"ULSTERMAN" ARRESTED

Fined $8 for Indecent Conduct in Graveyard—His Name is Mullin.

In the police court this morning four drunks were fined eight dollars or thirty days, one, a first offender, got off for half price and one out on deposit did not show up, so the money was forfeited.

George Halfpenny was arrested by Officer Crawford on Pitt street on Saturday night charged with using profane language. He pleaded not guilty, but was unable to call any witnesses and as the officer's evidence was clear he was fined eight dollars or two months with hard labor. Halfpenny was in court last week, being mixed up in the Carr fighting case.

A man named Mullin, for whom the police have been on the look-out for some time, was arrested Sunday evening, shortly after six o'clock, in the Old Bural Ground, charged with indecent conduct. Two officers, while on their way to the guard room to report for duty were called to by two ladies who were sitting on a bench under the trees on the Sydney street side of the burial ground. They told the officers what happened and as they saw enough for themselves they made the arrest. The police evidence was sufficient to convict Mullin, who Mullin without the ladies being called. He had denied the accusation but was fined eight dollars or two months with hard labor. When Mullin came up to pay his fine the magistrate asked him if he had not been there before on a similar charge and this he denied. After he had gone by reference to his records Police Clerk Henderson was able to show that Mullin did not tell the truth. The police know him as "the ulster man."

In imposing the sentence his honor requested the police to pay more attention to the grave yard, saying that he had of late been many complaints as to the conduct of certain parties there. Turn out the loafers and bums he said.

The four men charged with stealing Patrick McCann's horse and rig have returned to the court that they did not take the horse from the yard but found him on the street and then started off on a drive by way of a "cut." They expressed themselves willing to make good any damage done and under this arrangement were allowed out on Saturday.

Four electric shocks were given him before he was pronounced dead.

The crime for which Burns was executed was the killing of Captain Townsend of the schooner Buckley last November, but he also had confessed to having murdered no less than four persons. Townsend was killed during a dispute over wages amounting to about $200, which Burns claimed was due him. After his arrest, Burns freely admitted having killed Townsend.
