IF YOU READ THIS LIKE THIS YOU NEED

YOU are the person I'm talking to. YOU sometimes see the type jump from the page. YOU sometimes see the lines of type go uphill, then down. YOU sometimes see a blurred spot on your newspaper when you know they are words to be read. YOU know very well that it isn't the bluntness that you blame for all this. YOU know positively that it is your eyes.

To correct all this trouble you are welcome to consult with me—Free of Charge—any time between 10 a.m. and 6 p.m. in the day.

BOWEL POISON MAKES YOU SICK.

Your bowels may seem regular every day—but your dirty feet of bowels may be lined with poisonous waste which is being sucked into your blood, keeping you half sick, nervous, despondent and upset. Whether you have headache, colds, sour stomach, indigestion, or heart palpitation, it is usually from bowel poison. Hurry! One or two Cascarets tonight will clean your bowels right. By morning all the constipation poison and sour bile will move out—thoroughly! Cascarets will not sicken you—they physic fully, but never gripe or inconvenience.

MABEL HOWARD, OF THE LYRIC.

CHAPTER XV.
COMMITTED FOR TRIAL.
"What is to be done?" asked Lord Heron. "What can I do? I must do something. Can I go to London?"
Mr. Barrington shook his head. "I don't see what good you could do, my lord. You see, you do not know Miss Knighton."
"I never saw her," said Lord Heron. "Besides, Lord Montacute has gone to London, and he will leave no stone unturned, I am sure."
The two walked on in silence for a minute, then Lord Heron stopped. "There is one thing we can do," he said. "I will get the railway people to telegraph to the London papers an advertisement which will appear tomorrow morning. Come inside and I will draw it up."
They went into the inn and got writing materials, and Lord Heron made out the following advertisement:
Miss K. is entreated to communicate her present address to Mr. Barrington. She will understand that if she see it," said Lord Heron. "I will go down to the station and persuade them to wire it up to-night."
"I will go with you," said Mr. Barrington; "I cannot remain inactive."
The two went to the railway station, talking earnestly as they went. The station master demurred to sending the telegram for some time—it was after hours and irregular—but at last Lord Coverdale's title and his assurance that he would take the responsibility overcame the man's scruples, and the telegram was dispatched.
"What next?" said Lord Heron. "Come back to the inn with me; your horse wants a rest, and we will discuss this matter, and see if we can find something to do. It is terrible to think of that poor girl wandering about alone in her misery!"

They went to the inn, and Lord Heron paced up and down, while the lawyer partook of some refreshment.
"This man's story may be false," he said. "From the very bottom of my heart I trust it may be!"
"I am sure of that, my lord."
"How can you find out? I would give all I possess—and it isn't much—to be the one to go to her, poor girl, and tell her that she is still the mistress of Knighton, and her father's lawful daughter!"
Mr. Barrington thought a moment. "I can telegraph to a firm of English lawyers at Naples," he said. "They can search the registry there. Every marriage is registered at the central office, and if—Mr. Knighton and this Italian lady were married, there will be a record of it."
"And if there should not be—but the alternative is horrible! Barrington, if the issue should prove this story to be true, you know what must be done?"
Mr. Barrington waited.
"It is bad enough to come into an inheritance through a death; but to inherit in consequence of the degradation and ruin of a harmless, inoffensive, innocent girl—Barrington, if this story should prove true, you will understand that I shall accept the estate on one condition only—that Miss Knighton takes half the income—for her life, at least!"
Mr. Barrington flushed.
"It is what I expected of you, my lord," he said, quietly; "but I am afraid that your generous intentions could not be carried out. From what I know of Miss Knighton, I am convinced that she would accept nothing—not a penny. The Knights have always been proud—"
Lord Heron quickened his pace.
"Something must be done!" he said. "But let us hope that everything will come right for her. I would rather remain the genteel pauper that I am, and continue my wandering, restless habits for the rest of my life, than become heir of the Revels at such a terrible cost to her."
Mr. Barrington rose and got his hat.

"I'll go back now, my lord," he said; "they may have heard some tidings of her. You will remain here?"
"Certainly," said Lord Heron; "and keep the yacht in the harbor. Of course, if she returns, you will not let her know that I have heard the story; poor girl!—there is no need that any one should know it but you and I and Lord Montacute. This man Ricardo must be paid to keep silence."
Mr. Barrington took the proffered hand and shook it warmly.
"Forgive me, my lord," he said, more warmly than Lord Heron had ever heard him speak before; "forgive me if I feel compelled to say that you have acted most nobly. Whatever may be the issue of this sad business, you have behaved most generously and thoughtfully. I will communicate anything I hear at once."
"Do, do!" said Lord Heron; "suspense is what I hate! And remember, whatever happens, it is Miss Knighton's interests that you must consider, not mine."
"Thank you, my lord," said Mr. Barrington. "It is a pity—he passed—it is a pity that you do not know her; you would feel fully justified in considering her! She is—"
"He paused, visibly affected—as good as she is beautiful!"
Lord Heron looked rather surprised.
Mr. Barrington waited.
"I never saw her," continued Lord Heron; "but I have heard of her, and I sympathize with her from the bottom of my heart."
He accompanied Mr. Barrington downstairs and helped him into the dogcart, and as he drove away the lawyer, tired and weary, looked back and saw Lord Heron standing looking at the sea with a grave and earnest thoughtfulness.
Mr. Barrington found the Revels in a state of excitement. No tidings of Iris had come to hand during his absence, but another event had occurred which increased the complication.
The butler met him in the hall with the news that Felice had gone!
"Gone!" said Mr. Barrington. "Why—and where?"
"She left a message for you, sir," said the butler. "She said she could not stay here when her mistress had left, and if any one could find Miss Iris, she could. She was driven to catch the mail train, sir. We tried to stop her, sir, but it was no use; no one knows what a determined woman Miss Felice was but those who lived with her. Wild horses couldn't have stopped her! Oh, sir, do you think she'll be able to find Miss Iris?" and the honest fellow's eyes grew moist.
"Nonsense!" said Mr. Barrington. "Miss Iris has probably gone to visit some friends, and we shall hear of her in the morning. Let everybody go to bed, please."
Tired as he was, the old lawyer could not sleep, and the butler, coming to his room soon after eight, found him up and dressing.
"A telegram, sir!" he said, and waited anxiously to see if Mr. Barrington would give him any information.
Mr. Barrington tore open the envelope. The message was from Lord Clarence.
"Have not succeeded. Can find no trace," it ran.
The day passed slowly. In the course of the morning Mr. Barrington was summoned to the police court to attend the examination of the signor.
The court was crowded, for the arrest had caused great excitement, and vague rumors of some mystery at the Revels, with which the man was said to be closely connected, had spread as rapidly as such rumors do.
White and haggard, the accused was brought into the dock. He looked round with a quick, furtive glance of his black, beady eyes, and as they fell upon Mr. Barrington, a faint, sinister smile curved his lip.
Mr. Barrington listened and watched, outwardly calm, but in breathless anxiety. Would the man proclaim the story of Iris' birth to the world?
As the charge was being read over, a tall figure entered the court, and the crowd turned and regarded it curiously.
It was Lord Coverdale. He was dressed in a suit of dark serge, and wore a band of crape upon his arm. He made his way to Mr. Barrington's side and shook hands with him, but said nothing, and the two stood in silence. His entrance had not been unnoticed by Signor Ricardo, but the pale face, with its black mustache, and cruel, cunning eyes, made no sign of recognition.
Witnesses were called to prove the arrest, and the police authorities asked for a committal.
The magistrate in the chair conferred for a moment with his brother justices.
"Have you anything to say in your defense?" he asked the prisoner.
Ricardo looked at Mr. Barrington and Lord Coverdale, then, with a contemptuous smile but with a significance which seemed to strike ominously upon the hearers, he said: "Nothing—at present."
"You are committed for trial on the charge," said the magistrate.
Ricardo bowed with mock respect, and the policemen hurried him from the dock.
Lord Coverdale and Mr. Barrington waited until the crowd had dispersed, then walked out side by side.
"No news? I see it in your face," said Lord Coverdale.

Slim Woman's Strength.

TEN MEN UNABLE TO LIFT HER FROM THE GROUND.
A puzzling performance has been given at the Victoria Palace, London, by Miss Mary Richardson, who can resist the strength of ten men. She is slight and fair, and weighs no more than seven stone. Men in the audience were invited to come up on the stage. The lady first held a chair shoulder high between the palms of her hands. Five or six men then took hold of the chair, and by main force tried to drag it down, but without avail. The hands of another man were interposed, between those of the lady and the chair, and he declared that he felt no pressure whatever on his hands. A man placed his hands under her arms and lifted her off the ground as if she were a feather. But when he essayed to repeat this, no physical force that he could exert would move her an inch. Nor could the united efforts of nine or ten other men lift her off the ground. Again, seven or eight men placed their hands on top of a pole about five feet high, while superimposed on the hands was a stout gentleman. The lady then climbed beneath this human edifice and gripping the pole walked across the stage with it and the burden on top. Unfortunately the pole broke, and the large gentleman descended more rapidly than he got up, but not till she had demonstrated her strength.

North Pole.

When an Arctic explorer has the pole star exactly overhead, he is still eighty miles from the North Pole because the Pole Star—or Polaris, as it is known to astronomers—is not the North Celestial Star, to which the geographical North Pole corresponds, but nearly three times the apparent breadth of the full moon from it. The fact is that the Pole Star merely happens to be the nearest bright star to the North Celestial Pole. This latter point is an imaginary one in the heavens, marking the spot towards which the earth's axis is directed. Owing to causes which need not be entered into here, this imaginary point is moving in a great circle in the sky, a circle so vast that about 26,000 years is taken to complete it. A few thousand years ago, it was a long way from the present Pole Star, and in those days the star was quite an ordinary one, differing in no way from hosts of others we see around us on any fine night. In another few thousand years to come our present highly-important Pole Star will have again sunk into obscurity through having been left in the lurch by the steadily-moving North Celestial Pole. The brilliant blue-and-white Vega will be the most magnificent Pole Star of the future. It will be about 12,000 years, however, before its turn comes.

Only One Ground for Divorce Say Anglicans.
Efforts to have the Church of England oppose divorce of married persons "on any grounds" were defeated at the General Synod at Hamilton, when both the Upper and the Lower Houses ruled that adultery was a sufficient cause. Both Houses, however, strongly opposed the enactment of any further legislation that would facilitate the granting of divorces, and their members likewise reaffirmed Canon V, which forbids any Anglican clergyman to re-marry a divorced person, so long as the other party to the annulled contract is alive.

Chantilly founcings, alovers and silk nets are shown a lot this fall.

One's suit coat may be fitted at the waist and flare below the hips. The ripple coat or flared-hip effects are very popular this season.

A dinner dress of silk marquisette is trimmed with crystal beads.

Dresses of heavy, knitted fabric are trimmed with colored braid. Immense bright-colored garter cuffs are seen on a smart gown.

The Second Grand Dance Carnival.

The second grand Dance Carnival takes place in the Prince's Rink on Wednesday next, November 9th, at 8:30 and promises to outclass the first one in every respect, and its success is already assured. The first Carnival was only a starter, and many refrained from going in fancy costume, because they were of the opinion that the affair was something new, and were doubtful of its success, and again the weather was against dressing in costume, but when they entered the Rink and saw the decorations, the 1700 people, the floor in splendid condition, the music, the very latest of the C.C.C. Band, they were disappointed they were not in fancy dress. From the reports now going around there will not be less than 600 Masqueraders and 2000 spectators. The decorations will be more elaborate, the music will be the latest from New York, and 5 prizes will be given, two for the most original and two for the prettiest costumes. See McNamara's Jewellery Store window with the display of prizes to pick from. The gross proceeds of this Carnival will go towards helping to pay off the debt for alterations in the C.C.C. Hall (Mechanic's Building), and all the dancing public and friends should now show their appreciation of the Band's efforts in providing for them an up-to-date Dancing Hall during the past five years, which they would not otherwise have had, if the Band had not undertaken the venture at a big cost, and which has taken many years to pay off. Therefore, see that you get a costume, you only have 7 days remaining, and by your attendance you will show the thousands of spectators present that you really appreciate the Band's work, and at the same time helping them to pay their debt on their Hall, and relieving them of a big burden. The prices are only 20c. admission, Masqueraders 20c. and Numbered Gallery Seats 30c. on sale at the Royal Stationery Store, Water Street. The general admission and Masqueraders tickets are on sale at Hutton's.

Railway Repaired; Trains Moving.

Shortly after noon to-day temporary repairs to the damaged road bed of the railway were completed and the first express to leave town since Thursday last, steamed out of the station at 1 p.m. By to-morrow all trains should be running on their regular schedule. The last part of the line to be repaired was in the Lance Cove section where the storm had wrought great havoc to the road bed. Permanent repairs will be commenced on all the damaged sections of the line at once, but even in its present state, it is quite safe for traffic. A Carbonear train left St. John's at noon to-day with a large number of passengers who had been compelled to remain in town on account of the washout. This train will go as far as Brigus Junction and will return with passengers who left Carbonear at 12:30 p.m. to-day. The outgoing express took a large number of passengers and an especially large one on the incoming express left Port aux Basques at 8 a.m. yesterday and is due here between 12:00 and 1:00 a.m. to-morrow. At 8:45 a.m. to-morrow the regular shore train with passengers for Carbonear, Placentia and Heart's Content, will resume its regular schedule. Some of the wrecking trains now situated

Nervous Breakdown

The extreme depression and discouragement which comes over one at times is the most alarming symptom of nervous exhaustion.

This letter is a message of hope to all who find themselves in this unfortunate condition.

Mrs. Geo. T. Tingley, Albert, N.B., writes:—

"For years I was in a very nervous, run-down condition, was much depressed in spirit and suffered a great deal at times. The least noise would irritate me and at times I felt as though I certainly would go crazy. I consulted different doctors to no effect. "A friend advised the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and I can truly testify today to the great benefit received. There was a marked change before I had finished the second box and when I had used a dozen boxes my nerves were thoroughly renewed and I was entirely relieved of those terrible feelings I used to have. I shall ever be ready to testify to the benefits of this wonderful medicine, feeling sure that it will give to others the quick and permanent relief it has given me."

The Mayor Interviewed.

A CITY MANAGER WANTED. That the city should have a Mayor, wholly and solely devoted to his office, and also a city manager to supervise all civic work and to report on it to the Council, is the opinion of Mayor Morris, as expressed to the Telegram to-day. Mr. Morris intends to stand for Mayor again in the coming Municipal election. He thinks that the situation is too crucial to permit him stepping out. Municipal work has increased two-fold of late and during the past two months the Council has been kept busy reading the Charter and preparing for the election, whilst special attention has been paid to the straitened finances of the times. Mayor Morris feels assured that St. John's has a great future before it and that a great deal of improvement may be accomplished without a great deal of expense. He was pleased to see that citizens were co-operating in the Council's work, and expressed his thanks for any appreciation that has been shown of the Council's work. He said that the majority of the present Council would stand for re-election but Mr. W. H. Jackman would not be a candidate. Amongst the new candidates are Mr. K. Ruby, and Mr. Wiseman, grocer of Carter's Hill. According to the new Charter the Deputy Mayor will not be elected at the polls, but by the Councilors themselves, at their first meeting. The Mayor paid a tribute to Mr. Vincombe, the present holder of the office. Mayor Morris also stated that during his term of office the interior of the City Hall had been entirely renovated and the janitor was now living in the building. The City Solicitor has now an office in the Municipal Building. Ex-Mayor Golling, seen by the Telegram this morning, emphatically denied that he would be a candidate for Mayor in the forthcoming Municipal Election. He stated that he would like to have the city served by one who would see that the new Charter was rigidly carried out. He said that if it were properly put into effect great improvements to the city would soon be apparent.

Obituary.

JOHANNA WALSH. There passed away at 12:30 this Thursday morning, a respected resident of the Goules, in the person of Mrs. Johanna Walsh, having just passed her 69th birthday. Her passing away to her eternal rest will be regretted by the many who had the privilege and pleasure of visiting the well-known resort of Walsh's and her motherly countenance and pleasing manner added much to the comfort of those who visited her home, whether the traveler or those on pleasure bent. In her last hours she had the comfort of having most of her family around her, who were unceasing in their vigilance and presence. Left to mourn a mother and companion, are seven daughters, Mrs. Lee, of Petty Ht., Mrs. Hooley, of Bopston, Mrs. J. A. Gillis, and Mrs. J. Ryan of St. John's, and Misses Nellie, Aggie and Margaret at home; and also two sons, John and Ambrose. The Telegram joins with the many friends in extending sympathy to the bereaved family.

along the damaged parts of the line, will be kept until permanent repairs are effected.

Forward and Backward.

(By MEGAN ARVON.)
'Tis an old battered standard, passed on through the years,
And history its stories unfold,
How 'twas carried aloft, through the great storm of time
And upheld by all stout hearts, and noble souls.
The noblest old banner e'er flown to the winds,
Surviving life's heat, and death's cold.
Of shimmering silver it blazed overhead,
On it "Forward" all shining in gold.
Not the flag of one nation, but the flag of the world,
Of Briton and Frenchman, and Greek.
Inspiration and Power it gave to the strong,
A renewed fount of hope to the weak.
And worthy the hands that e'er grasped it at the start.
Some catered to death, more to life.
For now 'twas upheld by a great man of Peace,
And now by a strong man of Strife.
Some place Freedom demanded, means Freedom denied,
Here we break a "Blue Law" for a drink.
In another spot Liberty draped out in red,
Makes the very name Liberty stink.
And a nation can hinder our Progress by years,
Crying "Pay Up," on old Paper Deeds.
And a holocaust ended, of misery and strife,
Taught no lessons from Pain, or regret.
Oh! it must be discarded this ancient old flag,
Or where are its bearers to-day?
Is there nobody worthy to hoist it aloft?
And with courage and sacrifice pay?
Must we follow a standard of ebony hue?
Drab, "Backward," the word woven there.
No! we'll raise the old standard of silver and gold,
And carry it through without fear.
St. John's, Oct. 31st, 1921.

The Toll of the Storm.

MUCH DAMAGE AFLOAT AND ASHORE.

Owing to the telegraph lines not yet being in working order, very little news from the northern districts has reached the city. From the few messages received since the storm of Friday last, Oct. 28th, enough can be learned to know that an immense amount of destruction has been done both to public and private property. The shipping losses already recounted are heavy. They are: Menroe & Co.—Ena, Annie, Gladys, Agnes Jane, Lillian, Nettie, M. Prince, Cactus and M. G. B. R. G. Rendell—Mabel B., Mary Joan, Union Trading Co.—"Standard Cull". Ashbourne—Ariceen, M. P. Cashin, Violet Currie—"Earl Grey." Two western boats owned by Messrs. Lewis and Packford were reported yesterday in a message to Mr. M. S. Sullivan, M.H.A., as ashore at North Harbor, P.B. Private messages state that the schooners Ger Falcon, H. W. Wentwell and Ettie Bess have also been lost. The latter vessel is owned by J. F. Moore, and is believed to be wrecked at St. Anthony. The loss of the M. G. B. at Little Bay Islands was reported to Monroe & Co. from Strong and Murcell, the owners.

The Deputy Minister of Customs has received a message saying that a boat laden with a summer's voyage broke from her moorings at Burnt Island, P.B., and has not since been heard of. She was owned by W. Hoben. Luckily none of the crew are on board. The vessel was last seen from Marystown, drifting out the Bay.

The all-cloth dress has cape or jacket to match.

Prayers for Peace.

(From the New York Times.)
The churches of America are asking for the observance of the 11th of November, not only in remembrance of those whom the Unknown Soldier represents, but also in prayer that the hope which was in his heart may not be buried with him. Every official encouragement should be given to the free, full and ardent expression of the nation's heart in its petition for the success of the conference in which America has taken the initiative. Americans will not be alone in their prayers and their hopes, for like hopes and prayers will rise from every people touched by the great war. It is significant that it was a Buddhist priest who followed a delegation from the churches of America in calling upon the President in this cause a few days ago. General Pershing has said that, unless "some such move is made" as is contemplated in the conference, "we may well ask ourselves whether we are doomed to go headlong down through destructive war and darkness into barbarism." General Tasker Bliss has assured the clergymen that if they want to secure a limitation of armaments they can do it now; and that if it is not done, they and those whom they represent will be responsible for every drop of blood shed if another great war such as the last does come. This is no time for citizens whose vocations are those of peace to hesitate. It is a time for showing faith and hope. "Well have we need of many orisons."

Oil-Light Beats Electric or Gas.

BURNS 94 p.c. AIR.
A new oil lamp that gives an amazingly brilliant, soft, white light, even better than gas or electricity, has been tested by the U. S. Government and 35 leading universities and found to be superior to 10 ordinary oil lamps. It burns without odor, smoke or noise—no pumping up, is simple, clean, safe. Burns 94% air and 6% common kerosene (coal-oil).
The inventor, T. W. Johnson, 246 Craig St. W., Montreal, is offering to send a lamp on 10 days' FREE trial, or even to give one FREE to the first user in each locality who will help him introduce it. Write him to-day for full particulars. Also ask him to explain how you can get the agency, and without experience or money make $250 to $500 per month.

Some Tails of Dogs.

A writer in tracing the ancestry of the dog to the wolf and jackal, notices typical differences in the case of their eyes, their body colours and markings, the habit of turning around before lying down, and other interesting peculiarities; but he does not mention the most striking and infallible way of distinguishing them—namely, by the curious and distinct fashion in which they carry their tails. All wolves have a sneaking way of carrying their tails low, almost dragging on the ground, but dogs carry their tails up, and the farther removed they are from the wolf type the higher they carry them. Shepherd's dogs and collies, which retain many of their racial characteristics, carry their tails lowest of all; setters and pointers a degree or two higher; stiffening out straight when drawing on game; terriers and hounds elevate their tails to the spinal line. St. Bernards and Newfoundlanders affect a curve over the back; while pugs actually come to a full twist.

The Shy Sex.

The modern man is a shy, diffident creature, whereas confidence and push are the hallmark of the modern woman. The bashful, blushing maiden has disappeared, and her place has been taken by females who are very sure of themselves and who demand to be both seen and heard. When a body of men are gathered together, an atmosphere of peace and repose is engendered; but where women congregate there is a clatter of tongues; there is an entire lack of repose; and the atmosphere is charged with intrigue.
When a man blunders into a congregation of women, he is ill at ease and shy. When a woman enters a roomful of men, she is self-possessed and obviously proud to find herself in such a thrilling situation. A man would as soon think of entering a cage of wild animals as diving into a railway carriage reserved for ladies; whereas women will make for smoking-compartments which are really reserved for men, and crowd out the luckless male.
When a man goes shopping, he is a helpless wight. Faced by a small army of shop assistants, he visibly quails; and his chief anxiety is to spare them trouble and conclude the business as soon as possible. Not so a woman; she takes a curious delight in causing as much trouble as possible, and will have half the shop down, and then perhaps refuse to buy. She has no mercy for shop assistants—usually creatures of her own sex—and her nerve in such circumstances is colossal. She conducts herself in a similar manner in restaurants and other places of public resort; and women who are compelled to earn their living pay to be delivered from the tender mercies of women customers. A man who arrives late at a theatre or public entertainment will make his way quickly and shyly to his seat. A woman will upset the whole proceedings.
Observe the man at a wedding, particularly his own. He is shy and nervous, and obviously finds the publicity distasteful. The woman simply revels in it; and there is no trace of shyness in her make up. In fact, man, viewed in any light, is a shy, self-effacing creature, who always looks as if he is in need of somebody to take care of him. This is probably why woman marries him.—Liverpool Weekly Post.

Imperial Wizard Defends Ku Klux Klan

Col. William Joseph Simmons, of Atlanta, Ga., Imperial wizard of the Ku Klux Klan, took the stand before the House Rules Committee at Washington, on October 12 and, in a carefully prepared defense of his organization, entered a sweeping and emphatic denial of the various charges that have been made against it. The Klan, according to Col. Simmons, is not anti-Catholic, anti-Jew or anti-negro; it was not organized for personal gain; it has no lawless creed, and charges that it has "taken the law into its own hands" are unfounded. "The charge is made," he said, "that we are organized to preach and teach religious intolerance, and especially that we are anti-Catholic and anti-negro. The works of the Klan prove this absolutely untrue. Many alleged outrages have been attributed to the Klan, but none of these were against Catholic, Jews and negroes, and none were committed by the Klan. It is, indeed, strange that, if we organized to persecute the Catholics, Jews and negroes, that nothing has been done against them. In the United States the question is not, and never should be, whether a citizen is a Protestant, a Catholic, a Jew or a negro, but whether he is a loyal American." Col. Simmons' counter-charge that the campaign against the Klan was started by The New York World to gain circulation, and that The Hearst newspapers followed suit when their circulation began to drop.

Exhausted Nerve Force

If from overwork, worry, late hours, constant nervous strain, or excess of any kind, your nerve force has become depleted and you are suffering from the awful tortures and great debilitating weakness caused by exhaustion of the neuro-vital fluid, you will find that Nuxated Iron will often most surprisingly increase your strength, energy and endurance in two week's time. It not only enriches the blood so that it can furnish increased nutrition to the starting nerve cells, but Nuxated Iron also contains the principal chemical constituent of active living nerve force and is therefore a true nerve and blood food. ### Vegetable Cannibals.

Plants that are as merciless as the spider.

It is popularly supposed that the spider-eaters are the plants, but a number of little stalks, with long, thin, forked hairs jut out from the inner lining of the bladder and provide the digestive acid.

Peril in the Ponds.
In water and on land little insects could tell marvellous stories of peril and adventure if they had the gift of speech. There is another bloodthirsty, vegetable monster, the aldrovanda, floating in the ponds. Like Venus's fly-trap, it has hinged leaves, with sensitive bristles. Forked hairs jut out moment some small crustacean brushes against them, and they do not open again until it is digested. There is another in the moist soil of the woods, a scaly creature just peeping above the surface. Every scale of it is a small cavern with a narrow entrance, through which inquisitive ants and other insects force their way, and the little digestive knobs which line the cavern make short work of the intruder.

Plant Ogres.
But the most handsome and ingenious of these plant-ogres are the "pitcher plants," which are found in their perfection in the tropical region to the south of Asia. Some of their leaves are so modified as to form cups, or pitchers—often large tankards, with wonderful lids, seven or eight inches long. The bright pink or purple-spotted body attracts insects. The ant or fly then discovers, when it reaches the edge of the trap, that a banquet of honey is provided for it just inside the rim. But the moment it steps inside the cup it finds itself on a surface smoother than glass, on which no insect can keep its foothold. Down it slips, into a pool of fluid which lies at the bottom of the cup. When it tries to climb out, hairs pointing downward prevent it from scaling the wall. And it need hardly be added that the pool of fluid is, in part, digestive acid ready to absorb the meat. In some species there is no acid, but there are millions of bacteria in the pool ready to break up the insects and prepare them for the plant.

There are more than five hundred species of these vegetable cannibals. They live in moist soil—even in sand—where little nitrogen can be taken up by the roots, and the slow process of decomposition through the ages has fitted them with those wonderful contrivances for obtaining nitrogenous food.—John O'London's Weekly.

Bloodthirsty Butterwort.

Such the same is the action of its blood-thirsty work. The marvellous leaves are rolled slightly inward, and a shower of rain washes down the small insects which have been caught on the "fly-line." The leaf then over them, drenches them with its own digestive juice. But there are insect-eaters, like the Venus's fly-trap of the bog of Carolina, which deal with their victims. The plant is in two halves, and the central part or middle of it acts as a sort of trap. On each half of the leaf are three long, slender bristles, and the moment a fly touches one of these bristles it is close like one of the old-time traps.

More ingeniously wicked is the bladderwort, which one finds very frequently in lakes and ditches. You see bright yellow flowers rising innocently above the surface of the water. Beneath the surface floats a curious plant with small green bladders on its stem; and a botanist will tell you that a pretty arrangement this is. Ordinarily the bladders are filled with air, but when the time comes for the plant to flower, the water is repelled by air and the plant rises sufficiently to let its bloom catch the sunlight.

Look more closely, however, as the botanist does, and you find a diabolical trap associated with this pretty chinery. There is a sort of small trap-door leading into each bladder, and it is closed by a valve which opens only one way—inward. There is even a nice arrangement of bristles to induce the little animals of the pond—waterfleas and so on—to go straight to the door. It opens at the slightest pressure, and the victim finds himself in a dark chamber from which there is no escape. A dozen victims

Newfoundland and Labrador.

The geographical connection of Newfoundland and Labrador has lasted throughout the ages. Documents are extant to prove that the Colony exercised jurisdiction over the dependency from the earliest days of the establishment of the Crown on this side of the Atlantic. The Telegram is greatly indebted to Mr. H. F. Shortis, historiographer of the Museum for a valuable fund of information in the form of copies of early documents proving incontrovertibly that the Governors of Newfoundland exercised legal control over Labrador and made their proclamations long before the Dominion of Canada confederated, and the British North American Act was passed. And yet to-day we find the Provincial Government of the Province of Quebec claiming authority over a portion of Labrador, about which their politicians did not have cognizance until a few years ago, when the Newfoundland Customs insisted upon the collection of duties from certain concerns engaging in the lumbering business on that section of the coast which had from time almost immemorial, been administered by Newfoundland. The first of these documents which are of incalculable value to historical records the publication of which we have been given the privilege to-day, will be followed up by other documentary evidence, proving that the ownership of Labrador, though vested in the Crown, has been a dependency of Newfoundland from the earliest days of settlement. The mere fact that a Governor of Newfoundland could issue a right of establishment to a religious denomination, foreign to its own theological acceptance, is worth more as evidence of long established government, than any ex-parte opinion of Canadian lawyers, no matter what their status.

Document 1.

By His Excellency Captain Hugh Fallisser, &c. Whereas the Society of United Fraternities (United Brothers) under the protection of His Majesty have from a pious zeal for promoting the knowledge of the true God and of the religion of our Blessed Lord the Saviour Jesus Christ amongst the heathen, formed a resolution of establishing a mission of their brethren upon the coast of Labrador and for that purpose have appointed John Hill, Christian Drachart, Jens Haven and Christian Schlozer to effect this pious purpose; and whereas the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty and the Lords Commissioners of Trade and Plantations have signified to me their entire approbation of an undertaking so commendable in itself and that promises so great benefit to the public, and are therefore desirous to certify to all persons whom it may concern, that the said John Hill, Christian Drachart, Jens Haven and Christian Schlozer are under His Majesty's protection and under His Majesty's military and all other of His Majesty's subjects within my Government, are hereby strictly charged and required not to give any interruption or hindrance to the said John Hill, Christian Drachart, Jens Haven and Christian Schlozer, but to afford them every aid and friendly assistance for the success of their pious undertaking for the benefit of mankind in News From Twillingate.

As far as can be gathered the destruction at Twillingate caused by the storm to shipping is not greater than has already been reported. Mr. D. Butler, of the National Cash Register Co., who returned from a business trip last night, reports that in Twillingate there was quite a lot of fish destroyed and the large coastal wharf shifted. Hodder's place there was also partly wrecked. The Arisen, he says, is likely to become a total loss, but some of the coal cargo is being discharged. Mr. Butler was at Joe Butt's Arm when the Danish schooner Bastian went ashore. He says she struck on Dean's Rock, about one mile above Change Islands. Seventeen men were at work on her trying to keep the vessel afloat. He did not hear how the vessel fared since the storm. At Indian Islands the storm wrought terrific havoc to fishing property. One planter there had the summer's fish of 5 hands with his store, stages and boats swept away. At Herring Neck not much damage was reported. One man lost a large motor boat which was split in twain, but fortunately he saved the engine. At Change Islands the wharves and stages and other fishing property were swept away. One man had two pigs drowned; they were found with their sty on Elliott's side of the harbor, having been thrown across by the seas. A large pile of lumber belonging to the Anglican Church was also swept away by the sea. During Sunday and Monday men were busy picking up the wreckage. Several vessels were loading in the harbor for market. One, the General Smuts, had 1400 qts. of fish on board, but they rode out the storm O. K. Mr. Butler arrived in by motor from Harbor Main. He says that the storm coming when the tide was high is responsible for most of the damage done.

Fatalities Reported.

CAPT GUSHUE AND MICHAEL CONNORS DROWNED. Deputy Minister of Customs LeMessurier received a message from sub-collector Roberts of Pilleys Island, yesterday afternoon stating the schooner Clarence B., owned by C. & A. Jervis, Brigus, had arrived at that port in a badly damaged condition, and reporting the loss of Captain George Gushue and Michael Connors, who were washed overboard during Sunday night. The message further states that the Clarence B. was bound from Indian Harbor, Labrador, and had 49 freighters on board, who were returning to their homes at the head of Conception Bay. The vessel was caught in the big storm, and is so badly damaged that she is unable to proceed further without assistance, and the passengers will be brought to Lewisporte by the S.S. Clyde. Capt. Gushue is a native of Brigus and has for many years been going to Labrador. Michael Connors also belonged to Brigus, and the sympathy of all goes out to their bereaved families.

Seaman Drowned.

William White of Grand Bank was washed overboard from the schooner "James and Stanley" during the recent storm, and was drowned. This news was contained in a message to the Department of Justice yesterday from Grand Bank. The accident occurred at 10 p.m. Sunday when the vessel was 100 miles off St. Pierre. White was married and had a large family.

Concert Season Commences.

Lovers of good music will be glad to learn that a Grand Concert has been arranged for Tuesday night, November 15th, at the Methodist College Hall in aid of the Methodist Orphanage. Miss Elsie Herder, one of our most popular soloists, has very kindly undertaken to arrange a suitable programme for this—the first concert of the season. Miss Herder will be assisted by Mrs. (Dr.) J. Murphy, Mrs. Outerbridge and Mr. Lloyd Woods. This fact in itself is a sufficient guarantee that the concert will be a musical treat of a very high order. It is to be hoped that all concert-goers will keep their date open, and by putting in an appearance, will help to swell the proceeds, which are to be devoted to so worthy a cause. Further particulars as to programme arrangements and tickets, will be announced later in the daily papers.—adv.11

Dogs Killing Poultry.

A number of setter dogs, wild after the season's hunt, are roaming at large in the neighbourhood of Long Pond and creating havoc amongst poultry. The animals killed a number of hens and ducks at Smithville Tuesday evening, and yesterday they were reported as killing a number of other hens in the same neighbourhood. It would be as well if the owners of these brutes would keep them chained up for a time at least.

McMurdo's Store News.

THURSDAY, Nov. 3. Liquid Silimerine has the remarkable property of keeping the hair in curl under all conditions, and is very convenient for use during Autumn, when the weather is often damp and misty. Silimerine will do the trick. Try it. Price $1.25 a package. McMurdo's Eczema Ointment is becoming well known for eczema troubles, and is a really valuable ointment for the relief of these distressing skin affections, and it has the added advantage of being quite moderate in price, 25c. a box.

Stolen Rum.

PROHIBITION PROSECUTION FAILS. The sequel to the case of the four young men recently fined for the larceny of a quantity of "booze," was heard before Judge Morris this morning in the Magistrate's Court, when a well known resident of Flat Rock was charged with having liquor in his possession contrary to the Prohibition Act. The defendant pleaded not guilty. D. Jas. Davies, Government Analyst, gave evidence concerning the analysis of the liquor. One of the young men implicated in the previous case, was called. He told how, in company with three others, he meted to a farm in Flat Rock and there conducted a search for liquor. They found some whisky in a stable, and some more in a cow shed. A stone disclosed by accident, disclosed a pit in which several kegs of rum were found. The haul was put in the car which had been left 100 yards from the stable. On the way to town the axle broke and witness got a friend of his at Torbay out of bed and asked him to take the stuff out in his express. On the way into town the cart was met by a car containing Head Constable Byrne and his associates who took over the stolen liquor and arrested the men who had taken it. Several other witnesses were examined for the prosecution. The accused, on oath, denied any knowledge of how the liquor came to be on his premises. He thought it quite possible that someone might have hidden it there without being seen. Defendant's counsel asked for a dismissal on the grounds that there was not sufficient proof to convict his client. The Judge said that if the liquor had been taken from the defendant without his knowledge, it could surely have been placed there without his knowledge. The defendant had stuck to his denial through a severe cross examination. He therefore had no option but to dismiss the case.

Opening Debate.

The new Literary and Debating Society which was formed recently by members of St. Andrew's Society, will hold its opening debate to-night. A large number of members have signified their intention of attending. A Hat Debate, which is always a source of considerable amusement, and has often the effect of forcing those possessed of shyness, to their feet, will be held. During the winter several debates will take place and should be productive of much interest as the Society numbers some exceptionally able speakers amongst its members.

Personal.

Mrs. W. Cheshire and daughter left by today's train for Halifax en route to Barbados. Mrs. Cheshire will be accompanied as far as Halifax by her father, Mr. F. W. Hayward. Mr. Jack Walsh, son of Mr. Patrick Walsh, H.M.C., is ill at the Fever Hospital. He is now well on the road to recovery.

Here and There.

Eat MRS. STEWART'S HOME MADE BREAD.—Oct.16m. High Teas will be served at 6 o'clock this evening in the Presbyterian Hall, in aid of the Girls' Industrial Home. Price $1.00. COLLECTING THE POLL TAX.—The City Council is now taking steps to collect the poll tax from all who have not yet paid up, and it is probable that legal steps will follow if those liable under the Act, do not recognize their liabilities more quickly.

RETURN GAME.—The Old Country team which recently defeated the Officers of the C.L.R. Cadets in a ping pong tournament, are playing a return game at the Armoury to-night. The C.L.R.C. team has been practicing hard of late and a keen contest is expected to ensue to-night.

AT THE BALSAM.—The following are guests at Balsam Place:—Mr. E. C. Nickerson, Mr. Bufett, Mr. C. Glass, Montreal; Mr. and Mrs. Collins, Halifax; Mr. V. A. Phil, Albans; Mr. P. Fudge, Pass Island; Dr. Fitzgerald, St. Jacques; Mr. C. Palmer, Curling.

PORT AU PORT FARED WELL.—Lt-Col. George Carty had a message from Port au Port this morning reporting that the storm, though severe, left in that section, did not cause much destruction. A number of fences, however, were destroyed and a small untenanted house demolished.

TERRIBLE DESTRUCTION.—The Sub-Collector at King's Cove has sent the following message to Deputy Minister of Customs LeMessurier:—"Four schooners ashore at Plate Cove; one a total wreck with 600 qts. of fish on board. Many motor boats were lost and terrible destruction to property has been done." These four schooners referred to have already been reported.

'Overland' Van to the Rescue.

It is a fortunate thing that our Postal authorities have an 'Overland' Mail Van, as since the washouts on the railway line, it has been making regular trips to Annapolis bringing in the mails. Each trip this little van has been loaded down with mails, but it has come through in record time. We think, it is a wonderful performance considering the awful state of our roads at present.

Seized Liquor Arrives.

About 90 gallons of liquor, which were seized at Sound Island by Sergt. Nugent, recently, and were brought here by the revenue cruiser Daisy, were taken to the police station to-day. The owner had to appear before the Magistrate at Placentia, where he was fined on two counts. Sergt. Nugent was sent out to investigate reported smuggling and he deserves great credit for his success.

CARD! TO THE Citizens of the St. John's Municipality. Ladies and Gentlemen, Having been interviewed by a large number of citizens at different times as to my intentions in the forthcoming Municipal Election, I beg to say that after due consideration I have decided to be nominated for the office of Mayor. The duties of the office require health, leisure and experience, and these qualifications I have, and am willing to devote them to the welfare of the City. To speak of anything like an elaborate policy would be a mistake and a deception, as the financial state of the Municipality, does not warrant any great expenditure; but as far as may be feasible I promise, if elected, to do my best for the City, and at the same time to exercise due economy. I have no campaign to make, nor literature to distribute, nor any photographs to exhibit; hence I do not require any committee. With the public I leave the result and shall be fully satisfied to abide by their decision. Respectfully submitted, I. C. MORRIS. St. John's, N.F., Nov. 2nd, 1921. nov3,21

Let's go to the Royal Stores

"I like shopping there, because everything is so conveniently arranged, so well thought out, and so cheery that it is a delight to walk around the different departments, and they do everything possible to help you at every counter. Further, it means a big saving for us in the housekeeping money. I always find that their prices, quality considered, are St. John's lowest, and that's a big consideration in itself."

These Prices are in Force Friday & Sat.

Captain's Narrow Escape.

Captain Arthur Kelly of Bay Roberts, who had a narrow escape from drowning when returning from Labrador a couple of weeks ago is now in poor health again. The accident happened in the height of a storm when the vessel was speeding under reefed sails. Captain Kelly and another hand were taking the job when a sea broke over the vessel and knocked him off the deck. The wheelman in the cockpit put his helm "hard up" and the vessel passed over Captain Kelly, rendering him unconscious. Meanwhile a sea was lashing and whilst the vessel was being brought to the apparatus a doomed man appeared at the surface when one of the crew named Mr. Brown, luckily hooked him with the hand-gaff. The unconscious man was then taken aboard the schooner. It was found on board that Captain Kelly had been wearing his coat when he went overboard and as they kept him afloat after he became unconscious.

Newfoundland Lady to Forefront.

It is frequently that we hear of the success of Newfoundland men abroad, but instances of our women who have become prominent are not so often heard. A few days ago Mr. John Savage Secretary of J. D. Ryan's employ, received a letter from his sister, Mrs. Ethel H. Ryan, saying that she was present at the National Capitol at Washington as a delegate of the Council of Canadian Women of Miami, Florida. Mrs. Ryan left here over 20 years ago and settled in Seattle, where she married her present husband, who is a wealthy contractor. She was formerly Secretary at J. B. Ayre's fruit and confectionery store on Water Street, and she well remembered by many in the city. After residing in Seattle for some years she moved to the South, where her husband belongs. Her well known social work in her former home soon brought her into prominence in Miami and she was chosen as the city representative of the Nation's Council of Catholic Women which is now assembled in convention at Washington. The body was given a reception at the White House by Mrs. Harding, wife of the President.

Armistice Night Dance.

The G.W.V.A. are celebrating Armistice night with a dance in the C.C.C. Hall this year, instead of holding a dinner. This was deemed advisable in order to give a greater number of ex-servicemen an opportunity of attending in company with their wives and sweethearts. Special preparations are being made for the affair, which promises to be most enjoyable. The Ladies' Auxiliary are attending to the supper arrangements and it is hoped to have a large gathering, so that Newfoundland, in common with other parts of the Empire, will fittingly celebrate the anniversary of peace and victory.

Girls' Industrial Home.

The attention of our readers is called to the Sale of Work, Tea and Confectionery which will take place to-day, Monday, in the Presbyterian Hall, in the City of St. John's. Lady Duff Assinon has kindly consented to open the sale at 2 p.m. At 5 p.m. a musical programme will be rendered by the following ladies and gentlemen:—Messrs. Foster, Garland and Campbell; Messrs. Rennie, Hutchings, Shea, Johnson and Withers and Messrs. McInnis and Steele.

Clyde's Report.

The following report was received from the Reid Nrd. Co. yesterday from the captain of the S.S. Clyde:—"Arrived after long and stormy trip. Reached Twillingate Friday 6 p.m., could not get out until Monday morning at 7 o'clock. Twenty four hours before we would land mail or passengers. Could not get to wharf to land freight until Monday. Blowing a gale all the time. The ship's big vessel "Arcton" with 100 tons of coal from Sydney, went ashore Friday night, full of water, expected to be total wreck. The vessel "M. P. Cashin" and "Violet" also damaged. Stages, stores, etc., washed away and considerable damage done to fish done all along the Coast. In Twillingate, Clyde received no message whatever."

We have many testimonials from Wholesalers stating that THE FACTORY BRAND CLOTHING is the most saleable line they handle. THE WHITE CLOTHING MFG. CO., LTD.—002774

Napoleon's Last Victory.

The battle of Ligny, fought between the French and the Prussians under Field-Marshal Prince Blucher, on June 16, 1815, is notable as the last victory gained by Napoleon. It was not, however, a really decisive triumph. The Prussians, indeed, lost heavily, and had their ranks turned after a stubborn contest; but they withdrew upon Wavre in good order, and thus maintained contact with Wellington, who fought on the same day at Quatre Bras. Blucher himself narrowly escaped death or capture, while heading a charge of lanciers against the French cuirassiers. His horse, a fine gray charger presented to him by one Prince Regent, had been wounded and fell just as the lanciers turned to fly. "Now, Nostitz, I am lost!" exclaimed Blucher to his aide-de-camp, as he sank beneath the dying steed. Count Nostitz, who alone in the press and confusion had kept beside his leader, at once dismounted and stood, sword in hand, over the fallen marshal, while the French cavalry swept past, regardless of the couple. But before Nostitz could extricate Blucher, the Prussians had rallied, turned, and compelled the cuirassiers to retire as speedily as they had advanced, so that the whole of the rabble routed again rushed past the prostrate marshal and his companion. But then the Prussians arrived in their turn, and Nostitz grasped the bridle of a non-commissioned officer's horse, and with the assistance of the soldier, disengaged his bruised and almost insensible commander, placed him in the saddle, and hurried him from the field upon which the night was falling. And thus Blucher escaped as by a miracle to play with wonderful energy his important part in the final act of the great drama at Waterloo, just two days later.

The Bought Treaty.

The ruling principle of Henry the Seventh's foreign policy was to maintain peace. Only once was he led into a foreign war, Duke Francis of Brittany had died, leaving his coronet to his daughter Anne, a girl of twelve, but the French King claimed the dukedom. Henry, who had spent a great part of his exile in Brittany, was forced to send an army to aid the defenceless princess; but his help was burdened with the condition that she should give up two forts as security for the money spent in her cause, and that she should not marry without his consent. Later, Anne was betrothed to Maximilian, King of the Romans, with the consent of Henry. Charles of France, however, forced the princess into a marriage with himself, and the King of England at last resolved on war. This was pleasing to the English people; for Henry had long been talking of war, and had often received supplies and extorted benefices for the purpose, but it had not yet been fulfilled. Still he invented reasons for delay, and it was not until he had been reigning seven years that he landed in France and laid siege to Boulogne. The invasion ended, as did that of Edward IV. The French King knew Henry's love of money, and ere the siege had lasted many days he secured the Treaty of Estaples by promising a large sum. Henry therefore received from Charles VIII of France, on November 3, 1492, £149,000, and retained, besides, all the money he had extorted from his subjects for the war. This caused much discontent among the people, while the nobles murmured that they had been balked of their conquest of France, in anticipation of which many of them had mortgaged their estates.

Just Folks
THE SITTING ROOM.
A grate fire and a snoring log. Upon the hearth a sleeping dog; The mother in her rocking chair Sewing fully many a rip and tear In little garments—while in bed Slumbers each drowsy curly head. Oh, mighty poets, can you miss The glory of such scenes as this?

That this might be, the pioneers Of Freedom suffered dreadful years; Braved countless dangers, forests wild, To bless with peace a little child; Took arms against a mighty foe; And smiling died that men might know Beyond all covetous desire A home roof and a happy fire.

All history from age to age Recorded on the printed page Of battlefields strewn thick with dead, And oceans waters running red. The cannon smoke and screaming shell This very simple story tell, 'Twas all to save from wreck and doom The glory of the sitting room.

Flood in China.

China's third great disaster within a year has been recorded in Anhwei province, where a large area has been flooded, with the loss of thousands of lives, and property damage conservatively estimated at $80,000,000.

The Anhwei catastrophe followed the famine in the seven northern provinces of the Republic in which millions, literally, perished, and the earthquake in Kansu province, in which 40,000 people are estimated to have been killed by tremors that devastated entire countries.

The floods of Anhwei cut rail connections between Shanghai and Tientsin and Peking. Wesley M. Smith, of the Southern Methodist mission at Changshu, Kiangsu province, who travelled across one hundred miles of flooded area, was the first arrival in Shanghai to bring an eye-witness account of the disaster.

The flood district, according to Mr.

Smith, lies about sixty miles north of Nanking. It is a low fertile country and was thickly populated, contained numerous villages and several walled cities of thousands of inhabitants. The inundation occurred when Hungtze Lake and some of its tributary rivers overflowed.

Refugees gathered on the railway embankments in the flood area with their belongings, and so closely were these unfortunate packed on these restricted islands in the midst of the watery wastes that numbers were killed by relief and construction trains.

Similar floods devastated this district in 1909 and 1916.

Force of the Human Eye.

Intense scientific interest centres in the "Look-at-Meter"—the strange instrument which is moved by the human eye. The instrument, broadly speaking, consists of a delicately suspended "solenoid" (a wire in spiral form) steadied by a bar magnet, and is somewhat in the nature of the electroscopes used to measure minute currents of electricity. When the observer looks fixedly at the centre of the hanging solenoid it does not move. Look at the left side and it turns away from you. Alter your vision to the right side and it turns in the other direction. If the gaze remains fixed on one end, the solenoid remains deflected. Shut the eyes and it returns to its original position. Scientists infer that the effect is an optical one. One suggests a series of tests to ascertain the nature of the rays responsible. If lead glass stops them they are probably X-rays, he says. Other screens would show if the rays could be ultra-violet, infra-red or visual rays. He quotes Dr. J. D. Stuttle, another eminent scientist, the suggestion that "the fixation point of the fovea" may be responsible. The fovea is a little pit in the retina of the eye, and Dr. Stuttle suggests that this spot in the eye may be very superior to the rest of the retina in its activity.

Something About Knives

The finest knives in the world are made in Sheffield. Have you ever noticed a dirty-looking patch on the blade of a table knife near the handle end, as though someone had placed a thumb mark on it before the steel was quite solid?

The presence of this mark is a good test that the knife is of the best possible quality, because it is only on knives made of the famous "shear" steel that it is found.

"Shear" steel originated in Sheffield centuries ago, and was so called because of the great demand for it for tailor's shears or scissors. It is made from Swedish bar-iron, which is the purest in the world, by processes so expensive that only the cutting part of the knife is made from it.

The tang which is secured to the handle, and the shoulder at the end of the blade, are of a cheaper steel welded on; hence the patch.

The method gives the finest cutting knife in the world at a competitive price.

Other countries tried in vain to make a knife which would keep its cutting edge like a Sheffield "shear" steel knife. They used the same materials, but failed to get the results desired, and so the superiority was ascribed of some secret in the hardening of the blade.

ingly overcrowded. Accidents due to passengers falling off the buffers were so forth were so common as to be for no comment. Ninety-five per cent of the Russian people were from Novocherkassk, Volga, and had been teaching English in this since 1913. People in that country now were so short of food that they were glad to eat biscuits made from pig food. The bread was of sand and pieces of stick and straw and roubles. She had been trying to get away since Christmas, and travelled on an engine and in a truck containing thirty-seven people. Dr. Nina Droethlinga stated that cholera was worst in South Russia and there was a great lack of doctors and medicine.

Chinamen's Treasure for British Columbia

Cached under a slab of rock in Tulameen district, just south of Princeton, a big saki bottle, containing pounds of platinum lay undiscovered for thirty years. When the bottle was hidden away, its contents were worth $58; a few weeks ago with platinum quoted at $75 an ounce, the treasure realized $7,100.

Ah Foo, Chew Lum, Ning Pan and Soo Key, four Chinese prospectors and miners, who wandered over the Tulameen district in the early nineties, laboriously gathered the platinum, then valued at 50 cents an ounce. One day, when breaking camp and going in different directions, it was decided to cache the platinum and return for it the following year. The opportunity never came. The four Chinamen died apart, and in the course of time returned to China. Last year the quartette met at a celebration, and talking over old times, remembered the cache of platinum, and wondering if it was still there, they decided to realize it this year. # Fishermen! Here's the Boot for You-"Excel"!

"EXCEL" Made "All in One Piece"

"EXCEL"

The Fishermen's Friend

All fishermen know from experience what happens to ordinary boots when used in fishing. You've seen how salt water seems to take the life out of rubber and how the uppers crack and the soles wear through in a surprisingly short time.

The "EXCEL" is a different and better kind of boot. It has been made especially to stand up under the unusually hard use a fisherman's boot gets.

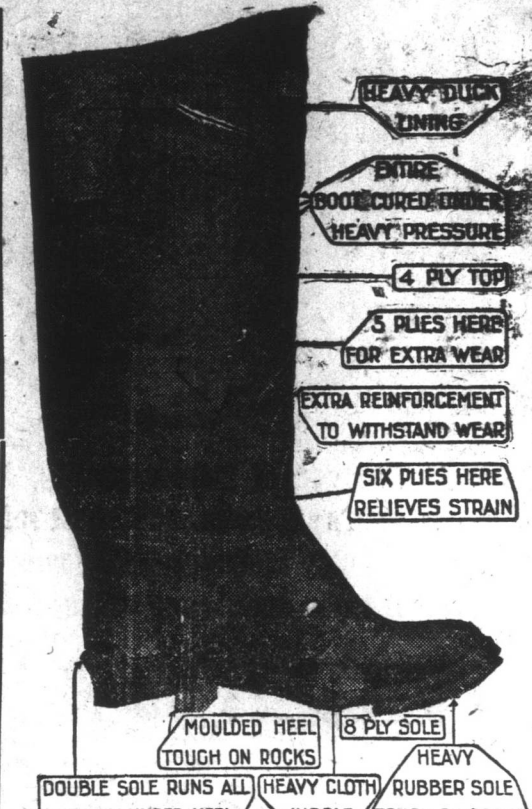

The rubber and fabric in "EXCEL" boots are of the very highest quality. But it is the special method of curing, under tremendous pressure, that makes the "EXCEL" so wear-resisting. The pressure forces the layers of rubber and fabric together so that they are actually "one-piece", without losing the least bit of the life or resiliency of the rubber. Salt water has practically no effect on "EXCEL" boots. The UPPERS remain pliable and weatherproof, and resist the drying-out action of sun, heat and extreme cold far longer than other boots. Consequently they don't crack anywhere near so quickly. The SOLES are almost wear-proof, because they are made like an Auto Tire, with 8 plies of rubber and fabric welded by tremendous pressure into a "tire-tread" sole that rivals an automobile tire for toughness and durability.

strain. There is not a single feature but what has been proved necessary and desirable by tests of severest use. Your own experience will tell you that a boot with these features simply must be a better boot.

Study this picture. Learn these features. Remember them when you compare "EXCEL" boots with ordinary boots. And remember, too, that very important point which the picture cannot show, namely, that "EXCEL" boots are cured under tremendous pressure, which leaves the rubber pliable, weatherproof and wear-resisting. It is only by the use of this tremendous pressure combined with highest quality materials that the best results are obtained.

Pliable Uppers. Weatherproof and Wear Resisting. Tough Tire Tread Soles. Made "All in One Piece."

"EXCEL" Boots are sold by all reliable dealers from Coast to Coast.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

DO YOU KNOW ANYONE LIKE THIS?

A few weeks ago several of us went to call on a friend and found her suffering the agonies of hay fever.

Hay fever, like sea sickness, is one of those diseases for which you never get a cure. It is a chronic ailment, and it is a nuisance to the sufferer. It is a disease that is not understood by the general public, and it is a disease that is not treated with the same care as it should be.

But this friend was so genuinely miserable, so utterly miserable, so utterly miserable, that we decided to try something. We tried a certain kind of treatment, and she was cured. We had found a remedy for her. We had found a remedy for her. We had found a remedy for her.

She ignored the condition all she could. Her neglect and her refusal to allow anyone else to suggest that her injuries be investigated and treated almost drove the family mad. After six years of suffering and inflicting suffering on everyone around her she reached a stage where she could no longer walk. She then started a course of scientific treatment that straightened her back and hips almost entirely. The doctor who treated her claimed that he could have cured her entirely had she started treatment a year earlier.

What a waste of health and happiness such a course represents! Why should anyone want to make himself and those whom he loves so much misery? They Think They Are Unselfish But They Are Not.

Of course we all object to the sort of person who is constantly fancying that there is something the matter with him and rushing to the doctor with every little ache and pain, but that is no reason for going to the opposite extreme.

I have a feeling that people who do this sort of thing picture themselves as very heroic and commendable. They think there is something fine and brave and unselfish about neglecting themselves. Whereas, since no one can live to himself alone and the illness of any one member of a family is bound to react on the life and destinies of the rest, to fail to do everything one can to keep well is distinctly selfish.

The New China.

"An' the Dawn Comes up Like Thunder Outer China 'trest the Bay!" —Kipling.

The Chinese have just taken a new census, which shows a population of 446 millions—ten millions more than the population of all Europe. The figures are sufficiently striking in themselves, but taken in conjunction with the amazing social changes that have taken place during the last ten years in China since the revolution, their significance is startling enough in all conscience to anybody who gives the future of the great yellow race a few minutes' earnest thought.

Changing Quicker Than Japan.

Mr. Lenox Simpson, a distinguished representative of the Chinese Government, now on a visit to this country, had some extremely interesting things to say in the course of a talk with a representative of this journal. He pointed out what wonderful strides China has made since, only a few years ago, she threw a civilization, unchanging for thousands of years, into the melting-pot. Much more than Japan, China's tens of millions are assimilating Western ideas and adopting Western ways. Electric light, works, gas works, railways, are rapidly growing up everywhere. To-day the streets of Peking are as difficult to cross as those of Paris because of the motor-car traffic.

We are inclined to look upon China with 446 millions as over-populated, but Mr. Simpson says there is plenty of room for many more people.

The Chinese Girl.

Great industrial expansion is bound to be the outcome now that this nation, asleep for thousands of years, has senses no longer dulled by opium, has become wide awake and eagerly active. At present the volume of trade in China amounts to under £400,000,000, or something near £1 per head. Mr. Simpson prophesies an enormous growth in this trade in the early future.

In the creation of the new social order the Americans are playing a very important part. China has schools for girls run by Americans. These girls have little in common with their mothers; Western ideas about dress and marriage have taken the place of the old ones. With regard to dress, they are creating fashions inspired by Parisian models. They no longer indulge in the stupid and cruel practice of binding the feet. This custom to-day is looked upon as immodest. The girls fall in love and marry young men of the same free and independent outlook. Most young men in China to-day have at least one or two European suits in their wardrobes, and foreign clothes are being made by tailors throughout the country. Tens of thousands of these young men have been students in America. At all Government functions evening clothes are the official dress, as in France.

What are these young people reading, so far as English literature is concerned? They are deeply interested in philosophy and sociology, and no men are more widely read than Bertrand Russell, Norman Angell, and H. G. Wells. Of English fiction writers, Conan Doyle has easily first place with "Sherlock Holmes." There is a great appetite for detective stories.

China is the only nation in which religion is divorced from ethics. Ancestor worship is the custom, and this is based, in a great measure, upon principles of heredity. The Chinese wor### ships his ancestors in just the same way as a modern racehorse might worship Stockwell. In fact the Chinese worships his stud-book, and he is careful to show it in order to prove that he is a healthy, reputable man because he comes of a good stock. The great ambition of the Chinese is to have five or six generations residing in the same house. The fortunate families which achieve this distinction are honored by the local authorities, who put beautiful tablets over their doors, stating to that effect. Confucius did not preach the future life. When asked his views, he said, "What is the good of talking ### about the unknown and unknowable, when we understand so little about the things we can see?"

Religion And The Younger Generation.

The ethical system in China is derived from tradition. Once a year the Chinese have a great religious festival in the Temple of Confucius—a wonderful building in Peking, one of the most wonderful in the world. But as far as the younger generation in China is concerned, who are being educated in Western ideas, this ancestor worship is now looked upon with amused toleration, just as Londoners regard the Lord Mayor's Show. They have lost their old religion, and so far nothing has taken its place.

Like Japan, China has an enormous number of newspapers—many more than in this country. Actually there are 2,000 publications, of which 800 are daily papers.

Fighting a Low Business.

Belief in a low business, or no significance in China at present, as there is no such thing as a capitalist system for the modern credit system is in its infancy.

In the East, during the war, the common people discovered what has been learned by the common people elsewhere—that government can be made practically impossible by combination of objecting forces. Perhaps even the educated in the West hardly realize that stable government can exist only with the consent of the vast majority of the people to be governed. Until recent years this truth was not appreciated at all in the East, or perhaps in Russia. Now it is well understood.

It is not thought the right thing for a good-class Chinese to fight. Fighting is a low business, and the proper course in the Chinese mind is to employ the fighting race to do what is required. But assassination is not unknown.

The Chinese like England, but there is a great danger that through our alliance with the Japanese we shall permanently lose their friendship; and it must be remembered that the Americans are doing great work there, industrially as well as in the social and educational spheres.—John O'London's Weekly.

Why Should You Follow A Crooked Path?

Often a cowpath has been allowed to become a village street, and as the village expanded, tradition has made the winding way an expression of a cow's will.

Habit is always forging chains to enslave us, so that what has been found bearable by the fathers is accepted by the sons.

As children, we were not permitted to drink tea or coffee, because it would stunt our growth or make us nervous and irritable. When older, however, we craved a hot drink with meals, and custom gave us our tea or coffee.

Finally, upon the instructions of the doctor, Mother gave up her tea and coffee. But that meant nothing in our young lives. Our vitality was then strong enough to throw off any ill effects.

But our time came, and we learned by experience that we could not drink tea or coffee. When we had it for breakfast it put our nerves on edge. When we drank it at the evening meal, we tossed about in wakefulness most of the night.

And then we found Postum, a pure cereal beverage, free from the harmful drug, caffeine, in tea and coffee. We liked the rich, satisfying flavor of Postum—and also the better health which resulted. And, too, we were surprised to find how many of our neighbors had made the same discovery—had learned the value of "health first."

Postum comes in two forms: Instant Postum (in tins) made instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages of larger bulk, for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared) made by boiling for 20 minutes. Sold by all grocers.

DIVORCES.

Divorce news fills the public prints, and jar the gentle readers; and dames in silk and dames in chintz for court decrees are pleaders. They form a dismal caravan, these dames who tire of marriage; a nod now and then a loomed man looms up, with humble carriage. "Gadooks!" we mutter, as we read, "odfish and eke ge-whizzle! Is matrimony gone to seed? Are wedding vows a fizzle? Our institutions are at fault, since sacred vows are shifting; is it not time to call a halt? Oh, wither are we drifting?" But where one female goes to court to have her vows rescinded, and be the melancholy sport of lawyers broken-winded, a hundred wear their wedding rings, old fashioned homes adorning, and cherish still the filmy things they were one marriage morning. The girls with woes of many tints, who want a separation, all break into the public prints, and make a large sensation. But happy wives who hold the fort don't get that sort of mention; they air no grievances in court, and so escape attention. So when you read of divers' dames, with troubles true or phony, who ask to have their maiden names and simple alimony, remember that for every one who takes these public courses, a hundred other women shun the court that deals divorces!
