It is possible that food costs are touching bottom. The report of the bureau states that the average cost of the 29 articles on the food-price index was $10.54 in March for a family of five, as compared with $10.61 in February, $13.23 in March 1921; $15.98 in March, 1920, and $7.68 in March, 1914. It would seem that find march, 1914. It would seem that food costs average about 57 cents per week per head more than they did in pre-war days. The decline in the price of the 29 foodstuffs on the index has been $1.08 per head per week during the last two years.

The one sure and certain way of having young men and young women grow up to their estate clean in mind and body is to surround them with clean influences while they are boys and girls. This does not mean rear them as cisses; it was long ago established that a man may be a gentle-man and a Christian and still be a athlete, and even a good sport. The book of knowledge need not be sealed in order to rear a boy or girl along right lines; they should not be allowed to drift into the ways of death because they were not warned of the danger.

Amherstburg Echo:-Farmers in this vicinity are very much interested and some of them concerned in regard to the coming new classification in hog grading that will come into effect on June 1st. The matter is not thoroughly understood and meetings are being held at different points in the open where experie where experie where experts explain the Ontario, different weights, using live hogs for demonstration purposes. The idea is to offer a bonus for purely bacon hogs, that come on the market between 170 ard 210 pounds. We under that before are authorized to stand that buyers are authorized to pay 10% over the market price for this class of hogs, so that if the rul-ing price were $11 a cwt., hogs that are graded r in the highest class at point of buying will bring $12.10 per cwt. Whether this will attract farmers into changing their hogs or not remains to be seen, as there is a country wide debate now on, as to the additional cost it takes to produce a purely bacon type hog over the or-dinary breeds which have been raised in this district. Another question arises, and will have to be adjusted, or buyers will certainly be in wrong, and that is whether local grading is final. If it is not, when a carload of hogs arrives in Toronto unsatisfac torily graded, according to the packers, there is a fine chance to put the dealers out of business by culling the lot and paying for them at the price of ordinary hogs, whereas they may have been bought as select bacon types. A good deal of light has yet to be thrown on the question if friction is to be avoided.

NEURALGIA AND SCIATICA Caused by Starved Nerves Due to Weak, Watery Blood.

People think of neuralgia as a pain in the head or face, but neuralgia may affect any nerve of the body. Different names are given to it when it affects certain nerves. Thus neu-ralgia of the sciatic nerve is called sciatica, but the character of the pain and the nature of the disease is the same. The cause is the same, and the remedy to be effective, must be the same. The pain of neuralgia, whether it takes the form of sciatica, The London Daily Mail, in discussing the competition that men are meeting from women in the field of The blood, which normally carries nourishment to the nerves, for some nourishment to the nerves. the idea that where equal work is performed there should be an equality of remuneration, but adds: "The cloud on the horizon is not women's emergence in realistics."

blood itself is weak and thin.

When you build up the thin blood with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, you with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, you are attacking neuralgia, sciatica and kindred diseases at the root. The value of these pills in cases of this kind is shown by the experience of Miss Beulah M. Fairweather, Cumberland Bay, N.S., who says: "A few years ago, following an attack of measles, I was left in a badly run down condition. I was weak and very nexvous, and had no appetite. A doctor was and had no appetite. A doctor was called in and gave me medicine, but it did not help me. My blood was thin and my hands and feet were always cold. Then to add to my misery I was attacked with neuralgia, from was attacked with neuralgia, from which I suffered greatly. I was reduced to a mere skeleton, and did not care whether I lived or not. I was in this deplorable condition when I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. It was some time before I could motorized as Toronto. Pills. It was some time before I could notice any benefit from the pills, but before a half dozen boxes were used there was no doubt that they were helping me. Then I got six more boxes, and before they were done I was once more enjoying good health and am now strong and healthy. I shall always feel grateful for what the pills have done for me, and urge all weak people to give them a trial."

You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicne Co., Brockville, Ont.

"LOOKING BACKWARD"

(Detroit News.)
When Edward Bellamy, 38 years ago, wrote his fascinating phophecy, "Looking Backward" from the year 2000, people gasped at the daring while appreciating his imagination. In one astounding chapter the "Rip Van Winkle" of the narrative is taken to the music room where he is asked to make known his choice from a very long 24-hour music program. He indicates an organ piece; his hostess "made me sit down comfortably, and crossing the room, as far as I could see, merely touched one or two screws, and at once the room was filled with the music of a grand organ anthem.' Such an incredible prophecy that the Bellamy work was classified in the libraries as "fiction", and so speedily has scientific development. occurred that in many libraries it still is "fiction." Yet this is only 1922 not 2000, and by the time the Bellamy era of prediction is reached, who dares to foretell the achievements of men.

It takes a business man to describe a costume to his wife. A man of commerce, after seeing a very taking dress on a very taking young lady recently, informed the partner of his joys that: "It was fine. The dress was made of some sort of cloth, with me sort of trimming. It was a sort of lilac or shrimp pink in color. She wore one of those hats you sometimes see on women, and altogether gave an effect that I wish you could have seen."

ANOTHER DOMESTIC LOAN TO TO RECLAIM DROWNED LANDS

The Canadan Government will shortly float a domestic loan of two hundred million dollars, the greatest federal financing since 1919. This loan will be used almost entirely to refund a previous war loan of nearly two hundred million dollars due this year. It is expected that the loan will two hundred million dollars due this year. It is expected that the loan will be a 5 per cent. issue and will be placed by a combination of brokerage firms at a small percentage. It was believed that the Government would have floated this loan in New York to readjust Camadian exchange and also to conserve domestic capital for industrial expansion, but of late the Canadian bond market has shown such increased powers of absorption that it has been decided to keep the Canadian national debt as far as possible among Canadian possible among Canadians.

Sin Arthur's spiritualistic teaching and the teachings of Christ do not line up, Mr. Markham said, and he "believes in Jesus."

"I have investigated spiritualism," said the gray-headed philosopher, "and I am convinced it is one of the best things in the world to let alone.'

"It tends to queer all people who gets into it. It sends them into the insane asylums. Several of my friends have dabbed in it, and all of them became unsettled mentally. They became detached from the practical. They took on a weird look in the even They took on a weird look in the eye

"There is, of course, some fraud in the doings of the seance, and yet there may be a grain of reality under the tawdry show of the so-called spirit communication. It is possible, I admit, that some discarnate spirits communicate. But the communication is always commonplace, a mere exegesis of the obvious, a ramble of words about things of no consequence a waste of time.

"Sir Arthur hands out to us a weak flabby optimism—a teaching that is in direct denial of the heroic philosophy of Jesus, for Jesus' philosophy is that life is a battle and a march. Sir Arthur says that the way of life is not narrow and hard, as Christ said it is, but that it is broad and easy. This doctrine reduces life to a mere laughing Mardi Gras.

IN MEMORY OF MRS. JOHN SHANNON

April 8th, 1922 The nineteenth century is completed. The volume now is closed, Each chapter of that life repleted. Each paragraph disclosed, The flavor of a useful herb For those she loved, and cared, Those who have known, and seen, and heard Her richest virtue shared.

Her influence could not be lost In vapid atmosphere What she imparted; something cost Her heart, and soul, were these,

That every veiw point was correct That thought she ne'er impressed What she discerned it was direct
She was; what she confessed,
Convictions deep were clearly shown
On objects of her life

She left an impress of her own
As mother, and as wife,
She lived for those she loved the best
With an unselfish heart,

Her worn out tent, we leave to rest, She gladly did depart. She had her own peculiar place And this she tried to fill And with an humble, fragrant grace She exercised her skill.

that I remember," writes Mrs. R. Terrell, of 169, Dorian St., Montreal, "was the time I was crippled with a bad leg. The trouble all started in an ordinary oruse, but in a day or two the injured part became worse, and soon it had developed into a painful open sore. I suffered intense pain, and walking about became so difficult that I had to give it up.

"I tried many different treatments—some proved no use at all, others did no more than temporary good. Then one day a friend strongly recommended Zam-lsuk. This remarkable healer gave great ease and speedily brought about a marked improvement in the condition of my leg. I steadily persevered with the Zam-lsuk treatment and within two months, the five-year-old sore was thoroughly and permanently healed."

TEA GROWING VERY EXPENSIVE

The very high wages that have to be paid to workers on the tea plant-ations in India and Ceylon, due to social and political unrest, has caused the price of tea to rise consistently in the primary markets and in London. This influence is now being felt farther along the line and it is to be expected that the price of tea will increase to the consumer in the ear future.

ANTS LIKE THEIR BOOZE, SAYS HARVARD SCIENTIST

Ants are like people—they like booze, they enjoy woman suffrage and many of them are skillful grafters—in the observation of Professor William Morton Wheeler, dean of the Bussey Museum at Harvard University, who has recently completed a tour of the world to learn what he could about the busy little fellows.

Professor Wheeler invaded many Professor Wheeler invaded many countries traveling through dangerous parts of Africa, Asia and other localities in his hunt for scientific knowledge. That "man after all is but a large brained animal," is one of his conclusions. He met and be-came acquainted with about 10,000 came acquainted with about 10,000 species of ants during his travels.

"The similarity between these insects and humans is striking," he comments. "Three fundamentals guide their lives, like ours; they are hunger, sex and fear."

"In most insect orders the female is in control," he says, reminding that more than one expert has predicted this future for mankind.

"The numerous grafters among the ants reminds us of our own kind. Large numbers of ants, like humans, manage to get their living without working for it."

Professor Wheeler found the booze-loving ants in large numbers in the tropics. Whenever they get the chance, he explains, they will climb all over, and into, if possible, the wine, beer and rum casks sent to that area in generous quantities. They make it perfectly clear that they like the stuff from the way they go after it, and they get helplessly intoxicated on it, too, he declares.

What Men Admire Most in Women is Perfect Health —the Sign of Strength

Mothers, Advice for You!

London, Out.—'I wish I could tell all the women in the world who suffer with woman's trouble, what a wonderful medicine Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is. My earliest experience with it was during my first expectancy. I became dropsical and my people were quite alarmed about my condition. The doctor's medicine did not seem to reach my trouble at all so my husband urged me to try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and to please him I did. Before I had finished the second bottle the distress and dropsy left me and I felt in absolutely perfect health. I had no further trouble from that time on. I afterwards took Favorite Prescription whenever in a nervous rundown condition and it always. Presorbition whenever in a nervous rundown condition and it hiways strengthened and built me up."—Mrs. Lily Stoddart, 438 Ontario St. At all drug stores, or send 10c to Dr. Pierce's Laboratory, in Bridgeburg, Ont., for trial pkg. tablets. THE COAL STRIKE

It is twenty years since there has been a great coal strike. In 1902 the strikers were led by John Mitchell and were led with unusual ability. There can be no question of the capacity of Mr. Mitchell, for he died leaving a fortune that might almost entitle him to rank with the pluto-crats, and he did this without ever giving rise to the suspicion that he was false or indifferent to the interests of the union men who regarded him as their champion. Another John, to wit Lewis, is now leading the coal miners, who are waging what may be the greatest strike in the history of this continent. Only its vast possibil ities for the disruption of business, the destruction of industries, even the sacrifice of human life, make it practically certain that it will not be allowed to exert its full pressure up-on the public. If the strike is not settled in a few weeks the Govern-ment will intervene. No matter who is wrong, no matter if right is altogether on the side of one party and wrong the exclusive attribute of the other, the American Government can not afford to consider anything but the interests of the people who will starve to death next Summer or freeze to death next Winter if the mines are not operated.

This fact is the ace the miners have up their sleeve. They know that as a last resource the Government will operate the mines, and if the Government operates it will not be with soldiers or civil servants. It will be with the men who have operated the mines, that is with the strikers and the non-union men who may not join the strikers. The strength of their position is increased by the fact that the mine owners do not want either Government operation or a Government investigation into the question of the profits made by the owners. The owners must win the strike in a hurry or not win it at all. Latest news is to the effect that the strikers are being joined by an unexpectedly large number of non-union workers. Unless the owners are able to convince the general pub-lic that the high prices it is obliged Is your subscription paid in advance?

Mrs. Miner's Testimony

Churubusco, N. Y.—'I was under the doctor's care for over five years for backache and had no relief from his medicine. One day a neighbor told me about your Vegetable Compound and I took it. It helped me so much that I wish to advise all women to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for female troubles and backache. It is a great help in carrying a child, as I have noticed a difference when I didn't take it. I thank you for this medicine and if I ever come to this point again I do not want to be without the Vegetable Compound. I give you permission to publish this letter so that all women can take my advice."—Mrs. Fred MnNER, Box 102, Churubusco, N. Y.

It's the same story over again. Women suffer from ailments for years. They try doctors and different medicines, but feel no better. Finally they take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and you can see its value in the case of Mrs. Miner.

That's the truth of the matter. If you are suffering from any of the troubles women have, you ought to try this medicine. It can be taken in safety by young or old, as it contains no harmful drugs.

With the prospect of the new Fruit Marks Act regulations coming into effect this season the question of finish and quality of fruit is one which should more than ever attract the attention of growers. The new regulations which are much more specific in their statement of what constitutes blemishes for the higher grades than the act now in force, make it ex-tremely desirable that the sprays to be used should be carefully selected. The wholesale use of Bordeaux mixture, accompanied as it generally is by lack of finish and often by an actual russeting of the fruit, should be practised with extreme caution. Russeting may now be responsible for as high a percentage of loss in the highest grade (extra fancy) a moderate infestation of scab.

Whereas Bordeaux is responsible for much russeting of the fruit, it is likewise admitted that lime sulphur is capable of actually improving the finish of the product and is in addition an efficient fungicide.

As the russeting is naturally caused by these sprays given after the bloom has fallen, the use of Bordeaux previous to that stage may be advocated where deemed advisable. advocated where deemed advisable. Undoubtedly the old 4-4-40 Bordeaux is the greater sinner in respect to russeting injury than the newer recommendations of 3-10-40, 4-8-40, etc., and the later formulae should be used in preference to the older one. Taking into consideration control of scab, finish of fruit and quality; in short, the pack, out, the foilowing recommendations for orchard use would seem to be the most commendable:

1st spray-either Bordeaux or 2nd spray-either Bordeaux or ard spray—lime sulphur.

4th spray—lime sulphur.

The absolute necessity of applying three or more sprays should be un-derstood. Trees not sprayed, or poorly sprayed, will not only produce poor quality of fruit and less of it, but, on account of foliage injury brought on by fungus diseases as well as insect pests, are in no condition to form a crop of fruit buds for the succeeding year.

In order to determine possible reduction of crop by the use of spray mixtures and actual count of some thousands of bloom was made last season at the Central Experimental Farm and the following re sults noted:

Where lime sulphur, specific gravity .007, was used 17.4% of the blooms set fruit. Where Bordeaux Where lime sulphur, 3-10-40 formula was used, 17.7% of the blooms set fruit. There was practically no difference in the set of the two plots to the spray used.

These results do not indicate a loss due to the use of lime sulphur as a spray for orchard use in the Prov nce of Ontario.

With the advent of calcium arsen-ate as an insecticide it should, on account of its cheapness and insecticide properities, displace the use of Paris green on potatoes, which is always liable to be attended by foliage injury. For the control of fungus diseases of potatoes Bordeaux mixture of the 4-4-40 formula is to be highly commended. Lime sulphur should be availed to a private the be avoided. As an insecticide, to be combined with the Bordeaux, use one to one and one-half pounds dry ar-senate of lime to every forty gallons of the spray mixture. This combina-tion has proved on the Experimental Farms to be a thoroughly efficient control for blight and potato.

AID POSTAL SERVICE

The United States has had a regular aerial postal service for four years, and it is now an established part of the system. Within the last three months 10,000,000 letters have been carried by air mail with an almost total absence of accident. In 1920 the cost per mile of the service was $8; in 1921 it had dropped to $6 a mile. The New York Evening Post says that the development of motors which will use heavy oils as fuel in-stead of the most expensive grades of gasoline promises to reduce the cost of commercial flying, as well as lessen the risk of conflagration where volatile "gas" and electric sparks travel together.

Europe has a number of regular passenger air services, and the other day two aeroplanes on the Paris-London route collided. The most notable achievement on this side of the Atlantic this year was the flight of Vincent Astor's air yacht from Palm Beach, Florida, to New York, a distance of 1,210 miles, in 9 hours 56 tance of 1,210 miles, in 9 hours 56 minutes flying time, a speed of 120 to 130 miles an hour having been maintained. The yacht left Palm Beach at 5.48 a.m. on Monday last and alighted in the Hudson River at 5.04 p.m., only one stop having been made. It flew generally at an altitude of 1,800 feet, but passed through three storms, and at times was only 20 feet above the water. In this country Quebec has been foremost in

The Only Asphalt Shingle That Is Tapered

Winthrop Tapered Shingles are the only tapered asphalt shingles manufactured. They have three outstanding features that make them a perfect roofing:

They are the big but shingles—the only asphalt shingle that gives a shadow line, which so improves the appearance of a roof—something architects have long wanted in Asphalt Shingles.

2—They are scientifically constructed. They are tapered. Being thicker at one end than the other, the butt of the shingle overlapping lies flat on the upper part of the shingle in the row below. No rain or snow can accumulate underneath—wind cannot get under them and blow them

3—Being tapered extra thick-ness and weight are distri-buted where extra thickness and weight are needed—in the part exposed to the Quality of materials and production methods are of the usual high Brantford Roofing standard.

Brantford Winthrop Tapered Asphalt Slates are made from carefully selected Felt saturated and coated with a special blend of asphalts. Real quarried, crushed slate, in its natural colors (red or green or blue black) is embedded into and encrusted on them while the asphalt is hot. They are unaffected by climate. The colors are permanent, and never need staining. They are highly fire-resistant and they are tapered.

Farmers, Attention!

DEICO-LIGHT Reduced to $495 "Electricity for every Farm"

I wish to call your attention to the fact that Delco-Light is reduced

Every progressive farmer today is interested in electric light and power for the farm, especially for the benefits which the women on the farm derive from its use, in regards to washing, churning, ironing, separating and pumping, not to mention the convenience and saftey of the lights.

An exploding lantern in your barn would set you back the price of quite a few Delco-Light plants.

Therefore with Delco-Light and wiring reduced to its present basis electricity is within reach of every farmer.

Don't Wait Until Fall. Get it NOW and have its benefits.

If interested give me a call and let me tell you all about it. It cost nothing to find out.

"Wait a minutes, Jones, I want to use that plane."

The young aviator to whom Larry Cassidy addressed the words looked around in surprise.

"I like your nerve!" he exclaimed. "What for? I've just got it ready to tise myself."

For answer Larry grasped his arm and pointed to where a huge airship fluttered aimlessly in the air, like a

"Yes," he replied again, as the plane shot forward and gracefully rose in the air. "We trained together, went overseas together and brought down Boche planes together. But Wallie's gone all to pieces, lately," he added in a louder tone, as conversation became increasingly difficult. "I told him this morning that he was in no condition to make the mail trip. Something's gone wrong already."

Something's gone wrong already.

It was no easy task to overtake the mail ship. It's creatic twistings and turnings carried it ever just begond the other plane, now up, now down, now poising for a moment as if to zoom to earth, then suddenly if to zoom to earth, then suddenly weering off to east or west and just as suddenly doubling back to its former position. Cassidy's anxiety increased. "Wireless Mason to tet down the ladder," he shouted to his companion "Tell him to try to hold the plane steady till I come."

"If he doesn't he's doomed," was the really as the man crashed the ment of hemp. He fully realized the frightful chance he was about to take of being dashed to death on the ground, thousands of feet below, when he made the leap from plane to plane his life would literally be in his hands. It would hang by a thread. He wondered, vaguely, if his strength would prove equal to the tremendous strain on nerve and muscle when the test came.

"That concerns a lady," replied Van Arland as he replaced it in his pocket, "and therefore is not to be plane his life would literally be in his pocket, "and therefore is not to be plane his life would hang by a thread. He wondered, vaguely, if his strength would prove equal to the tremendous strain on nerve and muscle when the test came.

Van Arland's tone and manner confirmed Wally's suspicions. His nerves, already overstrained, gave way completely. Impetuously he demanded the return of the croix degient preparations for a night of terror. In one of those ships, of death sat Wallie Mason.

Twice the dangling rope was so close that Cassidy could almost have touched it. But the position of the two ships was not favorable for the leap. A third time he nosed his ship downward and came up, smoothly leap. A third time he nosed his ship downward and came up, smoothly and evenly, directly under the mail ship. For the merest instant the rope ladder swung above him. With outstretched arms Cassidy sprang forward, eyes fixed, teeth set, muscles taut. Then the wings of the plane upon which he had been standing drifted away from beneath his feet and he ed away from beneath his feet and he

The jar and sudden tension was terrific. For what seemed an eternity to Cassidy he swung there in mid-air, before he could steady himself for before he could steady himself for the perilous climb upward. Then, swiftly, rung by rung, he mounted the trembling ladder until, at last, he found himself going over the top of the mail plane and descending into the forward cockpit.

No social event was considered complete without Van Arland's presence. He always was plentifully supplied with funds and was supposed to be wealthy. He was still more mystified when Van Arland, ap-parently by accident, pulled from his his pocket the Croix de Guerre be-stewed upon Wally for heroism in battle.

Mason, himself, gazed at the em-blem in Van Arland's hand with wide "If he doesn't he's doomed," was the reply, as the man grasped the sending key to transmit the message.

Apparently Mason was still capable of receiving and obeying instructions. Cassidy flew nearer, and experienced a sense of thanksgiving at a sense of thanksgiving at a sense of thanksgiving at place under the mail ship.

"Now," Van Arland said, as he finished, "you'll get your cross back and your money, too, if you do as I tell you. I'm going to make you a member of our squadron." And he exhibited the dread insignia of the notorious and blaffling band of air prates known as "The Death Head Squadron." Half an hour later Van Arland

Half an hour later Van Arland conducted his involuntary recruit to the secret hangars and rendezvous of the members of his band. There, camouflaged, beyond all chance of discovery, were moored the dark, evillooking ships of the air in which these society bandits were accustomed to dart through the heavens in search of their prey.

Wallie, with his hands pressed to his aching head, did not hear the low his aching head, did not hear the low his aching between conversation which passed between Van Arland and the latter's second of him."

They separated and Van Arland went to keep tryst at Mission Oaks. The woman who met him under the redwood trees, however, was not Beryl Carathers but Viola Matthews, the dark haired, vindictive guest at the Oaks who was generally believed to be Van Arland's half-sister.

What words passed between the two at that meeting none ever-heard. It was only when Viola screamed and a shot rang out that Beryl, walking with her maid and favorite collie, ran toward the secluded spot whence the Midnight. Like will-o'-wisps the lights from the great, aerial mail station flashed about the heavens. The deep, purple dome of the night furnished a wonderful amphitheatre for the evolutions of the gigantic, comet-like ships of fire which flitted about, now here, now there, leaving long trials of sparks in their wake. The mid-night express was getting fready for its trans-continental fight to the nation's capital.

age, made off into the night.

The squadron leader did not fly with them. At the last moment Van Arland had rushed, excitedly, to his second in command and ordered him to take charge of the expedition.

"I've made a fool of myself," Van Arland explained angrily, when questioned. "I've shot someone. We've got to get out of the country. As soon as you get hold of that gold make a landing—I don't care where—and get it all into one ship. Hop off in that, then blow up the bangars. I'll send up a flare, so you'll know where to pick me up."

But at Mission Oaks Viola Matthews, moaning with the pain of a

Though Beryl's head reeled, the earnestness of Viola's words convinced her of their truth. Running to the telephone, she summoned Larry Cassidy. Though suprised and horrified at what she told him, Larry was nevertheless happy at the confidence Beryl showed in his skill and ability to avert the threatened disaster. Not until after he had reached the Oaks and started, in one of the Caruthers

Just when all the odds seemed against him he turned, suddenly, and sped back toward his starting point. He never reached it. Disabled, he was forced to descend into a field. Crawling forth from the wreckage he pluckily contrived to wireless a call to the nearest deputy marshal. It was his last message. Before he could give any details a shot from the pur-

Then they descended to secure the loot. Wallie Mason, regardless of the gold, searched frantically among the mail matter for his croix de guerre, which he had seen Van Arland post a few hours before. When he had secured it and turned to go, he found remember to an turned to go, he found with melf deserted. A Federal plane, carrying two officers, was swiftly descending. Flares and flash lights illumined the country side.

Wallie rushed toward the ship in which he had made his night ride. It seemed a hideous craft. The death's head on it grinned mockingy at him as he approached. In despair he real-ized that it had been wantonly dis-abled. The men who had made the abled. The men who had made the trip with him were already out of sight in the air.

The government officers were landing. They had seen the wrecked express and the murdered pilot. Wallie tried to secrete himself but it was too late. Over fields and under bushes he tremendous explosion shook the earth. The fugitive was pitched forward upon his face.

When he regained consciousness he found himself face to face with Cassidy. He, too, had been pursued. The marshals had mistaken him for one of the pirates. As the two friends gazed at one another, screams for help reached their ears. Both recognized Beryl's voice. Wallie glanced at his Death's Head costume.

"Go," he whimpered piteously to Larry. "I can't—in this."
"Take my plane and escape," shouted Cassidy, rushing off in the direction of the hangars from which the cries came.

Wallie needed no second bidding.

The plane in which Cassidy had just descended was close at hand.

Cassidy, running to the rear of the house, was met by a dazed employee of the Oaks who pointed weakly, to be indicted for murder.

where lay the dead body of a man. "It is one of Mr. Van Arland's men, sir," explained the mechanician, in answer to Gassidy's questions. Van Arland's plane went out of commis-sion and he was taking one of ours. I heard someone at the hangars and went to investigate. He slugged me. I think I finished him. Then Miss Beryl came running out and—Mr. Van Arland seized her. He put her into the cockpit with him. She fought hard but-"

Cassidy waited to hear no more. For the third time he must fly to make a rescue in the air. With the mechanician's aid another of the Caruthers planes was quickly taken from its hangar and made ready for the chase after the pirate kidnapper. Faint streaks of dawn now made it easier to keep the fleeing craft in sight. Larry, breaking all speed re-cords, was soon near enough to see Beryl in the observer's seat, her hair streaming in the wind, her arms pleadingly outstretched toward him. He signaled to her to drop the lad-She understood his gestures and contrived to do so without Van Arland's detection.

A few minutes more and Cassidy was again climbing, like a cat, out on the top of one of the wings of the plane, now being piloted by the mechanician. This time his task was doubly difficult, for Van Arland was flying at high speed. Cassidy did not think of his own danger new. The face of the girl he loved was looking down upon him like a star of hope. He would not fail.

Closer and closer Cassidy's plane came to that of the one piloted by the bandit. Now it was directly under-neath. The rope ladder swayed, for the merest instant, above Larry's head. It was enough. He made the leap, grasped the lower rung safely and once again climbed over the side of the ship, traveling at a hundred and fifty miles an hour, thousands of feet in the air.

Van Arland, ignorant of what was transpiring, was amazed to suddenly be confronted by the muzzle of Cassidy's revolver. During the descent Larry continued to keep the villian the ship safely. As they approached the earth a startling scene was en-acted near them. Two Federal officers in a swift scout plane, were in pursuit of a ship bearing the mark of the Mission Oak hangars and piloted by a man in the garb of the Death's Head Squadron.

"It's Wallie!" cried Beryl, as the fugitive stood up, glanced back, waved his arms despairingly, then crashed to the ground his car in flames. "Quick! The parachute," shouted one of the officers in the pursuing government plane, to his companion.

Almost as he spoke the other dived over the side of the ship, the parachute opening as he fell. Down he At the same time, down under a Shots were fired.
