OUR OWN ADVERTISEMENT.

The primary objects at which it aims in the present circumstances of our Province are:— 1. The promotion of immigration, and the settlement of the wild lands.

THE PRINCE'S PROGRESS.

[From the Montreal Gazette.] SARNIA, Sept. 13th, 1860.

The train stopped nowhere on the route, as it runs almost entirely through the woods.

To day was charming, and the fine forest was seen to great advantage.

Arriving at Sarnia, the Prince left the cars and walked along the scarlet cloth, which covered the platform, to one of the prettiest pavilions he had yet seen.

Around this 2,000 people were gathered, and about 200 Indians from the Manitoulin Islands sat on long straight benches in front.

Behind was the River St. Clair, the white houses of Port Huron glittering in the sun, and several crowded steamers lying at the wharf.

The Mayor presented the Address, and the Councilors were severally introduced.

The Mayor then presented the County Council's Address and the County Councilors were also presented.

The St. Andrews Society also presented an Address, and the President and office bearers were introduced.

The Indians—real red savages, majestic in mien, faces painted, heads adorned with hawk's feathers and squirrels tails, silver spoons in their noses, moccasins, and among them a magnificent fellow named Kanawagasti, or the great Bear of the north, advanced to the front, and striking out his right hand, yelled out an Indian address to the Prince which was translated to him by an Indian interpreter, who as a red man, finished each sentence and folded his arms, gave meaning of what was said.

The whole harangue was as follows: "Great Brother.—The sky is beautiful. It was the wish of the Great Spirit that we should meet in this place. My heart is glad that the Queen sent her eldest son to see her Indian subjects. I am happy to see you here this day. I hope the sky will continue to look fine, to give happiness both to the whites and the Indians Great Brother. When you were a little child your parents told you that there were such people as Indians in Canada, and now since you have come to Canada yourself you see them. I am one of the Ojibway Chiefs and represent the tribe here assembled to welcome their Great Brother. You see the Indians who are around, they have heard at some future day you will put on the British Crown and sit on the British Throne. It is their earnest desire you will always remember all of them."

The Prince replied verbally, that he was grateful for the address, that he hoped the sky would always be beautiful and that he should never forget his red brethren.

As each phrase was interpreted to the Indians they yelled their approbation. Then the name of each was called out by the interpreter from a list handed him by the Governor General and each one advanced in turn. Some had Buffalo horns upon their heads, and some with snake skins tied round their waists. Most of them were feathered on the leg like Bantam cocks.

Almost all had bands round their waists, embroidered with colored grass or porcupine quills. The Chiefs shook hands with the Prince and the Governor, the others bowed, and to each His Royal Highness gave a medal with the likeness of Her Majesty on one side and the Royal Arms on the other. The chief's medals were as large as the palm of your hand. The other Indians received smaller ones about the size of half a crown. Then the red men brought forward a box and gave it to the Prince; it contained a tomahawk, bows, and arrows, wampum pipes of peace, and other Indian curiosities.

This over, the Prince went through Sarnia, passing under three very fine arches. He was driven in a carriage and four, and attended by a cavalcade of gentlemen and ladies on horseback to Point Edward. Here a splendid lunch was prepared, and the Royal party partook of it. The usual toasts were given with enthusiasm, and the Prince proposed prosperity to the Grand Trunk which was enthusiastically honored. He then went to the balcony of the depot, whence a fine view of St. Clair was obtained and embarked on the Grand Trunk steamer Michigan, running up the river into Lake Huron, which was studded with sailing crafts. He returned to the Great Western station, and left for London again.

SECOND DESPATCH. LONDON, Sept. 13, 1860.

The Prince returned about half-past three o'clock.

The Indians were all drawn up in line when the train moved away. They yelled a farewell whoop and a salute was fired.

This evening the Prince attends the ball in the building erected for the purpose in rear of the Hotel where he is staying. Everything is passing off very pleasantly.

There is also a ball given by firemen in the city hall, which was beautifully decorated for the levee.

At the fireman's trial to day the Phoenix Company of this place took the prize.

The City is partially illuminated again to-night.

The Prince will leave early to-night for Brantford, Fort Erie and Niagara Falls.

CLIFTON HOUSE, NIAGARA FALLS, 14th.—The Prince and suite arrived this evening, and visited the Falls. They were escorted by a torchlight procession.

THE PRINCE OF WALES, Buffalo, Sept. 16. The Prince will receive and answer an address from the Directors of the Suspension Bridge on its center next Monday.

SUSPENSION BRIDGE, 15th sept.—The illumination of the Falls last night was superb. The great gulf, horribly dark a minute before, became clearly visible in all its features, as soon as the long line of fires was lighted, which extended near the water's edge, all along the cliff on the Canada side. The seething waters seemed now white as milk, then red as liquid lava, as the colors of the light changed. The Falls themselves like cascades of moonlight, or of liquid mother of pearl. The Royal party slipped quietly out of their house, and went to table Rock to see the sight. The writer who was in company with Captain Harris of the Hamilton Field Battery, chanced to be there too. Nobody else was there. The Prince went so close to the brink, that the Duke of Newcastle laid a warning hand upon him. From the rock the party went to edge of Horseshoe Falls. The Prince, and the Governor General, went out upon the rocks or stand which lie in the shallow water near the shore, and, while holding by the log which there juts out, the Prince lost his fingerring. Captain Harris brought a lantern, and was fortunate enough to find it just in the water. He gave it to His Royal Highness to the Governor General. Soon afterwards, the Royal party went to their quarters. To-day the Prince's movements have been nominally private, and in spite of the number of carriages, and crowds of people which have attempted to follow him wherever he has been, he has succeeded in eluding their pursuit exceedingly well. It was announced that a boat with the figure of a man in it, would be sent over the Falls at half past ten, and great crowds assembled on Goat Island, and on the prominent points of the Canada shore, expecting to see the boat and the Prince too, but they were disappointed in their expectations, and after waiting a long time in vain they dispersed. The Prince, and his immediate suite, excepting Lord St. Germain and Dr. Aekland, went to the staircase near the horseshoe, at one o'clock, and descended. The writer was, again, the only person, not of the Royal party, who saw the event at the bottom of the winding stairway. The party put on water-proof clothes, hats, overcoats, trousers and over-shoes, and all, except Gen. Bruce, went under the falling sheet of water as far as practicable. On their return they went up the same stairway, pausing at the windows to look at the beautiful rainbows, and at the Falls themselves, in their ever varying aspect. At the top, they inscribed their names in the register book, on a clean page. Albert Edward, Prince of Wales, was the first signatur, then the Duke of Newcastle's, then Sir Edmund Head's, afterwards Gen. Bruce's and the others. The lady at the Museum opposite, considered it a high honour to have these names in her register book, and took pride in showing them to visitors with particular instructions not to blot the page. At 4.30, this P. M., the Prince and suite on horseback, came to Blondin's enclosure near the Suspension Bridge, and witnessed the successful feat of Blondin carrying a man over the rapids of Niagara on a rope, also walking the entire length of his narrow pathway on stilts. The Prince was very much pleased with the exhibition. About five thousand people were present, and everything passed off pleasantly. The Prince returned to his house at six P. M. and was everywhere received with enthusiastic cheers.—Tel. to Quebec Morn. Chron.

HAMILTON, C. W., Sept. 13.—The royal party left Niagara falls early this morning for Queenston, where the Prince laid the top stone of the Monument, and received an address from the veterans of 1812, and made a lengthy reply. From Queenston the party went by boat to Niagara and Port Dalhousie, thence by rail via St. Catharines, arriving here at 4 P. M. They were conducted through the town by an immense crowd to their residence.

This evening the Prince attends a Philharmonic concert and to-morrow opens the Provincial fair, which will be the most extensive one ever held in Canada. The Prince sent Blondin $360.

At the opening of a new Normal School in Bunceous Ayres, July 13, 8,900 children marched in procession.

CARLETON CIRCUIT COURT.

WEDNESDAY, Sept. 26.

The Queen against Enoch Phelan. The prisoner was arraigned upon an indictment for stealing a horse from one Toeling. The fact of his taking the horse was proved; but from what transpired in the cross examination of the witnesses against him, and from the evidence of several witnesses for the defence, it appeared that he had, or at least, supposed that he had, himself title to the horse by purchase, and that an endeavor was made to trick him out of the animal. The Chief Justice, when the evidence reached this point, expressed an opinion that it was useless to go further; and the Attorney General and counsel for the defence concurring, the jury, under the Judge's direction, gave a verdict of acquittal, without leaving their box. The Attorney General was for the prosecution, and L. P. Fisher for the defence.

This was an action of ejectment to recover possession of a lot of land in the present Parish of Peel, in Carleton, known as lot No. 79. John C. Allen and George L. Dibblee appeared for the Plaintiff, and L. P. Fisher for the defence. The Plaintiff's counsel put in evidence to prove that this lot along with the adjoining lot, No. 79, were granted by the crown to William Poole Turner and others; from whom it was purchased by the late Henry G. Clopper; that Clopper had but two children, Margaret and Fanny, the former of whom married Dr. Peters, of St. John, the other George Botsford, of Fredericton; that by a decree in Chancery the Clopper property was divided among these two, and these lots 78 and 79 were apportioned to Mrs. Peters; that Dr. and Mrs. Peters were dead, and the defendant George C. Peters, was their only child and heir; and rested their case. The defence set up was the continuous and undisturbed adverse possession, by Mr. Gigy, the defendant, for over twenty years. Mr. Gigy gave evidence that in 1824, he, by leave of Parson Dibblee, went on a glebe lot on this side the River, where he remained five or six years, making considerable improvements; that Mr. Clopper got a grant from the crown of this glebe lot, and in consideration of his leaving it, gave the defendant possession of these lots 78 and 79; that he went in 1831 upon these lots, built upon both of them, made clearings, cut wood and timber and had the continuous and undisturbed possession of them, until he disposed of the lower lot and part of the upper, and had still possession of the remainder. Mr. Gigy also stated that at the time at which Mr. Clopper gave him possession of the two lots he gave him fifty acres out of the five hundred, sold him fifty more, gave him a deed of the whole hundred acres, and took a mortgage on the hundred for the payment for the fifty which he purchased; and that he had never paid the amount of the mortgage. Mr. Allen questioned the defendant as to whether Mr. Clopper in giving him a deed for one hundred acres of the land had not merely given the remainder into his charge and care, and not into his possession; but he insisted that Mr. Clopper had told him to go and take possession of the whole. Other witnesses corroborated the statement that Mr. Gigy had continuous occupation of the two lots for the time named. The portion which he had actually cultivated on lot 79 extended only to the land between the River and the Highway and some fifteen or sixteen acres on the opposite of the road; of which latter only seven or eight acres had been cleared twenty years and upwards.

After some other unimportant evidence, Mr. Fisher addressed the Jury for the defence. He contended that twenty years continuous and undisturbed adverse possession by the defendant had been made out, and that as he had gone into possession with the leave of Mr. Clopper, and not as a trespasser, and had exercised the rights of possession over the whole lot, on the cleared portion by cultivation and enclosure and on the wilderness portion by cutting wood and lumber, he had under the Statute an indefeasible title to the whole lot.

Mr. Allen, for the Plaintiff, argued that from the circumstances of the case it was most improbable that Mr. Clopper had given Gigy possession of the whole five hundred acres. From his own evidence it appeared that Mr. Clopper made him a present of fifty acres, sold him fifty acres more, sufficient in all to make a good farm, gave him a deed of that quantity, and took a mortgage for the payment of the purchase money of the fifty acres for which he was to pay. Was it at all probable, then, that Mr. Clopper beside all this should have given Mr. Gigy at precisely the same time the whole five hundred acres? was not the true explanation this: that Mr. Clopper had directed Mr. Gigy to look after the remainder, and keep trespassers off it? If this view was correct Mr. Gigy when he went on the lots 78 and 79 went on them as a trespasser, and could only claim under the statute such portion as he had actually occupied by enclosing and cultivating for above twenty years, and this by the evidence, appeared to be at most only the land between the road and the River, and a few acres on the other side of the road.

Sir James Carter, in summing up, said that leaving out of view the alleged conversation between Mr. Clopper and the defendant in 1831, and looking only to the fact that Gigy in 1831 went upon this lot, and had remained upon it up to the present time, exercising the rights of possession in the manner described, there could be no doubt but that he had under the statute acquired a good title to the land which he had actually enclosed and cultivated for a period of twenty years antecedent to the commencement of the action, and to that only, as the trespasser could acquire a right to nothing beyond what he had thus actually occupied. In this case their jury would find a verdict for the plaintiff for all the lot 79 except the portion thus occupied, which appeared to be the portion between the highway and River and some seven or eight acres on the other side of the highway, which had been cleared more than twenty years since. But then they came to the alleged conversation between Clopper and Gigy in 1831, in which according to Gigy's evidence, Clopper told him to go and take possession of the two lots 78 and 79. If the jury believed this statement then they could not consider Gigy as a trespasser on this land; and consequently the possession which he had exercised would extend to the whole of lot 79, to the wilderness portion as well as to the cultivated portion, and the defendant should have a verdict.

The jury, after remaining out about half an hour, came in with a verdict for the plaintiff, except with respect to the land between the highway and river, and eight acres on the other side of the highway, as to which they found, for the defendant.

THURSDAY, Sept. 27.

Mrs. Eliza A. English against Joshua Hartley. This was an action of trover to recover the value of a horse. It appeared in evidence that Mr. James Grover, as agent for Mrs. English, while holding a bill of sale of the horse from Mr. Benjamin McIndoe had allowed him the use of the horse, and that the latter had traded it with the defendant for another. About three weeks after the transaction Mr. Grover discovered it, and as Mr. Hartley who resides some thirty miles above Woodstock was then in the town, he immediately went and saw him at Mr. M. Stephenson's stable, in which Hartley's team of which the horse formed a part was feeding; told Hartley the whole circumstances, and that he had better give up the horse and save himself trouble and cost. Hartley said it was a hard case, but promised to come and see Mr. Grover at the Bank; at which accordingly the two in a few minutes after met, Mr. John Balloch also being present. Of what took place there the version of Hartley differed from that of Grover and Balloch. The two latter stated that Mr. Grover again explained the circumstances to Mr. Hartley, and expressed an intention of not allowing him to depart from Woodstock with the animal; that on Hartley's saying that he could not get home well if his team was broken up, Grover, on Balloch's assuring him that he might trust Hartley, told the latter that if he would promise to bring the horse back and deliver him up, he would allow him to take him home that day; that Hartley promised to return him on the following Saturday, and left the Bank; that he in a few minutes after returned and stated that he had heard of a case in which a person who had got a horse in the same manner as himself was by delivering him up to the claimant debarred from afterward asserting any legal right which he might have to the horse; whereupon Grover told him that this difficulty might be obviated by Hartley's bringing the horse to a certain place in Woodstock which he named, when he (Grover) would go and take him, and thus render unnecessary a formal delivery; and that Hartley then left, with this understanding. Mr. Grover also stated that afterward, during the same day, he met Hartley in the street, with a man named West or Weade; that Hartley there told him that he would not give him the horse unless it was taken by law or force; and that he (Grover) supposing him to refer to the final understanding at the Bank said that he understood that, and it was all right, that Hartley did not return the horse, and when written to by him answered by letter that he had not promised to return him and would not; whereupon he instituted an unsuccessful search for the horse, intending to take him; and afterward brought this action. Mr. Grover judged the value of the horse at twenty pounds, at the same time acknowledging that his acquaintance with horses was very limited.

Mr. Hartley's own evidence was that he had traded horses with M'Indoe at the suggestion of the latter, and without any knowledge that the horse which he obtained was not the property of Mr. M'Indoe. He denied that in the conversation spoken of in the Bank, or at any other time, he promised to bring the horse back, but stated that he had told Mr. Grover that if he got him back it must be by force or law. He described the horse as an exceedingly poor one, suffering severely from the heaves. After keeping him for a few weeks he sold him to a Dr. Ayer. In answer to a question from Mr. Allen he said that he didn't know whether he was the manufacturer of Ayer's Pills. Several other witnesses were called on the part of the defence to prove the small value of the horse. One considered him worth not more than thirty dollars, another not even worth skinning; and would not take off his skin for it.

MR. ALLEN.—Why, is the skin worth nothing? Wouldn't it answer to make leather medals? (great laughter).

WITNESS.—I would not take it off for it. Another witness, who owned the horse at present, thought that he was worth not even five dollars.

MR. ALLEN.—I suppose you don't know anything about making leather medals out of horse-hide? (laughter).

The former proprietor of the horse gave evidence that he was worth about £12 10s; and Hartley admitted that the horse which he swapped for him was valued at that sum.

Mr. L. P. Fisher, for the defence, contended that Hartley, having made the trade in ignorance of the real ownership of the horse, was not to blame in the matter; and that if the Plaintiff were to have a verdict it must be for a very small sum, as the horse appeared to be almost valueless.

Mr. Allen, for the plaintiff, argued that Hartley in purchasing the horse took all the consequences, and that when the facts were made known to him by Mr. Grover he should have given up the horse, and taken his own from McIndoe's stable. With respect to the value at the time at which he came into Hartley's possession, and not his value now, when he had passed through so many owners, had been doctored and abused. The jury might also give special damages for the loss sustained by Mrs. English for want of the services of the horse, in the shape of interest, if they chose.

The Chief Justice in summing up said that the question whether Hartley promised Grover to return the horse was of no consequence, the title having been shown undoubtedly to be in Mrs. English. The only question was as to the value of the horse at the time of his coming into the possession of the defendant.

The jury, after an absence of two hours, came into court, and by five of their number, gave a verdict for the plaintiff for £12 10. Allen and Winslow for plaintiff; L. P. Fisher for defendant.

SMITH AGAINST RAYMOND.—Mr. John W. Raymond informs us that our report of his evidence in this case was incorrect in one particular. Instead of making him say that he was to some extent guided in his refusal to pay the account of Dr. Smith by Mr. Lindsay, one of the two Municipal Councillors of the Parish, we should have reported him to say Messrs. Lindsay and Gibson, the two Councillors. Mr. Raymond, in confirmation of this evidence, has exhibited to us a document, signed by Messrs. Wm. Lindsay and Alexander Gibson, as Councillors, authorizing him to undertake the expense of defending the suit on behalf of the Parish.

Messrs. Lindsay and Raymond also state to us that before concluding to defend the suit of Dr. Smith they and Mr. Gibson took pains to ascertain the views of a large number of the Rate-payers of Woodstock on the matter, and among all whose opinions they thus ascertained there was one only who thought that the account should be paid, while many others, and those leading men in community, advised them to resist the legal enforcement of the Doctor's demand.

We readily print these statements, feeling that their publication is due both to Messrs. Raymond, Lindsay, and Gibson, and to the whole community. Let the responsibility rest on those who deserve it. And now that we have made an allusion to this matter of Dr. Smith's suit, we feel it a duty to take advantage of the opportunity to point the moral of this story. Sure are we that all candid and liberal minded men will join us in our rejoicings that this mean and disgraceful attempt to cheat a professional man out of his hard-earned fee has been defeated. The professional character and standing in this community of Drs. Smith and Brown should have secured for them in the circumstances of this Watters case the confidence and sympathy of the community. But, on the contrary, not only have the most cruel and atrocious reports,—reports calling in question at once the professional skill and the humanity of those gentlemen,—been set afloat, but some of them have been eagerly received and repeated by men from whom better things might have been expected. Explanations and refutations offered by those who were, from personal observation, competent to speak of the conduct of the physicians during the operation, were received with jeers and incredulity. An opportunity was given by the trial of this suit, on the 27th of last month, before the highest judicial tribunal in the land, for the proof of all, or of any, even the least important, of these slanders. No such attempt was dared to be made. The two physicians, and the two persons whom, at their request, assisted them in the operation, were put on the stand by the plaintiff; but none of those who were so ready to swallow and repeat the vile slanders in places where they could not be met and refuted, dared to place in the mouth of the counsel for the defence, either by question or remark, an insinuation that anything had been done which it did not become men and gentlemen to do.

So much Drs. Smith and Brown gain by this suit. But the whole public gain something. A jury of the County of Carleton has assured those rate-payers by whose advice Mr. Raymond was guided that they are not to be allowed to cheat the labourer out of his hire. Their meanness and their pandering to unworthy prejudices find no response in the breasts of disinterested men. We hear mentioned as among those advising Mr. Raymond in the matter the names of men who ought to blush at being connected with such a transaction—men whose general intelligence, good sense and good feeling should have prevented them from defiling their hands with the mire of parochial meanness. We trust that, however it may be with others, who are below teaching, they at least will receive and lay to heart the lesson which this suit is so well calculated to teach them.

AGRICULTURAL EXHIBITION.—We have been requested to call attention to the Show and Fair of the Carleton County Agricultural Society, which take place at the County Court House, Upper Woodstock, on the 10 instant, and to the Ploughing Match, which takes place on the 9th. The Premium List is very extensive and liberal one, counting up to near a hundred pounds. The Committee of Arrangements for the Show are Messrs. John Harper, H. Cowperthwait, Wm. Edgar, Hugh Harrison, John D. Ketchum and James Edgar; for the Ploughing Match H. E. Dibblee and Thomas Stephenson. All articles intended to be exhibited should be entered with the Secretary on or before the 6th instant.

VISITORS.—The Hon. James Stoddman, P. P., Postmaster General, has been engaged during the past week in making an official visit to the Counties of Carleton and Victoria. Mr. Stoddman went as far as Little Falls, and passed through Woodstock on his return on Wednesday. He expressed himself in terms of high admiration of the appearance and agricultural capabilities and progress of the Upper St. John.

Dr. Hea, President of the University of New Brunswick, and lady, arrived here on Tuesday and left this morning on their return to Fredericton. Dr. Hea's object, we understand, was to gain some knowledge of the opinions and wishes of leading men of our community in posting the College.

THE RIVER.—The water is again at steamboating pitch, and the Tobique, Bonnie Doon, Richmond have recommenced their trips for Autumn. Just at present, however, neither freight nor passengers are plenty.

CIRCUIT COURT.—Want of space compels us to postpone till next week reports of the trials Friday and Saturday last. The trial of the negans was postponed until the next Court, account of the principal witness being in a condition which made it impossible for him to attend. The Court adjourned on Saturday afternoon.

ARRIVAL OF THE STEAMSHIP ANGLON-SAXON.

QUEBEC, Sept. 29. Steamship, Anglo-Saxon, from Liverpool Sept. 13, via Londonderry 16th, has arrived.

LONDON, Thursday evening. The funds are heavy.

The Paris Bourse showed great dullness. The London Times says that Victor Emmanuel finds a formidable competitor in Garibaldi, whose success appears sufficient to overcome any resistance that may be made by the States of the Church, and which may bring him into collision with the Austrian power in Venice, and Piedmont must make herself mistress of the revolution, or be content to give up the lead and follow. There is reason to think that Napoleon sees things from this point of view and that no danger need be apprehended from France.

Austria has decided not to admit the Neapolitan fleet into any of its ports.

The Sardinian troops have attacked and taken Pesaro, taking 1200 German prisoners who were in the fortress. General Bello, who commanded the Pope's troops, and who had been ordered to sack the town, was taken prisoner and carried to Turin.

Count Cavour had issued a note, explaining the new attitude of Sardinia.

It is asserted that the French army in Rome is to be increased to 10,000 men.

The Paris Bourse was flat and lower, 66½ and 85.

The following letter from A. Barber on the result of his recent mission to England, Agent of the New Brunswick Board of Agriculture for the purchase of improved stock for the province, we re-publish from the Miramichi News.

DALHOUSIE, Sept. 1st.

J. A. PIERCE, Esq.

Dear Sir.—As there will, no doubt, be enquiries made of you with regard to my and how far I have succeeded in carrying out my important mission entrusted to me, I briefly put you in possession of some of the features by which I acted with regard to the purchase of improved stock. Having with great care searching in mostly all the Agricultural Societies in England and Scotland, selected animals of different breeds, as directed by the Board, from what I considered healthy I thought it prudent in consequence of the prevalence of the disease, Pleuro Pneumonia, most careful in making my selection stipulating with the parties, that in case concluding to abandon the purchase I would within a certain time. It was fortunate in various districts I found the disease Pleuro Pneumonia, to exist, although kept secret and that notwithstanding my precautions, there was great risk and danger in importing the animals in cribs to the Point, where diseased animals were conveyed to the butcher's market every day as I was advised by veterinary surgeons whose certificates I hold to that effect. I was sure to contract the disease. I was sure to visit several localities where the disease was known to exist and to satisfy the point, I was in one locality cows had died out of one herd within a few weeks, and I have it from the best authorities that it exists more or less throughout England and Scotland.

I could particularize many, but it is unnecessary at present. I have selected some of the best Yorkshire, North Devon, Leicester, Cotswolds and South Downs, all of which are all young, and most of which must be remembered that this is but in the way of stock, animals is a daily high.

These animals I had concentrated and are in charge of most trusty and who will see them shipped in the first ship Annabella, Capt. Smith, for Dalhousie as soon as they arrive I will take the animals and run down to Shediac, in the Arab St. John. This is all I could do under the circumstances.

I arrived at Halifax in the American day afternoon, 6th inst., travelled to town with the English Mail, and arrived in Dalhousie on Monday morning, sleeping in the night, and I could have been in Dalhousie on Monday night, and our English news did not reach here until Tuesday morning. How I am.

VISITORS.—The Hon. James Stoddard, P. P., Postmaster General, has been engaged during the past week in making an official visit to the Counties of Carleton and Victoria. He expressed himself in terms of high admiration of the appearance and agricultural capabilities and progress of the Upper St. John.

Dr. Hea, President of the University of New Brunswick, and lady, arrived here on Tuesday and left this morning on their return to Fredericton. Dr. Hea's object, we understand, was to gain some knowledge of the opinions and wishes of leading men of our community in respect to the College.

The trial of the Fregans was postponed until the next Court, account of the principal witness being in a condition which made it impossible for him to attend. The Court adjourned on Saturday afternoon.

DALHOUSIE, Sept. 13, 1860.

J. A. PIERCE, Esq.

Dear Sir.—As there will, no doubt, be many enquiries made of you with regard to my arrival and how far I have succeeded in carrying out the important mission entrusted to me, I can only briefly put you in possession of some of the leading features by which I acted with regard to the horned stock. Having with great care and much searching in mostly all the Agricultural Counties in England and Scotland, selected animals of the different breeds, as directed by the Provincial Board, from what I considered healthy localities I thought it prudent in consequence of the prevalence of the disease, Pleuro Pneumonia to be most careful in making my selections and to stipulate with the parties, that in case of my concluding to abandon the purchase I could do so within a certain time. It was fortunate I did, as in various districts I found the disease Pleuro Pneumonia, to exist, although kept a profound secret and that notwithstanding my careful selections, there was great risk and danger in transmitting the animals in cribs to the Port of shipment, where diseased animals were being conveyed to the butcher's market every day, which as I was advised by veterinary surgeons of note whose certificates I hold to that effect, was the surest way to contract the disease. I made it my business then to visit several localities where the disease was known to exist and to satisfy myself on the point. I was in one locality where 17 cows had died out of one herd within the last six weeks, and I have it from the best authority, that it exists more or less throughout England, Ireland and Scotland.

I could particularize many, but it is not necessary at present. I have selected some Sheep of the Yarrow breed, North Downs, Leicesters, Lincolns, Cotswolds and South Downs, also Pigs of England; they are all young, and cost a high price but it must be remembered that this season every thing in the way of stock, animals is unprecedentedly high.

These animals I had concentrated before I left and are in charge of most trusty and careful man who will see them shipped in the first class A. I. ship Annabella, Capt. Smith, for Dalhousie, and as soon as they arrive I will take them in charge and run down to Shediac, in the Arabia, thence to St. John. This is all I could do under the circumstances.

I arrived at Halifax in the American, on Thursday afternoon, 6th inst., travelled to your good town with the English Mail, and arrived at Rectigoche on Monday morning, sleeping at Danies, or I could have been in Dalhousie with ease Sunday night, and our English news did not reach here until Tuesday morning. How is this.

Yours very truly,

A. BARBERIE.

A Married man, reading the plague? I've been living with one for ten years, and am quite used to it.

A printer on seeing a bailiff closely pursuing an unfortunate author, remarked "that it was a new edition of the Pursuits of Literature, unbound and hot-pressed."

What is the difference between a £40 note and a wife at forty? One you can change for two, twenties, but the other you can't.

IT NEVER RAINS BUT IT POURS.—A publican at Kelson some time since erected a shower bath in one of his rooms, part of which was fitted up as a sort of tap-room. One evening lately, a navvie, who happened to be drinking along with a few companions in one of the boxes, rose up for the purpose of ringing for some more liquor. Gazing round the room for the bell rope, his eye fell on the string attached to the shower-bath. "By St. Patrick," he cried to his friends, "I have found the bell-rope at last," and seizing it in his horny fist, he gave it a strong, and a pull together. In an instant he was drenched to the skin; and almost frantic with rage, to the no small amusement of his companions who, however, in the end were glad to soothe him, in order to prevent a deed of culpable homicide. Oh! by the powers, said he, and is that the way you play tricks upon travellers? If I had that ugly baste of a landlord I would teach him better manners.

INQUEST.—A Coroner's inquest was held in the Court House yesterday under the following circumstances. Mr. James Portmore died rather suddenly on Tuesday last. He had been for a short time previous to his death under the treatment of Dr. Tumblety, and suspicions were roused that it was the medicine he had been taking caused his death. Accordingly the Coroner took the matter in hand, and after a searching investigation the jury returned a verdict of "Manslaughter" and every exertion will be made to obtain the arrest of Tumblety who fled on Thursday night on horseback going by the way of St. Andrews road. His clerk was examined, and in course of his testimony he said he had suspicions that he fled in consequence of learning that the causes which lead to the death of Mr. Portmore were to be investigated.

John C. Fremont, who has struggled on against obstacles and in the face of opposition sufficient to discourage almost any man in the world, is at last in a fair way to be repaid for his labors. It is stated that he has just completed the most extensive works ever known in California for mining purposes and has just completed a rail-road four miles in length, to bring his quartz from his mine to his crushing mill. He has eighty-six stamper running night and day, crushing ninety tons of rock in twenty-four hours, which pays him a neat profit of about $25 per ton, leaving him a neat profit of about $2,000. No man in California has ever shown such indomitable energy and perseverance. He has struggled on against obstacles sufficient to crush any ordinary man, and his friends will be pleased to know that he is at last on the high road to fortune, and bids fair to come out the richest man in California.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT TO MR. LAMOUNTAIN.—Albany, N. Y., Sept. 23.—Mr. Lamountain met with a serious accident in a recent baloon voyage to this city. He was caught in a tornado in East Lanesboro, Mass and was dashed against a stone wall, and was dragged until he came in contact with a tree, tearing the network of his baloon. He was then carried along at a fearful rate, until his baloon caught in another tree, when it hit throwing him to the ground, and leaving him senseless, whence he was rescued by some farmers, badly bruised. He arrived home at Lausburg on Saturday. The baloon travelled at the rate of 30 miles in 29 minutes.

SMART DAY'S WORK.—In the month of April last four brothers by the name of Harlow, aged eighteen, twenty, twenty-two, and twenty-four, at work in the shingle mill of Mr. John Russel of Cambridge, in twenty-four consecutive hours, sawed, bunched in a neat and workmanlike manner, and carried out of the mill, thirty-six and one half thousand cedar shingles, barking their own bolts and filing their saw, within the same time above mentioned.—Dealer Gen.

A furious gale visited New Orleans on the 15th inst., causing great destruction to property. Nearly every house in the Belize was carried away. It is reported that the barn-houses on the lake shore between New Orleans was swept away. The town of Biloxi, on the Mississippi, is in ruins. At Mobile the storm was severely felt, all the wharves in the lower part of the city being submerged. The loss by storm is estimated at half a million of dollars.

"Doctor, said a waggish parishioner of good old Parson E.—to him one day, "I thing I must have a pew nearer the desk than where I now have it.—" Why, said the parson, can't you hear well where you are? "Oh yes, was the reply but that ain't it. The fact is there are so many people between me and the pulpit, that by the time what you say gets back to where I am, it is as flat as a pancake."

The work of building a telegraph to the Pacific is to proceed with, the contract having been given to Mr. Sibly at Washington.

New steamship for the Cunard line is now building. Her hull is to be of iron, and she will be named the Scotia. Capt. Judkin will command her.

The Millerites have concluded their annual religious services in Wilbraham, Mass. The sect now numbers 50,000 in the U. States and Canada.

That part of the village of Presque Isle which was destroyed by fire in May last is now almost entirely rebuilt.

A MIGHTY RIVER.—The Amazon, the largest river in the world, has an area of drainage nearly three times as large as that of all the rivers in Europe that empty into the Atlantic. The plain is entirely covered with dense primeval forest, and innumerable tributaries. This forest is impenetrable. Humbolt remarks that two mission stations might be only a few miles apart, and yet the residents a day and a half to visit each other, along the windings of small streams. Even the animals get involved in such impenetrable masses of wood (even the jaguar) that they live for a long time in the trees, a terror to the monkeys, whose dominions have been invaded.

DWIGHT STATION III. 25th.—Baron Renfrew and suit bagged nearly 200 quail to day. They leave for St. Louis to-morrow morning.

Twelve hundred and twenty-one dollars were subscribed in Newport, in aid of Garibaldi and his friends.

THE TREASURES OF MEMORY.

Oh, many and rich are the treasures that lie In Memory's magic hall!

We walk among them and scarce can see Through the mist of blinding tears;

There are faces, and voices, and glances, and songs, Sung in love's early day;

There's the meadow-path, where we loved to walk, When the toil of the day was o'er,

Oh, many and rich are the treasures that lie In Memory's secret cell,

BACHELOR'S HALL.

"Alarming, very," laughed Roland; "a writ of habeas corpus, probably; do you think they will take the body corporate?"

"If they take any body," said Mr. Herman, joining in the laugh, "I think they will undoubtedly take Oliver's—he is in the best condition, certainly."

"He looks troubled," said Roland; "I think he anticipates a sheriff."

"Pshaw!" said Oliver, who had been busily reading the letter. "Boys—"

The two mature and dignified gentlemen addressed by this juvenile appellative turned toward him in evident expectation.

"Tom's dead," was the laconic announcement of the letter-holder.

"Is he indeed? You don't say so!" said Roland, dryly. "I am immensely sorry—grieved to the heart; but it would give a more intense interest to the occasion if I knew precisely what Tom it was."

"Tom! what Tom? Tom who? and where did he die?" asked the more matter-of-fact brother Herman.

"Pshaw!—Tom Rutherford? You don't mean so! Tom Rutherford! Why, Oliver, he was younger than either of us." Herman Rutherford said this with a slight tone of pique, as if it was a preposterous and rather presuming thing on the part of Cousin Tom to take such a decided step as dying without the sanction and example of his older kinsmen.

"Poor Tom!" mused Brother Roland; "he was a handsome fellow, and a pleasant companion too. Do you remember that last Christmas he spent here, when we were boys? What a capital skater he was, and what a fine, generous, merry fellow!—and dead!—ah, well, Poor Tom! What does the letter say about him, Oliver?"

"Well," said Mr. Oliver, looking up with a perplexed and troubled face, "it says a great deal. It is written by poor Tom's lawyer and man of business; and he says he writes in obedience to Tom's last orders, to say that being then in straitened circumstances, and unable to make any suitable provision for his only child, Miss Rutherford, he bequeathed her to us, his nearest of kin, begging us, for the sake of the old love, and the old family name, to receive her as a daughter, and give her a home among us."

"Receive her as a daughter!" repeated Roland. "Having never been called upon to appear in that interesting relationship, and consequently our course of conduct under such trying circumstances not having been tested, it would not be easy to determine with accuracy what it might have been."

"Preposterous!" said Herman. "What send her here to live, without so much as 'by your leave,' and then to go and die right out of the way, before we could refuse—I do say that is the coolest thing!"

"What else does the letter say, Oliver?" asked Roland.

"Oh! the young lady and her maid will be here by the 22d," said Oliver. "There, read it for yourselves;" and he tossed the letter to Roland, who, having read it attentively, tossed it over to Herman.

"How old do you suppose the girl is?" he asked, when he too had read it.

"I am sure I don't know," said Oliver. "Let me see—Tom was married the year after sister Kate was, and that was twenty years ago. Don't you remember his writing us of the death of his wife, leaving him one little girl? This must be the one. Bless your soul! she must be sixteen or seventeen at least!"

"A very pretty legacy to leave to three old bachelors!" growled Herman.

"But did he not marry again?" said Roland. "Surely he did, and this may be the second wife's child."

"I think not," said Oliver. "I remember hearing he lost two or three fine boys after his second marriage—poor fellow!"

"It seems almost a pity this very interesting survivor hadn't—hum!" said Brother Herman. "I mean, you know, it was hard for to outlive all the dear companions of her infancy—and all that sort of thing—you understand, Rolle?"

"Exactly!" said Mr. Roland, "and share in your unselfish regrets."

"But now," said Mr. Oliver "what is to be done about it?"

"It is absurd and ridiculous, the thought of our having her here," said Roland.

"It's a confounded nuisance!" said the kind-hearted but rough Herman. "We can't have her here. Can't she be pastured out somewhere? Ain't there boarding-schools for such young animals, I wonder? But then," he added, correcting himself, "the girl is poor, it seems, and she musn't want for a living."

"She's a Rutherford," said Mr. Oliver, grandly; "and she must not want for a home to shelter her."

"She's a woman," said the chivalric Roland; "and she must not want for a protector."

"Of course not," said they all. "There is no help for it, she must come."

"But what a house for a lady to come into!" sighed Roland. "Think of our drawing-rooms—scarcely opened since Kate was married. Think of our chambers—desolate bowers for a young lady to inhabit, truly!"

"Oh, I don't care for that," said Oliver; "a little money can soon rectify all that. But the housekeeping—ah! there's the rub! how will Mrs. Harris stand it? She has held undisputed sway for nearly twenty years, 'with never a woman to say her nay.' What if she should leave?"

"It is an awful bother," said Herman. "I suppose I shall have to move all my traps out of the library; and then to have a young lady, all flounces and furbelows, always about the house, meddling and interfering in every thing! I can hear her now, mincing and wincing: 'Oh, Uncle Herman, see here! You've flung down your hat and gloves on my jiggermeeces, and tumbled all the ruffles of my thingumbobs, and crushed the ribbons on my what-do-you-call-it!' O Lord, I never can stand it, I know! And then the lady's maid prancing round in her double flounces, and her hooped petticoats, like a ring-tailed baboon! I know I can't stand it. I'll go off—I'll go to California."

"And to have to dress for dinner every day," broke in Mr. Roland. "No more lounginground in dressing-gown and slippers."

"And the dinners, too," mourned out Mr. Oliver. "What do young ladies eat, I wonder. I suppose she'd faint away at a boiled leg of mutton, or a corned shoulder of pork. No more deviled turkey, and beef-steak, and hot bread, for breakfast," he continued, ruefully eyeing the plentiful table before him. "The wing of a partridge possibly, sloppy tea, rolled bread and butter, and marmalade; and for dinner—let me see: white soups, a veal-bread, syllabubs, and trifle. Well, boys, how do like the bill of fare?"

"And to come upon us so suddenly too," said Mr. Herman. "No money shown us—no warning—no preparation!"

"True," said Roland. "And to come upon us poor fellows full grown, too, in the white muslin terrors of young ladyism! If we had only known her as a child—if she had grown up among us, a Kate did—I would not mind so much—she wouldn't be half so awful!"

"I knew it," laughed Herman. "We should be like the old woman who, having lifted her call every day of its life, continued able to lift it when it was a cow."

"Just so," said Roland. "I could not express it half so well."

"But now, boy," said Mr. Oliver, "leave off fooling, and attend to business. The young lady is coming; there is no escape from it; and we must all do our best to prepare for her. The time is short, and much is to be done."

We need not give in detail all the conversation which ensued. Fortunately the Rutherfords were wealthy and liberal. This needed expenditure of their money on the occasion was a thing of no moment to them; and the debate ended by each one taking his part of the general preparation, and working upon his own responsibility.

Mr. Oliver's first step was to see Harris, and confer with her. He approached the subject with cautious delicacy and many misgivings; but, to his surprise, and still greater relief, the faithful housekeeper took to the idea kindly.

"It was full time," she said, "that there was a lady in the house. The young gentlemen had lived like heathens ever since their married and Miss Kate got married. She had hoped one of 'em would bring home a young lady of his own; but if that wasn't to be, who'd a better right there than Mr. Tom's daughter? Remember Mr. Tom? Yes, indeed, she guessed she did! He wasn't a gentleman to be forgotten. Yes, indeed, she'd like to see Mr. Tom's daughter. She wondered if she looked like him, and had such bright eyes, and his merry laugh. Poor Mr. Tom!"

This wonderfully lightened Mr. Oliver Rutherford's burden of care; and although he had a great deal to do indoctrinating John in all the little minutiae of etiquette, which had gradually fallen into desuetude in their free, sansceremonie, bachelor mode of life, and had to make sundry visits to the city, and lay in stores of foreign fruits, preserves, wine-biscuits, anchovies, sweet wifes, and various condiments, and little delicacies for the table, suited, as he supposed, to the very refined appetites of a young lady, still, with Mrs. Harris's advice, co-operation, and encouragement, he got on famously.

THE SYRIAN VICTIMS.—It has been officially reported by the superior of the French Missionaries in Lebanon, that the victims to Mohammedan fanaticism exceed 15,000 persons, and that at Damascus alone more than 8000 Christians were put to death. The very last mail from Europe brought intelligence that 30,000 Christian women met with a worse fate than death, and had been publicly sold at twenty five piasters each.

AN EXTRAORDINARY CASE.—A letter from Trieste, in the London "Morning Star," gives an account of an extraordinary attempt on the part of the second captain of the Austrian man-of-war Kaiser, to blow up the vessel with every soul on board, the whole of the ship in the neighbourhood, the yacht of the Archduke Maximilian and his company, together with the greater part of the city of Trieste. This Austro-Italian Gry Faux was, it will be seen, discovered at the critical moment, and blew out his brains.

A GRAND LAND PROJECT.—We notice that steps are in progress for the organization of a company in London with a capital of £500,000 sterling, (over $1,500,000,) to be devoted to the purchase and settlement of lands in Illinois. The "Prairie Land Emigration Company" state that a conditional purchase has been made of 250,000 acres of prairie land from the Illinois Central Railroad Company, "that when the sale is completed, the company will not be in any way connected with the Illinois Central Railroad, or its affairs, but will hold the land by a direct tenure in freehold." The scheme is said to be similar to that of the Canada Land Company, which was started in London some years since, and which has successfully established a large population upon its lands, and proved an extremely profitable operation to its shareholders.—Railway Times.

PROPER VIEW OF DOMESTIC DOGS.—The dogs in a family are a study. We cannot help comparing their conduct with human being—thinking of them as such, in fact, unconsciously, if not loving them as well. With open doors and gates to go away if they please, they stay with us, and take what treatment we choose to give them—invited indoors, or left in the cold—fed with what is left of our table, or perhaps carelessly forgotten—worked or played with—noticed in return for an expression of joy, or perhaps beaten back and neglected. They watch for us by night, give us a bountiful welcome when we return after absence, are happy at being let stay with us without talking to, and are delighted to go and come with us, asking no questions, and following whither we please—faithful to death, we are perfectly sure, as if that were a matter of course! Ah me! It is a world of more or less love to us, as Fate pleases—but a man throws away friends who have no dogs.—Willis.

Mr. Bakewell was not only an eminent stock breeder, but a very shrewd and successful farmer. His neighbors were in the habit of consulting him for counsel and advice. One of his old friends went to pay him a visit for the purpose of explaining to him his position and time begged that he would recona a farm of 1,000 acres; he lived very well and never saved a shilling. He had three sons, and the eldest was about to be highly approved of the match, but the husband expected some portion, and was to give him. Should he mortgage or what should he do? Mr. Bakewell spent the night with him, and the next morning to give him the result of his cogitations. Accordingly, the next day when they met at breakfast, Bakewell said: "I have made up my mind what to do; give your son-in-law one-fourth of the remaining three-fourths, with any portion of your capital and work the remaining three-fourths as a laborer than you have hitherto done, some will be rather increased than others."

His friend followed his advice; but of two or three years; another daughter married, and the perplexed father asked his friend Bakewell for advice, and with difficulty Bakewell soon said he his proceedings, and seen their result in this case as he had done before, give up another fourth of his farm, original capital and stock. The friend was somewhat puzzled, but as the first succeeded, he determined to try it so. Last of all the youngest daughter married, and in utter despair, the father paid another visit to Disley to explain.

"Well," said Bakewell, "tell me how your income has diminished by the loss of your farm by one help?" The father acknowledged he did not. "Then," said Bakewell, "you must give up another fourth of your farm, and maintain 250 acres for yourself, and the truth, you will then have just your stock, your capital and your labor, and will be a better and happier man."

Old Bakewell used to tell this story, and declared his fond belief in the wisdom of the 25 acres as a rule upon the 1,000, and as a better return than he had ever had from the small well-cultivated farm which he returned than a large, ill-cultivated one.

This may be true; but the conservation of every one will concur in the opinion, as a generalizing, try to much land. Who is there that do an instance where men by wading and hard labour, the are their own twice their amount of land?

SMALL vs. LARGE FARMS.

Mr. Bakewell was not only an eminent farmer and stock breeder, but a very shrewd man, and his neighbors were in the habit of resorting to him for counsel and advice. On one occasion an old friend went to pay him a visit for the purpose of explaining to him his position; and at the same time begged that he would recon send him what to do. He had lived all his life upon his own farm of 1,000 acres; he lived very well, but he had never saved a shilling. He had three daughters, and the eldest was about to be married; he highly approved of the match, but the intended husband expected some portion, and he had nothing to give him. Should he mortgage his estate or what should he do? Mr. Bakewell begged him to spend the night with him, and on the next morning to give him the result of his cogitations. Accordingly, the next morning when they met at breakfast, Bakewell said: "I have made a very mind that you ought to do; give your son-in-law one-fourth of the farm, keep the remaining three-fourths, do not part with any portion of your capital and stock, and work the remaining three-fourths with it. Do it better than you have hitherto done, and your income will be rather increased than diminished."

His friend followed his advice; but at the end of two or three years; another daughter was to be married, and the perplexed father again resorted to his friend Bakewell for advice, under this new difficulty. Bakewell coolly said he had watched his proceedings, and seen their results; he must do in this case as he had done before; he must give up another fourth of his farm, and keep the original capital and stock. The father seemed somewhat puzzled, but as the first experiment had succeeded, he determined to try it in this case also. Last of all the youngest daughter was to be married, and, in utter despair, the poor father paid another visit to Disley to explain his perplexity.

"Well," said Bakewell, tell me honestly whether your income has diminished by having reduced your farm by one help?

The father acknowledged he thought it had not.

"Then," said Bakewell, "you must give up another fourth of your farm, and keep the remaining 250 acres for yourself, and, to tell you the truth, you will then have just such a farm as your stock, your capital, and your head are fit for, and will be a better and happier man than ever."

Old Bakewell used to tell this story with great glee, and declared his land left as much stock and capital upon the 250 acres as he had ever had upon the 1,000, and, as he believed, made a better income out of it. This may be a somewhat exaggerated statement but of this I am sure. At small well-cultivated farm will make a better return than a large, ill-cultivated one.

This may be true—but the ordinary observation of every one will convince him that farmers, as a general thing, try to cultivate too much land. Who is there that does not know of an instance where some men by well tilling small farms, are making up money with less capital and hard labour, than are their neighbors with twice their amount of land?

GREAT SALT LAKE.—The water marks show that the lake is now mere remnant of what was one of the mighty later connections of the earth. Along the base of the mountain walls of the valley, if we may so term the limits of the basin, are distinct water-marks, the more elevated order being from 75 to 100 feet above the level of the valley. There is almost conclusive evidence that a great sea once existed in Utah Valley, whose breakers have left the marks of their power indented upon the rocky front of their mountain confines as a monument of their power. The whole face of the country appears to have passed through caloric influences of the intensest character. Enormous rocks fringed its margin, which are charred as black as ebony from the operation of heat, and their fragmentary condition bespeaks the mighty convulsions they have passed through. Near the lake's center there is quite a large island, upon which these volcanic indications are equally emphatic.

The heavy rain of Friday afternoon submerged all the low lands along the margin of the Kennebec, and other streams in the interior. Immense quantities of hay cut, but not stacked have floated away, or very much if not altogether damaged. The face of the valleys, on Saturday morning was dotted over for miles with miniature lakes, sparkling in the sunbeams. We never knew so much water to fall in one night, as came down in half a dozen hours on Friday. We have no doubt but that there has been a great deal of damage done by this freshet. Upwards of 40 rods of post road Lowell's Lake 4 miles from town appears to have been swept away. On Saturday morning the road was altogether impassable.—M. News

OUR OWN ADVERTISING.

The primary objects at which it aims in its circulation are:— 1. The promotion of immigration, and the settlement of the wild lands.

2. The opening of the country, and the intercourse, by the improvement of the means of communication.

3. An increase in the Representation in the Assembly.

4. A system of Free Education for all,—schools being open to all without money and without being supported by Direct Taxation.

While the Journal labors for these primary objects it does not neglect many others. It labors to inculcate the virtues of a generous, sound and liberal education—to promote sympathy, good fellowship among all classes, creeds, conditions and nations—to establish a system of frank yet genial discussion of thought and speech—to develop in our youth a manly self reliance—and to inculcate the doctrines of the New Philosophy.
