JINGLES OF MERROR.

A Little Romance Gathered for Letture Reading.
Gildersleeve (to his tailor)—Why are you making those trousers so short, Shears?
Shears—So they'll be a good fit.
Gildersleeve (astonished)—Be a good fit Shears—Yes, you know you are always short yourself when the bill is due.
I am a prohibitionist, said Jones, because I believe a man should show a good public example no matter what he may do at home.
And I take my drink outside, said Smith, because I believe a man should show a good example at home no matter what he does in public.
A tender hearted young lady once said to a boy guilty of robbing a bird's nest. O, cruel, heartless, little wretch, to rob those poor little birds of their eggs. He retorted the boy, that's the old mother bird you've got on your bonnet, guess she won't care.

Mamma—How many sisters did your new playmate tell you he had?
Willis—He's got one. He tried to catch me by saying he had two half sisters, but he'll find out I've studied fractions.
Wales now signs himself Edward VII His elevation to the throne would perhaps be styled VII up.
George—Shall we try the tricycle or buggy this morning, Laura?
Laura—I'm yours for wheel or whoop.
Whatever may be said of the disposition of other parts of speech, verbs are noted for their moods.
Wife—Oh, Charlie, uncle is dead. He has broken his neck. What will we do?
Charlie—Let's get a lawyer now and break his will.
Visitor—I hear your new preacher is a man of indomitable will and wonderful energy.
Hostess—Indeed he is. He has started in to convert the choir.
Not Unlikely. Lawyer—Do you swear positive that you know more than half this jury?
Witness—Yes, sir, and now when I take a good look at them I'll swear that I know more than all of them put together.
The Missing Cipher—O, papa only £50 from Sir Georgina Midast such a millionaire, why he ought to have sent £500 at least.
Ah, I'm afraid he forgot the ought, my dear.
He—Will you love me if I give up all my bad habits?
She (protesting)—But George how could you expect me to love a perfect stranger?

Is your goin' ter let dat mawel do as it pleases asked uncle Ephraim's wife. What your will power?
My will power as all right, he answered you just want ter come out hyer and measure this hyer mawel's wont power.
Traveler (in railway carriage to fellow passenger)—Sir, what do you mean? This is the second time that you have put out my match.
Fellow Passenger—Force of habit. I am a member of a volunteer fire brigade.
The Betsy.
Wot's that you're askin'! Will I take her back?
You bet! An' smooth things over if I kin. Ougraded an' "no 'bout, ye say!
Wall, mabbe; I can't judge another's sin. But mawel'll come back when she gits home. Sense she's been gone there ain't been much in life.
The mawel'll come back and stay this time. O' course I'll take her back. Ain't she my wife!

Wot'll the folks in town say 'bout the 'air' Comers' an. Let 'em gabble if they will. I loved her when she was a kid knee high. An' now she's twenty, an' I love her still. You fellers' wives kin gossip all ye please. Mast on 'em safe enough, that I must say. If any chap run off with one at night, You bet he'd bring her back again next day. Wronged me? 'S that! Wail it's my affair. Folks 'at goes wrong ain't allers understood. I reckon them 'at ain't been tempted much. Kin find it powerful easy ter be good. When I said I'd perfect and oberish her. For life, I guess that didn't mean as how I wud perfect when things was ramin' smooth. But when she was in trouble, jes' like now, soft headed! Easy goin'! Yes, I know. But I'm a hulkin kind o' chap, ye see. An' Annie was so purty an' so young. She allers was a heap too good for me. Wot's more, she made some 'lowances ter me. 'Jes' cause I loved her, when she took me sir; An' jes' because I love her, it's my turn I'm goin' ter make some 'lowances ter her. O' course you are a deakin standin' high. An' regular ev'ry mornin' time, I know. I've kinder backslid lately; don't show up at chapel more'n once a month or so; But ain't there some text 'bout the joy above. That erin' cause wot brace up kin bring! An' seems to me, when I've been thar, I've heard About forgiveness bein a good thing. I'll take her back, make her forget it all. An' I'll forget she ever went away. Fraps she will love me better when she finds. One friend 'at doesn't care what people say. If folks here think 'emelves too good for us, Asks us for ter stay from church an' such, Why, Nan and I'll leave town an' go out west, Where wot the folks don't know wot's hurt 'em much.

ACROBOTS, HAPPENINGS AND GENERAL COMMENTS
Clipped and Condensed for the Readers of The Globe.

The famous Gilmore band has disbanded. Eleven new cases of cholera and three deaths reported at St. Petersburg.
Four people were killed and three injured in a wreck on the Union Pacific at Alda, Neb. The cotton crop prospects in Louisiana are said to grow worse every day and the yield will be 46 per cent.
While temporarily insane, Geo. Hall, manager of the Standard Life Insurance Co., shot himself dead at Omaha, Neb.
While at the opera last week Mrs. Lock Trex, a New Orleans society woman, fell down stairs and was killed.
St. Louis police are looking for Joseph Baron Dix Orth, a young man who managed to get $20,000 into debt in four months.
Policeman Valentini shot and instantly killed a burglar who was attempting to enter a residence on Ashland boulevard, Chicago.
Thirty sheds containing 20,000 barrels of salt belonging to the Michigan Salt Co., at Comings, were burned last week. Loss $250,000.
Wilson Garber, a suspected moonshiner, was drowned in Dig Creek, near Boise, Idaho while rowing away from a party which he mistook for officers.
Owing to the big supply of iron on hand, two blast furnaces at the Illinois steel works have been closed down. Between 300 and 400 men are out of work.
Ex-Lieut. Governor Antoine of Louisiana, colored, was convicted in the criminal court, Nov. 21, of embezzling $500. He was president of the senate under Governor Kellough.

There were sports and gambols on the village green of every hamlet at these times, wrestling matches between the young men, feats of acrobatic and dancing, followed by a bounteous feast, where a good deal of heavy food was consumed and a large quantity of beer was drunk after the hearty English fashion.
When we go back to Sixteenth century it is found to be filled up with facts and thanksgivings, especially during the time of Queen Elizabeth. Under that gay and paganous being sovereignty it was expressly ordered that in 1569 Thanksgiving entered into Rogation days, and it was ordered that thanks should then be offered "for the increase and abundance of his fruits upon the face of the earth." Early in the reign of King James the special thanksgivings had been incorporated into the prayer book.
It was natural enough, therefore, that the early settlers should bring with them a traditional respect for days of thanksgiving.

PUNISHED FOR DESERTION.
Story of a Hero Who Died a Coward's Death.
"By George!" he looks like one of our own soldiers!
Such was the exclamation made by Sergt. Parker of the Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry. He had charge of a scouting party and was expecting to come upon the rear guard of the Confederate army at any moment.
The scene of this incident was located just outside of Frederick, Maryland. It was on Sept. 13, 1862, a few days before the engagement at Antietam. Parker and his party were on the summit of a little hill, and looking through his field glasses he saw the object which caused him to utter the above exclamation.
He detailed two of his men to go and capture the man, for he could see no reason for his presence there unless he was one of the enemy or a deserter. About an hour afterwards the men came back with the prisoner, who, as Parker supposed, was Union man.
He gave his name as John Miller of the Ninth Volunteer Infantry, which regiment was a part of the Second corps under Sumner, but refused to make any further statement. He was sent back to camp, and the next day was tried by court martial for deserting. When asked if he had anything to say in his defense he produced a letter bearing the postmark of Johnston, Va. It read something like this:
"My dear Papa: Mama is awful sick and would me to rite to you and tell you to try and cum home cause the Doktor sed she couldn't live only a few days more. She wants you to cum awful bad, and we have nothing to give her to eat, only what the doktor's will send; please cum papa, mama cries for you all the time."
Your little Jenny.
While the letter was being read Miller's face turned an ashen hue, and the tears slowly trickled down his cheeks.

"Captain," he said, speaking with great difficulty, "that letter is from my little girl. I have one other child, a little lad of four. I hated to leave home, but my wife insisted that I should go; she said she could take care of our children. Three days ago I received this letter, and applied for leave of absence. It was denied, and I determined to desert. My wife was always delicate, but we had a happy home. O God! it seems as if I must see my wife once more! Perhaps she is—dead—yes—this."
At this point he broke down completely and said no more. But, as it was a clear case of desertion, the death sentence was passed upon him. His only request before being shot was that he might see something to his children. He took out of his pocket a Bible, inside of which was a tinsy of his wife. "Give these to my children," he said, "and tell them that although I was shot for deserting, it was not because I was a coward."
When the keepakes reached home two weeks later Miller's wife had died, and the children were in an orphan asylum.
Parker and the rest of his company raised a handsome subscription for them, and to this day Parker regrets having made Miller a prisoner.
"It makes me feel like a murderer," he always says after he tells the above story.—Daniel W. Coe in The New York Recorder.

LEMONT & SONS

Direct Importers, Are Making the Largest and Most Complete Display of Christmas Goods

EVER SHOWN IN THE CITY

An Immense Assortment of Furniture, Toys, Novelties, etc.

The old established firm of Lemont & Sons, are again to the front with the largest and most complete display of Christmas goods ever shown in the city, and equal to anything in the provinces. This old and reliable firm was established in 1846, by the late Martin Lemont, and has an interesting history of which we will give a brief sketch.

The late Martin Lemont was a native of Bath, Me., and came to this city in the year 1843. The following year he went into business with S. A. Akery, in what was then known as the Slason property, now Shaker's block part of which is at present occupied by the FREDERICTON GLOBE. In 1846 the founder of this establishment went into business for himself and established the first variety store in the province. In 1850 the establishment was destroyed by fire, but Mr. Lemont immediately opened on Phoenix square, where after doing business for about four years, he was again driven out by fire, and moved to Coy's block, and in 1859 was again scorched by fire, after which the present premises were erected, and though at times they were threatened by fire they fortunately escaped, and are standing to-day, filled from cellar to garret with an enormous stock of goods of every variety.

Mr. William Lemont.
It was in the year 1869 on the first day of April, that Mr. Wm. Lemont, the present senior member of the firm was taken into partnership. Martin Lemont died in 1881, and the business has been carried on by his sons, William and Martin, the latter having entered the firm in 1874. The store at the present time is well worth a visit, every purchaser or sight-seer, being fully satisfied that the variety of stock at Messrs Lemont & Sons, equals, if not surpasses, any other establishment of the kind in the provinces. The dimensions of the store on Queen street are 90 x 25 feet, three storeys and a basement, the full size. Down the basement is stored stoneware, chinaware, crocks, churns, lamp goods, etc., in immense lots. Passing from the basement to the main floor a beautiful vision greets the eye. Here we find glassware, china, tea sets tastefully displayed; also a grand display of Bohemian goods of all kinds. Large show cases filled with silver plated ware, comprising the usual varieties carried by a first-class jeweler, including tea sets, cake baskets, pickle dishes, dessert and table spoons in great variety. Silk and plush goods are also seen in great variety. The cutlery department is fully stocked with knives, forks, carvers, sets carvers in cases, all the goods being of the best English and American makes.

Here can be seen furniture coverings in tapestries, plushes, silks, velvets, brocades and jute goods in a large and choice selection of patterns, a large quantity of which they use in their own upholstering department as well as in supplying the trade. Window shades in great variety. English, French and German mirrors. The variety of lamp goods on this floor calls for special attention, over thirty-five varieties of beautiful hanging lamps; besides a varied collection of all styles of table and study lamps. Another feature is the immense stock of dolls of all sizes and prices, which at this season are sold at a discount of 20 per cent. If you want a doll of any particular kind you can get it at Lemont & Sons.

Mr. Martin Lemont.
The large plate windows present a great attraction to passers by, being handsomely dressed and showing to advantage the beautiful pieces of furniture, suitable for Christmas presents; a display of dolls unsurpassed in the province, forming a background for the open window.

The second floor presents a truly holiday appearance. Here counter after counter, laden with the beautiful and useful, and boys, the delight of the children, are seen in great variety. On this flat, running the full length of the building, are arranged 10, 25, 50, 75 and $1.00 counters. A large centre counter presents a most attractive appearance, being handsomely decorated with elegant fancy goods, and is the first object the eye rests upon as the purchaser or visitor steps on that floor. There is also a full line of music cabinets, book cases, side-boards, etc.

Sundry Ebulitions in Prose and Rhyme.

How the Domestic, Social and Literary World is Wagging.

The latest stage beauty to attract the admiration of New Yorkers is Emily Lytton, J. K. Emmet's leading lady. She is a California girl, and the critics seem to regard her beauty as quite exceptional. The part she plays in "Fritz in Ireland" calls for much versatility and her acting is excellent.

Paderevski will sail for this country, Dec. 14, and, though his health is excellent, by the advice of his physician he will not give concerts west of Chicago until spring. He opens the season on Jan. 2, at Carnegie Hall, New York.

Rosabel Morrison, the charming daughter of Lewis Morrison, has secured an immense hit in Henry C. DeVille's great play of Life on the Rail. At the Lyceum Theatre in Buffalo, the past week, all records for big business were broken.

Wife—Poor Maul, how sad she feels at the loss of her husband; she's covered with weeds from head to foot. Husband (dubiously)—Yes; so is the grave of her late lamented.

Mrs. Lantry has added yachting to her taste, and has paid $2,000 for Lord Ashburton's ocean yacht, Lady Isabel. Mrs. Lantry declares that, being now forty years of age, it was time that she began to enjoy life, instead of fooling away her money and time in theatrical speculation. She will spend a portion of the coming winter in the South Seas, and in the intervals of her yachting trips she will devote more time to the turf and less to the stage. Her latest admirer is Lord Rosely, who is said to have really given her the horse she pretended to buy from him. Whether the young lord will accompany her on her yachting voyage is a subject of some curiosity.

In a variety of woods, and just the thing for a Christmas present.

The third floor is stocked with bedsteads, cradles, tables of every description, mattresses and lounges of their own make. Just across the street the firm have another building where they occupy four floors, one of these being occupied by the cabinet makers and upholsterers employed by the firm.

Their brick warehouse, fronting on the river, contains a reserve stock of furniture, including chiffoniers, side-boards, and about half a hundred different patterns of bedroom sets, in mahogany, walnut and other woods, making a display that cannot be appreciated until seen.

This firm carries the largest stock, sell the cheapest, and if you wish to see the greatest display in the city, don't fail to call at Lemont & Sons.

We present to our readers the portrait of William and Martin Lemont, the present members of this long established firm.

The Leech as a Barometer.

One of the most curious of the many natural barometers consists of a half pint glass full of water, a piece of muslin and a leech. The leech must be put in the water and the muslin tied over the top of the glass, so that the creature cannot get out again. When fine weather is to be the order of the day the leech will remain at the bottom of the water, curled up in spiral shape and perfectly motionless. If rain is to be expected it will creep to the top of the glass and remain there till there is a likelihood of more settled weather. If there is to be a storm of wind the little animal will conort itself violently and squirm about. For some days before a thunder-storm it will keep out of the water almost all the time and will occasionally move its body in a convulsive fashion. For frosty weather it behaves in the same manner as it does rain.

Friendship, Engagement and Wedding Rings Gents Scarf Pins at moderate prices at Blackmer's.

Asbestos Porcelain. A new article called asbestos porcelain, is made by working asbestos into a paste with water and drying it at a gentle temperature of 2200 degrees for 17 to 23 hours. A semi-transparent substance is formed, which resembles the thinnest qualities of chinaware. Its porosity adapts it admirably to the filtration and sterilization of water, as the pores are so small as to be impervious to the micro organisms. It also makes a good filter for wines, acid and vinegar.

We will please you once in quality, twice in quantity, and three times in price, at Blackmer's.

A GREAT OFFER.

We are pleased to announce that we have completed arrangements by which we are enabled to offer free to each of our subscribers a year's subscription to "CANADA," that well known Monthly Journal for Canadians. Young and Old, at Home and abroad. We make this offer to each of our subscribers who will pay up all arrearsages and for one year in advance, and to all new subscribers paying for one year in advance. "CANADA" begins a new series with the number for November, 1912, and while preserving the features which have won wide recognition for it already, will add new ones which will render it still more emphatically the favorite Canadian monthly paper. It is pure, intensely patriotic, attractive in make-up and remarkably varied in contents. Many leading Canadian writers are among its contributors, and departments of Canadiana, Home Topics, etc., are edited by capable hands. The regular subscription price of "CANADA" is Fifty Cents a year, but by this arrangement it will cost you nothing to receive this splendid Canadian monthly paper for one year. Do not put it off, but send your subscription today. Sample copies of "CANADA" can be seen at this office, or can be obtained from the Publisher, Hampton, New Brunswick.—Adv.

THE PHANTOM HAND.

A CHRISTMAS GHOST STORY.

I sat alone in the park at Deepdale, reading a favorite book. Deepdale, the country seat of my uncle, Norman French, was a beautiful place with its trim lawns and pleasant park.

I had come from Cambridge for my Christmas vacation, as usual, and aunt and cousin had made me welcome, of course; but, after all there was something lacking to their greeting. They were hardly the same as when uncle was living. I thought; yet I could not define the missing feature. An undefinable strangeness had come between me and Deepdale, however.

Uncle had been found dead in the park some months previous, whether he had gone for a walk. He was lying at the foot of a tree lifeless and cold, with his limbs drawn up, his face contorted as if in extreme agony, and his arm thrown over his head, with his fingers clutching the very grass. Being old and somewhat illing it is supposed that he died in a fit.

I was his favorite nephew, he having paid for my education at college. I also had many reasons to believe that I would be favorably mentioned in his will, but strange as it seemed to those knowing his habits of order and circulation, no last wish of his could be found.

Inez, his only child, as a matter of course, became sole heir to his wealth, and I was left out entirely. My cousin, was a beautiful girl of twenty and always seemed very fond of me; indeed it had also been hinted to me by Aunt Cecil before uncle's demise, that Inez and I were born for each other.

In the face of this, however, I had the ungrateful audacity to fall in love with an orphaned girl in the city, thus putting a strong negative to aunt's declaration.

I told her of my engagement to pretty Lulu Melville one day a short time before uncle's death, and she plainly told me I was a scholar of the school of experience.

Uncle was present at the time, but he only smiled, saying that everyone should be allowed to choose for themselves in such matters. And then, in reference to my finances, he offered to help me to the extent of a few thousands when I should be married.

With this sudden death and failure of leaving a will, this bright forecast of the future, as a matter of consequence, fell to the ground. It was not on my own account so much that I cared for this, but I, lover like, had planned so many comforts for Lulu when she should become my wife that it made it very hard for me to believe I was not remembered.

I was seated in the library on Christmas Eve, and had been thinking of all this rather bitterly, it must be confessed, before I opened my book for an hour with my favorite author; but in the interesting story I soon lost the bitter reflections and I was enjoying the narrative, when suddenly the shadow of a human hand fell across the page I was reading.

For a moment I was dumfounded. Then I thought some one was, perhaps behind me testing my credulity and began investigating. To my utter astonishment not a living thing was visible.

Finding no one near, I felt strange, but resumed my book, saying to myself that it was only a trick of the vision.

In a few moments, however, the shadow came again, this time resting considerably longer on the page, and in addition to the strange manifestation I felt a strong, cold wind go by.

Thoroughly mystified, I now arose, put my book in my pocket, went out into the grounds, and began walking about.

What would it mean? Surely there was a reason—or should I say warning?—in this uncanny visitation. If so, what threatened me, or why should I thus be disturbed?

Then a morbid curiosity seized me. I would go back to the library, and invite another visitation.

I had not long to wait. Again the shadow rested on my book and again the icy wind struck my face. By this time I had grown used to the mystery somewhat and watched it more closely.

After a few moments' pausing on the page the shadow dropped to the floor, where it continued moving to and fro until it disappeared suddenly.

I once more left the house and strolled through the grounds to think the matter over.

Well ejaculated I, feeling utterly nonplussed this is strange; something is evidently about to happen—perhaps to Lulu. With this I started for the house.

Just as I was about to enter the door I met the gardener, Bin out in the grounds, have ye' he, said, and before I had time to reply he commenced dwelling on the loneliness of the death.

Oh! I replied, Uncle Norman would not harm anyone, living, and dead I am sure he could not. But, tell me about him. Was he ill the day he went into the park to die?

Well, I dunno, seems he must have been, too, for your aunt gave him a stimulant afore he started, cause she thought he might need something, as he was not strong. But I allers thought it kind of strange, though, 'bout his death. He was old, I said.

Yes, yes, he was old, but that don't c'er up the mystery; not right satisfactorily to my mind. But that's not my business.

The man turned on his heel and left me and I went into the house. Aunt Cecil was reading in the drawing room, and I took a seat near her.

I had been worked up with the excitement produced by the phantom hand and the gardener's words together until I could not help speaking of the subject further.

Aunt I began, was uncle ill the day he went to the park for the last time; that is, did he complain of any pain?

Why, no, not in particular, she answered; but I fancied her face grew white as she shut her book and looked away from me.

I thought I had touched memory's chord too roughly perhaps, and added, Forgive me, aunt, I didn't mean to hurt you.

She made no answer, and I continued, I asked because Simon said you gave him a stimulant before he left the house; I imagined from that he was ailing.

She turned on me with the fierceness of a tigress at bay. I was not insinuations from you, she raged, and her eyes gleamed with a baleful fire.

To say that I was astonished at her unexpected demeanor would be putting it mildly. I was simply astounded, and for a moment I had grave doubts in regard to my individual sanity. What was it that said to arouse such fierce wrath?

Had I been saying some insane thing and insulting Aunt Cecil, or was she giving so deeply over uncle's death that my mention of him had turned her head?

Not on second thought, I had not done either. Then—by this comment?

Whether she read my thoughts or not I cannot tell, but she came toward me, with one jewelled hand clutching the heavy crepe of her dress, and the other, with extended index, pointing menacingly to my face.

Do you dare to insinuate anything, you ungrateful, poverty-stricken scolding! she hissed, in a low, insulting tone.

My blood was up. I sprang to my feet and faced her, "I have no idea," I exclaimed, hotly, "what you refer to; I am innocent of any such base intent. But—and a terrible suspicion crept into my soul. "Your fury throws a strong light on something which I swear I never thought of before. If your self-condemnation saw an insinuation in my question it was because you are—guilty!"

I leaped toward her and spoke the last word meaningly. It was a risky shot, but fortunately it told.

She put her hand on the table and stood trembling like an aspen leaf. "Oh, Maurice, do you think I gave your uncle a poisonous draught?" she gasped. Her face was ashen pale, and her eyes took on an expression of deepest anguish.

I stood still; I felt my blood run coldly back to its overrught fount.

"Aunt Cecil," I began, but could get no further, a faintness came over me and I sank prone upon the chair. "Oh, Uncle Norman," I moaned.

"Maurice, be still!" whispered she. "You drive me frantic, frantic, frantic! Oh, God, how I have suffered!"

She turned and fled through the hall and upstairs as if the Father of Evil was after her. "My God, can it be that she poisoned Uncle Norman?" I questioned as I rose and began to wander aimlessly about the grounds, now gradually becoming covered with snow.

How long I walked, half crazed with grief, I know not, but when the shadows engulfed across the snow clad lawn, and deepened under the trees, some one laid a hand on my arm.

"Come into the house," they said, "your aunt is no more."

"Dead?" I almost shrieked.

"Yes; be calm for your cousin's sake, she is almost wild with grief."

Dumb of tongue and soul I followed where they led.

have no one else to divide with, and I am sure father would desire me to share with you if he were living."

In her letter was a draft for a considerable amount, of which I made good use. I am several years older now but I never think of Deepdale without a shudder, and I often close my eyes on Christmas Eve for fear I shall see a phantom hand or Aunt Cecil's rigid features.

A World's Championship. The New York Amateur Athletic Union, at its meeting this week at the Astor House, broke the ground for a great world's championship athletic competition, to be held in Chicago next year.

It will be a handicap meeting open to the world, and a committee was appointed to correspond with foreign athletic associations with a view to induce them to compete.

Julius Harler, of Chicago, was instructed to arrange three dates between August 30 and September 30, preferably September, and report at a meeting to be held later.

Ladies filled watches from $10 up at Blackmer's.

It is the intention of the union to make this the athletic event of the century, and with that object in view all foreign athletic associations will be asked to send competitors to the big games.

See the cheapest Solid Gold Watches ever offered in the city at Blackmer's.

"Jack" McGee and "Jack" Cattancher have been matched to fight to a finish before the Metropole Club, of Providence, next month. A purse of $1,250 is the incentive.

"Johnny" Griffin says that he will accept the Conroy Club's offer of a four thousand dollar purse to fight "English Frank" Murphy, provided he fails to arrange a match with Dixon.

Gerardine, the champion race mare, which holds the half-mile record in 46 seconds, and 63 furlongs in 1:19.34 has been sold, says a San Francisco dispatch, to L. H. Williams the proprietor of the Endline stable.

Not a penny of the purse and side wager Jack McAniff won at New Orleans is left. The champion went through it all in six weeks, playing it against the horses.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Rescued Their Child from Scrofula.

For Scrofula, Salt Rheum, and all other foul humors, the blood of children or adults, Hood's Sarsaparilla is an unequalled remedy. Read this: "We are so thankful to Hood's Sarsaparilla for what it did for our little girl that we make this statement for the benefit of other anxious parents and

Suffering Children

Our girl was a beautiful baby, fair and plump and healthy. But when she was two years old, sore broke out behind her ears and spread rapidly over her head and forehead down to her eyes, and into her neck. We consulted one of the best physicians in Brooklyn, but nothing did her any good. The doctor said it was caused by a venereal humor in the blood. Her head became offensive to the smell and dreadful to look at. Her general health waned and she would try in a large chair all day without any life or energy. The sores caused great itching and burning, so that at times we had to restrain her hands to prevent scratching. For 3 years with this terrible humor. Being urged to try Hood's Sarsaparilla we did so. We soon noticed that she had more life and appetite. The medicine seemed to drive out more of the humor for a short time, but it soon began to subside, the itching and burning ceased, and in a few months her head became entirely clear of the sore. She is now perfectly well, has no evidence of the humor, and her skin is as fine and healthy as ever. It seems like an entirely different child, in health and general appearance, from what she was before taking 6TH HALF-YEARLY COMPETITION.

She Suffered Fearfully

The Most Interesting Contest Ever Offered by the Canadian Agriculturist.

One Thousand Dollars in Cash, a pair of handsome Sibley Poles, Carriage and Harness, will be given for the third largest list.

Over one thousand additional prizes awarded in order of merit: One Grand Piano; $200 organ; $40 piano; Dinner Sets; Ladies Gold Watches; Silk Dress Patterns; Portiere Cur- tains; Silver Tea Service; Tray; Poems, bound in cloth; Dickson's 12 volumes, bound in cloth, etc.

As there are more than 1,000 prizes, any one who takes the trouble to prepare an ordinary good list will not fail to receive a valuable prize. This is the biggest thing in the competition line that we have ever placed before the public, and all the "part" will miss an opportunity of a life time.

Rules—1. Lists cannot be used other than in the words "The Canadian Agriculturist." For instance the word "egg" could not be used, as there is but one "g" in the three words. 2. Words having more than one meaning but spelled the same can be used but once. 3. Names of places and persons barred. 4. Errors will invalidate a list—the wrong words will simply not be counted.

Each list must contain one dollar to pay for six months' subscription to "The Agriculturist." If two or more lists, the largest list which bears the earliest postmark will take the first prize, and the others will receive prizes in order of merit. United States money and stamps taken at par.

The object in offering these magnificent prizes is to introduce our popular magazine into new homes, in every part of the American continent.

Every competitor enclosing 30 cents in stamps extra, will receive free, by mail, post-paid, one to "The Canadian Agriculturist's" Elegant Souvenir Spoon of Canada.

Prizes awarded to persons residing in the United States will be shipped from our New York office free of duty. All money letters should be registered.

Our Former Competition.—We have given away $25,000 in prizes during the last two years, and have thousands of letters from prize-winners in every state in the union and every part of Canada and Newfoundland.

Lord Kilgourie A. D. C., to the Governor General of Canada, writes: "I shall recommend my friends to enter your competitions." Mr. M. Braden, Vancouver, B. C., received $1,000 in gold and we hold his receipt for same. A few of the prize winners: Miss J. Robinson, Toronto, $1,000; J. J. Braden, Fredericton, N. B., $1,000; David Harrison, Syracuse, N. Y., $500; H. Davis, St. Louis, Mo., $500; Jas. Boyce, West Duluth, Minn., $500; Miss Georgia Robertson, Oak St., Brooklyn, $1,000; Fred H. Hills, 320 State St., Bridgeport, Conn., and thousands of others.

Address all communications to THE AGRICULTURIST, Peterborough, Ontario. (Competition closes January 15th, 1893.)

AGRICULTURE.

Notes and Suggestions of Practical Utility

FOR THE FARM, FIELD, GARDEN AND DAIRY.

Cleanings of Interest for Our Country Readers.

It pays to be clean.

Laziness breeds misery.

Ducks are omnivorous.

Almost doesn't get there.

Fall-finding is a bad failing.

It is easy to spoil a good cow.

A bath is preferable to a crack.

Self-support is the best support.

More than enough is not needed.

Agitate, illuminate and renovate.

Where grain thrives man can live.

Curd is better than milk for fowls.

Every mill can be made productive.

It is to one's credit to buy for cash.

Fowls in good condition moult well.

Questions are the key to knowledge.

By all means save your corn fodder.

Horned cows are often good milkers.

Breed needs to be backed up by feed.

Better stock and better methods pay.

Lamb used extra feed by themselves.

If you feed corn to sheep, feed lightly.

The poor sheep give the most trouble.

A dirty milker should not be tolerated.

Spooring nails makes them drive easier.

With the horse goes "horn distemper."

Animals bred on the farm are at home.

Too early breeding is a common mistake.

Animals thin in flesh are hard to winter.

Live for something, don't be a nonentity.

Signs of uncleanliness disgust a customer.

Don't let the grass grow under your feet.

Feed your cow if you expect her to feed you.

Have dry quarters for all domestic animals.

Reasons should vary with different animals.

Strive to produce a uniformly good article.

Try to make your leisure moments useful.

Feed right and you will feed economically.

The best goods command the highest price.

A lit' charcoal is good in the feed of fowls.

It is better to pinch a little and pay as you go.

Always have a separate room for dairy work.

Good management saves both feed and labor.

Hoarding money does not make business lively.

See that sheep confined have plenty of water.

The highest price calls for the best goods.

Whatever you do have a definite object in view.

Wheat middlings make an excellent feed for hogs.

All dry times are good for stopping leaks in roofs.

Often cream is not properly mixed when churning.

When a sheep dies it leaves enough to pay its debts.

Expel the animal heat before shipping your poultry.

What makes beef cattle so cheap and beef so dear?

Have the best tools, the best seed and the best stock.

The young pig, rightly fed, is the champion grower.

Appearance has a good deal of influence on the market.

The speculators have got their grip on the wheat crop.

The sheep seems to be void of anything like judgment.

Prepare for a winter round of instruction and amusement.

Goodness takes the place of many fine accomplishments.

Put up nice butter in nice shape for market and it will always sell.

DAVIS, STAPLES & CO.

The Leading Drug Store in the City of Fredericton.

The establishment of Messrs. Davis, Staples & Co., on the corner of Queen and York streets, presents a most attractive appearance at this season, and is by far the largest and handsomest establishment of the kind in the city. The firm carry everything to be found in a first class drug store, and at this season have an elegant line of toilet and manure sets, dressing cases, etc., in oxidized silver, leather and plush, at prices that will suit all. Their display of solid photograph frames and whip holders is most magnificent. Notwithstanding these goods are the first of the kind ever shown in this city, Messrs. Davis, Staples & Co. are selling them at prices so low they will astonish you. Give them a call.

No fruit is so sweet as that picked from your own vine and tree.

Feeding economically does not mean stinting the ration, but just what will be eaten without waste.

Farmers need to come up on a higher political level. This means a better understanding of government problems.

It is as much your duty to feed your plants as your pigs. The pig can run around and to some extent help themselves, but the plants cannot.

Emery powder will remove ordinary stains from ivory knife handles.

Lay a piece of charcoal upon a burn, leave it there an hour and the burn will be healed.

Crude oil is excellent to wipe wood-work and furniture with, according to a painter. Wipe off with a clean cloth.

When washing red table-cloths and napkins put a little borax in the water. They will clean easily, and will not fade.

To keep bread-jar and cake box sweet rinse after washing with boiling water, in which has been dissolved a little soda. Rinse, wipe and set them out in the sun for a few hours.

To keep a piano case in good order great care must be taken in the application of so called "piano polish," which is constantly being offered for the purpose of making the instrument look bright. A very little polish should be used, and that must be rubbed off well with a soft woolen cloth. The best way to clean a piano is to use lukewarm water and a little oil. Do not use any of the cheap piano oils. Oil over the case with your chamois skin. Bruises may be removed by the application of a little pumice stone. Always use a silk duster for a piano.

THE DAIRY.

Late Ripening Cheese.

Of the manufacture of late ripening Cheshire cheese Prof. Lombardy says: The evening's milk is usually strained into shallow pans and placed on the dairy floor. In the morning the cream is removed and most of the milk is poured into the cheese vat. The morning's milk is then added, and as much of the evening's milk is heated up to 100 degrees by floating the pans on a boiler of hot water as will raise the whole of the milk to 90 degrees Fahrenheit. The annatto is now used, being well stirred in, the rennet added, enough being used to produce a curd ready to cut in about an hour. The curd is then broken up to the size of small peas. The development of acid is prevented as far as possible by scattering a few handfuls of salt on the curd during the breaking-down-process, and by drawing the whey just as soon as it can be done. As soon as the whey is removed, racks are placed in one end of the vat, the curd is cut into cubes and lifted on them, when it is turned every fifteen or twenty minutes. In three-quarters of an hour it is weighed, broken up by the hands and salted in the proportion of 2 to 3 ounces to 20 pounds of curd; it is then placed in the cheese vat. In three-quarters of an hour it is weighed, broken up by the hands and salted in the proportion of 2 to 3 ounces to 20 pounds of curd; it is then placed in the cheese vat. The morning's milk is then added, and as much of the evening's milk is heated up to 100 degrees by floating the pans on a boiler of hot water as will raise the whole of the milk to 90 degrees Fahrenheit. The annatto is now used, being well stirred in, the rennet added, enough being used to produce a curd ready to cut in about an hour. The curd is then broken up to the size of small peas. The development of acid is prevented as far as possible by scattering a few handfuls of salt on the curd during the breaking-down-process, and by drawing the whey just as soon as it can be done. As soon as the whey is removed, racks are placed in one end of the vat, the curd is cut into cubes and lifted on them, when it is turned every fifteen or twenty minutes. In three-quarters of an hour it is weighed, broken up by the hands and salted in the proportion of 2 to 3 ounces to 20 pounds of curd; it is then placed in the cheese vat.

The next morning it is put under press. For several successive mornings it is turned into a new cloth and more pressure is applied. In four or five days it ceases to drip and is then taken to the curing room. It is turned daily for the first week, then every other day for a month, then twice a week until it gets firm and well set, when once a week suffices until sold.

In the Practical Farmer, Prof. Henry Stewart says: "I doubt if it pays to keep a cow after eight years unless it be for her calves for the milking qualities certainly depreciate at that age, when she has passed her best. But as the calves are an important part of the income of a cow, it may pay to keep the best of the old cows on this account, although my experience has been that old cows do not retain their yield of milk so long as the young ones." It is the custom in Holland to dispose of all cows at the end of eight years. This is because they are yet good for beef, which seems to be the destiny of all horses animals in that country. So far as milk and butter are concerned, most well kept cows are good until they are twelve years old, and often do well until fourteen. But this of course greatly detracts from their value for beef. In Chicago, and probably elsewhere, there is a demand for this poor old cow beef to can. It is less trouble to separate it from the fat, which is not desirable for canning purposes, and it can be bought cheaper than young beef. Extra cooking makes it tender. It may be just as nutritious and clean as young beef, but it would not sell well from the butchers block.

FREDERICTON, N. B., DEC. 5, 1892.

PAY OF THE D. A. G. OF HALIFAX

In a former issue we called attention to the case of the Deputy Adjutant General of Halifax, and the Halifax correspondent of the St. John Sun has referred to the matter in the following telegram: "The statement made that the suspended Deputy Adjutant General Worsley is drawing regular pay and that acting D. A. G. Gordon is drawing pay both from the Canadian Regiment of Infantry and as D. A. G., is untrue. The suspended deputy adjutant general has not drawn pay since August of last year, and D. A. G. Gordon is only drawing his regular Canadian Infantry pay with living expenses in Halifax."

We fail to see any defence in the above and would like to ask what the militia authorities consider living expenses of the acting Deputy Adjutant General in Halifax? Why should the position be filled by a temporary officer for some eighteen months when there are many men competent to fill the position permanently? Why not either appoint Major Gordon to the position and be done with it, or send him back to fill his position in Fredericton for which he is drawing his pay? Do the militia authorities consider it necessary to pay an officer $4 a day for simply holding a position in the Canadian Regiment of Infantry and also $4 a day for filling another position temporarily? There is nothing to justify such a course and the sooner the authorities make the appointment of D. A. G. at Halifax the better.

Since the above article was put in type we have received a marked copy of the "Halifax Acadian Recorder," which also makes reference to the above telegram in the following way:

"However this may be, what is the cause of the 18 months delay in investigation? The charges and counter-charges are well understood in this community. It has also been understood that Col. Worsley, the regular D. A. G., has asked for an investigation into these charges and counter-charges—has even demanded that they be submitted to a court-martial. A regular commission, drawn from the military district, was reported to be on its way here before the last Dominion election in this constituency, and it was countermanded—or at all events did not reach here—because it was generally accepted that its operations might interfere with the political situation. Perhaps the government, in this, only acted as governments go in matters of this kind, when "investigation" at the time might prove inconvenient, but it was anticipated that when the elections were over there would be some definite action taken. But through all these months the position remains as indicated by the Fredericton Globe."

It is now almost eighteen months since the regular D. A. G. at Halifax was stood aside under the orders from the Minister of Militia, owing to some irregularity in the officer's duties. Since that time Major Gordon of the Canadian Regiment of Infantry here has been temporarily filling that position in Halifax.

Now, there appears to be a long story to tell about this somewhat "mysterious" affair. A great injustice is evidently being inflicted in some quarter, through investigation and court-martial being denied. It should not go on any longer. The alleged facts are freely discussed in militia circles; and, as discussed, are of a nature that should be not suffer at the hands of this imported hangman as a murderer having the benefit of a doubt given to him.

But the law of capital punishment is full of incidents which tell eloquently against its maintenance. Those who quote scripture in favor of it, outdo themselves; by following up the Levitical law in all its phases they will find numerous passages on the side of punishment which to-day are not recognized at all but would prove abhorrent to those living under Christian instead of the Mosaic dispensation. But scripture may be made to do duty in any case, not that the scriptures themselves are capable of gross misconception, but the ingenuity or devilishness of man, if we may so call it, is tortuous, designing, cunning. For example, the Mosaic quote from the old Testament in support of Polygamy, not forgetting Solomon and his concubines. When slavery existed in the United States, the North and the South both quoted from the same scriptures in justification of the upholding or overthrow as the case may be, that peculiar institution. And so it is. Capital punishment must be treated in its secular aspect—as to the good it is to society—as to the safety to society if it were done away with. At the beginning of this century there were upwards of one hundred cases upon the English statutes for criminal offences. To-day there are but two perhaps three subject to capital punishment. Yet crime has never been less than it is to-day. Murder in England is now of rare occurrence, whereas during the last century the gallows at Tyburn were seldom idle. But without beginning to go into the important subject, so fruitful of volumes of references, we leave it with the declaration of our belief that Buck should not have been put to death under the circumstances of the case.

CHRISTMAS NOVELTIES
At J. D. Fowler's Jewelry Store—The Leading Establishment of the kind in the city. The jewelry store of Mr. J. D. Fowler is again stocked with Christmas novelties, which are selling at prices away below former years, and away below all competitors. His stock of fine gold jewelry including brooches, earrings, pins, bracelets, etc., is simply magnificent, while everything "brass" forth songs of praise for the gem, hard, silver, wedding and diamond wares! Here you can get watches in gold, gold filled, silver or nickel. Beautiful solid gold hunting case watches for the ladies, with choice of Waltham or Elgin movement, for only $22.50. Just think of it! He also carries the largest and best stock of sterling silver ever shown in the city. Sterling silver cups, sterling silver spoons, sterling silver napkin rings and many other articles too numerous to mention. A great variety of clocks at bottom prices, also an immense stock of silver-plated goods at prices that will astonish you. See advertisement another page.

LAST ACT OF THE DRAMA

Elsewhere we give an account of the execution of Buck at Dorchester, which is the last act in the melancholy drama in connection with the killing of Steadman. The law has been vindicated and justice appeased, according to the light of capital punishment advocates. Had the man been let live in penitentiary confinement he would have had time for repentance while society would have suffered nothing. If the law of capital punishment is to continue upon the statute book, it is to be hoped that its administration will be confined strictly to its letter in the future. If Buck was guilty of wilful murder, then hundreds of murderers have escaped the penalty of death, through the verdict of manslaughter, far more guilty than he. There was no premeditation in his case—he had no object to serve in killing Steadman—no malice-forethought. His sole object was escape—it was a drunken peevishness—his and his friend "Jim" had been arguing in the house, a not unfrquent occurrence, and on the word being given that the police were upon them, they both bolted for the door, not to kill anybody but to get clear; and it was in the darkness the shots were fired without thought, certainly no malice, at random as it were, when the fatal shot took effect. We truly believe that had it not been for the fact that the man slain was popular in his neighborhood and well known for his good qualities, the jury who convicted him would have looked upon the facts of the case in a more lenient spirit—had the venue been removed to another town or county, we believe that the crime would have been construed into that of manslaughter, and we further believe that this is the general opinion. But no, there was but one feeling aroused in Moncton—the blood of Buck must pay the penalty of Steadman's death while judge and jury were inexorable. Notwithstanding the circumstances of there being no premeditation, and no direct proof that Buck fired the fatal shot; or certainly not with murderous intention. We believe that there is no case upon the records of criminal jurisprudence in this or any other country that stands out in bolder relief than the case now under consideration. Buck did

WHERE TO BUY.
A FEW REMARKS ABOUT OUR LEADING MERCHANTS.

And What They Have to Offer to Our Readers.

The Greatest Variety—The Lowest Prices.

The holiday season has come once more and the good old custom of indicating our friendship and esteem by a present, is one of the greatest enjoyments of the season.

It is a custom that affords a great amount of pleasure to those who give as well as to those who receive; and as many of our country readers will have a limited amount of time while in the city, we propose giving them a few hints that may be of great help, and will assist them in getting to the right places to buy their Christmas goods. Starting at the upper end of the city we first drop into the large and well stocked grocery store of

Mr. J. W. Faber, on the corner of King and Westmorland streets. Here you will find one of the finest lines of groceries in the city, a fact that is fully demonstrated by the large number of persons who deal here. In this establishment you can get everything required in the shape of Xmas groceries, at the lowest prices. Mr. Faber also carries a fine line of fruit including grapes, oranges, dates, currants and raisins. Also a large stock of Christmas confectionery at prices that will suit you. Don't fail to give him a call while in the city.

Leaving Mr. Faber's we next call at Mr. G. McKeel's variety store. This is one of the largest establishments in the city, and just the place you can get what you want for Xmas. On the main floor of the store a grand display of fancy goods and glassware, delights the eye of the visitor. Here, also, a magnificent line of hanging lamps, table and study lamps and lamps of every description is shown. Large show cases are filled with silver plated goods; an elegant parlor suit shown in one of the large plate windows is admired by all passers. The price of this suit is only $35.00, which is wonderfully low. On the second floor a beautiful show of furniture of excellent design and finish is made, including sideboards, chiffoniers, lounges, easy chairs, bedroom sets, etc. On the upper flat is the upholstery department, and reserve stock room. Mr. McKeel's stock this year is larger and better assorted than ever before. His goods are all marked in plain figures and all who visit there will be treated handsomely.

We next call at Blackmer's Jewelry Store. When an elegant line of jewelry, silver ware, watches, clocks, etc., is shown. The stock is selected with great care and the goods are of the best quality. His stock of gold watches for ladies and gents is larger than ever before and will be sold at the lowest prices.

Passing on down we come to Davis, Staples & Co's Drug Store, on the corner of Queen and York streets. This is the largest and handsomest establishment of the kind in the city. The firm carry everything to be found in a first-class drug store, and at this season have an elegant line of toilet and maniere sets, dressing cases, etc. in plush and leather. Also a beautiful line of collared photo frames and what holders. They also carry a complete line of mechanical and bric-a-brac. Cigars, cigarette cases, tobacco pouches, etc., to numerous to mention.

The large dry goods store of Trenant, Davis, & Co. opposite the Normal School is the next place to call at. Our city is noted for its fine stores, and especially in this line of the dry goods houses, and among them this firm takes the lead. The arrangements in the interior of this mammoth establishment cannot be surpassed in the province. The stock embraces every variety of staple and fancy dry goods; the firm being in a position to quote rates that defy competition and supply every demand of their customers.

If any of our readers are in need of a pair of shoes drop in to A. Lettimer's shoe store. Mr. Lettimer's stock of boots, shoes, rubbers, slippers, moccasins, etc., is the largest in the city. The store is situated on Queen street, directly opposite the Normal School, and has lately been refitted and is second to none in appearance. His window are tastefully dressed with the finest of footwear, and his stock, which comprises the best goods in the market, is sold at prices that cannot be beaten.

An Attractive Store.
An attractive store is that of Nelson Campbell, situated directly opposite the City Hall. Mr. Campbell commenced business at this stand in May, 1886, carrying at that time a line of gents furnishings, along with his present line of boots, shoes and hats. Finding, however, as his business increased, that he was unable even in the spacious store he occupied to keep the variety he wished to have, he decided to do away with gents' furnishings and devote himself entirely to hats, caps and footwear. Studying carefully the wants and requirements of his patrons and customers he has made an enviable reputation for his store for honest goods and fair dealing. Those who have never made purchases from him should do so, as they are sure to be satisfied with the result.

What York County wants to know is, that the best place in Fredericton to buy Holiday Goods is at Blackmer's. The report that Gilmore's Band was about to disband seems to have arisen from the fact that it is about to be re-organized. The usual number of musicians is about sixty-five; at present there are one hundred, and when the band goes travelling there will be about fifty. Nobody disappointed up to date who has purchased from R. Blackmer's stock.

JOHN A. KIMBALL
Hereditary of the Heart! Chronic Dyspepsia!
Auricular Constipation! Rheumatism!
CURED BY GRODER'S SYRUP

SAINT JOHN, N. B., October 11, 1892.
To THE GENUINE DRUGGISTS OF THE CITY OF SAINT JOHN, N. B.:
Gentlemen: I, John A. Kimball, of the City of Saint John, in the Province of New Brunswick, do solemnly declare that:
I cannot speak in too high praise of the wonders that Groder's Botanic Dyspepsia Syrup has worked in my case. It is an act of justice as well as THE duty for me to tell the public through you just what your remedy has done for me. I am 45 years of age. My life during the past 23 years has never been free from suffering with Rheumatism, Chronic Dyspepsia, Auricular Constipation, and Rheumatism of the heart of 20 years standing has entirely disappeared. My distress from severe CONSTIPATION has been an unending torture for the past ten years, but your remedy is fast restoring healthy action of the stomach and bowels. Rheumatism of the heart has ceased to trouble me. I am no longer a gloomy, melancholy dyspeptic. There is no ache or pain in any part of my body. My food digests readily and causes me no distress whatever. Your medicine is the first of the kind I have tried that has given me any relief. I am ready to answer any inquiry concerning this CURES statement, for I firmly believe in Groder's Syrup and desire other sufferers to obtain help as I have. It will cure them as it cured me. And I make this solemn declaration in witness whereof I have signed my name and the name of the City of Saint John, in the Province of New Brunswick, this 11th day of October, A. D. 1892.
JOHN A. KIMBALL.
Before me, J. E. BAINES,

Why, very little. I'll start off soon for the uttermost ends of the earth, but I wish to stay a little longer and see her sweet face. It's not much, is it? I won't compromise her, will I? She need not run any risk, need she? And I'm a man of honor, am I not? You don't suppose me to be capable of any baseness, do you?
My dear fellow, how absurd, of course not. Only I was afraid by giving you to this you might drift into a worse state of mind. She's all safe, I fancy, surrounded as she is by so many guardians. It is you that I was anxious about.
Don't be alarmed, old chap, about me. I feel calmer already. I can face my situation firmly, and prepare for the worst. While I have been sitting here I have thought out the future. I will stay here for four or five weeks. I will only seek solace for myself by riding about where I may meet her. I do not intend to go to the house at all. My demon of a wife may have the house all to herself. I won't even give her the pleasure of supposing that she has threatened me. She shall never even suspect the state of my heart. That would be bliss indeed to one like her, for then she would find herself able to put me on the rack. No, my boy, I've thought it all over. Some Dacres is himself again. No more nonsense now. Do you understand what I mean?
Yes, said Hawbury slowly, and in his worst drawl; but ah, really, don't you think it's all nonsense?
What?
Why, this ducking and diving about to get a glimpse of her face.
I don't intend to duck and dive about. I merely intend to ride like any other gentleman. What put that into your head?
Well, I don't know. I gathered it from the way you expressed yourself.
Well, I don't intend anything of the kind. I simply wish to have an occasional look at her—to get a bow and a smile of recognition when I meet her, and have a few additional recollections to turn over in my thoughts after I have left her. But this seems odd.
Oh no, it doesn't. I quite understand it. A passing smile or a parting sigh is sometimes more precious than any other memory. I know all about it, you know—looks, glances, smiles, sighs, and all that sort of thing, you know.
Well, now, old chap, there's one thing I want you to do for me.

fairly looked at her, and she would shortly be summoned down.
And now this prospect brought new hope. Light returned to her eyes, and joy to her heart. Yes, she would be summoned. She must prepare herself to encounter his eager gaze. Quickly she stepped to the mirror, hastily she arranged these little details in which consists the charm of a lady's dress, and severely she scrutinized the face and figure reflected there. The scrutiny was satisfactory one. Face and figure were perfect; nor was there in the world any thing more graceful and more lovely than the image there, though the one who looked upon it was far too self-trustful to entertain any such idea as that.
Then she seated herself and waited. The time moved slowly, indeed, as she waited there. After a few minutes she found it impossible to sit any longer. She walked to the door, held it open, and listened. She heard his voice below quite plainly. They had two suites of rooms in the house—the bedrooms up stairs and reception-rooms below. Here Lord Hawbury was, now, whilst hearing of Ethel. Well she knew that voice. She listened and frowned. The tone was too flippant. He talked like a man without a care—like a butterfly of society—and that was a class which she scorned. Here he was, keeping her waiting. Here he was, keeping up a hateful clatter of small-talk, while her heart was aching with suspense.
Ethel stood there listening. Minutes succeeded minutes. There was no request for her. How strong was the cool indifference of the man below and the feverish impatience of this listener above. A wild impulse came to her to go down, under the pretense of looking for something, then another to go down and out for a walk so that he might see her. But in either case pride held her back. How could she? Had he not already seen her? Must he not know perfectly well

He was charming, affable, easy, chatty. Of course he was known to lady Dalrymple. The Dowager could make herself as agreeable as any lady living, except young and beautiful ones. The conversation, therefore, was easy and flowing. Hawbury excelled in this.
Now there are several variations in the great art of expression, and each of these minor arts a part by itself. Among these may be enumerated:
First, of course, the art of novel writing.
Second, the art of writing editorials.
Third, the art of writing paragraphs.
After these come all the arts of oratory, letter writing, essay writing, and all that sort of thing, among which there is one which I particularly wish to call attention to, and that is:
The art of small talk.
Now this art Hawbury had to an extraordinary degree of perfection. He knew how to beat out the faintest shred of an idea into the illimitable surface of small-talk. He never took refuge in the weather. He lent that to bunglers and beginners. His resources were of a different character, and were so skilfully managed that he never failed to leave a very agreeable impression. Small talk! Why I've been in situations sometimes where I would have given the power of writing news (if I had it) for perfection in this last art.
But this careless, easy, limped, smooth, natural, pleasant and agreeable flow of chat was not his only resource. He was a listener above. She ought to be there. Why was she so slighted? Could it be possible that he would go away without seeing her?
She was soon to know.
She heard him rise. She heard him saunter to the door.
Thank you, Ha, ha, you're too kind—really—very happy, you know—Tomorrow, is it? Good morning.
And with these words he went out.

other things, they tried to cheer her by telling her of Hawbury. Lady Dalrymple was full of him. She told all about his family, his income, his habits, and his mode of life. She made much of his satisfaction, that he had made inquiries, after Minnie, and that she had promised to introduce him to her the next time he called. Upon which he had laughingly insisted on calling the next day. All of which led Lady Dalrymple to conclude that he had seen Minnie somewhere and had fallen in love with her.
This was the pleasing strain of conversation into which the ladies were led off by Lady Dalrymple. When I say the ladies, I mean Lady Dalrymple and Minnie. Mrs. Willoughby said nothing, except once or twice when she endeavored to give a turn to the conversation, in which she was signally successful. Lady Dalrymple and Minnie engaged in an animated argument over the interesting subject of Hawbury's intentions, Minnie taking her stand on the ground of his indifference, the other maintaining the position that he was in love. Minnie declared that she had never seen him. Lady Dalrymple asserted her belief that he had seen her. The latter also asserted that Hawbury would not doubt be a constant visitor, and gave Minnie very sound advice as to the best mode of treating him.
On the following day Hawbury called and was introduced to Minnie. He chatted with her in his usual style, and Lady Dalrymple was more than ever confirmed in her first belief. He suggested a ride, and the suggestion was taken up.
If any thing had been needed to complete Ethel's despair it was this second visit and the prospect of a ride. Mrs. Willoughby was introduced to him; but he took little notice of her, treating her with a kind of reserve that was a little more than nice. The reason of this was his strong sympathy with his friend and his detestation of Mrs. Willoughby's forgetful, promptly and calmly held aloof, and kept out of his way with the most jealous care, until at last she staid indoors altogether, for fear if she went out she might meet him somewhere. For such a meeting she did not feel sufficiently strong.

Often she thought of quitting Naples and returning to England. Yet, after all, she found a strange comfort in being there. She was near him. She heard his voice every day, and saw his face that was something. And it was better than absence.
Minnie used always to come to her and pour forth long accounts of Lord Hawbury—how he looked, what he said, what he did and what he proposed to do. Certainly there was not the faintest approach to love-making, or even sentiment, in Hawbury's attitude toward Minnie. His words were of the world of small-talk—a world where sentiment and love-making have but little place. Still there was the evident fact of his attention, which were too frequent to be overlooked.
Hawbury rapidly became the most prominent subject of Minnie's conversation. She used to prattle away for hours about him. She alluded admiringly to his long whiskers. She thought them "lovely." She said that he was "awfully nice." She told Mrs. Willoughby that "he was nicer than any of them; and then, Kitty, darling, she added, it's so awfully good of him not to be coming and saving my life, and carry me on his back down a mountain, like an ope, and then pretending that he's my father, you know."
For you know, Kitty pet, I've always longed so awfully to see some really nice person, you know, who wouldn't go and save my life and bother me. Now he doesn't seem a bit like prouping. I do hope he won't. Don't you, Kitty dearest? It's so much nicer not to proupe. It's so horrid when they go and proupe; and then, you know, I've had so much of that sort of thing. So Kitty, I think he's really the nicest person that I ever saw, and I really think I'm beginning to like him.
Far different from these were the conversations which Mrs. Willoughby had with Ethel. She was perfectly familiar with Ethel's story. It had been confided to her long ago. She alone knew why it was that Ethel had walked unattended through crowds of admirers. The terrible story of her rescue was memorable to her for other reasons; and the one who had taken the prominent part in that rescue could not be without interest to her.

that she was there? No, if he did not call for her she could not go. She could not make advances.
Minnie succeeded to minute, and Ethel stood there burning with impatience, racked with suspense, a prey to the bitterest feelings. Still no message. Why did he delay? Her heart ached now more than ever, the choking feeling in her throat returned and her eyes grew moist. She steadied herself by holding to the door. Her fingers grew white at the tightness of her grasp; eyes and ears were strained in their intense watchfulness over the room below.
Of course the caller below was in a perfect state of ignorance about all this. He had not the remotest idea of that one who now stood so near. He came as a martyr. He came to make a call. It was a thing he detested. To a man like him the one thing on earth to be avoided was a bore. To be bored was to his mind the uttermost depth of misfortune. This he had voluntarily accepted. He was being bored, and bored to death. Certainly a man never accepted a calamity more gracefully than Hawbury.
