Closet Hymn. "Simon, son of Jonas, lovest thou me ? Yea, Lord, thou knowest that I love thee. Feed my sheep." Thou knowest, Lord, it cannot be, My heart withholds its love from thee ;

It gloweth in the sua at noon.

For thou art love, the choicest even. Of all on earth and all in heaven. Thy love is in the starry light That glittereth on the arch of night ; It smileth in the gentle moon,

It warmeth in the genial breeze. It crowns the flowers, the fruits, the trees The sea, the streams, the field, the grove, Tell constant of thy biding love.

The bleating flocks, the lowing herds, The humming insects, vocal birds, The echoing hills, the pattering rain, Speak ever of thy love to men.

But who can fathom, know or tell Thy love as our Immanuel ; That taught the poor, the hungry fed, Restored the blind, the deaf, the dead ;

That groaned in cold Gethsemane, That agonized on Calvary, That prayed for cruel murderers there Who drove the nails and thrust the spear.

> Not love thee, Lord ? It cannot be, So great has been thy love to me; That love that pitied, could forgive, And bid the stricken sinner live.

For this I'll lend my voice and hand To spread thy truth o'er sea and land ; I'll feed thy lambs and aid thy sheep, Thy ways to love, thy paths to keep.

The more my sins -a countless score-Forgiven of thee, I love thee more ; Yea, will until my last remove, Abound in words and deeds of love.

So heaven shall more delightful prove, Pervaded by enduring love ; And welcome, long eternity And welcome, long over thes. Because employed in loving thes. P. CAMP.

" In the month of March, 1820, he was graciously favoured with a remarkable visitation from above. The influence thus exerted upon him was of the most marked and kind, hallowing and remained with him to the close of life. Often, in subsequent years and on his death-bed, did he refer to it as the day of God's power, in which he was " made willing " and was adorned with " the beauties of holiness." In the interesting and very minute detail which he gives of it after alluding to divine grace in preserving him twelve years in the church, he conferses that although he had been " increasing knowledge to the weariness of the flesh, multiplying labours to the diminution of health, and doing God's work with pure intention, and ardent zeal " yet he " had not been wholly and fully Christ's." He goes on to state that for some time the bless ed Spirit had been working in him, especially showing him that in the new covenant, there i held forth such an enjoyment of God, as he had never yet tasted. Rutherford's Letters were a mighty means of stirring up the inward fire ; and his soul panted deeply, and at times intensely, after God. These were but transient visite of the Comforter; yet it was evident that by them the Almighty was preparing his way. He was led to dwell more on the possibility and desirableness of being perfected in love, and one master-truth - that all spiritual good in conveyed to the human soul by faith only-" got hold of his heart."

We continue the narrative in his own words " On the following morning I was musing over the past day's labours, and praying for a blessing. The subject of Christ's manifestation naturally occurred. I fostered the delightful topic. I longed for Jesus to come and dwell in me. My heart was soft and tender; my soul clear and peacetul. I broke out in praise of God. In this frame, I took up our Hymn Book, and read and sang the hymn beginning :

" He wills that I should holy be ; That holiness I long to feel," &c.

The whole strain of the composition was in uni son with my views and feelings. I proceeded to examine other hymns, and was struck with one beginning :

" Father, I dare believe," &c.

But when I came to the last verse,-" 1 cannot wash my heart. But by believing Thee, And waiting for thy blood to impart The spotless purity."

hence the burning hatred that was borne to ministry, by many of his countrymen; hence indeed his untimely and tragic death. He refused to hate England; he would bear no fellowship with those who plotted the overthrow of the Em-pire; he was true to his country, bravely and unswervingly true; he aloved England; he loved British America; and he has the honour of dying a martyr to his integrity and genuine patriotism. To one feature of his career we can now point with peculiar satisfaction. It became too well known that he was fond of the intoxicating cup; and on several occasions his exposure of himself was humiliating in the extreme. Last autumn he resolved to conquer his appetite, and HE DID SO. He became not only a sober man-but an earnest advocate of femperance. He d.d not deem himself too old to learn; he OTTAWA, April 8.—The Hon. Mr. McGee made an eloquent address on Nova Scotian af-fairs on Monday night, and saying that Cánada was determined to conquer Nova Scotia by kind-ness. About two hours after midnight, he left the Commons for his lodgings, in company with another member. He walked along from the coraer of Metcalf and Spark streets to his lodg-ings, at Mrs. Trotter's, and was shot from behind while in the act of opening the door, the ball coming out of the mouth, and carrying away portions of his front teeth. The murderer must have been quite close to him. McGee fell back on the sidewaik, and died instantly. Church !

There was a time in England when people were sent to jail for holding religious meetings and worshipping God according to their cor sciences ; and that, you know, was the reason our forefathers came over to these western shores. They wanted to be where they could worship God in their own way. A wicked rich man had a spite against a dear old minister of the Gospel, Mr. Rogers. The wicked rich man was a justice of the peace, and he thought he would gratify his spite by sending the old minister to jail. extinction of PAIN in all its various forms ind-dental to the human family, and the unsolicited written and verbal testimony of the masses in its favour, are its own best advertisements. The ingredients which enter into the Pain Killer, being purely vegetable, render it a per-fectly safe and efficacions remedy taken internally as well as for external application, when used so-cording to directions. The alight stain npon line from its use in external applications, is readily re-moved by washing in a little alcohol. This medicine, justly celebrated for the cure of so many of the additions incident to the human family, has now been before the public over twesty years, and has found its way into almest every sormer of the world; and wherever it is nsed, the ame opinion is expressed of its real medical pre-
