There a Scheme to Wreck the G. T. P.?

Enter the minister of railways. The Hon. Frank Cochrane's first administrative act was to make the National Transcontinental Commission a one-man affair. The former commissioner is relieved from office and Major Leitch, a former C. P. R. engineer, becomes the commissioner responsible to the minister of railways. Then two special commissioners were appointed to inquire into the construction of the National Transcontinental, Lynch Stanton, K. C. O., and P. Guelin, the latter up to the time his appointment by Mr. Cochrane became a former engineer in charge of construction on the Lake Superior and eastern sections of the C. P. R.

Mr. Cochrane last session peacefully dissolved the Georgian Bay canal, which would have been another competing route to the C. P. R. But the promotion of the French river was announced through the construction of a waterway as North Bay, where the railway company could again take over the waterway traffic.

ATTITUDE IN BYE-ELECTIONS

Leaving the naval question, Sir Wilfrid called attention to the difference between Mr. Borden's preaching and practice in dealing with by-elections. There were several instances of the majority due to the appointment of members to positions in opposition Mr. Borden had argued that by-elections should take place at the same time. Why had he not, then, brought on the greater number of by-elections in the by-election in Macdonald, Manitoba, particularly when he was summoning parliament in November? "Is it because the government did not want to discuss the question of the Ontario election at one and the same time?" Sir Wilfrid asked. "There are difficulties in having one policy for one part of the country and another for another part of the country." (Laughter and applause.)

THE TWO-FACED BORDEN CAMPAIGN

Hon. Sydney Fisher recalled the character of the campaign which had been waged on behalf of Borden in Ontario. "No greater chicanery was ever attempted in our history," he declared. "The Liberal leader dealt briefly with the justification of the senate in amending the government highways and subsidies bills. "No greater chicanery was ever attempted in our history," he declared. THE TELEGRAPH'S LONDON LETTER

American Tourists Invade the British Capital in Large Numbers, and Yankee Plays Predominate at the Theatres Most of the "Movies" Shown Have the Stars and Stripes Prominent—News of the Fashions.

London, Sept. 21—September—and the first fog! I can't say that we were very much surprised. We are getting used to months that anticipate the characteristics of those that follow them, and it snows in bloom in December and daffodils greet us in January...

It is not surprising that the play should be evasive to the Londoners; much is unexplained, and the atmosphere is so strange. Nevertheless I am inclined to think that the applause which it met was greeted on its first night did not come altogether from the Americans. Mr. P. F. T. is an actor who became a prime favorite in London on the occasion of his last visit here...

It is not much wonder that the British should begin to feel that the cult of Americanism was being a bit too strenuously pushed on the country, when it is considered that in nearly all the cinema-houses in London—and their name is legion—the bulk of the films used are prepared in the United States and the subjects of the moving pictures represent phases of American life...

Why people who deliberately took these advantages should be considered superior to those who possess them is looked upon as inferior will certainly never be understood by any stranger even when he settles down and lives among Londoners for years, and the only explanation likely to be forthcoming, viz., that the suburbs are "middle-class" and self-satisfied will merely add to his bewilderment...

Write for the "Concrete Book"

IN Canada, where the winters are long and cold, houses must be solid and substantial. No "fingered frailties," such as distinguish California bungalows, can be permitted. Canadian homes should be built to defy wind and cold, to keep warm inside when it is thirty below out-doors.

IT is such a Concrete, of all materials, best withstands wind, water and cold, that it is fast becoming popular with Canadian home-builders. Concrete houses are warm in winter, requiring less coal for heating; they are cool in summer. A concrete house never needs repairs, because, instead of decaying, it actually grows stronger with time and exposure to the elements.

VERY attractive architectural effects may be obtained with Concrete, especially for houses, where the rough concrete surface harmonizes with its surroundings.

SNCE it never rusts, it is the best material for use in the construction of the last coat, and it is cheaper for the reason that no other kind of home.

NOT only is Concrete the best material for building, it may also be used for the construction of the last coat, and it is cheaper for the reason that no other kind of home.

FEARED HE HAD CONSUMPTION

"Fruit-a-lives" Cured Him.

HUGH MCKENNA, ESQ. St. Stephen, N. B., Jan. 17th, 1911.

"I wish to tell you of the great good 'Fruit-a-lives' have done for me. For years I was a martyr to Chronic Constipation and Stomach Trouble. I was greatly run down and my friends feared I had Consumption. I tried numerous doctors and all kinds of medicine, but received no relief until I used 'Fruit-a-lives' by Mr. McCready, of St. Stephen, and am pleased to say that I am now enjoying excellent health. 'Fruit-a-lives' are the best medicine made, and I strongly advise my friends to use them."

HUGH MCKENNA. "Fruit-a-lives" is the only medicine that will positively and completely cure Constipation and all kinds of chronic ailments. It is a natural and healthy food of fruit juices acted directly on the liver, causing this organ to extract more bile from the blood, and to give up more bile to move the bowels regularly and naturally.

At all dealers or sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-lives Limited, Ottawa.

great Victorian reign, but also because it is a sign of the passing of one era and the coming of another. Every one lingers over the beautiful porcelain, the product of the south side of the Thames, and also that it would not treat their sewage into which it is dumped would place upon these cities an unnecessary and unjustifiable expense which would bankrupt the cities, in most cases."

How quaint are Queen Victoria's wedding gown of white satin yellowed by years with the poke bonnet of the same material trimmed with orange blossoms and the silk velvet dress of Royal Stuart, which she once reviewed the troops in Scotland! And speaking generally it is surprising to note how simple the dresses are which are exhibited as having been worn by various royal ladies on very great occasions. Queen Alexandra, when Princess of Wales, was always considered one of the most elegant of the English. Yet her gown for such an occasion as the coronation of her husband was a plain made robe of mauve satin with an over-dress of blonde net sprayed sparsely with pearls.

Contrast that with a robe now being shown by a West End firm as one of the garments which may fitly be worn by a lady at a wedding, and you will find it is a washed garment of simple blue velvet which sweeps out into a rounded train behind and clings about the limbs in beautiful if acutely drapings to be caught up on the left hip with an enormous rose of pink satin set in a crown of tulle in the same color. Below this the robe is split up from hem to hip, revealing an underskirt of pale pink satin gingham, and a band of blue velvet, the velvet being white flet that glitters with tiny cabochons in every hue. The hem and all the edges of the velvet robe are finished with a band of blue velvet, also glittering with jewels. The robe of satin has been a lengthy one, but it is still holding its own for evening wear.

There are grim relics of the bad days in the shape of cells, chains, handcuffs and doors of Newgate prison, also halls that were lavished about and hung at the executions at Tyburn—Tyburn which is now the bustling neighborhood known as Marble Arch.

It is a wonderful sight to see the many among the exhibits not only because it was so thoroughly characteristic of the reconstructed in the annex. Sixteen implements and household utensils, Roman pots and water vessels, quaint furniture, and ornaments which once adorned the dwellings and the persons of the Norman rulers of the days when the Plantagenet rule and of the times when the wars of the roses were the latest burning topic, and so on down through the Elizabethan era and that of the Commonwealth, the Restoration, the Georgian period till we come to the personal belongings of Queen Victoria and other members of the present reigning house.

VICTIMS OF ONTARIO DROWNING TRAGEDY

Omeene, Ont., Sept. 2.—In the presence of a very large attendance from this village and the surrounding countryside, the funeral of the five victims of Saturday's drowning tragedy was held yesterday. The five bodies were carried in four hearse.

The Anglican ceremony was conducted by Rev. Mr. Wilkinson, rector of St. Peter's church, Toronto, over the bodies of William McCaffrey and his wife, son and daughter, while the Methodist service for Mrs. Charles McCaffrey was read by her pastor, Rev. Mr. Chapman of Omeene.

The whole village was in deep mourning, the stores and schools closed for the day. Three special coaches from Toronto conveyed a large number of friends to the funeral.

NO DANGER OF POLLUTING WATERS OF GREAT LAKES

United States Expert Tells International Waterways Commission That Treatment of Sewage Would Bankrupt Many Cities—Says Agitation Against Dumping Filth Into Streams is Largely Sentimental—Prof. Starkey, of McGill, Thinks Contaminated Water Soon Purifies Itself.

Ottawa, Oct. 2.—To compel cities along the Great Lakes to so treat their sewage that it would not pollute the lakes into which it is dumped would place upon these cities an unnecessary and unjustifiable expense which would bankrupt the cities, in most cases."

This was the opinion of Dr. McLaughlin, an expert from the Surgeon General's office at Washington (D. C.), who recently reported on the question of the pollution of the Great Lakes by the American cities. "I know that there is a strong sentiment against dumping raw sewage into the rivers and lakes, but this sentiment, while no doubt it is earnest, is largely due to lack of information. It is sentimental rather than practical. Of course, it might be different in the case of small rivers but in such large rivers as we are considering here such a restriction is not necessary."

Dr. McLaughlin, however, took the general position, for the present that since it would be impossible to entirely prevent contamination of the Great Lakes and connecting rivers, and the cities, to be absolutely safe on the water question, must be wiser to allow them to further contaminate the lakes which in such large bodies of water was comparatively all right in any case, than to put them to the expense of treating all their sewage.

Dr. McLaughlin filed his report on the pollution of the Great Lakes and rivers along the American shore and both he and Professor Starkey, of McGill University, who is acting for Canada, thought it impossible that contamination from Canadian cities ever washed across the lakes to make impure the water of an American city or vice versa.

There might be a slight possibility that contamination was carried across the rivers and narrow ends of the lakes, but in the cases of Kingston and Cape Vincent this was very improbable. Professor dump their sewage as is done at present into the lakes but they should be compelled to file plans of any extensions of the systems which the commission would pass upon before they could be put into effect. In this way the commission would be at all times in control of the situation and if at any future time it would be deemed necessary to stop this contamination or restrict it, it would be in a position to do so.
