LI HUNG CHANG.

His Excellency Enjoying His Trip Over the Canadian Pacific.

The Viceroy Makes Minute Enquiry Regarding Wheat Growing.

He Gives an Associated Press Reporter an Interesting Interview.

Schreiber, Ont., Sept. 8.—Through-out this afternoon his excellency Li Hung Chang has been extremely interested in a conversation, which entered into the details of railroading in its every phase, and as the train passed along the north shore, he marvelled at the magnitude of the work and the expedition of its completion...

At Port Colborne his excellency was presented by Robert Jackson with two magnificent live speckled trout, which pleased his excellency that he is forwarding Mr. Jackson a silver medal as a token of his appreciation.

Winnipeg, Man., Sept. 9.—It was shortly after 8 o'clock this morning when the special Canadian Pacific railway train conveying his excellency Li Hung Chang and his suite, reached Rat Portage.

At this point Mr. Drew mentioned the visit to the mills at Keewatin and his excellency, through his interpreter, asked: "Why was I not called?"

Then his excellency asked the reporter how the flour was ground, and your correspondent gave him quite a lengthy description of the water power at Keewatin.

"What is the flour shipped to?" was asked. He was given the information and as it was thought the fact might also interest him, it was mentioned that large shipments of flour went to the coast of China.

"How many men are engaged during the growing of wheat?" he asked. Being informed, he desired to know how much wheat they raised; how much it cost to produce a bushel of the grain; what they could sell it for; what they sowed; what time the harvest was reaped; how it was sent to market, and very many other questions in this connection.

"Have they a lord mayor there?" his excellency asked, and getting an answer in respect to this, he put various

A TRIUMPH OF BRITISH JUSTICE.

(New York World.) The result of the trial of the Jameson raiders before the high court of justice in London was a vindication of the supremacy of the law which helps us to understand the Englishman's satisfaction with the institution of his country, and especially with the administration of justice by the courts.

The offence with which Jameson and his associates were charged was a violation of the Foreign Enlistment act of 1870, in organizing an armed expedition against the government of Great Britain with the intention of overthrowing the government of the Transvaal.

Yet when the case was transferred from the streets and music halls to the sober atmosphere of the courts, not one trace or vestige of this enthusiasm was allowed to sway the course of the judge or to influence the conduct of the case.

PERCY GAUNT IS DEAD.

New York, Sept. 6.—To the list of geniuses who die penniless has been added the name of Percy Gaunt. He passed away in a country boarding house at Palenville in the Catskills. One of the last messages received from his family was a telegram sent by Mrs. Gaunt to C. L. Godwin of Hoyt's theatre, carrying the melancholy news that Gaunt was dying and that there was no money in the house.

This is the end of a man who realized more than $35,000 from three songs. The Bowery, Push Down Love Away, and Love Me Little, Love Me Long, were virtually his, though he divided his profits with others.

GAUNT DID HAVE A SCORE OF SONGS and worth equally popular, or even more so, than the songs of Gaunt, and the right to publish words and music. The Bowery is usually set down to Charles Hoyt, because it was one of the features of Hoyt's A Trip to Chinatown. As a matter of fact it was written by Gaunt. The publishers of 100,000 copies of the words alone, and the right to publish words and music, netted the author thousands in royalties.

The reason why English money is seeking investment in Canada, he says, is that there is in England a growing want of confidence in American securities, owing to the unsettled political status of that country, and investors are looking to Canada, in which they have the greatest confidence. DESPISE NO MESSENGER.

In a great emergency no subject can tell what other men may or may not be a messenger from the king. Angels of mercy seldom carry harps and arrive amidst radiant light and a vast sleeping of wings. It may be a little child who shall bring you the longed-for good news, or, as in the case of Mrs. Charlotte Davis, it may be a quiet old lady who drops in to make an ordinary friendly call.

And help was badly needed, as it always is when pain and illness crush these frail bodies of ours as the rushes bend and bow before the swollen stream. Referring to the old lady's call, Mrs. Davis draws aside the curtain from an experience of the summer of 1894. She says: "I fell into a condition that was strange and new to me. I did not know how to account for it, nor could I tell what it was going to lead to. I had always a bad taste in the mouth, and was constantly retching and vomiting up a sour fluid. The sense and feeling of it were horrible. My appetite failed until food had no attraction for me. Even after taking the least morsel I had great pain at the chest, and under the shoulder blades. But the complaint seemed to be seated more particularly in the stomach. There the pain was very keen and violent. Sometimes it felt like a knife cutting me asunder. I got no rest day or night, and was confined to my bed for weeks together. Inasmuch as I could take no solid nourishment I grew weaker and weaker as the weary time dragged by. Indeed my only food was milk and soda water."

(We may remark at this point that Mrs. Davis's entire digestive system was, at the time she speaks of, dangerously deranged. The failure of the appetite was a signal indicating that the presence of food in the stomach could not be tolerated. As it could not be digested it would only serve to aggravate the inflammation, which was raging there. The very source of all power and life was virtually paralyzed. We must eat in order to live, and yet, in such a case, to eat is only to invite additional suffering, and to bid for a more speedy death. Hence the terror of that ailment, which some silly people (who have never had it) speak of as "only an attack of indigestion and dyspepsia." Would they allude to an inhabited dwelling wrapped in flames as "only a house on fire?"

Mrs. Davis, and plenty of others whom we know, are able to rebuke that adage of "eat, drink, and be merry, for tomorrow we die."

She continues: "The doctor who attended me said I had inflammation, caused by gall stones."

(Very likely. Gall stones are composed of bile sand, which is carried into the gall bladder and then adheres until the larger stones or masses are formed. The bile has stagnated, owing to the poisons from the stomach acting on the liver, until this painful and dangerous complication results. In other words, gall stones mean biliousness, and biliousness means indigestion and dyspepsia.)

But let us listen again to the lady: "I lay in great agony," she says, "week after week, during which time I passed two gall stones. The doctor's treatment gave me no relief, and what I suffered for over a year is indescribable. One day an old lady called at my house, and seeing my condition, strongly urged me to try Mother Sel-get's Curative Syrup. I said, 'Yes, of course; I'll take anything that will help me.' After the first bottle I passed a third stone, but this time without pain. I kept on with the Syrup and was soon as well as ever. Since that time, now fourteen years ago, I have kept in good health and perfectly free from my old ailment. I will answer enquiries from any sufferer. Yours, &c. (Signed) Charlotte Davis, 20, Ethelma street, Stockwell, London, September 27th, 1893."

"The first bringer of unwelcome news," says Shakespeare, "hath but a losing office." Quite true, but the messenger who tells of help and rescue wins a better place in our memory. Does he not? Yes, say all of us.

THE WEEKLY SUN. ST. JOHN, N. B., SEPT. 16, 1896.

REFORM AS WE HAVE IT.

The late opposition party, led by Mr. Laurier, were able to make a strong case when they complained of the great number of departments, and portfolios in the government. The attack led by Richard Cartwright on the department of trade and commerce as an unnecessary and useless post had a good deal of force in it. Sir Richard contended that the minister of trade and commerce, the finance minister and the two controllers were all together only doing the work of one man, and that a great deal of unnecessary expense was incurred in keeping up so many separate staffs. Sir Richard is somewhat given to exaggeration, and probably went too far in his criticism, for without doubt the finance minister and his chief officers have always had enough to do, whatever might be said about the others. But we have this peculiar position. The Laurier government has filled all these offices. The most useless one of all, according to Sir Richard, is occupied by Sir Richard himself, though in his campaign speeches he assured his constituents that if his party succeeded to power he would be finance minister. The government is asking parliament to vote money to sustain these same useless departments for another year. It is providing for the same number of clerks that are now employed. The only change that has been suggested is the increase of two salaries by $2,000 each.

Pressed closely by Mr. Foster, Mr. Laurier says that it is necessary to fill these offices until a change is made in the law. In the first place this is not correct. The department of the interior, admittedly an important office, is not filled. The duties are performed by another minister, while Mr. Laurier is looking for his man. Much more easily could an office be left vacant that is useless and furnishes no employment. In the second place, if all that is wanted is a law abolishing the departments alleged to be unnecessary, why is not a bill introduced? Mr. Laurier may be sure that his opponents will not delay its passage. Mr. Tarte claims to be saving money by discharging employees who received two or three dollars a day. Why not dispense with Sir Richard Cartwright if his office is so good, since it costs twenty odd dollars a day for the minister alone, to say nothing of the understrappers?

Then there is the high commissioner. The country had been told time and time again of the awful extravagance of that office. Yet the same amount of money is voted this year as last and there is no suggestion that it is not proposed to spend it all. The reformers in the house have even come to the remarkable and sudden conclusion that the cost is not too great, only it ought to be spent on some good plain liberal. Now whatever Sir Charles Tupper's opponents may say of him, they all admit that he performed his duties as high commissioner with great ability. He was easily foremost in influence and capacity among the representatives of the colonies. On every important occasion when they acted together he was the spokesman for the fraternity. The liberals may send a strong man when they select one of their own party, but they will not send one of Sir Charles Tupper's power and ability in this particular field, because they have not got one. The outcome will be that when Sir Donald Smith withdraws his place will be taken by some leading member of the liberal party who is not necessary at Ottawa, that the office will cost as much as ever, and will not be as well manned.

The great work of reform and economy thus goes on.

DON'T BE SHOCKED.

The valued Telegraph observes: "The Sun says that the conservative party found Canada a statutory confederation that made her a nation. We do not know what a statutory confederation is, but we can positively affirm that Canada is not yet a nation, but is still a colony of the British empire. Does the Sun propose, after Lord Aberdeen has met with the fate of Lord Elgin, to haul down the British flag and hoist the maple leaf on a banner with some such device?"

Since the Telegraph does not know that a statutory confederation is a confederation created by statute, perhaps it cannot be expected to know what a nation is. Only thus can we account for the positive, but incorrect information that Canada is not a nation. Canada is one of several nations over which Queen Victoria reigns. The Sun does not propose "to haul down the British flag after Lord Aberdeen has met the fate of Lord Elgin," who, by the way, died calmly under the shadow of the Himalayas, of fatty degeneration of the heart. But the Sun sees no objection to a Canadian banner or a Canadian emblem, or a Canadian national literature, or national policy. When the Telegraph has recovered from the shock of learning that Canada is a nation the information might be gently broken that Canada narrowly escaped being a kingdom, as it was styled in some of the early drafts of the union act.

THE WINTER PORT.

The Allans and Portland Have Won the Fight.

St. John is Not in it With the Western Grits.

Blair, Ellis, Tucker and Donville are Powerful in the Matter.

Ottawa, Sept. 14.—S. Schofield, accompanied by Mr. Ellis and Col. Tucker, had an audience with Hon. Mr. Blair this morning regarding the Furline's proposition to establish a winter freight service between St. John and London direct.

The government have not yet announced what they will do for the winter. The Ontario Liberals are a unit in opposition to disturbing the old established trade routes. They have no love for the shreds and patches of the confederation, and will stand by the Grand Trunk through thick and thin. In this they are supported by the Conservatives and other independent members.

The government's excuse will be that the session has only been called to pass the estimates, and that the present arrangement is the best temporary one that can be made under the circumstances.

One of the Ontario liberals told the Sun tonight that the Portland route must be maintained as the only available outlet for the country that was tributary to the Grand Trunk. St. John might do very well in a small way for the C. P. R.'s through traffic from Minneapolis and the far west, but it could never fill Portland's place so far as Ontario was concerned.

The following clipping from the local columns of this evening's Montreal Star contains your correspondent's recent dispatches re the Grand Trunk and Allan line: "George B. Reeves, general traffic manager of the Grand Trunk railway, announced this morning that the railway company had signed contracts for the winter with the shipping companies as follows: Allan line, a fortnightly service between Portland, Me., and Liverpool, and a fortnightly service between Portland, Me., and Glasgow; Elder, Dempster & Co., a fortnightly service between Portland, Me., and Avonmouth and Bristol; Robert Reford & Co., a fortnightly service to Liverpool, and the Thomson line, a fortnightly service to London."

Halifax, N. S., Sept. 14.—A joint meeting of the Board of Trade and winter port delegation was held in private tonight to discuss the winter port situation. The communication from the St. John Board of Trade with reference to the proposed subsidy to the shipping companies was discussed. An open meeting was called for Wednesday.

THIRTIETH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY.

Mr. and Mrs. William William of Mount Middleton, Kings county, were pleasantly surprised on September 7th when a large number of their friends gathered upon them to celebrate their thirtieth anniversary.

The Boston Herald is convinced that the bulk of the Canadian cattle export business will be done through that port next winter. The port of St. John has still a hard fight to make notwithstanding its good start last year.

Detective Power of Halifax takes no stock in dying confessions when they contradict his professional theories. He sticks to his view of the Bear River tragedy, which was that the murder was committed early in the evening.

Henry M. Payne, one of the Standard oil magnates, is dead. He was not so rich as Rockefeller, but had accumulated a snug fortune of forty millions.

It was not a very manly thing to turn Lister loose on the ex-ministers and then try to choke off reply. And after all the opposition refused to be choked off.

According to the Montreal Star, the government has already signed contracts paying three steamship lines to go to Portland. Surely there must be some mistake about this. The Allan and Dominion boats will go to Portland fast enough without pay from the Canadian treasury.

The Indian tribes of Canada are under obligation to the friend who was asked by Earl Li of China to show him a portrait of a typical Indian woman. He gave Li a fine picture of Pauline Johnson in her stage costume. If he could only have introduced to the visitor the chief of the Foresters in his official uniform the native tribes would have had full justice for once.

After the first vote in the house, the government congratulated itself on the support of all the patrons in parliament. Then came Mr. Lister's attack on Sir Charles Tupper and the vote that grew out of it. In this attack Mr. Rogers, one of the patron members, voted with the opposition.

A BRUTAL AFFAIR.

Shocking Tragedy Early Friday Morning Near Moncton.

Mother and Son Burned to a Cisp in Their House at Meadow Brook.

A Little Girl Rescued from the Flames With Her Head Split Open.

Moncton, Sept. 11.—A shocking tragedy was enacted at a early hour this morning at a place named Meadow Brook, about eight miles from Moncton, on the road to D'Arcyville. A widow woman named Eliza Dutcher lived in a small house with two children, a boy aged seven and a girl aged eight. She sold liquor and is known to have always kept considerable money about the house, by some estimated as high as three hundred dollars, which she kept locked in the trunk.

This morning about two o'clock Mrs. Jane Green, who lives about one hundred yards distant, noticed Dutcher's house on fire. She gave the alarm and roused her brother-in-law, Hugh Green, who lived next to Dutcher's. Hugh Green, Mrs. Dutcher's brother, broke in the door of Dutcher's house and going to the sleeping room carried out the eight-year-old girl, being attracted to the bed by her cries. It was discovered that the girl's head had been split open, as if by a hatchet. Green was unable to reach the other occupants of the house, and Mrs. Dutcher, aged about 48 years, and her son, aged 11, were burned to a crisp in the building.

The little girl has not yet recovered consciousness sufficiently to tell anything, if she knows of what took place and all is yet involved in mystery. The general impression, however, is that Mrs. Dutcher and her two children were victims of foul play, the motive being robbery, and that after being left for dead, the house was fired to cover the crime.

Mrs. Dutcher kept a rather rough dog and had served a term in jail for violation of the Scott act. Her house was the scene of many quarrels and it is said she had expressed fear of violence at the hands of one individual.

This at least is the story of her brother, Hugh Green, but strange to say, the residents of the place have suspicious other than the above, though nothing is known as yet to warrant an arrest. An inquest was commenced today but adjourned to give time for the recovery of the little girl, who may be able to throw some light on the mysterious affair.

Today when her wounds were being dressed this girl cried in terror. "Don't kill me again." This, it is a conscious utterance, would seem to indicate that she has some knowledge of being assaulted.

The Dutcher family was noticed by neighbors to retire early last night. Mrs. Dutcher complaining of being unwell. They did not keep a light burning at night, and the theory of the accident is destroyed by the fact of the terrible gash in the child's head.

This afternoon three men who were driving along the road to Moncton, some four miles from the scene of the tragedy, hit a man on the road ahead, who on seeing them approaching made for the woods and was not seen afterwards.

The tragedy has thrown the settlement into the wildest excitement and a number of men are working to discover the perpetrators of the crime.

Moncton, Sept. 13.—There is little that is new in regard to the Meadow Brook tragedy. John Sullivan, a mill hand, who has been working at Anderson mill, some eight or nine miles from the scene of the tragedy, was seen by a Sun reporter on Saturday. Sullivan is the man who was indicated by Mrs. Green, sister-in-law of deceased, as having, according to what the deceased woman had told, been in her place on Wednesday, and as she said almost forced his way into the house, demanding a drink and cigars.

Sullivan said he had been at the Dutcher house about six o'clock Wednesday morning and got a drink and some cigars. He said he gave Mrs. Dutcher a $10 bill in payment and that he left and was not there afterwards. Sullivan also says he met Mrs. Green at Cashou's, about three miles from Meadow Brook, on Thursday.

Mr. Green, he says, had evidently been drinking, and she told him that some young fellows who had been at a dance Wednesday night were about Dutcher's all Thursday drinking; that they wanted her to drink but she would not. Sullivan also said that High Green, Mrs. Dutcher's brother, and the man who rescued the girl from the burning building, had for two or three years been on unfriendly terms with Mrs. Dutcher, and that he had heard Green call his sister many hard names. Sullivan attributes their falling out to rivalry, as he says Green had been in the liquor business and blamed Mrs. Dutcher for obliging him to give it up. He denies that Mrs. Dutcher had any reason to be afraid of him. Mrs. Green's story being that Mrs. Dutcher had told parties that she was afraid of Sullivan. He further says his impression is that Mrs. Dutcher would have considerable money about the house.

Moncton, Sept. 14.—There is general indignation here over the inaction of the authorities in regard to the Meadow Brook tragedy. What is believed to have been a foul double murder, followed by robbery and arson took place on Thursday night, and up to the present absolutely nothing has been done to unravel the mystery.

A large number of people from town and surrounding settlements visited the scene of the tragedy yesterday, and a large number of rumors and the part, many of them more or less contradictory or indefinite, are in circulation.

One well defined report is to the effect that a woman passing the house formerly occupied by the Sullivan family, saw a light there Thursday night. She looked in but saw no person. This house is almost two miles

Joseph T. Knight Asks for a Subsidy for the Anchor Line.

A Lively Scene at the Debates Committee Meeting—The Winter Port Subsidy.

Ottawa, Sept. 10.—Mr. Boyd introduced a bill to incorporate the Hudson Bay canal and navigation company.

Col. Prior wanted to know if the government was in a position to make an authoritative statement with regard to the reports of further seizures in Behring Sea, or if it could give any idea when the commission appointed to investigate the claims of Canadian sealers would meet.

Hon. L. H. Davies said that the information published in the press was authoritative. The government had not yet received any information from the imperial government as to when the commission would meet, but it would probably be some time this autumn.

Hon. Mr. Laurier said that he was not in a position to state definitely the time when the portfolio of the interior would be filled. It was the intention of the government to offer the portfolio to some gentleman in the Northwest, but at present they considered that there were good reasons why in the public interest further delay was advisable.

Sir Charles Tupper, after expressing the thankfulness of the opposition for small favor in the way of information in this regard, called attention to a matter which he deemed of great public importance. He read from the Montreal and Telegraphic despatch, which stated that according to La Patrie, the liberal organ, Mr. Chamberlain would not visit Canada.

Hon. Mr. Laurier denied that La Patrie was an organ of the liberal party. Twelve months ago he had over his own signature publicly announced that La Patrie did not in any sense express the views of the liberal party.

Hon. Mr. Laurier said that he had over his own signature publicly announced that La Patrie did not in any sense express the views of the liberal party. That paper had seen fit to attack him personally and accused him of being the instrument of the hierarchy, and it was well known that the newspaper in question did not in any way represent his personal views.

Mr. Bergeron read a telegram from Montreal, which stated that the Brazilian steamer Caravan was in Montreal, and that efforts were being made to induce Canadians to emigrate to Brazil to work upon coffee plantations there.

Hon. Mr. Laurier said that the government had not been informed of the contents of the telegram read by Mr. Bergeron. He did not see how the government could prevent Canadians from emigrating if they wished to, as Canadians were free to go where they pleased.

Mr. Wood pointed out that the English government had warned British subjects against emigrating to Brazil on account of the weather and the way in which emigrants were treated. He thought the Canadian government should do the same.

persons from the deputy of the department and had dismissed them all. The house then went into committee of supply.

On the first item for public works Mr. Bergeron wanted to know if Mr. Tarte intended taking back the man he had dismissed until such time as work was more plentiful. Mr. Tarte said he had not dismissed a single permanent official, and only those who had nothing to do or were unfit for their positions.

When the item for trade and commerce department came up Mr. Foster asked Sir Richard Cartwright for an explanation. It was only a few months ago since the gallant knight had violently declaimed against the existence of such a department.

Sir Richard Cartwright did not see what this had to do with the question. He had been working for a portfolio in the incoming ministry, but not the subordinate one that had been assigned to him.

Mr. Foster accused Cartwright of trying to retract his utterances of a few months ago. The minister had as yet given no information as to his intentions. Cartwright—I have said all I am going to say.

Foster said Cartwright could not escape. He had often vowed his intention not to take a department which he had declared unnecessary over and over again. The country had a right to know his intentions before any money was granted.

After some further cross-firing between Messrs. Laurier and Foster, Mr. Laurier admitted that the opposition of last session had denounced the department of trade and commerce, but claimed that as a government they were compelled to retain it in obedience to law.

Mr. Foster retorted that the government could easily have passed an act at the present session abolishing the useless departments. The item was then allowed to pass.

James Lisgar of London precipitated the liveliest row that the house has witnessed this session. It was immediately after the committee had adopted the item for the trade and commerce department.

Mr. Fraser (Guysboro) was not prepared to say that the expenditure in the high commissioner's office was too large, but he knew that there was a screw loose somewhere.

Sir Charles Tupper, whom he said had even charged the country for having the clock in his London residence wound up. Sir Charles corrected him and he immediately removed the clock to the minister's office.

Mr. Taylor then moved that the chairman leave the chair, at the same time asking him to keep order on his side of the house.

There is a growing feeling here that parliament will rise before the end of the month. The opposition will do all they can to facilitate the business and the length of the session will depend entirely upon the government's ability to grapple with the matters now needing legislative treatment.

Mr. Gibson, on the other hand, suggested instead a big display of our minerals at the Colonial Institute, London. The scheme was so effectively set on that it will not be heard of again for a long time.

Mr. Foster got his bicycle smashed yesterday when running between an electric car and a heavy dray. The liberal estimates, including supplementary, will exceed by two millions the estimates brought down by the conservatives last session.

Hon. Mr. Blair during the recess will institute an enquiry into the inter-colonial management. Mr. Schreiber the member for Bedford County in the house that it was a vast political machine, and this will be Mr. Blair's text in conducting his investigations.

John Fisher, Miss Fisher and Mrs. Boyer of Woodstock are at the Russell Hotel in the company of Mr. Blair, showing them the sights of the capital. S. Schofield is here in the interest of the Furness line. He proposes to put on a special line of steamers between St. John and London direct during the winter if the government will grant a reasonable subsidy.

It is said here that the visit of the Allaps to St. John was for the purpose of making a grand tour of the country. The Allan line were competing with the C. P. R. and thereby to obtain better freight rates from the G. T. Steamship men all contend that the railways get the lion's share of the freight rates levied on the old country. Opponents of St. John are making much of the fact that the increased deep water wharf facilities will not be ready till late in the winter.

The government will not announce its decision as regards St. John until after Mr. Schofield has been heard. The Montreal forces back of the Beaver line give it the inside pull with the cabinet. The government has decided to continue the subsidy to the Prince Rupert at the old figure. A representative of the Dominion Atlantic railway will be here on Tuesday to complete the money that is owing to it.

A member of the government said tonight that St. John would be liberalized in the matter of this winter's subsidies. Col. Beers of the government drill grounds at Sussex has been cancelled. There is little doubt that the Allan line subsidy to run from Halifax and Portland will be continued this winter, the Grand Trunk influence being too powerful to resist. The steamship subsidy business generally was discussed at Saturday's cabinet meeting, but final action was deferred.

THE COMING EXHIBITION. There will be no government importation of stock this year, so that it cannot be exhibited and sold on the St. John exhibition grounds as was announced. Breeders of pure bred stock will therefore find this exhibition to be an excellent opportunity for the disposal of their stock, as many agriculturists, collectors and farmers have been arranging to visit St. John to buy what stock they require for the importation that was proposed. The exhibition association will place the services of an auctioneer at the disposal of all who may wish to sell stock by auction on Sept. 30th, and should make their entries at the earliest possible moment.

Lieutenant General J. W. Laurie, M. P. for Pembroke, Quebec, and ex-M. P. of Shabruan, N. S., was in this city a few days ago. Gen. Regarding the opinion of the English people on the political situation here, Gen. Want to Erect a Monument in Quebec to the Memory of Gen. Montgomery.

Gen. Laurie on the Approaching Presidential Contest—Lumber Situation Improved.

Boston, Sept. 12.—This is the time when rural New England is seen at its best, and when the hard working ones take a day off, or perhaps two or three, for the purpose of enjoying the sights and races at the annual county fairs.

The Montgomery Guards of Boston and several prominent members of the Sons of the American Revolution are reviving the project to erect a monument at Quebec in memory of Gen. Richard Montgomery, who fell while attacking the fortress on the midnight of Dec. 31, 1775. It will be remembered that the government of Canada when requested to allow the monument to be erected last winter did not give its consent, but the accession of a new administration has led the promoters to once more attempt to carry out their project.

Rev. Mr. Pickles of St. John, a brother of Rev. J. D. Pickles of the Tremont street Methodist Episcopal church of this city, occupied his brother's pulpit last Sunday evening. His discourse was an unusually interesting one.

was in his room talking to his wife, and afterwards took up his newspaper and commenced reading it. His wife sitting a short distance from him, he called to his wife and uttered a sharp cry of pain. His wife rushed after him to Mrs. Peabody's room, and she sent for medical assistance at once, but Drs. McQueen, Morse and Bliss had hardly arrived when deceased gave two gasps and expired, never speaking after his first cry of pain.

Mr. Ketchum, although a man of robust health, suffered from an affection of the heart, which being the cause of his death.
