Held by the Bolsheviks

ONE of the most high-handed outrages by the Bolsheviks in Russia has been the arrest and imprisonment in the Fortress of St. Peter and St. Paul, on Tuesday evening, Sept. 3, at five o'clock. When we went downstairs between lines of soldiers into the yard, where I had seen a prisoner shot down from behind without condemnation or warning by the soldiers of his escort as they were bringing him out in the same way for some unknown destination, I felt some misgivings as to our being destined for any other place than the next world.

The first impression was horrible as we filed along the long, narrow and gloomy passage and saw the eyes of prisoners peering, scanning, us through the small holes in the doors of their cells. These cells were already crammed with prisoners of all classes from princes, generals, and bourgeois citizens down to proletarian vagabonds, including thieves and murderers.

I and half a dozen other British subjects found ourselves herded together with numbers of Russian anti-Bolshevik officers, who received us with a shout of delight when they discovered we were British.

We were altogether twenty men in a vaulted limestone cell about 20 feet long by 11 feet broad and 12 feet in height, with hard cemented flooring. In one corner near the door was a modern latrine, also a small sink with a tap of running water, one there from behind a door, and a small shelf fastened to the wall close to the bedstead and serving as a table. At one end of the cell was the door with a small peep-hole, which was sometimes shut up, and at the opposite end, very high up, an iron barred double window looking out against the high wall of one of the fortress ramparts. Two panes of this window were left open for ventilation, and the space between was used as a ladder for keeping our food as fresh as was possible. We had to stand on each other's backs to reach up to it. From 7 o'clock in the evening until midnight the cell was lighted by an electric lamp and reflected in the wall close to the bedstead, were from twenty-five to thirty of these cells along our corridor, all of the same size and type.

With so many hungry bodies bunched together in a space intended for only one the atmosphere was awful, and it was difficult to move about on legs when we lay packed together on the bare, cold floor.

The monotony of our existence was otherwise relieved by the washing out of our cell once a week, for which purpose we used some of our dirty underclothing; by attempts to clean the rest of our linen; and by the fact that we were allowed to wash our faces and hands in a small tub of water.

"One day five Russians were taken out to go to the 'Tchrezvichka.' Among them was a very decrepit old man burdened with a heavy bundle who was unable to keep pace with the other prisoners. A soldier of the convoy prodded him on for some time, and at last shot him down and threw his body into the water. On reaching the 'Tchrezvichka' the old man, of course, did not tally with the number actually produced. 'Where's the fifth prisoner?' asked the commissioner. 'Oh,' said the soldier, 'I can't find him to come along. He was too old and feeble, so I thought I best shoot him down and get rid of him in that way.' This murderer was locked up in a cell not far from ours, and that was probably the only punishment he would ever get.

Two elderly Englishmen were sent away and liberated a week or two before our release, but I believe they are still not permitted to leave Petrograd. They were very ill, and the doctor, who was allowed to visit us at the instance of the Dutch Legation, managed to persuade the commissioners to send them home. On the whole, we did not suffer much in health with the exception of colds and slight fevers, and in such cases the iron bedstead was given up for the use of the sufferers. The doctor brought us medicines and insect powder, for we were overrun by vermin. A good deal of our time was as first occupied in lice hunting, and we only got free of the pests by continual powdering and cleansing.

"It was difficult to keep food long in the bad air of the cells. Meat and potatoes soon developed 'whiskers' and turned sour and moldy. Food parcels arrived twice a week, and the day was looked forward to as a great treat. Mrs. Oudendyk generally accompanied them in a motorcar, and the consul was often allowed to go outside and speak with her for a few minutes. Two or three of the British prisoners were also sometimes let out to help in carrying and distributing the parcels."

He knew. At an examination for entry to an officers' training school, one of the men was given a mental test. The first question was answered correctly, as was the second; then the lieutenant in charge asked the man if he knew where the Sun was. The candidate thought for a minute and then with a self-satisfied smile, answered: "Far, far away."

"Placing Canada on the map of trade," is the happy way in which Mr. W. B. Ramsay, Montreal, who represented a group of industry in London, and who has brought back heavy orders to Canada, describes the work of the Canadian Mission in London.

Trade groups of Canadian producers to marshal our forces and to shape our ideas for going after a bigger share of the after-war trade overseas are being favored by the Canadian Trade Commission.

HOW MRS. BOYD AVOIDED AN OPERATION

Canton, Ohio.—"I suffered from a female trouble which caused me much suffering, and two doctors decided that I would have to go through an operation before I could get well."

"My mother, who had been helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, advised me to try it before submitting to an operation. It relieved me from my troubles so I can do my house work without any difficulty. I advise any woman who is afflicted with female troubles to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial and it will do as much for them."

—Mrs. MARIE BOYD, 1421 5th St., W. E., Canton, Ohio.

Sometimes there are serious conditions where a hospital operation is the only alternative, but on the other hand so many women have been cured by this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, after doctors have said that an operation was necessary—every woman who wants to avoid an operation should give it a fair trial before submitting to such a trying ordeal.

If complications exist, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for advice. The result of many years' experience is at your service.

PRICES OF BEEF TO BE LOWER SOON

Chicago Packers Announce That Conditions Point to an Early Decrease.

Chicago, May 31.—A decrease in the price of beef is "immediately at hand," according to a statement issued by the bureau of public relations, American Meat Packers Association.

"Despite the fact that beef already is cheaper than pork, poultry and mutton, it probably will decline further within the next few days," said the statement. "There are several reasons. Cheaper grass-fed cattle, which heretofore have not been plentiful, are now moving to market. Exports of beef from the United States have practically ceased. The government has stopped buying. It may take a few days for the lower price to reach the consumer. The reason is obvious. It lies in the fact that appreciable time elapses between arrival of cheap steers at markets and the appearance of beef from those steers on the consumer's tables. The retailer cannot lower his prices until he replenishes his stock of beef at the reduced figures expected."

"But from all indications it seems fairly certain that, although depletion of European herds and unprecedented demands will hold meat prices above normal nevertheless a decrease in the wholesale and subsequently in the retail price of beef is immediately at hand. It is thought that the consumption of beef then may be greatly increased."

THRIFT IN THE SCHOOLS

In the schools of Canada alone the War Savings Campaign is fraught with great possibilities and already the returns show that splendid progress is being made. What has been done in the schools of the United States is a fair indication of what may be done in the schools of Canada.

In the schools of New York there is said to be a little over 750,000 children. During the period, December 1917 to January 31, 1919, no less than $5446,000 worth of War Savings and Thrift Stamps were sold in these schools, which means slightly more than 4¢ for each child.

The Thrift campaign in the schools of the Dominion will produce 100 fold in results. Every child should be enrolled in the War Savings army. Parents should see to it that it disciplines the child in thrift, provides it with good investment and benefits the country.

NO CHANGE IN STRIKE SITUATION

Meeting of Transport Workers, Paris, Thursday.

Paris, June 8.—The strike situation was stationary this morning. Transport workers, at meetings held yesterday, pledged themselves to remain out until their demands were fully satisfied, and subway employees passed resolutions expressing contempt for "persons who have been insinuating that Bolshevism is behind the strike."

The meal industries have made virtually no progress toward a settlement as yet.

SINN FEIN MEMBER GETS FOUR MONTHS IN PRISON

Dublin, June 9.—Laurence Ginnell, Sinn Fein member of the House of Commons for West Meath, was Saturday sentenced at Mullingar to four months' imprisonment for inciting disaffection and boycotting of the police in a speech.

A huge market for Canadian farm produce exists in Great Britain where, according to the Trade Commission, imports only amount to 1 1/4 per cent of the eggs consumed; 2 1/2 per cent of the butter; and 2 1/4 per cent of the beef.

That Canadian cheese may go to Europe via United States port as classified as American produce unless our producers awake, is information in the possession of the Canadian Trade Commission.

MADE RUN IN 93 HOURS AND THIRTY MINUTES

C. P. R. Trans-Canada Train from Montreal to Vancouver.

VANCOUVER.—Sharp on the hour of ten on Thursday the first C. P. R. Trans-Canada Train came into the Vancouver station, 93 hours and 30 minutes running time from Montreal. The splendid new train left Montreal at 3:30 Monday afternoon with nearly a hundred passengers on board, and picked up others at stations en route, the highest number of passengers 125. There were but three C. P. R. officials on board, George Ham, of Montreal, C. E. McPherson, of Winnipeg, and F. W. Fox, of Montreal. The passengers on the cross country flight of the train consisted largely of Americans from Boston, New York, Washington, D. C., and San Francisco. Some left at Banff, but the majority came through. Those who were interviewed here expressed extreme satisfaction with the train, and especially with the dining car service. One experienced traveler, who has been crossing the continent on C. P. R. trains since 1886, declared that the service on this train was superior to any he had travelled on.

Nearly six million dollars were expended in equipment for the train. It requires in the cross-country run 12 sleeping cars, 12 observation cars, 5 compartment cars, 12 baggage cars and 24 locomotives. The train absorbs 12 train crews and 24 engine crews.

George Ham stated when interviewed that the Trans-Canada train was one of the most pleasant he had experienced in his many trips on the line. The train was never behind time and in fact at some points was exceeding its schedule. It had not been scheduled to arrive at Vancouver at 10 o'clock Thursday morning it could have comfortably reached here long before.

The time schedule of the Trans-Canada Limited shows running time of 93 hours 30 minutes west of Montreal and 92 hours 15 minutes east. From Toronto to Vancouver 89 hours 45 minutes are required west and 88 hours east.

The new train cuts 24 hours off the run from Montreal to Vancouver. It is particularly appreciated by the business men of the east and the west, reducing as it does the period of direct communication. Its average speed across the continent was 45 miles an hour and the passenger state there was less vibration noticeable than on ordinary trains. All the trains of the Trans-Canada Limited are manned by the oldest and best trained and experienced men on the entire system.

In spite of the strike and the cessation of street car service there was quite a crowd at the station to greet the new flyer as she came in. There was no demonstration of welcome due to the labor difficulties now existing.

The moving picture operators who accompanied the train on her cross-continent trip and took pictures of mountain and rural scenes along the line report splendid results from their efforts.

THE UPRISING IN KURDISTAN

Report Likely Exaggerate Through Turkish Propaganda.

LONDON, June 6.—The War Office believes that the report of a Kurdish uprising is exaggerated through Turkish propaganda. Some trouble has occurred, but the situation is considerably less than in hand.

A general strike was reported on May 29 in Southern Kurdistan. It was feared that British troops there were in a serious position. A London despatch said that British forces in Mesopotamia were taking steps to check the tribesmen.

Have You Friends Who Suffer?

You have friends who are discouraged, who seem to have lost all interest in life, and whose sufferings are acute—because they are afflicted with Kidney or Bladder trouble? Here is your golden opportunity to be a real friend to your friends. Tell them about GIN PILLS, what they have done for others, and about the thousands who have found relief by taking this remedy.

Persuade your friends to try them, if only a sample box. Mrs. James Harris of Port Huron took the advice of a friend and wrote us for a free sample. Hear in her own words the result:

"My husband had suffered for some time with lame back and Kidney Troubles. He became so bad, work was almost impossible. So many remedies were tried without effect that he became discouraged. A friend advised me to give him GIN PILLS, which he did, and so day he is almost entirely cured."

The case of W. T. Baldwin, of Smithville, Ont., is similar in many respects. Mr. Baldwin suffered from a pain in the back for over three years. Finally on advice from friends he tried GIN PILLS, and the result that he received relief from his pain after taking the first box.

There is no need for anyone to invest a cent in GIN PILLS until they have received a sample free and tried them, as Mr. Harris did. Write today, telling us to send a sample box free to your friend's address.

PHARAOH'S GREAT EMERALD MINES

Alleged to Have Been Discovered
Recently by a British Expedition.

A British expedition that set out from Cairo recently rediscovered what are believed to be mines from which the Pharaohs of old Egypt obtained their treasures of emeralds, says the Inter-Ocean Syndicate. The ancient tunnels, honeycomb a barren ridge of hills between the 24th and 25th degrees of latitude in Upper Egypt, a few miles west of the Red Sea. Some of the excavation were shored up with timber which were still intact and the floors were scattered with tools, lamps and baskets of ancient workmanship. Some of these objects, antiquarians say, date back to 1600 B. C. When the mines were first worked is not known, but they were still productive in the time of Cleopatra. Lost for centuries, the tradition of the old mines lingered into modern times. The ancient treasure beds were found again in 1812 by Caillaud, a Frenchman, who was a member of an exploring party sent out in search of them by Mehmet Ali, then ruler of Egypt. That the mines had been abandoned before they were completely exhausted was proved by the discovery of a lode of emerald-bearing rock. The emeralds taken out were large, but of poor quality. The mines have not been worked since. Plans to operate them on a tentative scale, at least, are now said to be under way.

Emeralds ranked with rubies and sapphires as the favorite and most costly gems of the ancient world. They blazed in the crowns of Egyptian pharaohs and the kings of Nineveh and Babylon, who knew nothing of diamonds. Emeralds were royal gems before the diamond ever had been heard of outside of India. In some times the diamond was worn in its natural state and was a clumsy, dull crystal which did not compare with emeralds and sapphires in brilliancy. The fact is now generally known that the art of cutting diamonds which brought out the lustre of the stones and made them the flashing gems the world knows today was not discovered until the fifteenth century. Emeralds today have the same rank as gems they had at the dawn of history.

ON THE GASPE COAST

An Ice-Shrouded Sailor in a Cavern.
"Osweg," said I, "Show me the crevice through which I can look down into the ice cave." We started at once back from the cliff to where the promontory was narrower and higher. The cave swept around to the northward, and the cliff impeded a little. Further south-east the cliffs were higher, and the huge boulders on the ledge were barnbarned white. The base of these cliffs had been so worn out in the centuries, that in some places the upper rock had given way and filled up much of what was once a wide, high and very close together. On the west all was quiet except the lift of the tide. On the east it was all surge and crash. This must have been a high crowned island one or two centuries ago, I said. No doubt this narrow straight was blocked up at the time Quebec had the earth quake," Osweg replied.

The whole alone was now apparently mainland. He led me to the highest point and there, amid the scrubby trees, he showed me a narrow fissure. It was only four or five feet wide and about fifteen or twenty feet long. With my head close to the opening I could hear the low savage cry of the sea as it rushed and swirled through the boulders, debris, and misty feet below. The chill of winter came up through the narrow cleft. I could see almost nothing. He told me that about three o'clock when the western sun was at a certain angle it lighted through some jagged chimneys on the western side, and if the spray was not too heavy on the east this light would, for a few minutes, show brightly on the ice. Osweg, on the shelving of the cavern fifty to sixty feet below. I took off my coat, spreading it over my head to exclude the light above. I lay down flat with my head over the cleft, and watched and waited. It was just about three o'clock. Faint traces of light, came from the west side while the sea rolled in on the east. Gradually more accustomed to the gloom I could see the swirl of the sea between the huge boulders on the floor below. The cavern appeared one hundred feet long and about twenty ft. wide at the bottom. The sea (weed lifted) and floated around the barnbarned floor and sides, fringing the boulders with yellowish sea-green pebbly pods.

As I watched, on the opposite side about sixty feet below appeared a band of light nearly two feet wide. Slowly, as the sun went down this band came up. Like the moving of an hour hand, it crept up, upon the ice mantled wall. Every dull orange colored boulder became glittering gold, and where the drip through the earth had stained the crystal ice wall, it shone red, as if a human being were shedding blood over marbled neck and shoulders. Fascinated by the red, yellow and orange of the pendant ice cones, and by the glittering wall, I watched the band of light mount a yard more, when it broadened into a ledge three feet wide in the wall, whither a man might have been lifted and cast from a wave top or where falling he might have caught at the edge in frantic hope of safety. There the hand of light, now stronger grown, lay in all its prismatic colors, broken by the shelving edge. And there on that shelf, lying on his side, was the statue of a man, much like a man who, spent with toil had gone to sleep. Slightly curved, with hand clenched as if caught in his sleep by the chill of centuries, he lay turned towards the open cavern. Over his whole form, like a casting of glittering and glittering steel, was a thin covering of ice. As the hand of light broadened over him I could see through the ice casing every detail, eyebrows, lips, nose, chin and on the extended arm, below the elbow, the letters "J. D." or a little like "D. D." He lay like a warrior in his coat of mail. So, the light grew fainter, and in a few minutes I could see nothing but still I heard the requiem of the sea over this son of earth lying there in all his crusader majesty. Was he the helmsman who steered Moore's gloomy bark? Or was he some fugitive who crept there, shelter and succumbed to the ice chill? Or was he really John Duval, who, they said, buried at Cape Canon? What would the Garvey's Bartlett and the other Jersey folk say if they knew that I had seen the ice statue of Capt. John Duval, who 120 years had wrought such havoc along the French Coast by his armed schooner Vulture? What would the Bordeaux fishing fleet think if they knew that Capt. John Duval, their fiercest enemy, had received from Nature a more lasting monument than Napoleon has in Paris.

LOSS ESTIMATED AT $300,000 IN FIRE AT LOGGIEVILLE

Store and Content and Six Dwell-

Newcastle, June 5.—The village of Loggieville was given a severe scorching last night and for a time it looked as if the whole village would be a prey to the flames. Shortly after eight o'clock fire was discovered in the store of A. & R. Loggie, near the oil department, and before an alarm could be raised the building was a mass of flames. The fire then spread to Messrs. Loggie's factory, next door, which, together with its contents, were completely destroyed. Messages for help were then sent to Newcastle and Cham-
ham. Aid from the latter place arrived about an hour, but owing to a break in their engine the firemen were unable to stem the progress of the flames, which by this time had crossed the road. Several dwelling houses were also burning.

Newcastle quickly dispatched a crew of men and a fire engine, but the latter did not arrive until almost one o'clock and in the meantime a bucket brigade had succeeded in subduing the blaze. The loss includes the store and factory of the Loggies with all their contents and six dwelling houses occupied by eight families. The loss to Messrs. Loggie is particularly heavy as the foundation of their vault giving way caused all their books and records to be destroyed.

The loss is estimated at about three hundred thousand dollars.

HUNGARIAN ATTACKS ON CZECHO-SLOVAKS MUST STOP, SAYS CLEMENCEAU

Paris, June 9.—Premier Clemenceau, president of the peace conference, has telegraphed the Hungarian government that attacks by Hungarian troops on Czecho-Slovak forces must cease, a demand from Vienna today says.

"In case of non-compliance the allied and associated governments have decided to use extreme measures to constrain Hungary to cease hostilities," the premier's message adds.

BRINGS FULL TEXT OF TREATY

Chicago Journalist Syndicating it in Newspapers.

New York, June 9.—The full text of the treaty of peace with the Central Powers, which has been the subject of discussion in the United States Senate for a week or more has been brought to this country by Eraser Hunt, a correspondent of the Chicago Tribune and is being syndicated to newspapers in this country in copy-righted sections. The first section appeared today.

Mr. Hunt says the copy of the treaty which he brought here is one of the original drafts and was obtained in Paris. It was printed on French and English and contained 416 pages and runs about 75,000 words. Mr. Hunt says it is quite easy to obtain German translations of the treaty in Germany and neutral countries but there are omissions and they are without the map which his original draft copy contains.

The summary of the treaty as previously published in this country, Mr. Hunt states, substantially carried the important points of the full treaty and only in a few places are there omissions. These, he says, occur in the section relating to the Sarra Valley and in reference to the international organization.

Another American correspondent abroad also secured and mailed a full copy of the treaty, but the British censor held it up, according to a statement published in the newspapers here which he represents. A complaint in the matter will be officially made to-day, the paper says, to the foreign relations committee of the Senate.

TURKS REALIZE THEIR EM- PIRE IS MERELY SHADOW

Constantinople a Babel and a Mystery,
Stambul Very Gloomy.

Constantinople.—(By Harold Williams in special cable to The Montreal Gazette)—Our steamer was full of Italian passengers, and in the smoking room there was endless talk—not debate so much as patriotic effusions.

Mr. Wilson was unpopular, to say the least, and the British attitude on Fiume was called a cause of disillusionment, but there were men of the Balkans on board and some of them revealed themselves in whispered conversations in remote corners as Jugoslavs, who, in their vindications of their views, were no less ardent than the Italian majority.

Politics become simple, elementary, and passionate as one goes south and east in Rome, Naples, port, and clerks had their eyes glued to abstract leading articles that would have left British workers cold. There was a strong feeling about Fiume in the air, but no sensation suggesting the feeling atmosphere of Bolshevism.

Constantinople is a Babel and a mystery, was familiar, yet strangely changed. If ever one felt a crisis of the world's history it is here, in the great and beautiful Queen of the East. Allied uniforms of every kind enrich the motley colors of the streets. The British soldier there is in part and expression as imperturbable as though on Hampstead Heath.

There is a plethora of British, French and Italian goods at prices that seem appalling, until one remembers the rate of exchange. Business men of all nations crowd hither and there is a feeling of suspense and expectation in the air.

I went to Stambul. I never saw it so gloomy. The Turks are silent, depressed, dignified. They feel acutely the manner of the occupation of Smyrna and they begin apparently to realize that their empire is a shadow.

The city is thronged with Russian refugees from Odessa and Crimea. I have met many acquaintances from Petrograd and Moscow in uniform. Escaped Russian officers are to be seen everywhere. The news from Russia of Denikin's army is excellent. He has taken Lugansk and other important centres in the Donets basin and, what is more important he completely surrounded large Bolshevik forces at Yerga on the way to Tsimbark. The Russians are enthusiastic in praise of Great Britain's moral and material support.

The Bolshevik tenure of Odessa is insecure. They are hastily requisitioning and imposing contributions, but they are threatened by the army of the adventurous Grigorief, who was once Ukrainian, then Bolshevik, and now declares himself Hetman of the Ukraine. Having taken Elizabetgrad, he is massacring Jews and clearing in on Odessa.

PRINCE OF WALES WOULD HAVE FLEET USED TO TAKE DOMINION TROOPS HOME

London, June 9.—Agent-General Wade of British Columbia in a letter to the press attributes unrest among Canadian troops here entirely to delay in repatriation and protests against the military men of the Dominion still fettering here in illness and expense and daily falling a prey to surroundings from which they should be provided immediate escape to countries which they have reformed with so much honor to themselves and their native land.

The Prince of Wales has led the way in constructive Imperialism by denouncing the odds for further dissent from home and other arguments for fractions of realizable results. He is a man of a woman's heart. His remedy for shipping shortages is employment of the fleet as transporters as the United States has already satisfactorily done. Could anything be more majestic and Imperial, he asks, than to return in this way. Will the Admiralty forget its promises and allow the grand fleet to drag at anchor when so much can be done.

A FAMOUS CYCLIST PLUNGES DEATH

New York, June 4.—One of the biggest Sunday crowds Van Cortlandt Park has ever known, which included the wife and baby of "Dare Devil" Max Schreyer, saw the famous cyclist crash into the side of a huge tank there when he missed his wild leap for life down a steeply graded ninety foot incline, fracturing his skull, breaking an arm and receiving serious internal injuries.

Starting at the top of his narrow incline 142 feet above the ground, Schreyer began his plunge at 5:30. The exhibition was being staged for the benefit of the Salvation Army's home service fund campaign.

With a dash Schreyer's bicycle darted forward for the leap and dive to the water tank below. The machine behaved beautifully, and the crowd sighed audibly as it "took the air" for the seven thousand space. To the tank only to fall short and smash in the near side of it with a thud.

It is not natural for young people to sit in dark rooms, but it is natural to play out in the sunshine and breathe pure air. We are going to build two hospitals but let us do something to save young people from needing to go there. Build the park by all means, and make it secure so that third authors can let their children play there without fears for their safety. Let part of the park be a playground for children with swings, seesaws, etc., and above all build an open air bathing pool for boys and girls to learn to swim without danger of falling between logs or falling off docks. There is no sport in Campbellton, no games, no contests because the only playground they have now must be on the top of the Sugar Loaf. Build the park by all means and let the roads and town hall wait, but hurry on with the park, next year will be too late for some young people.

J. H. BARNES.

Campbellton, N. B., June 10, 1919

Editor of the Graphic,

Dear Sir:

I notice that the Tribune is devoting quite a lot of space in reference to the Subway, which we expect to have started at once as it is evident to all the Subway would not only be a great improvement but would lessen the danger to those crossing the railway.

The accident on Sunday to one of our returned heroes, causing his death and the narrow escape the other young man had, ought to convince Mr. Crockett that the Subway would be of much benefit to all.

The Council's actions in the way of cleaning and leveling up the valuable Town lot at the lower end of Water Street, this work and improvement does not meet with his approval.

We all regret this lot of land has been allowed to remain a disgrace to our citizens. Councillor McKay deserves much merited praise for his efforts that he is putting forth to provide a small Park which will be situated in a most ideal spot. It is to be regretted that both our papers do not encourage improvement to our growing town.

We hope our new Board of Trade at its next meeting will use its influence in furthering these important improvements. This would go to show Campbellton has no room for "Knockers."

Yours truly,

WELFARE.

COPENHAGEN CHEWING TOBACCO

Copenhagen is used differently from ordinary chewing tobacco.

Take a small pinch, for a start, and put it between the lower lip and gum, in the centre.

Afterwards you can increase the size of the pinch to suit the strength of the chew you desire. Copenhagen is strong, because the tobacco of which it is made is cut into fine grains, which makes it impart its strength thoroughly and quickly.

Hence, a little "pinch" goes a long way, showing that Copenhagen is not only an unusually economical chew, but also one of the finest quality, being made of the best old, rich, high-flavored tobacco.

They Weren't Neighbors.

He was old and angular, but strong and upstanding, with the look of the farm on his unsophisticated face. In his old and none too clean blue jumper and jeans he gazed out upon the boulevard, with its shining cars and daintily clad ladies. Confidence in all the world shown in his innocent old eyes.

"Say, Mister, I'd like a ride, please," he called to the driver of a new seven-passenger car at the corner of Thirty-fourth and Main streets.

But the seven-passenger ignored his plea. Car after car did the same, and the old man turned puzzle eyes to the others standing near and remarked in neighborly fashion: "Out our way we ain't so proud as to refuse a ride to anybody."

Ganner George J. LaPointe who had seen much of the war in France, Belgium and Germany returned to Duluth, Minn., last week. While in New Mills he was the guest of his brother Sgt. Clement LaPointe, recently discharged.

On Saturday evening a great number of the hero's friends went to the home of his brother and father, among them being: Pte. Edward Olsen, Pte. D. McEwen, Pte. Angus LaPointe and Sgt. C. LaPointe, brothers of the hero. During the evening dainty refreshments were served by Mrs. Flora LaPointe, assisted by Miss Georgia LaPointe and Dolor Jonas. An interesting event was the presenting to the brave soldier by his sister-in-law, Mrs. Flora LaPointe of a fountain pen, his brother Pte. August LaPointe and Arthur LaPointe of gold cuff links and tie and Miss Stella Mercier of a tie. The address was read by Mrs. Flora LaPointe.

Mr. Frank LaPointe is the proud father of four war veterans: Sgt. Clement and Pte. Angus LaPointe enlisted at the outbreak of the war, George LaPointe came to Campbellton from Duluth, Minn., to offer his service in 1916 and Thomas the fourth to enlist was rejected three times physically unfit and was accepted the fourth time and he is now on duty overseas. Mr. Reid, member for Mackenzie. "I think the eight-hour day is coming, but speeding will not work on the farm. The horses can work steadily, but they must not be hurried. Under present conditions and prices I find that I have to have a ten-hour day on my farm, starting at 7 o'clock, and ending at 7 o'clock, with two hours' interval at noon for the horses to rest and eat."

"Would the application of power, the use of tractors and the shift system, to the farm make a difference?" he was asked. "How many farmers could stand the capital outlay needed for the equipment and the waste while learning new tricks of organization and management?" was the question with which he replied.

"We must go back to peace trade on a wartime scale," says the Canadian Trade Commission, "if the huge war debt is to be paid."

WHEN TO CUT GRASS AND CLOVER FOR HAY

(Experimental Farms Note.)

It is regrettable that it is a too general practice among farmers in Canada to leave the hay crops to be cut much too long. There are, as a matter of fact, a large number of farmers who delay the cutting of the hay crop far beyond the time when it would pay them the most to cut. In many cases the reason for the delay is that it is a general belief that a somewhat increased tonnage may be secured if cutting is postponed, and in other cases the late cutting is practiced because it is even believed that a better quality of hay may be obtained than if the cutting were done earlier.

In the case of Eastern Canada, where mixed clover and timothy, or timothy alone, are the fundamental hay plants, a few suggestions based on experience may be found not to be out of order.

Timothy and red clover are the standard hay plants which universally are grown together. The clover is contributing the bulk of hay crop the year after seeding and the timothy is finishing the bulk of the hay the following year or years. Supposing that a farmer has a field of mixed clover and timothy, what would be the best time for him to cut it for hay?

The clover develops early and is ready to cut some time before the timothy has reached its best stage. Shall the farmer cut the hay when the red clover is in its prime, or shall he wait until the timothy is at its best? Answer is: cut when clover is at its best, notwithstanding that the timothy mixed with it may not be as well developed as might be desired for the reason that the clover is the more valuable part of the mixture. By cutting early, the clover is given a chance to recuperate and to produce a remunerative second crop, which it might fail to do if the cutting for hay is delayed too long for the sake of the timothy.

In case timothy forms the principal part of the hay crop, which it generally does two years or more after seeding to hay, it is important to handle it for hay in a proper manner. Timothy, like most other grasses, has a period of its own when it has the greatest feeding value per acre. This period is the time of blossoming. At that time, timothy is the richest in flesh and milk producing constituents and, if cut for hay when in bloom, the best quality hay may consequently be realized. It is a mistake to believe that better crops may be secured if cutting is delayed. Some slight increase in the yield may be obtained but what is gained in quantity is lost in quality and feeding value pound for pound.

Under the circumstances, early cutting of timothy for hay must of necessity be recommended as the most economical method of securing a hay of the highest possible value.

Breaking it Gently.
The boss called the typist to his room. Miss Keytap you are a very pretty young woman."

"Oh," said Miss Keytap blushing. "You dress neatly and have a very well modulated voice. I might add that your deportment is above reproach."

"You shouldn't pay me so many compliments."

"I only want to put you in a cheerful frame of mind," said the boss, "before taking up the matter of spelling and punctuation."

A fair greater trade in Canadian farm stuffs is done in our own cities and towns than is done abroad. This fact is mentioned by the Canadian Trade Commission, not to minimize exports but to show the unrecognized importance of our home markets.

OLIVEINE EMULSION, which is widely employed, is apt to be imitated. Ask and insist on having OLIVEINE EMULSION, and we are the sole owners. Its value depends on our process, on the skill and knowledge employed in its compounding. Those are features which cannot be imitated, and without them the vital elements are lacking. For you own sake, when asking for OLIVEINE EMULSION please be careful, protect yourself and take no other.

TIDE HEAD.

On Tuesday evening of last week when the occupants of the Manse at Tide Head had concluded that they had everything in readiness for the auctioneer's hammer and now about to seek "lured nature's sweet restorer, balmy sleep" they discovered to their evident surprise and pleasure that their last night in the Manse was to be made memorable for them by the presence of a large gathering representative of the Tide Head section of Restigouche. Consideration and the presentation of a well filled purse and an address eulogistic of their personal worth and labours and expressing the regret felt by all who knew them, that the "lured tie that binds hearts in Christian love" was to be broken by their departure to Scotland, the land of their birth and as dear to them as ancient Jerusalem to the pious Jew. After Mrs. Winton, our popular teacher had successfully completed the presentation ceremony, Rev. Mr. MacKay in his usual happy vein thanked the donors for their presence and kindness which had made such a pleasant termination to a ministry which had begun in the rough in a B. C. mission field 28 years ago, and assured his hearers that he and his good partner in life would in the old land, if spared to reach it, would often spend their leisure hours musing over their very happy experiences in the congregation they had served in Canada. Tea was afterwards served, and "We've had a grand night" was the expression of many as they left for their homes after doing their best to show their respect and esteem for a worthy couple.

The sympathy of the entire community goes out to Mr. and Mrs. Albert Mann in the loss of their home and nearly all their belongings by fire. A report of which appeared in the "Graphic" last week. It is very pleasing to find this sympathy expressed in a practical way by so many of their friends and well-wishers here.

Mr. A. G. Adams of Campbellton is having a bungalow built near the home of Mrs. T. Adams, and will be in a practical way by so many of their friends and well-wishers here.

On Tuesday, June 3rd, at St. Andrew's Manse, by Rev. J. R. MacKay, W. William Lanson Pollack and Georgina Smith, daughter of Mr. Hugh Smith, both of Glenelg, were united in marriage. The marriage was witnessed by several friends from Kempt Road and Campbellton who were visiting at the Manse and who afterwards congratulated the happy couple on the union consummated. Mr. and Mrs. Pollack returned to Glenelg by auto the same evening where they were given a hearty welcome by their many friends.
