COMMUNIST POWER GROWS

Gaining Upper Hand in Essen; Keeps Prices Down

French President Reaffirms Resolution to Make Germany Pay—Belgium Gets Reparations.

(Canadian Press)

Essen, May 28.—The burgomaster of Essen began negotiations today with the Communists and representatives of the workers for the formation of a workers police force to assist the firemen.

The Communists committee of control is apparently gaining the upper hand here, and has little difficulty in forcing the shopkeepers to keep prices down to the mark dictated by the committee.

The French authorities at Düsseldorf today issued an official denial of widespread reports that the French had supplied the firemen and workers of Bochum with firearms.

Mulhouse, Alsace, May 28.—President Millerand yesterday reaffirmed France's unshakable resolution to obtain payment by Germany of just reparations. "She wants what is due her. She will get it," he said.

Paris, May 28.—The fourth and final instalment of Germany's payments to meet the treasury bills advanced to Belgium for settlement of Belgium's claims during the last half of 1922, thirty million gold marks arrived here yesterday.

Belgium's Plans.

Paris, May 28.—Belgium's reparations plan, according to Le Matin, suggests the formation in the Reich of monopolies in such commodities as alcohol, sugar and tobacco, together with the exploitation of the railroads and state property. The proposed monopolies would be managed by international syndicates on which the Allies would be well represented.

The newspaper says Premier Thuis estimates that this plan would furnish a minimum of $400,000,000 gold marks annually. It would have the advantage of making Germany's debt a commercial one and would mean that she would find ways of meeting it within her own borders, thus making it unnecessary for the Allies and reparations to continue.

France's Big Bill.

Paris, May 28.—The Government has asked the chamber of deputies to vote a credit of $8,000,000,000 francs for the Ruhr occupation expenses for June. The cost of the occupation since the beginning is estimated at $10,000,000,000 francs.

Berlin, May 28.—Although the Government of Germany has not yet been formed, the Berlin newspapers publish dispatches depicting the situation as most serious, owing to distress among the unemployed, who are marching and demonstrating throughout the city.

Lage Zeitung reports that a crowd attempted to storm the Dresden police headquarters last evening and that several persons were killed or injured.

The general elevation of the country is somewhat less than 2,000 feet, and it is cut up into many fertile valleys that alternate with barren and wastes. Promises to Stand By Prohibition Act

Conservative Leader in Ontario Says it Must Prevail Unless People Change It

Spencerville, Ont., May 28.—Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, leader of the Liberal-Conservative party in the province in closing his speech at a convention here yesterday which accorded him the unanimous nomination to contest Grenville County again defined his attitude on the Ontario Temperance Act and its enforcement.

He said that the Conservative party had pursued a consistent course on the temperance question, that the party had contributed more to the cause of temperance than any other ever did and avowed that if entrusted with the reins of government the Conservative party would maintain the same consistent attitude and policy upon this question.

"The people of Ontario by their votes declared for prohibition," said Hon. Mr. Ferguson, "prohibition must prevail and be observed until the people by their votes pronounce against it."

The ladies dresses in Paris recently have been shorter than ever, but with the brim hats and enormous tunics which the ladies are wearing, the short skirts are regarded as very modest.

WAS ADVICE; NOT MANDATE

Philadelphia, May 28.—Denial of newspaper reports that the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. took any action at the recent general assembly in Indianapolis to compel its members to sign a total abstinence pledge, was made today by Lewis S. Mudge, clerk of the denomination. The resolution adopted, he said, stated "it is the sense of this general assembly, that the members should do so. The resolution was in no way mandatory. It was entirely advisory."

LEADERS HAD BAD DAY IN MAJOR LEAGUES

Athletics and New York Giants Among the Baseball Teams Defeated

New York, May 28.—It was the under dog's day, a day of reversals, in the major leagues yesterday for the teams that played, all the leaders except the New York Americans receiving setbacks. The Yankees and five other American League clubs did not play.

The high-stepping Athletics, after taking two out of three from the Yankees, were soft prey to the easy Boston Red Sox, 8 to 6, and the lowly Philadelphia Quakers, perhaps the weakest team in either league, won a doubleheader from the Athletics. The Athletics made a desperate effort to win, losing Sammy Hale, star third baseman, for a few days through a leg injury. Hale injured his hand last night but continued in the game against the Yankees.

Other reversals included that given Pittsburgh by Chicago, 6 to 4, keeping the Pirates from taking advantage of an infrequent opportunity offered by the Giants.

St. Louis jumped at its chance, beating the Reds 5 to 4, making up ground lost to Pittsburgh last week. The hammer and tongs battle between Brooklyn and New York, which the Robins won 5 to 4, was also a top story affair, the Giants having shown previously the most nearly impregnable front in either league. It was the fourth defeat in six starts for Jack Bentley, the $25,000 star purchased from Baltimore.

As Hiram Sees It

"I hear," said the Times reporter to Mr. Hiram Hornbloom, "there is a movement in the settlement to abolish the dandelion." "You newspaper fellows are always hearing something," said Hiram, "what's the dandelion been doing?" "Everybody is said to be making dandelion wine," said the reporter.

"That ain't the dandelion's fault," said Hiram. "If they any dandelion got on anywhere you'll find some human critters behind it every time. No, sir—the dandelion's all right. Me an' Hanner has some fer greens' most every day. If too many of 'em gets in a field you might have to plough it up, but that don't happen very often."

"But wine," said the reporter, "is a mocker. And they get wine from dandelions."

"An' booze from potatoes—an' barley an' corn—an' a lot more things," said Hiram. "Was you thinkin' we'd ort to abolish 'em all? What you want to do, Mister, is to abolish them that turn the dandelion's blessing to man into a curse. As fer dandelion wine—if it's like what I've tasted, you couldn't get drunk if you went swimmin' in it. From what I see around the streets of this town it ain't dandelion you want to get after—but the real piece—By Hen!"

Ontario Profits by Hebridean Exodus

1. Group of emigrants waiting to board the C.P.R. liner Metagama. 2. Passengers lament the departure from the tender.

On a recent voyage westward the Canadian Pacific liner "Metagama" carried over three hundred young Lawman and men from other islands in the Hebrides, the first body of emigrants from the Western Isles in over eighty years. They have settled in Ontario, from the government of which Province they received assistance. Tall, magnificent specimens physically, they were forced by the iron hand of circumstances to give up the struggle for existence on the wind swept rocks on which their homes were built and to seek a land where, even though they continued to battle with nature for a living, there was a better chance of winning out. By nature they are workers, but there was no work to do. The older men could till the land and have time to spare, and as for fishing, once a lucrative pursuit, there was no market for what they could catch. So the young men came and with them twenty of their sisters who have entered domestic service. The old folk and those who stayed at home grieved to see them go, but what could be done? There were, of course a few eyes reddeled by the year shed in secret, but on the whole the boys were sent away with smiles as many of the oldest of them had been sent to join the Seaforth's a few years previously. Bag pipes played and the whole business of Stormaway was suspended until after the "exodus". Some happy now conceived the idea of lighting beather on the cliffs inshore that the smoke, enveloping the vessel as it pulled from Stormaway Bay, might leave in the senses of the emigrants the last sweet smell of home. The liner Marloch of the same line also carried over three hundred people from the Western Isles and both liners arrived at St. John about the same time. The passengers on the Marloch were bound further west having decided to form a colony in the Red Deer district of Alberta where the land is cheaper. All have come to Canada with the idea of eventually purchasing farms for themselves although, for this year, they will work as farm labourers.

"I Need Glasses? Nonsense!"

"Go ahead — you're right. Glasses are all very good for those that should have them. But not for me, I read all right — it's just that I've been reading too late at night — otherwise I can see anything I want to see."

So he goes on till one day something happens that makes him get glasses. Then they have to be strong ones and take breaking in. Perhaps that won't suit his impatience and he tosses them aside going from bad to worse.

Only one person can tell if glasses are needed — the Optometrist. People who judge for themselves could save in many ways by considering consultation the better part of economy.

FARRAR AGAIN SCORNS METROPOLITAN OFFER AND WILL GO ON TOUR

GERALDINE FARRAR, IMPERIOUS DIVA WHO REFUSES CONTRACT WHEN DENIED PRIVILEGE OF NAMING CASTS, AND MME. JERITZA, RIVAL WHO HOLDS PLACE AS METROPOLITAN OPERA COMPANY'S QUEEN.

New York, May 29.—As prematurely as she dismissed Lou Tellegen, madame Jérita, Austrian wife of the Metropolitan Opera Company's chief, returned to Paotzu after the conference.

Last night it was said, she refused to accept the Metropolitan terms because her contract provided for fewer appearances than were planned for Mme. Marie Jeritza, Austrian wife of the Baron von Popper, who won her way into the hearts of opera lovers.

In preparation for the coming season, Gatti-Casazza, Metropolitan director, made peace overtures to Miss Farrar. The golden-voiced singer was willing to have peace—upon her own terms—and stipulated that she must be allowed to name the casts for the operas in which she would appear.

The peace conference ended there. Gatti-Casazza revamped his tentative plans for the season and Miss Farrar announced she would again tour the U. S., Canada and Cuba.

Last season in ninety concerts she earned something like $100,000. She had already signed for ninety-one appearances during the coming season.

So while Mme. Jeritza remains Queen of the Metropolitan, the imperious Geraldine will go into the far places of the land and reap a golden harvest with her golden voice.

Mme. Jeritza, now in Europe, probably will be undisturbed by the news of Miss Farrar's decision not to cast her lot with the Metropolitan. It insures her place as the outstanding star of the Metropolitan galaxy.

Gatti-Casazza's disappointment at his failure to bring Miss Farrar back into the fold probably finds consolation in the reflection that the failure at least insures a greater measure of peace in his temperamental family of singers.

BANDITS PAROLE NEWSPAPER MAN

J. B. Powell, Shanghai Publisher, Allowed Free for Negotiations.

Taochowang, May 29.—J. B. Powell, newspaper publisher of Shanghai, one of the prisoners held by bandits, in the Paotzu Hills, who was paroled to conduct negotiations with consular authorities here for the release of the fourteen captives, said today that the conference was proceeding satisfactorily. Powell, keeping his parole to the bandits' chief, returned to Paotzu after the conference.

New York, May 29.—As prematurely as she dismissed Lou Tellegen, madame Jérita, Austrian wife of the Metropolitan Opera Company's chief, returned to Paotzu after the conference.

Last night it was said, she refused to accept the Metropolitan terms because her contract provided for fewer appearances than were planned for Mme. Marie Jeritza, Austrian wife of the Baron von Popper, who won her way into the hearts of opera lovers.

In preparation for the coming season, Gatti-Casazza, Metropolitan director, made peace overtures to Miss Farrar. The golden-voiced singer was willing to have peace—upon her own terms—and stipulated that she must be allowed to name the casts for the operas in which she would appear.

The peace conference ended there. Gatti-Casazza revamped his tentative plans for the season and Miss Farrar announced she would again tour the U. S., Canada and Cuba.

Last season in ninety concerts she earned something like $100,000. She had already signed for ninety-one appearances during the coming season.

So while Mme. Jeritza remains Queen of the Metropolitan, the imperious Geraldine will go into the far places of the land and reap a golden harvest with her golden voice.

Mme. Jeritza, now in Europe, probably will be undisturbed by the news of Miss Farrar's decision not to cast her lot with the Metropolitan. It insures her place as the outstanding star of the Metropolitan galaxy.

Gatti-Casazza's disappointment at his failure to bring Miss Farrar back into the fold probably finds consolation in the reflection that the failure at least insures a greater measure of peace in his temperamental family of singers.

INTERESTING FACTS ABOUT THE PASTEURIZED MILK

(Statement by Board of Health)

Since May 1915, ninety-nine per cent. of the milk supply of the city of Detroit has been pasteurized, the remaining one per cent. is certified. Previous to pasteurization the infant death rate in Detroit was 120.4 per 1,000 births, while in 1922 the rate was reduced to 78. Do these figures indicate that pasteurized milk is an infant destroyer?

St. John had an infant mortality in 1921 of 187 with about one fifth of our milk supply pasteurized. There is no good reason why the infant death rate of St. John cannot be reduced the same as the cities of Toronto and Detroit.

As there are 4,300 men employed in Porcupine Mines, it will be seen that about one-eighth voted.

I, like the lonely bird, am weary of my heart's wild beating. Weary of youth with its splendor and laughter and love that are pain. I would seal my ears to the call that the mating lark is repeating: I would blind my eyes to the rose, to the light of the April rain.

MINISTERS AND CIVIL SERVANTS.

(London Times.)
Lord Milner warmly champions the civil servant against "shallow-pated critics" about bureaucracy. Speaking at a meeting of civil servants, he said a minister went into office generally knowing nothing about the business. It was one of the chief duties of the civil servant of the upper rank to give shape and substance to the vague ideas of the politician.

FOOD AND INDUSTRIAL WORKERS.

(United States Public Health Service.)
Food, so far as the vast majority of women industrial workers are concerned, means "lunch," says the U. S. Public Health Service. "What they eat in the morning and in the evening depends very largely on conditions over which some other woman has control. Takes a whole while they have very little choice."

About the only rule that can be laid down is to eat something and not to rush to work without eating anything. Hundreds of working women, mostly young girls who do their weekly day work, would do it twice; he would have his breakfast or more. And in this particular, at least the girls would do well to imitate him.

At lunch, however, they may bring a cold lunch with them, have a lukewarm lunch brought to them, go home for a lunch or dinner, or eat in the cafeteria.

A "through" lunch must be eaten somewhere. In some places and under some circumstances it can be eaten out of doors comfortable, without being contaminated by flies or dust. Generally, however, it must be eaten indoors, in a room set aside for this and other purposes (such as recreation) or in the work-room. To eat in the recreation room interferes with those for whose benefit it was set aside. To eat in the work-room presents the complete anti-ideal.

As for food—well, one important thing is to avoid the things one gets at the factory. These things are unclean and nearly always lacks some element that it ought to have.

Meat for sedentary workers is inadvisable as lunch unless lunch is really enough for most people. Fruit, grapes, apples, home cooked meats, fish, cream puddings, etc., are all right in their place but should never be eaten at the place of better food. Sweets drug the appetite for a time but leave one hungry and often feeling faint before the day is over.

THE UNIQUE

Gladys Walton Scores Heavily in New Drama, "The Love Letter."

The far reaching influence that a thoughtfully planned love drama has on the life of a woman is the theme of Gladys Walton's latest picture, "The Love Letter." It is the story of a woman who, through a series of circumstances, comes to the country, where she tries to be good. An honest and true heart is the result, and the shadow of the past looms threateningly in the foreground.

MANY SENSATIONS IN "THE FLIRT"

Booth Tarkington Picture Makes Strong Impression at Imperial Showing.

"The Flirt," at the Imperial, is nothing short of an unadorned presentation of a condition that exists in many homes on this continent where pampered and headstrong good-looking daughters rule the roost, as the saying goes, and bring worry and sometimes dishonor upon the family, not always because the girl has been personally at fault but because her headstrong dealings with promiscuous lovers involves the family in compromising financial tangles. The picture is one well worth careful watching and no doubt more great throngs of people will see it today.

More pictures like "The Flirt," and there would be no motion picture censor. Clean, brilliant and dramatic, "The Flirt," is one of the best pictures ever offered as an antidote for sin, and a tonic for the family life.

It was filmed at Imperial City under the direction of Hobart Henley, and it is intended as a Universal-level production with a cast that is entitled to be called "all-star."

This week the same authors show their hand in another play that for amusing situations and cross purposes thrills the former play into the limbo of the superseded.

Rangoon, May 29. — (Associated Press)—The spectacle of wealthy American women removing their silk stockings in the streets of an Oriental city has attracted much attention in Rangoon during recent weeks.

The occasion for these crowd-drawing incidents is a rule, enforced since the Fall of 1920, prohibiting footwear upon the platform of Shwe Dago pagoda, one of the most important Buddhist shrines in Asia.

Although the Burmans themselves have always removed their footwear before ascending the pagoda steps, until recent years Europeans have been allowed to visit the pagoda without taking off their shoes.

The Breaking Point

By Mary Roberts Rinehart

Copyright 1922, by Mary Roberts Rinehart, Published by Arrangement With McCure's Magazine.

(Continued From Yesterday.) The contempt in Dick's voice whipped the color to Gregory's face and clenched his fist. But he relaxed in a moment and laughed. "Don't worry, Bassett," he said, his eyes on Dick. "We haven't any reason to like each other, but he's bigger than I am. I won't hit him." Then he hardened his voice. "But I'll remind you, Clark, that personally I don't give a damn whether you swing or not. Also that I can keep my mouth shut, walk out of here, and have you in a snood in the next hour, if I decide to."

her and turned, she saw it was Lucas. "You remember, Jud, having a revolver and Lucas taking it from your pocket?" "No, Donaldson testified I'd had a revolver." "Well, that's how we figure he'd got the gun. She thought at once that Lucas and you had quarrelled, and that he was going to shoot. She tried to take it from him but he was drunk and stubborn. It went off and killed him." Bassett leaned forward. "That's straight, is it?" "I'm telling you." "Then why in God's name didn't she say that at the inquest?" "She was afraid it wouldn't be believed. Look at the facts. She'd quarrelled with Lucas. There had been a way you look at it, and he had a rotten deal. Sometimes a man sows," he added, with a wry smile, "and the other fellow reaps." Bassett went out after that, going to the office on the chance of a letter from Melis, but there was none. When he came back he found Dick standing over a partially packed suitcase, and knew that they had come to the end of the road indeed. "What's the next step?" he asked bluntly. "I'll have to leave here. It's too expensive." "And after that, what?" "I'll get a job. I suppose a man is as well hidden here as anywhere. I can grow a beard—that's the usual thing, isn't it?" Bassett made an impatient gesture, and fell to pacing the floor. "It's incredible," he said. "It's monstrous. It's a joke. Here you are, without a thing against you, and hung like Mahomet's coffin, between heaven and earth. It makes me sick." He went home that night, leaving word to have any letter for L 22 forwarded, but without much hope. His last clutch of Dick's hand had a sort of desperate finality in it, and he carried with him most of the way home the tall, grave and patiently courageous figure that saw him off with a smile. By the next afternoon's mail he received a note from New York, with a few words of comment pencilled on it in Dick's writing. "This came this evening. I sent back the money. D." The note was from Gregory and had evidently enclosed a one-hundred dollar bill. It began without superfluous form: "Enclosed find a hundred dollars, as I imagine funds may be short. notorious situation with regard to Clark, and remembers this. She had done it. I know her well enough, however, to say that she would have confessed, eventually, but Clark had beaten it. It was reasonably sure that he was lost in the biliard. You've got to allow for that." Bassett said nothing. After a silence Dick spoke: "What about the revolver?" "She had it in her hand. She dropped it and stood still, too stunned to scream. Lucas, she says, took a step or two forward and fell through the doorway. Donaldson came running in, and you know the rest." Bassett was the first to break the silence. "She will be willing to testify to that now, of course?" "And stand trial?" "Not necessarily. Clark would be on trial. He's been indicted. He has to be tried."

What rest equals this—to sleep—and not to know it? There is a way to put even your dreams to sleep—yet you do not know the way. Doubtless you are paying the toll of indifference to your sleep equipment. You may not know that you can drift to sleep on clouds of rest that will lull your weary senses and put you out at dawn, fit for all that comes your way. BOY, 16, KILLS SALESMAN FOR PAIR OF SHOES

Shoots Shop Owner After Being Fitted, Wounds Man Who Blocks Door—Trapped by Police in Bowery Chase.

New York, May 29.—After having been fitted to a pair of shoes, Dominic Gianbroni, a sixteen-year-old boot-black, paid for them last week by shooting the owner of a Bowery shoe-store through the brain. In trying to escape the boy shot and wounded a second man. He was captured by police after an exciting chase through the streets, in which he was followed through a crowd of onlookers. The killing took place at 5:30 o'clock. The slain man was Hyman Kust, who for fifteen years kept a shoe shop at 139 Bowery. His home was at 416 Grand Street, where he lived with his wife and three of his children. He was shot through the right eye, the bullet penetrating the brain.

Gianbroni couldn't think of any other way than robbery to get a pair of shoes, he told police. Hears Cry and Shot.

Max Brozen, thirty-two years old, a painter living at 204 Madison Avenue, son-in-law of Kust, suffered a scalp wound when Gianbroni fired in passing him to make his escape. Brozen was descending the stairs to pay a call on Kust at the time and heard Gianbroni cry "Hands up!" and fire.

The lad burst out of the shop and started running up the Bowery in his new shoes. Two patrolmen, Michael McCarthy, of Traffic A, stationed at the corner of Grand Street and the Bowery, and John Shine, of the Oak Street station, heard the shots, saw Gianbroni and gave chase. The Bowery rush-hour crowd joined lustily in the pursuit. Gianbroni turned into Hester Street and sped on. He was seen reaching for his belt. The fleeing man dodged through traffic, slipped through the street crowd and around pushcarts, scattering the bewildered throng.

Down Hester Street Shine caught up with him, stuck out his foot and tripped the boy, who went spinning into an alleyway, still clutching at his belt. McCarthy, who came up at that instant, clouted him over the head with his club and knocked him momentarily unconscious.

30 Cartridges in Belt. Before he came to, the police had stripped Gianbroni's belt from him. It contained six clips of five cartridges each of .32 caliber bullets. In his back pocket was a home-made blacklock consisting of a chisel and a heavy slip sewed into a canvas cover with a pistol and serviceable handle.

Gianbroni was dragged back to the little basement shoe shop through a crowd that grew momentarily larger and more ominous. There Brozen identified him as the one who had burst out of the shop, shooting as he went, leaving Kust dying on the floor. Brozen said he heard the first shot as he was descending the steps and saw Gianbroni with the smoking revolver in his hands. Detectives Williams and La Bataglia, of the Clinton Street Station, arrived and set to work keeping the crowd back from the entrance to the shop. The crowd, however, grew momentarily more demonstrative and reserves were sent for. They drew their nightsticks and formed a cordon across the sidewalk.

Presently La Bataglia and McCarthy emerged with the lad between them and started to make their way to the police station. Shots of "Lynch him! Lynch him!" were heard, and the officers had a difficult time elbowing their way through the furious gathering. Other police formed in front and behind the little group and with some trouble brought their quarry to safety.

Gianbroni told police at the Clinton Street Station that when he entered the shop several customers were ahead of him. He waited till they were all gone, he said, and Kust then fitted him to a pair of shoes. Gianbroni asked the shopkeeper to wrap up his old ones, and when the man brought them to him, drew his revolver and ordered Kust to put up his hands.

Mildly astonished, Kust turned questioning toward Gianbroni, who promptly pulled the trigger. Kust fell mortally wounded and Gianbroni fled.

"At that moment Brozen was half-way down the basement steps. Startled by the concussion, Brozen took the last steps on the jump. His rush gave Gianbroni a chance to slip past him. Brozen turned and made a grab at the fleeing lad, who promptly raised his revolver and fired again. The bullet ploughed across Brozen's scalp. He was taken to Gouverneur Hospital, where the physician who attended him declared he had a narrow escape from death. Brozen was able to leave the hospital after his wound was dressed.

In Gianbroni's pocket a bankbook of the United States Bank was found, which showed that he opened an account there May 1 with $20. He told the police he got his gun from a friend and said he bought the belt and cartridges in Park Row.

Pittsburgh Police Charge High School Boys Stole Cars for Joy Rides With Girl Friends.

Pittsburgh, Pa., May 29.—With the arrest of six youths, members of prominent families of the East End and Oakland districts, during the past week and the recovery of ninety-three automobiles, valued at about $100,000, which the young men are alleged to have stolen in the last four months to take their girl friends for joy rides, the police believe that the theft of scores of automobiles stolen in this city in the past six months will be cleaned up.

Those arrested are Thomas Matthews, aged 16, a student at Pittsburgh Academy; Don Bartley, aged 15, Henry Barnes, aged 17, students at Schenley High School; Gust Kuehny, aged 16, Arthur Murray, aged 16, and Barnett Harmon, aged 17.

The youths were arraigned in Morale Court and held for court under $1,000 bail each. According to the police, the boys made confessions.

The youths would make plans with their girl friends for a motor ride. Not having machines, they would make a selection of an automobile parked in either the East End or Oakland district, jump in and drive to their girl's home to keep the appointment.

Following the joy ride, the young men would take their companions home and abandon the machines.

MISS BOURNE SLEPT GLAD LIKE MUMMY

Nurse Testifies Patient was Rolled in Many Layers of Wool and Flannel.

New York, May 28.—Miss Annie Cunningham, who for fourteen years until 1918 nursed Miss Emily Howland Bourne, was a witness before Surgeonate Foley and a jury in a suit brought by Miss Bourne's niece, Mrs. Helen A. P. Merriman of Providence, to set aside the will of Miss Bourne leaving the bulk of her $1,000,000 to another niece, Mr. Emily Minkley of Greenwich, Conn. Miss Cunningham testified for the contestants. She told of attentions given to Miss Bourne by the late Dr. John A. Wyeth, head of the Polyclinic Hospital, while Miss Bourne was in that institution from 1915 to 1918.

Miss Cunningham testified that for a number of years it had been Miss Bourne's custom to spend a few months at her old home at New Bedford, Mass., where her father, Jonathan Bourne, was a pioneer whaler and made a fortune. In December, 1915, Miss Bourne broke her arm and went to Polyclinic Hospital for treatment. She remained there until the Fall of 1918, when the Government took over the hospital.

The witness said that Dr. Wyeth attended Miss Bourne and later moved to the hospital himself. After Miss Bourne had been there about a year she bought Dr. Wyeth an automobile and was accustomed to take rides in it with him or with his sister or a nurse, the witness said.

Miss Cunningham testified that she saw Miss Bourne and Dr. Wyeth together frequently and that Miss Bourne was accustomed to refer to Dr. Wyeth as "my dear Parallel." She explained that this meant they were two persons of the same mind. The witness said that Dr. Wyeth used the same term toward Miss Bourne. He read poems and stories to her and also read from the manuscript of a book he was writing.

The witness said that under the will which she is helping to contest she got an annuity of $100, or $1,000 in cash outright. When asked if she felt any ill will toward Miss Bourne, she said: "I have no feeling against her. I hope she is in the highest chair in Heaven, if there is such a place."

Miss Cunningham went on to tell that when Miss Bourne was in New Bedford she slept rolled up in four to six blankets, both summer and winter. In addition to the bed clothing, she wore a flannel shirt under a flannel nightgown, and over this was a shorter flannel garment. She pinned woolen sleeves to the shoulders of this garment, and after she had put on a flannel kimono she was rolled up in the blankets by her nurse and then was ready for sleep. She slept with the windows open, even in Winter, and occasionally complained of being too cold.

New York, May 28.—When Frank Massillo, 16 years old, was arrested charged with stealing clothes belonging to Theodore Muller, with whom he shared a furnished room at 32 Elders Street, Brooklyn, Detective O'Rourke of the Ralph Avenue precinct found a notebook in his pocket. The book contained a roughly drawn diagram of a store with a star denoting the location of a certain article on a shelf.

Magistrate Dale was curious as to what use Massillo was going to put the drug. "My buddy and me was goin' to use it on two men with a lot of money," Massillo replied.
