Washington, Oct. 2.

When the extraordinary fifty-third Congress com-
there have been efforts
promises in the matter of tion, but until now no inary appearance of ind the proposition asked
But it seems as though shape. Men who are legislation insist that both gold and silver men will enter a little of that for the good of the session will be a proposition likely to be frank expressions of opinion of the measure have been far from satisfactory to the silver interests, very much better for them. A constitutional repeal of the law of 1890. It seems as if the measure will be passed by a large majority by choice of silver will be all the silver now in the Treasury Department has

will take something like that at the rate of $1,500, the purchase of silver is to be made of 2,000,000 ounces monthly until the total in the country is $800, compromise also provides for, immediately a gold to the extent of $200,000,000, will be claimed, be a with metals.

administration will agree, in relative action to such a not at all likely, for the declared with all necessary due to have existing but repeat unobnoxious silver purchase such a compromise cause approval of both Houses probably sign the bill, some like that outlined here the House of Representatives; that it will go mate is quite probable.

more this week for
since the blue grass
is so nutritious for horses. There was a general condemnation in the air. Mr.
Johnson never made an argument, his pathos and sympathy with ravishing eloquence flowed about his head. The Federal election was a neutral subject to him, and he was content to distinguish between those who were active through the audience,
and those of his station. Mr.
Johnson's object to depose a Representative Johnson,
nearly as quick as a reference to the Federal election.
"I dissent," he said as a fish
man was on his feet.—
"I dissent on sharply and plainly. These are not men who will die to disappear again, but the people will die for them.
I make no reply for a moment. I do not know to what to refer. The people will answer; then
about unanimously into action, but on my side
I would not whose rural is so badly single."
and is out again and his
side she takes an occasion with the president. The purchase of silver bullion by Department for the Month was 2,746,500 ounces, or less than the monthly 1040 ounces. This is the first succession in which the fall below the limit the Sherman law.

Recently passed in Congress are many persons the opinion that misrepresents a general circulation in

THE GREAT SOUTH AMERICAN NERVINE TONIC

Stomach and Liver Cure

The Most Astonishing Medical Discovery of the Last One Hundred Years.

It is Pleasant to the Taste as the Sweetest Nectar. It is Safe and Harmless as the Purest Milk.

This wonderful Nervine Tonic has only recently been introduced into this country by the proprietors and manufacturers of the Great South American Nervine Tonic, and yet its great value as a curative agent has long been known by a few of the most learned physicians, who have not brought its merits and value to the knowledge of the general public.

This medicine has completely solved the problem of the cure of indigestion, dyspepsia, and diseases of the general nervous system. It is also of the greatest value in the cure of all forms of failing health from whatever cause. It performs this by the great nerve tonic qualities which it possesses, and by its great curative powers upon the digestive organs, the stomach, the liver and the bowels. No remedy compares with this wonderfully valuable Nervine Tonic as a builder and strengthener of the life forces of the human body, and as a great renewer of a broken-down constitution. It is also of more real permanent value in the treatment and cure of diseases of the lungs than any consumption remedy ever used on this continent. It is a marvelous cure for nervousness of females of all ages. Ladies who are approaching the critical period known as change in life should not fail to use this great Nervine Tonic, almost constantly, for the space of two or three years. It will carry them safely over the danger. This great strengthener and curative is of inestimable value to the aged and infirm, because its great energizing properties will give them a new hold on life. It will add ten or fifteen years to the lives of many of those who will use a half dozen bottles of the remedy.

IT IS A GREAT REMEDY FOR THE CURE OF

Nervous Prostration, Nervous Headache, Sick Headache, Female Weakness, Nervous Chills, Paralysis, Nervous Paroxysms and Nervous Choking, Hot Flashes, Palpitation of the Heart, Mental Dependancy, Sleeplessness, St. Vitus' Dance, Nervousness of Females, Nervousness of Old Age, Neuralgia, Pains in the Heart, Pains in the Back, Falling Health, Summer Complaint of Infants.

All these and many other complaints cured by this wonderful Nervine Tonic.

NERVOUS DISEASES.

As a cure for every class of Nervous Diseases, no remedy has been able to compare with the Nervine Tonic, which is very pleasant and harmless in all its effects upon the youngest child or the oldest and most delicate individual. Nine-tenths of all the ailments to which the human family is heir are dependent on nervous exhaustion and impaired digestion. When there is an insufficient supply of nerve food in the blood, a general state of debility of the brain, spinal marrow, and nerves is the result. Starved nerves, like starved muscles, become strong when the right kind of food is supplied; and a thousand weaknesses and ailments disappear as the nerves recover. As the nervous system must supply all the power by which the vital forces of the body are carried on, it is the first to suffer for want of perfect nutrition. Ordinary food does not contain a sufficient quantity of the kind of nutriment necessary to repair the wear our present mode of living and labor imposes upon the nerves. For this reason it becomes necessary that a nerve food be supplied. This South American Nervine has been found by analysis to contain the essential elements out of which nerve tissue is formed. This accounts for its universal adaptability to the cure of all forms of nervous derangement.

CRAWFORDVILLE, Ind., Aug. 20, 1893.
DEAR GENTS:—I desire to say to you that I have suffered for many years with a very serious disease of the stomach and nerves. I tried every medicine I could hear of, but nothing helped me. I had been doctoring myself for years, but I had no relief. I bought one bottle of your Great South American Nervine Tonic and Stomach and Liver Cure, and since using several bottles of it, I can say that I am now as well as I ever was. I would advise every weak person to use this valuable and powerful remedy. I have written to you in the past, but I am now able to say to you that I am now as well as I ever was.

A SURE CURE FOR ST. VITUS' DANCE OR CHOREA.

CRAWFORDVILLE, Ind., June 22, 1893.
My daughter, eleven years old, was severely afflicted with St. Vitus' Dance or Chorea. We gave her three bottles of your Great South American Nervine Tonic, and she is completely restored. I believe it will cure every case of St. Vitus' Dance. I have kept it in my family for two years, and am sure it is the greatest remedy in the world for Indigestion and Dyspepsia, and for all forms of Nervous Disorders and Failing Health, from whatever cause.

Youth's Corner.

MARJOR'S FIRST GLASS.

BY GEO. H. GOULD.

Some years ago, while passing down one of the fashionable streets of an aristocratic city I heard a sweet, childish baby voice calling.

"Me tummin', papa; me tummin'! Me tiss oo. Hurry papa oo's pet is waitin'!"

Pausing, I beheld a little child standing in the door of a beautiful home, a baby, wrapped in innocence and beauty; fair face, with blue eyes, and golden ringlets fluttering in the breeze, her little open arms outstretched to welcome a noble looking man who paused at the foot of the steps.

There was that in his look which seemed to urge him to spring forward, seize, and clasp to his heart the little creature of life and beauty, who stood ready to welcome him. And yet he paused, gazed as if entranced, tarried as if his very soul would cling to her through his eyes, all the love and beauty his eyes beheld.

Satisfied at length, he sprang forward, seized the child, and as the door closed I saw daisy curls and raven locks intermingled. I saw a curly head nestled on his shoulder, and baby arms clasping the neck of him she loved.

Alas, how little know we the future! How little thought we, that never would that scene appear again. How little knew we that those little tripping feet would never press that doorway more, and those sparkling blue eyes would never again be seen within that door to welcome papa to his home again.

Alas, Roland! never from your heart shall be removed the picture you have seen to-day. Never will the arrow of remorse leave your soul, never shall that dear child be again to you aught but a mute accuser, and yet, with a guardian angel, never leaving, never forsaking, but ever present to thrust her fair face between you and that hideous monster—Drink!

For Roland Ashley was a moderate drinker. None of your down town, saloon drinkers, but a high toned, aristocratic, clear headed drinker; one who kept his private life separate from his public life, and whose private life was a life of refinement and of the finest grade; who had his daily dram with the same regularity he had his meals; who set a generous table, and dispensed a right good cheer with generous, bounteous, and yet, withal, judicious hand; a host whose guests were always pledged with wine. Truly he could look down with complacent pride on the poor wretches who hadn't pride enough, or manhood enough, to drink with self-control.

To-day, as was his custom, with his little pretty, baby's pet, as he called her, in his arms, he proceeded straight to his sideboard, took down several bottles of sparkling liquors and mixed his daily portion. And then, oh! strange fatality!—absorbed in the love of play, of his little one, he continued his walk around the room, still fondling the idol of his heart, the pride of his eye.

At length, entering a side-door, he passed to his room, and with a succession of tender kisses placed his daughter, his baby, on the floor beside his chair, to amuse herself, as was her custom, with her playthings, while he opened and answered the letters awaiting him on his table. Soon absorbed in them, he heard dreamily his little one, under a high, playful, but at length, unheeded by him, she passed into the other room, and attracted by the glasses so clumsily left upon the table, she climbed up to a chair at the table and still continued her childish prattle.

Sweetly the little lips prattled on. "Papa's drink, baby's drink; love it, baby love it too." And still continuing her prattle, she proceeded to fill his empty glass with liquors. "Dood for papa, dood for pet; papa drink it, baby drink it too." Saying which, she raised the glass, and with head tilted back the better to see if it sparkled, she was just placing it to her lips, when, by some means missing his child, the father rose and came to the door. Whether it was his step his appearance, or whether choked by his fumes, she struggled and then in the cursed stuff with her breath, none but God can know. All we know is that one instant he saw his baby, his pet, his liquor, his glass, his bottles in a confused picture before him; the next a gulp, a strangle, a scream, and baby, bottles, glass, and liquor lay in one mingled mass upon the carpet.

Instantly he sprang to his child, and as he raised her from the floor, those beautiful curly locks, that just now were his pride and joy, hung limp and wet with liquors that had grazed his table. Oh, strange, hard, cruel fate!—like him and wet lay his baby in his arms. Oh, the agony of his cry!

"My baby! My baby! My pet! My darling! Speak to your papa! A look of recognition, a smile! Again he heard those tripping feet and bent his head to listen; but oh, how different, how dim and far away! already it seemed as if he had come to school that morning puffed up with pride because he had a new accomplishment. "I can dress me all myself, now," he said to the teacher, and her praise was unstinted.

"I am very proud of a little boy who can dress himself," she said. "I'm sure he will be a great comfort in school, he can do so many things now and he is so anxious to do them well!"

Little Tommy drew a long breath of delight, and trudged off to his seat. He never meant to be naughty any more; he was sure he would not. But! school grew tiresome and Tommy fretted. He forgot his reputation and indulged in several remarkable antics behind the teacher's back. Then he was discovered and condemned to exile behind the door.
