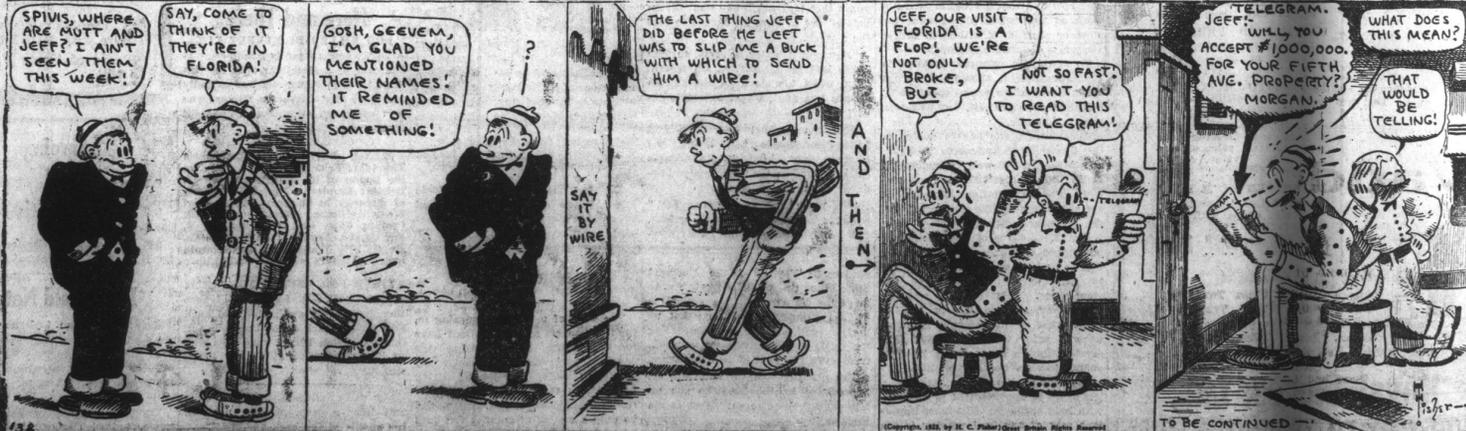

Flavor sweetened rusk dough with eggs and add a few broken walnut meats.
Chopped raisins and nut meats are good in slightly sweetened whole wheat bread.
Remember that an occasional good scrubbing with salt is excellent for the teeth.

Beef loaf is delicious served with brown gravy to which tomato sauce has been added.
Add a spoonful or two of potato butter to the dough for whole wheat or brown bread.
Old powder puffs can be washed and used at the kitchen sink with scouring powders.
