BACON CURERS MAKE PROFITS OF MILLIONS

Flavelles, Limited, With Matthews-Blackwell Are Branded as Extortioners. DISCOVERIES STARTLE Investigation Reveals Greatest Profiteering in Any Country Supplying Allies.

By a Staff Reporter. Ottawa, July 12.—A startling revelation of profits taken in the sale of food, during last year particularly, when prices rose so spectacularly, was made today by W. F. O'Connor, K.C., the cost of living commissioner, in a report to the minister of labor of his investigation of cold storage in Canada.

So great a sensation has the revelation made that members of parliament were in a commotion tonight, and drastic action was promised. It is understood that action will be taken to demand for the public treasury the cost of living regulations which were put into effect at the instance of Hon. T. W. Crothers. Action under these regulations was taken by the city of Ottawa last December, but when the action taken in December was completed in January, the present council did nothing further, nor was any assistance given the cost of living commissioner.

Five Million Profits. While the cold-storage report deals with all the articles stored in these warehouses, the most sensational profits are found to have been made out of bacon. Flavelles, Ltd., in 1916 exported 36,000,000 pounds out of a total export of 169,000,000 pounds of Canada last year. The margin of profit was 5.05 cents per pound. The average margin of profit by all the cold-storage warehouses of Canada was 4.58 cents per pound. If Flavelles' profit is subtracted, the average margin through Canada would be 3.3 cents per pound. The profits charged by the other warehouses varied from 1.5 cents per pound upward.

In Class by Itself. Remark that "this bacon situation is in a class by itself and will be some time in coming." Mr. O'Connor says that Matthews-Blackwell were nearer the common margin in 1916, than were the Flavelles firm, and it was largely the figures of Flavelles which made the common margin so high.

CHAMBERLAIN RESIGNS LORD HARDINGE STAYS

Tribunal Will Deal With Soldiers and Civilians Arraigned in Mesopotamian Report—Chamberlain Stoutly Defends Course—Hardinge's Friends Rally to Support.

London, July 12.—The announcement of the resignation of J. Austen Chamberlain, secretary for India, which is the first fruit of the Mesopotamia commission's report, lent a dramatic touch to the debate on that report in parliament today.

J. Austen Chamberlain, secretary for India, who has resigned office.

Nothing is known as to whether other resignations are pending, but it is considered quite possible that further developments may occur on the return of the King to the capital. It is understood that Premier Lloyd George and Mr. Chamberlain's colleagues have done their best to persuade him to withdraw his resignation, but without avail.

Mr. Chamberlain made the announcement in the house, in a speech defending his position as affected by the commission's report. The report has proved a severe blow to the government, which had to make a further concession to popular resentment.

To Set Up Tribunal. After a debate extending through the evening, which revolved mainly around the form the judicial inquiry should take—strong criticism being voiced.

BRITISH AVIATORS RAID FIVE FLANDERS TOWNS

Naval Airplanes Confine Bombing Attacks to Military Objects, Causing Fires and Explosions—Tons of Explosives Dropped.

London, July 12.—British naval airplanes last night carried out raids on military objects in and near five towns in Flanders, says an announcement made tonight by the admiralty. Fires and explosions were caused by the several tons of bombs dropped by the raiders. The statement reads: "Bombing raids were carried out last night by naval machines on Varsenaere, St. Denis-Westrem, Ghisteltes and Ostend. Railway lines and an electric power station and railway siding at Zarren were attacked by gunfire from the air and bombs were dropped on a train near St. Denis-Westrem. A fire was caused by bombs dropped near the Ostend electric power station and a heavy explosion also was caused at Varsenaere railway dump, followed by an intense conflagration which was still burning a half hour later. Several tons of bombs were dropped. All the machines returned safely."

The Germans also admit the fighting of local actions on the Dniester, but they refrain from mentioning the localities.

FRIDAY MORNING, JULY 13.

Beware the Avalanche.

In an address delivered to the Merchants' Association of New York at its Liberty Loan meeting on June 1, Mr. Otto H. Kahn took the ground that the defenders of the old-time German nation had hoped to see taken generally by Germans of the present generation.

An able American writer has recently pointed out that German children from the earliest age are trained to accept and act upon the subtle fallacies and delusions, without surrendering to which the present war would have been wholly impossible.

In Britain the feeling towards Germany has been constantly friendly, even after the shock of the Kaiser's telegram to Paul Kruger in the Boer War time. It is easy to see now that our friendship was regarded as weakness.

Mr. Kahn's little pamphlet is just the utterance that may dogood and awaken the old German spirit of devotion to "the things of humanity, liberty, justice and mercy, for which the best men amongst all the nations—inclining the German nation—have fought and bled these many generations past, which were the ideals of Luther, Goethe, Schiller, Kant, and a host of others who had made the name of Germany great and beloved until fanatical Prussianism run amuck, came to make its deeds a byword and a hissing." So Mr. Kahn.

A highly important and impressive point which Mr. Kahn makes, and which should appeal particularly to his American audience, but may be commended to people in Canada like Mr. Meyer of Kitchener, and others who object to Canada fighting for humanity, liberty, justice or mercy, is the parallel between the revolution of 1776, when men of British blood rose against British tyranny as they are always prepared to do, and the revolt of those of German birth or descent against the tyranny of the Hohenzollerns.

"Today," says Mr. Kahn, "Americans of German birth are called upon to rise, together with their fellow-citizens of all races, to free not only this country but the whole world from the oppression of the rulers of Germany, an oppression far less capable of being endured and of far graver portent." Mr. Kahn calls upon all such "to set their faces like flint against the monstrous doctrines and acts of a rulership which have robbed them of a Germany which they loved and in which they took just pride, the Germany which had the good will, respect and admiration of the entire world."

That these views are having some influence is to be gathered from the suppression of Herr von Harden's paper, Die Zukunft, with imprisonment of the Socialist Liebknecht, and in the agitation which has shaken out men like Zimmerman, threatens Bethmann-Hollweg, and turns the attention of the Kaiser from war to domestic politics. The Kaiser has to learn that there is no known way of letting down an avalanche easy. Once it grows and gathers it cannot be mediated with or approached and any attempt to lessen it will only precipitate its fall. The German political avalanche is ready for its thunderous descent. All the German nation is not blind and many who were blind are recovering sight and sense.

The Kaiser and his eldest born may take counsel together, but sudden destruction will come upon them and their plots. The war will have justified itself when it releases Germany.

Liberty of the Subject!

Our suggestion yesterday that effective measures are rarely acceptable was borne out by the reception given Mr. Meighen's amendment to the conscription bill. It would be effective and prevent the leakage thru favoritism and malingering, which, in another mood, the same set of objectors were complaining about. It is impossible to please everybody. The table of the old man and his ass should have implanted that truth in the national mind at an early stage. If we are to have conscription let us have conscription without fear or favor. All this howling about interference with the liberty of the subject is repeated, sotto voce, every year, over the tax bills, which are a most arrant interference with the liberty of the subject.

The same objection to national service lies behind the reluctance to pay or the shirking of payment, of tax bills that lies behind all the objections to conscription. When the objection to conscription is used to mask a political intrigue it becomes even more nauseous than the endeavor of the wealthy man to shirk his taxes.

The outcry about the liberty of the subject being outraged is pure poppycock. The subject has had three years to use his liberty to volunteer, to choose any branch of national service that would suit him. He is not a subject, but a free man. He has probably been either idling for three years or making more money than he ever did in his life before, at munitions or in some other industry at war rates, while the volunteers in the trenches have been protecting him and keeping him in his peaceful "liberty of the subject" for $1.10 a day.

It passes understanding how men who are enjoying their liberty by the sacrifice and exertions of their fellows in the trenches, can stand up shamelessly and profess after three years' ease that their liberty is being interfered with when they are asked to take their turn. As a matter of fact, most of these objectors are either too old or useless for active service, but they like to hear themselves talk, or themselves in print, or else have partisan politics in view.

We believe the men who are most interested, the young men from 20 to 35, rarely enter into the foolish ideas about universal national service that some of the elderly cranks ventiliate. The young men know that their future is at stake, that the nation is what they will make it, and they are naturally anxious to make it such a nation as they will be glad to live in. They will be relieved of the elderly cranks in due time by processes which have no scruples about interfering with the liberty of the subject, but they know that, while they live, of the conditions they create, and if it depends upon them to make the world free and just and fit to live in, they will not be silly enough to think that taking their share in that work is an interference with their liberty.

All liberty is the result of fair and just co-operation. These objectors to the selective draft are mere outlaws when they refuse to co-operate for the service of the united nations of the world in the suppression of the mad tyranny that Prussia has sought to impose on humanity.

Letters From Many Pens.

Macmillan's pocket classics at 25 cents is one of the very best series of standard works in literature, whether for general reading or school use, before the public, and the list has been further enriched by a most excellent anthology of "Letters From Many Pens." It is the work of Margaret Cault, head of one of the high schools of New Jersey, and has been made with taste and discernment and pleasure. There is a satisfying forty pages of notes which will help many an adult as well as the school boy, taken from all sorts and conditions of men. The big people reveal their intimate thoughts, ancient and modern both indicate the virtues of the penny post. The introduction and biographical notes form an excellent starting point for the enjoyment as well as the study of this delightful literary form, and people who find a difficulty in attaining the lost art of letter writing could not do better than peruse this selection to learn what a letter ought to be.

"Literary style," says Miss Cault, "is modified by three forces: the author, the persons addressed, and the theme. The more clearly the personality of the writer shows in the theme written, the more vividly he has been conscious of the persons addressed, the more he is at one with his subject, the better will be his style. Perhaps the best facts account for the superior style of good letters."

In the thirteen sections almost every phase of experience and episode is delineated, and the collection is highly representative. Dickens, however, is conspicuous by his absence. The more he is at one with his subject, the better will be his style. Perhaps the best facts account for the superior style of good letters."

MISSIONARIES EXPECTED.

Presbyterian Workers in India and China on Way Home. The following Presbyterian missionaries are reported to be on the way home, and are expected to arrive in Toronto some time during the next few weeks: Dr. Jean Dow and Miss Isabel Macintosh, from China; Miss Ethel C. Reid, from southern China; Dr. Elizabeth McMaster, from central India; Rev. A. H. and Mrs. Barker, who have a station in Corea, are also expected to arrive in Toronto during this month.

U. S. GERMAN ARRESTED.

In the police court yesterday Carl Kautsch, alias was Milgrain was charged with entering Canada by misrepresentation. Kautsch's arrest was brought about by Immigration Officer Mitchell. When taken into custody he claimed to be a Swede, but later admitted to being of German origin. Search of his room revealed his United States military service card, and it was then he confessed. He was sent to the jail farm for 60 days.

TO FRANCE

Stainless, blameless, golden fleur de lys, Rising, lustrous gallant in the breeze, Moving ever onward Because, down below, Fighting men are bearing it Forward as they go.

Straining, panting, ever the advance, Tearing, pushing, the Black Beast out of France, Thru the poison vapors, Singing, unafraid, Onward, onward, The banner of The Maid.

White-faced, clear-eyed, France's women wait, Praying, hoping, gamblers with fate; Theirs the harder service, Theirs the heavier price; They must drink to bitter dregs The wine of sacrifice.

Burning, glowing, blazoned on the sky, Flashing, gleaming, France can never die; She has kept her honor, Careless of the cost, Knowing when the shield is bright, Nothing counts as lost.

Great her, help her stretch the hand of cheer; Liberty, Fraternity, they have cost her dear. For every pang we suffered, She has suffered more; Cleansed by fire she rises, Nobler than before.

Today is French Flag Day. Tho there have been many calls upon us, everyone should strive to contribute to the Red Cross organization of our gallant ally.

REVELATIONS OF A WIFE

What Happened When Dicky Developed the First Symptoms of Sickness Madge Ever Knew

I watched Dicky narrowly thru the first part of our luncheon. The fear that he might be ill which had come to me when I had noticed his languid attitude while climbing the stairs gradually vanished as I noted his hearty appetite and the easy jocularity of his manner.

"Oh, Dicky!" I thought of Dicky ill terrified me. He did not know what it was to be sick, and beside the natural terror I felt at any illness coming to him, I had a very lively dread of what it would mean to take care of Dicky in even a slight illness. His is not a nature to brook restraint of any kind, and I have an intuition that he would detest being nursed.

By the time luncheon was over I had forgotten my fears, so that I was genuinely shocked when I heard an agonized groan from Dicky and saw him bent nearly double, hanging to his chair.

"What is the matter?" "Don't touch me!" he replied sharply, and then I saw him try to pull himself erect, an attempt that ended in another groan.

"I can't let you suffer." He made another futile attempt to straighten himself, and then, bent double like an old, old man, shuffled slowly and painfully to the stairs. His progress up the stairs must have been a succession of torturing twinges judging from the groans that accompanied every step. I following and listening, grew more and more terrified with each passing moment, and as he finally fell upon his bed I sank to my knees beside him.

"Please, Dicky, let me do something for you. Let me put a hot water bag to the spot where the pain lies. You know heat always relieves pain. And won't you let me take your temperature?" "No, no, no!" Dicky almost shouted. "I won't have any hot water bag, and I certainly shan't put any dinky little thermometer into my mouth."

AVIATOR KILLED AT CAMP BORDEN

Flight-Lieutenant R. C. Teasdale Met Death After Passing Examination. Flight-Lieut. Robert Charles Teasdale, only son of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Teasdale, 600 Yonge street, was yesterday killed in an aeroplane accident at Camp Borden, Ontario, according to a despatch received yesterday by his parents from the R. F. C. headquarters. He was only 19 years of age, and on Saturday he was to have been home Thursday as a flight-lieutenant. Instead a telegram arrived bearing the terrible news of his death. He was a very popular young athlete, being a prominent member of the Toronto Swimming Club and the holder of a

OTHER PEOPLE'S OPINIONS

The Toronto World invites correspondence on subjects of current interest. Letters must be short and to the point—not more than 200 words at the outside. The editor reserves the right to cut any letters to make them conform to space requirements. Names will not be published if the writers wish them withheld, but every letter must be signed with writer's name and address, to ensure authenticity.

is more and more appreciating not only the convenience, but the advantages of a deposit account against which he may issue cheques. He has found that it lends a certain individual prestige, no one knowing how much may stand behind it. Again, it imposes a salutary restraint on personal expenditures, besides mercifully expediting their aggregate. The spending impulse is sometimes chilled by noting the contemplated purchase in black and white. Then, to many it brings a new joy in making the balance grow, an incentive to thrift unfelt before.

We welcome all such accounts, and allow compound interest at THREE AND ONE-HALF PER CENT. per annum. One dollar opens an account.

FIFTY CANADIANS BLIND THRU SERVICE OVERSEAS

Majority Have Passed Thru or Are Attending Training School in London. Latest definite figures upon the number of Canadian soldiers who have been totally blinded thru the war are just over 50. Of these the majority have passed thru or are still attending St. Dunstan's Hostel in London, England, where they have every opportunity of learning a trade, and getting used to their changed condition.

It is one of the dreams of Mr. Sherman T. Swift, of the Canadian Free Library for the Blind, that this institution may in time be specially fitted up, to serve in a small way the same purpose as St. Dunstan's, not only for the blinded soldiers, but to meet the need of some of the many hundreds of blind who are to be found in Ontario alone.

Classes for sightless people in Braille reading and writing, to enable them to become instructors or book-makers, will be held for one or two hours every day. Later one room will be fitted up with a private telephone operating switchboard, for the purpose of training blind telephone operators. It is thought that this should prove a good field for sightless workers. The switchboard signals will be specially arranged for such work.

BOOK REVIEWS

"An Alabaster Box," by Mary E. Wilkins Freeman and Florence Morse Kingsley. Published by McClelland, Goodchild & Stewart.

Mrs. Freeman is well-known as the faithful interpreter of the New England village. She has written many pleasant little stories of rural life and people, and her "Alabaster Box" is of the same type. Lydia Orr comes to the village of Brookville in time to buy out the church fair. If she hadn't the fair would have remained unbought, for no one in the village had money to exchange for home-made pies and cakes, cushions and table mats. In fact, they had no money for anything, hence the fair, to pay the minister. The whole town had trusted one Andrew Bolton some nineteen years before, and the man had defaulted. Brookville suffers keenly first from poverty, later from gloom and despondency because it hated the memory of Andrew Bolton.

When Lydia Orr, young lovely and wealthy, came among them, anxious to spend money and to help them, they regarded her with suspicion. Why should she buy the old Bolton place at a ridiculous price? Why fix up the town hall, build a library, erect a fountain and shingle the church? With all the small-town meanness they criticized and talked. The girl's sweetness had succeeded in winning over some of them, when Andrew Bolton, broken in health and feeble in mind, returned to his home and to his daughter, Lydia Orr Bolton. Then their hatred became fury, and they attacked the old home and drove out to his death the man who had caused their misery. Fortunately, there is a dual love story to soften the tragedy, and Brookville lives to appreciate Lydia and her "love offering."

"Our Next-Door Neighbors," by Belle K. Maniates. Published by McClelland, Goodchild & Stewart. For those who delight in a story mainly about children, and for those who want an amusing book for summer afternoon, we say read this latest book by the author of "Amarilly of Cloveline Alley."

Our next-door neighbors were five healthy, active youngsters, offspring of the two most unusual parents on earth. Professor Polydora and his wife, highest among all high-brows, having had Ptolemy, Pythagoras, Empedocles, Demetrius, Diogenes, promptly forgot all about them. So the youngsters settled on the nearest neighbor, one Lucien Wade and his wife, Sylvia.

Having the five for breakfast, luncheon, dinner and occasionally for the night seemed hard enough; but when the Professors Polydora departed suddenly for parts unknown leaving their children and a signed blank cheque it seemed to the Wades that the end of all things had come. It is a lively story, written with the sure touch of one who knows genuine children. Even the International Harvester works. He leaves a widow, one son and two daughters. A son recently died of wounds in France. An inquest will likely be held.

Wonderful Riding By Jockey Gray

Rides Five Winners and One Second over Muddy Track at Hillcrest.

A good crowd saw the most wonderful riding results at Hillcrest Park yesterday ever witnessed on a course, mile or half-mile, in any country. In the eight races Jockey Gray rode no less than five winners, was second once, unplaced in the sixth on last day, and in the first race did not have a mount. The track was heavy, and the attendance was fair.

FIRST RACE—Five furlongs:
1. Pit, 115 (Gibson), 3 to 2, 5 and 1 to 2.
2. Amusement, 115 (Harty), 3 to 1, 3 to 1 and 3 to 1.
3. Canone, 115 (Chappell), 5 to 1, 3 to 1 and 3 to 1.
Time 1:28.4-5. Miss Menard, Proctor, Edie Mot, Patigan and The Usher also ran.

SECOND RACE—Five furlongs:
1. Grey Foot, 115 (Gray), 3 to 1, even and 1 to 2.
2. Mamita, 108 (Gibson), 4 to 1, 3 to 5 and 4 to 5.
3. Pat Gannon, 115 (Acton), 8 to 1, 4 to 1 and 3 to 1.
Time 1:32.5. Mike Carlin, Ossary, Maud, Sir Raymond, Star Rose, Cynthia, Sweden, Sam and George also ran.

THIRD RACE—Five furlongs:
1. Winnie McGee, 113 (Gray), 5 to 1, 2 to 1 and even.
2. Billy Stuart, 106 (Gibson), 6 to 1, 2 to 1 and even.
Time 1:24.4-5. Hester Smith, Ella Jennings, Sir Arthur, Frank G. Hogan, Borel and Manford also ran.

FOURTH RACE—Five furlongs:
1. Chitra, 109 (Gray), 3 to 2, 3 to 5 and 1 to 3.

CONTEMPLATE ABOLITION OF LIQUOR ADVERTISING

Chairman of License Board in Consultation With Federal Authorities at Ottawa.

J. D. Flavell, chairman of the Ontario License Board, returned from Ottawa yesterday where he held a conference with the federal authorities regarding legislation to protect prohibition provinces from the solicitation within the provinces of sales of liquor by outside liquor firms. Mr. Flavell announced that a bill would shortly be introduced in the commons dealing with this matter. He added that the board had received legal advice from several sources that it was quite within the rights of the board to adopt and enforce regulations which would give the board control over liquor advertising in newspapers within the province.

RECKLESS JITNEY DRIVERS.

Works Commissioner Harris stated yesterday that there are too many irresponsible people driving motor cars, and that if the traffic laws were not better respected than they had been would be many serious accidents. He had witnessed several very narrow escapes. The jitney drivers seemed to have only one idea—to make time and money. That was all right, he said, but common prudence demanded that they observe the laws.

BOOTLEGGERS MAY BE BACKED.

Special to The Toronto World.
St. Thomas, July 12.—William Karn, an ex-bartender of St. Thomas, was fined $200 and costs for selling liquor contrary to the Ontario Temperance Act. The accused telephoned friends who at once paid the fine. Now the authorities are suspicious that there is some organization in London which is backing the bootleggers.

VACATION SCHOOL OUTING.

Children attending the daily vacation Bible schools are to have the free and special treat of a visit to Hamilton's every week to witness the baseball game, thanks to the kindness of James J. McCaffery, who has made the offer. Four denominations are sharing on the work of these schools—Presbyterian, Baptist, Methodist and Disciples of Christ.
