Hundred Deaths By Porcupine Forest Fires

Many Mining Towns in Ontario Wiped Out.—The Roaring Flames Sweep Unchecked Across the Country.—Two Thousand Inhabitants of Cochrane Without Food and Shelter

Toronto, July 12—Hundreds of people were driven into the lake at Porcupine during the forest fire yesterday, many of them women and children, and numbers of them were drowned. The fatalities of the fire so far are reported at over a hundred. The property loss is over one million dollars.

Toronto, July 12—The following is a partial summary of the disastrous fires in the Porcupine District yesterday. The known dead include Hatan Haas, mining engineer, Spokane.

Angus Burt, assayer, West Dome, and Mrs. Burt.

Robt. A. Weiss, manager West Dome and wife and three year-old daughter.

Captain Jack Hamilton, West Dome Mine.

McQueen, carpenter West Dome Mine and wife.

Frank Flynn, United Porcupine Mines.

Joseph Fletcher, United Porcupine Mines.

C. E. Adams, Philadelphia Mine.

William Ghor, Thomas Geddes, Dan with Captain Geo. Dumber, all of the South Porcupine.

Twenty-seven are known to be dead in West Dome shaft, names are to be named.

Thirty foreigners are known to be dead in Dome shafts.

Only three of four employees of West Dome had been accounted for up to noon today. There is no means of estimating the dead at Dome Mines but the Manager and Mrs. Meek, Capt. Lawson, the clerical force, Henry Hanson, mill construction foreman, and all, with the exception of miners' muckers, etc., are safe. The Dome has nearly three hundred employees.

THE WIDE EXTENT OF CONFLAGRATION.

At 12.30 noon yesterday the fire raged from the Standard mines right through to the shores of Porcupine lake, eating up South Porcupine, Pottsville and part of Golden City, as well as many small buildings along the lake front. While part of the loss of life occurred near Porcupine lake, the greatest havoc will be around the main mines, notably West Dome and Big Dome. Here the entrapped miners cut off by the flames, took to the shafts, where they perished. At Preston East Dome safety was sought in an untimbered shaft, and there was no loss of life.

The Dome has nearly three hundred employees.

THE MINES THAT ARE BURNED.

Dome mines, all of the buildings except Manager Meek's house. Loss, $800,000; includes all shaft houses, new forty stamp mill almost completed and large up-to-date compressor plant.

North Dome mines; plant and camps; loss $150,000.

Vipond; plant and camps; loss $100,000.

Foley O'Brien; total loss estimated at $100,000.

United Porcupine; small buildings destroyed.

Eldorado Porcupine; small buildings destroyed.

Standard; loss about $40,000.

Imperial; loss about $35,000.

Success; probably destroyed.

West Dome mines; plant and all buildings; loss about $75,000.

THE SWIFT ADVANCE OF THE FLAMES.

Early yesterday morning dense clouds of smoke could be seen in the south west, but the fire was apparently remote. A small fire also broke out in Lakeview, Porcupine township, but this excited little notice because of the frequency of bush fires. As noon approached thick clouds of smoke reached the zenith, marking the approach of the fire and soon the sun was obscured.

At 2.30 the fire had covered an area of twenty-five miles in length and over two miles in width and had reached the base line of Tisdale, Imperial, the Standard and Imperial mines in Delora township, Philadelphia, in Shaw township and the Eldorado and United, in Southern Whitney. At 11.15 p.m. the seriousness of the situation was realized in South Porcupine. The fire call was sounded on the Dome mine whistle with repeated blasts from other whistles. By this time the sky was black with smoke and residents began to pack valuables and light baggage for a hurried departure.

ENTIRE COUNTRY IN GRASP OF FIRE.

With the entire northern silver and gold country in the ruthless grasp of devastating forest fires, three towns and many settlements have already been wiped out and an unknown number of human lives sacrificed.

Two thousand inhabitants of Cochrane are without food, as nothing could be saved but the clothes on their backs. They are without sleeping accommodation and are being housed in box cars.

All construction camps on the Ontario Government Porcupine Railway from Golden City west were swept out of existence, and the men had to run for their lives.

Kelso, which lost a number of buildings as the result of bush fires Sunday is again threatened and in grave danger.

The Hollinger plant is supposed to be all right, as it was swept some time ago, and is now surrounded by large clearings and comparatively safe.

The loss of life must be great, and will not be known for days as the survivors will find great difficulty in getting out, the trails being obliterated and the corduroy roads destroyed.

Last Saturday, although a "high" day for the boys, was not a Scouting success—from the Scoutmaster's view point. The rendezvous chosen was Foster's lake on the North Mountain. A varied programme had been arranged for the day, but the environment proved altogether unsuitable for carrying it out. However, Scouts are pledged to smile and whistle under all circumstances, and on Saturday there was no difficulty about this point of Scout law—the boys getting swimming and boating to their heart's content.

On Monday evening Dr. Armstrong kindly gave the first of a series of lectures on "First aid to the injured." Official orders for ensuing week:—

Saturday, July 22nd—

All boys to meet at headquarters, carrying staves at 1.30, and with point seven of Scout Law thoroughly learned. In the meantime Patrol leaders will have been given sealed orders (to be then opened) for the afternoon's programme.

Monday, July 24th—

Meet at headquarters with staves at 7.30 p.m. sharp. Lecture and "First Aid" instruction by Dr. Armstrong.

Camp items.

Names of those who will go to camp (Aug. 1st. to 9th.) together with the fee $1.25 must be handed in not later than Saturday next to enable the necessary arrangements to be completed. Instructions as to kit and food are being issued.

E. UNDERWOOD,
Scoutmaster.

Boy Scout Notes

(Sackville Tribune)

The action of the citizens' meeting last week in voting down the proposal to celebrate Coronation Day is one symptom of a disease which has long afflicted the town of Sackville. We do not know the name for this disease but for want of some better designation we shall call it "stolidity" or "lack of proper civic spirit." At first sight it might seem that that stolidity was not a serious disease, that many towns survive its ravages and that a cure is possible. To us stolidity appears an almost fatal malady, fatal to enthusiasm, fatal to patriotism, fatal to the best interests of any town. A town without enthusiastic men and women, a town without men of enterprise, a town that remains absolutely passive while great events of history are taking place, is a town that will be a very long time in waking up to its possibilities. There are altogether too many "knockers" in Sackville, too many men who are so entirely engrossed in their own business that they have no time nor thought to give to public events, which are transpiring. It is all right to be diligent in business, but there is always a danger of overdoing it; of getting into a rut and of sticking there. A good shaking up would do us all good and the sooner something happens to wake us from our lethargy the better for ourselves and the better for the town. Oh for the enthusiasm of youth, the love of celebrating which seems to be inherent in every boy. Had the matter of holding a celebration been left to the Boy Scouts there would have been no doubt as to the result. With one voice they would have shouted "Celebrate, sure." We do not criticise the noisy enthusiasm of boys, yet, after all noise is an evidence of life and there is nothing quite so depressing as the stolidity, the indifference, the lack of enthusiasm, which is characteristic of many men, who seem to be proud that they have conquered the buoyant spirit of youth.

May the time speedily come when Sackville will become more demonstrative, more enthusiastic, more filled with civic pride and spirit, more alive.

Stolidity a Malady Fatal to Towns

Nothing can be done at present towards checking the flames as the white birch with which the country is covered burns up as soon as it is touched by a spark. The bark curls up and peels under the influence of the heat and blows in all directions, like tinder. No rain has fallen in the region for many days.

So far the railway lines seem to have remained uninjured, as well as the railway station at Golden City and Cochrane. Refugees are being housed in the stations, box cars and passenger coaches.

Among the hundred or more buildings which have been destroyed in the holocaust are the Banks of Toronto and Ottawa, the Methodist, Presbyterian and Baptist churches. Rothschilda Hardware store and a large business block.

THE DEAD NUMBER ONE HUNDRED AT LEAST.

At the beginning it was believed that the greatest loss of life occurred at the mines and in the bush where many prospectors must have perished, but now the towns may reveal one hundred as a total is a conservative estimate of those who lost the greatest number of dead, and their lives. As far as known there is no loss of life at Pottsville and at first it was thought that South Porcupine's loss numbered but four, but since five bodies whether of men or women, is not known, have been found where the Empire theatre stood making it apparent that they were endeavoring to make their escape to the north of the zone of flames. Porcupine lake has given up forty-one victims, drowned by plunges into the lake or by suffocation while standing in the water.

Support Home Industry

The Monitor heartily agrees with the following, which is taken from the Gloucester Times:

"Whenever a plan is suggested for the development of the Town the first suggestion, invariably, is 'Bring in more industries.' It is customary to throw out all sorts of inducements for the location of factories, including exemptions from taxes, for a time, free sites and bonuses and these methods have contributed so much towards building up hundreds of prosperous municipalities that their wisdom cannot be questioned. Anything that will add to our desirable population, that will give employment to men who support families and thus contribute to the general welfare, is at all times desirable.

But the people who join heartily in the work of bringing in new industries and will show the greatest enthusiasm over this feature of the public work industries brought in and the old ones already here require continuous support and falling to get it, become a hindrance rather than an aid to development.

We are apt to overlook, too, the fact that the home merchant is entitled to as much consideration as the factory which we have obtained by special effort. The merchant is a necessary—even more so than the factory; for who cares to live in a community where there are no stores, or where the stores are closed and barred and merchants have moved away, forced to other fields by the lack of patronage.

The retail store, properly conducted is an industry that should have the support of every loyal citizen. Our pride in the home town is measured by our willingness to support its merchants and its industries.

It is not necessary to build a Chinese wall around a community to refuse to buy outside when we can do so to advantage. But the man who will send away for something that he can buy at home on as good or better terms, needs education and lacks loyalty. Sometimes, unfortunately, the very one who should be least liable to this criticism, the local merchant, is given to sending abroad for things which he ought to buy from his neighbors. Then, again there is the farmer who finds it easier to mail his order to a big city than to come to town. Often he is handicapped by bad roads and thus has a valid excuse. But he ought to be able to buy by mail from our own merchants as safely and as advantageously as from someone at a distance, with whom he has no acquaintance. If he is not furnished the facilities it is time for the improvement of our merchandising methods. And he ought to have good roads that would make a trip to town a pleasure.

Much remains to be done to straighten our local business interests. We ought to give real support to any move that will tend to keep our money at home.

Prefers Annapolis Valley to British Columbia

English Agriculturist Says the Annapolis Valley Or St. John Valley Offers Better Opportunities to Fruit Raisers than British Columbia Can Show

Prof. T. R. Robinson, of the South Eastern Agricultural College of Wye Kent, England, who has been making a tour of Canada with the object of gathering information regarding the agricultural and fruit raising possibilities of different parts of the Dominion was at the Royal last evening. Says the St. John Standard:

Mr. Robinson spent some time in the northwest, visited the fruit districts of British Columbia and spent some days in the Annapolis Valley. Today he will make a trip up the St. John river valley, and go on to Ottawa to consult with the officials of the agricultural department there.

"I was much impressed with what I saw in the Annapolis Valley," said the professor to a Standard reporter last evening. "The orchardists over there get nearly ten times the yield from their trees that the fruit raisers in British Columbia do, largely because their trees are older. Very few of the fruit raisers in British Columbia are making money from their orchards. I should imagine, though some have grown wealthy through the rise in land values. But I don't see how the fruit lands can advance any higher in value. I saw orchards out there which were valued at $1,000 an acre, and it is a pretty big proposition to make an orchard pay on that valuation.

"If I were coming out here to raise fruit I think I would prefer the Annapolis Valley, or possibly the St. John river valley, where I am told conditions are about similar. I can't speak from my own knowledge as to that, but I should imagine the information which has been given me is about correct. One advantage the east possesses is cheaper land, and another, is that it is closer to the English market. The main reason why the men who come out from the Old Country go west is that it is better advertised. I don't say the maritime provinces are not advertised. Much has been done recently to advertise these provinces in the Old Country, but they have not been given as much advertisement as the west, or as much as they ought to have.

"From what I have seen of conditions east and west, I think a man who located in the east would get more comfort out of life. Of course if a man wants to make money as quickly as possible, and has a good bit of capital to start with, the thing to do is to locate in the prairie provinces, and raise wheat. But the bulk of the people who come out to Canada are men of moderate means, and they could probably do better in the east.

"The college I am connected with sends twenty or thirty young men to Canada every year, but so far most of them have gone out west. At any rate I met quite a number of them out there, and have not been able to secure the address of any in the east.

"A good many of the young men from these provinces evidently go west, though I don't see any particular reason why they should do so. One of the things that struck me in going about Nova Scotia was the number of old men on the land, and the absence of young men. Out west it is the other way round. You see nearly all young men out there. Another thing I notice was that the orchards in the Annapolis Valley are not kept in as good condition as out west."

Accident to Well Known Shipper

Last Saturday, while Mr. Howard Bligh of Woodville, (shipping agent at Halifax), with his wife and small child were driving down Rhodes Mountain, one of the steepest and worst roads on the North range, the harness broke and the horse ran away. Mrs. Bligh with great presence of mind, dropped the child from the carriage and then leaped out herself sustaining practically no injury. Mr. Bligh was thrown to the bottom of the wagon, but still clung to the reins. After nearly a mile of a wild run, with the wagon sometimes in the air and again on the rough road, the horse was stopped by a neighbor, near Mr. Maynard Porter's. Mr. Bligh had several ribs broken and received such severe shaking up as will confine him to the house for some time.—Kentville Chronicle.

County Court

The summer term of the County Court was held at Annapolis on Tuesday, his honor Judge Pelton presiding. The only case on the docket was that of McCallum vs. Bruce, an appeal from the adjudication of a commissioner of the Supreme Court refusing to commit the defendant for fraud. The original action was for a commission due plaintiff in connection with the sale of defendant's farm. Plaintiff sued and recovered judgment, but being unable to realize upon it, had the defendant brought before a commissioner and asked for an order committing the defendant for having fraudulently entered into the contract. Owen & Owen in support of appeal; A. L. Davidson contra Judgment reserved.—Annapolis Spectator.

Good Turn of St. Joseph's Troop Wins Appreciation of Africville—Boy Lost in Woods

St. Joseph's troop of Boy Scouts were cheered to the echo on Saturday afternoon by the residents of Africville when they marched through the little village under Scoutmasters Walsh and West with a colored boy found by Scout Sweeney. The real signal was then sounded and in a few minutes all the troops were banded together.

The boy had no clothes on. A circle was formed and the boy placed in the centre in which way they marched to the Settlement and restored the boy to his anxious parents.

Scoutmaster Walsh and West divided the Scouts up in sections, each section having a leader. They hurriedly made their way out to Fairview, and, after half an hour the boy was found by Scout Sweeney. The real signal was then sounded and in a few minutes all the troops were banded together.

When you buy Paint, get the real thing

It is extravagant and foolish to buy and pay for paint, and instead of paint, get a mixture containing cheap adulterants. Pure paint—the real thing—spreads easier, covers more surface (and covers it better) and wears longer than adulterated paint. Pure paint is far more economical to use. Pure paint gives the handsomest finish.

Pure paint insures you against paint "troubles", the cracking, the peeling, scaling, etc. that comes from the use of impurities.

B-B "English" Paint is pure paint—made from 70% pure white lead (Brandram's B.B. Genuine) 30% pure zinc white, pure linseed oil, pure turpentine and dryer. It will give you the greatest satisfaction and save you money on your paint bill.

SOME VIOLIN SECRETS

A CHAT WITH A COLLECTOR OF RARE FIDDLES.

The Wood For a Fine Instrument Comes From Various Parts of the World, and is Chosen For its Resonant Qualities—The Great Secret In Violin Making is the Composition of the Varnish.

"How do you account for the extraordinary prices which old violins by famous makers fetch to-day?" an interviewer put the question recently to a famous collector—who has gathered together many valuable instruments—apropos of the fact that Kubelik recently completed the purchase of the famous "Emperor" Stradivarius violin, pronounced by Joachim to be the finest instrument he had ever seen, and which is stated to be worth $50,000. "Is it because," the reporter continued, "materials used by the old makers are unobtainable now?"

"No," was the reply; "it is easy enough to get good materials, but it is not so easy to discover the secrets of the art of violin-making possessed, for instance, by Antonio Stradivari, the famous violin-maker of Cremona. The materials with which he made violins cost him but a few shillings; but, whereas makers today turn out violins by the hundreds, he spent months upon one instrument, and even then it is an historic fact that he sent a lot of violins to England to be sold at $25 a piece, and they had to be returned because they could not be disposed of.

"Stradivari knew how to select properly seasoned wood in the first place. Three kinds of wood are used in making the violin—maple for the back, the split-wood sides, and the neck; spruce pine for the top, and ebony for the finger-board, the tail piece or string-holder, and the pegs. The fine maple-wood is usually bought in Bohemia. It is very hard wood, and difficult to work. This maple-wood should be both resisting and elastic, in order to send back the vibrations produced by the top. And for the top a spruce pine is chosen, which must be at the same time very firm and little resinous; for the top must produce the greatest number of vibrations possible. The best violintops come from Switzerland.

"Then, of course, much depends on the shape of the instrument, and the beauty of a Stradivarius is that it is built on a model which can be made to speak in all tones. Mere age does not make a violin perfect. If it was clumsily and badly made in the beginning there is no magic in time that will remedy these defects. All the old instruments—that is, the genuine ones, for there are hundreds of fakes which are passed off as old makes—are built on lines which have certainly been successfully copied, but which fail to reach the tone of the old violins simply because of some little defect in the wood or the varnish.

"The violin today is practically the same instrument as it was three hundred years ago, and this in spite of the fact that every violin-maker has at some time in his career been possessed by an ambition to improve on the violin as it stands. I have seen at least five hundred specimens of these experimental designs, and some of them are the craziest notions that ever hatched in the human brain. I have seen a violin shaped like a triangle, violins with a set of strings inside as well as outside, violins with a metal comb inside such as you see in a musical-box, violins with double posts, violins with flat tops, violins without any openings, and others with openings of strange shapes. There is no end to these wild imaginings; but the violin of the twentieth century remains in principle the same as that of the Italian inventor.

"But the real secret of the wonderful tone of ancient violins lies in the varnish. The varnishing is, perhaps, the most delicate part of violin-building. The varnish must possess a great warmth of tone, a fine transparency, and great solidity. It must be neither too dry nor too soft. It should have a beautiful, warm, amber color approaching the purple orange, and must be free from the shrill tint of the factory instruments. It is, to a great extent, the varnish that gives to the old Italian violins their great value. These possess a richness of tone compared to the orange-red of the primitive painters of the Italian and Flemish schools. Besides its beauty, the varnish contributes to the sonorousness, astonishing as this statement may appear.

"Every violin-maker who is worthy of the name is sure he has a supremely good varnish, and every man guards his own secret. But somehow they do not seem to be able to find out the secret of the varnish used by the violin-makers of centuries ago. "But it must not be overlooked that much depends on the bow. It was a Frenchman—Tourt—who was to the bow what Stradivari was to the violin. Those old bows were made of snake-wood, ironwood, and several other varieties. Bows become tempered—'educated' with time and use, so that a man's bow becomes more as precious to him as his fiddle itself."

A Barrel of Balzac Letters.
The French Academy has received from the Comte de Lovenjoul a priceless collection of letters written by Balzac. The story of his acquisition of these letters is as follows: One day he saw a cobbler light his pipe with a twisted letter. The ink on the paper thereof was faded, but the handwriting interested the collector. He had recognized the great novelist's script and straightway bought the letter for a Napoleon. The cobbler then informed the count that he had bought a barrel of these letters as waste paper, which he used for wrapping shoes when he was not lighting his pipe. And that is the history of the Academy's Balzac Letters, founds Lovenjoul.

Bridgeport, Conn., July 11—Twelve battered corpses in the morgue, forty-four sufferers in the hospitals, and a mountain of junk at the foot of the twenty foot embankment at the western end of the city, tell the tale tonight of the worst wreck in the fifty-eight years history of the New York New Haven and Hartford Railroad. Although it occurred just before dawn, and the coroner's office has had one busy day long since, but answers to telephones and telegraph queries from all parts of the country, four of the dead, two men and two women, remain unidentified. ENGINEER TO BLAME.

New Haven, Conn., July 11—In a statement issued by Vice-president Horn, of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad Company this evening, the assertion is made that Engineer Curtis disregarded both the distance and the home signals, and confirmation is given of the earlier official statement to the effect that the Federal Express was running at the cross over, at the rate of about sixty miles an hour, when the running car called for only fifteen.

Mr. Horn says that the engineer had previously once run the Federal Express, and was a man who was familiar with the operation of the line between New York and Bridgeport from general experience. Mr. Horn adds "that there is no way of accounting for the error made by the engineer."

When the Federal Express, from Washington to Eolton leaped from the embankment a day coach next to the baggage car was caught at the bottom of the leap, and smashed into matchwood, and not a person inside escaped death or serious injury.

The heavier Pullmans, five of them, that crashed down held together, and the sleeping passengers inside, although badly shaken, for the most part suffered no worse than broken bones and bruises.

ELECTION WILL BE HELD IN EARLY FALL.
Montreal, July 11—The "Gazette" announces this morning that at Ottawa there has been made a semi-official announcement that after three weeks sitting, from July 18th, Parliament will be dissolved. The Government is declared, will not back down on the Reciprocity pact and will go to the country if the Opposition refuses to facilitate the passage of the agreement.

The election will come, it is declared, either before the 10th of August or late in September. This will give the West time for the harvest. The appeal can hardly be put off till October as the Government is likely to be without supplies.

The baby of the twenty-first century will be rocked in a steel cradle; his father will sit in a steel chair at a steel dining table, and his mother's boudoir will be sumptuously equipped with steel furnishings, converted by cunning varnishes to the semblance of rosewood, or mahogany, or any other wood her ladyship fancies.

Books of the coming century will all be printed leaves of nickel, so light to hold that the reader can enjoy a small library in a single volume. A book two inches thick will contain forty thousand pages, the equivalent to a hundred volumes; six inches in aggregate thickness, it would suffice for all the contents of the Encyclopaedia Britannica. And each volume would weigh less than a pound.

Already Mr. Edison can produce a pound weight of these nickel leaves, more flexible than paper and ten times as durable, at a cost of five skillings. In a hundred years' time the cost will probably be reduced to a tenth.

More amazing still, this American wizard sounds the death knell of gold as a precious metal. "Gold," he says, "has even now but a few years to live. The day is near when bars of it will be as common and as cheap as bars of iron or block of steel." We are already on the verge of discovering the secret of transmitting metals, which are substantially the same in matter, though

Clouds of Moths.

A St. John despatch says: Clouds of brown-tail moths in the vicinity of Lunenburg lightship, on the Nova Scotia coast of the Bay of Fundy, were seen on Thursday by the crew of the Dominion Government steamer, Stanley, which has arrived here.

The officers of the Stanley said that the air was full of the pest, and that millions had fallen into the water. The vessel sailed several hours before it cleared the swarm of moths.

ARE you going to build that new horseblock, sidewalk or dairy house of cement? Then insist on your dealer supplying you with the "CANADA" Cement. Not only will this ensure your getting a pure, uniform and strictly high-grade cement, that will guarantee the lifelong permanency of the thing you build, but it will also entitle you to enter our Prize Contest. And in this contest you stand a good chance of winning a prize that will perhaps more than pay you for the cost of the work. Every farmer in Canada who uses "CANADA" Cement is eligible to compete. Four prizes will be awarded in each Province and these prizes will be divided as follows:

PRIZE "A"—$100.00 to be given to the farmer in each Province who will use during 1911 the greatest number of barrels of "CANADA" Cement.

PRIZE "B"—$100.00 to be given to the farmer in each Province who uses "CANADA" Cement on his farm in 1911 for the greatest number of purposes.

PRIZE "C"—$100.00 to be given to the farmer in each Province who furnishes us with the photograph showing the best of any particular kind of work done on his farm during 1911 with "CANADA" Cement.

PRIZE "D"—$100.00 to be given to the farmer in each Province who submits the best and most complete description, of how any particular piece of work shown by photograph was done.

Notice how we have purposely planned and imposed certain necessary conditions in order to give large and small users of cement an equal opportunity.

As an illustration of this: in prizes "C" and "D," the quantity of cement used has no bearing whatever on the result. The farmer who sends us the best photograph of as small a thing as a watering trough or a gate post, has as much chance for prize "C" as a man who sends a photograph of a house—and the same applies to prize "D."

Don't hold back from entering because you think you don't know anything about concrete work. It's very simple. Besides, we have a 160-page book that we will send you free on request, which tells you all about concrete and how to make and use it. In this book, you'll find complete instructions for the making of almost everything you can think of in the way of farm utilities, floors, vats, troughs, stairs, posts, etc.

This free book—entitled "What the Farmer Can Do With Concrete"—will not only inform you—it will also greatly interest you. So send for it anyway, whether you intend to try for one of the prizes or not.

THE HOME

CARELESS FAMILIARITY.

I was decidedly disappointed the other day with a very charming, and I had always thought almost ideal young person, who was visiting at my house.

A group of us were standing talking together. One of the group was a young man whom this girl had met perhaps half a dozen times. In the course of the conversation he started to repeat to her a very flattering compliment he had heard of her singing.

The girl begged him to desist, and when he laughingly kept on, she advanced towards him, and laid her hand across his mouth.

Now perhaps it will seem praiseworthy, but I did not like that.

This is an age when friendships between men and women are much more informal, very much less stiffly conventional than they used to be.

The modern man and woman friendship is so different from the man and woman friendship of fifty years ago as the modern sheath of roses that the men of today sends the girl of the twentieth century is from the stiffly arranged bouquet the old-time lover brought his lassie.

And I think that is good.

But when this friendship tends towards familiarity, that I think is bad.

I want the girl of today to be more sensible and comradeship and less exotic and sheltered in her friendships with men than her grandmother or even her mother. I want her to be able to join them in some of their sports and all of their intellectual interests.

But I don't want to see her let this fine comradeship deteriorate towards a careless familiarity.

I have heard of a girl in high society who slaps her men friends on the back when she meets them.

The public laughs at her.

I think it should be ashamed to own her.

Even between lovers I dislike to see public demonstrations, and it seems to me that they show the measure of privacy which they give its manifestations.

For a girl to pick a thread of a man's coat or a man to put back a loose lock of a girl's hair in public when the two are engaged, certainly isn't the least bit wrong, but it does seem to me it borders on the "tacky."

There is a couplet of Kipling's which I'd like to recall to the young people who find it difficult to confine the manifestations of their mutual ardor to the privacy of their home.

"For howsoever love be blind
The world at large hath eyes."

THE OUTLET.

The outlet as it is best known, is of veal, and is usually served fried with bacon, either plain or breaded. My own favorite method of preparing it is to have the outlet trimmed into pieces not much larger than a silver dollar, to these pounded with the head of a hammer or a hatchet sprinkled with a few drops of lemon juice, then rolled in cracker crumbs, dipped into beaten egg, rolled in cracker crumbs again and fried to a good brown in hot fat. Tomato sauce may be served with them.

When they are cooked in this way they are a quite different thing from the veal cutlet as most of us know it. The treatment with the hammer breaks up the rather tough fibers and the meat is more easily masticated. And veal requires thorough mastication to make it anything but a menace to the ordinary digestion.

The recipe may be varied a little by omitting the lemon juice, peppering and salting the cutlets slightly, dipping them in beaten egg and then in grated parmesan cheese before rolling in bread crumbs and frying them. This is an Italian touch and seldom fails to please any one who tries it.

The cutlet may also be broiled satisfactorily, but for this very tender veal should be chosen, and this, too, should be hammered a little after it is divided into pieces of the right size. To make them still more tender, lay them in a little salad oil to which you have added pepper and salt at discretion and leave them in this for fifteen minutes before cooking, turning them several times in the oil bath. Broil them for eight or ten minutes. They are especially good if served with fried or baked tomatoes.

All these are a cutlet in what we might call its natural state. The veal cutlet, made of plain and unminced meat, is a very simple affair. When we begin using other meats for the cutlet, they must be chopped first.

NEEDLEWORK AS A "CURE."

Needlework and knitting have always been recognized by women as soothing occupations, that is, when they are not pursued under pressure of time or need. Now a further step has been taken, and they have been definitely prescribed by doctors as a cure for 'nerves.' When a woman is suffering from nerves as the result of the worry of housekeeping or the modern rush of social or business life she is advised to take up needlework as a cure.

"Light needlework comes under the category of amusements, and is prescribed for the woman with nerve trouble by her doctor in the same way as golf, for instance; that is, as something to keep the mind interested without too much strain," a physician told the "Daily Mirror."

"Nerves are often caused by a woman having no definite occupation, and in such cases we advise light needlework as an occupation. For a very busy woman who is absorbed in the rush and turmoil of life we suggest it as a change of occupation.

"No woman should undertake the needlework cure, however, who has a distaste for it, and it should not be turned into labor, in any case, or the required result would not be obtained. One of my patients grew so interested in her needlework that she would sit up until three o'clock in the morning to finish it. This was naturally about the worst thing she could do.

A business girl described how she was cured of a prolonged attack of blues and nerves by making a simple dress after she had left the office in the evening.

"I was so restless that I wandered about the house perfectly miserable," she said, "until one day I decided to attempt needlework as a new occupation.

"I found the making of the dress so interesting that I lost my nervous, restless feeling and also the blues, before it was finished."

If there is one time in the day in which it is imperative to wash the teeth more thoroughly than any other, it is before going to bed. During the night, the acids generated by

CURED OF CONSTIPATION

Mr. Andrews praises Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills.

Mr. George Andrews of Halifax, N. S., writes: "For many years I have been troubled with chronic Constipation. This ailment never comes single-handed, and I have been a victim to the many illnesses that constipation brings in its train. Medicine after medicine I have taken in order to find relief, but one and all left me in the same hopeless condition. It seemed that nothing would expel from me the one ailment that caused so much trouble, yet at last I read about these Indian Root Pills.

That was indeed a lucky day for me, for I was so impressed with the statements made that I determined to give them a fair trial.

They have regulated my stomach and bowels. I am cured of constipation, and I claim they have no equal as a medicine."

For over half a century Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills have been curing constipation and clogged, inactive kidneys, with all the ailments which result from them. They cleanse the whole system and purify the blood. Sold everywhere at 25c. a box.

TWO LIONS AT BAY.

Thrilling Experience of an English Music Hall Comedian.

Stage fright of the sort that afflicted Whit Cunliffe, at one time a prominent singer in English music halls, is not avoidable. Fortunately also it is not common. At a place where he was engaged in Birmingham one of the attractions was a lion show, some of the beasts being really wild and untamed. Nearly the whole stage was taken up with the setting of the animal show.

"Just as I was going on," said Cunliffe in telling of the incident, "I heard a hurried rush and confused shouting, and some one slammed an iron gate. I heard a voice say: 'Just in time, he was nearly out.' My music was starting, so I had not time to enquire. I went on the stage.

"In a moment I heard ominous growls and savage snarls, mixed with much whip-cracking and strenuous breathing. I am never fond of a wild animal show, and I felt distinctly behind me sagged and awayed, and then to my horror suddenly in the wings I saw the huge head and front of a lion.

"I was singing a song called 'I Would, which had a lot of short verses. As I sang things, my blood running cold, I watched the lion. It seemed to advance slowly, and its baneful eyes glittered in a truly horrible way. I could not go off that side without passing it, so I prepared to make my exit with haste.

"Turning, I was horrified to see another lion on the other side.

"I was caught like a mouse in a trap, I dared not go off the stage; I dared not show my discomfiture to the audience. There was only one thing for me to do—sing. So I sang in desperation, hoping that some one would come and take the lions away. They told me afterwards that I sang ninety-eight verses, but I think that was unkind.

"I wondered how long it would take those two brutes to make up their mind to come into the full glare of the spotlights, and I had just prepared to leap into the stalls, regardless of the consequences, when I heard the hoarse voice of one of the stage hands say, 'Ere, Bill, these two chaps are too far forward. Give a 'and with them, will yer?' And coming up between the two lions they lifted them bodily. They were paper mache."

the food, which has not been removed do their deadly work, and cause the enamel to decay. There are numerous preparations for use with the toothbrush, and one must discriminate. It is a good plan to consult the dentist, who looks after one's teeth, as he is likely to know the chief dentrices, and which of them is best suited to the use of the individual, also what style of brush should be used. Some persons have softer teeth than others or perhaps with more of a tendency to tartar deposits.

SOME ANSWERS TO "HOW MUCH?"

Here are answers to every "how much" question that can arise on baking day.

One cup of sugar will sweeten one quart of any mixture to be served chilled or frozen.

One teaspoon of extract will flavor one quart of custard pudding.

One tablespoonful of extract will flavor one quart of mixture to be frozen.

One level teaspoon of salt will season one quart of soup, sauce or vegetables.

The ordinary French dressing (three tablespoons oil, one and one half tablespoons vinegar, one-fourth level teaspoon salt, one-eighth level teaspoon pepper) will moisten one pint of salad.

One tablespoon of water or milk should be allowed for each egg in an omelet.

Allow four eggs to each quart of milk in making cup custards.

Allow from four to six eggs to each quart of milk in making a custard to be turned from the mould.

Rice will absorb three times its measure of water, and a larger quantity of milk or stock.

One ounce of butter and one-half ounce of flour are used to thicken one cup of liquid in making a sauce.

Allow three level teaspoons of baking powder to each cup of flour when no eggs are used.

How to Tell if Your Hair is Diseased.

Even if you have a luxuriant head of hair, you may want to know whether it is in a healthy condition or not. Ninety-eight per cent of the people need a hair tonic.

Pull a hair out of your head, if the bulb at the end of the root is white and shrunken, it proves that the hair is diseased, and requires prompt treatment if its loss would be avoided. If the bulb is pink and full, the hair is healthy.

We want everyone whose hair requires treatment to try Rexall "93" Hair Tonic. We promise that it shall not cost anything if it does not give satisfactory results. It is designed to overcome dandruff, relieve scalp irritation, to stimulate the hair roots, tighten the hair already in the head, grow hair and cure baldness.

It is because of what Rexall "93" Hair Tonic has done and our sincere faith in its goodness that we want you to try it at our risk. Two sizes 50c. and $1.00. Sold only at our store—The Rexall Store, Royal Pharmacy, W. A. Warren.

LIGHTNING KILLED MOTHER AND CHILD

Woman Was Carrying Infant in Her Arms at the Time But It Was Uninjured.

Quebec, July 4—Two lives were lost as the result of a terrific storm which swept over Quebec and district yesterday, doing much damage to buildings and trees. The victims were a mother and her two-year-old child, who were struck by lightning at the Island of Orleans. A strange feature of the fatality is the fact that the mother was carrying a little infant in her arms at the time, but it was uninjured.

M. K. PIPER
PROPRIETOR AND PUBLISHER.
WEDNESDAY, JULY 19, 1911.

—Notwithstanding the excessive drought the prospect for the season's apple crop is exceptionally good. The million record is confidently expected, with a strong possibility that this figure will be exceeded. Questioning a prominent fruit grower as to the probability of the apples being affected by the drought, the Monitor's representative was informed that it was hardly possible that the crop would be impaired, and that the thinning of the fruit, which is reported as dropping badly in some orchards, might be rather a benefit than otherwise in cases where a systematic thinning out was not practised. From his observation it was principally in the uncultivated orchards that the dropping was most noticeable. He had found the fruit beautifully clean and free from scab. A short summary of crop reports from other parts, furnished by an exchange, may be of interest:

"Ontario and New York State, crop below average, Old Mission, Michigan, winter apples, 25 per cent or less, Duchess and fall fruit, 75 per cent; Scottville, Mich., Fall apples full crop; Fall Branch Tenn., fruit, a failure; Traverse City, Mich. early apples, average crop, winter apples, about 1/2 of average, Newyogo Co., Mich. winter apples will not be over one-fourth of crop in this county, Baldwin and Northern Spy, very scarce, fall varieties a full crop and quality good. Missouri fruit outlook is as follows:—Apples indicate thirty-five to forty per cent. of a full crop, the bloom over the whole state was good, but the set poor."

On Saturday sparks from the locomotives started fires at several points near Middleton. One blaze near the old Roop pork factory got such headway that a call was sent for help. But for the prompt response Mr. Johnson's house would probably have been burned. At almost the same time another call came for the firemen to go to the opposite end of the town where a fire was making threatening headway in Lockwood's standing timber. A shovell brigade proved to be an efficient force in controlling these fires. On Tuesday after the east bound Blunoes passed fires again broke out near the trotting park.—Outlook.

The barn of Philip Inglis, at Tuperville, was set on fire last Wednesday morning by the lightning. A little hay was burned but the fire was soon extinguished.

The services of the Baptist church on Sunday last were taken by Rev. A. N. Marshall, lately returned from Australia. Mr. Marshall is a former Clarence boy, the son of Mr. Newcombe Marshall, one of the progressive agriculturists of that section. His reputation as a forceful and impressive speaker drew large congregations, filling the house at both services. The sermon in the morning was based on the three first chapters of Genesis and was a scholarly interpretation of pre-historic relations of God and man. The evening sermon was an equally fine discourse, and the service was made especially enjoyable by the assistance of two members of the choir, Mrs. Seidler, of Hartford, Conn. (formerly Miss Lydia Munro) who gave a fine contralto solo, and Mrs. Porter, of Boston (formerly Miss Hettie Jefferson) who was a member of the church choir, presiding at the organ up to the time of her marriage, and who rendered choice organ selections and effective accompaniments on this occasion.

Stay East, Young Man

Some time ago the Record requested a well-known westerner, who formerly lived in the east, to write incidentally of western conditions. He is a man of good standing in the community in which he resides, well educated, and has the entire to circles which enable him to make a pronouncement on western life and conditions which may be accepted as par. He has done well in the west himself, but he is among the units. The hundreds and thousands who are not becoming millionaires, are in his opinion, one of the troubles with which the west must deal in the near future and the prospect is not an inviting one.

The one thing that the writer emphasizes above all others, is that the west is a country where capital is necessary to succeed. It takes more money each year to get into the game and the real estate business, in which most of the money made in the west has been accumulated, is being overdone. Real estate has been boomed to death. Exorbitant prices have been asked for land and cities have been located of sufficient area to accommodate populations of millions. This means that the land prices in many sections cannot be justified for years to come and there is at hand evidence that purchasers are becoming shy. The result is a threatened slump in land values any interruption of real estate sales, means disaster for the "little fellows." Added to the sickness of real estate dealings in many portions of the west is the conservative policy which the banks are inaugurating. Money is tightening up and the man of small capital is commencing to feel uneasy. Of course just as soon as their money is gone, they must unload and with the throwing over of this ballast, real estate prices are bound to slump. That is what the west is fearing at this moment and the prospects are for hard times ahead.

In other branches of business, the outlook is equally unpromising. It is not easy to walk in and get a good position in western cities. Thousands of people are pouring into all the centres and there is the keenest competition for employment. In fact the west has another problem on its hands, "how to find employment for all during the winter months." The man with money enough to start in business, and that means three dollars for one compared with eastern demands, is all right, but he must be prepared to face the keen competition and to pay the prices for rentals and that sort of thing which will, for the moment, fall on him.

If a man has a good living in the east, the Record's correspondent gives the advice, "stay in the east." There is just as much worry and hard work awaiting a man out west as there is here, and at present the time is inopportune to get into the game. A lot of real estate men must go and in the wedding out of the small fry many other lines of trade are going to be hit. The west is all right for the one man in a hundred. He may get rich, but the ninety-nine will progress much the same as they would in the east. The west wants men with capital and every day the demand for money men is becoming greater.

The Good Done By Carrie Nation

(From the 'Literary Digest')

It has been said that we go insane only over the things worth while going insane over. Carrie Nation is dead, and her death was caused by paresis. Therefore her enemies rejoice. These enemies include many themselves favorable to prohibition. But they firmly believe that Carrie Nation made them a laughing-stock as well as herself, and that she did their cause more harm than good. They forgot some things, however, and from all the multitude of humorous "write-ups" of her career now appearing in the press, we must turn to the region of her birth and bringing up in order to find impartial, dignified treatment and opinion. The following account is contained in the Kansas City Journal. It says editorially:

"No matter what outsiders may say of the late Carrie Nation, the people of Kansas have a warm spot in their hearts for her. Perhaps she was misguided. If she was, it was in the right direction.

"That Carrie Nation is directly responsible for the wholesome condition existing in Kansas today, so far as the enforcement of the prohibitory law is concerned, is admitted by all public men who have kept close tabs on things. Had she not started out with her little hatchet the chances are that the State would be disregarding the prohibitory law now as it had been before her advent. It is common knowledge to all that Kansas was in a most deplorable condition from a temperance standpoint, when she first broke loose. All the big towns had open saloons and nearly every small town had its joint or blind tiger. No effort was being made, in good faith, to enforce the law. Wichita boasted of its high-toned saloons with expensive bars and mirrors. Kansas City, Kan. had as fine saloons as its sister city across the line. Leavenworth and Atchison had a saloon in every business block. Expensive bars were maintained in Topeka right in the shadow of the state-house dome. Saloon-keepers and jointists were running the towns and in many places were even dictating the politics of their counties. Some of them were so bold as to try to run state politics. Corruption was rife everywhere. The state, from a prohibition view point, was the laughing-stock of the nation, whenever a prohibition fight was in progress the liquor interest held Kansas up as a horror State. But they couldn't deny it. All they could say to the charge was: "As bad as conditions are under prohibition, they are not as bad as they would be with open saloons everywhere." The people would take much comfort out of the fact that there were a few counties where the law was rigidly enforced. But when Kansas was put in evidence as 'Exhibit A' in other States where a prohibition fight was on, prohibition was not materially benefited. In fact, it was injured.

Contempt for the prohibitory law bred contempt for other laws. The low-down joints and grog shops became shelters for crooks of all kinds and crimes of the most revolting nature were so numerous that they ceased to have any news value.

"A murder in Wichita or Topeka is no longer news," is the reply Eastern papers would make to a query as to how much they wanted of a certain murder.

This was the condition when Carrie Nation showed up with her hatchet, or rather her axe. For while Carrie's fame is linked with the 'hatchet,' it was an axe that she first used. Driven almost to frenzy by drunkenness in her own family and by the utter disregard in which public officials held their own oaths of office, she decided to close up the saloons in her own little town. Little did she dream that her smashing raid at Kiowa would ultimately bring her into national prominence. It wasn't glory she was looking for when she first began her crusades, it was the enforcement of the prohibitory law. After she got a touch of notoriety she kept on. Perhaps it caused her later to do much smashing. But notoriety was the furthest from her thoughts when she started out.

It was and still is against the law to destroy property, but Mrs. Nation always contended that property used for an unlawful purpose was not property; at least, that it was not entitled to the protection of the law. It was her conviction that the very last that it was no crime to smash a joint or spill a lot of liquor in the gutters. And it was this feature of the case that caused the law-abiding people to cheer her on.

They felt that Kansas had been out-riaged so long by the outlaws in the liquor traffic that drastic action of most any kind against them was all right.

It was not Carrie's smashing that brought about the change in Kansas conditions. Not her little hatchet. It was her tongue. Her hatchet and her smashing enabled her to get the ear of the people in general and public officials in particular. And her tongue did the rest. She tackled every public official who was in the least responsible for the notorious violation of the prohibitory law. The lectures she read governors, attorney-generals, county attorneys, district judges, supreme judges, legislators, and others less important were heralded everywhere by the press. She got right under the hide of the officials. Public sentiment was behind her absolutely in her castigation of recreant officials. She drove them to action. Then they found that it wasn't so hard after all to enforce the law. A wave of law enforcement was soon kindled and it has been going ever since. As a result Kansas probably hasn't an open saloon within its borders today and blind tigers and joints are as scarce as hen's teeth.

It is popular now to enforce the prohibitory law. No longer do the politicians cater to the jointists or their allies. 'Swat the jointists or

THE CURSE OF THE NATION IS CONSTIPATION

"Fruit-a-tives" Alone Cures This Disease

A famous scientist states that Constipation, or non-action of the bowels, causes more deaths than all other diseases combined. Constipation inflames the kidneys, ruins digestion, is the foundation of Rheumatism, poisons the blood, causes Headaches, Neuralgia, Nervousness and Insomnia.

Constipation is caused by a weak or sluggish liver. Bile, the only purgative of the body, is secreted by the liver, which in turn should pour out into the intestines sufficient bile to move the bowels. Unless the liver is active, there cannot be enough bile to move the bowels regularly, and Constipation is the result.

"Fruit-a-tives", the famous fruit medicine, will always cure Constipation because it acts directly on the liver—relieves the congestion—increases the quantity of bile—and strengthens the bowel muscles.

bootlegger' is as common now as about through the action of one determined little woman—Carrie Nation.

It was always a conundrum to many people why Mrs. Nation established a home for drunkards' wives on Kansas soil. It will be remembered that out of her profits on the lecture platform she saved some money and started a home for drunkards' wives in Kansas City, Kan. That such a home should be established in a prohibition State, where theoretically there should be no drunkards, seemed strange. To a friend Mrs. Nation said she had two objects in mind. First, to give a home to women who had worthless drunkard husbands; second to shame public officials of Kansas into doing their full duty. That Kansas needed such a home was due solely to recreant officials and she thought perhaps it would spur them into doing up to their oaths of office. And it has. This is evidenced by the fact that the home was closed recently, because there were no drunkards' wives to look after. Carrie Nation received many slurs and jibes, not only from violators of law, but also from some of our best citizens. But she will live in memory long after they are dead and forgotten. Like John Brown, her body now lies Old mouldering in the grave, but her soul goes marching on.

DIFERENT POINTS OF VIEW.

Congressman Humphreys, of Mississippi, sometimes points an argument with a characteristic story of human nature—white and black. In a committee meeting recently he vividly portrayed the change in mind of a consumer who had become a manufacturer.

"My brother, Doctor Humphreys, of Greenwood, was walking down the street one morning. As he reached the corner he met Aunt Cindy, the family cook; she had a brickbat in her hand and was shaking a large black fist at a rapidly moving automobile down the street.

"What's the matter, Aunt Cindy" he asked.

"Matter!" exclaimed Aunt Cindy, her usually smiling face distorted with anger and indignation. "Here I is, a 'spectable married 'oman, crossing of de street, not saying a word to nobody, and long comes dat er automobile and scares me plumb to death! I's got just as much right on dat crossing as he has. If dat pore white trash comes back here agin I'll bust him open with dis 'ere brickbat!"

"Aunt Cindy paused for breath, while the doctor smiled. "Come on with me and forget all about it. Miss Fanny just telephoned to send you right back down home—some company came in for dinner and she wants you right away."

"Huh! How's I goin' to get down that right away?" asked Cindy, gazing down at her ample proportions and drooping the ampie.

"Your car is across the street, I'll take you down in five 'ere," the doctor said.

"Aunt Cindy followed the doctor and laboriously climbed into the tonneau, sitting on the extreme edge of the seat and looking straight ahead. It was her first automobile ride.

"As the car gained speed, Cindy sat back farther and farther, until, with a smile of satisfaction, she was comfortably resting against the cushions.

"A negro was seen crossing the street a block or so in front. Honk! Honk! cried the doctor's horn; and again, Honk! Honk! Cindy leaned forward, gazing scornfully at the unheeding pedestrian.

"Run over de fool Nigger!" she exclaimed to the doctor. "He's got no business in de road!"

"A pompous deacon was trying his hand at teaching a Sunday-school class, and was wanting to bring out the beauty of Christian living.

"Why do you 'people call me a Christian?" he asked.

There was a pause, and then a shrill voice said:—"Please sir, because they don't know you."

HEAVY WEATHER.

At one time during a season of heavy fog a London daily paper offered a prize for the best fog story.

The story given here won the prize. "A merchant received a telephone message one morning from one of his clerks.

"Hello, Mr. Smith," said the clerk over the wire. "I cannot come down to the shop this morning on account of the fog. I have not yet arrived home yesterday."

HE GOT HIS.

"Dear Clara," wrote the young man, "pardon me, but I'm getting so forgetful. I proposed to you last night, but really forget whether you said 'yes' or 'no.'"

"Dear Will," she replied by note, "so glad to hear from you. I know I said 'no' to some one last night, but I had forgotten just who it was."—London Opinion.

FUSSY.

"That was a disgusting tramp I helped this morning," said old Mrs. Smythe, of Bungtown Corners. "I gave him a pie and told him to saw some wood, and about ten minutes later he came in and asked me if I'd mind if he ate the wood and sawed the pie."

TEMPERANCE MOVEMENT

"John," she said gently, "you are interested in temperance movements, are you not?"

"Of course I am," he answered. "Well, suppose you go and make a few of them at the pump handle. I want a pal of water at once."

PANIC WHEN FILM IGNITES.

Australia Town Scene of Moving Picture House Horror—Two May Die — Melburne, July 12—The perils of moving picture shows were vividly brought home to Australians by a disaster which happened in Celong when a biograph film ignited, precipitating a stampede on the part of the panic-stricken spectators. The operator of the biograph behaved with great bravery. He caught up the burning film and rushed into the street with it. The spectators, however, had become so terrified that they dashed for the entrances falling over each other. Five women were seriously burned in the disaster and two of them are dying.

HALF MILLION LOST IN FIRES.

Conflagrations in the Forests of Maine and New Hampshire Have Caused Great Damage to Property. Boston, July 13—Thousands of acres of forest land in New England, chiefly in Maine and New Hampshire, have been swept during the past few days by fires which today were raging unchecked in many sections. It is estimated that already damage to half a million dollars has resulted in Maine, the worst conflagration being in the Moosehead Lake region, where the flames have licked up great tracts of virgin forest. The fire which destroyed South Waterboro, Me., last night spread to the woods and today has spread over many square miles, threatening farm buildings. Hundreds of men were at work fighting the flames.

TUBERCULOSIS REPORT ISSUED.

British Royal Commission Finds Children Get Disease From Milk and Advocate Reform Regulations.

London, July 13—The Royal Commission appointed a decade ago to study the relation between human and bovine tuberculosis has issued a voluminous final report, which briefly finds that mammals and man can be reciprocally infected, but that there is not sufficient evidence to show that bovine and human tuberculosis are identical.

The bovine form, the report says, is constantly transmitted to children through milk, but rarely to adults. The Commission recommends a more stringent regulation with regard to milk and meat supplies.

Frank P. Jordan, a brother-in-law of Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett, the well-known novelist, was instantly killed yesterday in a collision near Port Washington, L. I., between Mrs. Burnett's auto and a trolley construction car. Mildred and Edith Johnston, two girls of eighteen and twenty, were taken unconscious to the hospital, where Edith died and it was feared Mildred could not live.

Invested as Prince of Wales.

Eldest Son of King and Queen Principal in Picturesque and Impressive Ceremony at Carnarvon Castle—Enthusiasm of a Revelation.

CARNARVON, Wales July 13.—The investiture of the Prince of Wales by King George, according to the stately ritual prescribed centuries ago, in the Great Court of Carnarvon Castle today was a wonderful spectacle, as impressive as it was picturesque.

The ceremony was the biggest thing that Wales has known for centuries. Everything pertaining to the investiture was distinctly Welsh. Welsh music, Welsh drama, Welsh costumes, and Welsh genius were conspicuous factors in the wonderful spectacle. Never within the memory of living man has anything so aroused the national patriotism of the Welsh people. The genuine enthusiasm with which the masses greeted their Majesties, the fervor with which they joined in singing the national anthem, the wild shouts which rent the air when the Prince of Wales showed himself to the people at the conclusion of the ceremony—all this, and more, must have been a revelation to the hundreds of English visitors, to the great majority of whom, it is safe to assert, the character of the Welsh people was an unknown quality.

THE CEREMONY

The ceremony of the investiture took place in the centre of the castle square opposite the main entrance, where a large platform had been erected. Surrounding the platform were great tiers of seats for the accommodation of the privileged spectators, who numbered more than 12,000 and included many court functionaries, civil and military officers, ecclesiastics and friends of the Royal family, in addition to the many chosen representatives of the Welsh people. The gray walls of the ivy-covered towers of the ancient castle afforded a magnificent setting for the brilliant picture within the enclosure, made dazzling by the multi-colored flags and banners, the bright uniforms of the military and the no-less brilliant robes of the State functionaries.

The Royal party detrained at a station a few miles from Carnarvon and entered the town in carriages under military escort. The procession entered by the North road and proceeded through the main street to the castle square, where they were formally received and presented with addresses of welcome by the Mayor and Corporation. The Royal party then entered the castle at the ancient Water Gate on the sea front, overlooking the picturesque Menai Strait and Carnarvon Bay. As their Majesties passed within the walls the Royal Welsh Choir of 500 voices joined in the Welsh national anthem, "Land of our Fathers."

TWO PROCESSIONS

From the castle square to the first entrance into the castle there were two separate processions, that of the Prince of Wales preceding that of the King and Queen by a few minutes. On the entrance of the Prince of Wales, his standard was hoisted from the topmost turret of the Eagle's Tower, where tradition has it that the first English Prince of Wales was born. Trumpeters in medieval costume played a fanfare as the head of the procession came in sight. On the entrance of their Majesties a few minutes later the Prince's flag was lowered from the turret and the royal standard hoisted.

Arrived within the castle precincts their Majesties and the Prince were escorted to apartments especially fitted up for their use—the same which are said to have been occupied by Edward I., and Queen Eleanor—where they donned their robes of state for the subsequent ceremonial. The robes of the King and Queen were similar to those worn on other state occasions. The Prince of Wales wore a specially designed robe of cloth of gold and purple velvet, modeled on the one worn by Charles I.

The royal party, having robed, proceeded in two processions by a specially constructed roadway along the interior of the castle to the investiture platform. The King officiated at the brief ceremony. The Queen was seated at the left of his Majesty and grouped about them were the Earl Marshall, the Garter King-at-Arms and Sommerset Herald, the Pursuivants and other functionaries.

As the Prince knelt before him the King solemnly said: "We declare your royal Highness to be prince of Wales." Following this the insignia was adjusted by the officials upon whom this duty was imposed by tradition.

The Prince, immediately after being invested, proceeded to the celebrated Queen Eleanor's Gateway, where he presented himself to the view of his Welsh subjects. He was greeted with shouts of wild enthusiasm, for the national Welsh people recognized in him a royal prince who was also a Prince of Wales.

Tablets To Mark Historic Sites.

Ten Will be Placed in Halifax in the Near Future.

The Nova Scotia Historical Society has for some time been studying the different historic sites in Halifax, which for one reason and another ought to be marked. Lists have been prepared, and gone over most carefully by those most competent to deal with the matter. At the last meeting of the Council, Archdeacon Armitage, the president, presiding, it was decided to mark some ten notable sites during the early summer.

The following places were selected: St. Paul's Church, which is the oldest building in Halifax; the site of St. Matthew's Church, formerly known as "Mother's Church," the building now occupied by J. C. MacIntosh & Co.; St. Peter's Church, the first Roman Catholic Church, on the site now occupied by St. Mary's Convent; General Wolfe's residence and headquarters, while preparing to take Louisbourg and Quebec, the site occupied by Robert Stanford, the first printing press in Canada; John Buswell's Press, the site on Crafiton St. in the rear of the old Uniacke mansion; the building used for the first Legislative Assembly, the site of the present Bank of New Brunswick; the first Court House, on Buckingham St.; the Grand Pontiac, the site occupied by Messrs. Jas. Duggan & Sons on Upper Water St.; the residence of the first Secretary of the Province, Hon. Richard Bulkeley, the present Carleton House; and Joseph Howe's birth-place on the grounds of Emscote the residence of B. F. Pearson.

The Tablet has been designed by Mr. Andrew R. Cobb, a member of the Society, and is a very chaste design, with the Provincial symbol, the Mayflower prominent. The carving for the castings of the frame was most artistically done in mahogany by Mrs. Herbert Bryant. The material used will be aluminum. It is thought that this metal which is nearly white with a slight bluish tinge, will prove the best for the purpose being almost as hard as silver, taking a good polish, and showing little effect of atmospheric and chemical changes. The fact that it will not easily tarnish makes it very suitable for tablets. Mr. Frank Hillis has given much time to the work of preparing the tablets, and the first which was on view on Monday was greatly admired. The artistic and yet bold design which is being used, has been fully commended.

The placing of the tablets is a matter of such general interest that notice will be given of any functions connected with their unveiling, the first of which will probably be next week.

The Committee in charge of the inscriptions consists of the President, Mr. J. S. MacDonald, and Mr. Harry Piers.

TO TEACH A COLT TO BACK

Stand on the ground behind the breaking colt and pull hard, but steadily, upon the reins, saying, "Back! Back!" This, of course the colt does not understand, and he will resist the pulling for some time but finally, to relieve the pressure on his mouth, will take a step or a half step backward. Watch him closely for the sign of compliance, and the moment it is shown release the pressure on the bit, then repeat the lesson.

Remember that the secret of success is in releasing pressure the very instant a backward movement is made. For if you keep on pulling, you do not convey to his mind any intelligible idea of what you want of him. But by releasing pressure the colt soon learns that he can escape the painful pressure on his mouth by simply stepping backward and is prompt to avail himself of the privilege.

When he will back nicely in this way, get onto the breaking colt and repeat the lesson. Don't make your lessons too long, but have them short and oft repeated, and always take pains to put up the colt just after he has yielded cheerfully to what you require of him. In this way the recollection of his obedience keeps in his mind.

I have heard it said that "it takes a year to teach a colt to back," but I have never yet seen a colt that could not be taught to back in thirty minutes, often in less time, if the right methods were used.—Reader.

A disastrous fire visited the village of Elmsdale, thirty miles from Halifax, on Saturday, when the buildings occupied by I. B. Shaffner & Co., and the residence of John Ross were totally destroyed. The buildings destroyed were a store, two barns and carriage house, occupied by I. B. Shaffner & Co., and owned by Mrs. Eleanor T. Ross, and the residence of John Ross.

Lightning in Halifax.

Elmwood Hotel on Fire But Little Damage is Occasioned.

The thunder and lightning storm which passed over the City yesterday setting in about ten a.m. while only of short duration was very severe and occasioned considerable damage in various sections of the city. Shortly after the storm set in an alarm of fire from Box 13 rang out right on top of a heavy clap of thunder. The Box is at the corner of Morris and Pleasant streets and the fire was on the roof of the Elmwood hotel, a block farther south. Lightning struck the top of the tower on the roof of the hotel and glanced down the side ripping off a few shingles but leaving no other marks so far as could be seen. The fire was an incipient one and was quickly extinguished, without much damage to the hotel. The lightning also touched on an electric wire pole near the Octagon light and ran along the electric light wire ripping off the insulation but doing no further damage.

On Cogswell street the residence of Rev. L. C. Donaldson was struck by the lightning, in a most peculiar manner. The lightning ran along the gas pipe in the cellar, and broke the pipe, which began to burn.

The maid, happening to go down cellar saw the smoke and notified Mr. Donaldson. The slight blaze was quickly put out, there being no damage except the charring of the cellar rafters and the broken gas pipe. About the time the lightning struck the house, Mr. Donaldson heard a noise like the breaking of glass.

If the maid had not gone in the cellar, the house undoubtedly would have burned down. It was fortunate that the house was not empty.

The four houses on Cogswell street from seventeen to twenty-three were more or less affected by the lightning, all telephone communication being cut off, and in Rev. A. F. Newcombe's house the electriciser was struck, the brass work being burned right through.

One hundred or more telephones were put out of commission, several tram cars throughout the city, particularly in the North End district were prevented from continuing their scheduled service shortly after the lightning and thunder storm set in. For a time traffic on all lines was practically at a standstill.

The Telephone Company had a busy time in locating and repairing the damage done to their system.—Herald.

Your correspondent of last week who signed himself "One of the Committee" seems to have taken quite seriously my few remarks re coronation day at Annapolis. He seems to think that a man must be located in this Annapolis Valley a number of years in order to be wholly civilized. Now this is a fallacy in view of the writer's remarks, for a man who will jump in the air and spit out so many mean things about a fellow citizen, who is merely trying to solve the disappointments of his fellow mortals, in my humble opinion, no length of time would render him entirely civilized in this or any other Valley, and as to having him teach us something, we think, perhaps, he would be waking up the wrong man. However, I am quite sorry that "one of the Committee's" feelings have been ruffled, as he was only in pursuit of an honest dollar.
