BAND PLAYED FOR HARRY THAW UNDER THE JAIL WINDOW TO-DAY

They Could Not Stop Demonstration in Coaticook---Thaw Must Remain in Jail Until September 15 ---New Turn in Complex Case.

COATICOOK, Que., Sept. 6.—Harry K. Thaw's lawyers have departed from a wrench into the plans to deport him, and William Travers Jerome having motored quietly away to Norton Mills, Vermont after his arrest yesterday and released on $500 bail on a charge of gambling, Coaticook resumed its normal state to-day.

Jerome's preliminary hearing was set for 9 o'clock this morning before Magistrate McKee, but word went abroad that he found it expedient at this time, and that counsel acting for him would seek to have the hearing road somewhere this morning and this report could not be positively confirmed.

A. C. Hanson, joint crown prosecutor, said he had heard of no such plan and would be in court ready to go on with the case.

evening on a special train was greeted with wild cheering by the crowd around the railway station. Thaw himself thought it was returnable at once and had prepared to go to Montreal on a special train.

For an hour the crowd waited, then the special whirled away, but Thaw was not on it. It had only his victorious lawyers, headed by J. N. Green-shields and N. K. Laflamme. It was they who had obtained the writ and they who had rushed here.

F. Blake Robertson, also who presided as chairman of the special board that found Thaw subject to deportation, has gone to Montreal, leaving Agent Williams in charge. Williams said to-day that they would not attempt to move Thaw until instructions had been received from the Dominion authorities at Ottawa.

Thaw's guards said he slept well last night in spite of the excitement of yesterday. He retired after the Coaticook band had given a concert beneath his barred windows, playing in conclusion, "God save the King," while the throng shouted, "three cheers for Thaw."

prohibition order were secured yesterday, appear in the Court of King's Bench either to-day or Monday and make their appeal for bail. Legal circles here the belief is held that the Thaw case is now safely launched on its long trip to the Privy Council, and that the Thaw family has put up all the money required for its transportation.

E. Blake Robertson, assistant superintendent of the Dominion immigration department, who passed through Montreal on his way home to Ottawa, said:

"Thaw will be deported; he is sure of that."

Mr. Robertson said in all probability the sustaining of the writ would be opposed on the ground that it was either knowingly or unknowingly under false pretences.

Pressed for a statement, N. K. Laflamme of the Thaw counsel said:

"We like Jerome, and there will be no deportation. That's enough for the present."

COATICOOK, Sept. 6.—William Travers Jerome, arrested in Coaticook yesterday on a charge of gambling and held for nearly an hour in a cell, failed to appear before Magistrate James McKee for a preliminary hearing to-day, and the case was put over until Thursday, Sept. 11.

His bail of $500, furnished by Hector Verret, of counsel for the New York state interests, working for the deportation of Harry K. Thaw, and Andre Rousseau, a local hotel proprietor, was not declared forfeited.

Verret, appearing for Jerome, said his client found it impossible to be in court to-day. Magistrate McKee then granted the adjournment, but took occasion to bitterly denounce Jerome, while a crowd of perhaps 500 idlers in the court room applauded.

Jerome meantime was at Norton Mills, Vt., where he went yesterday, by motor, after being admitted to bail. He was considering the next move to be made in the Thaw case, and for this reason did not deem it best to return to Coaticook, where feeling against him has run high.

The arrival of the writ here last evening on a special train was greeted with wild cheering by the crowd around the railway station. Thaw himself thought it was returnable at once and had prepared to go to Montreal on a special train.

These forge men and handlers became expert and it is nothing for all they develop. It is nothing for them to literally play ball with rivets and sometimes, to show how expert they are, the handlers will catch the red-hot bolts with their pincers.

While statistics show that mortality of structural iron workers is high, little research will also reveal that the death rate in all mechanical trades is also high, but the deaths on skyscrapers stand out with such startlingness because they happen under circumstances that come directly into public notice.

A Lively Tussle. A lively tussle took place in front of the Hotel Belmont yesterday afternoon shortly after 5 o'clock. A man by the name of Edward Simons, who resides in West Brantford, who it is alleged had more liquor than he could properly digest was driving a horse and buggy and ran into a dray and fell out of the buggy. Policeman Stewart and Cobden went to his rescue but he started in to fight and things were lively for a short time. Simons was taken to the police station and will be charged with disorderly conduct on Monday.

Will Visit City.

Brantford is soon to be honored by a visit from the telephone City boy who has done honor to himself and to his native city. Rev. Dr. Chalmers McPherson, a prominent figure in the Christian church of the United States, Dr. McPherson will shortly attend a convention of Christian church workers which will be held in Toronto and through his cousin, Mr. S. G. Read, Dr. McPherson will lecture in Park Baptist on Sunday, Oct. 5. He will be accompanied by Mrs. McPherson and they will be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. S. G. Read. This is the first visit Dr. McPherson has paid to the city of his boyhood days since he left here 50 years ago with his mother and sister for Dallas, Texas, his father having passed away. He was educated and practised law at Dallas for several years, afterwards entering the ministry. He has been associated in executive work for the Christian church and is now travelling to raise funds for a new building for the Texas Christian University.

Mrs. Frank Parsons of Winnipeg, and children, who have been visiting Mrs. Parsons' parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Hall, Echo Place, for the past three months, left yesterday for home. Mr. and Mrs. Hall accompanied them as far as Hamilton, and Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Roy of Ottawa, visiting in the city and vicinity, who were at the fair yesterday, saw them safely leave the Queen City.

Y. M. C. A. GETTING READY FOR OPENING

Decision Reached of Great Interest to the Smaller Boys.

A decision, which will be of special interest to the small boy, was reached last night at the meeting of the Y. M. C. A. board in the Association parlors. An additional class of membership was added which allows boys, ages 8 to 12 years to secure membership with limited privileges. A nominal charge of $1 per year will be made. Admitting the boy to the association in his very early years is deemed beneficial to the association and to the community in that he becomes trained in usefulness to the association and by securing this training he is more useful to the community.

One of the items commented upon by the board was the fact that already 15 applications have been received by the secretary for the 61 rooms in the dormitory.

The new association will be dedicated on Sunday, Oct. 5 and during the week following there will be a series of receptions to which everybody in the city will be invited. On the Sunday following the week there will also be special services. The board are sparing no pains to make the opening a memorable one.

Local News

Amateur Ball To-Day.
This afternoon at Agricultural Park the Maple Leafs and Stars will play. The Alerts have stated that they wish to play the winners.

Sending Out Product.
The Ideal Brick and Tile Co. with yards on Stanley St. is now sending out its product, a red brick. There are 17 men being employed and local capital entirely is interested.

Will Conduct Services.
Rev. W. J. Smith, formerly pastor of Colborne street church, now temperance and moral field agent, will conduct services to-morrow at Langford, Salt Springs and Cainsville.

Attended Lawn Social.
County Master J. W. White, accompanied by other members of the local Orange lodge, attended a lawn social which was held by a branch of that order in New Credit last night.

Annual Fall Drill.
Things are beginning to hum at the armories in preparation for the annual fall drill of the Dufferin Rifles, which commences on Monday night, September 15th. The officers are looking forward to a very successful drill this fall, in fact they expect the parades this fall to eclipse any ever held in the history of the regiment.

Held a Fine Rehearsal.
The degree team of Brant Encampment, No. 4, I.O.O.F., held a fine rehearsal in the Oddfellows hall last night under degree instructor Fred W. Hayward in preparation for the trip to Ingersoll, which will take place about the middle of next month where the team will confer the Patriarchal and Golden Rule degrees.

Brantfordites at Large.
Police Magistrate Livingston, of Brantford, was in the city yesterday and among other places visited the boys at the firehall. He was accompanied by the Rev. Mr. Stander, a missionary in Brantford, who should have been contractor for the building of the tower of Babel, for he speaks fluently in no less than nine different tongues.—Guelph Mercury.

Wheels Came Off.
While passing over Victoria bridge late yesterday afternoon one of the hind wheels on one of the T. H. & B. drays came off, letting one corner of the dray down on the bridge. Another dray was called into commission, and the load of merchandise was transferred to the other wagon. The street railway traffic was blocked for about half an hour.

The Closing Band Concert.
The last band concert to be given in the city parks this season was held on Jubilee Terrace last night, the music being furnished by the band of the 25th Brant Dragoons. The attendance was not as large as usual, probably owing to the chilly weather. The band played a fine programme, and the music was much enjoyed by those who were present.

Business Changes Hands.
A deal was put through yesterday whereby Allan Drake, the well known and popular barber, purchased the barber business of William Heasley, which for years has been conducted on George Street. The new proprietor will take charge of the business on Monday morning. Mr. James Rice, who has been with the business for years, will continue with Mr. Drake.

Library Board.
The Public Library Board met last night in the library after two months' holidays. Books of a miscellaneous nature to the number of 160 were ordered purchased. It was also decided to purchase new chairs for the children's room. Accounts to the amount of $600 were ordered paid and other business of a routine nature was transacted. Those present were Messrs. D. J. Carlin, Judge Hardy and Librarian Henwood.

LAWYERS' FEES WILL BE HIGHER

New Act Came Into Force This Week—Procedure Simplified.

By the Judicature Act passed at the last session of the Provincial Parliament the new rules of Procedure are laid down for the legal profession and prepared by the Hon. Mr. Justice Middleton under instructions from the Attorney-General and approved of by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, came into force Sept. 1. These rules are followed in High and County court cases.

In the preparation of a case for the courts there are numerous legal papers to be prepared and dealt with by the lawyer. The particulars which lawyers have given formerly in their bills, to the general public have often looked ridiculous. Apparently there is an increase in fees allowed to the legal profession. However, when one considers that the former tariff of fees was largely based on the tariff of twenty or twenty-five years ago, it is a matter of wonder that the lawyer's fees had not been increased sooner. The cost of living during two decades has doubled.

It is in the fees to be paid the government and County Court Clerks that the change in tariff is more noticeable. In some instances there has been a large increase, and in others not so much and in a few instances a reduction.

There has been an earnest attempt to simplify procedure and harmonize what were apparently conflicting rules.

Attention was drawn to the increase in volume of the 1913 Statutes of Ontario. The writer upon examining the 1913 Statute found that it contained 1558 pages. Comparing the same statute it was found that there is a difference of 413 pages. There was found a difference of 935 pages when the Statute of 1893 or two decades ago was compared with the 1913 Statute. This increase is largely caused by the business of the country necessitating new acts being passed.

MR. BERT INGLIS HAS FINE STORE

Fit Reform and Gents' Furnishings Are New Features Inaugurated.

Mr. Bert Inglis, the Men's Man, has opened up his new line of business at his old stand, 102 Dalhousie St. Mr. Inglis has added to his custom-tailoring business a full line of up-to-date gents' furnishings of every description. After careful consideration and having personally inspected many manufacturing establishments of repute, he has selected the Fit-Reform brand of ready-to-wear clothes and has secured sole agency for this high-class brand in the city. Only the very best quality and latest styles both in the gents' furnishing and ready-to-wear departments will be carried by Mr. Inglis.

Mr. Inglis will however, continue to carry on his well established trade of custom tailoring. This department will be under his own careful supervision. His premises on Dalhousie St. have undergone extensive alterations and he has now one of the best, brightest and most well lighted business places in the country. Expert mechanics were engaged to do the necessary alterations and repairing work and his new store, which has been completely overhauled is a credit to the city. The store has been installed in dark quarter cut oak with trimmings to match. The ceiling is metallic and has been painted white, while the walls are covered with handsome new paper which greatly adds to the appearance of the store.

On entering the store on the left hand side the Gents' Furnishing Department is situated. There is an excellent salesmen show cases stand. Long rows of shelving contain the latest and most up-to-date merchandise of this class. This department will be in charge of a well known and competent manager, Mr. Eddie Bould of this city, who's reputation as an expert in this line is well known throughout the city.

The Fit Reform Department will be left in the hands of Mr. Herb Sage, who is fully qualified to take charge of this end of the business, which Mr. Inglis has branched into. Mr. Inglis will still continue his made to measure business to which he will give his personal attention.

Becomes Usher.
Dolwasent (Waterfall), an Indian girl of the Mohave Tribe, who was in last Summer's outdoor performance of Hiawatha, was installed as an usher at the opening of the Hippodrome last Saturday night. She is the only daughter of a chief who lives on the Six Nations Indian reservation near Brantford, Ontario, is twenty-three years old, and has been making her living in New York for the past two years as manicurist and hair-dresser.—Dramatic Mirror.

Mr. Walter Livermore, accompanied by Miss Grace Livermore and Miss Nita Edmonson arrived home on Sunday night on the R.M.S. Royal Edward from a very enjoyable three months' trip to England.

TITLED WOMEN ASK ABOUT SUFFRAGE

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Sept. 6.—Asking for the results attained by equal suffrage in California, a number of titled women of England, had written to Bishop William Hall Moreland, of the Sacramento diocese, of the Episcopal church. The letters requesting the information, were accompanied by a note of approval from the archbishop of Canterbury.

Among the noble women who made the request are: The Duchess of Bedford, the Marchioness of Salisbury, Countess Waldegrave, Lady Balfour, Lady Willoughby de Broke, the Countess of Shelborne, Miss Violet Markham, Lord Haldane's daughter and Miss Balfour.

In his reply Bishop Moreland wrote that suffrage has brought about a better legislature.

Too much charity is nearsighted.

NEW MANAGERS IN CANADIAN LEAGUE

Several Clubs Will Make Change--'Shag' and 'Rube' Sure of Their Jobs.

(Free Press)

Many new managers will likely be seen in the Canadian League next season. In fact, it looks as if two only were sure of their jobs--Shaughnessy, of Ottawa, and Deneau, of the Tecumseh.

It is certain that Brantford and Berlin will have new leaders. Berlin has released White outright, and Tom Nelson is anxious to get a good man to replace him.

It is felt that with the team Ort had and the lead secured early in the season the team should have won the pennant easily.

"Knotty" Lee is having his troubles in Hamilton. He is in wrong with a large section of fans, and there is friction between the owners.

In Peterboro, Davy Rowan has made good showing after a bad start, and he may be retained for another year.

It looks very much as if 1913 was a hard year on managers. Several perfectly good reputations went to the discard.

There is a possibility also that boundaries of the league may be changed next year.

Manager Shaughnessy has a plan of his own that he will make known to the league managers at their next meeting.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—Trouble is brewing in the ranks of big league players and may be brought to a head by a general strike against the baseball magnates.

Practically every player in the two big leagues is a member. Efforts are already under way to line up the American and International League stars.

When the organization once gets a grip on these players it is feared they will have a toehold on the magnates and threaten a strike.

FEW BOXERS COME OF YANKEE STOCK

Irish Descent Predominates Among Champions — McCarty Was Irish

CHICAGO, Sept. 6.—Although it is more than a century since the United States proclaimed its independence by shaking the yoke of John Bull, less than a number of pugilistic stars who claim this "their own, their native land," through being descendants of parents in this country, has been extremely small as compared to those of foreign parentage.

That conflict of 1776 in which the Sam won the decision over the Britons, resulting in the establishment of a new republic, opened the way for the foreigners to invade this country, which naturally forced it to take on a cosmopolitan aspect. Not only have the foreign born taken an active part in all lines of endeavor but they became of such importance in athletics, and particularly in pugilism, that their recognition was made was far from a Jeffries, but he managed to hang to the title for two years, when he cast aside the color line and met Jack Johnson, the negro. The result was the defeat of Barne and the installation of the first negro heavyweight champion in the time of glove fighting.

The present time finds the world without a heavyweight champion, for Johnson has made an exile of himself, fleeing to another country, and never again will he be given a chance to fight for the title he once won. When the negro was thrown out of consideration Tom McCarty, the Los Angeles promoter, staged a series of elimination bouts between white boxers to establish a new white heavyweight champion. The results of these bouts found Luther McCarty, a Springfield, Mo., cowboy, "the best, and he was called champion and recognized as such. It so happens that McCarty continued the role of Irish-American champion, for although born in Lincoln, Neb., his parents were Irish.

McCarty undoubtedly would be the champion to-day but for one of the most unusual happenings in the prize ring. Less than one round of fighting in a ring at Calgary against Arthur Pelkey, never considered of any importance in the sport, caused the death of McCarty. That finish came to McCarty without punishment and left the world without a champion last June 24.

This situation forced through the opening up of a free country, is not surprising, but when it is considered that the sport of pugilism always has had a firmer foothold in the United States than any other country, and more so since glove fighting came into vogue, it must be admitted that the foreign element has taken the palm.

SULLIVAN FIRST

It is something more than two decades ago that John L. Sullivan became the first recognized heavyweight champion with the mitts, and incidentally it was during Sullivan's time that the change from bare knuckle fighting to glove milling was made. John L. was equally as successful as a bare knuckle fighter as he later became with the gloves, the dope showing that to the satisfaction of the most fastidious enthusiast of the milling game.

The installation of John L. as heavyweight title holder gave the world an Irishman for its first real glove champion. Sullivan was born in Boston, but came of Irish parentage, and no one even to-day can see anything but Irish in Sullivan. From the time Sullivan was champion to the present time, when the heavyweight division really is without a champion, only one real American fighter has had the honor of occupying the throne, although an American

DAUGHTERS OF GOVERNORS HOLD CONVENTION DEVOTED TO SLIT SKIRT

It has just come to light that while the House of Governors was holding its fourth annual conference at Colorado Springs, Col., four daughters of the Governor—Miss Ammons, daughter of Governor Ammons, of Colorado; Miss Aileen and Miss Mona Dunne, daughters of Governor Dunne, of Illinois, and Miss Olivia O'Neill, daughter of Governor O'Neill, of Alabama—held a convention of their own and discussed the slit skirt, the peek-a-boo waist, the diaphanous gown and the tango, turkey trot and the bunny hug dances.

WILY KING EDWARD I.

Foiled the Rebellious Welsh With the Prince of Wales.

After a lifelong struggle with the Welsh, Edward I. of England sought to ascertain the cause of these constant rebellions and was informed that they would never be content until they had a prince of their own.

The wily old monarch asked them if a prince born in Wales who could not speak a word of English would be satisfactory, and they readily assented with great enthusiasm, presuming that the king meant one of their own flesh and blood.

His queen, about to give birth to a child, was hurried to the famous Caernarvon castle, where 600 years ago Edward III, the first prince of Wales, was born. Thereupon King Edward, carrying the newly born babe on the ramparts of the castle, announced to the multitude: "Here is your prince, born in your own country, who knows no word of English and who, I promise you, shall be reared by a Welsh mother and shall learn your language. Accept you him as your prince?"

JEFF OF YANKEE STOCK

Looking into the dope on Jeffries shows that his parents were of good old American stock, the kind which drove the Indians to the westward from Pennsylvania. The fighter's father, a farmer, was a Britisher, an evangelist, a political member was born in Pennsylvania, and the fighter himself came into being at Carroll, Pa., when his father was a travelling minister. Later they landed in California, and Los Angeles has been the home of the Jeffries ever since.

Just how good Jeffries was in the ring is amply illustrated by the fact that he was forced to retire from pugilism when he was in the height of form. There was no one who possessed sufficient class to give him a battle, and without opponents there no longer was any use for Jeff to remain in the game. So he retired. For nearly six years he never put on a glove. Then he came out of retirement, lured by a promising harvest of coin, to meet Jack Johnson, the negro champion, and a knockout defeat was the reward that went with the cash.

JEFF TOSSES GLOVES ASIDE

When Jeffries tossed away the gloves he, like to spend his time on his alfalfa farm, it was up to some of the "lesser lights" to go out after the title left vacant by his retirement. The most promising of these lesser lights were Marvin Hart, of Louisville, and Jack Root of Chicago, and they were matched for the title bout in a Nevada ring, with Jeffries for referee. The winner turned up in Hart, who happens to be an Irish American, born in Jefferson County, Ky.

Hart did not long hold his honors, for along came Tommy Burns, in 1906 to take them away from him. Burns, or Noah Brusso, for that was his real name, was a Canadian, born in Hanover, Canada. The Canadian

HEAT AND THE BODY.

We Are Able to Drink Liquids That

The human body can stand far greater heat if it be dry than if it be wet, and, strangely enough, it can stand far hotter liquids inside than out.

For example, the average tea drinker sips water at 122 degrees F., sometimes as high as 145 degrees. But he cannot bear his hands in water at 120 degrees or his feet in water higher than 112 degrees. Few people can stand a bath in water at 100 degrees.

In parts of central Australia men live in an average temperature of 115 degrees F. in the shade and 140 degrees in the sun, while 151 degrees has been registered. In the Persian gulf the thermometers on ships vary between 122 degrees and 140. A recent explorer in the Himalayas reports that he found at 9 a. m. in December and at more than 10,000 feet altitude a temperature of 131 degrees F.

Drs. Bleyden and Chantrey, two English scientists, desiring to ascertain how high a temperature the human Ruskin as a Patient.

Matlock, so dear to John Ruskin, brought him within sight of death in 1871. It was a wretched, wet summer; he went out in a miserable morning to paint, took a chill, and aggravated the internal indammation that followed to a dangerous degree by refusing to take the doctor's medicines. The sequel is delightful. Irritated at the doctor's remonstrances, he demanded that was the worst thing he could take. Beef, they told him, and beef he insisted upon having at once. It was late at night and Matlock was scouring for some time before beef could be found. Then, says Mrs. Arthur Severn, he "enjoyed his late supper thoroughly, and, though we all waited anxiously till the morning for the result, it had done him no harm. And when he was told pepper was bad for him he dredged it freely over his food in defiance."

The Least He Might Do.

Eddie Plank Leads League In Number of Shut-Out Games

By MacLean Kennedy.

Edward Plank is the "Boss" of the Whiteash Brigade; the expert wielder of the brush. He is the chap who has distributed goose eggs with a free and open hand, exceeding all records in this line in the history of the American League. By placing six shut-out games to his credit this season, Plank has surpassed the mark set by "Iron Man" Walsh, of the White Sox. Mr. Plank has 59 of these games to his credit—all 9 inning games or better.

The wonderful left-hander framed up his first no-run game in 1901 against the Milwaukee club, then a member of the American league. And every season since the expert exponent of the cross-fire delivery has placed a goodly number of these games on record.

Ed Walsh, the former holder of the honor, lost the cunning or otherwise out of his arm before the veteran Plank did, so he put him out of the running. No doubt if the "Iron Man" could have held this season he would still be king of the "Kalsomine Brigade."

White Has Good Mark.

Dr. White is another gentleman who proved a clever distributor of goose eggs, the dentist has had the extreme pleasure of applying the brush 53 times. Other hurlers who have proved handy in holding the opposition runless in Ban Johnson's circuit are or were "Cy" Young, the much lamented "Addie" Joss, the never-to-be-forgotten G. Edward "Rube" Waddell, and the latest aspirant for honors in that line is W. Johnson, the holder of many records.

Plank is liable to add a few more scalps to that many that now dangle from his belt before the season closes.

But the lead of six games will hold him as champion for another year at least. Here is the list of those who made a record of 40 or more runless games in the American league, since its organization:

Name	No. Years	No. Shut-Out Games
Plank	13	59
Walsh	9	54
White	13	53
Joss	10	44
Young	11	44
Waddell	10	40
Johnson	7	40

JOHNSON, FLAT BROKE MUST FIGHT LANGFORD

Takes Bit in His Teeth When He Agrees to Meet Man Who Has Hounded Him For Chance Ever Since the Day He Won Title in Reno, Nev.

Look for another black man to be established heavyweight champion of the world as sure as Johnson and Langford meet in Paris, December 20, the Boston "tar baby" will whip Jack, and instead of lifting the gauntlet out of chaos it will be thrust deeper into the mire.

It has reached a pretty state of affairs when two negroes fight for a crown that rightfully belongs on the brow of a white. But since Jeffries lowered his colors to Johnson in that disgraceful fight against "Rube" Smith July 4, 1910, the division has reeked with rottenness that is nauseating.

If there is anything on earth that will keep Jack and Sam apart until some white man can flick Johnson first it ought to be done. It has been more than unable to hand the dishonored champion, strutting through life since he lifted the crown, without adding insult to injury by setting the stage for another of his color to succeed to the throne, which he will do if something isn't done to prevent him.

Forced Upon Johnson

The white populace has forced Johnson into this undertaking. Jack is ripe now for some palatable slaughter him, or it could be held off for a time and make the defeat certain. But the crusade against Jack has reached over practically the entire English-speaking world, and a mixed match involving the Negro is impossible.

Johnson is in crying need of money. That has been shown for some time and he has descended to a position where more must be had. Were Johnson fixed as he was when matched with Flynn a 30-mile team couldn't get him into the same ring with Langford. But with the wolf at the door and no chance of the slightest sort to invade promoters in putting him on with a white man of fair or lowly caliber, the only course open to Johnson is the proffered match in Paris with Langford. Conditions in the heavyweight division will not be bettered in the slightest. While Langford is a decent fellow as far as the average slugger goes—that is compared to Johnson—his color is against him and the same feeling that was shown towards Johnson, Sam will inherit with the title.

It would seem that promoters, whether it be in America or France, had their fill of Johnson. By his methods of living, the subsequent sentence to prison and the resultant escape from this country he has forfeited all right to respect even of a prize-ring standard. He is deserving of nothing a white man can offer, yet in France they stand ready to present him with more cash and another chance to continue his career of corruption.

While the world is intent upon having Johnson whipped, why not let a man of the opposite color have first opportunity? In his present state of efficiency and the position of deterioration of Johnson "Gumbo" Smith has more than an even chance to restore the crown where it belongs.

Smith Still Rough.

Smith isn't a great fighter at this period of his career, but he has youth, strength, gameness, and a sentence to prison to add him, while Johnson at 35 is past the station in life when he can be expected to possess agility, stamina and keenness. Strict adherence to the winding path has sapped his vitality, drooped his shoulders and in other ways has made him a mark for a youthful slugger of Smith's accomplishments.

If the stage is set for Johnson's departure a white man should be allowed to star in the setting. Smith is the logical one now. Let Langford beat him to it, though, and the return of the mantle to the Caucasian race is very remote.

PREMIER'S WIFE SICK TO DEATH OF HER PLACE

Mrs. Asquith Will be Glad When Husband Retires From Politics.

(By Staff Correspondent.)
LONDON, Sept. 6.—I am sick to death of it, said Mrs. Asquith, the premier's wife, to a friend at Goodwood. She was referring to her duties as the wife of the prime minister. "You never can be yourself," she volunteered, "for you must be forever, so to speak, standing on your hind legs. Her friends who know 'Margot' best, predicted this for her. 'She'll be so heartily sick of it all, she'll wish herself at the bottom of the sea,' they said when she went to Downing street.

When the day comes for the prime minister to throw over his office—and people think it is near enough—Mr. Asquith is wondering what his wife will do in honor of the event. That she will do something to thrill everybody agrees. She has been practicing the tango "on the quiet" and by all accounts, makes a very good hand at it. She has also been to interview her dear friends, the Paris dressmakers, about early winter fashions. Her tastes in things sartorial are choice and highly expensive, but smart women don't care for them, as for one thing, they are often eccentric.

PURPLE POWDER IS TRAP FOR CRIMINAL

Youth Who Demands $150,000 from Lord Rothschild Caught in London.

LONDON, Sept. 6.—Charged with sending a threatening letter demanding information as to the whereabouts of Lord Rothschild, $150,000, Heinrich Kremerskothen, a German, 20 years old, was in Bow street committed for trial.

The letter was sent by mail June 27. The committee of the — takes the liberty to beg you for the sum of $150,000 for their funds. Four days after receiving this letter you have to advertise the following advertisement in the Times:

"Golden ring with diamond lost near Covent Garden opera. Twenty-five dollars reward, etc."
"That will show us your consent."
The letter added that on July 10 the money was to be placed in a hole in the wall of a room in Appenrod's restaurant in Coventry street. If the committee's orders were not obeyed, or if the police were informed, the committee had "concluded" Lord Rothschild's death. The letter also contained a threat to kill Miss Alice Rothschild in the event of Lord Rothschild proving "dangerous in future for our company."

Lord Rothschild handed the letter to his attorneys. The advertisement was inserted with the addition, "Conditions must be made more favorable." More letters followed, and eventually the sum demanded was fixed at $25,000. On August 1 the police went to Appenrod's restaurant, having previously made an arrangement by which an electrical apparatus fixed in the room where the hole was communicated with a bell in the restaurant. A packet containing three "Bank Engraving" notes (sometimes found in the hands of the swindlers) was placed in the hole indicated by the accused together with some powder which stained the hands of any person who touched it. The more one tried to wash it off the more it stained.

The packet was so placed that directly it was abstracted a bell was rung. At 3 p. m. the accused went to the restaurant and some powder, some food, he went to the room where the hole was. Immediately afterwards the bell rang and as the accused was leaving he was arrested.

LONDON IN GRIP OF TEA DRINKING HABIT
Between 4 and 6 P.M.—It is the Only Fashionable Beverage.

LONDON, Sept. 6.—Nowhere is the "tea habit" quite so universal as in London. English people have always had the habit, but it was not until the last decade that they indulged therein in the sight of all men. Society women used to ask each other to come to tea in their houses, and a few men, a very few men, drink tea in the afternoon at their clubs.

Every prinary shop and bakery is crowded nowadays at 4.30 with ladies drinking tea and eating cakes; the restaurants look to the tea hour as one of their great sources of income; there are tea pavilions in all the parks and public gardens and in all the streets which are the haunts of men who live by brain work, the tea shops have sprung up like mushrooms and are driving the bars out of existence.

In the clubs the man who drinks a whiskey and soda in the afternoon is the exception; the man who drinks tea is the rule.

HOW PREMIER ASQUITH ELUDES SUFFRAGETTES

Takes House in Far North for Vacation Guarded by De- tectives.

LONDON, Sept. 6.—Premier Asquith is not a man to be easily frightened, but he is very tired and desires above things to be free from suffragette outrages. For this reason he has taken a house for his vacation on a rather bleak spot in the remote north of Scotland, near the sea and some golf links, where he is guarded by detectives.

Fewer Vags in London.

WOMEN SECURE BIG RIFLE RANGE FOR GUN PRACTICE

The Suffragettes in England Keep the Place a Close Secret.

LONDON, Sept. 6.—A rifle range is the latest acquisition of the militant suffragettes. Its location is kept a close secret, but an official of the Woman's Social and Political union has admitted its existence and stated that the range was in use every day by members of the organization, who are rapidly becoming expert shots.

This week's issue of the Suffragette, the official organ of the W. S. P. U., contains an advertisement ofering to teach women to shoot straight. The official who gave the information in regard to the rifle range, said that the militants were preparing for the next repressive step of the government, which they fear will be the use of the recently enacted Mental Deficiency bill to confine the suffragette leaders in asylums where they will not be amenable to the usual court procedure. If any of the leaders are confined under the new act, the official in question declared the resolution not to endanger human life would be rescinded and the skill acquired at the butts would be brought into play.

McKenna in Peril
Home Secretary Reginald McKenna, the best hated of the cabinet ministers, because his department has been responsible for the forcible feeding of suffragettes and the enforcement of the Cat and Mouse act, is living in a house almost surrounded by homes of militant agitators. Mrs. Emily G. Marshall, whose record for acts of violence is well known, recently moved into a house adjacent to the town residence of Mr. McKenna, and ever since the home secretary has had to put up with the noise of her over his windows. Mr. Marshall does not deny that this precaution is altogether useless, for she declares that the home secretary's windows are a constant temptation to her.

Mr. Marshall is the wife of the attorney for the Women's Social and Political Union, and the possessor of a long window smashing record. She now has as neighbors two other militants, who this week leased homes within a few steps of the McKenna home, which is in Westminster, near the royal parliament. This influx of militants into the neighborhood, hitherto almost entirely given over to the homes of cabinet ministers and members of parliament, has caused some alarm among the politicians whose opposition to woman's suffrage has brought them threats of vengeance. Mrs. Marshall has already served time for breaking windows in the homes of cabinet officers, and she was arrested a few weeks ago for assaulting a Scotland Yard detective. Mr. McKenna does not regard her a desirable neighbor, nor does he care about her friends. She was asked for the names of her comrades who have taken the two houses so close to her own, but declined the information. She did, however, express the fervent hope that their presence would not add to the comfort of the home secretary.

There was wandering in the streets of Toronto lately a homeless man, who at one time held a splendid position, but drink was his downfall. To-day his wife, a cultured woman, works out by the day, endeavoring to support herself and little family. Then bring your influence to bear on him and bring him to the Neal Institute for treatment, drunk or sober, and we will undertake to remove the awful appetite for strong drink and deliver him to you a new man.

Here is an opportunity for REFORMATION SOCIETIES for INEBRIATES or any institution for the reformation of the drunkard, to test our ability to change the hard drinker into a new man, physically and mentally, in THREE DAYS' treatment.

We invite these Societies or any institution interested in the poor drunkard and the problem of dealing with him, to send us for treatment any victim of the drink habit, it makes no difference how much enslaved, and we guarantee to effect a cure in each and every case. Can you spend your money to better advantage or in a way that will bring in greater returns than in redeeming these victims of strong drink and giving back to their families kind fathers, brothers, husbands, and to the country most desirable citizens?

Education Reform Is Coming English Chaos Will Be Ended

The Education Reform Is Coming English Chaos Will Be Ended

LONDON, Sept. 6.—"The defects of our so-called national system of education are two: It is not national and it is not a system."
This scathing indictment of educational conditions in England was drawn not by an agitator or "reformer" but by J. A. Pease, education minister in Asquith's cabinet in introducing in the house of commons a small bill, which he promises is only a forerunner of a gigantic scheme of education reform to be introduced next year and which real reformers hope will sweep away the present educational chaos and replace it with a scheme, the keynote of which, in the words of a London paper, will be "every man an M.A." Of course, no one supposes seriously that every man under the new system will become an M.A., but if the scheme proves to be anything like what the education minister promises, every man will have the chance to become an M. A. if he likes, with little or no expense to himself or his parents.

The Education system of England—which J. A. Pease says is not a system at all—is much like a Chinese puzzle. No one but the experts, and few of them, know where it begins and where it ends. As a matter of fact, there are half a dozen separate systems and they all overlap one another. All are more or less insufficient and wasteful on account of this overlapping and lack of co-ordination and most of them are supported more or less by public money.

Roughly speaking, the schools of England are divided into the following classes:
Elementary schools, including the "voluntary" and "provided" schools.
Private schools of all grades.
Secondary schools, including the great "public schools."

Above these, of course, are the universities, training colleges and various professional schools.
As far as the great majority of the youth of England are concerned, however, only the elementary schools exist. The law says that every child must begin attending school at five years of age and continue until 14; and this law is fairly well enforced. The elementary schools of England and Wales—the schools in Ireland and Scotland are quite different and are not included in the scope of this article—contained 6,073,024 children in the year 1911-12. These elementary schools are divided into two classes, "provided" and "voluntary," and this division has been the cause of much of the backwardness in England education.

In 1911-12 the public expenditure on education in England and Wales was nearly $150,000,000. Of this about half was raised by local taxation and the other half consisted of imperial grants. It is admitted that the local taxpayer cannot stand much increase of his burden and that much increase will have to come from the national funds. Since 1902 the local expenditure has increased by about $17,500,000 and the national grants by only $5,000,000. In future, said Pease, these rates of increase must be reversed.

Of course, the new scheme is very much in the air as yet, and there is no doubt that the education minister seized the opportunity to foreshadow it so long in advance of its actual introduction that he might have the benefit of suggestions and criticism. One of the probable features will be the raising of the school age to 16 and this has already roused a storm of protest from the British workingman who has never been able to understand why he should be deprived of the money earning services of able-bodied boys of 10 or 12 and compelled to allow them to waste their time on what he considered such a useless thing as education. Criticism from another source is aroused by the proposal to extend the feeding of school children to Sundays and holiday time and to make it compulsory on the education authorities instead of merely permissive, as at present.

Other features of the legislation to be proposed next year said the minister for education, are that the government should take power to make a comprehensive survey of educational institutions of every kind; that an obligation should be imposed on local authorities to provide intermediate education for all who desired it; and that there should be co-ordination of such provision between authorities to prevent overlapping and waste. The government proposals will impose on the council of every county borough the duty of providing for the development and maintenance of a complete progressive system of education in their area.

It will further impose on them the duty of affording the children during the latter years of their elementary school life opportunities of obtaining instruction of a more advanced character.

One omission in this scheme which has aroused much criticism is the provision of better pay for teachers. The teachers in the elementary schools now are miserably underpaid and this is being reflected in the increasing difficulty of obtaining recruits.

A GREAT BELIEVER IN "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

Well Known Ontario Merchant Has Faith Because "Fruit-a-tives" Cured Him

MR. JAMES DOBSON.

It was a long time, which Meredith had not heard before. When they started to announce their arrival it was suddenly hushed, and presently Durново came forward to greet them.

"No need to introduce you two," he said, looking from one to the other.

"No, after our mistake we discovered each other's identity in the forest," answered Meredith.

Durnovo smiled, but there was something behind the smile. He did not seem to approve of their meeting without his introduction.

The three men walked up toward the house together. It was a fair sized house, with a heavy thatched roof that overhung the walls like the crown of a mushroom.

"These," said the latter, when they were seated and sipping with their little dinky arms round his legs.

"They are the jolliest little souls imaginable," continued Jack Meredith.

"There," he said to them when they had reached the door, "run away to you another—very fine ride—no more tonight! I'm weary, you understand, awfully."

"A weary, awe-e-eary!" repeated the little things, standing before him in infantile nude rotundity, looking up with bright eyes.

"A weary, that is it. Good night, Spaminious; good night, Xantippe; give 'em good good, most stout Nestorius!"

He stooped and gravely shook hands with each one in turn, and after forcing a like ceremonial upon Guy Oscar, they reluctantly withdrew.

"They have not joined us, I suppose," said Oscar as he followed his companion into the house.

"Not yet. They live in this place, Nestorius. I understand, takes care of his mother, who in her turn takes care of this house. He is one and a half."

Guy Oscar seemed to have inherited the mind inquisitive from his learned father. He asked another question later on.

"Who is that woman?" he said during dinner, with a little nod toward the doorway through which the object of his curiosity had passed with some plates.

"That is the mother of the stout Nestorius," answered Jack—"Durnovo's housekeeper."

He spoke quietly, looking straight in front of him, and Joseph, who was drawing a cork at the back of the room, was watching his face.

There was a little pause, during which Durnovo drank slowly. Then Guy Oscar spoke again.

"If she cooked the dinner," he said, "she knows her business."

"Yes," answered Durnovo, "she is a good cook, if she is nothing else."

It did not sound as if further inquiries would be welcome, and so the subject was dropped with a silent tribute to the culinary powers of Durnovo's housekeeper at the Mastia station.

The woman had only appeared for a moment, bringing in some dishes for Joseph—a tall, stately woman, with great dark eyes, in which the patience of motherhood had succeeded to the soft fire of West Indian love and youth.

She had the graceful slow carriage of the creole, although her skin was darker than that of those dangerous sirens.

"They call me," she had said to Jack Meredith in her soft, unadorned English, a fortnight earlier, "they call me Marie."

The children he had named after his own fantasy, and when she had once seen him with them there was a notable change in her manner. Her eyes rested on him with a sort of wondering attention, and when she cooked his meals or touched anything that was his there was something in her attitude that denoted special care.

Joseph called her "Mama!" with a sort of friendliness in his voice which never rose to badinage nor descended to familiarity.

The man who had found the siminicine was eager, restless, full of suspicion. To the others the scheme obvious presented itself in a different light. Jack Meredith was dilettante, light hearted and unsatisfactory. It was impossible to arouse any enthusiasm in him, to make him take it seriously.

Guy Oscar was gravely indifferent. He wanted to get rid of a certain space of time, and the African forest, containing as it did the only excitement that his large heart knew, was as good a place as any. The siminicine was, in his mind, relegated to a distant place behind streaks of sport and adventure such as his soul loved.

"You men," said Durnovo eagerly, "don't seem to take the thing seriously."

"I," answered Meredith, "intend, at all events, to take the profits very seriously. When you begin to cough

DOCTOR SAID HE HAD DIABETES

That's Why Mr. David Heon of Nicolet Co. Quebec, Is Recommending the Great Kidney Remedy To His Neighbors.

ST. WENCESLAS, Nicolet Co. Que., Sept. 1.—(Special.)—"I started to take Dodd's Kidney Pills because the doctor told me I was threatened with diabetes. After taking ten boxes I was again examined by a doctor and he told me that all trace of diabetes had disappeared."

This is the statement of M. David Heon, well-known and highly respected here, and he is only one of many in this neighborhood who have found a new lease of life in the great Canadian Kidney Remedy.

It is cures such as this that have given Dodd's Kidney Pills their reputation. They are now known from the Atlantic to the Pacific as the remedy that never fails to cure kidney disease, no matter where or in what form it is found.

Dodd's Kidney Pills are no cure-all. They simply cure diseased kidneys. The reason they cure backache, dropsy, rheumatism, neuralgia, diabetes, urinary troubles and Bright's disease is that all of these are either diseases of the kidneys or are caused by diseased kidneys failing to do their work.

in, J. Meredith will be at the above address, and trusts by a careful attention to business to merit a continuance of your kind patronage.

Durnovo laughed somewhat nervously. Oscar did not seem to hear.

"It is all very well for you," said the half caste in a lower voice. "You have not so much at stake. It is likely that the happiness of my whole life depends upon this venture."

A curious smile passed across Jack Meredith's face. Without turning his head he glanced sideways into Durnovo's face through the gloom. But he said nothing, and it was Oscar who broke the silence by saying simply:

"The same may possibly apply to me."

There was a little pause, during which he lighted his pipe.

It did not seem to occur to any of them that the only person whose individuality was still veiled happened to be Jack Meredith. He alone had said nothing. He it was who spoke first, after a proper period of silence.

"It seems to me," he said, "that we have all the technicalities arranged now. So far as the working of the expedition is concerned we know our places, and the difficulties will be met as they present themselves. But there is one thing which I think we should put in order now. I have been thinking about it while I have been waiting here alone."

The glow of Victor Durnovo's cigar died away as if in his attention he was forgetting to smoke; but he said nothing.

"It seems to me," Jack went on, "that before we leave here we should draw up and sign a sort of deed of partnership. Of course we trust each other perfectly—there is no question of that. But if we should be obliged to separate, it is better to have some earlier philosopher said before me, and one never knows what may happen. I have drawn up a paper to triplicate. If you have a match I will read it to you."

Oscar produced a match and, striking it on his boot, sheltered it with the hollow of his hand while Jack read.

"We, the undersigned, hereby enter into partnership to search for and sell to our mutual profit the herb known as siminicine, the profits to be divided into three equal portions, after the deduction of one-third thereof, to be handed to the servant, Joseph Atkinson. Any further expenses that may be incurred to be borne in the same proportion as the original expense of fitting out the expedition—namely, two-fifths to be paid to the cultivator, Guy Oscar, two-fifths by John Meredith, one-fifth by Victor Durnovo.

"The sum of 500 per month to be paid to Victor Durnovo, where-with he may pay the special medical attention of his estate and headquarters at Nicolet, Quebec, by siminicine, and such corn and vegetables as may be required for the sustenance of the expedition; these men to act as porters until the plateau be reached.

"The opinion of two of the three leaders present to be accepted unconditionally in all questions where controversy may arise. In case of death of any of us, the executor of the dead partner of partners such moneys as shall belong to him or them."

"At this juncture there was a little pause while Guy Oscar lighted a second match.

"And," continued Jack, "we hereby undertake severally on oath to hold the secret of the whereabouts of the siminicine a strict secret, which secret may not be revealed by any one of us, to whomsoever it may be, without the sanction, in writing, of the other two partners."

"I am rather pleased with that literary production. It is forcible and yet devoid of violence. I feel that in the commerce of the century has lost an ornament. Moreover, I am ready to swear to the terms of the agreement."

There was a little pause. Guy Oscar took his pipe from his mouth, and while he knocked the ashes out against the leg of his chair he murmured, "I swear to hold to that agreement."

Victor Durnovo took off his hat with a sweep and a bounding leap he leaped toward the stars, he said, "I swear to hold to that agreement. If I fail, may God strike me dead!"

THE WONDERFUL DUNNE "DART" * LONDON ART SEASON CLOSED

Few Will Be Able to See Royal Wedding in October

Guests at Marriage of Prince Arthur and Duchess of Fife Will Be Limited to Three Hundred Persons in the Chapel Royal, St. James.

CHURCH LACKS ACCOMMODATION FOR MORE

(Special Dispatch.) LONDON, Sept. 6. THE work of converting the Chapel Royal, St. James', for the royal wedding on October 15 is nearly completed. A careful calculation shows that it will not be possible to accommodate more than three hundred persons in the chapel itself, and, indeed, 200 is regarded as the most convenient number for which to make provision.

This means that it will not be possible for any large number of the general circle at court to be invited. It is estimated that there will be at least fifty members of the royal family and representatives of foreign courts at the wedding, and many of these will be attended by at least two officials each.

There are then the many intimate personal friends of the bride and groom to be provided for, as well as the official and diplomatic circles. Each of the members of these will be entitled to bring one lady with him.

maiden name of the Marchioness was Rowley. She was the daughter of a major in the Bombay army. She first married the Hon. J. C. W. Vivian, M. P., from whom she was divorced. Then, in 1872, she married the fifth Marquis of Waterford at the registry office of St. George's, Hanover square.

For the present holder of the title it is stated that Georgina Tooth, a single woman and a cook in the service of Mrs. Vivian, became a mother in Holborn Union on January 25, 1872, and died there. Mrs. Vivian, it is alleged, caused the child, John Tooth, to be removed to the Franciscan Convent, Notting Hill, for a few days, after which he was placed by her maid in the care of a Mrs. Jones, whose address is not known.

Further, it is said that this child was afterward handed over to the care of Mrs. Duncan and is the present claimant. In 1874 the present Marquis married Lady Blanche, daughter of the eighth Duke of Beaufort, by whom there were three children. His son, Henry, who succeeded him, was drowned about two years ago. The latter's son, John Charles, born of the youngest daughter of the fifth Marquis of Lansdowne, is twelve years of age and is the present holder of the title.

The Mrs. Duncan referred to is dead, but her daughter is alive and remembers Tooth being brought to her mother as a puny infant. For sixteen years the fifth Marquis, so it is said, paid £25 a month for his maintenance. The child was taken every month to the Marquis' house, when the money was paid to Mrs. Duncan or her daughter. The last instalment was when Tooth was sixteen years of age, when an allowance for three months was paid in advance, with a notification that the boy was now old enough to work for his living.

An Aeroplane That Controls Itself $5,000,000 Spent for Old Masters the Last Season

Most Notable Series of Sales in Several Years and Large Prices Were Paid for Canvases, a Gainsborough Heading the List at $100,800.

PICTURES PRESENTED TO NATIONAL GALLERY

(Special Dispatch.) LONDON, Sept. 6.

THE picture sale season which has just closed will stand out as one of the most notable for many years past, and it is probable that quite $5,000,000 was spent in auction rooms on art collections that had to be dispersed for various reasons.

In a period of two months sixty-six canvases found new owners at sums above $6,500, while fifteen exceeded the $25,000 total. Christie's books for one afternoon showed picture sales amounting to $600,000, and the season's catalogues would form the nucleus of an art collector's library.

One of the most important sales of the season was Sir Lionel Phillips' collection, which was offered to public competition because the owner decided to reside permanently in South Africa. "The Market Cart," a famous Gainsborough, sold for $100,800. It is one of the most striking pictures that came into the market during the season.

On a road in the foreground is a large wagon drawn by three horses, and there are three women and two children seated in it. The driver is leaning over the side to assist a girl to climb up. There are sheep in a valley in the distance—a delightful country scene, depicted with a master's genius.

not only in themselves, but in relation to the existing resources of the national collections. Three of the seven painters have been hitherto represented in the National Gallery by only one or two pictures each, and one, Peter Mignard, was entirely unrepresented, both in Trafalgar Square and at Hertford House.

"The Three Maries," by Annibale Carracci (1580-1609), is a picture of the "Pietà" type, representing the holy women with the body of Our Lord. A writer at the beginning of the last century stated that the Court of Spain offered for the picture, when it was in the possession of the Duke of Orleans, as many louis d'or as would cover its surface, and that these amounted by trial to 3,000. The picture is a very good example of the painter, and in excellent preservation.

"A Landscape with a Shepherd," by Peter Paul Rubens, though not so important in size as the "Autumn" at the National Gallery, or the "Spring" at Hertford House, is a very fine example of the painter. It represents the wooded banks of a stream with sheep attended by a shepherd in a red cloak.

Valuable Acquisition. "Charity," by Lucas Cranach, the Elder (1472-1552), is an extremely valuable acquisition. A small picture on panel, it represents a nude woman nursing a baby, she holds the hand of one naked child, who has a doll, while another clings to her. Cranach, who is represented in the National Gallery only by a portrait of "A Young Lady" and portrait of "A Man," was of the school of Saxony.

(Special Dispatch.)
LONDON, Sept. 4.—THE work of converting the Chapel Royal, St. James', for the royal wedding on October 15 is nearly completed. A careful calculation shows that it will not be possible to accommodate more than three hundred persons in the chapel itself, and, indeed, 200 is regarded as the most convenient number for which to make provision.

This means that it will not be possible for any large number of the general public to be invited. It is estimated that there will be at least fifty members of the royal family and representatives of the foreign courts at the wedding, and many of these will be attended by at least two officials each.

There are, then, the many intimate personal friends of the bride and groom to be provided for, as well as the official and diplomatic circles. Each of the numbers of these will be entitled to bring one lady with him.

Thus it will be seen that the scanty accommodation of the Chapel Royal is likely to be taxed to its utmost capacity and many members of the royal households will find themselves perforce debarred from being present at the actual ceremony. Though countless applications for seats on this occasion have already poured into the Lord Chamberlain's Department at St. James' Palace, and all sorts of ingenious reasons for being present have been brought forward, it is safe to say that only a few of these can even be as much as considered.

The Royal Scots Greys, too—Prince Arthur of Connaught's regiment—are very anxious to be allowed to line the aisle of the chapel upon the occasion of the wedding, and here another difficulty presents itself. The aisle is very narrow and when lined on either side would allow little room for the wedding procession. Therefore it is feared that this picturesque feature will have to be abandoned and that the Scots Greys will have to content themselves with mounting a band of honor outside the chapel and providing a travelling escort for the royal bride and bridegroom as they leave London for their honeymoon.

A specially covered way is to be provided between the Chapel Royal and St. James' Palace and Marlborough House. Along this Queen Alexandra, the Empress of Russia, the King and Queen of Norway and the Princess Victoria will pass direct to their seats in the chapel, so that those outside will not see anything of them. A similar way is to be provided from Clarence House for the special convenience of the Duchess of Cornwall.

As the royal procession moves from the chapel to the banquet hall in St. James' Palace, where the wedding breakfast is to be served, privileged spectators will be permitted to assemble on either side in order to make their bows to the Majesties and the bride and bridegroom as they pass along.

Something like six hundred guests will be present at the wedding breakfast, and they will be able to view the large collection of wedding presents which will be displayed in the state apartments adjoining the banquet hall. The Duchess of Fife will change her costume within the precincts of the palace and will pass once more through the banquet hall in her wedding dress in order to take farewell of those to whom she is known personally.

Many rehearsals of the wedding will work smoothly, and it is expected that the first rehearsal will take place toward the end of September.

One Group of Canvases, Painted by Well Known Man, Shows Gradations of His Madly.

(Special Dispatch.)
LONDON, Sept. 4.—There is an exhibition of pictures at the Beetham House, Hospital, Lambeth, London, which has attracted a large number of the public. Among them one finds the bundles of straight lines of the cubist, the daubs of the post-impressionist and the incoherent conglomeration of the futurist.

The exhibition has not alone a humorous side. Parts of it—for those whose memories go back some years—are extremely sad. There are, for instance, one or two almost exquisite compositions by an artist whose brain became deranged. It would not be fair to mention his name; suffice it to say that water color, pastel and pen and ink sketches are all shown bearing his signature.

The very phases of his insanity—perhaps to an expert even the characters of the man—can be told from one set of his paintings. They are described as sketches to illustrate the various passions. One, "Battle of Vengeance," is superbly carried out and shows the most delicate treatment. In it knights are seen in their glistering armor, and he must have been quite sane when he executed it. From "Playing Madmen" one can only imagine he must have been in the same condition as the picture implies. It shows a most horrible looking man chained up in a cell with straw strewn about.

A brightly colored view of an old castle the work of one of the most famous English comedians of the last century, who, unfortunately, lost his reason. In his opinion, could not sink after a collision even if cut in two.

"My white," he says, "differs from the ordinary straight sided one, in that she has a concave side, the extending upper portion of which, with an inner longitudinal bulkhead meeting the outer plating at a point above the load water line, forms a watertight chamber or being of triangular shape right round the vessel. Transverse bulkheads dividing the ship into separate holds extend through the longitudinal bulkhead to the outer plating of the watertight chamber or being, thus dividing it into separate compartments corresponding with the holds.

"In the event of the ship being holed in one, two, or more compartments below the water line, she would, when settling down, rest on her watertight bulkhead, the triangular formation of which would have the same effect in keeping her afloat as a life buoy would in supporting a man. If the ship were damaged above the water line the bulkhead would receive the brunt of the injury, and from its triangular formation would leave the longitudinal bulkhead intact.

"A vessel of this design cannot sink through collision. Another important point is that the concave side prevents her capsizing, and she would in heavy weather be a dry vessel, and rolling would be reduced to the lowest possible degree."

Settle Right to Title in Court

Gardener Says He Is Heir to Pezear of Waterford as Son of Fifth Marquis.

(Special Dispatch.)
LONDON, Sept. 4.—GEOFFREY TOOTH, a jobbing gardener of Norwood, a London suburb, tells a romantic story of his history, and promises to retail it in the law courts, where he proposes to prosecute a claim to the peerage of Waterford and the estates, comprising about 67,000 acres.

Tooth has been gardening for fifteen years and during the whole of that time has, it is said, been collecting evidence to support his claim. It is understood that he is now receiving financial support from a lady who thinks that at least it is a case for inquiry.

Tooth says he believes himself to be the legitimate son of the fifth Marquis of Waterford, who, in 1865, was himself feeling an injury to the spine through falling from his horse. A son was born to the Marquis at Chesham Place on March 29, 1873, and according to the formal announcement in the Times, it was stillborn. Tooth contends that the child was born alive and that it was he.

His case is that as a newly born infant he was placed in the care of a Mrs. Dunne, who brought him up at the expense of the Marquis. The Marchioness died on April 4, 1873, and there is no recorded issue of the marriage. This date Tooth alleges to be that of his birth, and that the death certificate of the Marchioness, as registered at Somerset House, was without a doctor's signature. The

Most Notable Series of Sales in Several Years and Large Prices Were Paid for Canvases, a Gainsborough Heading the List at £100,800.

PICTURES PRESENTED TO NATIONAL GALLERY

(Special Dispatch.)
LONDON, Sept. 4.—THE picture sale season which has just closed will stand out as one of the most notable for many years past, and it is probable that over $5,000,000 was spent in auction rooms on art collections that had to be dispersed for various reasons.

In a period of two months sixty-six canvases found new owners at sums above $4,500, while fifteen exceeded the $25,000 total. Christie's books for one afternoon showed the season's sales amounting to $400,000, and the season's total figures would form the nucleus of an art collector's library.

One of the most important sales of the season was Sir Lionel Phillips' collection, which was offered to public competition because the owner decided to reside permanently in South Africa.

"The Market Cart," a famous Gainsborough, sold for $100,800. It is one of the most striking pictures that came into the market during the season. On a road in the foreground is a large wagon drawn by three horses, and there are three women and two children seated in it. The driver is leaning over the side to assist a girl to climb up. There are sheep in a valley in the distance—a delightful country scene, depicted with a master's genius.

There were some fine portraits in this collection, which realized over $1,000,000. J. M. Natier's portrait of three works—"Le Silence," $24,150; "Le Pont du Jour," $16,275, and a portrait of Lord Brooke, $18,000. Portraits by Kneller of ladies in blue and white dresses fetched $3,500.

A Millais picture, "The Boy in the Red Coat," sold for $20,000. The art treasures of Mr. McCulloch, of Queen's Gate, realized $260,700. The top price, $60,000, was paid for Sir J. E. Millais' fine work, "Sir Isambard at the Ford," a dream of the past. Another Millais, "In Perfect Blue," went for $1,425, and the artist's picture of "Linger in Autumn" changed hands at $7,500. J. Bastien Lepage was represented in the collection by several notable examples.

"The Potato Gatherers" found a purchaser at $12,375, and the highest bidding for other works of the artist were $10,000 and $5,750.

Dagnan Bouveret's forest scene, "Dais in Forest," was sold for $5,250, and "The Madonna and the Child," by the same artist, for $6,000. Bidding for J. M. W. Turner's "Rain, Steam, and Great Central Railway" reached $13,300. Big prices were paid for Sir A. Agnew's works, "Richard, Duke of Gloucester, and the Lady Anne," fetched $23,300, and "King Lear" came near these figures at $25,000. There were two of Alma Tadema's works—"The Sculpture Gallery," $11,800, and "Love's Jewelled Fetters," $9,750.

Barnes-Jones was represented in the collection by three examples, "Love Among the Ruins" found a purchaser at $25,300, "Psyche's Wedding" went for $5,515, and "The Sleeping Princess" realized $5,500. "An Al Fresco Toilet," from the estate of Sir Luke Fildes, commanded $1,625. Peter Graham's "Caledonia, Storn and Windward," and Cecil G. Lawson's "Mars-landia," $15,000. The large sum of $21,000 was paid for Sir W. G. Orchardson's "Master Baby," and the "Fata Morgana" canvas of G. F. Watts went for $9,000. The same price was paid for J. M. W. Turner's "Rain, Steam, and Great Central Railway," and "The Ship at Sea," by J. M. W. Turner, $11,800, and "The Ship at Sea," by J. M. W. Turner, $11,800.

The second highest price recorded at Christie's was $75,750 at the sale of the late Mr. M. W. Oppenheim's collection. The sum was paid for "A Woody Landscape," by Meyerhold Holbeins, perhaps the greatest landscape painter of the Dutch school after Ruysdael. The work was signed and dated 1680. There were two other works by D. Teniers in this collection. "The Interior of a Guard Room" went for $20,000 and "The Interior of an Alchemist" for $9,500.

The picture by A. Devis of Sir Joshua Reynolds and His Family, in the garden at his mansion at Portico, was sold for $7,750. Hogarth was represented by "The Western Family," which fetched $12,900. A Gainsborough portrait of Dr. Mead, $1,250, for Chippendale, realized $18,000, and a Romney of Major General Sir James Hartley sold for $25,125. "Mish-mish" was the figure paid for a portrait by J. Hoppner of his wife, the purchase price being $6,825.

Another big sum was paid for the portrait of a lady by P. B. Paul, the designer of the great catalogue being $23,300. "Pete Champtre," by A. Watteau, realized $22,500, and Boucher's "A Shepherdess," $24,400. Morland's coast scene, fetched $9,000 in two instances—a coast scene, fetched $9,000 and a landscape $7,750. The "Admiral's Cabin," by J. M. W. Turner, realized $12,375. "The Meeting of the Waters," by J. M. W. Turner, found a new owner at $10,750.

Other notable purchases included Sir Joshua Reynolds' portrait of Lady Juliana Dawkins, $14,400; Sir James Orling Burgess' portrait of Lady Juliana Dawkins, by the same artist, $9,750; a portrait of William Charles, third Earl of Portland, when a boy, by Sir J. M. W. Turner, $11,800; and a portrait of a young girl, by Sir J. M. W. Turner, $11,800.

THE TALESS DUNNE REMAINS IN FLIGHT AND AT REST

After many years of endeavor Lieutenant Dunne has succeeded in making an unqualified success of his V (or dart) shaped biplane. The little community at Eastchurch Aerodrome have for several months been startled by the flights of this machine. At times the pilot could be seen leaning over the front of the body making semaphore signals to those below, while the passenger stood on his seat and sometimes even danced. The machine is controlled simply by two levers which work a flap at each end of the wings. The biplane is an automatically stable as anything yet produced; it finds its own "bank," it cannot do a nose dive or a side slip; and many of the greatest authorities predict that this is the type of machine of the near future.

The above is a composite view showing the same machine on the ground and in the air. Both views were taken in France after Captain Felix had successfully flown the Dunne across the Channel. Two more of these machines are building and will be flown at Hendon, and though it has been said the rights have been sold to France and lost to England, this is not the case, and the British government will soon be in possession of this type of machine.

Inventor Designs Unsinkable Ship

Constructed with Concave Sides, He Says She Will Float if Cut in Two.

(Special Dispatch.)
LONDON, Sept. 4.—THE question of the unsinkable ship has been occupying the minds of inventors since the Titanic disaster, and a Swames master mariner, Mr. A. Clifton Salinas, has devised a vessel which, in his opinion, could not sink after a collision even if cut in two.

"My white," he says, "differs from the ordinary straight sided one, in that she has a concave side, the extending upper portion of which, with an inner longitudinal bulkhead meeting the outer plating at a point above the load water line, forms a watertight chamber or being of triangular shape right round the vessel. Transverse bulkheads dividing the ship into separate holds extend through the longitudinal bulkhead to the outer plating of the watertight chamber or being, thus dividing it into separate compartments corresponding with the holds.

"In the event of the ship being holed in one, two, or more compartments below the water line, she would, when settling down, rest on her watertight bulkhead, the triangular formation of which would have the same effect in keeping her afloat as a life buoy would in supporting a man. If the ship were damaged above the water line the bulkhead would receive the brunt of the injury, and from its triangular formation would leave the longitudinal bulkhead intact.

Olympic Games Bad for Boys

Principal of Phillips Academy Tells England America Has Gone to Athletic Extremes.

(Special Dispatch.)
LONDON, Sept. 4.—CONSIDERATION of the position Britain is likely to attain at the 1916 Olympic games has led to comparison of methods of general athletic training practised in various countries, especially the United States, apart from the specific goal of international competition.

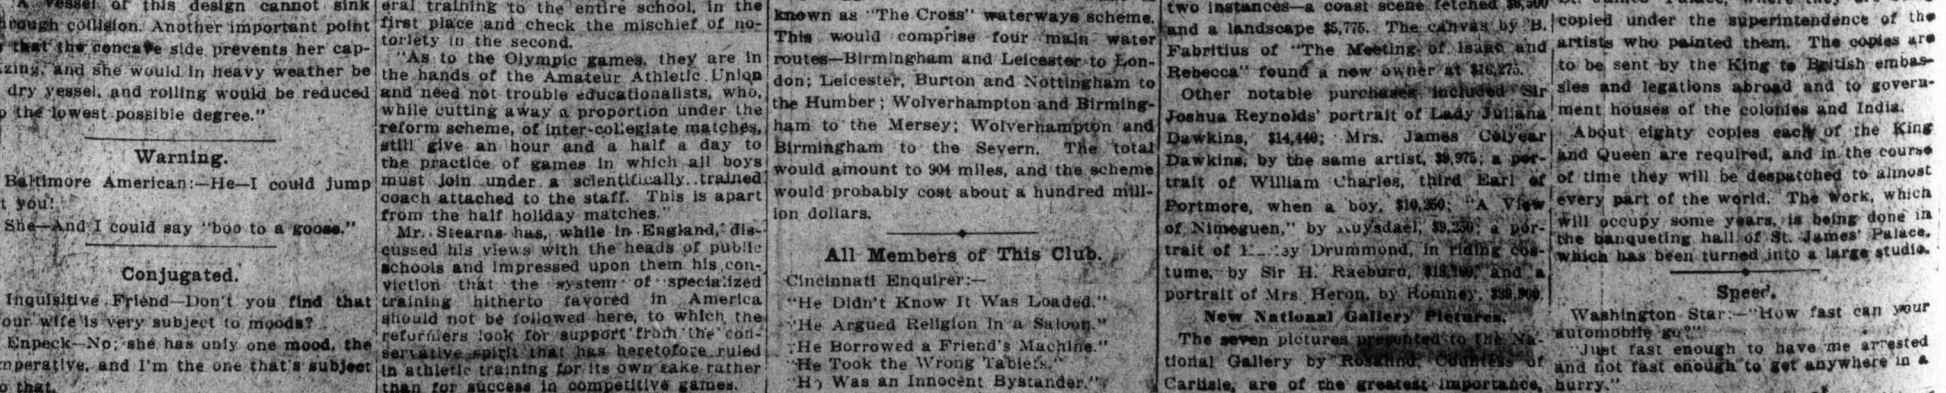

Mr. Alfred E. Stearns, principal of Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., who is at present in England, has naturally been asked to discuss the subject, but as the idea of Mr. Stearns in the reform of the sports field is to foster athleticism rather than to beat an opponent, he has little sympathy with the Olympic games, which he regards as by their nature inseparable from the idea of exciting, success for a few representatives of a nation at the cost, possibly, of a wholesome ideal of training for the nation generally.

In Mr. Stearns' words—"America has gone to extremes in the matter of specialization in training for sports during the last few years. The spirit in which this has been done has been too professional and has tended to give an exaggerated importance to big matches. This is bad because of the tremendous strain it puts upon the moral makeup of the boys. When a boy is successful in a big match, he receives in the newspapers and public life a hero's welcome. Now we propose to give practically the same general training to the entire school, in the first place, and check the mischief of hero-worship in the second.

"As to the Olympic games, they are in the hands of the Amateur Athletic Union and need not trouble educationalists, who while cutting away a proportion under the reform scheme, of inter-collegiate matches, still retain an hour and a half a day to the practice of games in which all boys must join under a scientific training coach attached to the staff. This is apart from the half holiday matches."

Mr. Stearns has, while in England, discussed his views with heads of public schools and impressed upon them his conviction that the system of specialized training hitherto favored in America should not be followed here, to which the reformer's motto for a motto has been "Let the boy be a boy." He has been particularly insistent that the school should be a school, and that the boy should be a boy, and that the school should be a school, and that the boy should be a boy.
