

DROWNING AT CAMP SUSSEX

Fred. Lovejoy of the 67th lost his life in vain effort to save Companion.

Russell Pagett Only Saved by Prompt Action of Two Sergeants --Church Parade.

Special to The Standard. Sussex, N. B., July 3.—The proceedings of Camp Sunday, usually the happiest day of the twelve days at Camp Sussex, was marred today by a drowning accident resulting in the death of Private Fred Lovejoy, of the 67th regiment, who lost his life in a noble effort to save his comrade and fellow camper, Pte. Russell Pagett, of the same company from a similar fate.

Neither of the boys could swim and Pagett was only rescued by the prompt action of Sgt. Wilmoit Rideout and Sgt. Russell Boyer, both of the 67th regiment, who in spite of the fact that the former had not done any swimming for six years, and the latter had not much more practice, dove into the treacherous waters and pulled out first Pagett and then Lovejoy, with whom they struggled for over twenty minutes in a vain endeavor to revive respiration.

He never recovered consciousness. Although Pagett had a very narrow escape he soon came around and is now all right. The body of his rescuer, Lovejoy, is in an isolated tent, with a death watch composed of Sgt. Smith of St. John and three privates of the A. M. C. keeping guard near by. An examination will be held by the medical board tomorrow.

Was An Orphan.

It is not certain what will be done with the body, whether it will be buried here or sent to Rockland in Carleton County where he has lived for three years. He is an orphan of 13 years and was sent to that village from England by the Nova Scotia immigration officer at Halifax and had since been working on the farms of Samuel Estabrook at Rockland. Russell Pagett is the son of Howard Pagett, cook in one of the lumber camps at Rockland.

The boys had gone swimming about 2 o'clock this afternoon with about 300 other soldiers scattered all along the Salmon river. They had selected as their bathing place a spot not far from the covered bridge across the river about a mile and a half from Sussex. The bottom of the river is of a black, slippery mud, abounding in treacherous holes.

The two were splashing around in shallow water about forty yards from a group of Canadian engineers engaged themselves busily after a hard morning's drill in the scorching sun. Pagett in taking a step nearer the middle, suddenly dropped down from 3 to 5 feet and the undercurrent quickly drew him under in ten feet of water.

Lovejoy Sank.

He rose to the surface and saw Lovejoy make a jump toward him and disappear. At last Pagett managed to get hold of some earth at the side and scrambled up a piece so that the top of his head was above water and kept splashing till help came. Sgt. Rideout and Boyer happened to be walking along the river when the former saw the top of Pagett's head, they rushed in and together they dragged the lad to the shore. Turning around however, they saw the body of Lovejoy lying in full length on the bottom of the river, and made a dive but failed to reach the body for want of practice. Boyer then tried and brought the body ashore and worked over it for some minutes in vain. The men shouted to the engineers to get the ambulance. The hospital authorities arrived almost immediately in an automobile and the body was taken into camp as was also Pagett who had by this time partly recovered, although the doctors said that his condition was still critical.

The Day in Camp.

It has been a hot day at Camp and the day has certainly been a day of rest. The church parade was an unqualified success. The Roman Catholics fell in at 9:45 o'clock under command of Captain M. D. Cormier of the 67th regiment and marched to Sussex where they attended 10:30 o'clock mass. The remainder of the troops numbering about 200 fell in at 10:15 o'clock and marched to their relative position in front of the staff lines where they formed three sides of a hollow square with the gun carriage and drum draped with the Union Jack in their usual position between the soldiers and headquarters lines which were filled with visitors. Rev. Mr. Alder, chaplain of the 67th regiment, preached from the text "Fight the good fight."

RAINS BREAK LONG DROUGHT IN THE WEST

Four Hours' Rain Was General And Crops Will Be Saved Except In Certain Sections In South.

Special to The Standard. Winnipeg, July 2.—Reports received from all parts of the west today show that the recent rain was general and the drought which has been burning up the crops is apparently at least, broken. In northern and central Manitoba there was a splendid four hour rain and the farmers are jubilant. In the north the crop outlook is now exceptionally good and in the centre fair. In southern Manitoba, there were also heavy rains, it is feared, however, that the rain has come too late and while the conditions are improved, it is feared that in many portions there will not be more than half a crop. The same is true also of southern Saskatchewan and southern Alberta, where in many places farmers have plowed up their fields.

Sudden Death.

Winnipeg, July 2.—J. E. Prudhomme, a well known French Canadian from St. Boniface, who had recently been in the political limelight, by reason of the charge he made that Horace Cheyette had sold him a Federal judgeship for his brother, County Judge Prudhomme, dropped dead from heart disease in a lawyer's office here, just before noon.

NEW SERVICE FROM DIGBY

First Steamer Of New Line Given Warm Welcome On Arrival Yesterday — Other Changes Expected Shortly.

Special to The Standard. Digby, N. S., July 3.—A most cordial reception awaited the steamer Boston this morning on her arrival from Boston with one hundred and forty passengers. This was the steamer's initial trip, marking the inauguration of the new line of boats to run twice a week between Digby and Boston in connection with and operated by the D. A. R. Besides a great crowd of the town folk and tourists, a reception committee greeted Capt. Simms and his good boat.

The committee were Mayor Jones, Clarence Jameson, M. P., O. S. Dunham, Editor of the Courier and President Peters of the Board of Trade. The luncheon held at the Pines Hotel arranged for by the committee of entertainment was the chief part of the programme and among the invited guests were Gen. Manager Giffins, Supt. William Fraser, Marine Supt. MacGregor, Capt. Simms, and officers of the steamer Boston, Capt. Potter and officers of the steamer Prince Rupert, John F. Masters, New England superintendent of the D. A. R., A. C. Curtis, New Brunswick superintendent, C. F. McBride, D. A. R. steamship agent at Digby, O. C. Jones, D. A. R. station agent at Digby, Thos. F. Anderson, representative of the New England Press Association. All the speeches drifted to the fact that at no distant period, Digby would be the central point for the arrival and departure of more than the present number of steamers and it was generally understood that changes revolutionizing steamboat traffic between the United States and western Nova Scotia, will before very long be inaugurated.

Death of John Wightman.

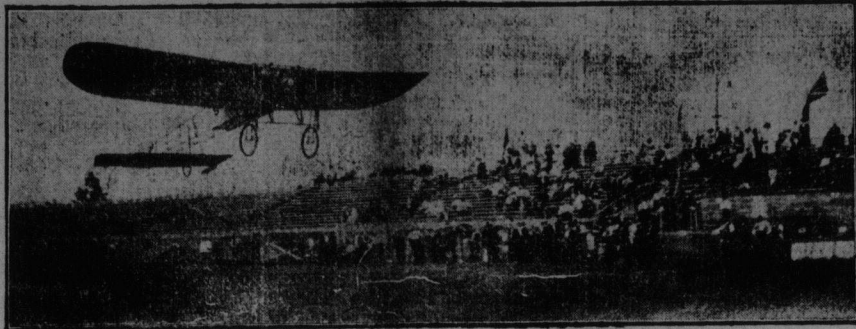

At the age of 86 John Wightman passed away Saturday, at the residence of his son-in-law, Councillor Abraham. Born in St. John, deceased had been a respected and esteemed resident of Digby for 25 years, part of which time he conducted a grocery business, failing health compelling him to retire. He was a Methodist in religion, and a prominent Conservative in politics. His wife died 25 years ago. Two sons, George, of Digby, manager of the Whale Cove Trading Co., and Rev. F. A. Wightman, Methodist clergyman at Montague, P. E. I., and two daughters, Mrs. R. A. Abraham, of Digby, and Mrs. F. H. Knight, of Brantford, Ont., survive. He also leaves one sister, Mrs. George A. Special to The Standard. Fredericton, July 3.—Death came with tragic suddenness to Michael McNally, caretaker of the York County Municipal Building in this city, who was found dead in his bed at the City Hotel, where he made his home, this morning. York county, who are now in the city, was connected with his brother, the late Jas. McNally, in business. Later he held the position of janitor in the York County Municipal Building, where the court rooms, record office, council chamber and other offices are located.

On Saturday the late Mr. McNally was busier than usual preparing for the semi-annual meeting of the county council which will open on Tuesday, but he retired on Saturday evening in his usual habit.

McNally who left there with her this evening for Fredericton. Off To The Races.

Some of the horses which were here for the curtain raiser meeting of the Maritime Circuit were shipped on Saturday for Presque Isle, Me., where there will be racing tomorrow, while the others will be shipped to Woodstock, where the circuit races take place on Friday and Saturday.

James H. Crockett and a party of friends left on Saturday for Presque Isle, Me., to enjoy the races and take in the 4th of July celebration.

At the Methodist church this evening Rev. J. W. McConnell, pastor for the last four years and who tomorrow leaves to assume his new pastorate at Sydney, C. B., preached his farewell sermon.

The schooner yacht Windward arrived in port this morning after an almost uneventful trip from St. John. The party on board include Bertram Harrison and Daniel Pennel, of New York, H. D. Vroom, G. Heber Vroom and Walter A. Harrison, of St. John. Yesterday they ran aground on the Ormoceto but was later pulled off by a tug boat. The party will probably start on the return trip to St. John tomorrow.

Noted French Aviator Makes Most Successful Flight of Meet in Blériot Machine.

Special to The Standard. Montreal, July 3.—The feature at the aviation meet on Saturday was the flight of Count De Lesseps, in his Blériot monoplane, Scarabe, the machine in which he crossed the English channel, from the aviation park at Lakeside to Montreal and return, a distance of about thirty five miles. The count left the park at 6.16 p. m., and twenty minutes later was flying high in the air over Montreal. He went over the city as far as the City Hall, high up in the air, the sound of his engine just being audible to people on the street. Here he cut a wide circle and started on his return journey which he made in fine style, alighting from his machine in front of the grand stand just 49 minutes 32.3 seconds from the time of his departure. Both on the outward and homeward flights the count followed the St. Lawrence river, though as he passed over the Lachine rapids it could hardly be considered as being greatly preferable to the land as a landing place in case of necessity. Outside of this an altitude flight of Walter Brookins in a bi-plane, in which he made 4,000 feet was next in interest. The meet was continued today but there were no performances of interest, six short exhibition flights being the day's programme.

FISHING SCHOONER SUNK OFF GRAND BANKS

Members Of Crew Were All Rescued By Passing Schooner—Worked Heroically To Keep Vessel Afloat.

St. Pierre, Mig., July 3.—News of the sinking of the French fisherman Gustave Prosper off the Grand Banks on June 28, reached here today, when the schooner Mariette arrived bringing the 28 men who comprised the crew of the sunken schooner. The Gustave Prosper sprang a leak while at the banks and although the men worked heroically to keep her afloat, they were unable to do so. The men were picked up by the Mariette, every one being saved.

WORLD TURNS TO RENO TONIGHT

MEN WOULD LEAVE NEVER TO GO BACK

Vice-President Of Trainmen's Organization Says Adoption Of Standard Will Be Insisted Upon—Difference Of 5 p. c.

Special to The Standard. Montreal, July 3.—Further conferences were held on Saturday between representatives of the women and conductors and officials of the Canadian Pacific Railway, but no definite agreement has yet been reached and further conferences will be held during the coming week. After the matter has been arranged with the Canadian Pacific Railway, if a settlement is reached, conferences will proceed with the Grand Trunk representatives.

Vice-President Murdoch, representative of the trainmen, in a statement tonight, declared that it was the firm determination of the men to secure the standard rate and they had every confidence that they would succeed in this demand. Unless they did, every one of the men, he added, would be prepared to leave the service of the company, even though they should never return to it.

It is, however, hoped that some arrangement will be reached by which such action will be obviated. Mr. Murdoch added, "There is really a difference of only about five per cent. between what we are asking and what the Canadian Pacific is willing to concede. They accept the board of conciliation report which would have reduced the C. P. R. from the position of paying the third highest wages in the territory to being lower than 25 or 50 other roads, not one of which is in a better position than the C. P. R., while probably not three of them are as able to pay such wages. They recommend wages running all the way from fifteen to fifty cents a day below the standard, the greater drops being for yardmen.

Roughly speaking the report recommended withholding from the 4,000 employees interested, at least $125,000 a year from the standard wage. Their report would mean an average of about 12 per cent. all around while the standard rate for which we are fighting would mean an average increase of 17 per cent. so that the present dispute is really a matter of five per cent. There will be no variation from the demands of the men on this point. Before we do that the men will all leave the service, even though they know they will never go back.

The company must realize that this standard must be recognized. We will continue these discussions as long as there appears any possibility of reaching a mutually acceptable agreement but just as soon as it seems to us hopeless to get anything in that way, the conferences will end. The conferences may go on or they may be discontinued at any time that depends entirely upon the position assumed by the company but at present there is no sign of a rupture."

FIRST MEETING OF THE N. E. A.

30,000 School Teachers Attending Great Gathering In Boston—Need Of Manual Training In Schools.

Boston, Mass., July 2.—The end of the first day of the 48th convention of the National Education Association found Boston sheltering practically all of the 30,000 or more teachers from all parts of the country who were expected in attendance upon the sessions of the session.

In advance of the general session of the body meetings were held today by the National Council of Education in the new Old South church. The morning sessions took up the subject of "exceptional children" and the "economic use of education plants." In the afternoon there was a report on the "place of industries in public education."

Tonight the subject of "co-operation with education organizations in other countries" was followed by the closing topic of the day, which was a report of the educational progress during the year, treated by Frank Strong, chancellor of the University of Kansas.

The need of some comprehensive and stimulative course in manual training in the elementary schools to influence boys towards industrial careers was dwelt upon by Charles Richards, director of the cooper union, New York city, discussing industries in public education as reported to the National Council of Education. All the influences that bear upon the boy in school and out, tend to turn him away from industrial work.

Jesse D. Burk, director of the bureau of municipal research, Philadelphia, discussed "industries in the elementary schools." David Swedden, commissioner of education for Massachusetts, treated "intermediate industrial schools." Charles Kees, superintendent of schools, southern district, Hartford, Conn., presented the "industrial and technical education of the secondary schools." At this evening's session Elmer Ellesworth Bacon, United States commissioner of education of Washington, spoke upon "co-operation with education organizations in other countries." Amongst those in the general discussion was E. E. Balcom, of the Rhode Island state normal school, Providence, R. I.

Upon the subject of "Educational progress during the year," Frank Strong, chancellor of the University of Kansas, Lawrence, Kan., delivered an excellent address.

Principals in Greatest Big Battle in History are Ready for the Conflict.

Jeffries a Ten to Six-and-a-Half Favorite--Billy Delaney in Negro's Corner.

Reno, Nev., July 3.—The day of reckoning is at hand. Jeffries or Johnson which will win? a few hours more before the night shadows again unfold the bare hills circling the Truckee meadows, and unless there is a draw, or some unexpected disaster happens, two words will be flashed around the world: "wins."

Tomorrow afternoon James J. Jeffries and John A. Johnson will meet in their long talked of fight, for the undisputed heavyweight championship of the world. Gloved fists will thud against flesh, and blood will rush through leaping muscles in the open arena built near Reno. And the son of a slave mammy of the old south, heavyweight champion Johnson, or the son of a preacher, the undefeated Jeffries, will be declared the superlative fighting machine in the history of the prize ring.

Driven out of California, warned out of other states, by reform sentiment, harried by a thousand difficulties, the promoters of this great pugilistic event are about to realize the results of their labors. The fighters are ready to spring to the centre of the ring at the tap of the gong. The terraced arena is waiting for its multitude and the multitude is waiting to get into the inclosure.

It is estimated that 10,000 visitors are crowded into this desert city today. From east and west, the spectators disgorged their loads of sporting men, many of whom have travelled from the four corners of the earth. All day big automobiles powdered with the white dust of the desert, have chugged in from the coast cities, from the California valleys, from ranch and mining camp, even from Seattle, a thousand miles away.

Will Pin Faith To The Tariff Issue Maladministration Graft and The Rule of The Majority—Predict Victory.

Washington, July 2.—Defining the issues on which it expects to conduct its campaign this fall the Democratic committee today issued its first official pronouncement of the opening of its headquarters in this city. It was signed by Representative Moyd of Missouri, the chairman, and sets forth that the issues will be: "The tariff and its consequences, the extravagant expenditures, wrong doing of officials, graft that is shown to exist in nearly every government branch and the autocratic ruling of the majority party."

It is contended that these will be the factors "in bringing about a Democratic victory in November."

DR. SEMON IS
IN TORONTO

Physician Extraordinary to the Late King Edward on Canadian Visit—Has Retired from Active Practice.

Toronto, July 2.—A distinguished member of the British medical profession arrived in the city today on the Winnipeg express, in the person of Sir Felix Semon, physician extraordinary to the King from 1901 until his retirement from active practice about a year ago. Sir Felix, an England, with Lady Semon, on a tour of the world in September last and has since been leisurely visiting the countries of the East. He is a native of Prussia, and after studying in Berlin and other Continental cities completed his education in London. His studies were interrupted by the Franco-German War, in which he took an active part, receiving the war medal with five clasps. He is also a Knight of the Order of the Prussian Crown and of the Red Eagle. Sir Felix was first attached to the Throat Hospital in London and later to St. Thomas Hospital, where he held the post as physician for diseases of the throat from 1882 to 1897, receiving his knighthood in the last year. He was one of the founders and president of the Laryngological Society in London and made many contributions to scientific medicine. His high attainments led to his being asked to take the chief post in the treatment of the throat, so long threatened with the illness that he is now suffering from,
and he was in touch with the King from 1901 until his retirement from practice.

On the present trip Sir Felix has been the guest of the Governor-General in India, the Khedive in Egypt, the Emperor of Japan and Sir Thomas Lipton in Ceylon. He will spend a fortnight in Toronto and vicinity, his son being in residence in the city, where he acts as travelling representative of the Bell Piano Company, and is also known as a composer. "A Song of Canada" being from his pen. The only functions arranged for Toronto so far are a luncheon to be given in the visitor's honor tomorrow by Dr.
J. Gibb Wishart and one on Monday by the laryngologists of the city.

HATPIN FOUR INCHES
IN WOMAN'S BRAIN

Two Women Thrown From Carriage in Runaway And One Is Impaled—Both Are Fatally Hurt.

Boon, Iowa, July 2.—A large hat-pin penetrated four inches into the brain of Mrs. McDonald yesterday when she with a companion, Mrs.
Andrew Simpson, was thrown from a buggy in a runaway. The two women were driving down a steep hill when the team became frightened and ran away. Mrs. McDonald was hurled into the air and struck on her head.
When lifted up it was found that her hatpin had penetrated the brain.
The two women were brought to a hospital. It is believed both are fatally hurt.

THE BAND CONCERTS.

To the Editor of The Standard.— Dear Sir—With your kind permission I would like to call attention to those open air band concerts that are so much enjoyed by the people and for some cause are not being properly arranged for. We have so far only had two concerts, although the grant of $500 was passed by the council a month ago for band concerts. One National holiday passed by without music, although three of the city bands were not otherwise engaged on Dominion Day. The council granted the money for concerts on King Square and yet rumor has it that the Carlton band is being disbanded by some influence are trying for this band to give all their concerts on the Carlton band stand.
Now this is not right. There is a band stand on Garden street, also at Riverview Park and the people of In-diantown for their park and residents near Haymarket Square, Charlotte street Boulevard and Rockwood Park will be making claim for the use of the music with the result that before the season is over the bands will be giving concerts in numerous back yards.
Then there is another difficulty coming up. There appear to be two fife and drum bands, also two pipers' bands, and they feel that they should receive a share of the grant. Now I don't object to their getting a share of the grant, but in my opinion neither of these bands are capable of giving a concert. What strikes me as passing strange is the bandstand on the King Square has been there for two years and yet we have never heard those bands. Surely it is not the paltry dollar they are after? For two summers past the City Cornet band have supplied music on the Square and have had very little assistance from any of the other bands.
There was no money in it then. As the King Square band stand is situated centrally it is easily reached from all parts of the city including Carleton. Nearly all our visitors promenade in this locality. It is the proper place for all the concerts to be held and there should not be any trouble for the council to solve the question in favor of King Square at the meeting today. Thanking you for your valuable space,
I remain yours respectfully,
A LOVER OF MUSIC.

Starts His Fifth Year.

a large congregation present, and at the close of the service Mr. Camp was the recipient of many congratulations.

Olambala Wins.
Sheepshead Bay, N. Y., July 2.— Olambala, winner of the suburban handicap added another stake to his long list, when he easily won the commonwealth handicap, 1 1/4 miles here today, defeating a good field of horses to the time, 2:02.45, equalled the world's record, which was made by Broomstick at Brighton Beach, on July 9, 1904. Broomstick was a three year old and carried 104 pounds, but the performance of Olambala was simply marvellous.
He carried 122 pounds
and was admirably ridden by Butwell.
Belmont Wins.
Alexandra Park, Eng., July 2.—The Islington welterweight, for 100 sovereigns for three year olds and upwards distance 1 1/2 miles and 110 yards, was won today by August Belmont's Nor-

Nickel Should Be Busy Place To-day.

This week bids fair to be an especially brisk one at Nickel Theatre.
This afternoon the first of the free air-plane matinees will be held when 100 little airships will be given to boys and girls and a surprise and a treat is in store for the lucky ones.
This little toy solves the problem of aviation and is instructive as well as entertaining.
Tonight full telegraphic returns of the Jeffries-Johnson contest at Reno, Nevada, will be told from the stage as the big sporting event proceeds.
Extra seats for the crowd back of the transparent curtain. The programme itself is a good one, containing the following features—Miss Betty, both in the romantic number "If I Were a Rose"; Mr. George Lund of New York in the Biograph lecture film, "The Face At The Window" (in reality the great play "Madame X"); one of those fine "Jones" comedies by Edison entitled "Fortune's Fool," and a merry farce
"All On Account of a Laundry Mark." The orchestra will have new selections and the show will last over an hour. Be early. Extra films at the matinee.

surface torpedo boat completed its final test, an endurance trial which lasted twelve hours. The boat left port at 4 o'clock this morning and kept up a continuous speed of nine

Happiest When Waist Deep After Finny Tribe Or With Gun In Mountains—Will Crowd Johnson.

(By Tip Wright.)
Reno, Nev., July 3.—This is a story of Jim Jeffries, the real back to nature man. It is a story of the man primitive—the big bear at play in the environment he loves best.
Few newspaper men have had the chance to see Jeff as I saw him in the cool room. It was 8 o'clock when Jeffries' big automobile drew up in front of the Riverside hotel, with a message from the big fellow asking me to join him for a morning's fishing trip after small mouth bass in a mountain lake a few miles out of Reno.
It was 9 o'clock when we unloaded at the lake edge and a few minutes later we were busy tossing flies to the leaping beauties—the gamest fish that swim. For three hours the sport was fast and furious, I fished one side of the lake at first and Jeffries fished from the opposite bank.
Despite the fascination of the sport
I could not help casting an eye occasionaly across the rippling surface watching Jeffries waist deep in the cold water, casting the brilliant hued fly to the wary dentizens of the lake.
"And this," I could not help saying it aloud, "is the man who tomorrow is to engage in the mightiest struggle ever waged between modern gladiators."
Later we met near the end of the lake, and with a grin as wide as that of a picanniny with his first watermelon of the season, he opened his crest, and gave me the laugh because he had a couple more than I.
"I thought you were a bass fisherman," he said.
"I thought so too," I replied. "Let's fish a little longer and see who does the laughing."
We did, and the farther we went the more Jeff gained, until at last I was willing to call it quits and hop into the machine for a quick ride back to camp.
It was while we were going to and from the lake that Jeffries, for the first time since I have been with him, gave voice to the laugh which we all know must occupy his mind, when he is not intent upon following the precepts of Ike Walton.
"I don't have an accident I'll slaughter that cool," he said, as we started out. It wasn't said boastfully, but with conviction. Jeff meant every word of it. He feels right now that he will win from Johnson quickly and easily. But at the same time he isn't underestimating the ability of his opponent.
"I think Johnson expects you to rush him," I said, having watched the training of the champion long enough to be pretty sure of this.
"Did you ever see me rush any-man?" Jim asked. And I had to say "No."
"I won't rush Johnson. I'll simply follow him and crowd him the way I always fought. You have watched me box for a couple of months, and you will see me box just the same next Monday."
"I am glad you came along today.
I wanted to get away from camp on account of the crowd. The strangers make me nervous, they poster me with more fool questions than they would a political candidate. Some of them even want to know my family affairs."
Then Jeff remarked that he was going to get away from the mob again in the afternoon and go trout fishing.
"Do you know, I am never so happy as when I have a rod in my hand," he said. "Some day I like to sit around a saloon and boozel never was strong for the staff. Some men like to play cards, but I don't. Let me fish or hunt and I am happy."
"I like to get up into the mountains and woods or along a stream and see things as they really are. I don't think anything is more beautiful than the mountains. There must have been some swell shooting and fishing then." There is your real Jim Jeffries. The public doesn't see him as he did. It isn't his striped shirt where dipping defending the honor of the white race.
It sees him as a star in a theatre; it sets him as the greatest pugilist that ever lived; but I saw him, a clear eyed, slouchy-looking farm boy, his perhaps, but still a boy, with his heart beating faster over a three pound bass than it will beat when he meets Jack Johnson.
"This is not a big betting fight, strange to say, added Corbett. "We are handling plenty where dipping nothing like the amount we expected to come in. We handled more money in San Francisco before we moved to Reno than we have taken in here. It may open up tomorrow, however, when the specials all get in and the east and west meet on a common speculative ground."
There is no rush to back Johnson at this time, but a quiet steady play was made on the black man. This came more from eastern arrivals than from the western contingent, among whom the Jeffries sentiment is generally strong.
"Sentiment is cutting a big figure in this fight," declared a well known sporting man who has watched the betting since the men began training.
"The west naturally leans to Jeffries."
On one of the San Francisco special trains carrying 14 Pullmans filled with notables from this city, a pool was made this morning as the passengers came over the mountains, and the betting showed 2 to 1 in favor of Jeffries. The board in Corbett's pool room showed the following record of tickets sold:
Jeffries, Johnson,
15 rounds 34 3
15 rounds 30 5
15 rounds 9 9
14-18 rounds 34 17
19-24 rounds 36 32
25 and over 46 32
An analysis of this table would indicate that the public believes Johnson's chances of success will increase very largely after the 13th round.

The last touch to the drama that will be staged tomorrow, was added by the arrival at the Johnson camp of Riley Delaney, veteran trainer of fighters who announced positively that he would be in the black man's corner as chief second. Delaney took Jeffries in hand when he was a raw boy and made him the champion of the world. Several years ago the trainer and his protegee quarrelled and they have been bitter enemies ever since.
The gray haired Delaney, who knows Jeff perhaps as no other man knows him, has picked Johnson to win, and will direct every detail of the effort to arrange it in a way that will bring the negro will make against Jeffries.
The rumor that the promoter and referee, Tex Rickard will not act as third man in the ring will not do.
It bobbed up again with renewed life today when it was whispered that Charley White, of New York, the al-terate referee, had confided to a friend that he fully expected to be called on to act at the last minute.
This could not be confirmed, however, and Rickard reiterated his intention of officiating. Effort to fill the blank of the two word message which the wires had carried out of Reno tomorrow and
to arrange it in a way that will bring financial profit is turning heads gray today. The real answer is getting so close that it hurts.
The "wise ones" in the betting contingent were so puzzled. They are still talking about the "yellow streak" and "can't come back" but the betting sheets show a remarkable indecision.
Between the partisans, the great mass of fight followers is wavering.
In the pool rooms it is 100 to 65 with Jeffries the favorite and even money with Jeffries wins in 26 rounds. In the parl-mutuels the odds are 100 to 1 that Jeffries will win in 25 rounds or more.
This last day before the fight will be remembered in Reno for many a year. At the break of day, the sky was gray and all during the morning black storm clouds were drift in the hills, but as the day wore on, the wind cleared the sky and the foothills were mottled with the gold of the sunlight and the blue and black of the cloud shadows.
"Will it rain? Will it be cold tomorrow?" asked the strangers, and the natives answered that in all probability the arena would be so hot that melting pitch would glue the spectators to their seats. Despite the threatening weather, the roads to the fighters' camps were dotted with vehicles of every description.
To See Jeff.
The road to the Jeffries cottage was one long procession. Out going parties met automobiles which had come through gaps in the Sierras, bearing men from the Pacific coast cities. All stopped at Moans Springs until the place looked like a camp meeting.
Jeffries did absolutely no work during the day. He did not give a sign that the imminence of the fight was perturbing his spirit. He was thoroughly glad that his heroic training was over and he was ready to meet the test with all of his old time spirit.
An uneasy restless movement was noticeable among the trainers and camp followers. Broken sentences over emphasized of conviction and various other little things showed that on the part of some of the white fighters intimates, at least, there was some perturbation. Rag time music preceded the approach to Johnson's abode. The arrival of the great Delaney lifted the spirits of Johnson and his friends to the pinnacle of confidence. There was no evidence of what was to come in a few hours.
Johnson did his road work in the morning and then announced that he had reached his fighting weight, 206 pounds, and would step into the ring at 205. Jeffries will not give out his weight until tomorrow.

FATAL AUTO CRASH
IN NEW JERSEY

New York, July 2.—One woman died today and a man and a woman are in the Hackensack, N. J. hospital, with serious injuries as the result of an automobile accident at Areola, N. J.
An automobile in which Paul R.
Atkinson of Brooklyn, and Mrs. Fox, and Miss Margaret Hoffman of River Edge, N. J., were riding, dashed into a telephone pole. Mr. Atkinson was thrown over the front of the machine and fell on the road. The two women were thrown into the road. They lay there for some time before they were found by a resident of Areola.
Mrs. Fox, whose skull was fractured, died a few hours later. Miss Hoffman's arm was broken and Mr. Atkinson has a fractured leg.

DO YOU WANT
A COACHMAN?

Here's Alfred G. Vanderbilt, an American millionaire, who resides elegantly in England. He drives a coach between London and Brighton pretty regularly, just to pass the time and get sold in English society. The picture shows Vanderbilt in his driving uniform.
"Can your father always distinguish between you?"
"No, not always. If either of us gets into trouble he whacks us both to make sure."

From The Camp.

Jeffries' Training Camp, Moana Springs, Nev., July 3.—This was a day of idleness, but of intense nervous strain at the Jeffries' camp.
Sprawling at his ease beneath the shade trees on the lawn, the white champion was apparently the calmest man in the camp. His wife, his three brothers and his tried and trusted friends spent the day with him and no one hinted at the ordeal of tomorrow.
Jeff's mind apparently was at peace and he showed no signs of worry.
Whatever the outcome of the fight, Jeffries will feel relieved when it is all over. The starting, curious crowds, however, tried his patience almost to the breaking point. For months he has submitted to the invasion of his private life; his every movement has been watched and chronicled, his most intimate thoughts and plans have been discussed and now he yearns for the seclusion of his family.
All was strangely quiet around Jeffries' camp today. But for the shifting, restless crowds which thronged the road before his cottage, there would have been no hint of the impending battle. From early morning until late in the day the athlete idled about the lawn. Inside his quarters for his friends he kept open house like some court squire, but the endless stream of interlopers, pleading for a word, he turned a deaf ear.
From daylight until long after dark, the resort was crowded. In automobiles, buggies and street cars, hundreds journeyed out from the city just for a glimpse of Jeff. Along the fence that guards his lawn, men, women and children stood in a solid rank. When one moved away another took his place.
From the hotel across the road came the whine of the dealers at the gambling games, the rattle of chips and coin and the ring of glasses at the bar. A wild west show nearby clamored for attention and strangely garbed men with flapping sombreros and revolvers, rode hither and thither about the grounds. But the quiet man in shirt sleeves and cap, with his back resolutely toward the gaping through outbid all for attention.
Ketchel Greeted.
Jeff does not want anyone around his camp who has been on friendly terms with Johnson since he came to Reno. This was shown this afternoon when he had Stanley Ketchel, put out of the training quarters and off the grounds.
Jeff was engaged in the game of cards with some of his staff on the lawn, when Ketchel, who had notoriety from town, came strolling up.
He stood behind Jeff for a moment before the big fellow became aware of his presence. When he finally saw him, Jeffries calmly turned around and said: "I don't want you here.
You have been fooling around with that negro, and I don't think you belong here at all."
Ketchel smiled, but did not move away. Jeff continued playing for a few moments, and then, turning to Farmer Burns, jerked his head in the direction of Ketchel and said:
"Put that fellow out."
Burns got up, took Ketchel by the shoulder and turned him around towards the cottage. Walking with the porch, Burns gave him a mild push toward the steps and Ketchel quietly walked out of the gate and took his car to town.

The Betting Odds.

Reno, July 3.—Jim Jeffries will enter the ring tomorrow at ten to six and a half favorite. This is the sentiment among the betters today and the bets recorded seem to forecast no change either way.
"There is plenty of money coming in on both men, and it is take your choice at ten to six and a half," was betting commissioner Tom Corbett's statement today.
"These odds probably will prevail up to the time the men enter the ring."

Evolution of the Coronet Braid From Hair of Chinese Criminals

HAIR FROM DEAD CHINAMEN SOAKING IN KITCHEN WASHTUBS.

New York, July 2.—That American women are wearing more false hair than they ever did before, is clearly shown by a trip through the tenements of the lower east side, where most of the false hair sold in the country is prepared for the market.

The story of a glossy, wavy switch of hair from the time it leaves one head till it is wreathed about the head of an American woman as a "coronet" is one of the most interesting and at the same time one of the most revolting in many instances ever told. While all false hair does not come from China and from the heads of dead Chinese, most of it does, especially all of the cheaper switches.

The hair which is bought by New York dealers in Hong Kong comes from the interior of China and supposedly from the heads of the dead, for no living Chinaman will depart with the "pigtail" of which he is so proud. Undoubtedly much of the hair is from the heads of criminals after they are executed and from plague victims whose dead bodies are thrown into the streets and there robbed of their hair by the lowest dregs of the population.

Many stories have been told of people who have caught leprosy or bad skin diseases from the infected switches. Although it is very difficult to disinfect hair adequately, bacteriological experts say that it is unlikely that leprosy is being brought from China in this way. However, it has been shown that plague germs may be carried over in this way. If the hair is not boiled and chemically soaked and afterwards kept away from the dirty hair and not passed through the same combs. This careful handling of the hair is not very noticeable in the crowded tenements where whole families are eating, living, working and sleeping in the midst of dirty, filthy Chinese hair piled up with shiny locks of prepared hair that will go straight to the head of some American girl or woman.

Elizabeth Shepley Sergeant, writing for McClure's magazine for July, tells of a tour of inspection of the New York tenement hair makers, as follows:—

"After knocking in vain at a number of kitchen doors in a tenement house we found an apartment where the hair trade was in progress. The 'boss,' a Polish Jew, who spoke little English, deputed his foreman, an intelligent boy of twelve, to explain the industry to us.

"He took us first into a dark kitchen, where we were met by a sickening odor, subtly Oriental and almost overpowering. Black hair seemed to fill the room. An enormous tub of curling tins of coal-black hair stood by the stove, on which dirty, boiling mixtures, were tubs of bleach and dye. One corner of the room was heaped to the ceiling with long, thin packages of black hair, bearing the label of 'Chinese export hosiery.' Our guide said: 'It is not human hair; it is dead Chinese criminal's hair, and he pointed out to us that it was gray with dirt.'

"The first process, known as 'healing' was performed by a young boy, in an ante-room. The stiff hair, just as it came from the package, was combed into lengths—ends to ends and roots to roots,' as he said. The floor was ankle deep in combings and dirt. The lengths thus obtained were then wound tightly on sticks like old-fashioned curling sticks, tied securely, and boiled five or six hours to make them curly. The hair, indeed, comes out of the boiling with a well set 'wave' which lasts the various processes that follow—the bleaching in a solution of hydrogen peroxid and ammonia, and the dyeing usually 'medium brown.'

"The hair is then ready for 'drawing' in the back room. Two boys stand at the table here, 'drawing' or pulling the hair again and again through heavy spiked metal combs, to make it soft and shiny, and arranging it in even lengths. These lengths were carried by the 'boss' into a fourth small room, lighted only by one window, where eight girls were making up the hair into switches. 'Coronet braids' were made here.

"In another establishment which was found on the dirty corridor of a tenement, the hair was 'burned,' that is to say, washed in warm water and capsuds, to get the roots out, they asserted, before it was heckled. Dirty hair and boiled hair were heckled on the same combs."

BUDGET FROM BOSTON GIRL

Quarter Extra for Table Fixtures May Add to the Cost of High Living—Brown Tail Fuzzy-Wuzzies.

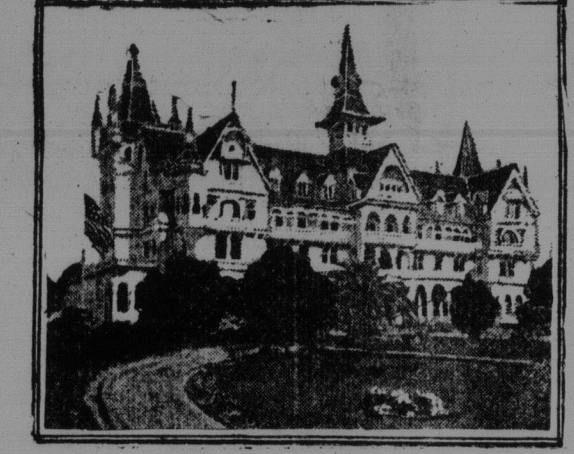

Boston, July 2.—Boston women are inclined to crawl on the latest fashion edict from London. They have become quite accustomed to the Chantrelor veils with roosters and various domestic and wild fowl liberally plastered on thin meshed face coverings, giving a well dressed woman the appearance at a little distance of having had a disagreement with her husband during which she had received a punch in the eye, a disfigured cheek bone, and a broken nose. The latest London mode, however, is a veil woven in the manner of a spider's web, upon which as a beauty spot is placed a black plush spider of goodly proportions, which lends a sufficiently creepy and crawly effect to suit the demands of the most advanced stage of delirium tremens.

The hot weather hub, which never lapses into summer dullness until after the fourth, is exceptionally lively this year. What with the Harvard Commencement festivities, the circus, the arrivals of the early comers to the National Educational Association convention, the departure of 200 or more members of the real estate exchange with their friends on an automobile tour through the state, and the serenading of Mayor Fitzgerald at City Hall by the Harvard class of 1900, Bostonians have been busily following the band. The college "boys" of 1900 made a picturesque spectacle as they marched down School street, singing "Sweet Adeline" for the mayor's benefit and wearing gaily colored bands on their hats. The doughty mayor lost no time in joining in the chorus, and on receiving a green necktie with white stripes, a huge cigar and a specially designed pipe, as tokens of good fellowship, he made a brief speech to the assembled enthusiasts. Councilman Collins, also a member of the class of 1900, accompanied the mayor.

Still increases the cost of living as young America likes to live. Possibly slower Boston will escape New York's threatened fate, but it is rumored that the management of several of the big Gotham hotels are to introduce one of the most odious impositions of European restaurants, namely a charge of 25 cents per person for the "convert" or service of napkin, knife and fork, bread, butter, salt, pepper, and so on which go with all well regulated dining tables. One pictures the expression on the face of Mr. Family Man when after "blowing" his wife and a couple of friends to a dinner down town which made him inwardly groan, he is presented with a check amounting a charge of one dollar extra for the "convert." It is probable that this innovation will meet with much the same fate as did the recent edict of the proprietors of the Cafe de l'Opera in the metropolis who required their patrons to appear in evening dress or not at all. It is safe to say that any hotel in Boston which undertook such drastic changes would find itself drowning in its own soups ere long.

New England's worst fuzzy-wuzzies are the brown tall moth caterpillars which along the Charles River on a recent Sunday played havoc among the open work stockings and peck-a-boe stirringtons of passing canoeists, to say nothing of dropping occasionally down the collarless neck of a masculine paddler. Only those who have experienced the consequent itch can appreciate the consequent temptation to scratch. Considering the amount of wriggling and twisting to reach shoulder blades and smarting ankles, it is remarkable that only four upsets were reported. The Metropolitan Park Commission had sprayed the trees with poison, and they claim that doubtless the caterpillars crept to the extreme tips of the branches over the water in the hope of finding more comfortable surroundings, but there are those who assert that the caterpillars showed much more discrimination than the commission gives them credit for.

Have you ever visited Brook Farm? It is surprising to find how few New Englanders are familiar with this famous literary shrine in the West Roxbury District of the Hub. A recent visit which the Boston girl made to the site of the cooperative experiment in which Ralph Waldo Emerson, Nathaniel Hawthorne, Rev. George Ripley, Margaret Fuller, and many other literary folk of the '40s were interested revealed an unexpected treasury of romantic and historic reminiscences. Not only that—for one will travel far and wide before finding a more beautiful corner of old New England than is nestled within the confines of Brook Farm. Broad meadows and rolling uplands, a sparkling, perpetually babbling brook which winds among great old willows, and woodland as primitive and unspoiled as when the Brook Farmers held their Sunday services in the cool shades, make the sojourner forget that but a shore distance away is a big, seething city, and that automobiles are passing in a continuous string by the gates to the farm.

"Margaret Fuller's cottage" still stands on the charming knoll a little apart from the spot where the main buildings of the colony were located, and the "Hive," remodelled and rebuilt since the days of good fellowship and serious work, is now aswarm with ruddy-cheeked, happy-hearted youths, inmates of the Martin Luther Home for Orphans. A more ideal spot could hardly have been chosen for these youngsters, as one realizes when watching them wading, knee-deep in the brook or picking the daisies in the meadows. It is well worth the half hour's ride from the city's dust and heat to find one's self in such a garden of the gods.

ACTRESS WEDS ON ARRIVAL

Miss Beatrice Forbes-Robertson Met at Pier by Her Fiance, Swinburne Hale— Will Still Work for Suffrage.

New York, July 2.—Miss Beatrice Forbes-Robertson, a niece of Johnstone Forbes-Robertson of "The Third Floor Back" fame, herself an actress and an ardent woman suffragist, arrived yesterday from Europe on the Teutonic, was met by Swinburne Hale, a young lawyer, to whom she has been engaged since the Spring, and went directly to the Marriage License Bureau at the City Hall. Their license was the first to be issued for the day.

The couple proceeded to the Church of the Ascension, where at 12:30 o'clock, they were married by the Rev. Percy S. Grant, only a few friends and relatives being present. They will spend their honeymoon in the Maine woods.

Mrs. Hale will not give up the stage—at least not for a season or two—nor will she abate her efforts in behalf of woman suffrage. Mr. Hale agrees with her about woman suffrage. It was one of her speeches that first attracted Mr. Hale. He sought an introduction to her, and the engagement followed. He will be an added force to the group of suffragists which includes her famous uncle.

At the marriage license bureau, Miss Forbes-Robertson gave her age as 26 years and her home as Farmham, Surrey, England. Mr. Hale gave his age as 26, his birthplace as Ithaca, N. Y., and his business as a lawyer at 49 Wall street. His father is William Gardiner Hale and his mother Harriet Knole Swinburne.

The bride is the daughter of Ian Forbes-Robertson, and her grandfather, on her mother's side is Joseph Knight, the famous English critic and editor of Notes and Queries.

UP WITH THE BLACK FLAG

War to the Knife Between Republican Leaders in New York State—Roosevelt Plate Out for the present.

New York, July 2.—War is now on with a vengeance in the Republican party of New York State. This is the obvious meaning of the news from Albany that the Cobb district primaries bill has been pushed aside in the assembly, the adverse committee report on it accepted by a large majority, and a resolution of adjournment voted through. Defiance of the Hughes and Roosevelt leadership by the up-state bosses of the party breathes in every word and line of this action.

The Barnes-Wadsworth bill, metaphorically speaking, seized the Republican craft, threw the captain and his aid Roosevelt down the companionway, nailed down the hatches and ran up the black flag. And this within a day of the going over of Colonel Roosevelt to the help of the governor. The correction which the colonel has made in his Harvard speech was well made. He had said he had agreed to "help" the governor. And then he said he had agreed to "try" to help him. The event justifies the correction, and Mr. Roosevelt as the invincible one already passes from the imagination.

New we shall see what the Republican party of the state will do as to its pirate crew. Who are finally to run at the black flag? The regularly constituted crew now below decks or the pirates now in possession of the ship? That question will be answered soon, and the chances are about ten to one that these up-state bosses will be the ones to grace the yard arm or walk the plank. Such must be the outcome if the New York Republican craft is not to be a fight to the finish, and with Roosevelt deep in the contest and smarting under this open defiance for him to do his worst, it will be a fight satisfying to the utmost requirements of general excitement.

The coming of the state convention must not only put up a ticket and platform agreeable to the Hughes faction; it must also express itself vigorously respecting the assembly leadership which has brought the party into this discreditable position before the people. And even then it may go down in defeat, but it would then go down in honor and to rise again, while under the Barnes-Wadsworth-Woodruff leadership something like party annihilation must be the ultimate outcome. It is a wide-open break which we now see in the Republican party of the empire state, and it can be closed up consistently with life and progress to the party only over the lifeless remains of the Platt domination.

ANY HARBOR DEVELOPMENT OF FUTURE MUST PROVIDE FOR MUCH LARGER SHIPS

J. S. Armstrong, in Interesting Letter, Suggests Changes in the Plan for New Wharves at West Side -- Discusses the Disposal of Forty-Acre Lot to the C. P. R.

PLAN OF THE PROPOSED IMPROVEMENTS ON THE WEST SIDE.

To the Editor of The Standard: Sir:—In regard to the West Side of St. John harbor and the lots proposed to be transferred to the C. P. R. in exchange for the 1,600 foot strip on the harbor front, what exactly is the city council's proposition in the matter?

At one time it was proposed, I believe, to transfer all the rights and flats below Sand Point and west of the harbor line to the Dominion government for dock purposes, with the understanding that the C. P. R. were to have a lease of about forty acres shown on plan prepared by Mr. Wm. Murdoch, City Engineer, as indicated on the accompanying sketch with other features added. The forty acre area is included within the lines A, H, I, J, C, G, A, and the "1,600 foot strip". R, S, T, U, R. It was to be left with the government to safeguard the port and the public's interest in the transaction. Meanwhile the government seems to have taken possession without transfer of title and a committee of the city council is apparently to negotiate direct with the C. P. R.

An indefinite grant. In the first place what title has the C. P. R. to the "1,600 foot strip," so called. The original grant was, I think, rather indefinite, nothing more than a right of way being mentioned, and the re-transfer stipulated that it should be used and developed as the needs of the port might require, but without much more definite grant. It is nearly forty years since the first grant to the branch railway and the C. P. R.'s grant is nearly twenty years old. The company have not exercised any control over the strip, and have in no way used it. Meanwhile it has been continuously used as harbor property and it seems to me the title has reverted to the city.

However, the C. P. R. wants yard room near the docks and it may be well to give them a free grant, or a liberal grant, on reasonable terms; but what that grant may be, should be carefully considered. It should be so worded that the harbor commission, when appointed, should have power to take possession of any part of it, that it deemed necessary for its purposes, on a basis of valuation fixed by agreement.

No Exclusive Rights. The area to be granted should be carefully considered. I should say that no exclusive rights should be granted north and east of the extended West Side line of Victoria street; that ample area should be reserved for a system of streets on the shore level, running south from Victoria street, and ascending to the higher levels in the neighborhood by easy grades. I should like to see the eastern boundary run from the point G to the point at the intersection of the line C, G, with the side line of Victoria street, by a curved line approximately parallel to the shore line and nowhere more than 500 feet from it. The reason that the exclusive grant should be bounded by the side line of Victoria street is that without doubt all the low ground in Carleton occupied by the mill pond and the blocks to the north of it, will eventually be taken for railway yards. It is contended by some in authority that the C. P. R. will occupy all the ground and docks on the west side of the harbor but this is not an arrangement to be desired if St. John is to be a National port.

Opinion of G. W. Stephens. The main point of Mr. G. W. Stephens' address before the Canadian Club here was that if St. John was to be a National port it should be put in a commission there are two ways of hastening the development of the port of St. John. One is to make it a railway port like Southampton, and trust its development and business in the hands of some powerful railway interest, whose own individual interests will guarantee the development of the port. The other is to place all the interests of the port under one neutral authority, thereby merging all the interests and centralizing the control of its development. In the latter case the authority should be an appointed commission not elected by the city council, and one of whom would devote all his time to the business of the port and its interests. And he went on to say that the development of St. John will hasten the development of other parts of the harbor, and that instead of retarding them, all of which will be needed long before any of us think, if we pretend to desire to keep Canadian business within the dotted lines of our own country.

No Taxes to Grind. Mr. Stephens as chairman of the Montreal Harbor Board had studied the transportation question of our Dominion very thoroughly, and gives us a glowing account of its prospective growth, and he gave a number of cases in England where, with no such prospect as St. John has, harbor commissioners had spent upwards of fifty million dollars on the improvement of each and where there had been no axes to grind.

We have the prospect of four or five transcontinental railways making St. John their principal outlet if they can accommodate them, to say nothing of shorter railways radiating into all the corners of the province and the neighboring states and to tie up the port of harbor to any one railway, seems the height of folly. Each railway will have cars loaded to most each line of steamers whether for Glasgow, Liverpool, London, Antwerp, Hamburg, the Mediterranean, South Africa, India, South America or Australia and each railway should have access to all docks though one might use one dock more than another; but there should be no exclusion.

An Alternative Plan. The reason I would like the C. P. R. confined by the curved line limiting the width of the area to 500 feet, is that the straight line cuts into the scheme of docks I should like to see carried out, which is shown by the dotted lines on the sketch. I contend that the scheme proposed by the government does not provide for the prospective requirements of the port in the best or an adequate way. The proposed length of the docks is entirely too short for the largest vessels now building, to say nothing of the prospective increase in length. It scales less than 700 feet on the plan and this will be too short also for two moderate sized steamships.

Constant Dredging. Then they open out approximately at right angles to the current, making difficulty in entering and leaving the docks which will be aggravated as the vessels using the channel are increased to an intolerable extent. They will tend to silt up very quickly, necessitating constant dredging and the Beacon bar is pretty sure to reform, increasing this dredging very materially. The scheme shown in dotted lines would avoid this in a great measure. It would necessitate a breakwater east of Partridge Island, and a breakwater is necessary if Courtenay Bay is to be utilized, and I claim that the Partridge Island site (considering its effect and the comparatively small difference in cost) is the best and the cheapest in the long run. If the Government builds a sea wall enclosing the West Side lots, it can do most of the filling behind it without any extra cost as with suction dredges it cannot find any cheaper place to dispose of the spoil. Yours, etc., J. S. ARMSTRONG, M. Can. Soc. C. E. St. John, N. B., July 1, 1910.

OUTING OF PAPER MEN

Representatives of City Press With Friends Enjoy Outing on Kennebecasis as Guests of S.S. Premier Co.

Twenty minutes ride on the I. C. R. suburban train to Rothery, a short walk down the track and along a well beaten path through low growth led to the beach and out onto the recently built pier and the gay newspaper party were aboard the excursion boat. Premier as guests of the management on Saturday afternoon. Lacking but one of a dozen couples, the party were out for a good time and they certainly got what they were looking for. To the thoughtfulness of Capt. R. G. Earle, manager of the S. S. Premier Co., Mr. E. S. Carter, Mr. H. Gilbert of the company and Mr. Roy Waddell, proprietor of The Willow, is due a large proportion of that self said good time and the scribbles and near scribbles appreciate that fact to its fullest extent.

The Fortunate Ones. Those in the party were: Mr. A. M. Belding, F. I. McCafferty, W. E. Hopper, representing the Times, with Mrs. Belding, Mrs. McCafferty, Mrs. Hopper, Elmer Hoppner, with Miss Marion Belding; Mr. F. Carr representing the Telegraph, with Miss Irene Ryan and Ina Rathburn; Bruce Robb, L. Conlon and Miss Bessie Noble, representing the Globe, with Mrs. Robb; S. K. Smith, S. B. Smith and Miss I. Helena Smith representing The Standard; with Mrs. S. K. Smith, and Miss E. B. Smith; A. D. Merkel and Roy Davidson representing The New Star.

Mr. E. S. Carter was along and his genial presence added much to the enjoyment of the trip. Without any untoward incident and with a countryman's spirited horses as a fellow passenger, the Premier backed from her wharf, her sturdy bow swung upstream and they were off. Usually placid as a summer breeze the Kennebecasis was somewhat ruffled but the motion of the steamer gave no evidence of roughness and the party sat on deck enjoying the sunshine, scenery and smart talk suitable to the occasion.

Long Island First Stop. A short distance up a breakwater projects into the water from either side and here the stop is made at Long Island. Right ahead is Moss Glen, the very name of which gives some hint of the verdant beauties of the narrow valley which meets the Kennebecasis at this point. Farther up is Clifton hidden at first by the tumbling Sugar Loaf mountain which surmounts approximately the finest strawberry district in the province.

"Why Didn't You Stop?" At the Clifton wharf a little incident was noted which at once roused the professional interest of the reporter, inasmuch as the recital of the facts makes what is termed in the parlance of the fourth estate "a good story." A passenger who boarded the Premier at Rothery, said nothing of his destination and no stop was made at Clifton. Just as the boat steamed past the wharf the man was seen to scribble hastily upon a piece of paper and hand it to the captain. The navigator looked it over and read this line: "Why didn't you put me off at Clifton?"

The man was deaf and dumb. Instantly full speed astern was the order and the mute safely landed. Going up, it was not found necessary to stop at Fairvale and the Premier tied up at the Willows, at 3:30 o'clock for an hour's stay.

At The Willows. Out came the inevitable cameras and the gentlemen of the party put on their best smile. As for the ladies it was not necessary. Then the group scattered. Some braved the heat on the high bank, but owing to the high wind and did not find the rowing pleasant. A number were content with resting comfortably in the shade of a tree, breathing the pure air of heaven and peacefully eyeing the beauties of the pretty little spot.

Something not in the programme, but none the less welcome for all that made the time pass at "The Willows" more pleasantly. Mr. Waddell, the proprietor of the summer hotel, formerly kept by Hugh McCormick, invited the party to lunch and a substantial meal was served. Associated with Mr. Waddell is Mrs. Gallagher, his grandmother, formerly cook at The Cedars, and her tempting viands were very favorably commented upon. From the dining table, the party went to the steaming again, and the return to Fairvale was thoroughly enjoyed.

Mr. Carter's Guests. Passing the spacious Hillhurst Hotel, the ladies of the party in carriages provided by Mr. Carter, while the gentlemen did a Marathon in record time, it did not take long to reach Mr. Carter's up-to-date farm house where the party were made to feel thoroughly at home for the next two hours. Mr. Carter, together with his estimable wife and charming family, was the soul of hospitality and revelled in displaying his fat porkers, cunning bunnies, and sleek looking horses. After a thorough inspection of the surroundings the party gathered on the west veranda of the Carter home-stead and a dainty supper was served. Well filled, the diners were taken to the beach by Mr. Carter and looked across the limpid waters of the Kennebecasis, where the setting sun was already marking out a shimmering path of fiery red.

All too soon came the call to return by train, and in carriages again, provided by the obliging host, the party were conveyed to Fairvale, and there took the suburban, arriving in the city about 8 o'clock, fully, completely and wholly satisfied with the day's outing.

If a man shuns evils from any other motive than because they are sins, he does not shun them but only prevents them from appearing in the sight of the world.—Swedenborg. T. C. R. 330.

HANDKERCHIEF FOUND IN DIEGO SIRACUSO'S ROOM IDENTIFIED AS ROSSI'S

Minnie Jones Added Another Sensational Turn to the North Street Tragedy--At Coroner's Inquest She Swore Prisoner Owned the Blood-Stained Handkerchief Found in Siracuso's Kitchen.

An important link in the chain of evidence that fastens the death of Diego Siracuso upon the murderer of Andrew Rossi, the unfortunate Italian, now in jail, with the probability of having to stand trial for a capital crime, was forged at the inquest on Saturday night and curiously enough by the woman who, it is said, was the innocent cause of the tragedy.

It was jealousy of Siracuso's attentions to Minnie Jones, or, it is believed had supplanted him; Minnie Jones had been friendly to both and the day of the shooting had washed a handkerchief found in Siracuso's room. This handkerchief, stained with blood, was found in the house where Siracuso was found dying and it was had found in the keys and in the pocket of a summer breeze the Kennebecasis was somewhat ruffled but the motion of the steamer gave no evidence of roughness and the party sat on deck enjoying the sunshine, scenery and smart talk suitable to the occasion.

The jury is composed of the following: Geo. H. Barnes, foreman; W. C. Smith, Fred Selby, W. H. Carnell, Sydney Gibbs, Dennis Burke and Thos. Gibbons. Discovery of the Crime. Police Officer Rankin, the first witness called. Between the hours of 4 and 5 o'clock on Sunday he was near the railway station when a young man named Jones, accosted him, and in consequence of a conversation which witness had with him, they went to a house at 37 North street.

Upon arriving at the house he found both doors fastened. Witness gained admission through the yard window. On entering he heard groaning. On going into the next room he found a man apparently in an unconscious condition, lying upon a bed, which was covered with blood. The room was generally upset. Witness noticed a flash of liquor in the room. There were several articles of clothing hanging about. Witness did not notice the condition of the clothes. Jones told him that the man lying upon the bed had a companion the night previous. Witness telephoned for a doctor. He had not found the keys and was compelled to exit by the window. When he returned he found the doors opened. Jones told witness that he had found the keys and opened the door while witness was away for a doctor. The doctor examined the man and he was later sent to the hospital.

When he first entered the room he found Siracuso lying on his back with his head facing towards Mills street. Jones Tells His Story. Joseph Jones called, said he resided at 39 North street. He was in Siracuso's room. His father was an Englishman and his mother was French. He had known Siracuso three months. Siracuso could speak English. He sold Italian groceries. When Siracuso first opened his store a man whom witness did not know, lived with him. About three months ago Andy Rossi or Rossi went to live with him. As far as witness knew Rossi and Siracuso had not quarrelled previous to the Saturday night of the murder. Witness heard Rossi and Siracuso having a quarrel about knives on Saturday afternoon.

The next time he saw Siracuso was between 4 and 5 o'clock when he went into deceased's house in North street. There was blood on his head and also on his chest. Witness had a key for both doors of the house. Witness had not seen Siracuso walking with his sister Minnie between 3 and 4 o'clock in the evening before the tragedy. Witness understood that Andy Rossi was paying attention to his sister and saw him frequently in their house. He did not know that either of his sisters went out walking with Rossi.

Witness had heard, but was not sure, that Rossi made threats to take Siracuso's life. He did not know if Siracuso was addicted to liquor, and thought him of a quiet disposition. The Woman in the Case. Minnie Jones, called, said she was a married woman. She married E. Grigor, and had not secured a divorce from him. She had one child which was five months old. She had remained in St. John since the child's birth. Her husband lived in Massachusetts. He had not seen her since her child was born. She had known Andy Rossi about three months. He visited her house quite often. She did not think that Rossi was paying attention to her. She knew Siracuso. He visited her house once, when her father was dead.

Went Walking With Siracuso. She had seen Siracuso on Saturday before the shooting, when she went into his store. She had been walking with him that evening. They left at eight o'clock, returned at 9:30. Rossi had also asked her to go walking that evening. She had never gone walking with Rossi. When witness and Siracuso returned from their walk, they found Rossi talking excitedly in Italian. Rossi had told her sister that if Siracuso went walking with witness it would be the last time. She merely considered it a joke.

Her brother returned to the house on Saturday night last at 12 o'clock. Witness had not heard any noise in the house, and did not hear a revolver shot. She was told on Sunday morning that Andy Rossi had made threats to kill "the boss" the evening previous. She then knocked at the back door and could not get any reply. As far as she knew, Rossi had not said why he would kill Siracuso.

The Fatal Handkerchief. Witness said she recognized the bloody handkerchief found in the house as belonging to Andy Rossi. She never knew that Rossi carried a revolver, but saw one in the possession of Siracuso. Witness recognized the revolver produced in court as similar to one which Siracuso kept in the till in his store. Detective Killen produced the bloody handkerchief which witness said she had "done up" for Rossi on Saturday morning. She identified a vest produced as similar to one worn by Siracuso. He had purchased it about four weeks ago. Andy Rossi had promised to give her little brother a vest. She had first noticed the vest in her brother's possession about a week ago. It was the same vest which was produced in court and which formerly belonged to Siracuso. She was in Siracuso's store about 11 o'clock on Saturday evening. She was positive that she did not hear any noise. She slept in the rear of the house. Rossi knew that she was a married woman. She knew that Siracuso carried a watch. The watch was produced in court and witness recognized it as belonging to the dead man.

Rossi had given her a letter to post. She did not post the letter, as she had heard Rossi say that he would poison himself, and she was afraid that he might have stated his intention in the letter. This was some days before the assault. Rossi had told her that he was discouraged. She understood it was because he was out of a job. Head Rossi Make Threats. Charles O'Connell next called, said he heard Rossi say that he would poison himself, and she was afraid that he might have stated his intention in the letter. This was some days before the assault. Rossi had told her that he was discouraged. She understood it was because he was out of a job.

Other Witness. Annie May Wickham aged 14, of 39 North St. said she did not know either Rossi or Siracuso except by sight. She had met Rossi on the street on Sunday morning between 7 and 8 o'clock by the Union Depot. He was going north towards Paradise Row. He did not speak to her and she did not notice how he was dressed. Julia Jones, 11 years old, a sister of Minnie Jones said she was in Siracuso's shop on Saturday afternoon. Andy Rossi was there. Rossi asked her if Minnie was going out with the "boss" that night. Witness replied that she did not know. Rossi said that if Diego went out with Minnie that evening it would be the last time. This concluded the evidence until Tuesday night, when several other witnesses will be heard, including Deputy F. W. Jenkins and Detective Killen.

REGULAR DIME NOVEL

SCENE ON LILY LAKE

Boys While Boating Drew a Revolver and Threatened to Shoot Another Boating Party—Arrests May Follow.

A sort of wild west dime novel scene was witnessed at Rockwood Park by several citizens, on Saturday afternoon, when a party of small boys in a boat, were seen to point a revolver at, and threaten to shoot a party of Jewish people, in another boat with whom they were quarrelling. The matter was called to the attention of the policeman on duty at the park and upon coming on shore the boys were taken into custody, while a telephone message was sent to Central Police station for an officer. After waiting more than half an hour, however, it was decided, upon the policeman putting in an appearance, to take the boys' names, and they were allowed their liberty, after the weapon had been taken away from them. It was later discovered that the boys were not wholly to blame, as several on the shore had noticed one of the party in the Jewish boat attempt to strike the boys with an oar. Many citizens who witnessed the occurrence expressed surprise that such small boys should be allowed to carry revolvers. The police are said to be investigating the trouble, and some arrests may follow.

MEXICO IS STANDING TO FRONT OF NATIONS

Visitor from City of Mexico Chats of His Country's Progress—A Gentleman is President Diaz.

Senor P. deViga, a gentleman from the City of Mexico, who is making a tour of Canada, was in St. John on Saturday. To a reporter he chatted entertainingly of affairs in Mexico—the rapid industrial progress of the country, the character and achievements of President Diaz, the beauties of the capital city, bull fights, and revolutions. "Mexico is progressing at a great rate," he said. "In 1877 when General Diaz assumed the presidency, Mexico had a population of less than 9,000,000 people, of whom 8,000,000 were poverty stricken peons. The whole country was exhausted by civil war. Agriculture and industry were non-existent. The republic had no credit among the nations. The country was infested with bands of robbers—even in the streets of the big cities it was unsafe to go abroad after dark. The schools were few, and they too fostered the spirit of war. The boys from the different schools waged battle royal at appointed places, and hundreds were killed or maimed every year. "Well, Diaz, the hero of 60 battles, came to power. He told Mexico to go to work, live peacefully, and pay her debts. And Mexico obeyed. Under the administration of Diaz the population of the republic has increased from 9,000,000 to 20,000,000. The railway mileage has been increased from 500 to 20,000 miles. Over $50,000,000 has been spent on harbor works. A public school system has been established, a large standing army has been organized, and a navy is being created rapidly. Mexico City has been transformed—converted into the Paris of America. Its splendid buildings, beautiful boulevards, and magnificent statuary are the admiration of the world. "Diaz has proved himself a great administrator. When he assumed office Mexico was without credit in the money market. Today capitalists are tumbling over themselves to get into Mexico. And notwithstanding the great public improvements, Mexico's public debt is only $200,000,000—less than that of Canada. And what is important Mexico has greater control over its railways, and public service corporations than other countries in North America. "Mexico's foreign trade is expanding rapidly, and her trade relations with Canada are improving. Where less than ten years ago the total trade between Canada and Mexico was less than $200,000, last year it was nearly $2,000,000. "Gen. Diaz will be president as long as he desires to hold the office. He is 80 years old, but he is counted a better insurance risk than many a man of half his age. He was always a man of great physical strength, and though in his youth he was sorely wounded many times, and was in prison four or five times, he is even at 80 a very strong man. He comes of a long lived race of mountaineers, and is good for a hundred years. "Whatever else he may be, Diaz has proved himself a great man. History affords few more interesting examples of a poor boy lifting himself into the position of the ruler of a warlike people. His life has been stranger than a romance; his character is so many-sided that it is inevitable that various erroneous impressions exist in regard to him. "To understand Diaz you must conceive a man with the military genius of a Cromwell, the ruthless energy of Napoleon, the generous audacity of a D'Artagnan, the democratic simplicity of a Lincoln, a man who unites the fire and dash of a Spanish cavalier of the time of Cortez, with the tenet-

NARROW ESCAPE FROM TRAGEDY IN LILY LAKE ON SATURDAY

Boat Overtaken and Two Men and Two Women Struggled in the Water Until Rescued by James Collins—Women Now in Hospital Suffering from Shock.

Plunged into the waters of Lily Lake through the foolhardiness of James Lavigne, his three companions Annie Sheridan, Hattie Crawford and Arthur Howe, were only rescued from a watery grave by James Collins, son of L. C. R. Policeman Collins, whose remarkable coolness and heroic efforts undoubtedly prevented a sad and tragic event. About 2.30 the two men, James Lavigne and Arthur Howe, who was later ascertained to be Chas. Carlin, hired a boat from G. W. Carlin, who is in charge of the boathouse, and shortly afterwards were seen to take the women for a row. Scarcely 20 minutes had elapsed when cries of "Help! Help! I'm drowning!" were heard, and it was immediately seen that the boat had in some manner capsized and one of the men and one woman were struggling in the water, while the other two clung to the overturned boat. The man proved to be a strong swimmer, but without paying any attention to the girl's pitiful appeal for help, struck out for the shore, leaving her to what looked like almost certain drowning. James Collins and another young man who happened to be in a boat some distance from the scene, rowed with all their might towards where she was making her last desperate struggle and reached the spot just as she was sinking below the surface for the third time. After considerable difficulty she was pulled on board the boat and in an unconscious condition was taken with her girl companion and the other man who gave his name as Howe, to the shore, where both girls required the medical assistance of Dr. Emery, who was on hand. According to the story told by the girls, the action of Lavigne in trying to lighten them by rocking the boat, was responsible for the accident. Although repeatedly asked and entreated by them to cease rocking the boat, he persisted in doing so, until finally the small boat quickly overturned, throwing Lavigne and the Crawford girl into the water; the Sheridan woman and Howe, clinging to the boat. Lavigne, the women claim, was under the influence of liquor. Dr. Emery found that both women were suffering from nervous shock and ordered them to be taken to the general public hospital. They were taken to the hospital in the ambulance. The police discovered yesterday that Howe's real name is Carlin, a married man, who resides in the North End. The Sheridan woman is also married and was formerly Miss Annie Craft. Both women were resting comfortably in the hospital last evening.

POLICE HAD A BUSY TIME ON SATURDAY

Two Arrests for Theft and One for Cruelty to Animals in Addition to the Usual Drunks.

The police were given an unusually busy day Saturday and in addition to the usual batch of drunks rounded up two prisoners on charges of theft besides one on a warrant for cruelty to animals.

In the morning John McDonald, a native of Prince Edward Island was given in charge by Officer Hughes by Harry Sillien on a charge of going on board the steamer Prince Rupert, lying at the D. A. R. wharf on Friday night and stealing a knife and cutting the wrapping from cargo in the D. A. R. shed on Saturday morning. Michael Walsh, 71 years old was arrested by Officer McFarland on suspicion of stealing an umbrella from Clone's house on Brussels street on July 1st. The Clone family were away for the holiday and Walsh, as noticed by neighbors about the house, The goods were missed upon the return of the Clone family and hearing that Walsh was about the house, suspicion once fell upon him. Saturday Walsh attempted to sell the umbrella and was shortly afterwards taken into custody by Officer McFarland. The umbrella which was found in his possession was identified by Clone, as the one missing from his house. Walsh is a shoemaker and about six months ago was sentenced to a fine of $50 or six months in jail for procuring liquor for an indigent. Between 5 and 6 o'clock Saturday evening Frank Dickie was arrested by Deputy F. W. Jenkins and Detective P. Killen on a warrant charging him with cruelty to animals. Dickie hired a team from Watson's stable, Duke street on July 1st, and returned the animal in a condition that plainly showed it had been subjected to extremely hard driving. Mr. Watson immediately had a warrant sworn out for Dickie's arrest.

OFFICIALS WATCHING FOR RUSSIAN CHOLERA

Canadian Medical Director Says All Border Points Will be Closely Watched for Russian Immigrants.

H. Montizanhert, medical director of the Quarantine System of Canada, was at the Royal yesterday. After inspecting the Quarantine Station here, he will proceed to Halifax and other ports in Nova Scotia.

"The only cloud on the horizon is the cholera plague in Russia," he said to The Standard. "Special orders have been issued to the officials at all quarantine stations to keep a close watch on all immigrants entering Canada for signs of cholera. However, we have little to fear from this source. Cholera is a disease that only requires a few days to incubate, and is bound to show itself on the voyage over. So far we have not had any trouble, but we have made all the arrangements necessary for dealing with any ship upon which the disease may show itself. tude and stoicism of an Indian. "At 27, the hero of the Pueblo, as he was called, was the idol of the army of Independence. He could have been president then, if he had listened to the soldiers, but Diaz thrust the office away from him because he thought Juarez was better qualified. Only when he felt it was his duty to accept, did he yield to the solicitations of his soldiers. And he has held the office ever since—with the exception of one term—for the reason that he felt he was the only man who could keep Mexico at peace with itself."

REV. H. D. MARR SAYS GOODBYE TO FLOCK

Pastor of Queen Square Methodist Church Preached His Farewell Sermon Last Evening--Church Has Prospered.

Rev. H. D. Marr preached his farewell sermon in the Queen Square Methodist church last evening. His text was 2 Corinthians 13:14. "The grace of the Lord Jesus Christ and the love of God, and the communion of the Holy Ghost, be with you all. Amen."

In the course of an eloquent sermon Mr. Marr spoke feelingly of the pleasant relations existing between himself and the members of his congregation during his three years pastorate. In referring to the progress of the church during his regime he pointed out that in the last three years over 80 persons had been admitted to membership in the church, and dealt with the extension of the work of the different societies connected with the church. In conclusion, the speaker declared that he would always entertain the most pleasant memories of his work during the past three years, and expressed the hope that his successors would meet with the same loyal cooperation and enthusiastic support and sympathy that the congregation had shown to him.
