WILL BE DEMANDED BY G. T. R.

Mayor Graham Says This Will Be the Inducement the Company Will Ask to Extend the Port Burwell Line From Aylmer to London.

Running rights over the London and Port Stanley from Westminster into London will be demanded by the Grand Trunk Railway as the price for continuing their line from Port Burwell to London.

This was the statement made by Mayor Graham to The Advertiser at noon today. When the company's plans were first announced it was stated that the line would run from Port Burwell to London. The charter obtained by Mr. J. H. Teall, of Vienna, and which is now owned by the G. T. R., calls for that extension. However, it was announced at Aylmer the other day that for the time being the Grand Trunk would build only the Port Burwell to Aylmer section this year. The further extension would depend on later developments.

RUNNING RIGHTS REQUIRED. "The Grand Trunk will continue their line to London provided we give them running rights over the London and Port Stanley from Westminster into the city," said Mayor Graham. "I have been given to understand that this will be their demand."

"What do you think of that request?" he was asked. "The future will have to take care of that," answered his worship will be taken up in due time." Further than that his worship would not declare himself. However, a Grand Trunk official stated that the company would eventually come to London, as this city was the natural distributing centre for the western peninsula. The coal supplies for London would have to be taken a long way around to reach the city, while a short line from Aylmer to London would mean an immense saving in haulage, and would pay for itself in a short time. FATAL CRASH AT WEST LORNE WHEN TRAIN WAS NOT HELD

TWO NEW SITES FOR CITY HALL

It Is Said the Government Is Contemplating the Erection of New Postoffice Here.

BACK ON RICHMOND ST.

Suggested, Should Join Hands and Buy the Block From Carling Street North to Postoffice.

The latest suggestion in connection with a city hall site is the northwest streets, now occupied by the Carling Block. The proposal is to erect there Liskeard this afternoon, where the a new postoffice and city hall, the two buildings occupying the whole of the Counsel for HEBERT Carling property and the present postoffice site. The property would have a frontage of 200 feet on Richmond street, with a of 200 feet on Richmond street, with a depth of 145 feet on Carling street If Client Is Willing, Will Carry and Queen's avenue.

It is known that the Government is contemplating the enlarging of the present postoffice, and it is said a new structure is also being considered. Negotiations are known to be under way for a part of the Carling property for postoffice purposes. Some of the government officials were of the opinion that the whole block was too much for their needs, and it was in this manner that the suggestion was made that a portion of it be utilized for a modern city hall if it should be decided to erect a new postoffice. Definite information could not be obtained as to the terms the city could obtain the land for, but it is said that deal generously with the city in that

The Plan Outlined. If the scheme is adopted the city hall would be erected on the southwest corner of the block, and the postoffice on the present site. The postoffice would utilize about 100 feet frontage on Richmond street, giving the city an equal share.

The hall would be a modern building, little attention being paid to a park front or anything of that sort. A site 100 feet by 145 feet would be ample, it it is stated to The Advertiser that government officials have been looking over the situation, and are more Continued on Page Eleven.

BRITAIN FIRM ON CANAL QUESTION

Officials Say That Government Has Not Weakened in the Matter.

AWAIT REPLY TO NOTE

Any Talk of Submitting the Question to Arbitration Altogether Premature.

London, July 30.-The foreign office some quarters of the action of Alfred Mitchell Innes, the British charge d'affaires at Washington, in his note of protest on the discrimination in fa-vor of American coastwise vessels in the matter of tolls through the Panama Canal. This interpretation has been to the effect that the British Government has weakened in its at-titude as to the differentiation in the matter of toils. The officials of the foreign office said today that this was "quite wrong." They said that there had been no alteration of the there had been no alteration of the British policy and no change or delay. The foreign office adhered in its entirety to the position that had already been taken up. It was true that they had contemplated the presentation of another analytical nate, but it was now held that the one which had already been presented which had already been presented adequately covered the ground and Mr. Innes' notification to the state department was to this effect.

The British foreign office will now await the development of events. whether it be in the nature of an anwhether it be in the nature of an answer by the American Government to the note of a development of legislation by the American Congress. It is held here that it is altogether premature to talk about arbitration on the subject whether prepased by one side subject whether proposed by one side or the other. It might, of course, come to this, but just now there does not seem to be any necessity for it.

LONDON DOCKMEN BACK TO WORK

Much Ill-Feeling Being Manifested Among Those Who Returned.

JOBS FOR MANY

Nothing For Them To Do Until Contracts With Free Laborers Expire.

London, July 30 .- Numbers of the dock strikers resumed work today, but not all of them by any means. There was much ill-feeling among those who returned to their jobs. They of the north know something of the traffic and its consequences. If you believe that the upbuilding and permanent development of your country can best be brought about by having the bar, then vote to retain it: many of them were attacked by the men who resumed work. This re-many of those who sought re-em-pleyment were told that there wasn't anything for them to do yet, the foreman only holding out promises of jobs as soon as contracts .ith the free lacrers expired.

The most notable sign of the resumption of work was the appearance of watermen and lightermen. A thorough restoration of the industry will be gradual, and much camage must te repaired before it is complete.

LONDON, WEDNESDAY, JULY 31. STANDS BY RECIPROCITY.

The United States House of Repre sentatives by a vote of 127 to 107 has refused to accept the Senate's excise bill, which would have the effect of repealing the reciprocity agreement. The excise bill is a Democratic measure which had already passed the House: but the Senate tacked on to it the anti-reciprocity clause and sent it back to the House. It was a cunning device to drive the House either into repudiating reciprocity ar dropping the excise bill, one of the most popular strokes of Democratic legislation. It is in reality an incometax bill, disguised as excise to circumvent the amazing decision of the supreme court nearly twenty years ago that an income tax is unconstitutional. The taxes proposed are almost ludicrously mild. Incomes under $5,000 are untouched: an income of $50,000 would pay only $450 taxes, and larger incomes in a slightly greater proportion. But the bill asserted a principle, and no doubt the taxes have steadily increased. It would have been an electioneering asset for the Democrats, and that they should have renounced it out of loyalty to the reciprocity agreement, is by the House. The Republican party hopes to placate the western farmers by turning lits back on reciprocity, President Taft himself has given the signal. The Democrats do not expect much from the west, which will go largely for Roosevelt, and they might lose in the manufacturing districts of the east by tavored in consuming centres as open- sometimes works out. secured a footing in the seventeenth do not take the form of exports of century, but Christianity was exterminated by fire and sword. All foreigners were treated as barbarians and enemies. The ports were closed at home, only the surplus being inagainst them and trade was repelled vested outside the British Isles? like the plague. Fiscally speaking Japan was the most perfectly protected country history has known.

To Commodore Perry, of the United States, belongs the credit of knocking down the first barrier in 1854. The Japanese yielded to his moral suasion, backed by a naval squadron, and threw a number of ports open to traffic. In the wake of western commerce came western ideas. These found a convert. and champion in Mutsuhito, who ascended the throne in 1867, and port of London authorities and the father had restored the power and dignity of the crown. For centuries the Mikados had been reduced to vestigators the world over. a shadowy sovereignty by the shoguns, a succession of military chieftains who made themselves the de facto rulers. Mutsuhito became the king, father and the leader of his people, directing their the humble homes of the people with ers told him of having seen the story steps in the new paths. He was not alone in this work; it is one distress, privation, hanging heavily of the miracles of history that almost over them. And I can see again anthe whole ruling class of Japan were suddenly impregnated with the principles of western civilization. Their scending like breezes from the hills success in adapting those to their of mist-laden valleys, and clearing the country was equally sudden and miraculous. Something has been lost in the process; something of the charm and grace of an unchanging Oriental social order. Some of the ugly phases of western progress socalled have been grafted on that anclent stock, and the new industrialism he happened to be in the press galtakes its toll of flesh and blood unchecked by the Christian ethics incorperated in the laws of Europe and Dawson. LORD CURZON ON SMALL UNIVERSITIES.

Lord Curron's address to the Congress of Universities of the Empire, printed in Saturday's Advertiser, was an argument against centralization, the policy at present enforced in this province. It followed a similar appeal by Lord Rosebery. Both men are chancellors of ancient British universities. They are scholars and statesmen. When will Ontario educationalists who still cling to monopolistic is that good sacurities paying higher in British consols to a monopolistic in British consols to a monopolist consols to the city grant a ten per foundries of the c ideas, listen to the teaching of those who speak with authority?"

Lord Curzon rebuked this narrow mindedness when he declared that Oxford, for which he spoke, welcomed universities growing up around her as "fellow-workers in the same field." The old universities viewed ING. same field." The old universities viewed them with no tinge of jealousy or suspicion. There was need even in the small British Isles for universities to be counted numerically, "not on the fingers of one hand only, or even on both hands, but for as many as the specialized needs of localities, the impulse of provincial patriotism, and the ever-extending boundaries of the realm of knowledge may fairly demand."

The advocates of centralization in this province assumed too readily that Ah, Mrs. Thatchbag, I never remember that policy was fixed and permanent ecause of the concentration of smaller universities at Teronto, and their affiliation with the provincial institution. But everywhere in the field of education the present tendency is in the opposite direction. It is evident in Ontario. The authorities of McMaster, for instance, are seriously thinking of separation from Toronto University. The latter is overcrowded and unwieldly. Eastern Ontario has Queen's in its midst; the city of Toronto, has the provincial university and actually supplies it with the majority of its students; but the most populous portion of the province is without adequate facilities for higher education. It should not be left to the city of London to endeavor to supply the deficiency unaided. The authorities at Toronto should catch some of the Oxford spirit exemplified in Lord Curzon's address.

CLERICAL OPPOSITION TO INSUR-ANCE ACT.
[S. L. Hughes, M. P. ("Sub Rosa"), in

A correspondent calls my attention to this cheery suggestion made in that notable publication, the Sutterton Parish Magazine, in regard (Lines.) to the insurance act:

"On the date of this act coming into force a muffled peal might appropriately be rung on every set of belis throughout the kingdom to commemorate the death of English lib church men and women who would object to the bells being used for such a party demonstration. Indeed, the correspondent who sends the magazine It strikes me that there are man protests against parish magazines being used for party political purposesbut I am not sure I agree with him. As at Sutterton, so in that other notable centre known as Brantinghamcul-Ellerker, the parish magazine is used in order to enshrine some son's objections to what he calls the great Stamp-Licking Act. Indeed, these protests are being made in many of these vicars' or rectors' addresses to their dear people. One would have thought that the clergy as a body would have hailed legislation of this sort with pleasure, and I have no land." Although Mr. Lang was best doubt many of them do so. The trouble with the others is, I imagine, not that they hate its author, for there are some clerics who are absolutely convinced that no good thing can come from Lloyd George.

ANDREW LANG

The death of Andrew Lang, of heart failure, at the age of 68, removes from the world of letters one of its most brilliant and tireless citizens. Historian, journalist, anthropologist, antiquarian, critic, essayist, novelist, poet, dealer in folk-lore-there was no end to his versatility. During his lifetime merry Andrew (for he was merry in spite of the fact that he raked in the dust-heaps of history) produced over sixty volumes, besides thousands book on the stays, Mr. Lang contributed two articles every week to the columns of the London Post; this was his journalistic duty up to the day of his death. These semi-weekly articles were generally of a critical nature, being usually reviews of new books. But they depended upon his caprice, for, article on any subject under the sun. In looking through Poole's Index the other day I found under his name a formidable list of subjects upon which he had written during recent years. His wide range is to be seen in such topics as the following: The poetry of Tennyson, ballads, class names, the Carlyle-Froude dispute, churchgoing, Mrs. Piper, the Homeric hymns, games in Old and Modern France, Joan of Arc, the mystery of Mary Stuart, the origins of the alphabet, compulsory Greek, golf, telepathy, and totemism. When we run through his list of published works we find that it includes a number of books of verse, the first of which, "Ballads and Lyrics of Old France," was published in 1872, shortly after he graduated from Oxford; "Letters to Dead Authors" (1886), a charming volume of essays written in his brightest vein; blue, red, yellow and green fairy tale books, translations of Homer and Theocritus, in collaboration with Prof. Butcher and other noted scholars; "Angling Sketches" (1891), "Homer and the guage, and the promotion of native in-Epic" (1893), and "Homer and His Age" (1906), and two novels, "The World's Desire" and "The Monk of founders of the famous Society for Psychic Research), literary criticism, or the history of his beloved Scotland.

I am inclined to think, however, that great as have been Mr. Lang's services to archaeology and folk-lore, and secure as his place must ever be among those who have translated and elucidated Homer, he will live chiefly on the reputation of his "History of Scotwas one of the most accomplished and painstaking scholars of our time. He the man in the street, but he was a learned body for all that. The fact that he produced a four-volume history of his native land, which eclipsed all its solid predecessors, says much for his ability. He spent any amount of the hardest kind of toil upon this great work, worming his way through endless manuscripts and having the good luck to run across some which former students of Scottish history had missed. He did his work with scientific thoroughness, scrutinizing all the data, and mastering the complicated politics of the Scotland of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries.

The first question to be asked regarding a Scottish historian is, Was he an admirer of the Stuarts? Mr. Lang was a confessed Jacobite; like most of his fellow-countrymen, he had a great admiration for Mary, the unfortunate, and for the gallant young Prince Charles Edward. It is said that Mr. Lang wore a miniature of the young Pretender for a scarfpin, and called the heroic but rash Highland rising of 1745 the most gallant enterprise of the eighteenth century. And yet in spite of his sentimental attachment to the House of Stuart, Mr. Lang and sordidness of both sides in that an assault case which Police Construggle. He does what he can for Mary Stuart; he sees that she was that age, but he points out that she land last evening, when about thirty suffered much from the calculated delays and treacheries of Leicester and Elizabeth, He comes to the conclusion that between them they tried Mary's Mrs. Birt, of Brussels, recently. temper for two years, exasperated her has been visiting her sister and father. by insult, and in sending Darnley, Mr. Wade, has returned to Winnipeg. deliberately lured her to her doom, In Mr. Lang's history, the deceitful, jealous, and cruel Elizabeth certainly assumes a far darker hue than the luckless but misguided woman whom she sent to her doom at Fotheringay. Though much mystery still surrounds ronto, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. the romantic figure of Mary, Queen of J. L. Awde.
Mr. Foller has recently purchased Scots, it seems to me that Mr. Lang the residence of Mr. Mutch, has taken the right view; he has palliated but not whitewashed the character of that beautiful queen of hearts.

> new constitution. Some of the great Gaelic revivalists supporters even go farther and suggest that the debate in the Irish House of Commons ought to be conducted, as far as it is posible, in the native lan-guage. Should the latter proposal take shape, the Irish party, as it is at present constituted, would have to another occupation, becaue its members, with one or two exceptions, have not even a superficial acquaintance with the Gaelic tongue. Hitherto the Gaelic League has kept consistently aloof from politics, devoting its activities entirely to the revival of what threatened to become a dead lan-

Ireland fully realizes the great amount of useful work the league has done in this repect, with the result that if Douglas Hyde cared at any time to assume the role of a politi-cal leader, John Redmond, with all his popularity, would have to take a back seat. Hyde is not a politician, but ae scholar of brilliant attainments, whose fame is known to two hemispheres. As a member of an Irish parliament, his place would be as minister of education, and this is one of the thing- that the present reactionary national board of education dreads. There is no doubt that the Gaelic League is going to be a dominating factor in the political life of Ireland under any scheme of hom

JULY DEATH TOLL WAS VERY HEAVY

Twenty More People Died in London Than in the Same Month of a Year Ago.

BIRTHS SHOW INCREASE

Marriages Slightly Declined-34 Recorded in July, 1912, Against 35 in Same Month a Year Ago.

The death toll for the month of July was very heavy in London as compared with the same month of 1911. According to the figures compiled by City Clerk Baker, there were 70 deaths during the month as compared with 50 in July last year, an increase of 40 per cent.

There was no especial epidemic to account for this number, but the number of violent deaths was comparatively large-8 in all.

There were 18 infants died. Cholera infantum caused the demise of two or three of these, but the cool weather has kept the ravages of this disease to a minimum.

A large increase in the number of deaths among old people was noticed. Twenty-two varying in age from 70 to 87 passed away. Tuberculosis took its monthly tell, four cases being reported scarlet fever one. Cancer was responsible for four deaths.

Births Increase. The birth rate showed a good increase, the stork bringing 98 youngsters to the city during the month This is eleven more than during July

Instil Child's Principles Early Says Ella Wheeler Wilcox

[Copyright: 1912.]

All right-thinking fathers and mothers who believe themselves to be in any way decent and respectable people, continually deplore the prevalence of graft, dishonesty and every form of thievery.

And yet not one pair of parents in ten bring up little children with careful, high ideals respecting the rights and property of their neighbors and their associates.

It is during the first ten years of a child's life that such ideals must be formed in order to become a part of the character.

An especially bright, intellectual boy of ten years of age was heard commenting, with regret, on the dishonesty of politics. He declared his opinion that all politicians were thieves, pocketing the money which belonged to the people for their own usage. Yet the very same day this small boy had stopped by the roadside and picked flowers from a garden which belonged to a neighbor.

He at first surveyed the ground with a watchful eye, to see that no gardener was in sight: and he had to see that no gardener was in sight; and he had glanced up at the windows of the mansion to assure himself that no one was looking; then he hurriedly helped himself to a bouquet and passed on. CHILDISH, BUT WRONG.

To be sure, the garden was loaded with flowers and those that he had gathered would never be missed. NEVERTHELESS, HE HAD VIOLATED A PRINCIPLE; HE HAD INFRINGED UPON THE RIGHTS OF OTHERS; HE HAD TAKEN PROPERTY WHICH DID NOT BELONG TO HIM. The only reproof administered by his mother when she learned of the fact was, "Oh, you shouldn't have done that." Then she put the flowers in a vase and set them on the centre table.

It was a childish act, she said. The sort of thing that every boy does, some time in his life. Yet the act was petty larceny—nothing more and noth-ing less. Similar thefts occur in every neighborhood where there are fruit

A gentleman who has been most generous in the privileges he has granted neighbors, friends and strangers in the use of the beautiful grounds sur-rounding his summer home, planted a few cherry trees some years ago, thinking it would be a pleasure to eat cherries from his own trees.

So far he has been denied that privilege because his neighbor's children have helped themselves to the cherries before they were fairly ripe. They have not done this openly, nor in the presence of the owner; they have sought occasions when they thought no one was looking, and they fled from the premises as soon as observed; yet their parents consider this mere "CHILDISH MISCHIEF," and do not see that it calls for any serious consideration. But this is a species of vandalism, and trains the mind of a child to wrong ideas regarding the rights of others.

IMPRESS HIGH PRINCIPLES.

The same child would probably be ashamed to enter his neighbor's home and steal cherries from the pantry shelf; but flowers and fruit, growing on the

and steal cherries from the pantry shelf; but flowers and fruit, growing on the property of a neighbor, are just as much his own as though they had been plucked and carried indoors.

These fine distinctions of what constitutes honesty, refinement and good breeding should be taught by every father and mother who desires children to become desirable citizens. They should become a part of the teaching of every public school. It is much more important that children should be impressed with these principles of high honesty and fine breeding than that they should be taught drawing, anatomy or Latin. We will never have cleaner should be taught drawing, anatomy or Latin. We will never have cleaner politics or fewer criminals and law-treakers in the land until we have more pagents and more teachers who make it a hydrogen to the land until we have more parents and more teachers who make it a business to impress upon the minds of little children the necessity to consider the rights of others in the small daily matters of life.

A peddler of cakes and condiments found his cart nearly empty. As he emerged from a house where he had been delivering packages a bevy of screaming youths, under fifteen years of age, ran out of reach, laughing at his look of consternation. They were children of respectable, church-going residents of the little

It seemed to them an excellent jest to steal the man's cakes and cookies, and feast upon them, while his back was turned.

A child's mind should be formed before it reaches six years of age to regard other people's property with respect.

This can be done by daily chats and pleasant conversation of the parents, fashioned to the understanding of the child. Little boys can be made to consider another boy's marble and tin soldiers as personal property, not to be used, or touched, without the owner's permission and knowledge; and never to be marred or injure.

WORLD MADE BETTER. Little girls can be made to regard other children's dolls and toys in the The light. The impression should be indelibly fixed upon the delicate mind texture that any violation of this rule is vulgar and indicates lack of good breeding. Children so taught by tactful and considerate parents, will never become thieves; and will never be guilty of petty purloinings of neighbors'

[Special to The Advertiser.] Berlin, Ont., July 30. - Reitzman succeeded in keeping the hits more scattered than Beatty here today, and London won by the score of 9 to 4. The Tecumsehs landed on Berlin's slab artists for nine hits and eight runs in the fourth and fifth innings, and added another in the sixth on errors by Miller and Beatty. The London outfielders played all over the lot, and pulled down many hard bingles that were tagged as sure hits when they left the bat. Neale and Cocash pulled down some hard flies, and were loudly applauded. Nickells, for Berlin, also fielded in sensational style. Neale and Orcutt carried off the bat-

ROCKVIEW TOOK IROQUOIS STAKES

Won Easily.

COUNTLESS WAS GOOD

Ran a Good Race in the Third Event, Closely Pushed by John Furlong and Melton Street.

Fort Erie, July 30. - The Rock Sand colt, Rockview, won the Iroquois Hotel stakes of $1,500 and a silver cup for August Belmont. He shook off Lace after three furlongs, and then outstayed Leochares and Mr. Sea-gram's Confido in the stretch run. Lysander and Tartar were outrun all the May.

Another feature of the day was the third race, in which Countless was made an odd on favorite. He won from end to end, but was doing his very best at the finish to beat John Furlong and R. J. Mackenzie's Melton Street. The last named ran one of the best races of his career. The Macbest races of his career. The Mackenzie stable captured the six furlong handicap with Helen Barbee, acquirel by the claiming process at Windsor. Lahore refused to run in the early part, and could not make up enough part, and could not make up enough ground to beat a horse doing 1:121-5 for the six furlongs.

Caper Sauce, in the red and green stripes of Sol Mintz, battled with Rustling for half a mile in the Canadian-bred race, and finally shook hereff. The page told on the Seagram filly off. The pace told on the Seagram filly to the extent that Commola nosed her out of second money.

The Cesarian-Star Cat colt, Progressive, owned by Major McDowell, was a tremendous tip for the 2-yearold race. This was on account of his good work, as he had never started in a race. He ran well, but needed experience, and was not a contender at any stage. The winner was E. R. Bradley's Volita, a daughter of Voter and the good mare Chulita, just purchased from her breeder, Col. Alex Labold. Hon. John S. Hendrie's Missoussukee was right on top of her, and the 60 to 1 chance, Fly-by-Night, from the stable of Grant Hugh Browne, was a good third.

Busy was claimed out of the sixth race by Amos Turney and W. H. Baker for $1,100. The latter got him in the draw. Busy has not won a race this year, but is always threatening. Paul Miles' Falcada, winner of the last race, was run up $500 by C. J. Quinn, and retained by his owner. Jockey Steele was fined $25 for rough riding in the last race yesterday.

Sure, Baseball Has Improved, Says Cy Young, and It Will Keep On Improving.

TEAM PLAY HAS BECOME A SCIENCE AND PITCHERS NEED MORE THAN "SMOKE" NOWADAYS-BUT IT'S HARD TO TELL WHETHER INDIVIDUAL PLAY-ERS ARE BETTER.

[BY CY YOUNG.]

There is no denying that baseball has improved since I entered the game 23 years ago. Perhaps there hasn't been so much improvement in the individual players as some may imagine, but there has been a big change in team play.

There really is no way to tell whether individuals have improved or not. In horse races and athletics we have records which indicate whether there has been improvement, but in baseball we have nothing of the kind. We cannot prove, for instance, whether a pitcher like Walter Johnson has more days. It is merely a matter of opinion BEAT THE ATHLETICS whether our best infielders are better than the men of a quarter of a century ago. But in team play there is no chance for an argument. You no longer see out-fielders rooted to one spot. For almost fielders there there change position, and in every batter they change position, and, in fact, knowledge of the batters is almost half the game.

Infielders use their brains more than they used to. It is no hit-or-miss arrangement which man will cover second on an attempted steal; it's clockwork for the second baseman to cover first on a sacrifice. Nothing is being overlooked to make the game better and faster.

CY YOUNG TODAY. Do not imagine, for a minute, that pitching hasn't improved. When I broke into baseball, all a pitcher needed was "smoke." As a matter of fact, that was all I had, and I made good from the jump.

Now, to be successful, a pitcher must, first of all, have control. He must know the weakness of each batter. He needs a change of pace, a fast one and a slow one, to be anywhere near the top, and he must include a curve hall in his stock.

And just as long as men think, the game will improve. It is only natural that it should do so, when brainy men devote the best part of their lives to ball in his stock. Baseball is not perfect. It never will be, and for that very reason it conthe study of the game.

He's Penurious, Too

Ferdinand was chosen to rule Bulgaria because the prince before nim, Alexander, had been kidnapped by Russian agents. After Alexander, Bulgaria was in an uncommonly bad way. First, she had been deprived of her army. In fact, to obtain Russian recognition became the aim

While Czar Alexander III, lived he failed, but shortly after Nicholas II. came to the throne the great anti-Russian Minister Stambuloff was dismissed and the heir, Prince Boris, was received into Church. Russia and the powers then recognized Ferdinand's prince-ship and Turkey did the same. Ab-dul Hamid to emphasize his mightiness and Ferdinand's insignificance, graciously appointed his vassal graciously ide-de-camp-general. That was the of Ferdinand's greatness

Ferdinand learned the art of civil government in a hurry, but he learned it well. He started measures improve trade, industry and agriculture, reformed the money sys-tem and worked for education. He wanted to fight, to spend their money instead on highways, railroads, telegraphs and harbors, in a few years the little impoverished principality spent $110,000,000 on railroads. And it got its value for the money, for Ferdinand, like most of his type, is penurious. By dint of concentration on prac-

[Special to The Advertiser.] Guelph, July 30. - President Creelman, of the O. A. C., who has just returned from England, when seen today, stated that in intensive cultivation the British farmers were ahead of Canadian farmers, but they suffered under the handicap of poorer implements. The crops over there, he declared, were very good, but the outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease worked havoc among the cattle and other stock, preventing any from being shown at the Royal Show, held this year at Doncaster, this being equiva-lent to the Winter Fair, held in Guelph.

Conditions in Great Britain he described as prosperous, although everyone seemed to be jumping on Chancellor Lloyd George. President Creelman, while on his trip, took in the agricultural students' convention held at London, which was very largely attended, the sessions aing bright and interesting.

While in France, President Creelman took a trip through Paris, which he found very interesting. He also looked into the French method of intensive cultivation, but states it would not work in Canada, as almost all is done under glass, and this could

I had ulcers and falling of womb and doctors did me no good. I suffered dreadfully for years until I began taking your medicine. I also recommend it for nervousness and indigestion." - Mrs. HENRY CLARK, Glanford Station. Ont.

Chesterville, Out. - "I heard your medicines highly praised, and a year ago I began taking them for falling of womb and ovarian trouble.

"My left side pained me all the time and just before my periods which were irregular and painful it would be worse. To sit down caused me pain and suffering and I would be so nervous sometimes that I could not bear to see any one or hear any one speak. Little specks would float before my eyes and I was always constipated. "I cannot say too much for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pilla, for there are no medicines like them. I have taken them and I recommend them to all women. You may publish this testimonial." - Mrs. STE-PHEN J. MARTIN, Chesterville, Ontario,

Peter E. Summers relates his experience:

"I was troubled with Nervous Debility for many years. I lay it to indiscretion and excesses in youth. I became very despondent and didn't care whether I worked or not. I imagined everybody who looked at me guessed my secret. I maginative dreams at night weakened me—my back sched, had pains in the back of my head, hands and feet were cold, tired in the mozning, poor appetite, fingers were shaky, eyes blurred, hair loose, memory poor, etc. Numbness in the fingers set in and the doctor told me he feared paralysis. I took all kinds ed medicines and tried many first-class physicians, wore an electric belt for three months, but received little benefit, it was induced to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy though I had lost all faith is doctors. Like a drowning man I commenced the New Merson Treatment the nerves. I was cured mentally and physically. Eight Years of Bad Eczema on Hands

Cured by Cuticura Soap and Ointment Miss Mary A. Bentley, 93 University St., Montreal, writes, in a recent letter: "Some nine years ago I noticed small pimples breaking out on the back of my hands. They became very irritaring, and gradually became worse, so that I could not sieep at night. I consuited a physician who treated me a long time, but il got worse, and I could not put my handswin water. I was treated at the hospital, and it was just the same. I was told that it was a very bad case of ezzema. "Well, Liust kept on using everything that I could for nearly eight years until I was advised to try Cuticura Ointment. I did so, and I found after a few applications the burning sensations were disappearing. I could steep well, and did not have any itching during the night. I began after a while to use Sutterra Soap. I stuck to the Cuticura treatment, and fhought if I could use other remedies for over seven years with no result, and after only having a few applications and inding eass from Cuticura Ointment, it deserved a fair trial with a severe and stubborn ease. BIGGEST BRIDGE CONTRACT

[Canadian Press.]

[Canadian Press.]

London, July 31.—The largest individual bridge contract placed in Great Britain since the building of the Forth bridge has just been secured by British engineers in severe competition with Belgian, German and American structural firms.

The contract comprises the whole of the steel work required for the new railway bridge, which will be built to carry the Eastern Bengal State Railway over the Lower Ganges. The bridge will consist of fifteen main spans, weighing 1,300 tons each, and will involve an expenditure of about £1,125,000.

To Help Nature Shed a Bad Complexion

(From The Family Physician.) Beauty devotees are enthusiastic over the beautifying qualities of mercollised wax. Perhaps nothing displishes so much, so quickly, without harm, without detaining one indoors, and at such small expense. The principal reason for its wonderful merit is that it works in harmony with this sological laws. Instead of hiding, and the suring complexion defects, it returned to the suring the iff the aged, faded, sallow or blotchy titicle, gently, gradually, causing no inconvenience. It is Nature's way of reveining complexions. When the natural process is retarded because of deficient circulation or nerve tone, mercolized wax comes to the rescue and hastens the skin shedding. "I feel assured that the scheme will go through," said Ald. Spittal. "The terms offered us are very reasonable a 15-mill rate based on the real estate assessment of 1911. I do not think they could ask for more. They not share in any liability undertaken by the city during the time the agreement is in force, and altogether will benefit greatly.

Factory Sites.

"The annexation of the suburbs will give us what we sorely need at the present time—factory sites. We have everything else, water, railway facili-ties, and all that goes to make a good city, except suitable factory sites. Now we will secure them, and London, we will secure them, and London, I am positive will enter upon an era of industrial prosperity unprecedented in its history. The suburbs to be annexed will profit more than other sections of the city. The establishment of manufacturing plants in their vicinity will greatly increase the value of their holdings. It will mean prosperity for them.

rell street from the broad bridge ap-to-Trafalgar Statue, clinging to every stone on its plinth, clustering like bees in every window, climbing lamp posts, hanging on to railings, filling every chink and cranny in statue, pillar, or wall? Dublin seemed to be built of hanny human faces, writes Harold happy human faces, writes Harold Spender in describing the Asquith meeting in the London Daily News. Greater even than the multitude was the clamor of its welcome. I have seen multitudes in Dublin lining the street in dour and sullen silence, but who shall describe this vast, terrific acclamation in Dublin but of the Irish nation, gathered from many a town and county—this storm of welcome that rose and fell like the sound of a hurricane, this tempest of joy, this tornado of relief and gratitude, bursting from deep, long-buried wells of Gift of Freedom. I have seen many general elections, have been present at the welcome of many kings and queens; I have watched the joy of a people over generals returning from victory. But never have I witnessed anything to compare with this reception by Ireland of an Englishman bringing to her in nis hand nothing but the simple gift of a free soul.

Next to the splendor of this welcome was its perfect order. There were very few police. Dublin kept order for herself. There was no lining of the streets. The torch-light procession wound its own way through the mass escorting the carriages, and in all that yast gathering of a people there was no confusion, no disorder. I saw not a single drunken man. All was perfect barmony and good temper. Women fect harmony and good temper. Women and children moved safely through hat crowd, and were always helped by the men. There was (Cheers).

The oppostion to home rule purely obstructive, anarchic, and chaotic in its method. Not one constructive suggestion had been made Their purpose was not, as is ought to be to construct by discussion and debate a working plea for Irish selfgovernment; the avowed object of the Opposition was to wreck the home rule

Ireland a Nation.

"I have always maintained," remarked Mr. Asquith, "that Ireland in every relevant sense of the term is a nation-(great cheering and waving o handkerchiefs)-not two nations, but one nation. (Renewed cheers). condition of success of any scheme devised by statesmanship is the and generous recognition of Irish nationality. Is that nationality inconsisten with imperial unity? Any of our self-governing dominions will answer that question." (Cheers).

He put it to them that if Ireland got by the bill, as she did local autonomy and retained representation in the Imperial Parliament, what derogation was there even in the most extreme conception of Irish nationality. They talked about the veto, but he was not in the least afraid of it. No one who was a party to that legislation believed the imperial veto would be, or could be, wantonly and oppressively, or even irritatingly and fussily, put into force. They had in that bill a free and full recognition, everything which was of substance and real meaning in the great idea to which they were greatly and definitely attached, the nationhood of Ireland. The only other argument of substance was the argument based on the opposition, or supposed opposition of Ulster. Neither he nor his colleagues had ever treated either the facts or arguments founded on the opposition of Ulster otherwise than with consideration and respect, but he must ask in regard to that matter one or two plain questions. The first was what in that connection did Ulster mean? It did not mean the Province f Ulster, for the province, judged by its parliamentary representation, was divided in the proportion of something like half and half. The Unionist party voted with many searchings of hear for the selection and segregation of four particular counties that were the mainstay of the stronghold. Was there ever a more contemptible figure cut by the adherents of a great principle? These four counties were to be selected for preferential treatment on the as-sumption that the Irish Parliament would do wrong and injustice and be guilty of religious and civil oppression. (Cries of "Never!")

If the Government had offered exclude the whole of Ulster, they told them their opposition would not be one whit affected. It was a mere theatrical manoeuvre which took in nobody. What was the claim put forward on behalf of Ulster? The Government have, as they beleved, inserted in the bill the completest and most adequate safeguards against the possibility of oppression and persecution, civil, political, or religious.

Offer of More Safeguards. "We have offered, and I repeat the offer here and now in Dublin, in the plainest and most distinct terms, that if these safeguards can be shown to be

The next day Mr. Hammond explained his action in the following way:

"For some weeks Mr. Hughes has been preaching sermons derogatory to the good men and women of the Bible. Moses has had it. Esther was spoken of as if she were a bad woman, and poor old Job has been dragged through the mud. Last evening Mr. Hughes went same way, just as if he delighted in that sort of thing."

"He pointed out the bad points of number of Biblical characters, and he was equally severe on Oliver Cromwell, Joan of Arc and a lady who is prominent in English history.
