The rainfall in Ontario this summer averaged more than three inches greater than for the past 46 years. Burying a Town

A town that never has anything to do in a public way is on the way to the cemetery. Any citizen who will do nothing for his town is helping to dig the grave. A man that curses the town furnishes the coffin. The man who is so selfish as to have no pride in his business to give town affairs attention is making the shroud. The man who will not advertise is driving the hearse. The man who is always pulling back from any public enterprise throws bouquets in the grave. The man who is so stingy as to be howling hard times preaches the funeral, sings the doxology, and thus the town lies buried from all sorrow and care.

Swindled Out of $300

Mr. Frank Rennie, ex-M.P.P., of Walkerton, was swindled out of $300 last week, by means of the sharp trick described in our last issue. Mr. Rennie is trying to hold the Bank and the Telegraph Company for the amount, but it is doubtful if he can succeed.

Potato Price Down

Potato prices have taken quite a tumble recently. This week a couple of cars were loaded at Orangeville, for which the growers received 35 cents per bag. Tubers are retailing in Toronto at about 75 cents per bag, and from present indications the price will not increase much, as big crops are reported in the eastern provinces.

Frost Lowers Grade

Mr. John Tegler and his daughter, Mrs. Wm. Hill, who spent the past month at Edminton, returned home on Tuesday, after a most enjoyable trip. Mr. Tegler informs us that realizing the full extent of the damage done to the wheat crop by the frosts in August. Much of the wheat grades as low as No. 6, and the elevators are refusing to buy this grade, because of its low content of a greater or lesser degree of protein.

20 Days for Obstructing

Mrs. Chas. Stanley, of Culross, charged with obstructing provincial Officers Nelson and McClevis, who raided the Stanley premises last week in search of a whiskey still, was sentenced on Tuesday by Magistrate Walker to 20 days in jail. When her husband noticed the constables he fled to the woods and is still at large, and when the constables attempted to follow the fugitive, Mrs. Stanley is alleged to have set her two dogs on the officers, impeding their progress, so that Stanley made good his escape. The officers located a still on the premises in full operation, and they wrecked it so that it could not be used again. They brought Mrs. Stanley back to Walkerton with them and deposited her in the jail. We learn that she is to be brought up again later by the Inland Revenue Department, on a charge of illegally making liquor.

Won't Play Stars

Both the Senior and Intermediate W. F. A. Championships were won by the default route this year. Mildmay was awarded the Intermediate honors by the defection of the Galt club, and now Owen Sound has defaulted both the Senior and Intermediate titles. The Stars were exceedingly anxious to try conclusions with the Senior champs, but the Newton players took the stand that they could not finance any more games this season, and that their team had disbanded. The Stars are disappointed in not being able to arrange home and home games with the Senior winners. It is imperative that a new set of officers be secured for the W. F. A., or this fine old organization will go to pieces entirely. The president has been away from home all season, the Secretary is in the taxi business, and it is almost impossible to get into communication with them. It has been a most unsatisfactory finish to what might have been a fairly successful season for association football in Western Ontario.

Died at Formosa

Miss Bertha Noll, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Noll of Formosa, passed away on Sunday afternoon of last week at her home. Her general health for the past two years was not the best and the last few weeks she was a great sufferer. The deceased was in her 20th year. Her death, though not unexpected, will be deeply felt by her relatives and friends. Besides her parents, she is survived by three brothers, Wilfred, Oscar at home, and two sisters, Vera of Kitchener and Olga at home.

Auto Was Ditched

Last Thursday night Herbert Steinhausen and Lincoln Timpon, of Carrick, while motoring in the former's car on the Normanby and Carrick road, went into the ditch at the sharp turn in the road south of Neustadt. It was raining at the time, and the boys could not see the turn in the road. One of the car wheels was completely smashed, the car was nearly all broken, and the car looked pretty badly dilapidated after the accident. The boys also sustained some cuts and bruises.

Reeve Loses Mother

Reeve J. P. Phelan received a message last Saturday afternoon informing him of the very critical condition of his mother, Mrs. Patrick Phelan, at her home a few miles south of Guelph. Mr. Phelan motored to Guelph on Saturday evening, and his mother passed away the following morning. Deceased was 76 years of age, had been in failing health for nearly two years. The funeral took place on Tuesday morning at Guelph. During the past two years Mr. Phelan has lost both his parents, one brother, one sister and a brother-in-law.

Injured By Auto

On Tuesday evening of last week, Mr. John A. Riehl, a farmer near Kitchener and well-known here, while returning from helping a neighbor to cut corn, was hit by a passing motor, and badly injured. The car passed over his leg, fracturing the bones above the ankle, and Mr. Riehl also received bad skull lacerations. He was removed to the K. & W. Hospital, where the fracture was reduced, and his other injuries attended to, and we are glad to know that he is recovering, although for a few days his condition was very serious. Mr. Riehl is a brother of Mrs. Chas. Klein of Carrick and a son-in-law of Mrs. Louis Reuber of Mildmay.

The School Fair

The inclement weather last Friday did not seriously affect the attendance at the Carrick School Fair held here last Friday afternoon. Nine schools participated this year, and the number of entries far exceeded any former years. In one class there were thirty entries, and in many others from ten to fifteen. The public speaking entries and the physical exercises were exceptionally interesting. The Carrick School Fair is rapidly growing in prosperity, and it is estimated that there were four hundred people present this year, in spite of the unfavorable weather.

Eckel—Heldman

The marriage of Eileen Elizabeth, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allan Heldman, of Kitchener, to Stanley Russel Eckel, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Eckel of Hanover, was quietly solemnized at High Noon on Tuesday at the parsonage of the Zion Evangelical Church, Kitchener. Rev. Mr. Barthel officiating. The bride wore a lovely shell pink frock and carried a bouquet of Ophelia Roses and Lily of the Valley. After the ceremony—Mr. and Mrs. Eckel left for Toronto and Buffalo, the bride travelling in a green broadcloth coat, with wolf collar and cuffs, beige hat and hose and shoes to match. On their return they will reside at 110 Lancaster St., Kitchener.

Dissatisfaction at Hespeler

There will be no more football here this year, despite the rumors that a game was scheduled for Tuesday evening. The games committee of the W. F. A. decided that Hespeler and Galt should play off for the honors. The Hespeler management decided that they could not field a strong eleven and defaulted to Galt. Galt felt that they hadn't been given a fair deal in holding the final games over so long and they also passed up the final game to Mildmay, who have been declared Intermediate champs of Western Ontario. Newton defeated Ferguson in a sudden death game and will meet Owen Sound in the senior finals. The W. F. A. officials, however, should receive the censure of the association for not being on the job and getting the games over during the regular playing season—Hespeler Cor. in Daily Record, Kitchener.

Sunday School Lesson

Number 14. Lesson 11—Spiritual Gifts.—1 Cor. 12: 4-7, 31; 13: 1-8, 13. Golden Text—Now abideth faith, hope, charity, these three; but the greatest of these is charity.—Cor. 13: 13.

INTRODUCTION—From the 12th to the 14th chapter Paul gives his teaching on spiritual gifts among modern interpreters. The Greeks were on contentious people. He emphasizes the truth that the purpose of all these gifts is that those who possess them may use them for the whole church. THE HYMN OF LOVE, 13: 1-13. This chapter has been called "the greatest, strongest, deepest thing Paul ever wrote," and in order to get the connection one must read it along with the last verse of chapter 12, which is a kind of bridge. Paul was glad to think that the converts in Corinth have received these manifold gifts from the Spirit, and he would strongly urge every one to desire these gifts and to develop what he may have. But even the greatest of these gifts is not to be compared with the graces of the Christian character, of which the leading one is love. The more excellent way of 12: 31 is the way of chapter 13, the way of love.

(a) The Central Place of Love, 1-3.

V. 1. By "tongues" here Paul likely means the ecstatic utterances which these Christians at Corinth were prizing so highly; but it may also include articulate as well as inarticulate language. With love these gifts are not able to win any great blessing, and are like a clanging cymbal, a mere noise. If one is cultivating eloquence merely for its own sake as an accomplishment, that can have no religious value.

V. 2. This verse may refer to intellectual gifts, and to the faith which is able to make outward demonstration. Some one has said that here we have "the intellect of the philosopher joined to the inspiration of the seer." But without love even these great endowments do not give that character which is the real standard of value.

V. 3. Acts of benevolence and of self-denial, even though these are of an excessive nature, do not bring any blessing from God unless they are mingled with love. Thus love is shown to be the one essential factor in the religious character.

(b) The Qualities of Love are Now given, 4-7.

Most of these are described in a negative form, and in his description Paul is evidently keeping in mind the defects which he sees to exist in this church.

V. 4. Love is gentle and long-suffering. It exercises a merciful delay in inflicting merited punishment. It has the grace of kindness. Love is no brag-gart, does not make any ostentatious display, neither is it proud, blowing its own trumpet and making arrogant display.

V. 5. Love has a feeling of propriety, nor does it fly into a rage on every slight cause of provocation. Some of the heathen writings had said that one should never be displeased over anything, even wrong-doing, but Paul would not go that far. He knew there was a place for just indignation. Love also takes no account of evil, which may mean, either, "doth not entertain evil thoughts," or, "doth not suspect evil in others." Love puts the best construction on the actions of others.

V. 6. Love is happy. The gladness of the early church was one of the most attractive features, Acts 2: 46. Jesus came that his joy might be in us. A great poet has a line, "happy as a lover." Here joy is found because the cause of truth is prevailing.

V. 7. Four stages in love are mentioned. (1) Love bears the burdens of others, hiding their faults. (2) If faith hesitates then hope still remains. (3) When all else fails, then love will patiently endure.

(c) The Abiding Nature of Love, 8-13.

V. 8. Paul selects three of the gifts, prophecy, tongues, knowledge, to show that these are not eternal. In v. 2 he said that these gifts were of no value without love. Now he says that even with love they have merely a temporary place. Love is the only one of these that abides.

V. 13. In this verse the word "now" is not temporal, as if Paul meant to say that now faith and hope could abide, but that hereafter love would be the only force to remain. "Now" here means "and so." These are the three abiding graces, faith, hope, charity; and even among the graces love has first place. Why love is the greatest, Paul does not say, but we may remind ourselves that God is love.

Here, therefore, we bring the subject to a conclusion. All gifts are to be cultivated; let no Christian despise them. Every accomplishment, every intellectual faculty that can adorn and grace human nature, should be cultivated and polished to its highest capability. Yet these are not the things that bring us nearer God. "If we love one another, God dwelleth in us and his love is perfected in us."

Hilltop Home

We never dreamed such loveliness could be,
As where our garden overlooks the sea,
With rolling moors around,
And the tall gum trees droning harp-string sound.

Such cradling heaven, such tides of crystal air,
Opening the perfumed cups of roses fair,
Such wealth of wings
Of singing birds and little gauzy things!

Each dawn unrolls the broad horizon's blue
Across the glassy paddocks grey with dew,
While gladdened eyes
Drop from the changeful wonder of the skies.

Down, down to where the many colored phlox,
Round steeples of rosetted holly-hocks,
Laughs at our feet.
And every homely, friendly flower is sweet!

Distress in Scotland

Edinburgh Scotsman: The report of the Board of Agriculture on the farming acreage in Scotland as at June last makes melancholy reading.

If this department of industry were the only one which is decadent, the optimist might seek a reason and a remedy with some certainty, but there are other vital industries which are equally depressed. The coal, iron and steel trades are not able examples, and to crown existing poor trade in these and other quarters, there are other gloomy reminders. The pick of Scotsmen are leaving the country to seek work elsewhere, and the Irish "invasion" proceeds unchecked.

The Canadian Wheat Pool

C. R. Fay in the Nation and Athenaeum (London): The Pool, now five years old, has not defied the laws of supply and demand, nor has it brought millennium. Nevertheless, it is an epochal step towards the rationalization of Agriculture. While it gains nothing from the hyperbole of suspicion or praise which it has received in some quarters, it rejoices to have riveted the attention of this continent by reason of its momentous effect on the morale of the Canadian West. Where in 1923 groups of farmers all over the prairies were talking revolution, debt adjustment, or moratorium, now they are talking pool.

ATTENTION, FELLOWS!

Here are some rules laid down that will aid bachelors of all descriptions in selecting partners for life:

- 1 Choose one that is neater and cleaner than you are.
- 2 Choose one that doesn't consider you merely a meal ticket.
- 3 Choose one who cannot find the last word without a dictionary.
- 4 Choose one who is not acquainted with first-love affairs that might spoil yours.
- 5 Do not expect too much. Do not look for perfection. Remember that perfect ones have taken wings and can be found only among the angels.

The Lunch That Goes to School

It Needs to Nourish Active, Growing Bodies and be Well Packed

By PAULINA RAVEN MORSE

(Master Farm Homemaker) in Michigan Farmer

The school bell is ringing, calling an army of children to school. The majority of children living in rural communities is obliged to carry lunch. To some this will be a new experience this year and if the children are to maintain good health and physical vigor throughout the year, the mother must give care and thought to the planning of the school lunch. The children often walk long distances to school, eat hurried breakfasts and cold lunches, and rush out to play. Is it any wonder they fall prey to colds and disease?

The teacher should supervise the noon luncheon period the same as any class. This period affords an excellent opportunity to bring out little points in table etiquette. A supply of plain white paper napkins to serve as lunch cloths should be kept on hand at the school.

The receptacle in which the lunch is to be packed is always one of the first considerations. Many children enjoy carrying the gaily colored tin boxes. At our house, we like them better because the cover is fastened to the box, allows for ventilation, and the lunch may be packed in them more compactly. They are more sanitary than the pasteboard or fibre boxes for they can be washed and scalded. The thermos lunch kits are very good, if one can afford them, as they permit the carrying of a hot drink of milk.

Between Two Slices of Bread The sandwich is one of the most desirable foods for the lunch box. There are many kinds which can be prepared from white bread, graham bread, whole wheat bread, and nut bread with different fillings. I often prepare:

Meats chopped fine and moistened with cream, gravy, or salad dressing. Dried fruits such as figs, raisins, dates, and prunes chopped fine and mixed for flavor. Lemon juice may be added for flavor. Preserved fruits, as jams, jellies, fruit butters, marmalades and conserves.

Nuts chopped fine mixed with salad dressing, cream cheese or honey added to the dried fruit pastes.

Eggs scrambled with crisp bacon, or hard boiled eggs chopped fine and mixed with salad dressing. Dressing, honey, or some of the fruit around the world in sixty-seven days. Some of them seem to be well-seasoned globe trotters.

easily made by putting cheese through the food chopper and adding cream and softened butter until the cheese is of creamy consistency. Then add nuts, chopped olives, or pimientos. The amount of cream and butter used will depend upon the dryness of the cheese. Be sure to cream together well. Cottage cheese makes very good sandwich filling when used with brown bread.

Vegetable sandwiches are not satisfactory because they become stale soon after they are made.

The bread for sandwiches should be at least twenty-four hours old. Both sides of the sandwich should be buttered, as butter keeps the filling from soaking the bread and gives needed fat content to the lunch.

There Must be Fruit

Fruit is one of the most valuable foods of the lunch box. It may be fresh, dried or canned. If canned, it should be packed in a jar with a screw cover. Fresh tomatoes at this time of year are a pleasing addition to the lunch. Have the fruit as attractive as possible when the lunch is packed. It may be well to add extra fruit for recess time, especially apples.

Cakes and cookies provide the dessert part of the lunch. Sponge cake, chocolate cakes, plain butter cakes, molasses cakes, and drop cookies made from oatmeal and graham flours, containing nuts and raisins, are always acceptable. Some of the cake batter may be baked in patty tins or patty paper cups. The cakes present a daintier appearance and will keep moist longer. Nuts, dried fruit, coconut, chocolate, or sugar sprinkled on top of the cake before it is baked make a change.

Cup custard, junket, jello, fruit salad, rice pudding, tapioca pudding, cottage cheese, or baked beans may be packed in glass jars and added to the lunch in season. I try to have a surprise in the lunch box in the way of sweets during the week in the form of sweet chocolate, dates, figs, raisins, chocolate coated raisins, nuts, animal cookies or special fruit. If the lunch is not eaten, the surprise is omitted for a time.

The individual likes and dislikes of the child must be taken into consideration when packing the lunch box, for we cannot expect the child to eat at school what he or she will not eat at home. All food should be neatly wrapped in wax paper before packing, then packed in the order in which the food will be eaten. If at times there are empty spaces, fill them with crushed paper to prevent food from shaking about.

The psychological effect upon the child who carries a well-packed lunch is interesting to note. He is not ashamed of the contents of his box and does not try to cover it up so others will not see what he has for lunch. A child is quick to note whether his lunch compares favorably with the other children's.

Here are a few of the favorite recipes used in packing lunches for my children:

Sponge Cake
Two eggs, 1 cup sugar, 1 cup flour, 1 1/2 tsp. baking powder, 1/2 cup hot milk, 1 tsp. melted butter, 1/2 tsp. flavoring, 1/2 tsp. salt.
Beat eggs until light, add sugar and baking powder together three times, add to first mixture, add hot milk, beat; then add melted butter and flavoring. Is suitable for cup, layer, or sheet cake.

Raised Brown Bread
Five cups boiling water, 2 cups rolled oats, 3 tbs. shortening, 1 tbs. salt, 1 cake of compressed yeast, 1/4 cup lukewarm water, 2 cups graham flour, 1 cup molasses, 1/2 box seedless raisins, bread flour.
Pour the boiling water over the rolled oats and add the shortening and salt. Stir thoroughly and let stand until lukewarm. Then add the cake of yeast dissolved in the lukewarm water. Add graham flour, molasses, raisins, and enough bread flour to knead into a stiff dough. Knead thoroughly and let raise over night. Put into loaves and let rise until light. Bake in a hot oven for ten minutes, decrease heat to moderate and bake for forty-five to fifty minutes. This makes four large loaves.

Drop Brown Sugar Cakes
Two cups brown sugar, 1 cup shortening, 3 eggs, 6 tbs. sweet milk, 1 cup dried fruit, 2 tsp. baking powder, 1/2 tsp. soda, 1 tsp. cinnamon, 4 cups flour.
Cream butter, add sugar, then eggs well beaten. Mix and sift other dry ingredients. Add alternately to first mixture with milk. When partially added, add fruit which can be raisins, currants, or dates cut into small pieces. Drop from teaspoon on greased and floured pans. Bake in a hot oven. A half date, raisin, a bit of jelly, or nut meat may be placed on the top of each cookie. Makes four dozen.

Spice Cake
One cup sugar, 1/2 cup shortening, 1 egg, 1 cup sour milk, 1/4 cup molasses, 1 tsp. cinnamon, 1/2 tsp. cloves, 1/2 tsp. salt, 1 tsp. soda, 2 cups flour.
Follow directions for making butter cakes.

Chocolate Cake
Two cups brown sugar, 1 cup sour milk, 2 1/2 cups flour, 1/2 cup shortening, 2 ozs. chocolate, 2 eggs, 1 tsp. soda, 1 tsp. vanilla, 1 tsp. salt.
Follow directions for making butter cakes. Makes a large loaf, a layer cake, or good for cup cakes.

Turn Your Face Into a Pain

You can make your home a palace by establishing an atmosphere of comradeship and understanding.

A 1928 model homemaker must be a many-sided, highly talented, thoroughly trained executive. It is not enough for her to be a skilled specialist in one particular branch of home economics or business administration but, like the juggler in the circus, she must contrive to keep three or four different tasks in operation at the same time. The glory is, this woman actually delivers the goods, without a single order missing.

She is achieving through the assistance of her husband that standard of having his home "economically sound, mechanically convenient, physically healthful, morally wholesome, artistically satisfying, mentally stimulating, socially responsible, spiritually inspiring, and founded upon mutual affection and respect." Women have been made economically, industrially and politically free. The test of a Real Home is the type of people who come out of it. When you have been away from a home a few days at some convention, on a vacation or at the fair, do you get a real thrill out of getting back home? If you do, you have a real home, a place that draws you to it at any season. If you see only the acres, and the toll, and you return with disgust to the toll, there is something wrong somewhere. Maybe you have not put enough of yourself into the home part, into the living, to make it attractive. Maybe you have had your faces so close to the grind of daily toil you cannot see the beauties of nature, the sunsets, the cloud pictures, the rolling panoramas of beauty around you.

Maybe there is something wrong with your attitude toward everything in general which has poisoned your attitude toward your own home. You pass this way but once. Live your life, and do not slave to hoard up for a generation that may not stay on the place after you leave it. Heroic sacrifices sound well but do not get recorded upon the tombstones. If you would have your children live better than you have lived, set them the example now.

Be Careful With Baby's First Bath

Extreme care should be taken when the time comes to give the baby its first real bath. Cornelia Browne, D.C., N.D., writing in "Physical Culture Magazine" for September, advises the mother on the proper way to avoid trouble.

"A mother through lack of understanding may be the cause, by faulty and injudicious handling, or producing in her little one, a fear of water that may follow the child throughout its life," says this authority. "A child who screams when it is put into the tub is undergoing a shock to its nervous system, and unless it is a very robust child it may not be able to regain this lost nerve force and therefore may suffer from a lowered nerve vitality all its life."

"Be sure that the room is 70 degrees F. when you bathe the baby, and that the water is 98 to 100 degrees for an infant. You may gradually lower the temperature to about 90 degree when he is a year old.

"A good castile soap is usually recommended, but once in a while a baby's skin will rebel against any soap. In that case, or for prickly heat or any simple skin eruption, the bran bath is most efficacious. Make a thin muslin bag eight inches square and fill with wheat bran. Let it soak in the bath for ten or fifteen minutes and squeeze it until the water is turbid or milky. During the warm evenings when baby is fretful, try one of these bran baths before the evening feeding.

"Be careful how you lift him from the tub," warns Miss Browne. "Children have been paralyzed for life by improper lifting. Never pick him up by his arms. This applies not only to an infant but also to all small children."

Hunting Season Promises Much

Nimrods with their minds directed to the North Woods for their annual hunt will find occasion for a display of optimism after learning the latest reports made by guides and outfitters who have gone into the hunting districts they control for the purpose of determining the number and distribution of game it contains. Ontario and Quebec both hold out strong inducements. In the region of Metagana there is an excellent supply of moose, as well as in the hunting grounds near Rideout. Kipawa reports land water routes from Angliers, Que., provide unusual opportunities for those interested in calling or still hunting.

FINANCIAL NEWS

MOND NICKEL.
A despatch from Sudbury states that the Mond Nickel Co.'s smelter at Coniston is at present handling 2,000 tons of ore per day. This exceeds the original estimated capacity by 500 tons. The matte output is said to represent two-and-one-half million pounds of copper and the same amount of nickel each month. This is in addition to appreciable precious metals values.

AMULET AND NORANDA STATEMENTS.
Erratic movements in Amulet and Noranda followed the publication of official statements regarding latest developments at the mines and immediate plans.

It May Be Urgent

When your Children Cry for It

Castoria is a comfort when Baby is fretful. No sooner taken than the little one is at ease. If restless, a few drops soon bring contentment. No harm done, for Castoria is a baby remedy, meant for babies. Perfectly safe to give the youngest infant; you have the doctors' word for that! It is a vegetable product and you could use it every day. But it's in an emergency that Castoria means most. Some night when constipation must be relieved—or colic pains—or other mothers keep an extra bottle, unopened, to make sure there will always be Castoria in the house. It is effective for older children, too; read the book that comes with it.

Noranda's report was two-sided. Aggressive expansion plans reflected the confidence of the management in the future of the enterprise, but the indication that narrower and lower grade ore lay below the 1,000-ft. level and the "H" ore body was not so good. It appears characteristic of the Quebec area that ore lenses are alternately rich and lean as they go down.

RED LAKE STRIKE.
We announce further particulars of a sensational new strike at Red Lake which is said to be the most spectacular of the district. The find consists of a dome of quartz, 700 by 350 feet, which raises approximately 60 feet above the level of the lake. Three distinct veins are contained in this showing and these have been traced for lengths of 700 to 900 feet. Samples of this ore shown in Toronto are the most spectacular since the days of the old Croesus.

MURPHY MINES.
The No. 2 shaft at the Murphy property, which is being sunk on the No. 5 vein which was found on the recently acquired claims, is now down 30 feet, on its way to 100 feet. The workings are said to be still in commercial ore and that values are improving. This vein is known to be at least 40 feet wide but its entire width will be determined by a cross-cut at the 100-foot level.

McINTYRE.
The future of McIntyre-Porcupine Mines is alluring according to the staff correspondent of the Wall Street Journal after a visit to Porcupine.

McIntyre Porcupine has the continuation of whatever ore bodies form on the top side of the main intrusion at depth. With a shaft 4,125 feet deep sunk and equipped for developing new ore-areas at depth, and with one of its veins shown to be carrying good ore on the 3,875 foot level, the outlook for McIntyre is excellent and not improbably within another year the property will be building a new mill with larger capacity than the present. On the whole, with much ore left in its older or western ore-areas, the outlook at McIntyre is quite encouraging.

McIntyre has kept its development and prospecting of outlying possibilities well ahead of stopping so as to avoid exhaustion of the possibilities of one main ore-area before a new one has been found, and its prospecting begun. A dividend of $2.20 per share is expected this year.

NEW-RECORDS AHEAD FOR FORD OF CANADA

Ford, Ont.—August production of Ford Motors Co. of Canada, totaled a day for the 24 working days of the month. In August, 1927, the Ford plant was not operating, and the other Canadian motor companies turned out a total of 12,526 cars, or less than the Ford total for August this year.

Cars sales in Ontario during June and July give the new Ford 1,000 cars majority over its nearest competitor. "Present schedules indicate we will continue to exceed our former peak production throughout the balance of the year," says W. R. Campbell, vice-president and treasurer.

A danger sign can't talk. But it's not so dumb as the fellow who disregards it.

Appearances Count WEAK AND NERVOUS

Now Helen is a girl who wonders why men don't like her, and yet who seems to think they should gravitate towards her without any attraction whatever.

I don't mean that men dislike her—I am taking Helen as being representative of many—I just mean that some of them don't get her company sought for dinners, dances and suchlike frivolous affairs.

But her appearance. Well, Helen might tell you that she wanted a man to love her for herself alone, but these days there has got to be something to attract a man's interest—a nice manner, good looks, smartness—before it is riveted by a praiseworthy character.

It is "too much fag" for Helen to have her hair curled. Yes, she knows way. It is "too much fag" to have a cold-water run-down every day, but she can spare time to simmer for hours each night in a hot bath; it's another "fag" to drink a glass of lemon-water each night before turning out the light, yet she makes a practice of ways of drinking a glass of hot milk. She can't be bothered to alter such a small item—yet it's a large one—measured in terms of avoidpous.

One day I took brother Bill to see Helen, and, because Helen knew he was engaged and therefore ineligible, and hardly bothered to be polite. And Bill, who had vaguely promised me to "see what he could do" for her in the matter of dance-partners, promptly cried off, and told me he couldn't "inflict that" on any of his pals.

But what can you do? These girls have it firmly fixed in their own minds that somehow, sometime, Fate will send them the man she is reserving for them, and so they delude themselves that appearance doesn't count.

A Condition Always Due to Thin, Watery Blood.

This blood and weak nerves generally are found together. Red blooded people seldom complain of nervousness. The reason is that the blood feeds the nerves and keeps them toned up to do the work nature intended. When the blood is thin and weak it fails in this important function and nervous troubles follow. The following case will interest those who need a tonic for the blood and nerves. Mrs. D. Veno, Union Square, N.S., says:—

"With a feeling of gratitude I write to tell you what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills did for me. I had become badly run down, and reached the stage when I could not do my housework. I was not only weak, but my nerves seemed completely shattered. The least noise would startle me and I was subject to nervous headaches. Worse still, I could not sleep at night. Perhaps I could get an hour or two sleep, and then lie awake for the rest of the night. I had reached a stage when I actually feared I would lose my mind. Up to the time I decided to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, nothing I had taken seemed to do me any good. I got a few boxes of these and soon there was no doubt they were the medicine to help me. As I continued the use of the pills I gradually grew stronger, ate better and could sleep at night, and now I am as well and strong as a woman could wish to be. I hope some other weak, nervous person will be benefited by my experience."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50c a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

MINARD'S LINIMENT FOR ACHING JOINTS.
An old man was standing on the curb playing a one-string fiddle outside a Ludgate Hill shop. An acquaintance came up. "Watcher doing down 'ere, Bill? I thought yer worked the West-end?" "Not now I give that to me son-in-law as a weddin' present."

Indigestion

What most people call indigestion is usually excess acid in the stomach. The food has soured. The instant remedy is an alkali which neutralizes acids. But don't use crude helps. Use what your doctor would advise.

The best help is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. For the 50 years since its invention it has remained standard with physicians. You will find nothing else so quick in its effect, so harmless, so efficient.

AN ERROR
An Ontario farmer purchased a purebred pig from a raiser of fancy hogs. The pig and bill arrived the same day. Next day the dissatisfied farmer wrote to the hog raiser as follows:
"Dear Sir: Both pig and bill arrived safely. Judging from their comparative size, you made an error in shipping. You should have sent the bill by express and the pig by mail."

The Hollanders have offered to sell three rare narcissus bulbs to the United States for $700. It really is refreshing to see money go for something besides prize fights and motor-cars—but then the offer has not been accepted.

Of course, you've heard the following joke? Well, then, in that case we'll just leave a blank space, and save time and ink by not publishing it:

THESE SUPERSANE DAYS
I pity so the modern kid Who don't do what we used to did. The parents know so doggoned much Of what they should and shouldn't touch. The little beggars have no fun In doin' what we used to done. Their parents, to a gnat's heel, know Just what will make them thrive and grow; They treat their little Jane and Ralphy Like they was turnips or alfalfa! They aren't allowed to nose around To see what knick-knacks might be found In cookie jar or Kelvinator— A pretzel or a cold petator. But they are nourished a la science With every new approved appliance. They have their doses fixed by measure And do not get to eat for pleasure! Some quite grow up, for goodness sake, And never know the belly ache! Not knowing that, how can they know

The Right Word
Dr. Doddridge, the hymn writer, was one day walking, his heart very desolate within him. But, passing a cottage door, he happened at that moment to hear a child reading aloud the text, "As thy days, so shall thy strength be."
The cheering effect on his mind, he says, was indescribable. It was like life from the dead.

ISSUES WARNING

Traffic Officer Le Grand was in town this week and he states that in the past few weeks he has had a real busy time on the highway over which he has jurisdiction and says the most trouble is caused by drunken drivers. The Major is interested in educating motorists to observe the traffic laws and in this respect issues several warnings. Of course, if these warnings go unheeded, summons will be resorted to.
In the first place there are too many motors on the highway with defective lights, namely with only one headlight or no tail light. Warnings to have proper lights have been issued before and action will be taken in all such cases from now on.
The Major advises all car owners to have their lights tested as to focus and glare. As an act of courtesy the lights should be dimmed when passing another car.
Another point is this, a new law is now in effect regarding the cluttering up of windshields and rear windows with stickers. This obliterates vision and is a dangerous practice. Police men and peace officers ials have orders to see that car owners remove these when they are of a size to prevent clear vision.

In any case of accident on the highway where property damage occurs, no matter if anyone is injured or not, the cars should not be removed until the traffic officer is called to the scene for inspection purposes.—Kincardine Review.
"A well-stocked cellar" has several meanings, but from a downright practical point of view the term signifies plenty of fruit and vegetables.
An Oshawa man has been given two years and the strap for getting drunk and beating his wife. Why not try this stuff on the hit-and-run motorist, the phoney bond salesman and a few others?
According to a statement recently issued, the Ford Motor Company of Canada produced 13,945 cars in the month of August, for use in Canada and overseas territory. This was at the rate of 541 cars per day for the 24 working days of the month, and surpasses any previous monthly production.

NEW REGULATIONS RE CAR BRAKES

The department of highways last Thursday issued regulations governing motor vehicle brakes. The new regulations, for purposes of enforcement, divide vehicles into two classes. Weight, and use to which the car is put, are the factors of classification.

In Class A, which includes all passenger cars and some trucks, foot brakes must stop the car within 50 feet and 20 miles an hour on a dry level road. Under the same conditions hand brakes must stop the car within 75 feet. Class B includes the vehicles over 6,000 pounds gross weight, designed for transportation of goods and all cars not in Class A. Foot and hand brakes applied simultaneously on this class of vehicle must stop it within 50 feet or within 75 feet if applied separately.

The new regulations aim to unify brake regulations throughout the province, which at present vary greatly in different localities.

son, John, is also lying with a fractured leg as a result of a large Studebaker car driven by Capt. Arthur Williams of Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., colliding with a freight train at the Allenford crossing about 8 o'clock on Monday evening. Others in the car at the time who were more or less injured and badly shaken up were Wilbert Belmore and his sister and Miss Eleanor Guinn, daughter of Rev. Mr. Guinn, United Church minister at Southampton. The party were returning home from Owen Sound and the driver of the car not being familiar with the road, did not notice the railway crossing, and while travelling at a fast rate of speed ran smash into the caboose of the freight. The Studebaker was so badly wrecked that it caught fire, making it extremely difficult for the occupants to get out. Engineer Belmore had his face and hands badly burned, his right arm broken, and he was dragged out of the flaming wreckage in an unconscious condition. All of the occupants of the car were taken to the Owen Sound Hospital, but with the exception of Engineer Belmore and his son, John, were able to return home on Tuesday. Captain Williams, the driver of the car, miraculously escaped serious injury.—Port Elgin Times

Had Hip Fractured

A little Elmwood girl, Myrtle Rody was run down by a car at the Hanover Fair, and the driver of the car drove off in a heartless manner without stopping to see how badly she was hurt. The little girl was taken to the Hanover hospital, where it was discovered that her hip was broken, in addition to cuts about the head. The police are endeavoring to find the guilty party.

Robert Galbraith was arrested on Wednesday last at the home of his mother in Derby Township, charged with bigamy and forgery and taken to Walkerton goal, but was liberated on bail. Eight years ago Galbraith married a Tara girl, and four years ago they separated. About four months ago Galbraith is supposed to have married another woman in the States and in July they returned to Canada. Galbraith claims that his first wife signed divorce papers, but the latter denies having signed same, consequently Galbraith is charged with both bigamy and forgery. It is expected the preliminary trial will take place in Tara this week.

"SALADA" TEA

A Tea of Finer Quality

THE YELLOW SEVEN. THE SILVER HAND.

BY EDMUND SNELL.
ILLUSTRATED BY
R.W. SATERFIELD

This unusual series of stories deals with the exploits of "Chinese" Pennington a detective sent by his government to British North Borneo to run to earth The Yellow Seven, a gang of Chinese bandits.

Denis Moorhouse—District Officer at Bukit-Iban—lay at full length in a long cane chair. In a hole in the arm of the chair rested a glass and, a few inches distant from Moorhouse's stockinged feet, reposed a pair of muddy riding-boots. A black chow sat licking its forepaws at the top of the steps, pausing every now and then to raise its head and growl at the slightest sound that wafted upward from the night-shrouded clearing.

Denis Moorhouse—refreshed by a bath of hot water laddled over himself from a preposterous earthenware jar of native manufacture, felt at peace with all men. He was a tall, thin, amiable specimen of humanity with fair hair that was wearing thin on the crown. Functioning as a magistrate on the edge of beyond, where ninety-nine out of a hundred men would have warped, become morbid, or drunk themselves into oblivion, this cheery philosopher had succeeded in steering a middle course. Moorhouse—with his black dog at his heels—was as welcome in a Borneo long-house as in the bungalow of the Commissioner of Police.

Under normal conditions, it might not unreasonably be assumed that Moorhouse—reclining in glorious idleness after a strenuous day spent in the sweltering court-house—was dreaming of home or of the white girl whose photograph occupied a sole and prominent position on his dressing-table; but the girl in the ebullient frame was his sister and the district officer had no home other than the one he now occupied. As a matter of fact, he was thinking of the dusky Dyak belle who had danced before the assembled chiefs in the Kampon at the other side of the valley when the rice harvest was completed; a shapely, alluring female with an independent swing of shoulders and features that would have done credit to a Western beauty. Moorhouse had been present at this dance, chiding his white teeth when the young warriors—drunk with samsu—urged their water-buffaloes across the open wastes and mildly applauding the crazy posturing of the women who danced with human heads.

Then, just as he had made up his mind to pay his respects to his hosts and depart, the wonder-woman from the forests had whirled into the firelight. He remembered her afterward as a vision encased in a sarong of shimmering green, with a single bracelet of gold at either wrist, her dark hair secured by a dagger of which both the point and the jeweled hilt were distinctly visible. More miraculously still, her hands were hidden by wonderfully fashioned gauntlets of silver, each wrought to resemble the form of the hand itself. Her dance had culminated in a sort of joyous stampede, she had fallen prostrate before the semi-circle of rapt heads, then crawled with the lithe, sinuous move-and the resourcefulness of its resourceful leader. Hitherto his district had been mercifully free from the unwelcome attentions of the organization to which almost every Chinaman on the island belonged; but Dawson had had considerable dealings with Chai-Hung, and Moorhouse was asked to cooperate with Dawson.

It was with mixed feelings that he sat down to table and dissected a helping of buffalo-meat. He was in the act of consigning Hewitt, Dawson, Chai-Hung and Pennington to the deuce when the black chow shot, barking, from the kitchen-quarters on to the verandah. The magistrate, gazing through the open doorway, caught a glimpse of a dark form dimly outlined against the blackness.

"Tuan, will you call your dog?" The voice came from the stairs. Moorhouse took the lamp from the bracket and holding it beyond the wooden rail, peered over. Presently he uttered a muffled exclamation and replaced the lamp. He whistled up the dog.

"Come here," he commanded—and the girl obeyed.

"You are the girl who danced in the Kampon." "Yah, tuan." She held herself very erect and Moorhouse noticed that the sarong of shimmering green had given place to one of terra-cotta. The lean almost insolently against the verandah-rail and surveyed the Englishman calmly. He passed her a cigaret and wondered where she had learnt to light it over the chimney of a lamp.

"What is your name?" he demanded presently. "I have no name." Moorhouse moistened his lips. "Where do you come from?" "I have no home."

The district officer frowned and the girl laughed—a delightfully disarming laugh that almost made Moorhouse forget the dignity that his office demanded. "You have come for your bracelet?" She shook her head and the lines of her handsome face hardened. "I come not for the bracelet," she told him, "because I am a child of the forests, taking when I wish to take and giving when I desire to give—neither giving back nor taking back. I give to my friends and take from my enemies."

The magistrate's forehead wrinkled. "Then why have you come to me?" he inquired bluntly.

"The Tuan-Hakim is wise," she murmured, gazing down at the straw sandals that reposed on the floor of her feet. "Admitted!" returned Moorhouse cheerfully. "What then?" "When I heard the music of the gongs and saw the smoke of the fires rising above the tallest trees, a voice whispered to me to go closer—and I went. Presently, beyond the smoke, I saw the faces of the chiefs. And then I saw the white coat of the Tuan-Hakim. The beating of those brass drums called me and I danced for you, because I said 'this man is he who sits alone in the big house among the coco-palms, who reads and knows the right from the wrong—the good from the bad.' You beat your hands together, tuan, and I was content." A dreamy note had come into her voice and it sounded in the D.O.'s ears like the soothing sound of a wood-pigeon from her nest. "There are times, oh white man, when it is good to have a friend. I am your friend," she concluded simply. (To be continued.)

The wonder-woman from the forests had whirled into the firelight.

tunity of returning to her the missing property. This was a month ago and still no trace had been found of the girl with the silver hands. But, although human memory is inclined to be short-lived and many events were crammed into four short weeks of Moorhouse's existence, that one incident at the padi-harvest kept cropping up when the curtain night dropped suddenly and the D.O. was free to indulge in his glass of whisky at sun-down, his long chair, his bath and the company of his dog.

As Moorhouse lay inert, waiting for the native boy to announce the arrival of dinner, an orderly in round hat and bare feet pattered up the steps and, saluting respectfully, presented the district officer with a letter that had just arrived by native runner.

"Dear Moorhouse," it ran. "More trouble for you, I'm afraid. The Yellow Seven business has broken out again and three planters have been attacked, one of them fatally. Chai-Hung, leader of the gang—has been traced to your area. Am sending reinforcements. Co-operate with Dawson and do your best to round up Pennington will be with you almost immediately.—Hewitt."

He rose somewhat wearily to his feet and, crossing to the lamp, read the missive again. Presently he glanced up sharply.

"All right!" The orderly saluted and disappeared. The magistrate stubbed his toe against a corner of the book-case, swore softly to himself and shouted for his slippers. While awaiting the advent of the boy, he dug out a photograph of the bandit and surveyed it curiously. He saw a fat Oriental, staring blandly from the portrait through a pair of horn-rimmed spectacles. At the time when the picture was made, Chai-Hung had been the most respected Celestial in the archipelago; today, thanks to the efforts of Chinese Pennington, the robber-chief stood revealed in his true colors. The boy shuffled in with the slippers, but still Moorhouse did not stir. He was thinking of the Yellow Seven

Radium Thief's Ruse Fails

Chance Telephone Call Unset Plan of Robber

The Paris police are looking for a man who came very near robbing a noted X-ray specialist of a valuable quantity of radium as well as other property. Chance alone prevented the long-prepared and ingenious plan of the thief from succeeding.

Some weeks ago the X-ray physician while motoring to Treport was stopped on a lonely road by a well-dressed stranger who said that his own car had broken down and asked for a lift. Although the other car was not in sight the doctor drove the stranger into Treport, and they are said to have made mutual confidences on the way and exchanged cards at the end of the journey. In the course of this the stranger learned that the doctor intended to remain at Treport a fortnight.

Two days later the road acquaintance visited the doctor's home in Paris representing himself to be a confidential friend of the doctor who had asked him to bring his radium to Treport with other valuables. The stranger presented his own card which read "Comte de Quessen" together with the doctor's card. The servant in charge was properly impressed and was about to help the "Comte" gather together the valuables required, when the telephone bell rang. It was the doctor telephoning from Treport. Naturally the servant mentioned the Comte de Quessen's presence and his mission, but when he turned from the phone the visitor, who had heard his words, had disappeared.

England Goes After Record

A New British Seaplane Will Try For Speed Mark

An attempt will be made soon to break the world's speed record with a new Supermarine-Napier racing seaplane, which has been tuned up in England to take the place of the plane in which Lieutenant Webster was killed when he made the last attempt to break the Italian mark of 306 miles an hour. The new plane, called the S-5, is expected to do better than 320 miles an hour.

In appearance the S-5 is very much like its predecessor, although the fuselage is narrower and the air resistance has been cut down correspondingly. The tiny fuselage and wings are in contrast to the relatively big floats, but their size is necessary because the plane lands at the high speed of ninety miles an hour.

The fuel is carried in the starboard float partially to balance the engine torque and make the machine easier to fly. It is pumped up by an engine-driven pump. The wing surface radiators are said to be much better than anything previously used. They cool without adding any resistance, as they have a flat, instead of corrugated, outer surface.

The fuselage is all metal, the skin taking the stresses. The oil is cooled by passing it, along both sides of the fuselage in contact with the skin, through specially constructed oil coolers.

The floats are of duralumin. The wings are of wood and are covered with special laminated wood under the radiators. The fuselage is smaller in cross-sectional area than any fuselage previously designed.

The span of the wing is only twenty-six feet nine inches, with an area of 115 square feet, a wing so small that the wing loading is 27.83 pounds per square foot. The weight of the plane, with its geared engine, is 3,200 pounds. The engine is the Napier racing engine, which is believed to develop about 1,000 horse-power.

They were playing cards in the station waiting-room. One of the players, a stranger, was getting a bad beating. Finally, he saw one of the others give himself three aces from the bottom of the pack. He turned to the man beside him and said: "Did you see that?" "See what?" asked the man. "Why, that fellow dealt himself three aces from the bottom of the pack." "Well, what about it?" asked the man. "It was his deal, wasn't it?"

A misogynist said to a woman: "All this feminism is sheer nonsense. There isn't a woman alive who wouldn't rather be beautiful than intelligent." "That," said the woman, "is because so many men are stupid and so few blind."

Is Woman Modern?

Writer Says She Lags Behind in Use of Conveniences Where She Rates Her Labor Low

American women are not taking advantage of the many home conveniences provided for them by modern science, writes Frederick L. Collins in the October "Pictorial Review."

"Edison started the electric industry nearly fifty years ago—and there are less than eighteen million wired homes to-day, Ford gave the motor industry its first big push less than twenty-five years ago—and there are twenty-three million automobiles. This in spite of the fact that it costs more on an average to buy a motor-car than it does to wire a house.

"In short, the home of the future is here—but a good many of us aren't living in it yet.

"But it won't be long now," continues Mr. Collins. "I have recently spent many hours of masculine bewilderment in the home-economics departments of the great service companies. I have seen gas stoves with refrigerating attachments—the heat and the cold, the lion and the lamb, lying down together. I have seen washing-machines which make possible the doing of the family wash—the whole operation from sorting the soiled clothes to hanging out the clean ones—in less than an hour. I have seen an ironing-machine that looks like a medium-sized table, and serves as such when it isn't doing the work which used to break our mothers' backs.

"And I have learned many things I didn't know before, such as:

"That five cents will run a washing-machine two hours.

"That five cents will run an electric fan ten hours.

"That five cents will run an electric sewing-machine seven hours.

"That five cents will keep refrigerator cold eight hours.

"That five cents will run a vacuum cleaner three hours.

"That electric current is the one thing used in the home which is cheaper now than it was before the war.

"That five cents will light a reading lamp for two long evenings.

"That any woman who sweeps a carpet or beats a rug is doing work that an electric motor can do for one and three-quarter cents an hour.

"That any woman who irons the family wash by hand is doing work

Germany Should Have Won

Many Should Have Won the War—That Opinion Will Probably Surprise You, Coming As It Does From the Ex-Generalissimo of the Allied Armies

By MARSHAL FACH

Germany could have won the war; not only at the beginning, but in the spring of 1918. She could have won if her plans, which were very good, had been carried out with more ability.

To-day, I still wonder how it was possible that Germany, after having prepared so long for the war, failed so lamentably in the execution of her strategic schemes.

I wonder, for instance how it was possible that the German General Staff neglected its right wing. I know that General Count Schlieffen, who planned the march against France through Belgium, unceasingly insisted on the decisive part which should have been played by the right wing, which had to besiege Antwerp and to occupy the coast of the British Channel at least up to Boulogne.

But the right wing, extending from Belgium to the North of France in the shape of a fan, had to be continually reinforced, and on his deathbed Count Schlieffen exclaimed: "Provided that the right wing may be strong enough."

Unaccountable Mistake

The German General Staff committed the great and unaccountable mistake of weakening the right wing at the most decisive moment in favor of the link wing situated in Alsace-Lorraine, and in removing from it three divisions to send against the Russians in Eastern Prussia, where the battle between Hindenburg and Rennenkampf had, however, already been won.

The German right wing consequently remained too weak and too small to extend itself up to the sea. It failed to secure support, and could thus be turned.

That is what happened to the army of Von Kluck when it arrived close to Paris. Some months later the Germans endeavored to repair their error and occupied the coasts, but at Ypres they were defeated.

Ypres was the direct consequence of their initial error. The right wing was too weak.

Von Kluck's Retreat

As to whether the German retreat in the first battle of the Marne was necessary or too hasty, I consider that it was both. From the strategic point of view (on account of the faults that I have mentioned) the German army found itself before Paris in a rather precarious position; for we had turned its right wing, and a gap had formed between the first army (Kluck) and the second army (Bulow).

On the other hand, the Germans could still have recovered, instead of retreating with so much haste. To-day, one may clearly see that the intelligence service of our opponents was very defective. Only thus can history do not serve much purpose, be explained the part played by Lieutenant-Colonel Hensch, whose preliminary reports determined the

Dinner for Five

- Beef loaf
- Creamed onions
- Baked sweet potatoes
- Fruit salad
- Hot Rolls
- Devil's food cake
- Ice cream

Beef Loaf

Put through the food-chopper 2 pounds of fresh pork, and 1 slice of onion. Add 1 cupful of bread crumbs and a well-beaten egg, also a dash of pepper and 1 teaspoonful of salt. Mix well together and form into a loaf. Lay on a greased baking dish and bake in a hot oven. Leave uncovered the first 10 minutes, or until the loaf is nicely seared, to keep the juices in. Simmer together for 10 minutes; 1 quart of canned tomatoes, ½ of a ball of fat, a bruised sprig of parsley, 1 tablespoonful of minced sweet pepper and a stalk of celery cut into small pieces. Strain and pour the liquid over the loaf, then reduce the heat and bake in a moderate oven, basting frequently until the meat is done. To the liquor in the pan add enough water to make 1 cupful. If gravy is desired, and thicken with flour paste as usual.

Fruit Salad

Cut into dice: 2 bananas, 3 slices of pineapple and the pulp from 2 oranges; add 1 cupful of grapes halved and seeded, a dozen each of dates and marshmallows cut into small pieces, and ½ of a cupful of blanched almonds. Whip in enough fruit salad dressing to give the salad the right consistency and serve ice cold on lettuce leaves or in apple cups.

Fruit Salad Dressing

Beat the yolks of two eggs and add slowly the juice from 2 lemons, then ½ of a cupful of maple syrup. Mix together well: 1 teaspoonful each of cornstarch and sugar, and a pinch of salt. Pour the liquid slowly into the egg mixture, stirring slowly until the mixture is thick. Cook over boiling water until the mixture is thick. When the dressing is cold, add 1 cupful of whipped cream.

Devil's Food Cake

Cream 1 cupful of sugar with 1 cupful of shortening, add the yolks of 2

general retreat on the whole German front. A psychological explanation is given us by the letters of General Moltke, Chief of the Great Staff, to his wife—letters in which the pessimistic nature and the very advanced sickness of the General are clearly revealed.

It can consequently be affirmed that on the Marne the Central Staff of our adversaries completely failed; it proved very inferior to its task. Ought the Germans to have followed the other scheme—that which advised the defensive on the Western front and an overwhelming offensive against Russia?

A Shorter Line

I have already mentioned that in the spring of 1918 the Germans could still have won. If they had arrived at Amiens the English Army would have been cut off from the French Army, and even after the offensive of General Mangin on July 18, 1918, the position of the Germans was not desperate.

I confess that, from the military point of view, I do not very well understand why, towards the 20th August, General Ludendorff did not retreat to the line Metz-Meuse-Brussels-Antwerp. My preparations were to attack the "Hindenburg Line," and if the German Army could have retreated to the straight, short line mentioned I should have had to recommence everything.

This strategic retreat might have prolonged the war by one year—and in critical times many unexpected things can happen in the course of a year.

On the other hand, I understand that Ludendorff could not persuade himself to order this strategic retreat, but it would have meant the confession of an evident inferiority and the abandonment of very important war materials which could not have been easily replaced.

I will even go so far as to say that in November, 1918, Germany could have resisted behind the Rhine. If the German people had had a Gambetta the war would have been prolonged—and who knows?

I believe that a people which does not want to be vanquished need not be. Of course, in November, 1918, Germany had no further chance of success, but if her army had resisted behind the Rhine many things would have been changed.

I speak, of course, from an entirely military point of view. On the other hand, I know that Germany, abandoned by her Allies and cut off from the rest of the world, had not enough food to maintain herself, and that the German people, who had suffered severely, called loudly for peace, immediate peace.

There we must let matters remain. These retrospective considerations do not really do not serve much purpose, but what would have happened if . . .?—Montreal Standard.

eggs and 1 cupful of sour buttermilk in which 1 teaspoonful of soda has been dissolved, and ½ cupful of water. Sift together three times: 2 cupfuls of sifted flour, 2 tablespoonfuls of cocoa and 1 teaspoonful of baking powder. Dredge 1 cupful of raisins with part of the flour. Stir the liquid mixture slowly into the rest of the flour, add the raisins, 1 teaspoonful of vanilla and last, the stiffly beaten whites of the 2 eggs. Bake in a moderate oven about 25 minutes if in layers; 45 minutes if in a loaf.

An icing especially good with this cake is made by peeling and crushing a ripe peach and mixing with it about 1 cupful of sifted powdered sugar, or sufficient to make the frosting spread well.

To Save Time

Prepare in the morning the beef loaf and the sauce to be used with it, and leave them in the refrigerator. Potatoes may also be made ready for baking and the onions cooked. Make the cake and the salad dressing.

An hour and a quarter before serving time, start baking the meat loaf. Half an hour later put the potatoes in the oven and put the salad together. Set the latter in the refrigerator to remain until the last thing before serving the meal. Set the table and order the ice cream. Fifteen minutes before serving time put the rolls into the oven to reheat. With the opening of the bag, twisted to retain the moisture, he rolls will taste as if freshly baked. Cream the onions and set them on top of the oven to keep hot. When meat and potatoes are done, the dinner is ready to be served.

Taxis and Telephones

A girl from a little village in a remote country district took a situation as a housemaid in a big city. In her first letter home she wrote:

"There are many wonderful things here, Mother. None of the cabs has horses, and often I have seen the lady of the house talking to herself through a candlestick in the hall."

Apron Strings

"My Dear," said Sybil to me when we were discussing life-in-general, "I distinctly foresee the shipwreck of Jeannie's marriage—she flourishes the apron-strings too much!"

When fluffy little Jeannie got engaged to "Big Ben" Traversers had been quite a sensation. Frankly—we were all of us in love with Ben; but we all of us imagined he'd marry somebody statuesque and frightfully nice—"accomplished," too, as grandma might have said! Then suddenly he fell very much in love with Jeannie.

I think the whole business rather turned Jeannie's head; you see, she had just been one of our set, dancing and playing games all together, and then suddenly she became a Real Romance and Big Ben Traversers' fiancee. There is no accounting for the people who fall in love with each other; but you can nearly always account for those who fall out of love!

Keeping Him on a String

It was dreadful, truly. Though at first Ben did not see how dreadful it was "Ben this"—and "Ben that" (you know how maddening that can be), and then she began to make Ben fetch and carry; she "cut" her dances with him; she flirted round and let him trapse after her, and a great booby that he was, he followed—so very much did he love her.

But all this was only the prelude to the more serious business of apron-strings. After they were married Jeannie set to work to make a real "married man" of "Big Ben." Nearly every night she fetched him from the office; he felt rather a fool but couldn't bear to hurt her feelings by telling her not to do it too often—she phoned him any and every old time; sometimes just to tell him not to forget to call at the fishmongers, or to command him to hurry home as Mum and Dad and Betty and Billy and Bonny were all coming in to dance. Then, when he did arrive, she'd call out as he came in: "Do hurry, Ben, and change!—Billie's sleeping in your dressing-room so change in the bedroom, and oh! Ben, mind you put on the socks I've put you out, and Ben! do take off your muddy shoes downstairs. . . ."

Maddening!

Well, you can imagine how maddening that sort of thing gets when it's practised in public and private,

Hunters Are Too Old Says Canadian Guide

Take it from one who knows them, an experienced hunting guide, the sporting fellows are a bit ancient.

"Curly" Phillips is one of the best-known guides in the Jasper National Park district. He is an experienced hunter of big horn sheep. In an article on the Alberta Big Horns in the current issue of "Forest and Stream" he reveals some entertaining knowledge of human nature.

"The average sportsman is too old," is the guide's verdict. "That's the trouble. Office men wait until they are sixty before they take time off to go on a hunt. That's at the bottom of nine-tenths of the trouble on the trail. They come out here from the city and expect to jump right into the open air life without noticing it. They aren't in trim and it tells on them. They lose their heads and their tempers; can't adjust themselves; run into disappointments; blame it all on the guide and the country and go home fed up. The young husky fellows who should be out after game are busier than blazes making things go at home. They haven't time for hunting until they get to be sixty or so and then—well, it's almost too late."

"But the majority of men, even the oldest, are pretty good. I remember one chap; he was well over fifty but he was long and lanky and he sure could hike, and I have had a lot of fellows like him, who couldn't go as they used to but who went as far as they could, liked it and never kicked."

Two attorneys, one decidedly glum of countenance, met on the street. "Well, how's business?" the first asked of the dismal one. "Rotten," the pessimist replied. "I just chased an ambulance 12 miles and found a lawyer in it."

Bathing in Polluted Waters

Waters commonly used for bathing in the vicinity of large cities are frequently so polluted that they constitute a danger to health. This is certainly the case in New York, according to Dr. Louis I. Harris, health commissioner of that city, who, in an interview printed in the New York American, declares that some of its encircling bays are so polluted that they present a genuine menace. He adds that it would not be far-fetched to say that death lurks in every mouthful of their waters swallowed by bathers. We read:

"In a conference recently between Dr. Harris and Dr. Charles F. Pabat, it was developed that in addition to the many internal diseases which the filthy waters carried, there were many serious and painful skin diseases against which the public should be warned. Dr. Pabat, an authority on this phase of the menace, is a city physician and chief attending dermatologist of the Greenpoint Hospital.

"Following their talk it was said that physicians and surgeons would not be astonished to see an epidemic of furuncles or boils, abscesses, and other inflammatory diseases of the skin and blood stream. It was said that these are quite likely to be contracted by bathers in the condemned waters, where the subject has slight cuts or abrasions.

"These abrasions, it was shown, need not be pronounced, but might merely be the result of chafing by a woolen bathing suit in order to give 'Eye specialists have pointed out, too, that these waters present the constant peril of pink-eye and all forms of conjunctivitis, some of which could conceivably result in permanent injury to the eye, or even total blindness.

"Perhaps the most prevalent aftermath of bathing in water containing sewage, it was said at the Health department, is that of middle-ear infection, often leading to mastoiditis, abscesses, ear-drum infections, and often deafness, especially where the gustatory tubes become involved.

"Respiratory diseases also play their part in the lives of bathers who ignore the Health Department warnings. At the department it was said that 'colds,' which bathers imagine they contract from staying around too long in swimming suits, really are contracted from the organisms in the filthy waters.

"Many cases of pneumonia have been traced directly to this source, as have cases of tonsillitis, bronchitis, pharyngitis, and all of the common and throat ills.

"Swallowing these waters, it was declared, might easily lead to disturbances of the digestive tract, not from the water itself, but from the dangerous bacilli they contain and might easily be a predisposing factor of appendicitis."

Round-the-World Radio Goes Full As Knowledge Grows Waves Become More Confusing—Signals Keep Moving

Where is Stopping Point? Not once, but two and one-half times do modern short radio waves circle the globe, according to a study made by Dr. A. Hoyt Taylor, superintendent of the Bellevue Naval Research Laboratory. An informative interview with Dr. Taylor is reported in the radio section of the New York Sun by S. R. Winters. The strength of high frequency signals, says Dr. Winters, is suggested by their ability to encompass the earth thus, with a 'kick' sufficient to be a disturbing factor in reception. At the Bellevue Laboratory the phenomenon of "echo" signals is the subject of a special investigation. We read:

"Signals that race around the world in reverse direction from the transmitting station to the receiving set, or encircle the globe more than once, threaten to become a disruptive influence in short-wave traffic. Messages are garbled, and the only remedy thus far suggested is the use of directional receiving antennas.

"Dr. A. Hoyt Taylor, Superintendent of Radio at the Bellevue Laboratory, compares the effect of 'echo' signals to the results of two operators sending the same message, one being slightly lagged in keying. Echo signals are pronounced in the 20,000-kilocycle band, but this disturbing factor has been observed on various frequencies between 8,700 and 28,000 kilocycles. Dr. Taylor considers the possible disastrous effect of echo signals of such significance as to invite nationwide study. He diagnoses the condition, and tells of the results in the following interview:

"It is amazing that these echo signals, which have been photographically recorded after having passed approximately two and one-half times around the world, are of sufficient intensity to cause very serious interferences.

"Echo signals usually around the world have been observed on various frequencies, but are usually restricted on the lower frequencies to a very limited time of day and time of year. In the band between 12,000 and 22,000 they may be observed over a large number of hours of the day and over a wider interval in the year. The predominant period for observation of echo signals is in the spring or fall, and the best periods of the day are in the morning or late afternoon hours. They require that the great circle route over which they travel shall be more or less in a daylight or twilight zone. Signals which go more than once around the world are still very frequently of at least one-third to one-half the intensity of the direct signal, but are commonly observed over less time periods, and are restricted more to the bands around 20,000 kilocycles.

"When the signal goes more than once around the world it is generally observed as coming from the same direction as the direct signal. The time differences do not correspond to a ground wave, but they correspond to the circumference of the Heaviside layer, which is somewhat larger than the circumference of the earth. When more than one echo is observed the time difference between the first and second echo is apparently almost always 0.137 second.

"No method other than estimates by ear have been used so far by this laboratory for the accurate timing of these signals, but the time intervals are such as to throw the dots and dashes of a message into complete jumble.

"It has recently been determined during a period when any copy at all received on a vertical antenna was absolutely impossible, that perfect copy without echo could be obtained on a directional long, low signal wire antenna. In other words, the highly directional antenna pointed toward the transmitter is not bothered by echoes of the first type, which have gone around the world in the reverse direction. It is only bothered by echoes of the second type, which have gone around the world once plus the distance from the transmitter to receiver in the same sense as the direct signal. Since these later type of echoes naturally require rather special conditions in order not to strike a region where the Heaviside layer is too high for these frequencies, they are not anywhere near as bothersome in interrupting reception, and may, for the present, at least, be neglected, except in so far as they refer to the operation of beam stations, where it is understood they still constitute a somewhat serious menace, owing to the very great signal strength of these stations."

Painted Ceilings

A new idea which may or may not be a success is that of having your ceilings painted or distempered the same color as your walls. With cream colored, yellow, or ivory walls the effect is certainly charming, though with some colors it is apt not only to be oppressive, but to give the room a smaller, box-like appearance.

KEEP THE DOLLAR MOVING

Just a little dollar, on a mission sent, makes a lot of people glad each time the coin is spent. You pay it to the butcher for meat to give you strength, he takes it to the grocer, from whom it goes at length for some pretty bit of cloth or lace his better half to buy, or helps to get her new fall hat to make her rival sigh. The dry goods man sent on the coin to pay his market bill, and though the coin is often spent it stays a dollar still. And every time 'tis spent at home some act of good is done; in booming local industries it's bound to make them run. But if you take the shining coin and break the local chain the chances are that from afar 'twill not return again. If once it passes out of town, the butcher and the baker, the grocer and the drygoods man, the cook and undertaker, the carpenter, garage man, the blacksmith everyone, will lose the chance to touch that coin ere the setting of the sun. Just keep it moving well, and every time it changes hands somebody's goods 'twill sell. That single little dollar has thus a wondrous power to make somebody better a dozen times an hour. It pays the bill and wards off ill and never its power relaxes, to soothe the doctor, buy the coal, and pay for clothes and taxes.
